

DAIRY

BALANCED RATION FOR MILK

Cow Must Be Given Combination Necessary to Maintain Her Functions and Produce Milk.

For the most profitable milk production, the cow must be fed a balanced ration at the cheapest price such ration can be provided. By balanced ration is meant the combination of such a proportion of nutrients and in such quantities as the cow requires to maintain her bodily functions and as she can utilize in the production of milk. These nutrients are classified as protein, carbohydrates, and fats. Protein is one of the principal constituents of milk; fats and carbohydrates perform much the same functions, that is, produce energy and heat, and in the balancing of a ration are usually classed together. If the cow is given a ration containing an excess of either element, the excess is liable to be wasted; hence the economical importance of a balanced ration.

USE SHORTHORNS FOR DAIRY

American Association Representing This Class Fixes Basis at 60 Per Cent for Milk.

The question is often asked, in judging dairy, or dual-purpose Shorthorn cattle, how much is allowed for beef and how much for milk. The American association representing this class of cattle fixed the basis at 60 per cent for dairy qualities and 40 per cent for beef. This is a very good basis to work from. More should be given for dairy, for this is most likely to be deficient, and a larger ration will have a tendency to stimulate the dairy development. Some stock shows and fairs fix the ratio at 50 per cent for each; but the rating given above seems better. More emphasis is being placed on the development of the dairy qualities of this breed, bringing it back to its original standing among the breeds of the world—one of the best for dairy purposes.

SILAGE IN PRODUCING MILK

Increase of 17 Per Cent is Seen in Test Conducted by Ohio Experiment Station.

Cows fed a ration composed largely of silage produced 17 per cent more milk and 28 per cent more butterfat than those given a ration consisting mainly of grain in a feeding test conducted for 121 days at the Ohio experiment station. The silage ration was also cheaper for milk production.

PREVENT LARGE DAIRY LOSS

Contagious Abortion Costs Farmer and Stockman $20,000,000 Yearly in Dead Calves.

Every farmer and stockman should fight contagious abortion in his district, and do his part to save $20,000,000 loss in dead calves and sterile cows. The disease is preventable and controllable. Isolate affected animals, treat aborting cows, disinfect the bulls and clean up the premises. This is good business for cattle owners.

COMMON CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Next to Overfeeding Calf is That of Feeding Milk Too Cold—Feed at Blood Heat.

Possibly next to overfeeding the calf on milk, the commonest cause of trouble is that of feeding milk too cold.

Feed milk at as nearly blood heat (98 degrees F.) as possible and remember that 20 degrees below blood heat may result in a case of scours with very young calves.

CHIEF FACTOR IN CREAMERY

Much of Success or Failure Depends Upon Density of Cream—Thin Cause of Big Loss.

The density of the cream is one of the most important factors in the success or failure of a creamery. Thin cream is chiefly responsible for the abnormal loss of butterfat and quality of butter and hence the low price paid the patrons for butterfat.

DOG IS TERMED A NUISANCE AND MENACE

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It has been almost universally conceded that the dog is a friend to man, but Bulletin 200 qualifies that statement somewhat. According to the publication the dog is a true friend to man only when properly controlled and cared for.

For at least half a century scientists have been insisting that the dog is responsible to quite an extent for the spread of many parasites and diseases to which stock and even man are susceptible. It is a matter of common knowledge that dogs are subject to rabies or hydrophobia and that they in turn may transmit it to other animals and to persons. Some of the other diseases and parasites they may transmit are hydatid, which occurs both in man and stock; gid, principally confined to sheep; cysticercus, or measles, in sheep; tapeworm, roundworm, tongue worm, fleas, and ticks.

Disease Spreader.
An interesting fact about some of these ailments is that the dog is practically necessary to the spread of the disease. Thus, in the case of hydatid, the dog becomes a carrier by feeding on the viscera of infected animals. A tapeworm develops in the dog and this produces microscopic eggs which are passed out with the feces. The eggs may wash considerable distances and land on lettuce or other vegetables, or they may get on the hands from contaminated tools or from the dog's skin. Once they get into the digestive tract of man or stock, a small embryo hatches and later develops into the hydatid or bladder worm. In stock this is seldom fatal, because the length of life of a farm animal is comparatively short, but in man it may cause serious difficulty and may necessitate one of many operations.

VALUABLE ASSISTANT TO ANY FARMER.

In addition to ailments to which the dog itself is subject, it may also be a carrier of diseases to which it is not susceptible. This was fully demonstrated during the recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, when it was determined beyond a doubt that dogs were responsible in some instances for the spread of the disease.

Nor are these the only counts against the dog. Every section which is devoted wholly or in part to the raising of sheep will furnish more evidence in the case. The well-trained, properly controlled dog is a valuable assistant to the shepherd, but the vagrant, unrestrained dog which forages for most of its sustenance is often a murderer and should be shot at sight. If these things are true, it is high time that Rover was taught his place. Keep the dog because he is in most instances a faithful helper, but keep him under proper restraint. It is largely the fault of man if the dog proves a nuisance and a menace.

COOKING FEEDS FOR SWINE NOT FAVORED

Experiment Stations Have Found Actual Loss in Practice, Says Kansas Expert.

Cooking feed for swine generally is not an advisable practice, points out Ray Gatewood, instructor in animal husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Much experimenting has been done along this line," said Mr. Gatewood, "and practically all experiment stations have found an actual loss encountered by cooking feeds.

"With most feeds, cooking tends to lower the digestibility, resulting in a larger amount of feed being required to produce a given amount of gain. This raises the expense of production and cuts down the producer's profits.

"Some feeds used in certain localities—such as potatoes, field peas, and roots—have their palatability improved and their water content lowered by cooking, which results in a larger consumption. These, however, are not common feeds in Kansas. Cooking requires special apparatus and of course takes time and labor, all adding to the expense of production.

"It may be profitable to heat drinking water and water in which feeds are mixed in cold weather, as this will decrease the amount of feed required to maintain the body temperature."

IMPORTANT "DON'TS" IN BROOD MARE CARE

Regular Exercise Is Essential and Hard Work Should Be Avoided—Feed Liberally.

(By DR. C. C. LIPP, South Dakota Agricultural College.)

1. Don't fail to provide regular exercise for the mare heavy with foal. If there is no regular work, a run in a lot for several hours daily makes a good substitute.
2. Don't require the mare heavy with foal to do such work as requires short turning, especially in plowed ground, deep mud, or snow.
3. Don't require the mare heavy with foal to travel on slippery roads unless she is well shod.
4. Don't neglect to feed the brood mare well. She must eat not only for her own maintenance, but for the development of her foal also.
5. Don't feed the brood mare hay or straw that contains traces of ergot. Such precaution may prevent trouble that falls to yield to medicinal treatment.
6. A roomy box stall, light, clean, and with a reasonable amount of bedding is the best place to keep the brood mare. If a tie stall is used, it must be roomy.

7. Don't bed the brood mare's stall excessively. Too much bedding may cause her to struggle when trying to get up.
8. Don't confine the brood mare in a stall that offers a place for her head or legs to get caught, and cause her to struggle.
9. Don't neglect to disinfect the foaling stall thoroughly a few days before the foal is expected, using seven table-spoonfuls of compound cresol solution per gallon of water. Neglect of this may cost the foal's life.
10. Don't give the mare heavy with foal a worm remedy unless advised by the attending veterinarian.
11. Don't give the mare heavy with foal your favorite colic remedy. The foal is too valuable to risk such treatment. If the mare has colic, it is wise economy to call a competent veterinarian.
12. Don't neglect daily exercise as a preventive of swollen hind legs that often appear the last month or six weeks before foaling.
13. Don't neglect giving her udder attention. Daily exercise will do more than medicine to reduce the swollen and hardened condition that so often makes its appearance a month or six weeks before foaling.
14. Don't neglect painstaking care and the exercise of common sense in the management of the mare heavy with foal.

SELF-FEEDERS BEST FOR FATTENING PIGS

Gains May Be Put on Animals Rapidly and Economically, Says Missouri Expert.

(By L. A. WEAVER, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

The Missouri agricultural experiment station has demonstrated the fact that gains may be put on fattening hogs rapidly and economically by the use of self-feeders.

Shoats weighing 121 pounds at the beginning of a 90-day feeding period gained 1.79 pounds a head daily, weighing 228.9 pounds at the close of the feeding trial. During this time they were supplied with corn, shorts, and tankage, each of these feeds being placed in a separate self-feeder and the shoats allowed to eat as much of each as they wished. When so fed they seemed to balance their ration about as well as could be done by hand feeding. The proportion in which the feeds were eaten are: Corn, 20.63 pounds; shorts, 3.93 pounds; and tankage, 1 pound. The average daily feed consumed per hog was 8.185 pounds. The amount of feed required for each pound of gain produced was 4.53 pounds.

With corn worth 65 cents a bushel, shorts $1.35 per hundred and tankage $2.50 per hundred it cost $5.98 to produce 100 pounds of pork.

PRIDE IN COLTS AND HORSES

Farmer Can Well Afford to Feed and Care for Young Animals to Attract Buyers.

(By W. L. BLIZZARD, Department of Animal Husbandry, Oklahoma A. and M. College, Stillwater.)

Every farmer should have a pride in the colts and horses he raises. If the packer and brewer can afford to pay fancy prices for flashy geldings largely for advertising purposes, the farmer can well afford to feed and care for his young colts in such a way that they will be attractive to these buyers.

In fact, every farmer should be ambitious, not only to raise the best colts, but also to produce the best stock of all kinds. If he has the best teams in the neighborhood, they will attract a great deal of attention. The farmer's son would certainly become deeply interested in a fine team of purebred mares and the colts they raise. It would stimulate him and encourage him to put forth his best efforts for their care and management.

The boy who is proud of the stock on the farm and who may raise and develop a colt good enough to win at one of the local fairs is not nearly so likely to leave the farm.

FEED CATTLE FOR SHIPMENT

Pennsylvania Experiment Station Recommends Water Be Withheld Before Shipping.

In preparing cattle for shipment considerable attention should be given to feeding so as to lower the shrinkage as much as possible. The Pennsylvania State college agricultural experiment station recommends that water be withheld from animals before shipping and that they be fed timothy hay and whole oats to prevent looseness during shipping. Under such treatment cattle will arrive at the market in a more attractive appearance and will take on a much heavier "fill."

REDUCE FERTILITY OF FARM

Raising of Grade Steers Is Easier Than Growing Grain—Less Care for the Farmer.

It is known that grain-raising reduces the fertility of the farm in a much greater degree than the raising of stock.

The raising of grade steers is easier work and less care for the average farmer now that reliable farm labor is becoming so difficult to obtain.

HE IS PROGRESSIVE FARMER

Man Breeding Purebred Stock Is the One With Best Surroundings and Farm Buildings.

The man who has gone into the breeding of purebred live stock is the man with the best surroundings, the best buildings on his farm; he keeps his farm in the best condition—in fact it is something which tends to develop him.

USING ANTICHOLOERA SERUM

Vaccination of Hogs and Proper Care Will Prevent Disease—Chance For More Money.

Hog cholera is absolutely preventable. The use of the anticholera serum—vaccinating the hogs—and proper care will do the work.

With this hoodoo removed there ought to be much more money in hogs than ever before.

MAKE HEN EXERCISE IF YOU WANT EGGS

FIRST PRIZE WINNER AT NEW YORK POULTRY SHOW.

(By C. S. ANDERSON, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)

Activity is the life of the laying hen. As her activity decreases, and hence her egg production. The hen that stands around all day, and scarcely has enough energy to eat food placed before her, is never a laying hen.

The amount of forced exercise necessary will vary with the breed. The Leghorn, conceded to be the highest egg producer, and most active bird, will take a great deal of exercise. The Brahma is an example of the other extreme, and must always have a strong incentive to exercise. The vigor and productivity of the free-range hen as compared to one yard-confined is largely accounted for by her active life.

During the winter months exercise can best be managed by feeding all the whole grain in a litter 10 to 12 inches deep. This will not involve a waste, for if hens are left a little hungry they will scratch long after the last kernel has been found.

Laying hens should never be fed in such quantities as to satisfy their appetite. Whole grain should be fed very sparingly in the morning, and heavily at night. This not only keeps the birds more active through the day, but a heavy feed of grain at night keeps their bodies warmer.

Straw, hay, alfalfa chaff, leaves and cut corn stover, all make good litters. Shavings and sawdust are not best because they tend to pack, and also hold dampness. Regardless of the kind of litter used, it should be renewed frequently and never allowed to become badly contaminated with droppings.

VARIETY FOR POULTRY

Method Recommended by Maine Experiment Station.

Grain Mixture of Wheat, Oats and Corn is Scattered in Litter—Chickens Should Have Ample Supply of Green Food.

One of the most successful methods of feeding poultry is the one advocated by the Maine experiment station, which is briefly as follows: A grain mixture of equal parts by weight of wheat, oats and corn, and a dry mash of a mixture made up as follows: Bran, 200 pounds; cornmeal, 100 pounds; middlings, 100 pounds; gluten meal, 100 pounds; and beef scraps, 100 pounds.

The usual method of feeding the grain is to scatter about four quarts of the grain mixture for each 100 hens in the litter at night after the chickens have gone to roost, or early in the morning. The litter should be deep enough to give the hens plenty of exercise. At noon another four quarts should be scattered in the litter.

Aside from the grain and dry mash the chickens should have plenty of green food, which may be furnished either in the form of mangels, cabbages, sprouted oats or cut clover hay. Milk is also a very valuable poultry food, and if furnished daily the amount of beef scraps in the dry mash can be cut down to 50 pounds. It is preferable to feed sour milk, as sweet milk will often sour and cause digestive troubles.

One of the secrets of successful feeding is to have the chickens go to roost with their crops full and in the morning have them eager for grain. If the chickens are not anxious for the feed, it is an indication that they are getting it too easily or that they are getting too liberal amounts.

TREATING WORMS IN FOWLS

Mix in Feed One Teaspoonful of Permanganate Root Bark for Every Fifty Head of Birds.

Intestinal worms are prevalent in almost all farm flocks. To be convinced of whether or not your bird has worms, it is a good plan to give the flock, or at least a few individuals, a dose of physic. One of the best methods of treating worms in fowls is to mix in the feed a teaspoonful of powdered permanganate root bark for every 50 head of birds. In treating a few birds at a time it is well to follow this medicine with a purgative dose of castor oil, such as two or three teaspoonfuls.

Oil of turpentine is an excellent remedy for all worms which inhabit the digestive tract. It may be given in the dose of one to three teaspoonfuls, and is best administered by forcing it through a small, flexible catheter that has been oiled and passed through the mouth and esophagus to the crop.

USING AN INCUBATOR

Users of incubators are given the following suggestions by the United States department of agriculture.

See that the incubator is running steadily at the desired temperature before filling with eggs. Do not add fresh eggs to a tray containing eggs which are undergoing incubation.

Turn the eggs twice daily after the second and until the nineteenth day. Cool the eggs once daily, according to the weather, from the seventh to the nineteenth day.

Turn the eggs before caring for the lamps. Attend to the machine carefully at regular hours. Keep the lamp and wick clean.

Test the eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days. Do not open the machine after the eighteenth day until the chickens are hatched.

In setting up and operating an incubator follow the directions of the manufacturer.

HENS NEED MUCH ATTENTION

Fowls Must Have Plenty of Right Kind of Food, Especially During Cold Weather Season.

The old idea that hens do not need much attention has almost disappeared. Farmers now realize, as poultry fanciers did years ago, that it is necessary to take good care of the hens if one expects profits.

There was a time when fowls could find the food necessary and the farmer need not worry himself with the expense of raising feed for the birds. But there are now very few places where the fowls may be expected to find their own food.

It is quite true that hens will find much of their food on range if given a chance. But they will need feed at certain times and generally at all times for a supplement to balance the rations.

During the winter, farm fowls will need plenty of the right kind of food; there will be times when little can be found; then the feed supply must come from the barn or granary. And much will depend upon the kind, amount and frequency of feeding.

KEEP ALL POULTRY HEALTHY

Avoid Condiments and Medicines in All Kinds of Weather—See That Fowls Are Comfortable.

If your chickens are healthy and free from lice keep condiments and medicines away from them, in cold weather and all other kinds of weather.

Water and good feeds will do them the most good, granting that they are comfortably housed.

"We Can Make 'Em Put It Through on the Original Charter."

A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

by E. ALEXANDER POWELL

NOVELIZED FROM THE MOTION PICTURE SERIAL OF THE SAME NAME PRODUCED BY THE SIGNAL FILM CORP.

SYNOPSIS.

Rupert Holmes, a lumberman of the North Woods, disappointed at becoming the father of a daughter instead of a son, abandons his wife and child to the log-jammed river. Thinking them dead, he allies himself with the lumber trust head, whose daughter he marries. But the deserted wife and baby are picked up and cared for by one Dave Dawson. Twenty years later Rupert Holmes is the lumber magnate fighting the independents around him. His daughter, Helen, unknown to him, has brought herself to his attention by several heroic acts about the camps. She takes up a fight against the trust and leads the independents in their defense against the great Amalgamated which seeks to absorb their hard-earned properties. In this Helen is assisted by Tom Dawson, a young engineer, and her foster father, Dave Dawson.

FIFTH EPISODE

The independent owners were enormously encouraged by their legal victory over the Amalgamated. Some of them believed the octopus had shot its bolt, but these reckoned without their obstinate host, Rupert Holmes. While compelled to accept the shipments of lumber offered by the independents, Holmes and his myrmidons succeeded in making things mightily unpleasant for the customer. A policy of obstruction was pursued. Where a hundred cars were ordered, only ten would be forthcoming. Where ten cars were asked, one would be furnished. This premeditated delay of shipments brought prompt protests from shippers.

Threats of cancellation became frequent. These were met with explanations of the causes of delay but the mill men wanted lumber and not explanations. Once more the independents were confronted with heavy losses through the machinations of the trust. It was in this crisis that Helen Dawson came once more to the rescue. She had asked Clancy, the railway agent at Dawsonville, for a day's leave of absence to make a visit in Big Falls. When she returned that evening she sent for Michael Morrissey, leading spirit of the independents.

"Is there still trouble in securing cars?" Helen asked. "Trouble, no end," answered Morrissey. "They've got 'em, cars all right, but we can't get 'em. It's the old game of a crook trying to use the back door when the front one has been closed by the law. We have half a million dollars worth of cancellations staring us in the face at this minute." Helen smiled enigmatically and drummed a pencil between her teeth. "I was in Big Falls today," she remarked, irrelevantly, after a pause. "I just happened to drop into the county clerk's office, and while there I thought I'd like to see a copy of the Amalgamated's charter. By the way, Mr. Morrissey, did you ever see that charter?"

"No," replied Morrissey. "They never honored me with a copy." "You ought to see the original," Helen went on. "It's very interesting. I find that it provides for a railway starting at Port Jefferson, running through Big Falls and Dawsonville, and ending at Glacier Point. They are not operating under that charter, Mr. Morrissey. Their railway ends at Dawsonville." "I knew there was something in the charter about Glacier point, but—holy St. Patrick!" shouted the Irishman. "We can make 'em put it through on the original charter, and we'll all get rich, for the best of the independent holdings are in that territory. Ay, colleen, but you're a wonder." "But could they not wriggle out of it on the proposition that there is no traffic at present to justify the extension," pursued Helen, doubtfully. "Well," grinned Morrissey, "there's a settlement at Glacier—just a few families and some Indians—but we can throw a couple of hundred men in there, build houses and start a town that will justify a petition to the legislature."

"Do you think the plan is practicable?" "Anyhow," answered Morrissey, enthusiastically, "I'm for trying it." "We'll have a meeting here, then," said Helen. "I know a young lawyer in Big Falls, a Mr. Clay, whom I will ask to come up. We must be sure of our ground."

That meeting became memorable in the annals of Dawsonville. There were nine persons present, there having been invited, besides Clay, the lawyer, five of the foremost independent owners. Helen's plan was adopted with a whoop. The hundred or more settlers living in the country adjacent to Glacier were amazed when a few mornings after the Dawson conclave, a party of surveyors appeared and proceeded to lay out the street plan for a fair-sized town. These men had hardly finished their work when two hundred lumberjacks swarmed in from the railroad above Dawson and began cutting timber within shooting distance of the village of Glacier.

Rows of log houses sprang up as though at the touch of a magician's wand. Stores, a boarding house and town hall were among the most pretentious structures. All were built entirely of logs.

When the news of what the independents were doing reached Rupert Holmes, he did not grasp the significance of it at once.

The next jolt for the Amalgamated crowd was administered on the following Monday evening, when Councilman Shonts burst into the office of "Big Bill" Behrens in Big Falls, and swore like a Cossack with wet feet. "What's the riot?" demanded Behrens. "Riot?" yelled Shonts; "that independent gang with the lumberlands Joan of Arc have just sewed you sleepy snickers up in your own blankets. That's what the riot is."

"Come across," snarled Behrens. "Let's hear the sad news." "They shovelled a motion in the city council tonight compelling the Amalgamated to build through to Glacier according to its charter provisions. It's tabled until the next meeting, but it'll go through then as sure as a gun unless we manage to block it."

Behrens was vastly excited by this information, but he did not show it. "Suppose anybody down at Glacier knows you're in our employ?" he demanded. "No," retorted the visitor; "it would be poor business for me." "Just a gleam of intelligence," grunted Behrens. "All right, keep it dark, but get back there and keep us posted up to the minute. Who's behind this new move?"

"Well, there's Morrissey and that bunch, but of course the Dawson girl's behind 'em. She's the brains of that combination and now she's got a lawyer named Clay on her staff. That fellow's some shrewd, too." "Well, jump out," ordered Behrens. "Use the code over our wires. . . . Ha! I thought so." As Shonts started for the night train Behrens, whose last remark had been occasioned by the ringing of his telephone, leaned over and placed the receiver to his ear. "Who is it?" he inquired. "Holmes, Seattle," was the sharp retort. "Just got some information from Dawsonville. What's the matter with you, Behrens—sleep at the switch?" "Oh, it's that Morrissey crowd, trying to put something over," snarled the agent. "Can't sleep with 'em, you know. Just got to meet 'em a little better than half way—that's all." "How does the council stand?" "They're a pretty hidebound lot." "Any of 'em take coin?" "Might. We can try it out." "Try it out? Why, wake up, Behrens—this thing's got to be choked right where it is. I'm told of two we can get sure. It's up to you to get three more in double-quick time. Don't make any mistakes now. Be sure of your ground and then pay 'em enough to buy a house and lot. I'm sending Carruthers down on the mail train. Consult with him and then get action. Well, human nature is the same the world over. It wasn't hard for Behrens to buy three of those halfbreed councilmen. Then Behrens made a mistake. He tackled "Tink" McDonald and Olaf Christiansen, about as hard-listed and at the same time thoroughly honest a pair of timbermen as ever rode a raft. "Ye canna bribe me, ye diel," roared "Tink," as he swung a canthook within an inch of Behrens' ear. "Oot w' ye noo—Ah'm a mon o' small patience." "You gat to haal fem har," drawled Christiansen, as he stared at Behrens' five twenty-dollar bills. "Ay ban on de vater vagon."

Morrissey and Clay, with Helen Dawson helping them every minute of the day, soon learned of the defection of the councilmen and set about to remedy the situation. Shonts being recognized as the ring-leader of the renegades, Morrissey addressed him. "I'm not going to threaten you fellows," said the Irishman, "but I figure that after thinking things over you'll probably decide to stick with the bunch. The people round here don't propose to lose their jobs because of any crooked councilmen betraying them into the hands of the Amalgamated. Get that through your heads, men."

The night of the council meeting there was an enormous bonfire burning outside the town hall in the middle of the main street. A big mob of lumbermen had congregated about the fire and a huge pot was bubbling in the middle of it. "What's this, a barbecue?" demanded Shonts. "Depends," was the laconic reply. "Plenty of soup here for any good use," and he stirred the tar with a long pole. "Shonts!" gasped St. Cyr, the half-breed who had first taken Amalgamated money. "Here your d—n money—no tar feathers this injun—got too d—n much sense."

Shonts was desperate. The other three purchased votes were no good to him. Besides, St. Cyr had threatened to spring the whole bribery story on the council floor for the purpose of clearing his own skirts. There was nothing for it, Shonts decided, but to resign before they could suspend him under charges. "Mr. Mayor," shouted the Amalgamated agent, as soon as the meeting had been called to order, "I resign my position in the council."

"Accepted," roared the president; "get out." Then something happened that was unexpected. St. Cyr and the others who had taken bribes also resigned. There was no quorum. For a moment Behrens sat stunned in the rear of the courtroom. Then realizing what had happened and that the body could not proceed to business without a quorum present, he decided to claim credit with Holmes for a remarkably astute piece of plotting. "Good work," was Holmes' laconic telegram in reply to one sent by Behrens.

The meeting adjourned and an order for an election of councilmen was immediately posted. At once the money of the Amalgamated was put into circulation where it would do the most good. Meetings were held, some of which were addressed by the Amalgamated supporters and far larger ones addressed by Helen Dawson, Morrissey and the independent leaders. And the night of the election Helen made a final speech that set the town aflame.

As she progressed the young girl, clad in her white sweater and spotlighted by the glare from a huge fire of logs, so excited the gathering of rough men that they waved their hats and coats in a frenzy of excitement. As she leaped lightly to the ground, a brawny axman sang out, "Now boys, all together! Three cheers for Miss Helen, the lumberman's friend!" and the answering roar showed how powerfully she had swayed her hearers. "She's spilled the beans, damn her," Behrens whispered to Carruthers. "There's nothing to it now. We'd better be clearing out of here or they may make it hot for us after what she said about that old fellow Thomas."

Behrens was quite right in his estimate of the situation. It was all over but the shouting, or rather, the voting, for when the polls closed it was found that the independent ticket had been elected by an overwhelming majority. The passage of the resolution was now a foregone conclusion. When the new council met the following evening the town hall was packed to suffocation, while those who could not find room within crowded the doors and windows. Upon the motion of MacDonald the resolution calling upon the legislature to demand the immediate completion of the railway to Glacier Point was passed with a whoop.

"I wish to make another motion, Mr. Chairman," said MacDonald, when the excitement had subsided. "I move that, in recognition of Miss Helen Dawson's services in awakening the self-respect of this community, the name of this town be changed from Glacier Point to Helenboro." "Ay ban second that motion," shouted Christiansen. "You have heard the motion, gentlemen," said the mayor. "Those in favor will say aye." And councilmen and townspeople alike thundered their approval. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

UNCLE SAM'S AIDS MAKING BLIND SEE

Federal Doctors Save Sight of Hundreds in Campaign Against Trachoma.

PREVENT SPREAD OF DISEASE

Dr. John McMullen, Known as the "Miracle Man" Among the Mountaineers, Tells Interesting Incidents of Work.

"You are a sight for sore eyes," had a double meaning when a friend used that expression in greeting Dr. John McMullen, the physician who has been leading Uncle Sam's public health service campaign against trachoma, or granulated eyelids. In the past year through him and his assistants hundreds have regained their sight, and thousands have been cured of the disease, which in time would have destroyed their eyes. The infection threatened to involve many states, but the service has held it within the Appalachian regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

The economic value of the work already done cannot be estimated, for there is no telling how far the infection would have extended by this time if it had reached the more populous areas; but its humanitarian accomplishment has paid a hundredfold on the federal capital—$43,000 last year—invested.

Save 1,800 From Blindness.

The service has three hospitals in Kentucky and one each in the other three states where trachoma is prevalent. It probably saved at least 1,800 patients from total blindness; has had an attendance of 19,000 days in the hospital and given over 100,000 treatments at clinics.

The doctors and nurses managed to give 328 talks, visit 3,500 homes and 625 schools.

"Government Doctor" McMullen, who is regarded in that section as a miracle man, was induced to tell some of the many incidents that he knows about the work among the simple and hospitable mountaineers.

"Imagine your eyelashes turned under the lids and resting on your eyeballs," he said, "then you will have the sensations with which trachoma tortures its victims. As the disease progresses the eyeball is affected and the vision impaired until gradually the sight is lost."

"The feeling is that light must be kept out, and in the advanced stages patients go about with their eyes swathed night and day in bandages."

"A dear little girl of twelve, who was brought to us by her mother, wore a deep, old-fashioned sunbonnet, which she would not let anyone remove, night or day. Its shade protected her eyes from the daylight, and her imagination made her believe that it helped her to bear the pain at night. Of course it is often difficult to induce these people, unfamiliar with anesthetics, to submit to operations, but the hardest struggle we had with this young lady was to remove that sunbonnet."

"She was so young that the eyes had not been affected, and she was in a few weeks as well as ever, and she has not worn a hat since that time. "Another child presented a pitiful case. The little thing had so long carried her head to one side to avoid the glint of the sunshine that her spine had become curved. We have cured the eyes, but we cannot restore the back."

By Order of the Court.

"Two cases—the only ones—came by judicial compulsion. A local magistrate had before him a neighbor who had committed some indiscretion, and this was the oracular judgment: 'John, you know I can send you to jail, but you think I ain't goin' to. I am, though, unless you do what I tell you. You have said, by thunder, you wouldn't let Doc McMullen touch your boys' eyes, and now I say, by thunder, if you don't, I'll send you to jail until you do.' "To save trouble for John, those boys were carefully treated, and each of them made a good recovery."

"We are as busy as we can be, but we know that we are reaching only a small part of the cases. Some in the way-back districts do not come, and our force is too small to reach them where they live."

"The various counties have provided money for the rest of the houses which we hire, and in some cases have added small sums. Communities are begging us to establish hospitals where they can reach them, but we have not the men or the nurses or the money to run them. Each hospital requires 20 beds, a physician who is a specialist in the treatment of eyes, besides nurses and orderlies, and each costs about $8,000 a year."

"A torpedo destroyer costs about $1,200,000, which is $200,000 more than the total annual appropriation for the public health service. Out of that amount it must maintain the marine hospital service, including a sanatorium for tuberculous patients and quarantine at all ports of entry to the United States and our islands. It has a staff of only 200 regular physicians and about 250 part-time men. So the real reason the service can do no more for the American blind is that it lacks the money."

BRING DEAD TO LIFE

Coast Guards Save Many Who Apparently Are Drowned

No Branch of Uncle Sam's Service Has Greater Diversity of Activities—Work Covers Big Area.

The work of Uncle Sam's coast guard is always interesting. No branch of the federal service can report a greater diversity of activities, and each year adds to the constantly growing panoramic stirring events on the sea, which seemingly are endless in their possibilities. The scenes of rescue work included the vicinities of all stations and the cruising districts of the cutters, embracing as they do, the Atlantic and gulf coasts within the continental limits of the United States, the waters of the great lakes, the Pacific coast, including Alaskan waters, and the waters surrounding the outlying possessions of Hawaii and Porto Rico.

In addition to their work of protecting commerce and navigation along our shores, the units of the coast guard are frequently called upon to assist bathers and swimmers and others whose lives are imperiled in the water. Often in cases of this kind the persons taken in hand by the corps are in a serious condition, and in some instances apparently drowned. Nearly always painstaking and intelligent attention is required to bring them safely ashore and prevent ill after-effects. The treatment administered in this resuscitating work is based upon scientific principles and its efficacy has been established in practice extending over a long period of years. In all cases of apparent drowning, even though the patient has been under water for as long as 30 minutes, the corps is expected to subject the patient to the prescribed manipulation long enough to revive him or to afford positive and convincing evidence that life is extinct. Instances have occurred, officials of the guard say, in which by such indefatigable effort persons have been restored after physicians in attendance have pronounced them dead.

During the past fiscal year 28 cases of resuscitation and attempted resuscitation by the service crews were reported, in which the patients had been in the water either helpless or unconscious for periods varying from a few minutes to as long as 23 minutes.

In 13 of the 23 cases the work of the corps was reported as successful. In ten of these 13 cases artificial respiration was employed for periods varying from a few minutes to an hour and fifteen minutes, while in the three other cases friction of body and limbs was sufficient to effect restoration. Five of the 13 persons revived were apparently dead when the corps took charge of them; they had been under water for periods varying from one to seven minutes, and the work of restoration required periods varying from five minutes to an hour and fifteen minutes.

WOULD STOP UNEMPLOYMENT

Commissioner General of Immigration Plans National Co-Operative System to Solve Big Problem.

Efforts to settle for all time the questions of unemployment in the United States and the lack of skilled workers are being continued by Anthony Caminetti, Uncle Sam's commissioner general of immigration, who is in charge of the employment bureau of the department of labor, by trying to bring about a national co-operative system of employment. He would also give industrial education to poor children at the expense of the national or state government, as the case may be.

In addition to the co-operation of the national Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and that of many woman's organizations, efforts will be made to get the great national organizations of men interested.

The idea is to establish a federated committee in each town or community where there is a branch office of the department's employment bureau. This committee is to be composed of representatives of organizations there to distribute information as to where there are openings for employment and where people to file them may be found.

"Sleet?" Oh, No! Now It Is "Glaze" or "Ice Storm"

"Sleet?" Let's see. Oh, yes, the word was in common use away back in the early days of 1916, but nowadays one says "glaze," "glaze storm" and "ice storm" if he wishes to be correct and oblige the United States weather bureau. "Sleet," says a Washington dispatch, "is officially described as small globules of rain frozen before striking the earth. When rain freezes after falling and forms a glassy coating on the ground, trees and wires the condition is called a 'glaze,' and when this is severe and accompanied by wind it is reported as an 'ice storm.'" In passing, it may be added that the weather bureau has substituted "tornado" for "cyclone." "Blizzard" is still left to us, also "rip-sawter."

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make It Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Dandarine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Dandarine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Dandarine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandarine from any store and just try it. Adv.

Books in Prison.

Prison literature has many fine productions to its credit in prose as well as poetry. In his prison at Athens, Socrates completed his great argument for immortality; in a Roman dungeon Galileo made some of his greatest discoveries. In his prison in Wartburg castle Luther translated the New Testament into the German language. During his twelve years in Bedford Jail Bunyan dreamed his immortal dream of the "Pilgrim's Progress." Sir Walter Raleigh wrote his fragmentary history of the world to beguile the long years of his imprisonment in the Tower of London. Much of the New Testament also is prison literature. Some of the finest of the epistles of St. Paul were written during his imprisonment at Rome, and the Book of the Revelation of St. John was written while he was an exile on the island prison of Patmos.—London Chronicle.

SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Kerrville, Texas.

A large majority of the counties of Texas, a large majority of the territory and almost two thirds of the legislature want Prohibition in Texas, or at least are in favor of the people having a chance to pass on the matter with their ballots, but for the reason that our constitution can only be amended by a two-thirds vote of the law-making body the democratic principle of majority rule must be disregarded and the people be ruled by a few slick politicians who are in the complete control of the liquor forces.

It is encouraging to note the new life taken on by the Kerrville Business Men's Club. There is a great work here that can be done by a live business league and it seems now that the business men of our town are disposed to lay down petty differences and join together in this work for the upbuilding of our splendid little city. The committee appointed to solicit new members report splendid encouragement. The next regular meeting will be held Feb. 20. Let every business man attend and see what the club is trying to do and perhaps you will get an inspiration to help.

The severing of diplomatic relations with Germany does not necessarily mean war, but it can lead to war in a moments time and the war clouds are hovering very low over this nation at this time. Let us hope that it is the beginning of peace to the world rather than war.

ALL RUN-DOWN AND NERVOUS

Says This Lady Who Had to Support Family of Four. Read Below Her Statement About Cardui.

Tallapoosa, Ga.—Mrs. Sallie Eidsen, of this place, writes: "I was in very poor health, all run-down, nervous, had fainting spells, dizziness and heart fluttering. I had these symptoms usually at my . . . times. I had a very hard time, working for seven years in a hotel after my father died. I had to support our family of four. I read the Birthday Almanac and thought I would begin taking Cardui. I received good benefit from it. I am sure it will do all that it claims to do. I took three or four bottles before it began to show effects. After that I improved rapidly and gained in health and strength. I took nine bottles in all. This is the only time I have taken it. I was down to 108 pounds and I gained to 122. I felt like a new woman. I couldn't sleep before and had to be rubbed, I would get so nervous and numb. And all this was stopped by Cardui." The true value of a medicine can be determined only by the results obtained from its actual use. The thousands of letters we have received every year for many years from grateful users of Cardui, are powerful tributes to its worth and effectiveness. If you suffer from womanly ailments, try Cardui, the woman's tonic.—Adv.

It ought to be consoling to the widow to know that history often repeats itself. ACTRESS TELLS SECRET. A well known actress gives the following recipe for gray hair: To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

An acre of good fishing ground will produce more food in a week than an acre of land in a year. CAPUDINE —For Headaches— Try it and be convinced. Good for aches in back and limbs also—Assists Nature to get right and stay so. It's Liquid—easy to take.—Adv.

ENDS DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" cures sick, sour stomachs in five minutes—Time It!

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that's just what makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into starchy lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, sweetest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.—Adv.

Arduous Work

The heart soon becomes tired of such safety. Pleasure-seeking is a very laborious occupation.

VOGUES AND VANITIES JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Whatever You Will in Coiffures.

Just at present, coiffures are almost as diversified as heads. In the matter of hair dressing there are no styles that govern and about everything is left to individual taste. The hair dresser asks you what you will have, and is prepared to execute any sort of order, even to bobbing off half your locks and curling what is left of them. He is not arbitrary about a single thing, but is insistent that waved hair is better than straight hair, no matter what style you may elect to make your own.

Young women like the style in which the hair is combed back off the forehead so well that they are reluctant to part with it. It is still a favorite. But it is much less becoming than waves or curls about the face, and newer coiffures insist upon covering at least a portion of the forehead. All of them present waved hair as an essential feature and all of them are exquisitely neat.

A coiffure for evening dress is shown in the picture, with the hair parted a little to one side and waved. Only half of the forehead is uncovered and the waved hair almost covers the ears. There is a fad for turning the ends of the hair under and pinning them in without coiling them into a knot or making them into puffs. This is not so easy to do if the hair is long. The ends are usually disposed of in a knot at the top of the crown, as in the coiffure pictured.

Not many hair ornaments, except combs, are worn; but in this as in coiffures, the individual may please herself. Some of the smartest women have worn a single soft feather, held by a brilliant ornament, in the hair at the opera.

Artificial Flowers. Hortense is very fond of the present artificial flower bud, which she says is "so French." Possibly never before have artificial flowers had such a vogue as they have just now, and a small corsage flower is one of the best means to giving color to a dark street frock or suit.

Three Pretty Vanity Cases.

Vanity bags bob up or dangle in the most unexpected places. They swing from umbrella handles and from fans—they are concealed in shopping and party bags, and are even suspended from pretty garters. But vanity cases are frankly carried in the hand and held, in the most compact arrangement, all the aids needed in emergency cases of beauty in distress. They also accommodate small coins—in case they are wanted.

In the illustration three cases made of German silver are selected from an array of many different patterns. There are perfectly plain cases with polished surface and others with satin finish, but, in the long run, the fanciest cases look better than the plain ones. In the case at the left, two uncompromising dragons, rampant against a field of hammered silver, show a disposition to hammer everything inside and out of the strong-looking case. But there is a small "watchdog of the treasury" represented as on guard, between them.

In the case at the right, the decoration is much simpler. Parallel lines across the back with a leaf motif at each corner, are sufficient for this quiet design. The center case is made interesting by a device that suggests an old adage. We may infer that the two serpents on it typify evil, and "the love of money"—but you know the rest. A Chinese mask, between the serpents, grimly unmoved by anything outside of the case—knowing what is within.

Boots for the Street. One sees the most frivolous dancing boots, high of heel and paper thin of sole with street tailored gait for shopping and runabout wear in town; but such boots are not correct according to the canons of conventionality. Pretty boots of bronze or light-colored glass kid are intended for formal wear with dancing or reception frock when one travels by limousine or brougham; the walking costume in tailored style demands a smart walking boot with long, slender lines and heel, high perhaps, but not too curved for comfort.

Six Plaits Even on Sleeves. The tendency toward box or other plaits is very well expressed on the sleeves. A customary form is a box plait reaching from the shoulder to the cuff. Or again the fullness of the sleeve may be gathered or plaited at the upper part of the armhole and the sleeves cut in such a manner that these plaits or gathers are smoothed out at the wrist. Plaits, sometimes, begin from the elbow down.

COLD AND HOT ZONES BELOW

Theory That Heat Uniformly Increases With Descent Into Interior of Earth Is Proved.

The question is often asked: "Are there cold and hot zones below the surface of the earth just as there are on the surface?" Recent developments would tend to prove that such is the case and that the long-accepted theory that heat uniformly increases with descent into the interior of the earth is incorrect.

It has been shown that heat generated by oxidation is often a determining factor in deep mining. In sundry localities it has been noted that the increase in temperature with depth is not regular, being subject to the amount of pyrites in the ground, or to the time that the hole in the ground is opened up. At Sandhurst, Victoria, New South Wales, Australia, a fall of five degrees Fahrenheit in temperature was noted after the ground had been opened up for one year, and after four years had passed there was a further fall and then an unchanged temperature.

In telling of an instance at Comstock, Nev., a government official says: "At a depth of 1,700 feet boiling water was found, and the statement was then made that a little farther down all matter was molten; yet on passing the 2,000-foot level the temperature decreased, the union shaft at a depth of 3,500 feet having a more comfortable temperature than could be found halfway to the surface."

In the Lake Superior region these irregular conditions are conspicuous. Here there appears to be a local cold zone, as is demonstrated in the Calumet and Hecla shaft, where at 4,700 feet the temperature was 79 degrees Fahrenheit, or only 20 degrees warmer than at a depth of 100 feet.

How December Got Its Name.

The first appearance of December in the calendar was in the role of the tenth month of the year of Romulus, its name being derived from "decem," meaning ten. In 713 B. C., Numa introduced January and February before March, and December was relegated to twelfth place. The name thus ceased to be etymologically correct, and several attempts were made to change it, but without success. For a decade in the second century of the Christian era, in the reign of Commodus, December was called Amazonius, in honor of one of the light lady loves of the prince, but soon after the death of Commodus—he was poisoned by his favorite mistress, Marcia—Romans dropped the name of Amazonius and restored the old name of December.

In the original calendar of Romulus December had 30 days. When Numa reformed the calendar he reduced December to 29 days, but Julius Caesar gave it 31 days, and it has been that number ever since. By the ancient Saxons December was called Wintermonath, which was changed, after the introduction of Christianity, to Helghimonth, or Holy month.—Buffalo Times.

A Wrist Watch in the Desert.

One night a company of Arabs attached themselves to our party. This is customary in these wild lands. They saw that we were well armed and came with us for safety. One of them, a dignified young chief, was accompanying a woman across the desert. She was well dressed, this Arab girl, with a yellow turban and a silken robe. On her wrist she wore a Swiss gold watch, and, though bare-footed, she was as dignified as the queens of Lenox and Newport. One of my men apparently made an insulting remark to her, and she called him down just as an American girl would have done. According to the custom of the desert, we had to give him a thrashing, which Mahomet did lustily with a big stick. After that the Arab party always showed us white men the deepest respect.—Peter MacQueen in World Outlook.

Chinese Woman Students in Japan.

Chinese girl students in Tokyo are no longer the curiosity that they were in former years, there being scarcely any girls' school in the metropolis but has among its students young ladies from the only republic in the far East. Many of these girls are studying for teachers, while others are only anxious to acquire new knowledge and become worthy citizens of their country. There are 20 Chinese women, mostly married, studying at Mme. Yoshikawa's Medical School for Women, Kawadacho, Ichigaya. These naturally wish to go into practice when they have completed their studies.

Cheated His Widow of a Pleasure.

The will in which a testator directed that his ashes, after cremation, should be buried at the foot of a pear tree in his garden was inspired by a dislike of the needless and largely insincere pomp of mourning. Perhaps the most eccentric choice on record was that of a testator more than a hundred years ago who directed that his coffin should be dropped into the sea a mile below the Needles. It is said that his wife had vowed she would dance on his grave, and he grimly resolved that if she did it should cost her her life.—London Globe.

Deadly Weapon of Submarine.

In most cases the submarine discharges its torpedo when submerged. The water enters the torpedo tube, but this does not interfere with the discharging of the torpedo, nor does this water enter the body of the submarine. This is secured by a set of valves. Most torpedoes have an effective range up to 2,000 yards.

Too Ill to Walk Upright. Operating Advised. Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This woman now raises chickens and does manual labor. Read her story: "For two years I was so sick and weak with troubles from my age that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then sit down at the top to rest. The doctor said I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so, my weakness disappeared, I gained in strength, my garden work, shoveling dirt, did building and cement work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and if these facts are useful to you may publish them for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. M. O. WHY AMERICAN FATHER IS FAILURE

By RIGHT REV. WILLIAM H. MORELAND, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Northern California.

Why is it that men who can capably handle thousands of employees fail in controlling their own children? Why do men who make a prodigious success in industry so often prove lamentable failures as fathers? Why do the sons of estimable and successful men, respected for their achievements and the wealth they have made, so often go wrong? In every stratum of society we find youths growing into manhood without ideals, given to dissipation and uselessness. What is at the root of the trouble?

Is it true, as has been charged, that American fathers are engrossed in business to the exclusion of their higher duties? Is it true that they neglect their families for the making of dollars? Has an engrossing interest in commercial pursuits killed romance and the true quality of love in many men? Are the wives to whom they give jewels and dresses merely the outward symbols of their wealth, the proud peacock decoration a man parades before the world as the attractive advertisement of his own success in money-making? Do children merely come to him as a matter of course? Does he marry without emotion and become a father only with indifference and nonchalance? Why do so many men make such signal success in industry and the employment of men and fail in rearing one child to be a good citizen?

The problem of properly rearing children is one of the gravest and most urgent in American life. Discipline is lacking in the American home. Among rich and poor thousands of parents fail in their most important duty. Everywhere you find a laxity in the training of children. Everywhere the sons of men who have contributed to industry and society are springing into manhood without any coherent purpose in life. They start to sow wild oats not only for a brief period but for all their lives. Drinking, dissipation, the Great White Way allure them as work had allured their fathers.

And who is to blame in such cases? The parents are to blame. They are to blame for lack of discipline, because they are themselves undisciplined. The father is to blame if he pays more attention to getting the most labor he can out of 5,000 employees than to rearing an efficient son. In many families the father is predominantly intent on money-making, while the mother is obsessed by a desire for excitement and pleasure. The trouble often begins long before a couple thinks of ever becoming parents—before they are married.

It is wrong to regard a child as a human toy, no matter how fond the parents may be of it. A child represents life, and life is sacred. A parent's duty to that life does not consist only in giving it food and shelter de luxe. Every child born into the world has a divine purpose; it has its work in the world to fulfill. It has a part to play in the development of civilization.

Mother's Cook Book

Good Things for the Table. The average cook varies her chicken dishes very little. Try cooking chicken with vegetables in the fireless or in a casserole. Put a chicken dressed and trussed into a kettle with three cups of boiling water, one teaspoonful of salt, eight small onions, and eight small potatoes. Bring to the boiling point and cook one-half hour, remove and leave in the cooker until the chicken is tender, three or four hours. Just before serving remove the chicken to a hot platter, arrange the vegetables around it and make a gravy. Melt four tablespoons of butter, add four tablespoons of flour and the liquor from the kettle, season with salt and pepper if needed. The chicken is seasoned before it goes into the cooker. Garnish with water cress and serve.

Baked apples of good flavor served with cornmeal mush for Sunday night supper is both wholesome and appetizing.

Picero Relish. Mix one-half teaspoonful each of mustard, celery salt, onion juice, powdered sugar, and a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, add two egg yolks and while beating add drop by drop one-half cupful of olive oil. As it thickens add one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar. Cook one-half cupful of lettuce shredded, for ten minutes in one cupful of boiling water with one and a half tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a half teaspoonful of salt; cool and drain. Cut one-half cupful of pimento in strips, chop one teaspoonful of chives, mix and put into a mason jar, shake well and keep in a cold place. It will be ready to use in an hour. This relish is very good to use as a sandwich filling.

Sponge Cake. Beat two eggs until light, and add gradually, beating constantly, one and a third teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, and one cupful of sugar; then add a half cupful of scalding milk in which one tablespoonful of butter is melted and one and one-eighth cupfuls of sifted flour with one-half teaspoonful of soda. Bake in a buttered and floured cake tin 45 minutes.

Raised Cake. Add two cupfuls of brown sugar to a cupful of butter or other shortening and then add two eggs well beaten, two cupfuls of light bread sponge, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, one of cloves, and two teaspoonfuls of soda. Mix well and add two cupfuls of raisins, cut in bits and mixed with the flour, add one cupful of flour, turn into two buttered pans, cover and let raise several hours. Bake one hour, frost with uncooked frosting.

Workers Wear Costly Furs. Workwomen in expensive furs are a common sight in the great industrial centers of Great Britain, owing to the high rate of wages now being paid, and the price of mink, American gray fox and skunk furs have advanced appreciably. London furriers are said to be overwhelmed with orders from the industrial centers for 20, 30 and 40 guinea coats, with muffs and stoles in proportion, but owing to the drain of workmen for military purposes these orders are difficult to execute.

Wise and Otherwise. Man proposes—but woman steps in and does the rest. Successful borrowers always get credit for their efforts. The more a man talks the more trouble he piles up for himself. No, Cordelia, gastronomy has nothing to do with the price of gas. A man is forced to play the game of life even if he doesn't hold a trump. It is human nature for one man to ask another how he feels—also not to care. You may tip the soda clerk a wink, but you can't tip a Pullman porter that way. When a girl throws an old bean over her head she reminds that youth must have its fling. The girl who is willing to take in washing to support a family can afford to marry a man who wears a lot of finger rings.

Woman Rural Mail Carrier Has Traveled 93,600 Miles

Braving snow, sleet, drifts, biting winds in the winter and blistering and scorching heat in the summer, Miss Julia M. Shafer of Knoxville, Md., for 12 years has served the United States as rural mail carrier.

She is now covering the same route her father traveled 14 years ago, when the route first was established. Miss Shafer in those days was a substitute for her father; now the father is substituting for her.

In the 12 years that Miss Shafer has carried mail it is estimated that she has traveled 93,600 miles. She makes 25 miles six days a week. With the exception of the regular 15-day annual vacation Miss Shafer has been off duty only 30 days in 12 years.

It is a hard snow or a destructive storm that prevents this woman carrier from making the rounds daily. Ordinarily she uses a horse and buggy. The type of roads, extending through the mountain section of the country, would not permit of the use of a motor car.

When roads are blocked by drifts, as is often the case in the winter, she discards the old covered buggy and ventures forth on horseback. Three years ago she delivered the mails in this manner for several weeks.

She is her own housekeeper. Each night when she returns from her work she plunges into the midst of housework.

EGG FARMING. A good home market is best. All so-called nonsetting breeds are producers of white eggs. The double-yolked egg is no cause for rejoicing; it means an overfat condition. Breeds that do the best winter laying often lay brown eggs. Small eggs are often produced by excessive feeding of middlings. The good layer is a happy, singing, contented hen. The size of the egg increases with the age of the hen. The male has no influence on egg production. The soft-shelled egg is due to either overfat or lack of lime in the ration; sometimes both. A hen's value as a winter egg producer lessens after her second year. The first few eggs of the brown egg layer are rich in color, but as laying continues they become more pale. This is due to a certain pigment from which the coloring comes, and which in its first strength is of good color. Infertile eggs are not spotted for cooking even if subjected to a heat of 103 degrees for a week. Knew Him Too Well. He—Do you know me well enough to marry me? She—Alas! I know you too well.

Romance of the Sea Still Lives Despite the Great Changes of Recent Years.

All those wonderful changes and advances in naval design, construction and equipment have taken place within my period of service, writes Admiral Badger in Youth's Companion. In sea power, in military efficiency, in comforts and conveniences, we have greatly gained, but I think that those of us who started our careers when the great naval advance of the last generation was still to come, who made their early cruises in sailing ships or ships with auxiliary steam power only, look back with tender memory upon the old and less mechanical environment.

The romance of the sea as conveyed by Marryat and others in their stories has not really gone; the conditions only have changed. The sea and its effect upon those who follow it never changes, and there is as great a field in the navy today for the adventurous youngster as ever—perhaps a greater. Certainly he can have as many heart thrills on board a submarine or destroyer or flying craft as he could have had on board a brig or schooner cruising for pirates in the olden days.

The changes in the material of the navy have produced corresponding changes in its organization and personnel. You no longer see the gray-bearded boatswain's mate, quartermaster or quarter gunner about the decks of our ships. They were brave and loyal to the core, and their "yarns" of experiences on all seas and in all weathers, interspersed occasionally with a little good advice to the young officer, tactfully given, while away many an hour of quiet night watch in port.

The old type of sailorman understood his duties as thoroughly and performed them as faithfully as anyone could desire, but machinery has banished him. His place has been taken by the younger, better-educated man, who in a general way is more capable, but who does not as a rule follow the sea for a lifetime unless he was early promotion.

TO LIVE LONG! A recipe given by a famous physician for long life was: "Keep the kidneys in good order! Try to eliminate thru the skin and intestines the poisons that otherwise clog the kidneys. Avoid eating meat as much as possible; avoid too much salt, alcohol, tea. Try a milk and vegetable diet. Drink plenty of water, and exercise so you sweat—the skin helps to eliminate the toxic poisons and uric acid." For those past middle life, for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation, as backache, swelling "water," or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, "rusty" joints, stiffness, get Anurio at the drug store. This is a wonderful eliminator of uric acid and was discovered by Dr. Pierce of Invalide Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. If your druggist does not keep it send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial package and you will find that it is many times more potent than lithia and that it dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar.

Queer Preference. "It is very odd that baldheaded men always want to sit in the front at the theater." "Yes, one would think they'd want to get further away from the flies."

STOP THAT HACKING COUGH. Mansfield (formerly Hungarian) Cough Balsam heals the inflamed and lacerated membranes and quiets the tickling nerves that lie underneath the infected portions. Invaluable for babies. Price 25c and 50c.—Adv.

Exactly. "The majority of epitaphs begin: 'Here lies ...'" "Well, most of them do."

NOTHING STANDS AS HIGH, as a remedy for every womanly ailment, as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's the only medicine for women certain in its effects. "Favorite Prescription" is an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nerve, and a complete cure for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses peculiar to the sex. For young girls just entering womanhood; for women at the critical time; nursing mothers; and every woman who is "run-down," tired or overworked—it is a special, safe, and certain help. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy. How to preserve health and beauty is told in Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is free. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., four times, or stamps, to cover wrapping and mailing.

No Place to Stay. "You know the old saying that truth is found at the bottom of a well." "Yes," replied the cynic, "and I also know that wells are going out of fashion nowadays."

Authors and the Like. "I suppose the time is coming when men will fly to and from their work in airplanes." "Perhaps so," said the timorous person, "but if I live to see that day I'll envy the man who works at home."

The occasional use of Roman Eye Balsam at night upon getting will prevent and relieve tired eyes, watery eyes, and eye strain. Adv.

Baptist Church Notes.

We hope to have our usual services next Sunday, and again very cordially invite you to these meetings. We note with regret the farewell words of our retiring Editor Mr. Grinstead. He has done much for Kerrville, and all our splendid "Hill Country." I have had many letters asking me about our good country and saying: I know nothing of it but have read Mr. Grinstead's Magazine, and have been attracted to Kerrville.

The new Editor, writes as if there were no "Pros" down here who understood the "Bone Dry" trick. We have been at peace and would like to continue, but if war is thrust on us, like America, we will resent.

J. B. Riddle, Pastor.

Poultry raisers or stockmen will do well to have cuts of their poultry or stock to use in printing letter heads or advertising. We can furnish a good clear cut of any breed of chicken, turkey, duck or other fowl or any breed of cattle, horses, sheep goats or hogs. We ask no profit on the cuts but will furnish them to you at exactly cost if given ten days notice. Let us show you samples at this office.

Camp Verde Letter.

(Regular Correspondence)

Mrs. Julia McDonald of Center Point went over to Medina to visit her brother, Walter Rees, until Monday.

Mrs. W. J. Justice reports everyone at Medina about over the grip.

The cold weather has called for a great many cattle being fed this week but very little loss is reported.

The oil wagon came as far as Camp Verde Tuesday and decided the people at Medina would have to burn kerosene in their Fords as long as this weather lasts.

The wind storm Sunday blew down one of the silos on Bonnell ranch, but it was empty.

Children's Play Hour.

If mothers will bring their children, up to seven years of age, to the Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 they will be amused and well taken care of by the Young Womens Auxiliary.

The mothers of the Womens Auxiliary are especially invited to bring their children, and thereby be free to attend the womens meeting.

White School House

Miss Addie Goldman of Kerrville is visiting Miss Honeycutt this week.

Messrs J. M. Webb and Fitzhugh Tuttle were business visitors to Austin last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lee entertained a crowd of young people from Ingram one evening last week.

Mr. G. G. Nolen Jr. and Messrs Smith and Webb were in Kerrville last Saturday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Henderson Saturday, a girl.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather Friday night, the box supper at White school house was a success, and as a result several new pieces of furniture and other fixtures will soon be installed in the school building.

Mrs. R. B. Dowdy and sons Chas. and Almous were in Kerrville last Wednesday.

C. H. Webb, O. W. Nolen and G. G. Nolen and wife went to Center Point Sunday afternoon.

Methodist Church Notes.

The music of the church is inspiring. The solos by Mr. Seoble last Sunday morning was haunting in its pathos and rendering.

The address of Rev. D. E. Draper was fine Sunday night and you should have heard the brief program by the young ladies of the Epworth League.

Next Sunday the pastor will preach at both services. We should be glad to welcome you.

S. W. KIMERER, Pastor.
