Postlude to Armageddon

First there's the quick death—bursting bombs and strafing machine-guns. Later, when the echo of the guns and roaring planes has died away, the other kind of death comes along—malnutrition, outright starvation, disease, desolation of all hope.

Nearly every nation in Europe faces the bleak prospect of that second kind of death, made more torturous by its slowness. Governments will do what they can. But a continent, cut off from sea lanes and ravaged by military conquest, can scarcely be expected to provide adequate food supplies for everyone.

Before the Hitler boot stomped down on the still hopeful peoples of Europe's lesser powers, it was not so bad carrying ration cards and subsisting on meager allotments of food. Now that war has come and gone through their towns and fields, the survivors must regard what remains of their lives and their dreams as empty futilities.

Vanquished France will feel the pinch of winter as never before. Drastic conservation orders have been issued by the Vichy government in a desperate attempt to minimize the human suffering that seems inevitable.

Bread may not be served until it is 24 hours old to discourage anyone from developing a taste for it. Restaurants may not serve coffee with the evening meal. Cheese may not be eaten with meat. Baths may be taken only on certain days. Patrons are discouraged from asking for paper wrappings around their purchases. Shoes and clothing are scarce. Razor blades and toothpaste will not last long. Saccharine is being used widely as a sugar substitute. The soap supply is nearly depleted.

In Jugoslavia, there is no war. Crops were reasonably good. Nevertheless, strict food control was recently decreed because Germany and Italy still expect this little nation to keep up the large exports to the Fascist countries.

The formula will always be the same: First war, then famine. One may be more spectacular than the other, but the end is the same. The sufferers will be those who never sought war. They will be the women and the children and the poor—the survivors among the civilians who were targets for aerial raids.

There's so much that must be done; so little one can do.

Herm Goering is reported taking personal charge of the Nazi air force. A blinding flash over London, unaccompanied by a loud report, would be the reflection of Herm's medals.

Suggestion is made to the Senate that the U. S. should have two vice presidents. Instead of having little to do, they'll have twice as little to do.

Mavericks Win Over Bearcats In Friday's Game

Friday afternoon the Eastland Mavericks superbly out-played the De Leon Bearcats to the tune of 10-6 at Welch Field in Eastland. It was the first win of the season for the Mavs, whose playing clicked perfectly. Underhill, Littlejohn, and Terrill were the outstanding players for the visitors. The entire Eastland team was magnificent, but Bill Hart, Guy O'Neil, Earl Brinkley, Dillard Morgan, "Sonny" Self, Charles Bush, and M. P. Herring stole most of the spotlight.

During the first quarter the ball never was out of De Leon territory. The Bearcats scored in the second period on an eighteen yard pass to Underhill. The place kick for extra point failed. O'Neil scored in the second quarter on a twenty yard pass from Morgan. Bush, who has a broken jaw, was sent into the game, and he made the extra point on a drop kick. In the last few minutes of play Bush kicked a field goal from the twenty yard line; this kick, too, was a drop kick. The Mavericks threatened to cross the goal line in the fourth after O'Neil intercepted a pass and ran thirty-two yards to the 'C's ten, but the De Leon defense was too strong.

The Mav starting lineup consisted of Simmons, Pipkin, Thomas, Herring, King, Treadwell, Hart, Self (Captain), Morgan, O'Neil, and Brinkley. Eastland substitutes were Bush, Lovelace, and Woods. The DeLeon starters were Smith, Harris, Macon, Pittman, Holmes, Ripptoe, Rutledge, Terrill, Carter, Littlejohn and Underhill.

it's played a major part in shaping of her life. "She graduated from high school with cherished dreams of becoming a great designer. She was displaying considerable talent along those lines, too. And then those airplanes got to buzzing around in her bonnet again and Dixie figured that if she was ever to learn to fly she had better choose a quicker way to prepare herself for a job than would be required for an education in designing. She went to Abilene and took a business course, then headed for Austin and a job.

Olden Girl—

"Flying time back in '38 was around $10 an hour so Dixie cut her clothes budget to the nub and saved every penny she could. Then came the day when she felt the old sock was stuffed full enough for her first lessons. It was March and windy as the dickens when she took out for the airport that day, but Dixie remembers it as one of the most beautiful days of that year. At the airport she cornered Dr. Haile and announced that she wanted to talk about learning to fly. Doc, ever a man of action, suggested the less talk the better. Get in and we'll take her up." They took off, gained altitude, then suddenly Doc turned to Dixie and motioned to her to take the controls. All she could think of was that at last she was actually handling an airplane herself. Back on the ground she made a deal to begin taking lessons immediately.

"All her friends said she was crazy, but there was no convincing her after she had handled those controls that first time up. (Dixie says she didn't know until later that they let all new students handle the controls the first time). Haile had guaranteed her transportation to and from the airport and before long one young flier was making a habit of carrying out the guarantee. He was Richard Harold Downing. A year later they were married. "Dixie took 'time' when she could but in has been tough and go for several months now. She had about despaired of ever getting that treasured private ticket when the CAA school offered new possibilities. "Dixie protests 'anyone could have done it. My grades weren't much higher than the others anyway. Just a little book grilling.'"

Her mother, in commenting on her daughter's enthusiasm for aviation says, "While attending Olden High School she was so interested in aviation all her themes were concerning that subject. Her room at home was plastered with pictures of air craft and aviators. She drew wings on everything. "She takes her flying seriously and is called a 'natural' by her instructor."

Mrs. Downing and her pilot have flown to visit her parents several times, landing at the Ranger airport and making the trip from there to Olden by car.

While in Olden High Dixie El Merle Stanford was school reporter for the Ranger Times and the Eastland Telegram, reporting the activities of the school for the two papers. She graduated in 1935.

4. Q.—Will all registrants be placed in Class I, unless additional facts prove that they should receive a different classification?

A.—Yes. If a registrant does not claim a deferment, for example, he will automatically go into Class I. If he fails to fill out his questionnaire, he will be placed in the same class. The only way to get out of Class I, is to prove the right to a deferment or to be removed as the result of a physical examination which shows the registrant is not suitable for service.

5. Q.—Suppose some citizen of the community is not satisfied with the classification given to a registrant. What can he do?

A.—Each citizen is interested to see that no favoritism and no errors creep into the classification. In each local board area a Government Appeal Agent, recommended by the Governor and named by the President, will appeal from any local board decision which he believes is wrong. If a citizen feels that Registrant X, who has been given a deferred classification, should be classified as available for training, he will present his facts in secrecy to the Government Appeal Agent who will then act. The Government Appeal Agent will also help ignorant registrants to secure justice.

Peanuts Stored In Ranger Amounts to A 400-Ton Total

The Ranger Peanut Warehouse, which has been open since the beginning of the peanut buying season, has received 400 tons of peanuts, it was stated Saturday. Peanut prices this year are above those of 1939, with No. 1 peanuts bringing 96 cents, No. 2 peanuts bringing 90 cents and No. 3 peanuts selling for 82 cents.

Farmers are now getting their money for the 1940 crop, which Dick Weekes, manager of the Southwestern Peanut Growers Association, says is 10 days earlier than the money was received on the 1939 crop.

It was estimated Saturday by Weekes that the Southwestern Association would purchase 30,000 tons of peanuts this year, and he stated that every available building in Eastland, Ranger and Gorman would be utilized in storing the crop.

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Adam is dead, but Marta has only fainted. Revived, she tells Sidney she knows the man who slipped, impaled himself on the scimitar. But there is a bullet hole in his shirt front, Sidney orders all of them to remain together until police arrive.

MOTIVES FOR MURDER

CHAPTER V

THEY waited in the library for the police, while the storm continued in full fury. Rain beat against the windows. The heaviness were a battleground of light and sound. Marta lay on the sofa, her long gown trailing to the floor, while the others tried to make conversation.

Braitwood called on each one of them for a detailed account of all actions from the moment the lights in the Jungle went out until the men returned with candles. Pat and Nella said they had covered their eyes against the lightning; Gundrum and the valet had crossed to the table for matches, neither having any in his pockets, Hugh and Sidney had remained near the door on guard. Apparently no one had been looking toward the lioness.

Pat said that Marta had become alarmed when the men remained spoken so long. Adam had not spoken to them, and they had failed to hear Hugh suggest that he remain with them so they thought he had gone on with the rest. Finally Marta had announced that she was going to find out what had happened. They had tried to dissuade her, but she had insisted and had left the table to grope a way through the darkness to the door.

Then, they had heard her scream. Marta remained silent.

Although Sidney had telephoned police headquarters as soon as they came upstairs, the officers did not arrive. Probably, he reasoned, the storm had made roads almost impassable. Static would hinder radio reception, if a patrol car happened to be in the vicinity.

"There's nothing to do but wait," the attorney said.

SUDDENLY Nella burst out, "I smell smoke." "Nonsense. You're always smelling smoke, Nella," he said.

"A time-honored method of destroying evidence is by fire," Sidney conceded. "I can't smell smoke myself, but Nella's senses may be keener than ours. It will do no harm to make sure. And if it is a fire, we can get out of it."
