Don’t sell Sonora live in Sonora

Town Meeting positive beginning

Consensus concerns rose this past week to new needs. Perhaps the seeds of a victory garden. Seeds of hope and caring.

The planning occurred at a Town Meeting, held in the High School Auditorium, and was hosted by the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Board.

After an introduction by Mayor George, Ernest Lykins, Chamber president, engaged the group. "This next meeting can’t talk anything but it is a great step," Lykins said "It could be the turning point of the outlook of Sonora.

Sonora must find a permanent economic base," Lykins continued, "and we have been taught to explain the ways to accomplish this task. Tourism may possibly be an answer.

In addition to the discussion of economic growth, there are some questions each person must ask themselves," said Lykins. "Is the business center? Would you shop in your own business? Are you willing to put forth the effort to improve your image and make the necessary changes? And do the citizens of Sonora have a pride of their community? If so, are you willing to work together to make this a better place to live?"

Everyone agreed this was the first step taken in the revitalization of Sonora in the change of the minds leading to new town as well as the town itself. Many ideas and suggestions were offered in ways to accomplish this goal.

From Sonora's point it would be powerful benefit for each business to place a suggestion box where customers can make suggestions for each business, but also offer hints for the town. This idea was a step forward. The Chamber and Industrial Board are busy exploring all angles. They have spoken to the people and ideas bantered about. And they are pinning for more Town Meetings.

"Regardless of how we choose to strengthen the economy, there are some questions each person must ask themselves," said Lykins. "What is the attitude problem? We must remember if this is the town we work, this is the town we live and Sonora belongs to all of us."

In order to improve Sonora, Brent Gesch, Chief of Police, said: "We must be proud of our community. We cannot let Sonora become a norm and continue to improve Sonora."

First let's take a look at the decoration available. I found myself in the decorating section, which was at a different spectrum of people. Some people for example have an eye for decorations for the home, I was interested in something by Monarch Flowers. The image has just what you are looking for in flowers arrangements.

Sonora-Another wildflower community, continues restructuring their pricing, employees going the extra mile to make sure that their businesses have a chance in the three business owners.

Many people reside in Sonora but don't live here," said Stephen. "What is this attitude problem? We must remember if this is the town we work, this is the town we live and Sonora belongs to all of us."

Deck the Halls

By Gail Roeker

While halls are important traffic areas, they can become neglected. Wasted space unless they are planned. The front hall, for example, creates a vital first impression for guests entering your home. Since the front hall is almost always a pass-through, one way traffic, decoration can be done. Yet, the traffic pattern might call for a different look to accommodate the traffic and also suit your taste.

Halls are primarily rooms designed to receive traffic from one part of the house to another as simply and as easily as possible.

But they can also be used for all sorts of plans that need not interfere with traffic, such as combining the functions of a telephone booth, an art gallery, storage and storage areas. For example, collections of small objects lend themselves to being displayed in a hall and will look particularly good if quickly lighted.

Halls are further made more of a hallway, consider color and light. Color can add interest to the display of the hall. In very narrow areas, it may be best to avoid strong, bright colors which could make it seem smaller. Even though some will make the hall seem larger.

The effect of color depends on light, so if the light is poor which it is common in hallways, warm white and pale colors will be desired. Consider lighting up individual areas of the hall with adjustable light fixtures or spot lights. This will keep the back ground light low, but flashing lights can highlight pictures or plants.

Don't wait for Christmas to think the halls, it can be a part of your year-round decorating scheme.

...Here's where I get the "Devil", out of the Past.

In your year-round decorating scheme. "Deck the halls" - it can be a part of your year-round decorating scheme.

Whatever use you make of a house dress may be best to avoid strong, bright colors which seem to crowd in. And spot lights can highlight pictures or plants.

The effect of color depends on light, so if the light is poor which it is common in hallways, warm white and pale colors will be desired. Consider lighting up individual areas of the hall with adjustable light fixtures or spot lights. This will keep the back ground light low, but flashing lights can highlight pictures or plants.
