Wheeler Makes Assignment

Q. Wheeler has transferred to C. Storms all his stock of buggies, harness, etc., to indebtedness against J. Q. & Son, and Walter Coleman continued in charge of the business. Some creditors have accepted the assignment believing it best for all creditors, others are considering bankruptcy proceedings. Chas. Wheeler having left Kerrville last month and abandoned the business, and Mr. Wheeler not being able to push sales on account of the recent bad weather, left the business unable to pay some matured notes. It is hoped by his many friends in Kerr, Bandera and adjoining counties that Mr. Wheeler will be able to resume business.

New Postmaster

Postmaster Carpenter on the 10th inst. sent in his resignation to take effect upon the qualification of his successor. As he is one of the owners of the Kerrville Merc. Co. he could not attend the duties of both positions. W. G. Garrett, Jr., had a petition out for the place as soon as the matter became public and it has been numerously signed. It is understood that Congressman Slayden will recommend his appointment, although A. H. Moore is also an applicant with some strong endorsements and there is talk of others seeking the appointment.

PAINT OR NOT.

Is a horse worth more or less after feed?
Hay and oats are high today; shall I wait today and feed him tomorrow?

That's how men do out painting their houses. They wait for several years; and yet they are still waiting; they are still waiting for a better price to fall. Their property drops a trifle next job of painting, creeps up, creeps up, and take about a cent, and they are still waiting for a better price to fall.

It's just business, that's all. ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER

LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world. The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time. ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER

GOVERNOR SULZER

GUilty IN THE INNOCENT

Sulzer Is Formally Removed From Governorship and Lieutenant Governor Lynn Installed.

Albany, N. Y.—William Sulzer ceased to be governor of the state of New York at noon Friday. He was removed from office by the highest court of impeachment by a vote of 43-12, two members not voting.

Martin H. Glynn, lieutenant governor, was sworn in as his successor the first in the history of the state to step into its high office in this manner.

The verdict of the court was that Sulzer was guilty of falsification, perjury and an attempt to suppress evidence against him. Of all other charges he was acquitted, the court Friday unanimously voting him not guilty of the four remaining articles of the impeachment.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM SULZER

By a vote virtually unanimous, also, the impeachment tribunal decided that Sulzer should not be punished by disqualification to hold any office of honor and trust in this state in the future. This would have been the extreme penalty under the law.

The ousted executive was served with a copy of the court's verdict at the executive mansion—christened by himself "the People's House."

"Good, I thank you," he said to the sergeant at arms of the senate, who delivered the document.

The incoming governor issued a statement, in which he said his endeavor would be "to give the people of the state an honest, progressive and wise conduct of public affairs."

The outgoing executive issued a statement in which he denounced the tribunal which had removed him as "Murphy's high court of infamy," and his trial as "the confirmation of a deep-laid political conspiracy to oust me from office."

"A horse thief in frontier days," he said, "would have received a squarer deal."

He asserted he had not taken the stand in his own defense because he realized that his story attacking the Tammany leader would be ruled out; asserted that every dollar given him during his campaign had been properly accounted for; that he was $76,000 in debt; that he had been "faithful to his trust," and that he "handed back to the people the commission they gave me un tarnished and un sullied."

"Had I but served the boss with half the zeal I did the state, William Sulzer would never have been impeached," he said.

SIX NATIONS TO SEND WARSHIPS A GREAT COAL MINE DISASTER

TO ACT AS LEGATION GUARDS. DEPUTIES STILL IN PRISON.

Diplomatic Representatives of Great Britain, France, Spain, Cuba, Guatemala and Norway Take Step.

City of Mexico.—The diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, France, Spain, Cuba, Guatemala and Norway at a conference Wednesday decided to recommend that their respective governments send warships to Mexico for the purpose of affording legation guards should conditions require.

A member of the diplomatic corps made this statement. He also said that the diplomatic representatives had recommended a temperate attitude in the matter of Mexico's reply to Washington.

It is not expected that the elections, which President Huerta appears to regard as one of the cardinal principles of his policy, will be postponed by reason of his decree, although it is admitted this is a possibility.

Federico Jimbo and Manuel Carero, the presidential candidates, are not abating their efforts and appear to believe that the elections will be held according to program.

To many it would be no surprise release the deputies and restore them to their functions, which appears to be the only alternative.

The deputies are still in the penitentiary and processes in the civil courts are being prepared against many of them. They are allowed to receive aid from friends, although thus far they have not been permitted to communicate with the outside world.

Although exercising a privilege granted by Tuesday by Secretary of State Bryan, General Joaquin Maas, Jr., Mexican federal commander, while passing through San Antonio in a special train from Eagle Pass to Laredo, was arrested Wednesday by Deputy United States marshals on charges of violating the neutrality laws and placed under a $5,000 bond. After a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner R. L. Edwards, General Maas and his staff of ten officers were allowed to resume their journey to Laredo. None of his staff was arrested.

No Longer Hope for Fair Election.

Washington.—The first regular cabinet meeting since last July, which was to have dealt largely with administrative routine and particularly with laying the ground work for a government budget, was held Tuesday. The subject of prime importance before the cabinet, of course, was the Mexican situation which, in one respect, has become serious. In a stern note, which City of Mexico dispatches say the Huerta government regards as "intemperate," the American government announces to General Huerta that Huerta's assumption of dictatorship makes it impossible for this government to recognize the elections scheduled for Oct. 26 as free, legal and constitutional.

AIRSHIP EXPLODES; TWENTY-EIGHT KILLED

Big German Zeppelin on Trial Tully With Admiralty Board, While 900 Feet Up, Demolished.

Berlin.—Twenty-eight persons were killed Friday near Johannisthal, in the explosion and fall of Count Zeppelin's latest dirigible balloon "L-11." The twenty-eight men represented the entire personnel of the admiralty board which was to conduct final trial of the dirigible, looking to its acceptance by the government as a new unit of the German aerial navy, the pilot and crew and invited guests. Every person that went aloft in the big airship is dead.

Twenty-seven of them were killed almost instantly by the explosion of gas in the balloon or burned to death as the flaming wreck fell to the ground from a height of 900 feet and enveloped them. One man, Lieutenant Baron von Bieker of the Queen Augusta Grenadier Guards, a guest of the admiralty board, was extricated alive from the mass of twisted wreckage. His eyes were burned out and he suffered other injuries. Begging his rescuers to kill him and end his sufferings he was taken to a hospital, where he died later.

The "L-11" had it proved successful, would have been attached to the aerial corps of the navy which, after Friday's fatalities, now has only two men trained to command airships. The official report of the accident says the explosion was due to the ignition of gas in or above the forward gondola, but not within the body of the airship.

The navy was not the only sufferer Friday through aviation accidents, for three army officers were killed in aeroplane flights—Captain Haessler, Lieutenant Koch and Sergeant Monte.

The disaster occurred at Johannisthal. The shattered bulk of the airship dropped 900 feet into the public highway.

The admiralty trial board consisted of seven officers, including Lieutenant Commander Behnisch and Senior Lieutenant Freyer of the German naval flying corps. The airship's pilot was Captain Gluth.

Naval Constructors Neumann and Prieztler and Naval Engineer Busch were among the victims.

The dirigible, before leaving the balloon hall at Johannisthal, took on board her regular naval crew and a number of officers. She headed for Berlin, a short distance away, in a light wind. About a dozen aviators were circling the aerodrome at the time.

Nome, Alaska.—Miners who have worked the beach sands for gold think it likely that the storm that recently destroyed half the city drove ashore gold-bearing sands that will more than pay for the damage done. The Lady of the Mount

FREDERIC S. ISNAM
AUTHOR OF "THE STROLLERS," "UNDER THE ROSE," ETC.
STORY BY RAY WATERS

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Elise, daughter of the governor of the Mount, has a chance encounter with a boy named Saladin, who is a prisoner of the government, on the northwestern coast of France, and during the time of Louis XVI. Saladin is a handsome young man, and Elise is a beautiful girl. They fall in love, and Elise escapes with Saladin. They are pursued by soldiers, but they manage to escape. Saladin is a brave and noble man, and Elise is a kind and loving girl. They have many adventures together, and they finally reach a safe haven. The story is a romantic and exciting tale of love and adventure.

"Why did you do that?" she asked angrily.
"The governor's orders," said the man, bowing his head. "They are to see to no one."
"Then let them up at once! Do you hear?"
And as he began to unlock the door, walked off. After that, her interest in the rock waned; the Mount seemed but a prison; she, herself, desired only to escape from it.
"Have my saddle put on Saladin," she said to Beppo the next day, toward the end of a long afternoon.
"Very well, my lady. Who accompanies your ladyship?"
"No one!" With slight emphasis, "I ride alone."
Beppo discreetly suppressed his surprise. "Is your ladyship going far?" If so, he began to think that tonight is the change of the moon, and the grand, not the little tide may be coming in."
"I was already aware of it, and shall keep between the Mount and the shore. Have my horse sent to the upper gate," she added, and soon afterward rode down.
The town was astray, and many looked after her as she passed; not kindly, but with the varying expressions she had of late begun to notice. Again was she cognizant of that feeling of secret antagonism, even from these people whose houses clung to the very foundations of her own abode, and her lips set tightly. Why did they hate her? What right had they to hate her? A sensation, almost a defile, came over her, when she thought of the massive, feudal gate, she found herself on the beach. Still and languorous was the day; not a breath stirred above the tiny ripples of the sand; a calm, almost unnatural, seemed to wrap the world in its embrace. The girl breathed deeper, feeling the closeness of the air; her impatient eyes looked around; scanned the shore; to the left low and fat to the right, marked by the dark fringe of a forest. Which way should she go? If hands hard and firm at the reins. Saladin was behaving very badly, but—at least he was superb, worth conquering, if—

A brief thrill of apprehension seized her as, again drawing near the point of land, he showed no signs of yielding; resisted all her attempts to turn, to direct him to it. With nostrils thrust forward and breathing strong, he continued to choose his own course; to whirl her on; past the promontory; around into the great bay beyond—now a vast expanse, or desert of sand, broken only about halfway across, by the small isle of Casque. Toward the rocky formation, a pygmy to the great Mount from which it lay concealed by the intervening projection of land, the horse rushed.
On, on! In vain she still endeavored to stop him; thinking uneasily of stories the fishermen told of this neighboring coast; of the sands that often shifted here, setting pitfalls for the unwary. She saw the sky grow yet darker, noted the nearer flashings of light, and heard the louder rumblings that followed. Then presently another danger she had long been conscious of, a sudden became real.
She saw, or thought she saw, a faint streak, like a silver line drawn across the sky where the yellow sands touched the sordid horizon. And Saladin seemed to observe it, too; to detect in it cause for wonder; reason for hesitation. At any rate, that headlong speed now showed signs of diminishing; he clipped and tossed the sand less vigorously, and looked around at his mistress with wild, uneasy eyes. Again she spoke to him; pulled with all her strength at the reins, and at once, he stopped.
None too soon! Great drops of rain had begun to fall, but the girl did not notice them. The white line alone riveted her attention! It seemed to grow broader; to acquire an intangible movement of its own; at the same time to give out a sound—a strange, low droning that filled the air. Heard for the first time, a stranger at the Mount would have found it inexplicable; to the Governor's daughter, the menacing cadence left no room for doubt as to its origin.
The girl's cheek paled; her gaze swung in the opposite direction, toward the point of land, now so distant. Could they reach it? She did not believe they could; indeed, the "grand" tide coming up behind on the verge of the storm, faster than any horse could gallop, would overtake them midway. And Saladin seemed to know it also; beneath her, he trembled. Yet must they try, she thought, and had tightened the reins to turn, when looking ahead once more, she discerned a break in the forbidding cliffs of the little island of Casque, and, back of the fissure, a shining spot which marked a tiny cove.
A moment she hesitated; what should she do? Ride toward the left and the white danger, or toward the point of mainland and from it? Either alternative was a desperate one, but the left lay much nearer; and quickly, the brown eyes gleaming with sudden courage, she decided; touched her horse and pressed him forward.
But fast as she went the "grand" tide came faster; struck with a loud, menacing sound the seaward side of the island, and swung hungrily around. My lady cast over her shoulder a quick glance; the cove, however, was near; only a line of small rocks, jutting from the sand, separated her from it. If they could but pass, she thought; they had passed, she told herself joyfully, when of a sudden the horse stumbled; fell. Thrown violently from his back, a moment was she cognizant of a deafening roar; a riotous advance of foam; above, a hundred birds that screamed distractedly; then all these sounds mingled; darkness succeeded, and she remembered no more.

CHAPTER VIII.
The Old Watch-Tower.
A wall! A window—a prison-like interior!—As her eyes opened, the Governor's daughter strove confusedly to decipher her surroundings. The wall seemed real; the narrow window, too, high above, framing, against a darkening background, a slant of fine rain! Again she closed her eyes, only to be conscious of a gentle languor, a heaviness like that of half-sleep; of bodily heat, and also a little bodily pain. For an indistinct period, really a moment or two, she resigned herself to that dreamy torpor; then, with an effort, lifted her lashes once more.
As she gazed before her, something bright seemed leaping back and forth; a flame—that played on the wall; revealing the joints between the stones of massive masonry; casting shadows, but to wipe them out; paling near a small window, the only aperture apparent in the cell-like place. Turning from the flickerings, her glance quickly sought their source—a fire in a hearth, before which she lay—or half-sat, propped against a stone.
But why? The spot was strange; in her ears sounded a buzzing, like the murmur of a waterfall. She remembered now; she had lingered before once—in the woods; and Saladin had run away, madly, across the sands, until—my lady raised her hand to her brow; abruptly let it fall. In the shadow on the other side of the hearth some one moved; some one who had been watching her and who now stepped out into the light.
"Are you better?" said a voice.
She stared. On the bold, swarthy features of a young man now standing and looking down at her, the light flared and gleamed; the open shirt revealed a muscular throat; the downturned black eyes were steady, solicitous. His appearance was unexpected, yet not quite strange; she had seen him before, but, in the general surprise and perplexity of the moment, did not ask herself where. The interval between what she last remembered on the beach—the rush and swirl of water—and what she woke to, absorbed the hazy workings of her mind.

The young man stopped; stirred the fire, and after a pause, apparently to give her time to collect her thoughts, repeated his question: "Are you better, now?"
"Oh, yes," she said, with an effort, half sitting up. And then irrelevantly, with rather a wild glance about her: "Isn't—Isn't it storming outside?"
"A little—not much—" A smile crossed the dark features.
"I remember," she added, as if forcing herself to speak, "it had just begun to rain on the beach, when it—the 'grand' tide—" The words died away; mechanically she lifted her hand, brushed back the shining waves of hair.
"Why think of it now?" he interposed gently.
"But," uncertainly she smoothed her skirt; it was damp and warm; "I suppose this is the island of Casque?"
"Yes."
"And this place?"
"The old watch-tower."
"But how—" Then she noticed that his hands, long, brown, and well-formed, were cut and bruised; bore many jagged marks as from a fierce struggle. "How did you hurt your hands?"
He thrust them into his pockets.
"Was it from the rocks—and the waves? How did I get here?"
"Oh, I was standing on the cliff," he answered carelessly, "and—saw your horse running away!"
"You did? And then—came down?"

"At Times—a Hunter."

"What else was there to do?" he said simply.
Her gaze returned to the fire. "But the tide was rushing in—rushing! It was right upon me!"
She looked again toward the pockets into which his hands were thrust; observed his shirt, torn at the shoulder; then arose unsteadily. "I know—it was not so easy!" she said. "It was brave of you."
"Your ladyship is no coward!" he interrupted, a sparkle in his eyes. "When you turned the horse toward the tide, I was watching; hoping you would dare, and you did!"
About to reply, she became once more aware she was still very dizzy from the fall on the sand; the shapely figure swayed and she put out her hand with a gesture of helplessness. At the same time, the man reached forward quickly and caught her. A moment was she conscious of a firm grasp; a dark, anxious gaze bent upon her; then, slid gently back to the stone seat.
A brief interval, and gradually she began to see again more distinctly—a man's face, not far from hers; a face that drew back as her own look cleared. At a respectful distance he now stood, his bearing at once erect and buoyant, and more curiously she regarded him. A distinct type, here pride and intelligence stamped themselves strongly on the dark, handsome features; courage and daring were written on the bold, self-reliant brow. And with this realization of something distinctive, compelling, in his personality, came another.
"I have seen you—spoken with you before! On the beach—the night of the dance!"
The young man turned. "Your ladyship so far honored me—as to dance with me!" he said, in his eyes a touch of that brightness that had caused her to regard him imperiously, as he had swung her to the measure on the occasion in question.

"Sit down!" She corrected him, straightening suddenly at the recollection of that evening, when humility and modesty were virtues conspicuously wanting in his demeanor.
"Your ladyship is right," he said quietly. "An alarm from the Mount interrupted."
She glanced at him quickly. His eyes met hers with a look of unconcern.
"Are you a fisherman?" she asked abruptly.
"On occasions."
"And when you are not one—what are you then?"
"At times—a hunter."
"Ah!" Her eye lingered on something bright on the ledge beneath the window. "And that is the reason you have—pistols?"
"Exactly, my lady!"
She continued to regard the weapons, of finest workmanship, inlaid with a metal that gleamed dully, like gold, in the light from the fire. His glance followed hers; she was about to speak, when quickly he interposed.
"Has your ladyship thought how she is going to get back to the Mount?"
My lady's questioning, along the line of personal inquiry, ceased; the Governor's daughter looked a little blank. "No—that is, haven't you a boat?"
"Not here."
"Then you walked over?"
He neither affirmed, nor denied. "And the tide will not be out for hours!" Her look showed consternation; she glanced toward the opening in the wall. "Isn't it becoming dark now?"

AND THE "BLUES" WENT AWAY
Showing How Easy It is to Scatter Sunshine if One Has it in the Heart.
I was going off toward one day in a very overcrowded trolley car. It was pouring outside and my gloves clung damply to my fingers. A stray wisp of hair was tickling my nose and my hands were too full of dripping umbrella and swaying strap to brush it away. I could feel that my forehead was wrinkled up, and my mouth drawn down. I thought of all pleasant things that had happened to me, and, glancing at the overcast sky, I wondered how to rain so hard. Then, looking out the car, I saw another girl hanging a strap. She was ever so much wetter than I. The dampness oozed out of a crack in her worn shoe; the bare hands that gripped her umbrella and strap looked cramped and tired, and two straggled locks of hair tickled her rather small, inoffensive nose. But as I looked at her and pitied her, she glanced up and caught my eye, and she smiled at me! Then, somehow, the rain drops looked very bright and jewel-like, and the gray of the sky seemed warmer and more friendly. I forgot that my feet were wet, and I smiled back. All that day, through the work and hurry of the hours, I carried a sunbeam hiding my heart—Margaret E. Sangster, Jr., in the Christian Herald.

Airmen's Dream.
M. Esnault, Pelterie, one of the best-known French aviation experts is of opinion that the day will come when communication between earth and the moon and stars will be possible in aeroplanes.
Providing that radium is found in larger quantities at some way of harnessing its energy is discovered by scientists, he estimates that an aeroplane weighing ten should be able to cover the 800 miles which separate the earth and the moon in three hours at a minutes.
About 800 pounds of radium would be necessary to provide the fuel for the journey. At the current price of about $10,000,000,000 worth would be required.
Trips to certain of the stars are considered equally practicable.

WIFE ADVANCE

Thursday at Kerrville
T. A. Buckner.

50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

U. S. Mails as second Kerrville, Texas, on according to act of Con-1878.

Government has any right to special privileges on any or individual except for good.

... boys, there are fifty
interfere bills in circulation,
government authorities say.
the Advance doesn't an-getting hold of any of them.

Sulzer of New York has been removed from office by impeach-for alleged offenses committed his election. As Governor declined to be ruled by the noxious Tammany Hall in New York and Tammany followers had a two-thirds majority in the Legislature. But it is doubtful if Tammany will ever have a majority again.

Uncle Sam has been mighty patient with Mexico. American citizens have been compelled to leave and Huerta has taken upon himself the government so far as he administer it. It looks outside nations must ining peace and a stable ment to the splendid but uncivilized country, and the United States is the one to do the work as it did in Cuba and Porto Rico.

In Chicago they have a court to settle domestic troubles. Out of 7147 cases in the first year 3447 were settled by the parties. The record shows that the family troubles were caused by the following:
"Booze" 46 per cent; husband's immorality 12 per cent; wife's immorality 2 per cent; husband's abuse 8 per cent; wife's nagging 3 per cent;
mothers-in-law 6 per cent; fathers-in-law 4 per cent; and other causes were gambling and the extreme youth of the parties. As usual "booze" and the saloons stand at the head of the list. Put the saloons out of business and two-thirds or more of family unhappiness will be at an end.

One dear old mother said to us in renewing her subscription this week: "We like the Advance fine
but you don't give it to the liquor business hard enough." The dear old soul knows something of the awful results of this useless traffic and she expressed the sentiment of nearly all mothers in wishing for its destruction. But the liquor business is as merciless as it is demor-alizing and the man who dares to openly oppose it has a hard fight on his hands and usually few men with the back-bone and courage to hold up his hands. Still, for the sake of the dear mothers, wives and children, who are helpless to protect themselves, and of our dear boys upon whose character and manhood rests the future welfare of our beloved country, we shall continue to speak out against this mighty evil by word, by pen and by ballot, where and whenever opportunity is afforded.

Wife-Deserters.

Under a new law in Pennsylvania,
the man who will not support his wife is sentenced to three months with the proviso that if he does not work his hardest the sentence will be extended to six. Without regard to whether he is used to hard work or not, he is put at some occupation, and the state pays to his wife the sum of sixty-five cents a day for every day that the sentence continues. To be sure the State takes a chance that the prisoner will not be able to earn sixty-five cents a day, but it is not a very big chance and the husband may be sure, under these circumstances, that he will not be allowed to have too easy a time.
If he "soldiers" at his tasks he serves twice as long a sentence, with the thought for company that the longer he remains at work for the State, the longer his wife is assured of sufficient income to at least keep body and soul together.

The law is very new, the first batch of six culprits having just been sentenced under it in Philadelphia. It appears to be working nicely and if it is good for Pennsylvania it would be good for every State in the Union. Let our Texas law-makers get busy and try out this new reform method here, for nothing is too good for Texas and surely more attention needs to be given to the protection and welfare of the home, to womanhood and childhood, than anything else.

KERRVILLE

Is the county seat of Kerr County, has a population of about 2500, is situated 20 miles northwesterly from San Antonio, and is the terminus of the Kerrville branch of the S. A. & A. P. railroad. It has two daily trains to and from San Antonio, and daily mail routes, carrying passengers in hacks,
to Ingram, Junction, Rock Springs, Harper and other places north and south of Kerrville, and also a daily line to Fredericksburg. From Kerrville to Fredericksburg is 25 miles; to Bandera and Medina City, 25 miles; to Junction 60 miles; Rocksprings 80 miles, Harper 21 miles.

Kerrville has electric lights and a splendid system of water works. The sum of $20,000 is being spent on the streets and $40,000 has been voted for road improvements in this precinct.

The elevation at Kerrville is 1750 feet. The Guadalupe river, which heads 30 miles north of Kerrville, runs through the city. On the east side where the city is located, there are high cliffs on the river, and on the west side is a fertile and beautiful valley, and mountains surround the city on the east and west. The Guadalupe valley is occupied by thrifty farmers and ranchmen, and the mountain regions, among which there is considerable valley, creek and arable land,
there are large ranches of cattle, horses, sheep and goats, all of which do well in the Kerrville country. The land generally is well wooded, principally with live oak, Spanish oak and cedar, and the range is good, and water excellent.

On farmers grow wheat, oats and other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the best wool markets in the state,
and large quantities of wool, mohair,
cotton, and cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine.
The summers are cool and delightful,
and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good.
Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

The Kerrville Commercial Club, any of the different Realty Companies or any of our citizens, will be pleased to give prospective residents all the information desired.

HUERTA SAYS HE WILL NOT RESIGN

General Asserts He Is in Office to Re-Establish Peace Within Law If Possible, but to Make Peace.

City of Mexico.—Provisional President Huerta has not resigned nor has he fled from the capital.

"When I resign," said General Huerta, "it will be to seek a resting place six feet in the soil."

"So it is reported that I have fled," the president said. "You can see for yourself that I am here at my post."

"Should the elections, which will be held as I have promised, indicate another for the presidency, I shall step aside."

"Another thing," said the president, "I have money for my requirements. Don't you think I haven't? Where did I get it? My secret," he responded, "but I have it."

MANY SOLDIERS KILLED IN WRECK

Meridian, Miss.—Twenty federal soldiers were killed and about one hundred hurt when a special troop train on the Mobile and Ohio railroad plunged through a trestle near State Line, Miss., late Sunday afternoon.

The wreck was caused by the engine tender jumping the track about two hundred feet from a trestle. The engine was not derailed and passed over the trestle safely.

Those killed are: Joseph Teben, Ernest Parquette, Clyde Teel, H. B. Bishop, G. C. Barleson, Joseph Provenza, W. H. Brim, Goodes, Remsen, Gruckle and Acres, all privates and members of the 17th company, coast artillery, U. S. A., except Remsen; Captain Johnson, Eighth Regiment; Corporal Kohler, Corporal...

CUTTING OF $140,000,000 IS UP TO HIM

W. Averill Harriman, just twenty-one years old, has set the speculators of Wall street guessing as to how he will cast his deciding vote in the cutting up and distribution of the billion dollar that Wall street has heard of in years. The Union Pacific railroad, which was the pet road of E. H. Harriman, the boy's father, has accumulated the tremendous surplus of $55,000,000.

ODD CITY TRADES

Sawdust Wholesaler Who Handles Refuse of Mills.

Men Make a Specialty of Putting New Faces on Old Stores and Dwelling Houses—Role of Chimney Expert.

New York.—Among the occupations of New York city are many of an unusual nature, which could not exist elsewhere than in a center of vast population. Specialized occupations these are, which demand a huge population from which to draw their patronage.

There is the sawdust man, for instance, who in New York is a very important business man. The wholesale sawdust dealer advertises all kinds of sawdust and requests that you will telephone your needs so that there may be an early delivery.

It used to be that anyone who wanted sawdust went to the sawmill and asked for as much as he wanted. There was only one kind of sawdust in the good old days and that was an unimpaired product which anybody could have for the asking.

There are about sixty kinds of sawdust on the market, so says the sawdust expert, and all of them have their stated uses in the realm of trade.

Mahogany sawdust is just as aristocratic and elegant a product as mahogany furniture. It is useful for smoking—not as tobacco. Mahogany sawdust is employed because of the good, clear kind of work that it does in smoking hams, fish, etc.

Our farmers grow wheat, oats and all other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the largest wool markets in the state, and large quantities of wool, mohair, cotton, oats, cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine. The summers are cool and delightful, and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good. Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

RATTLERS ARE LOVING PETS

So Says "Lonesome Jack" Allman, Who Has Caught 18,000 in California.

Los Angeles.—Ever since Lonesome Jack Allman was seven years old he has been "catchin' rattlers."

"The rattlesnake is the most intelligent of all reptiles and the most affectionate," Jack declared. "After they have been fanged they are the most desirable of snake pets. They can be made to come to you just like a pet dog or cat."

"I found out that rattlers were thick in the mountains this summer than they have been for years," he said. "The season seems to have been just right to bring them out."

"I have been bitten by rattlers seven times in my life, but always had permanganate of potash with me and saved myself from serious harm. I promptly split the wound with my knife and apply the antiseptic before the poison has had time to get into my system."

When Jack returned with the reptiles he entertained his friends with an exhibition of snake dentistry, in which he extracted the fangs from several rattlers.

"It isn't generally known that a rattlesnake has seven sets of fangs," Jack continues. "There is one pair of main fangs, one pair of reserve fangs and five pairs of fangs which decay in the mouth. If the main fangs are removed and one of the other pairs left in the mouth they will very shortly grow into position to be used. When I am traveling in the mountains and see a snake track in the dust I can examine it and tell what kind of a snake made it, which way it was traveling and about how long it has been since it passed by."

King Constantine of Greece Will Be Hailed as "Augustus" at the Coronation.

Vienna.—An invitation has reached Emperor Francis Joseph to participate as an honored guest at the splendid and unique coronation ceremonies in Athens next May, when King Constantine of Greece and his royal spouse will be crowned.

The feature of the ceremony is the fact that the Byzantine crown of old will be worn by the crown prince of the kingdom. The crown will be an ancient relic of the empire.

Zero in Various Lines of Endeavor. Mr. Pankhurst's notion of nothing to be when you have become one, grimly remarks the Old Coder. "It is a golf champion. My idea of nothing to be is a railroad official's explanation of the cause of a wreck: of nothing to listen to is a reminiscence of the hard winter of eighteen hundred and something; of nobody to hold a reception for is Mrs. Pankhurst, and of nothing to write pieces to is the book, 'The Public Mind'—dear old boy! why there is no gas, by there are so many holes in the pavement, why all this foolishness about the Metropolitan, and so on and so forth, as long as Kansas City is without an official 'government'—Kansas City Star.
