

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

OL. 4.

KERRVILLE, TEXAS, THURSDAY, MAR. 2 1916

NO. 24

Camp Verde Letter.

(Regular Correspondence)

We are sorry to report Arthur aylor no better than at last report. Mrs. H. T. Smith and daughter, Felix, went out to Telegraph last Thursday to visit her parents and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bonnell, Mrs. Inntoon and Mrs. Chester Dickey were Kerrville shoppers Wednesday.

Grandma Oatman, who has been ill for some time, died Wednesday night at 11 o'clock, and was buried at the Verde grave yard Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. Wilson Banta of Medina conducted the funeral services.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shults of Center Point visited Mr. Shults' mother, Mrs. Sarah Shults, of this place Saturday and Sunday.

Nat Fine, who has been quite sick the past week, is reported much better at this writing.

Mrs. J. J. New and two children shopped in Comfort Saturday.

Ivey Rees and family visited Mrs. Rees' sister, Mrs. R. J. Irving, at Center Point Saturday.

J. C. Baxter, Ivey Rees and Oscar Nowlin were among those who attended the Farmers' Institute Saturday and they report an interesting time.

Chas Landry moved to Fredericksburg Monday, where he will take charge of a blasksmith shop. We are certainly sorry to lose them from our community.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meeks visited Mr. G. C. Sutherland last Monday afternoon.

H. G. Edens came over Monday afternoon to move his father's house down near the Kerrville road.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ellis were Center Point visitors Monday.

Chester Dickey and family and Grandma Bonnell visited in Center Point Monday afternoon.

Ingram Locals.

(Regular Correspondence)

Misses Elizabeth Nichols and Lela Crenshaw were callers in Ingram last Thursday.

L. A. Leinweber and family left Saturday in their new car for the coast country. They will visit their son at Richardo, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Littlefield entertained a jolly crowd of young folks Friday night.

T. J. Moore, one of Ingram's most prominent merchants, has sold out his store and other property to John S. Calloway of Kerrville. Mr. Calloway will take charge at once.

Ed Smith made a business trip to Marlin, Texas, the latter part of the week.

J. J. Tally reports catching a ten pound cat fish last week.

Tom Lackey of Merkel, Texas, accompanied by other business men of that place, came down to Kerr county on an outing the last of the week. Tom visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Green Lackey, while here.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Lackey and Mrs. M. A. Howell will start the last of the week for New Mexico and Arizona to visit relatives, where they will spend several months. Mr. Jim Howell will take them to Merkel in his car.

Alf Smith was a business caller in Ingram Monday.

Will Ward of Henderson Branch, and Harvey Stone of Goat Creek, went out Monday with their pack of hounds and caught a large wild cat. They say it had caught hundreds of dollars worth of sheep and goats for them.

Mrs. L. R. Fessenden and children spent Sunday with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Green Lackey.

P. A. Crenshaw and family drove up to Dr. Fowler's on Johnson creek Sunday and spent the day.

Jim Howell and family spent the day with Mr. R. R. Merritt on the Upper Guadalupe Sunday.

Indian-Barbarian Preliminaries.

Contributed

The preliminary declamatory and spelling contests by the Indians last Friday evening and the Barbarians last Saturday evening in the High School Auditorium, were the best programs of the kind ever held in the auditorium. Six girls contested in declamation for the Indians. Annie Rees recited "Who is Afraid?" with surprising success and received enthusiastic applause from the audience; Margaret Thorburn recited "Laseca" and deserves mention; Helen Dieter gave "The Sioux Chief's Daughter," which pleased the audience; Virgie Storms chose for her subject "Tocca-the-Beautiful," and did credit to herself and should be encouraged to enter other contests of that kind when the opportunity offers itself; Laura Henke gave a very difficult selection entitled, "Ojistoh," and she commanded the attention of the audience with the pleasing manner in which she recited the story of "Ojistoh;" Lottie Nagal selected a very difficult reading "The Girl of the Golden West," which she interpreted in a creditable manner and gives evidence of talent.

Laura Henke was given the decision and it is not necessary to state that the representative from the Barbarian Society has a formidable foe in Laura, and it is predicted that the declamatory contest in the final will be an interesting and closely contested one.

Four girls, Cecile Hendon, Mineola Moore, Mildred Saucier and Jewell Payne, contested in spelling for a place in the final, and after thirty minutes spelling the most difficult words in the language, Cecile Hendon won.

All the contestants wore Indian costumes, which added a uniqueness to the entertainment.

BARBARIAN CONTEST.

Four girls contested in declamation for the Barbarians on Saturday evening. Clara Baker recited "The Organist," and effort was splendid; Leah Buckner held the audience from the beginning to the end of "Pro Patria," and it was evident that she has talent along that line; Ethel Fawcett deserves special mention for she recited a very difficult piece entitled "The Master's Violin;" and that beautiful little declamation, "Bobby Shaftoe," was given by Bonnie Hicks with ease, and with training she would be a winner.

Leah Buckner won the decision in this contest and will represent her society in the final.

Bonnie Hicks, Cora Kirkland, Pauline Shaeklett, Tyler Wilkinson and Agnes Wilson contested in spelling. Agnes Wilson won in this contest, and she and Cecile Hendon will meet on the field of battle in the Hog Raising.

The receipt of a large number of fine, registered Duroc Jersey hogs by an Austin bank and their prompt distribution to enterprising farmers of Travis County should prove an epoch in stock growing in this section. None better than the banker knows the advantages of hog raising and the still greater advantages arising from handling the best breeds. The successful hog raiser is always among the favored customers of banks as they are not hampered by crop failures, lean years, drouths, overflows, boll weevils or other troubles of the cotton farmer. There is always money to be made in hog raising and nothing will more quickly change a poor community to a rich one than the production, fattening and marketing of good hogs. This is but the beginning of the work on the part of the bankers and the farmers are already interested in the proposition so that it may be expected to reach gratifying results. —Austin American.

Several of the Barbarian contestants wore costumes in keeping with the customs of that wild tribe.

COMING CONTESTS.

Friday evening, March 3rd, the Barbarian Society will hold the debating preliminary contest, which promises to be a very interesting and exciting one. Barney Kline and Rosita Holdsworth will represent the affirmative of the "Woman Suffrage" question, while Ina Coleman and Milton Gold will support the negative. Louis Comparette will deliver an oration entitled "Abraham Lincoln."

On Saturday evening the Indian Society will hold the debating preliminary contest, and Sam Sutton and Mary Brambilla will defend President Wilson's "Preparedness Program," while Eugene Everheart and Lillian Sutton will prove that our army and navy are adequately sufficient. David Robb and Lucile Palmer will contest in piano solo, and Floyd Conwill and Earl Cantwell will try their ability in oratory for a place in the final.

The patrons and friends are cordially invited to attend these exercises, for in so doing they will encourage the efforts of the children and teachers. The children are manifesting a very fine school spirit, soundly cooperative in its nature. The school should receive every encouragement in this work, for the results may be far-reaching. Many a great lawyer discovered himself down at the little red school house in far simpler undertakings than these.

Saucier Sells Garage.

J. R. Saucier this week sold the Texas Star Garage to Jess Robinson and Tom Insall of this city. The new proprietors have taken charge of the business and we bespeak for them the same generous patronage received by their predecessor.

Mr. Saucier retains the agency of the Chevrolet automobile and has a car load on the track now ready for delivery. We are glad to say Mr. Saucier and family expect to continue to make Kerrville their home.

Ordination of Deacons

On Sunday, February 27th, at Center Point, 3 p. m., Brethren L. N. Coffey, Sid McElroy and R. S. Barington were ordained as deacons in the Baptist church there. The Presbytery consisted of the following Brethren: C. D. Potts, Pastor; J. M. Witt, T. C. Lee and J. B. Riddle; T. C. Lee acting as clerk. J. M. Witt offered the Ordination Prayer and questions were asked by J. B. Riddle. These Brethren stood a fine examination, and the Church voted unanimously, as well as the Presbytery, for their ordination.

Many of the members of the Kerrville Baptist church were present to assist in this delightful work.

T. C. LEE.

Died.

Mrs. A. Breautigam received the sad news of the death of her mother, Mrs. Rosetta Haddock, at the home of the deceased in Wallace, California, February 27. Mrs. Haddock was a native of London, England, and crossed the Isthmus of Panama in 1857, and has resided in California ever since. Her husband died several years ago; she leaves five children, as follows: Mrs. A. Breautigam, Kerrville; Mrs. L. M. Murry, Stockton, Calif.; Mrs. Addie Blaine, Stockton, Calif.; Wm. H. Haddock, Santa Rosa, Calif.; Robert Haddock, Wallace, Calif.

Baptist Church Notes.

Well, my friend, if this fine weather don't make you grateful to God, and cause you to honor Him, then verily, you are ungrateful. When you think how we want you to be with us in our meetings and how good God has been to you, I hope you will not delay, but get up early next Sunday and come right along to Sunday School, and be sure to stay for preaching, for a pastor regrets to see you march off home to go out riding or somewhere else, and fail to help in the regular worship.

Regular services at the Baptist church next Sunday at all departments of the church. Come, you are welcome and invited.

J. B. RIDDLE, Pastor.

Tom Moore Sells Ingram Store

T. J. Moore is selling his store and residence property at Ingram, to John S. Calloway, taking in the deal 3,049 acres of the old J. D. Jackson ranch on North Fork, including the Brunson and Sam Hill pastures on the west side of said ranch. Mr. Calloway bought the Jackson ranch last year and has since been making his home in Kerrville.

Mr. Moore will join his family in Kerrville, where they have a nice home, and will divide his time between here and the ranch.

Methodist Church Notes.

After the sermon Sunday morning the pastor will administer Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Night service at 7:45; Epworth League at 6:45.

LOWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered from female troubles, headache, nervousness and the blues. My children's loud talking and running would make me so nervous I could just hear everything to pass and I would add all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."

—Mrs. ROSE STORUM, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, headache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

When a fool and his money are parted the parting is such a sweet sorrow.

Dr. B. F. Jackson, Celebrated Physician, has given to posterity his famous prescription for female troubles. Now sold under the name of "Femmina." Price 50c and $1.00.—Adv.

Too many glasses may make a tumbler of a man.

Put it in Thoroughly. A sprain or strain should have immediate attention to check the swelling. Rub on and rub in Thoroughly Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh and you should have quick relief. Always have a bottle on hand for accidents. Adv.

Makes Work a Burden
A bad back makes hard work harder. All day the dull ache and the sharp, darting pains make you miserable, and there's no rest at night. Maybe it's your daily work that hurts the kidneys, for jarring, jolting, lifting, reaching, depressing and many other strains do weaken them. Cure the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should do so well for you. Thousands recommend them.

A Louisiana Case
"I was in bed shape with my back. My joints often seized, my shooting pains into my head. My sleeping was so hard I could hardly get up. I was all I could do to get out of bed. I had awful headaches and dizzy spells and was in bed week after week. I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Since I used about eight boxes, I have had very little trouble with my back or kidneys."

Feather Bandings on Afternoon Gowns

As if loath to say good-by to the bandings, which have been featured this season as a finish for gowns, fashion has turned to marabou and ostrich feather bandings in a number of the frocks designed for spring and for present wear. These bandings are wider than the marabou designs which were so popular a few seasons ago, and ostrich feathers combined with marabou or used alone are conspicuous in them.

Hand made entirely of ostrich there are likely to be in two colors, as dark brown with white, or in two shades of one color, the darker color or shade predominating. They are very handsome but less durable than marabou bandings, because the fibers are liable to lose their curl. Airy and fragile looking as marabou down is, it with stands wear and dampness astonishingly well.

One of the new feather-trimmed frocks is shown here finished with a full ostrich-looking banding of marabou and ostrich combined. It is a graceful dress cut on simple lines and made of dark gray satin as soft as crepe. There is an underbodice and sleeves of georgette crepe, but with this and a double skirt the frock still manages to be a one-piece garment.

Motor Hats That Stay On

Gradually it has come about that everyone who motors, be it more or less, insists upon wearing the proper motor headwear, and the making of this particular kind of millinery has become a special business. A pretty hat, soft and comfortable and one that will stay on, no matter how much the speed exceeds the limit—these are the things the motorist demands as essential. If in addition to these, durability and the appearance of a smart street or sports hat may be acquired all in one, so much the better for those who market the marvel of ingenuity.

Here are two of the motor hats designed for spring, chosen from many others equally good and of the same character. They are made, by a method that is patented, with an elastic headband or headsize as the milliners term it, and they will stay on the head without the use of a pin to fasten them. A strong elastic cord is inserted in the base of the crown at the back and it serves to bind the hat to the head just as a garter holds up a stocking.

Millinery braids and fabrics are used for these hats, as for others, and their designers are not hampered by any lack of materials. Some materials like pongee silk and soft kid leathers seem especially appropriate in them.

In the picture a hat is shown at the left having a broad brim and satin crown with an embroidered flower motif for decoration. This is made in brown, blue, green, rose, etc., and makes a satisfactory street hat, so that its usefulness is not confined to motor wear.

The hat at the right is more distinctly for motor wear, made of natural color pongee bound with emerald green braid. Flat cabochons of the braid are used for ornament and a green chiffon veil is a part of the motorist's headwear outfit. The brim line in this hat is very graceful, both models are soft and beautifully finished. They are wholly comfortable and the wearer will arrive at her journey's end with her hat on her head and not in a corner of the car.

Julia B. Atterley
Only Make Them Shiny.
"Almost the only requirement in the new hats seems to be 'make them shiny.' So long as a fabric or a straw presents a mirrorlike surface, it suits the popular demand. But there are exceptions even to that rule; for example, very smart-looking sports hats are being shown made of the sheenest of velvets underlaid with satin or taffeta, and certain madras and what looks like striped shirtings.

Worth Trying.
While buying silk stockings I was given by the clerk this bit of information: Before wearing silk stockings, rinse the toes and the heels in cold water and let them dry and you will be surprised to find how much longer the stockings will last.—From the Designer.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach aches, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomachache or diarrhoea. Later, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a pleasant bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

LIVED UP TO INSTRUCTIONS

Told Always to Do Things by Combination. Pat. Faithfully Obedy His Employer's Orders.

A gentleman in want of a coachman had an Irishman apply for the position, when the following conversation took place between them:
"You know, Pat, if I engage you, I shall expect you to do things by combination." For instance, if I tell you to bring the carriage round at a given time I shall expect the horses with it and driving gloves, etc.

"Yes, sir," said Pat.
"He was duly warned, and gave satisfaction. One day his master came to him in a hurry, telling him to look sharp and go for a doctor, as his horse was ill. Pat was gone for a long time, and on his master grumbling at him for his delay, he said:
"Sure, they're all here, sir."
"All here?" said the master. "What do you mean?"
"Didn't you tell me to do things by combination?"
"What's that got to do with it?" said the master.
"Well," said Pat, "I've got the doctor, the person, the undertaker."—[H]its.

A GOOD CHANGE.
A Change of Food Works Wonders.

Wrong food and drink cause a lot of trouble in this world. To change is first aid when a person is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady in Me was brought around to health again by leaving off coffee and some articles of food that did not agree with her.

She says:
"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse until I was ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began using Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me."
"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about four months. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until the nervous trouble had disappeared. I feel that I owe my health to Postum and Grape-Nuts."
"Husband was troubled, for a long time with occasional cramps and sleep badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. After he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He never went back to coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.
Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

ORCHARD TOPICS

HELP FOR MUTILATED TREES
Injuries Done by Heavy Bearing Necessitate Pruning as Well as Some Amputation.

When the trees are badly broken from heavy bearing pruning and reconstruction as well as amputation. To trim the tree so that it will regain its proper balance and symmetry one must consider the position of the limbs which can replace the other limbs.

Cutting off a limb just below the point of injury will not rebalance the tree. The cut should be well below the injury and there should, if possible, be a space of two or three inches.

Elberta Peach Tree Pruned to Produce Open, Spreading, Tops.

between the cut and the bud or shoot intended to replace the missing branch. Thus the new limb will not be weakened by the old wood if it becomes diseased.

The various parts of the tree are buds that are latent as long as other buds in the foliage regions of the trees are working and there occurs no check to any of its parts.

When the tree suffers from loss of branches or limbs, however, these buds spring into activity and work to replace the loss. It is this natural insurance against loss that serves the broken trees. The strongest of such buds should be chosen for development.

RIGHT SYSTEM FOR ORCHARD

Before Ordering Fruit Tree Arrangement Should Be Carefully Figured Out on Paper.

Before ordering trees for an orchard plantation determine carefully the acreage and the system to be adopted in planting the trees. It will make a great deal of difference whether the trees are set in rectangular, hexagonal, or quincunx form. The most common system of these is the rectangular. In this system the square or rectangles are easily cultivated. However, this does not give as many trees to the acre as other systems and they are not equally distributed over the land.

The hexagonal system means that the trees are set out six trees in a circle with the seventh tree in the center. When set out this way the trees are equally distant in every direction and the trees use equally the ground and air space, so as to provide a splendid distribution.

The quincunx system is the best when fillers are to be used. It means planting in squares or rectangles and putting a filler in the middle so as to provide for five trees in the square. When the orchard is mature the middle tree can be taken out. This will bring 25 per cent more trees to the acre than by the rectangular system and lends itself very nicely to the filler system.

Take a piece of paper and figure the arrangement all out before setting the orchard.—Do not plant trees at such a distance that when it comes time to thin them out the trees will be too far apart. Make a careful study of the work at first and it will help very much.

CHIEF OBJECTS IN PRUNING

Principal Aim Should Be to Make Substantial Framework to Hold Up Leaves and Fruit.

The objects of pruning are: To make the tree into what might be called a substantial framework with which it is to hold up the leaves and fruit, to cause it to have a symmetrical shape, to renew the fruiting wood, to remove crossing and diseased and broken branches, to thin the top so as to allow free circulation of air through it and to keep the tree as low as possible so as to facilitate pruning, picking and spraying.

In young trees care should be taken to have the main branches come out from all sides of the tree and each from a different height. The crotches will all be strong then.

STOMACH MISERY GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick, sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heart burn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, or foul breath.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest relief known. Adv.

Invokes God's Reward For Pellagra Cure

Jumbo, Va.—J. H. Satterwhite writes: "I want to thank you for what you have done for me. You have cured my wife. God bless you in your work. I hope some day to see you, if I never see you I hope to meet you in heaven. God will reward you for your grand and noble work."

There is no longer any doubt that Pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Bahgen.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with mucus and choking, indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope, get Bahgen's Big Free Book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2988, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv.

WHEN KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE GLASS OF SALTS

Eat Less Meat if Kidneys Hurt or You Have Backache or Bladder Misery—Meat Forms Uric Acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, take about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

FARM ANIMALS

AVOID SPREAD OF INFECTION

Thorough Disinfection Is Essential to and Efficient in Preventing Contagion.

In any outbreak of infectious disease among animals thorough disinfection of the premises is essential to preventing the spread of the contagion. Certain substances, such as fresh slaked lime or unslaked lime in powder form, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, formalin, formaldehyde gas, and compound solution of cresol possess the power of destroying bacteria with which they come in contact. To make the use of such substances of value, however, the work must be done with the utmost thoroughness.

In the disinfection of stables and premises the following directions should be carefully observed:

1. Sweep ceilings, side walls, stall partitions, floors, and other surfaces until free from cobwebs and dust.
2. Remove all accumulations of filth by scraping, and if woodwork has become decayed, porous, or absorbent, it should be removed, burned, and replaced with new material.
3. If the floor is of earth, remove 4 inches from the surface, and in places where it shows staining with urine a sufficient depth should be replaced to expose fresh earth.
4. All refuse and material from stable and barnyard should be removed to a place not accessible to slaked lime.

5. The entire interior of the stable, especially the feeding troughs and drains, should be saturated with a disinfectant, as a 3 per cent solution of compound solution of cresol (U. S. P.), which would be four ounces of the compound to every gallon of water.

The best method of applying the disinfectant is by means of a strong spray pump, such as those used by orchardists.

This method is efficient in disinfection against most of the contagious and infectious diseases of animals, and should be applied immediately following any outbreak, and, as a matter of precaution, it may be used once or twice yearly.

AID TO VETERINARY WORK

latch affixed to the other jaw. A strap holds the device in position on the head of the animal. By means of the teeth and latch, the horse's mouth may be held open during a veterinary examination.—Popular Mechanics.

TELL SHEEP'S AGE BY TEETH

When Purchasing an Animal One Should See to It That None of Molars Are Missing.

A lamb has eight small first-teeth on the lower jaw. When the animal reaches the age of about one year, the middle pair are replaced by two permanent teeth, at the age of about two the teeth on either side of these permanent teeth are also replaced with a permanent pair; at the age of three the next teeth on either side given way to a permanent tooth; and at about the age of four, the last or back teeth are replaced in like manner.

Briefly, then, a sheep with one pair of permanent teeth is a yearling; sheep with two pairs is a two-year old; with three pairs, a three-year old; and with four pairs, a four-year old.

After a sheep is four years old, one cannot tell by the teeth about the age. However, one who is purchasing a sheep should see to it that it has not lost any teeth, or that the teeth have not become long and shoe-pegy in appearance.

Have Some Sheep.

A nice herd of sheep will fit in almost any farm equation. Look up the pros and cons of the question very carefully and we believe that you will include them in your next year's schedule. If you have not the cash or inclination to start with an entire purebred flock, buy the best ewes you can and grade up with a purebred ram.

Important Stock Function.

It is an important function of live stock on the farm to furnish a market for the crops grown, enabling farmers to convert the grasses, forage crops, legumes, and so on, into higher-priced finished products and to return to the soil the plant food taken from

GET BEST PRICE FOR BUTTER

Important to Have Flavor Pleasing to Senses of Smell and Taste—Put in Neat Package.

In order to secure the best price for butter it must have a flavor which is so pleasant to the sense of smell and so sweet to the taste that it will create a desire for more. The texture, grain and closeness should be waxy and firm, and not salty, greasy or crumbly. It should be close in body, not spongy, and contain not too much, nor too little, moisture.

The color should be uniform and according to the requirements of the market. Salting according to the demand of the market for which the butter is intended is an important feature. Too much salt destroys the sweet taste, and too little salt makes the butter insipid and tasteless.

The package in which the butter is marketed demands careful consideration. The appearance of the package when the butter goes to market is one of the things that helps to sell that butter. The package ought to be neat, clean and attractive. The one-pound brick print is the style most used and is superior to the plan of putting the butter up in rolls or otherwise, for it can be handled at less cost and with less waste.

The butter, of course, should be wrapped in parchment or butter paper, which should be of good quality, of proper size, and dipped in cold water before being used. It pays well to have some special brand printed on the wrapper in fancy letters with the name of the maker or the name of the farm. The prints ought to weigh not less than 1 1/2 ounces each, the extra weight being for shrinkage before reaching the consumer. The time of marketing depends on local conditions.

VALUE OF BEET PULP RATION

Results Given of Five Weeks' Test Made at Massachusetts Station—Gain Made in Weight.

In a test for five weeks conducted by the Massachusetts station, six cows were fed by the reversal method on a ration of hay, bran and cottonseed meal to which was added 4 1/2 pounds of either cornmeal or of beet pulp daily. The herd lost in live weight 33 pounds on the cornmeal ration and gained 37 pounds on the beet pulp ration.

There was no substantial variation in the yield or average composition of the milk. It required for the cornmeal ration 112 pounds of dry matter to produce 100 pounds of milk and 20.1 pounds to produce one pound of milk fat, for the beet pulp ration 110.72 pounds and 20.54 pounds respectively. In a similar experiment to the above, molasses, beet pulp and corn meal were compared.

The amounts of digestible nutrients in each ration were approximately the same. The herd gains were similar. There was no wide variation in milk yields and only a slight advantage in the production of milk-fat with the corn meal ration.

HANDY MILK BOTTLE HOLDER

may be broken by being blown off a window ledge by the wind. By means of this holder, recently patented by a Palouse (Wash.) man, the milk bottle is securely held in place. A metal plate is securely hinged onto the upper end of the holder to cover the cap and hold it securely in place. This, besides keeping the dog or cats from clawing the cap out to get to the milk, prevents dirt from settling on the cap to cause annoyance and keeping it from falling into the bottle and its contents when opened. A continuous piece of wire is used in making the main portion of the holder. This wire is so welded together smoothly that there are no rough edges to catch and tear the hand or clothing. The wire makes a loop beneath the bottom of the bottle so that it may act as a sort of cushion to prevent breaking in case of being set down hard. The double band about the center of the bottle prevents it being struck against the cement curb or stone when set down by the carrier.

SAGE TEA DARKENS GRAY HAIR TO ANY SHADE. TRY IT!

Keep Your Locks Youthful, Dark, Glossy and Thick With Garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

"Well?" "Then I say my life was once saved by aeroplanes."

"Yes?" "And then I pull out the pistol, and say, 'Fair o' shoots.' ha, ha! See."

"Yes, I see. Did you make up that joke yourself?" "Yes, my lord."

Feel Shortage of Wedding Rings.

A shortage of wedding rings in jewelers' shops and in wholesale factories is experienced throughout Britain, although the shortage has nothing to do with a scarcity of gold. There are three main causes for the wedding-ring famine. There has been a very great number of war weddings; the working classes, owing to high wages, have bought cheap gem rings in great numbers, and there is a serious shortage of skilled jewelers' workmen.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK! CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS MY WAY

Just Once! Try "Dodson's Liver Tone" When Bilious, Constipated, Headachy—Don't Lose a Day's Work.

Live up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel, because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into your bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning, because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

A Ripe Old Age.

The London Gazette, the most august and formal of all English newspapers and fiftieth birthday.

The vast majority of Londoners have never seen the Gazette, and many live in ignorance even of the existence of such a newspaper. For it is the official organ of the British government, and its circulation is limited to official circles or to those who are willing to pay the fixed price of 25 cents a copy.

The Gazette is published every Tuesday and Friday, but when occasion arises special supplements are issued at 8 cents each. Since the outbreak of the war several of these supplements have been issued each week, and there has occasionally been sufficient demand from relatives of those mentioned in the official dispatches to cause the reprinting of a particular edition.

For immediate use. An old Rip Van Winkle of a fellow went into a country drug store and asked for some powder.

"Face, gun or box?" asked the clerk. "Gun," replied the old man, "and no 'an' to mind about 'wrappin' it up—just blow it on my whiskers."—Cottrell's Magazine.

MAKING THE PLAY REALISTIC

Small Boy Willing to Suffer Slight Discomfort in Order to Perform His Part Properly.

After the war editor had subsided at the octagon table of the Pittsburgh Press club, the paragrapher spoke up: "When I went home yesterday afternoon I found my two hopefuls engaged in a battle royal with all the small boys of the neighborhood. It was a rough-and-ready scrimmage, and all seemed to take it good-naturedly, but one boy had a bloody nose."

"What's doing?" I asked. "Playing war," one boy answered. "See me? I'm the allies. Bill is the Germans. Tom's the Austrians and Jim's the Turks. These fellows are jes' Japs and Serbs and Russians."

"The boy with a decorated nose was silent but laughing. 'What are you?' I asked.

"I'm bleeding Belgium," he answered."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

Published Every Thursday at Kerrville, Texas, by T. A. Buckner.

SUBSCRIPTIONS NOW ON HAND IN ADVANCE

Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Kerrville, Texas.

It is suggested that Kerrville could well support a steam laundry. This is a good time to get busy on the proposition.

It is garden planting time in Kerrville and many weary husbands are reluctantly wielding the hoe and the fork. A little rain right now would be of great benefit.

Let's make it as easy as possible for men and boys to do right and as difficult as possible for them to do wrong, by voting the saloons out of the county. You say we can't do it. How do you know? It has never been tried.

We believe there is not a county seat in Southwest Texas outside of Kerrville where there are not a number of local candidates in the field. Most of the county papers we get are filled with announcements. What's the matter, boys, are you getting cold feet?

Oliver H. Morris, candidate for Governor, has the solid endorsement of his home town where he has been in the banking business for thirty years. His platform is one of the best we have ever seen and will bear the closest study. Call at the Advance office for the platform and endorsements.

This may not be so, but it's good enough to tell, anyway. As the train pulled out of Center Point the conductor called to the engineer. "All ready back there?" when some one yelled, "No, hold on till I get my clothes on." The passenger rubbedered to see who it was in trouble, when it was discovered that it was the laundryman who was a little late getting his basket on the train.

Well, anyway, you can't say the Advance "stirred up the stink" this time.

A SUBSCRIBER in Bishop wrote us a card last week asking that we send him another copy of the Advance of that week's issue as a little bit of the cheer of the editorial column of his copy was turned under so that he could not read. We are glad our feeble efforts are appreciated and it gives us new courage.

The local option campaign in Nueces county gets warmer as the days roll by and it looks like the saloons are doomed. As usual, the promoters are being maligned and abused for the part they are taking in it. But the liquorists are making money for prohibition by the unfair and disgraceful manner of their campaign.

Dr. S. P. Brooks' campaign for United States Senator is being well looked after by his friends and admirers all over the State and his chances of the nomination are very hopeful. A vote for Brooks will be a vote for one of the biggest, brains and most honored citizens of Texas, who, if elected, will do honor to his State in the National governing body. No man will ever be sorry he voted for S. P. Brooks.

REGULAR HOURS FOR CATTLE FEEDING

Cattle in an Illinois Feeding Lot.

(By W. L. BLIZZARD, Department of Animal Husbandry, Oklahoma Agricultural College.)

The care of cattle on feed is an important factor. In feeding it should be remembered that fattening cattle soon become accustomed to looking for their feed at certain hours in the day, and if it is not supplied at the regular times the cattle become uneasy and worry. As soon as the fattening process begins the cattle should be fed at certain hours and in the same way. This cannot vary without some detriment to the cattle. The extent of injury, of course, will depend upon the frequency and extent of irregularities.

To get the most out of one's feed and cattle requires more than application of rules, no matter how good these may be. A veteran feeder puts it thus: "No man will ever be a successful feeder unless he takes brains into the feed lot with him." Regularity of feeding, kindness and painstaking attention are among the most important factors of feeding.

The animals must be comfortable at all times. They must come to each meal with a keen appetite and go away from an empty trough satisfied. In the early stages light feeding should be the rule, more especially in regard to the grain ration.

The quietness of manner of the feeder is also an important consideration.

The feeder should not rush up to the steers, scaring them, but should, rather, approach the cattle with the greatest care and consideration, getting them up as quietly as possible. Pastures for cattle in quiet, secluded places are more valuable for fattening cattle than are those adjacent to public roads or adjoining pastures where horses or breeding cattle are kept. Cattle soon respond to kind treatment and will feed better and make more rapid and economical gains.

As to the number of cattle that should be run together in the same feed lot, it is customary to run them in droves of 100. There is no doubt, however, that except for convenience in caring for the cattle, smaller droves would be advisable, but they should be at least carefully assorted as to age and weight.

The best method of watering is to keep water before them at all times. If one is to follow nature, this is the ideal system, as undoubtedly an animal's thirst is its guide as to when it requires water. In whatever way water is supplied, it is important that they receive water whenever they need it, and before any suffering from thirst is experienced. A system that does this with the least labor will be satisfactory. If cattle are warm, they should not be allowed water, as it will cause scouring.

DIMENSIONS FOR A BREEDING CRATE

Easily Constructed Breeding Crate.

A description and illustration is given herewith of a breeding crate described in Farmers' Bulletin No. 206, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The best size is six feet long, two feet four inches wide and two and one-half feet high. It is made of two by four inch scantling, closed in front and open behind. On each side nail a two by four inch strip, reaching from the bottom at the rear end to a point about 14 or 16 inches from the top at the front end for the boar to rest his feet on.

The holes in the side cleats are for an iron rod to run through, just behind the sow's hock joints. The cut shows the bottom boards put in lengthwise.

If put in lengthwise, the boar will not slip so much.

Light slats nailed crosswise will prevent slipping.

MANY ADVANTAGES OF WINTER DAIRY

Observing and Careful Dairymen Have Cows Bred to Drop Their Calves in Fall.

In many sections most of the cows freshen in the spring. The more observing and careful dairymen, however, having found that winter dairying has many advantages, are breeding their cows to drop the calves in the fall. The following are some of the advantages of winter dairying:

First, higher prices are obtained for milk and cream. As the usual season for cows to freshen is the spring, milk has always been plentiful during the early summer and scarce and higher during the winter.

Second, milk and cream can be handled in cold weather with less danger of souring, so there is little loss on account of milk returned from the creamery.

Third, the amount of labor on the farm is better distributed throughout the year. If the cows freshen in the spring, they are in full flow of milk and need the best care when work in the fields is most pressing.

Fourth, the lactation period is lengthened and the amount of milk given during the year increased. Cows that freshen in the spring milk heavily while grass is good, but as the pastures dry up the flow of milk falls off and with the approach of winter the cows are nearly dry.

Fifth, fall calves can be raised better than those born in the spring. Young calves should be fed on milk for several months, after which they must be weaned and fed on solid food. If they are born in the spring, they will be tormented by flies all summer, they may be neglected because of the farm work, and when it is time to wean them they must be put on a dry winter ration.

As more milk can be produced, higher prices obtained, the labor more evenly distributed throughout the year, and better calves raised, winter dairying offers the best returns to producers.

HORSE IS A COSTLY ITEM OF EQUIPMENT

Apparent That Average Farmer Is Giving Close to 4.5 Acres of Land to Each Animal.

(By FRANCIS W. PECK, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

Statistics on a number of farms indicate that the horse is a costly item of equipment on the farm.

Assuming average state yields of grain and hay for the last five years and considering the amount of feed fed annually to a horse it is apparent that the average farmer is giving close to 4.5 acres of his best land to each work horse.

This is besides the straw consumed and the pasture, which also may be very productive land.

Be sure the horse is giving you back an equivalent in productive work on a sufficient acreage.

CUTTING SCIONS FOR WHIP GRAFTING

Whip and Root Grafting—A, Scion and Stock; B, Notched Ends; C, D, Union Made and Wrapped.

In the case of whip grafting, or splice grafting, as it is sometimes called, the scions are cut late in the fall or very early in the spring from healthy growing wood, the same as for cleft grafting. The scions should not be cut when they are frozen, and if not cut until March should be examined to make sure that none are blackened or injured by winter freezing. Use no soft wood or green, immature growth for scions.

Scions are cut five or six inches long and kept in a cool, moist place until grafting is done. If grafted to root stock, the work can be done early in the cellar and the planting done when the season is farther advanced. It is better if the stock is of the same size as the scion, but if of slightly different size, one side should be matched carefully, the inner bark of scion and stock coming together. If both are of the same size the inner bark will come together and unite better all around the cut. The graft is planted so that the first bud is just above ground.

When ready for grafting, smooth cuts are made diagonally across both scion and stock, and a tongue and groove or notch made as shown in the cut. The union is then made with care, and the graftage held in place by strong thread or twine and a protection of wax or waxed cloth put around it. Root grafts are planted with no protection about the splice, it being simply held in place by twine or thread.

When root grafting is done in the winter, the grafts should be packed in moist sand or sawdust and kept from drying out, but not disturbed until time to plant in the spring, as they will have begun to callus and to unite in some degree. It is well to handle them carefully. Two or three buds are enough to leave on the scion, which can be cut back later, as desired. The only tool required for whip grafting is a sharp, thin-bladed knife. It is well to disinfect all wounds and pruning tools.

ANIMALS MUST BE KEPT COMFORTABLE

Animal Is Finely Adjusted, Complicated Organism Requiring Closest Attention.

The dairy cow is a finely adjusted, complicated organism that is subject to a considerable degree to external influences. The highest production of butterfat is produced when the cow is in comfortable quarters, and the body tissues are normal. These facts are present usually during the opening of the summer when the grass is in good condition. At that time the temperature is just about right and there is an absence of flies and vermin, which tend to irritate the cow. In conjunction with this the grass is most palatable, all of which contribute toward contentment in the dairy cow, and as a reward she produces a very large flow of milk.

During the winter conditions are usually the reverse and abnormal conditions are brought about. Then an artificial temperature is required to maintain the bodily heat and keep the cow comfortable. When the cow is turned out to shiver in the cold, considerable combustion is required in the body to maintain the animal's temperature.

If a cow is in warm quarters she will have this food supply available, and consequently she will produce a greater amount of butterfat. It is also possible to feed more economically in the barn, and there is less turmoil to annoy the animals when they are comfortably housed and in stalls, than when they are turned out at night. The dairy cow can eat hay at leisure and will not be required to expend energy in self-preservation, which energy should be devoted to the production of milk.

MACHINE CLEANS AND GRADES FRUIT

Cleaning and Grading Fruit.

A motor-driven machine for cleaning and grading fruit, that has just been brought out in Oregon, is capable of handling apples, peaches, pears, oranges and lemons, and of distributing them into ten grades at the rate of over 17,000 pieces an hour. The fruit is first fed into the cleaner, where it is thoroughly cleaned by revolving brushes made of hog bristles, and from this machine it passes automatically to the grader. The grader is built in circular form and occupies a space about thirteen feet in diameter, the outer part consisting of a sloping table which is divided radially into bins for receiving the different sizes of fruit as it is graded. The center of the machine is occupied by a revolving plate, on which are 24 cups, each of which, as it passes under the discharging apron of the cleaner, receives one piece of the fruit. At the point where the fruit is received the cup is practically closed at the bottom. The opening at the bottom of the cup is controlled by two cam rails in such a way that it gradually widens as the cup swings round the circle, and at a point over the proper bin this opening becomes large enough to allow the fruit to drop. The cups and other parts of the machine with which the fruit comes in contact are lined with felt so that there is no danger that the fruit will be bruised during either the cleaning or grading process. The machine is intended to be driven by an electric motor or a gasoline engine.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

SOME DIFFICULTIES FOUND IN CHURNING

Expert of State College of Washington Gives Five Factors as Cause of Trouble.

Difficult churning may be caused by one or more of the following factors, says Nystrom in a bulletin issued by the State College of Washington:

1. The cream may be too sweet, in which case foaming occurs, resulting in insufficient concussion.
2. Cream may be too cold, in which case the fat globules are too hard to stick together.
3. Cream from stripper cows or from cows fed dry feeds exclusively, contain hard fat globules which do not stick together readily.
4. Thin cream containing too much milk does not allow the fat particles to coalesce.
5. Improper agitation, either too fast or too slow.

Greenhouse Sanitation. Greenhouse sanitation is becoming more and more important. We cannot be too careful about preventing the numerous insects and fungus diseases from gaining a foothold.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Girls! Try This! Makes Hair Thick, Glossy, Fluffy, Beautiful—No More Itching Scalp.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Adv.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barb's Compound, and 4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any dandruff can be put up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair and remove dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

THE STORY OF A MAN WHO IN HIS OWN LITTLE WORLD ABOARD SHIP WAS A LAW UNTO HIMSELF

SYNOPSIS.

Humphrey Van Woyen, writer and dramatist, is thrown into the water by the sinking of a freighter in a fog in San Francisco Bay, and becomes unconscious before he can be rescued.

CHAPTER XII.

Several days more passed before Johnson crawled on deck and went about his work in a half-hearted way. He was still a sick man, and I more than once observed him creeping fully aloft to a tressle, or drooping wearily as he stood at the wheel.

The mate cursed him in the darkness, and the next moment some missile struck the galley, a sharp rap.

There was more cursing, and a mocking laugh and when 'all was quiet I stole outside and found a heavy knife imbedded over an inch in the solid wood.

But I returned it privily to Leach next day. He grinned when I handed it over, yet it was a grin that contained more sincere thanks than a multitude of the verbiage of speech common to the members of my own class.

Unlike anyone else in the ship's company, I now found myself with no quarrels on my hands and in the good graces of all. The hunters possibly no more than tolerated me, though none of them disliked me, while Smoke and Henderson, conversant upon a deck awning and swinging day and night in their hammocks assured me that I was better than any hospital nurse and that they would not forget me at the end of the voyage when they were paid off.

Wolf Larsen underwent another bad attack of headache which lasted two days. He must have suffered severely, for he called me in and obeyed my commands like a sick child. But nothing I could do seemed to relieve him.

I talked with Johansen last night—the first superficial words with which he has favored me since the voyage began. He left Sweden when he was eighteen, is now thirty-eight, and in all the intervening time has not been home once.

"She must be a pretty old woman now," he said, staring meditatively into the binnacle and then jerking a sharp glance at Harrison, who was steering a point off the course.

"About seventy," he answered. And then, boastfully, "We work from the time we are born until we die in my country. That's why we live so long. I will live to a hundred."

"I shall never forget this conversation," he said, "the words were the last I ever heard him utter. Perhaps they were the last he did utter, too. For, going down into the cabin to turn in, I decided that it was too stuffy to sleep below. It was a calm night. We were out of the trades, and the Ghost was forging ahead bare as a knot on a log."

"As I passed between Harrison and the binnacle, which was built into the top of the cabin, I noticed that he was his time fully three points off. His eyes were wide and staring. He seemed greatly perturbed."

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Are you sick?" He shook his head, and with a deep sigh, as of awakening, caught his breath.

The SEA WOLF BY JACK LONDON

You'd better get on your course, then," I chided.

I put a few spokes over, and I watched the compass card swing slowly to NNW and steady itself with slight oscillations.

I took a fresh hold on my bed clothes and was preparing to start on, when some movement caught my eye and I looked astern to the rail. A shrewd hand, dripping with water, was clutching the rail. A second hand took form in the darkness beside it. I watched, fascinated. What visitor from the gloom of the deep was I to behold? Whatever it was, I knew that it was climbing aboard by the log line. I saw a head, the hair wet and straight, shape itself, and then the unmistakable eyes and face of Wolf Larsen. His right cheek was red with blood, which flowed from some wound in the head.

He drew himself inboard with a quick effort, and arose to his feet, glancing swiftly, as he did so, at the man at the wheel, as though to assure himself of his identity and that there was nothing to fear from him. The sea-water was streaming from him. It made little audible gurgles which distracted me. As he stepped toward me I shrank back instinctively, for I saw that in his eyes which spelled death.

"All right, Hump," he said in a low voice. "Where's the mate?"

"Johansen!" he called softly. "Johansen!"

"Where is he?" he demanded of Harrison.

The young fellow seemed to have recovered his composure, for he answered steadily enough. "I don't know, sir. I saw him go forward a little while ago."

"So did I go forward. But I didn't come back the way I went. Can you explain it?"

"You must have been overboard, sir."

"Shall I look for him in the steerage, sir?" I asked.

Wolf Larsen shook his head. "You wouldn't find him, Hump. But you'll do. Come on. Never mind your bedding. Leave it where it is."

I followed at his heels. There was nothing stirring amidships.

"These cursed hunters," was his comment. "Too damned fat and lazy to stand a four-hour watch."

But on the forecastle head we found three sailors asleep. He turned them over and looked at their faces. They composed the watch on deck and it was the ship's custom in good weather, to let the watch sleep with the exception of the officer, the helmsman and the lookout.

"Who's the lookout?" he demanded.

"Me, sir," answered Holyoak, one of the deep-water sailors, a slight tremor in his voice. "I winked off just this very minute, sir. I'm sorry, sir. It won't happen again."

"Did you hear or see anything on deck?"

"No, sir, I—"

But Wolf Larsen had turned away with a snort of disgust, leaving the sailor rubbing his eyes with surprise at having been let off so easily.

"Softly, now," Wolf Larsen warned me in a whisper, as he doubled his body into the forecastle scuttle and prepared to descend.

I followed with a quaking heart. What was to happen I knew no more than did I know what had happened. Boy blood had been shed, and it was through no whim of Wolf Larsen that he had gone over the side with his scalp laid open. Besides, Johansen was missing.

It was my first descent into the forecastle, and I shall not soon forget my impression of it. It smelled sour and musty, and by the dim light of the swinging sea-lamp I saw every bit of available wall space hung deep with sea-boots, oilskins and garments clean and dry, of various sorts. Though it was a mild night on the sea, there was a continual chorus of the creaking timbers and bulkheads and of abysmal noises beneath the flooring.

The sleepers did not mind. There were eight of them—the two watches below—and the air was thick with the warmth and odor of their breathing, and the ear was filled with the noise of their snoring and of their sighs and half-groans, tokens plain of the rest of the animal-man. But were they sleeping? all of them? Or had they been sleeping? This was evidently Wolf Larsen's quest—to find the men who appeared to be asleep and who were not asleep or who had not been asleep very recently. And he went about it in a way that reminded me of a story out of Boccaccio.

He took the sea-lamp from its swinging frame and handed it to me. He began at the first bunk forward on the starboard side. In the top of one lay Goffy Ooty, a Kanaka and splendid seaman, so named by his mates. He was asleep on his back and breathing as placidly as a woman. One arm was under his head, the other lay on top of the blankets. Wolf Larsen put thumb and forefinger to the wrist and counted the pulse. In the midst of it the Kanaka roused. He awoke as gently as he slept. There was no movement of the body whatsoever. The eyes, only, moved. They flushed wide open, big and black and stared, unblinking, into our faces. Wolf Larsen put his finger to his lips as a sign for silence, and the eyes closed again.

In the lower bunk lay Louis, grossly fat and warm and sweaty, asleep unfeignedly and sleeping laboriously. While Wolf Larsen held his wrist he stirred uneasily.

Satisfied with the honesty of his and the Kanaka's sleep, Wolf Larsen passed on to the next two bunks on the starboard side, occupied top and bottom, as we saw in the light of the sea-lamp, by Leach and Johnson.

As Wolf Larsen bent down to the lower bunk to take Johnson's pulse, I standing erect and holding the lamp, saw Leach's head raise stealthily as he peered over the side of the bunk to see what was going on. He must have divined Wolf Larsen's trick and the sureness of detection, for the light was at once dashed from my hand and the forecastle left in darkness. He must have leaped, also, at the same instant, straight down on Wolf Larsen.

The first sounds were those of a conflict between a bull and a wolf. I heard a great, infuriated bellow go up from Wolf Larsen, and from Leach a startling that was desperate and blood-curdling. Johnson must have joined him immediately, so that his abject and groveling conduct on deck the past few days had been no more than planned deception.

I was so terror-stricken by this fight in the dark that I leaned against the ladder, trembling and unable to ascend. And upon me was that old sickness at the pit of the stomach caused always by the spectacle of physical violence. In this instance I could not see but I could hear the impact of the blows—the soft crushing sound made by flesh striking forcibly against flesh. Then there was the crashing about of the entwined bodies the labored breathing, the short quick gasps of sudden pain.

There must have been more men in the conspiracy to murder the captain and mate, for by the sounds I knew that Leach and Johnson had been quickly re-enforced by some of their mates.

"Get a knife, somebody!" Leach was shouting.

"Pound him on the head! Mash his brains out!" was Johnson's cry.

But after his first bellow, Wolf Larsen made no noise. He was fighting grimly and silently for his life. He was sore beset. Down at the very first, he had been unable to gain his feet, and for all of his tremendous strength I felt that there was no hope for him.

The force with which they struggled was vividly impressed on me, for I was knocked down by their surging bodies and badly bruised. But in the confusion I managed to crawl into an empty lower bunk out of the way.

"All hands! We've got him! We've got him!" I could hear Leach crying.

"Who?" demanded those who had been really asleep, and who had wakened to they knew not what.

"It's the bloody mate!" was Leach's crazy answer, strained from him in a smothered sort of way.

This was greeted with whoops of joy, and from then on Wolf Larsen had seven strong men on top of him. Louis, I believe, taking no part in it. The forecastle was like an angry hive of bees aroused by some marauder.

"What'll you do?" I heard Lattimer shout down the scuttle, too cautious to descend into the inferno of passion he could hear raging beneath him in the darkness.

"Won't somebody get a knife?" Leach pleaded in the first interval of comparative silence.

The number of the assailants was a cause of confusion. They blocked their own efforts, while Wolf Larsen, with but a single purpose, achieved his. This was to fight his way across the floor to the ladder. Though in total darkness, I followed his progress by its sound. No man less than a giant could have done what he did, once he had gained the foot of the ladder. Step by step, by the might of his arms, the whole pack of men striving to drag him back and down, he drew his body up from the floor till he stood erect. And then, step by step, hand and foot, he slowly struggled up the ladder.

The very last of all, I saw For Lattimer, having finally gone for a lantern, held it so that its light shone down the scuttle. Wolf Larsen was nearly to the top, though I could not see him. All that was visible was the mass of men fastened upon him. It squirmed about, like some huge many-legged spider—and swayed back and forth to the regular roll of the vessel. And still step by step, with long intervals between, the mass ascended. Once it tottered, about to fall back, but the broken hold was regained and it still went up.

"Who is it?" Lattimer cried.

In the rays of the lantern I could see his perplexed face peering down.

"Larsen," I heard a muffled voice from within the mass.

Lattimer reached down with his free hand. I saw a hand shoot up to clasp his. Lattimer pulled, and the next couple of steps were made with a rush. Then Wolf Larsen's other hand reached up and clutched the edge of the scuttle. The mass swung clear of the ladder, the men still clinging to their escaping foe. They began to drop off, to be brushed off against the sharp edge of the scuttle, to be knocked off by the legs which were now kicking powerfully. Leach was the last to go, falling sheer back from the top of the scuttle and striking on head and shoulders upon his sprawling mates beneath. Wolf Larsen and the lantern disappeared, and we were left in darkness.

HARD TO CONTROL NERVES

Even the bravest men have been known to exhibit fear before being injured to battle.

Men in the trenches now quite used to the war game, have been described as feeling "jumpy"—the sort of affliction that used to be called "mauseritis." Here is a state of mind not necessarily blameworthy, nor even unduly so, the bravest have experienced it. The feeling is given various names. As when a young nobleman was sent to the hospital suffering from "heart paralysis." Being immature, a mere youth, his heart, in fact, his whole body, was undeveloped—a man in spirit, but not yet in body. Being so conspicuous a figure it was up to him to display the supremest courage, and of course, he made good. All the same, there was a profound shock to his physical organism; and something had to be done to ease the shock. His soul was strong and brave, but his physical being, with its subconscious will-to-live, was afraid, and no shame to it or to its princely owner.

Why should men get equivocal about fear on the battlefield, why not frankly call it that and not "nerves" or some like foolishness? The courage lies all in going ahead despite the fear. The sublimest courage is the "two in the morning" sort, when one's physical condition is at its lowest ebb. And the wonder is, just that kind of courage is now being so magnificently and so lavishly displayed all along the battlefronts, where much of the fighting is done at night. All soldiers are likely to be afraid until they get used to warfare. This has been true of many famous commanders—Augustus, who won fame at Actium, Turenne, Napoleon, Ney. "A coward is he," declares the bravest of the brave, "who boasts he never was afraid." Demosthenes talked fight aplenty; but he ran away from his first engagement, as did also Cicero.—Scientific American

Draw Power From Air.

The mission settlement at Mt. Hope, 100 miles north of the arctic circle, in Alaska, is contemplating the installation of an electric lighting plant to be driven by large windmills. During the long arctic winter the steady winds in that region seldom fall below 20 miles an hour, which is ample for driving the power plant. Since fuel of any kind is exceedingly expensive in that region, the power will serve the dual purpose of illuminating and heating.

Too Much for Her.

A little girl who was enrolled in the extension department of the Y. W. C. A. was asked by one of the secretaries of the association why she no longer attended the technical grammar class. Well, replied the girl, "I always thought a conjunction was a piece where trains stopped. When I learned it was a word that connected other words the class was too much for me."

LONG A PLAGUE TO YOUTH

Schoolboys of Many Centuries Ago Had to Wrestle With Problems of Arithmetic.

The modern schoolboy may find comfort in the fact that for 3,500 years schoolboys have been worried by just such desperate problems in arithmetic as annoy him most.

Among the archeological discoveries in Egypt is a papyrus roll, in excellent condition, dating from a period about 1700 B. C. This roll, which has a long heading beginning "Directions how to attain the knowledge of all dark things," proves beyond a doubt that the Egyptian of that time had a thorough knowledge of the elements of arithmetic.

Numerous examples show that their principal operations with units and fractions were made by means of addition and multiplication. Subtraction and division were not known in their present form, but correct results were obtained, nevertheless.

Equations are also found in the papyrus. Here is one which brings the Egyptian schoolboy home to us: Ten measures of barley are to be divided among ten persons in such a manner that each subsequent person shall receive one-eighth of a measure less than the one before him. Another example given is: There are seven men, each one has seven cats, each cat has eaten seven mice, each mouse has eaten seven grains of barley. Each grain of barley would have yielded seven measures of barley. How much barley has been lost?

The papyrus also contains calculations of area, the calculation of the area of a circle, attempts at squaring the circle, and finally calculation of the cubic measurements of pyramids.

Good Prospect for Business.

A young lawyer tells this story on himself with a keen appreciation of its humor:

"A negro came into my office recently and consulted with me about getting a divorce for his daughter, who was the eldest child. After ascertaining from the old negro the grounds for a divorce he asked me what my charges would be. I told him, and he said as follows: 'Mr. —, you know I's always given you my business?' I told him 'Yes, and I appreciated it. You know I's always going to give you my business, and Mary what wants this divorce is my oldest child, and fust and onliest one married. This thing is just startin', and I has eleven chillun, and of course, you'll get them all, and couldn't you make me a wholesale price on them?'"

It Always Helps

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill.

I wish every suffering woman would give
