Julius Real Appointed to Defense Council.

Ex-Senator Julius Real was among the thirty-two prominent citizens of Texas appointed to the Texas State Council of Defense by Governor Ferguson. Senator Real left yesterday for Dallas where the first meeting of the Council will be held today.

These appointments were made by the governor in accordance with the action taken at the recent meeting of governors and other state representatives held at Washington, before which addresses were made by president Wilson and members of his cabinet. The principal duties of the committee will be to co-operate with the National Defense Committee in the industrial and material preparation for war by putting our nation upon a self-sustaining basis of food and munition supplies.

Monument Unveiled

On Sunday morning a number of Comfort people, including the Comfort Liedertafel, went to Turtle creek to participate in the ceremony of unveiling the beautiful monument which the singing societies of the West Texas Saengerbund have had erected over the grave of the late Prof. Ed. Schmidt. The Comfort party was accompanied to Turtle creek by fifteen singers from New Braunfels who, with the singing societies of Kerrville, Fredericksburg and Comfort took part in the unveiling ceremonies.

The monument is of red granite, in the form of a lofty column, on the front face of which is a beautifully sculptured head and bust of Prof. Schmidt. The monument was made by Nagel Bros. of Fredericksburg.—Comfort News.

ABOUT PLANTING COTTON

Once upon a time there was a soldier. With his comrades he went to drive the Turks out of the Holy Land. In the first engagement he was wounded. He told the others to go on and he stayed behind. The wound was serious and the soldier realized that he had but a short time to live. Still wanting to be useful to the world while his life lasts he determined to plant vines and trees. Slowly and painfully he did his work and slowly the tide of life ebbed away. The hour arrived when he was not able to plant any longer. Then he leaned against a rock to wait for Death. There he looked across the field upon which he had planted his vines and trees and dreamed his last dream. In his dream he saw his vines and trees grown and laden of luscious prunes and apples and pears. And on the horizon he saw his comrades coming. They had beaten the Turk and had driven him out of the Holy City and now they were returning triumphantly. They had endured many hardships and were tired and weary and needed rest and food. They discovered the shady trees and their fruits and there they come to rest, to refresh and to talk about their glorious battles. These are the trees that he had planted—and the dying soldier before he passed away happily smiled once more upon this world.

Mr. Farmer! The boys who will go to the front are the fighting soldiers. You who will stay at home are the planting soldiers. You are asked to plant food and feed for your comrades. Will you plant cotton?

I am told that between Austin and Dallas people have planted an enormous acreage with cotton. I also learned that between San Antonio and Houston the main crop is cotton as usual. Those are really selfish people. Selfishness is unpatriotic at this time and unreligious at all times.

Here are two material arguments against planting cotton:

1. Cotton will be war taxed. Representative Moore of Pennsylvania already has made a proposal to tax every bale of cotton.

2. You have heard about "selective conscription." I will tell you what that is and how it works. Selective conscription means that the men who are highly trained in any in any useful profession shall not go to the front. Mechanics, munition workers, railroad men, leaders in agriculture and the professors of colleges—these men will not be selected for military conscription because they are already doing their share for the country in the most efficient manner. The men who will go to the trenches are those who can be spared without crippling the work behind the battle lines. According to this plan I guess the cotton planters will be the first ones sent to the firing line. Don't plant cotton, Mr. Farmer!

Individual Responsibility More Than Three Million Dollars

The Rain

The splendid rains which fell almost all over Texas Sunday were very light at Kerrville and north of here to the divide, but south at Bandera, Medina and Tarpley the rain was very heavy, registering three inches and over in some places. At Utopia it is still very dry, only about one-half inch falling. At Fredericksburg a good rain is reported.

In all South Texas except in Frio and LaSalle, the rains were heavy and a good season is in the ground. This, following the fine rain down there two weeks ago, will give the farmers the assurance of a fine late crop.

Child's Saving Plan

R. L. Lightfoot of the Child's Saving Plan Company of San Antonio, was here last week and put on a club of the Saving Plan here which is thoroughly advertised in this issue. It seems to be a good proposition in that it teaches the children to save while they are young and helps them at the same time to lay by a neat sum to help them in after years. The Advance has joined the Club and offers 25 cents in savings checks to each person bringing in a new subscriber. The checks are transferable and any one bringing us a new subscriber has the privilege of giving their checks to any child they wish.

Cows Bring $87.40 Per Head

The Henke Bros. of the City Meat Market bought 25 head of speyed cows of the Schreiner Cattle Co. Monday which weighed 945 pounds and for which they paid the Fort Worth market price of $9.25, making the cows cost them $87.40 per head. The Schreiner Cattle Co. shipped 150 head of these cows averaging the same weight to Fort Worth. It pays to raise good stuff and it also pays to feed a few head for market.

AMERICA FIRST

There are places I know where I'd love to go. There are things that I long to do. There are times when my heart, with a longing to start, will ache, but I fight it through. On the distant shores, where the cannon roars, perchance I may long to be. But I'll take my stand in freedom's land—America first for me.

Through the darkest night it was freedom's light that showed me the way to go; I followed near and it led me here. To the fairest land I know. So I leave behind all ties that bind To those beyond the sea, And I'll take my stand in Liberty's land, America first for me.

These are matters already claiming the attention of the federal government. Hand to hand with the mobilization of factories and munitions must go the mobilization of agricultural products, the planting of as many acres of land as possible with grain and vegetables, and the distribution of the crops in the most economical way.

YOUR HEALTH AND THE WAR

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON, Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania. Since we are at war, let us have the lesson of the tremendous bearing on health problems on our armies in camp and our citizens at home well learned, so that we may not have to learn it by bitter and calamitous experience.

Valuable Wares. "Aren't you afraid to display diamonds in your window like this?" "Why should I be? I'm conservative as compared with the grocer. He displays potatoes outside."

Important. "The doctor says it will take a long time to get you on your feet again." "So I believe." "You must trust the doctor."

Great Expectations. "Love is blind, all right." "What prompts that reflection?" "The hopefulness with which parents enter their offspring at baby shows."

Cause for Alarm. "Johnnie," asked his father, excitedly, "why was your mother screaming when I came in just now?" "Oh, nothing much," said Johnnie. "Guess she saw what me and Tommie caught down to the creek."

Quite a Feat. "A congressman has great powers. They used to say that you can't recapture the spoken word."

Too Many Operations

The Right Medicine in Many Cases Does Better than the Surgeon's Knife. Tribute to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Doctor Said Operation or Death—But Medicine Cured.

Des Moines, Iowa.—"My husband says I would have been in my grave today had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from a serious female trouble and the doctors said I could not live one year without an operation. My husband objected to the operation and had me try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon commenced to get better and am now well and able to do my own housework. I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman as a wonderful health restorer."—Mrs. BLANCHETTE JEFFERSON, 783 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Another Operation Avoided.

Richmond, Ind.—"For two years I was so sick and weak from female troubles that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then sit down at the top to rest. The doctor said he thought I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so, my weakness disappeared, I gained in strength, moved into our new home, do all kinds of garden work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. M. O. JOHNSTON, Route 2, Box 190, Richmond, Ind.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letters, and many others like them, amply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Do You Neglect Your Machinery?

The machinery of the body needs to be well oiled, kept in good condition just as the automobile, steam engine or bicycle. Why should the human neglect his own machinery more than that of his horse or his engine? Yet most people do neglect themselves. To clean the system at least once a week is to practice preventive measures. You will escape many ills and clear up the coated tongue, the sallow complexion, the dull headache, the lazy liver, if you will take a pleasant laxative made up of the May-apple, juice of the leaves of aloes, root of jalap, and called Pleasant Pellets. There can be no counterfeit if they have the Dr. Pierce stamp. Proven good by 50 years' use.

MANY PROMINENT MEN COME OUT FOR TANLAC

MAYORS, JUDGES, HIGH OFFICIALS, BANKERS, LAWYERS, DOCTORS AND EDITORS INDORSE IT.

FEEL IT THEIR DUTY TO TALK

They Come Forward and Unhesitatingly Tell Suffering Humanity What Celebrated Medicine Has Done for Them.

It is seldom, indeed, that men of prominence, especially men holding high public office, willingly express their indebtedness publicly to a proprietary medicine. Many prominent men, however, including supreme court judges, mayors of our leading cities, prominent state and county officials, bankers, lawyers, doctors, editors, leading educators, government officials and even ministers of the Gospel have deemed it their duty to come forward and tell the people what Tanlac has done for them.

These well-known men of affairs have recognized in this medicine a new discovery and a scientific triumph in the medical world. It is a well-known fact that these splendid endorsements have been given Tanlac time and time again and they will continue to be given just as often as new tests of its powers are made; and it also explains why numbers of the big drug firms of the country are ordering it exclusively in carload lots.

Doctor Prescribes It.

Dr. J. T. Edwards, of Fayetteville, Ga., one of the best-known members of the medical profession in the state of Georgia, makes a statement that will undoubtedly produce a profound impression throughout the South. "In my thirty years of actual practice as a licensed physician in the state of Georgia," says Dr. Edwards, "I have never seen anything to equal Tanlac as a medicine to produce results. I have no hesitancy in recommending this medicine and I am prescribing it for my patients almost every day."

Professor C. T. Clotfelter, prominent educator and principal of the High School at Ben Hill, Ga., says: "I was in such bad physical condition that I feared I would have to give up my duties. I suffered from rheumatism, sluggish liver, nausea and terrible bilious headaches. I have taken 3 bottles of Tanlac and I feel better than I have felt in years."

Noted Texas Talk.

Hon. Archie R. Anderson, ex-sheriff of Harris County, Texas, is unquestionably not only one of the best-known, but one of the most popular men that ever held office in Texas. He served the people in this important office for 15 consecutive years.

"I had the worst form of indigestion, suffered all the time from gas on my stomach and was continually belching up undigested food," said Mr. Anderson. "I suffered with neuralgic pains of the worst sort and nothing seemed to help me except in a temporary way."

"I began to feel better after taking my first bottle of Tanlac and have just now started on my third. I'm a different man already."

H. W. Hill, president of one of the leading banking institutions of South Pittsburg, Tenn., and one of the most successful bankers and business men in Tennessee, said:

NOTED EX-MAYOR RECOMMENDS IT

FORMER MAYOR FRANK V. EVANS, OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., MAKES STRONG STATEMENT.

ONE of the latest additions to the large and rapidly growing list of prominent men who have publicly indorsed Tanlac for the good it has done them, is the name of Hon. Frank V. Evans, former Mayor of Birmingham. Mr. Evans is one of the best known men in public life in Alabama today, being at one time editor of one of the South's greatest newspapers, the Birmingham Age-Herald. He was also examiner of public accounts of Alabama. In telling of the benefits he had derived from Tanlac, Mr. Evans said:

"For years I suffered with gastritis and indigestion in the worst form. I was habitually constipated and had pains in my shoulders and headache continually. My appetite left me almost entirely and everything I would eat hurt me. Finally I got to having awful attacks of acute indigestion, palpitation of the heart and smothering spells. For a long time I would have one or more of these spells every night and I would wake out of my restless sleep gasping for breath.

"I bought a bottle of Tanlac and to my surprise and gratification I began to feel relief after the first few doses. I kept taking the medicine and now my recovery is simply the talk of Birmingham."

Tanlac has done me more good than anything I ever tried. I now wake up in the mornings feeling fine.

"I'm telling all my friends about Tanlac and am recommending it to them, regardless of their age and trouble."

Dr. G. W. De LaPerriere, of Winder, Ga., is not only one of the best known physicians and druggists in the State of Georgia, but is also a man of extensive property and wide influence, ranking as one of the leading citizens of that entire section. He has been in the drug business in Winder for 25 years.

Recently Dr. De LaPerriere wrote:

"Our people are much enthused over the beneficial effects of Tanlac and I desire to say that it is the most wonderful seller I ever had in this store."

Other prominent men who have indorsed Tanlac are: Professor Elmer Morris, of Dover, Tenn.; Professor W. A. Wood, of the Central Graded Schools, Winder, Ga.; C. C. Cooper, president of the Georgia Home Cotton Oil Co., Lawrenceville, Ga.; Hon. S. S. Shepard, member of the Atlanta city council; Colonel John B. Gaines, of Bowling Green, Ky., editor, political writer and well-known leader in his state; Hon. George Samuel Riley, Chief of Police in Macon, Ga.; Hon. C. G. Lavender, register of Williamson County, Tennessee; Dr. W. H. Brown, 422 1/2 Charlotte Ave., Nashville, Tenn., founder and president of the Tennessee Protestant Home for Girls; John F. Carroll, cotton mill superintendent, of Chattahoochee and Atlanta; and N. M. Yancy, manager of contract department, Atlanta Telephone and Telegraph Co.

There is a Tanlac dealer in your town.—Adv.

BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP

A Valued Household Remedy for Over Half a Century.

In our climate, with its sudden changes of temperature, rain, wind and sunshine often intermingled in a single day, it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, many deaths resulting from this cause. A bottle of Boschee's German Syrup kept in the house, and a few doses taken in time, will possibly prevent a severe illness, a doctor's bill, and perhaps death. For fifty years this has been a very successful remedy for coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles. It induces a good night's sleep with easy expectoration in the morning. For sale by druggists in all parts of the civilized world, 25 and 75 cent bottles.—Adv.

Fads and Fancies of Fashion

Unusual and Pretty Afternoon Frock.

The last word in afternoon frocks makes it plain that drapery is a thing to be much desired when it is artfully managed. Straight lines if you want them, but skirts may be draped to break length of line and to widen the figure at the hips or anywhere between them and the knees. The draped skirt is emphatically becoming to the slender figure, and some stout women maintain that widened lines in the skirt make the waist look slender.

Purple taffeta is the medium employed for the fetching afternoon gown shown in the accompanying picture. It has an underbodice, sleeves and collar of georgette crepe, matching the silk in color and employs silk tassels as a finish on the collar. These tassels might be of beads. The skirt is laid in a panel at the back and front by deep side plaits and the interval between the panels is plaited to the hips. Here a short length of silk is folded and draped as pictured.

The silk bodice is made in the "slip-over" fashion and joined to the skirt with a piping of silk. The waistline is a little higher in the back than in the front and this improves the lines of the figure for either slender or heavy figures. The bodice is decorated with very narrow folds of silk, set on in triangles at the back and front, and the collar merits special attention because it is new and popular and harmonizes so well with the shape and decoration of the bodice. The crepe is cut in long triangular pieces at the back and front and finished at the edges with a narrow hem. A pendant tassel is set on with a crochet button to each point.

The plain sleeves are set into deep, turn-back cuffs of silk, and the bodice has a shallow "V" opening at the front of the neck. This model, pretty and unusual as it is, is simple in design and easy to execute. The master hand in designing is required to achieve such fine results of such easy methods.

Neckwear That Fashion Approves.

There are so many pretty and clever neck fixings, that fashion approves, for putting the finishing touch to all sorts of dresses and coats. The choice lies all the way between the most inconspicuous of ties, to collars and capes that are an important part of the make-up of waists and coats. One wonders sometimes whether the dress is made for the collar or the collar for the dress.

One of the most popular developments of present styles appear in double collars and double capes. Occasionally both upper and under collar are of the same material, but oftener one is of a sheer goods over a collar of heavier fabric, both cut in the same shape. The addition of a thin white collar is relied upon by designers to assure the becomingness of many a dress and is essential to the complete expression of their ideas. But the manufacture of collars and other neckwear has become an important business in itself, and dress designers often make their models with reference to the prevalent styles in neckwear. A variety of collars may embellish one gown and add new interest to it all the time.

A very pretty and very simple organdie collar is shown in the picture. It is cut with narrow fronts, opening in a "U" and cape widened at the back. A frill is used for finishing it. Collars of this kind, made at home, are beautifully finished with narrow tuffing edging made in light blue or pink. Fine crochet edgings are used in the same way, but in spite of the vogue for color, the all white collar knows no equal in favor.

In ties, narrow velvet ribbon, with ends finished with little bead balls, or small tassels of silk or beads, or both, are as effective in looks and ends as any other neck finish. Just at the moment jabots hold first place in the attention of shoppers and they are the most dainty and becoming of all the varied neckwear on display.

Calomel makes you sick, ugh! It's mercury and salivates. It's a dose of the vile, dangerous drug, night and day, that makes you lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury, the cause of the disease which causes necrosis of the tongue. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. CHINESE MILITARY TACTICS

Celestials Planned to Trip Up Foo, Throw Water in Their Faces and Then Cut Off Their Heads.

At the beginning of the Chino-Japanese war, says a contributor to the Washington Star, one of our military attaches saw a Chinese regiment take the field at a review and go through a very curious performance.

The soldiers carried long bamboo poles like fishing rods, and with these they rushed at one another, yelling wildly and making very queer gestures and grimaces.

"What's the game?" asked the American.

"That regiment," a Chinese general answered, "is one of our very oldest. It is now practicing a form of assault that dates from prehistoric times. The idea is to trip the enemy up with the long wand, throw water in his face and, in the midst of his bewilderment at this extraordinary treatment, to cut off his head."—Youth's Companion.

They have a big job on their hands in getting affairs adjusted to the new form of government and in doing so may make some errors, but we can be assured that all will be well when they have time and opportunity to get the proper grasp on the situation. INSIDE FACTS ABOUT THE NEW LEONARD CLEANABLE

It is the inside of a refrigerator that counts. And no refrigerator is better than its lining. If it is lined with zinc or sheet iron, no matter how it is galvanized or painted, it cannot possibly be sanitary.

In the Leonard Cleanable the lining is genuine porcelain—all in one piece. Look at the doors, even the edges are porcelain. No joints, no cracks, no crevices to harbor germs and give out odors. You wash it in soap and water as you do a dish.

Let us show you this splendid refrigerator and explain its many good qualities.

KERRVILLE

Is the county seat of Kerr County, has a population of about 2500, is situated 70 miles northwesterly from San Antonio, and is the terminus of the Kerrville branch of the S. A. & A. P. railroad. It has two daily trains to and from San Antonio, and daily mail route, carrying passengers in autos, to Ingram, Junction, Rock Springs, Harper and other places north and west of Kerrville, and also a daily line to Fredericksburg. From Kerrville to Fredericksburg is 25 miles; to Bandera and Medina City, 25 miles; to Junction 60 miles; Rock Springs 80 miles, Harper 21 miles.

Kerrville has electric lights and a splendid system of water works. The sum of $20,000 has been spent on the streets and $40,000 has been spent for road improvements in this precinct.

The elevation at Kerrville is 1750 feet. The Guadalupe river, which heads 30 miles north of Kerrville, runs through the city. On the east side where the city is located, there are high bluffs on the river, and on the west side is a fertile and beautiful valley, and mountains surround the city on the east and west. The Guadalupe valley is occupied by thrifty farmers and ranchmen, and the mountain regions, among which there is considerable valley, creek and arable land, there are large ranches of cattle, horses, sheep and goats, all of which do well in the Kerrville country. The land generally is well wooded, principally with live oak, Spanish oak and cedar, and the range is good, and water excellent.

Our farmers grow wheat, oats and all other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the largest wool markets in the state, and large quantities of wool, mohair, cotton, oats, cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine. The summers are cool and delightful, and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good. Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

The Kerrville Commercial Club, any of the different Realty Companies or any of our citizens, will be pleased to give prospective residents or visitors further information.

We have already received a shipment of Spring Dress goods, Laces and Embroideries, etc., and you are invited to call and see them.

"There is a Reason"

FARM ANIMALS

CHANGE TYPE OF LIVE STOCK

Except in Improvement of Dairy Herd It Is Tedious Process—Strive for Uniformity.

If one wishes to change the type of his live stock he will find various roads open to him and he may be confused as to which to take. First and most common, a sire of the desired type may be bought for the herd and year after year improvements may go on in this manner. But it is at best a tedious process and, except in the improvement of the dairy herd, it had better be avoided. Life at best is not long enough to observe very marked results by this method.

A much better method in the case of beef cattle, sheep and swine, if many are kept, is to provide a few females of the desired type and also a male for them, the progeny of which shall be kept while the old type are gradually disposed of. It is surprising how quickly the type of the herd will be changed. Then again it is possible to sell off the entire lot of cattle or other live stock on the farm and to procure those of the desired type at one time. This is the ideal method if it is financially practicable.

The one great thing to be desired in a herd is uniform excellence and the easiest and least expensive method of bringing this about is the one to be adopted.

RATION FOR GROWING COLTS

Two Parts Oats and One Part Bran Makes Suitable Feed—Add Little Corn in Winter.

Two parts of oats (preferably crushed) and one part of bran make a very suitable feed for growing colts. In cold weather a little corn may be added not to exceed 25 per cent of the ration. If clover or alfalfa is used as half of the roughage ration, no oil meal will be needed, but if the roughage consists of wild hay or corn stover, about 8 per cent of oil meal should be added to the grain ration. Where oats is high in price and barley is plentiful, a ration of crushed barley 60 per cent, bran 30 per cent, and oil meal 10 per cent should give good results.

There is a little danger of overfeeding a colt if it is properly exercised. A colt should receive at least one pound daily for each 100 pounds of live weight, and if out in the cold a little more may be used to advantage. Growth can be made more rapidly and cheaply during the first year than at any other time, and feed should not be spared at this time.

GOOD FEED BOX FOR HORSES

Device Arranged to Fit on Wagon for Feeding Work Animals—Prevents Waste of Grain.

A teamster who is obliged to feed his horses during the noon hour at the wagon has devised a feed box to take the place of a nose bag, writes Vinton V. Detweiler of Manhattan, Kan., in Popular Mechanics. When the box is hooked over the top edge of the wagon box the height is just right for the horses. The box prevents waste of grain and provides a better way to feed the horses than in the wagon box.

FATTENING RATION IN IOWA

By Reducing Corn and Increasing Silage Rapid Gains Were Made With Less Expense.

Silage has cheapened the fattening ration for steers in Iowa. One lot, receiving each per day 17 pounds shelled corn, 29 pounds silage, 2 pounds oil meal and 1 1/2 pounds alfalfa, made gains at a cost of $9.57 while another lot, receiving 8 1/2 pounds corn, 51 pounds silage, 2 pounds oil meal and 1 1/2 pounds alfalfa, made gains at a cost of $7.67. The first lot averaged 2.94 pounds gain per day while the second lot averaged 3.04 pounds. Reducing the corn and increasing the ensilage increased the gains and cut down the cost of making gains.—North Dakota Agricultural College.

PREVENT WASTE OF MANURES

Careful Attention Should Be Given to Barn Yards and Other Places Occupied by Cattle.

Careful attention should be given to the prevention of waste of manure in the barn lot and other yards occupied by the cattle. It is also important that all wood ashes be saved and applied.

SYMPTOMS OF DISORDERS AMONG HORSES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The condition of a sick horse is shown to a certain extent by the appearance of the mucous membranes. For example, when the animal is anemic as a result of disease or of inappropriate feed the mucous membranes become pale. This change in the mucous membranes can be seen most readily in the lining of the eyelids and in the lining of the nostril. Paleness means weak circulation or poor blood. Increased redness occurs in painful conditions, excitement and following severe exertion. In fevers there is an increased redness in the mucous membrane, and this continues so long as the fever lasts. In some diseases red spots or streaks form in the mucous membrane. This usually indicates an infectious disease of considerable severity, and occurs in blood poisoning.

In fever, the skin becomes dry; the hair has a harsh feel that is quite different from the condition observed in health, and from the fact of its being so dry the individual hairs do not adhere to one another, they stand apart, and the animal has what is known as "a staring coat." When, during a fever, sweating occurs, it is usually an indication that the crisis is passed. Sometimes sweating is an indication of pain. A horse with lockjaw or azoturia sweats profusely. Horses sweat freely when there is a serious impediment to respiration; they sweat under excitement and, of course, from the well-known physiological causes of heat and work. Local sweating, or sweating of a restricted area of the body, denotes some kind of nerve interference. Swellings of the skin usually come from wounds or other external causes. There are, however, a number of condi-

FINE TYPE OF BELGIAN STALLION.

When the liver is deranged and does not operate, or when the red-blood corpuscles are broken down, as in serious cases of influenza, there is a yellowish discoloration of the mucous membrane. The mucous membranes become bluish or blue in any serious disease of the respiratory tract, as pneumonia, and in heart failure.

If there is fever the temperature of the skin is likely to be increased. Sometimes, however, as a result of poor circulation and irregular distribution of the blood, the body may be warmer than normal, while the legs and ears may be cold. When the general surface of the body becomes cold it is evidence of a chill, or that the heart is weak and the animal is on the verge of collapse.

Skin of Healthy Horse. The skin is moist, to a certain degree, at all times in a healthy horse. This moisture is not in the form of a perceptible sweat, but it is enough to keep the skin pliable and to cause the hair to have a soft, healthy feel. In some chronic diseased conditions and tions in which the swelling of the skin is a symptom of a derangement of some other part of the body. For example, there is the well-known "stocking" or swelling of the legs about the fetlock joints, in influenza. There is the soft swelling of the hind legs that occurs so often in draft horses when standing still and that comes from previous inflammation or from insufficient heart power. Dropsy of the skin may occur beneath the chest or abdomen from weak heart or from chronic collection of fluid in the chest or abdomen. In anasarca or purpura hemorrhagica large soft swellings appear on any part of the skin, but usually on the legs, side of the body, and about the head.

Importance of Wounds.

Wounds of the skin may be of importance in the diagnosis of internal disease. Wounds over the bony prominences, as the point of the hip, the point of the shoulder, and the greatest convexity of the ribs, occur when a horse is unable to stand for a long time and, through continually lying upon his side, has shut off the circulation to the portion of the skin that covers parts of the body that carry the greatest weight, and in this way has caused them to mortify. Little, round, soft, doughlike swellings occur on the skin and may be scattered freely over the surface of the body when the horse is afflicted with urticaria. Similar eruptions, but distributed less generally, about the size of a silver dollar, may occur as a symptom of dourine, or colt distemper. Hard lumps, from which radiate welk-like swellings of the lymphatics, occur in glanders, and blisterlike eruptions occur around the mouth and pasterns in horsepox.

RANGE CATTLE NOW GIVEN PREFERENCE

Native or Farm-Raised Steer Not So Nearly of One Type in Color and Breed.

The range steer receives the preference now for the feed lot over what is termed the native steer, the farm-raised steer of the corn-belt states. This is largely due to the more uniform quality of loads of cattle from the range. The native cattle are not so nearly of one type; in fact, they are most generally of a mixed breed, mixed colors, mixed sizes and dissimilarity prevails, showing that they are a picked-up neighborhood product.

There was a time in the history of cattle feeding when the reverse conditions prevailed. The range steer was looked upon with suspicion by the cattle feeder. There was not much in his make-up that pleased the feeder. His long horns, his wild, nervous, scared-half-to-death actions and behavior convinced the feeder buyer that he did not care to risk him. It took a few years to break down this prejudice, but gradually good reports became more common until the sand hills cattle of Nebraska and some other western districts where a good quality of beef-bred bulls were used became famous in the demand for their feeder steers, says Twentieth Century Farmer.

The steady increase in breeding quality of the range cattle generally is a feature that must not be lost sight of when comparing the range cattle with the steer production of the farms over the central west and eastern states. The range is not in the least mixed with dairy blood, while many of the farm herds are more or less mixed with other than strictly beef breeds. Feeders desire uniformity in their cattle to go into the feed yard, because uniformity in type, color and general make-up presents a more pleasing general appearance to the buyer than dissimilarity in any of its phases. Farm-bred steers will become more plentiful as the farms become more interested in the baby beef industry.

SCARCITY OF POTASH PUZZLING TO FARMER

Expert of Massachusetts Agricultural College Recommends Use as Fertilizer.

Parsnips are a long-season root crop, which occupy the ground until the late fall and sometimes until the following spring. H. F. Thompson, professor of market gardening, Massachusetts Agricultural College, has recommended for beets and carrots the use of 1,000 pounds per acre of high-grade fertilizer, analyzing 3 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphoric acid and 10 per cent potash.

Present wartime conditions prevent the use of the amount of potash recommended, and probably the best advice that may be given is to use as much potash as can be obtained now.

DAIRY

WORK AGAINST CALF SCOURS

On Every Farm Measures Should Be Taken to Prevent This Disease—Many Animals Lost.

Thousands of calves are lost each year by what is known as scours, says H. H. Kildee, University of Minnesota. On every farm measures should be taken to guard against this disease, which results from a deranged digestive system.

Calves should have warm, clean, light and well-ventilated pens. Milk should be fed in regular amounts, at regular times, at a temperature of about 80 degrees Fahrenheit, from scrupulously clean pails. The foam which accumulates on the milk while it is being separated should never be fed. The time to feed the grain ration is immediately after the milk is fed, so that the calves will not suck each other's ears and thus take air into the stomach, which causes bloat and produces scours. It is well to have stanchions in one side of the pen so that the calves may be confined for a short time after being fed milk.

Each day during the winter, when the weather is favorable, the calves need to be turned out into a sheltered yard for exercise, which is necessary for their proper growth and health. It is also very important that the calves, from a very early age, be given all the pure, fresh water they care to drink each day. The pens should be disinfected frequently. Quiklime is excellent to sprinkle on the floor each time it is cleaned and a frequent spraying with some standard cow dip solution will prove beneficial.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

A good grain mixture for calves is: Oats, 50 parts; bran, 30 parts; cornmeal, 10 parts; oil meal, 10 parts.

Remember to make the calf pen: Dry and clean; well-lighted, warm in winter; shaded in summer; free from vermin; convenient for feeding.

The dairy calf, when bred right and raised right becomes the best cow.

OLD COWS SOMETIMES EXCEL

Animal Should Be Kept Until She Fails to Give Good Profit for the Feed Consumed.

(By J. B. IRWIN.) It is my experience that a milch cow remains valuable until about twelve years of age. My cattle are purebred Holsteins, and some have produced over 10,000 pounds of milk per year after they were twelve years old. We seldom keep them longer than that. All farmers that have purebred cows know their ages, and I find that the farmers in this vicinity that do not have purebred cows know the ages of their animals approximately. I have kept one or two cows until they showed signs of falling as producers of milk. This was indicated by the decrease in the milk flow, but not in the shortening of the period of lactation. My way of getting them ready for the butcher is to let them go dry, and they will fatten if in good physical condition. I think a cow should be kept as long as she gives a good profit for the feed consumed.

SWELL PRODUCTION OF HERD

Only Practical Way to Make Improvement is by Raising Heifer Calves From Best Cows.

When the milk is sold for market milk, or to a cheese factory, or a milk condenser, the problem is how to raise calves without the feed costing more than the value of the animal raised. At the same time it is a most serious mistake under these circumstances to depend upon buying cows rather than raising calves. The only practical way to improve the production of the herd is by raising heifer calves from the best cows.

FALL FRESHENING IN FAVOR

Heat and Flies of Summer Have Deteriorating Effect Upon Cows and Their Offspring.

He who will spend one of the long evenings thinking in a straight line, letting his mind revert but a few months to recall the effect the heat and flies of last summer had upon his cows that freshened last spring, will make a vow that will profit him greatly in the future.

PEARL of the ARMY

By GUY W. McCONNELL

A Story of "America First," Unmasking America's Secret Foes

Novelized From the Motion Picture Serial of the Same Name Released by Pathé

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Ralph Payne, U. S. A., is given secret plans of defense to deliver to Panama. He attends a ball at the Grandias embassy with Colonel Dare's daughter, Pearl. As a climax to a series of mysterious incidents he is arrested for treason. The ambassador of Grandias is found dead and the plans missing from Payne's coat. Major Brent, Payne's rival, is arrested. A train carrying Pearl, Bertha Bonn and Payne on his way to prison is wrecked and Pearl sees Payne's release body at her feet. She meets Adams, a mysterious stranger, who offers her his services to trace the traitors. She learns that he has the plans. Pearl finds Adams in Washington and learns of his peculiar actions. Adams warns Senator Payne that he is in danger from a ring of spies. While they talk the senator's office is attacked by conspirators. Bertha Bonn asks Pearl to hand Adams a package which proves to be the plans. Adams is made Colonel Dare's orderly. They are ordered South. The Grandias capture Pearl and Adams to let her take his belt which contains the defense plans. They escape and Adams steals the belt from her. Pearl is captured again by the Grandias. She is rescued by Adams. They are disguised as his brother and his companion into the camp of the conspirators and rescue as a chemist. They are recognized in the fight. Adams saves Pearl from harm. Colonel Dare arrives with American troops. The black scout appears. Pearl and Toko follow Adams on his way for appointment at the Chemical Building. All three fall into the hands of the "Alliance." Adams is arrested by counter-espionage who also take Pearl with them. They carry her aboard ship and she is again saved by Adams from the "Foreign Alliance." The ship is blown up. They escape. Adams surprises Brent in Dare's home stealing the plans. They turn up confronted by Toko. Adams finds a note which calls the Silent Army to arms at the Chemical Building. Colonel Dare, with a regiment of soldiers at the spot. They find the building wrecked and riddled. Pearl is carried away by the Silent Flyer. She descends in a parachute and meets Adams who has destroyed the Flyer. During the descent of the defense board meeting at Dare's house. Brent receives the locker from Bertha Bonn. The Silent Menace traps Adams and Toko and gets the war secretary's portfolio. Adams appears in Brent's room and demands the locker.

TWELFTH EPISODE The Foreign Alliance.

If those personages in Washington knowing of the loss of the war secretary's portfolio containing the army mobilization data expected the morning metropolitan newspapers to publish any statement other than the one given to the reporters the night before by Colonel Dare at his residence, they were sadly mistaken.

The newspapers contained the authorized statement and nothing more on the subject.

This proved beyond any peradventure that the newspaper men were not guilty of the theft of the army mobilization data. It left but one other conclusion. The Silent Menace and the Foreign Alliance were responsible for the mysterious disappearance.

On the night of the theft of the army mobilization data, Adams went to see Major Brent in his quarters the moment he recovered from the wound on his head sufficiently to walk. The locker containing the miniature was now in Brent's possession. Adams demanded that Brent give it to him.

In an abandonment of fury Brent threw the locker, from the bed on the edge of which he was sitting, at Adams standing in the middle of the floor, who caught it in his hand.

Adams bade him go back to bed in a gruff though not unkind way. Brent did so, as much for his own comfort as otherwise. Adams coolly seated himself near the footboard, lighted a pipe and began to talk.

"You're t-twisted up all wrong, ain't you, major? You've gotten in mighty deep and nasty, ain't y-you?"

Brent looked him calmly in the eye. "Yes, thanks to you, largely," replied Brent with curling lips.

"You've had it in f-for me from the first, ain't you?"

"From the very first time I laid eyes on you," Brent acknowledged without hesitation.

"Back at the railroad wreck place?" Adams' thoughts seemed to drift.

Brent corroborated with a nod. "The wreck in which Payne was killed," he said grimly.

"You had it in for Captain Payne, too?"

"That's a mistake, Adams," answered Brent, showing a little irritation. "He was my rival, that's all. It wouldn't have been human for me to have cried my eyes out when he was removed out of the way. As a matter of fact, I was plagued sorry that Payne never got a chance, in the light of after events, to try to prove that he was not the traitor we court-martialed him for being. That was once I admit, as do all other army men, that a little delay might have developed a lot of things we would now like to know."

"I g-guess you're right about that," reflected Adams, soberly, puffing his pipe hard. "You might have got a t-tip on that there Silent Menace, anyhow."

Brent laughed at that. "Since I am so frank with you, Adams, why not be so with me? You know that I know who the Silent Menace is. You are the Silent Menace," and his eyes gleamed ironically.

"But t-that's not why you've got it in for m-me," Adams quickly refuted, striking a match, for his pipe refused to draw. He shifted his position. "You

"I'll give t-this marriage license to Bertha Bonn," was the parting shot of the orderly.

Adams did that very thing the next day and started Bertha half out of her wits. "You'll do it, too, s-so you will!" he declared, sternly, when the girl began to expostulate. Then he gave her the advice he had given Brent: "Think it o-over, incidentally"—watching to see the effect of the words to follow—"I gave Major Brent your m-miniature locker to keep."

A dull look came into Bertha's eyes. Her mouth twitched a little. She faltered away, softly crying. Adams tipped out of her presence, for he knew that Bertha Bonn would no longer persecute Major Brent.

He proceeded to the Dare garage and entered the quarters of Toko, the chauffeur. The affair of the previous night had resulted badly for Toko. He was laid up and in bed, suffering from the effects of the blow the guardsman dealt on his head. Adams had escaped with only a slight scalp abrasion and, with Toko out of commission, the more important duties of the chauffeur fell on his shoulders.

"How's old goo-goo eyes this m-morning?" inquired Adams with a solicitous glance at Toko's bandaged head.

"Toko got no eyes at all for you," groaned the injured fellow, sullenly.

"No offense, son, no o-offense," suavely rejoined the orderly. "I came to s-see what I could do around here."

"Go kill that guardsman for Toko," grunted the chauffeur, "if you want to show a loving disposition."

Adams laughed heartily. "The guardsman, eh? Anything t-to oblige you—but m-murder. He'll languish in prison f-for some time to come, so w-we don't have to worry about him any more."

Toko groaned again and pointed to the suit of clothes left by the masquerader of the night before through whose marvelous imitation of Toko and use of his garments the portfolio of the secretary of war containing the army mobilization data was stolen. He also showed Adams the note the man left which thanked Toko for the use of his clothes with the fifty-dollar bank note in payment therefor. "Next time I see Jap who looks like me I kill him, too," growled Toko.

"You g-got killer on the brain this morning," observed Adams, smilingly.

"Kill you, too, maybe, sometime," Adams, snarled Toko; and his voice sounded as though he meant the words.

"Not till after the w-wedding, Toko."

"I got a n-notion that some day soon, Major Brent and Bertha Bonn are g-going to get married—soon," he repeated, mustily, with a speculative eye on the man in bed.

Toko shifted his position and turned his back on Adams. "That's the only sensible thing you say yet t-day," he rejoined in a mumble.

An hour or so later the barracks surgeon, after a thorough examination of Toko's wound, reported to Colonel Dare that his chauffeur was more seriously injured than first appearances showed. Before the day was over Toko was removed to a private room in the government ward in the local hospital. Fever was setting in. It looked like brain fever to the doctors. Pearl saw to it that day and night nurses were especially employed to look after the unfortunate fellow.

Pearl went to the hospital herself to superintend every arrangement for Toko's comfort and privacy, treating him as though he were a member and not a servant of the Dare family. This was not unusual in Pearl, for her sympathy for fellow-creatures was quick and full. Toko showed that he appreciated this attention. His mistress left the hospital feeling rewarded and with parting instructions to the night interne and nurse to provide for every want of the sick man and to keep her advised of his condition.

The nurse, who was a very beautiful Swiss girl, asked Toko to tell her about his mistress, following Pearl's departure.

"You not know who Miss Dare is?" Toko was annoyed to learn that someone in Washington knew nothing about Miss Dare, even when the nurse mentioned that she had not been in the country very long and its celebrities were in consequence new names to her ears. So, as long and as often as she would permit him to talk, he explained these unquestionably compromising surprises in her life so often forewarned by him who always safely extricated her? The Silent Menace! It was Adams! It was Adams!

These were Pearl's momentary and restless thoughts.

To his question she answered: "If you are positive in this matter, why do you not take the government into your confidence?"

He smiled whimsically. "If I should be in error, Miss Dare, and there is always the possibility of error, I would be doing our country far greater harm by exposing my suspicions than by keeping silent. I must make sure first. That is why I ask you what would be the effect if—if the Silent Menace should, turn out to be one whom you regard highly as a—a friend?"

"Yourself, for example?" after a tense silence.

"Isn't that a bit absurd, Miss Dare?" "Adams!" she cried, and the pleading in her voice thrilled him. "Can you prove to me that you are not the Silent Menace? Will you?"

"I can and will."

"Then do it. Relieve my mind and—"

She stopped suddenly, her features flushing.

He straightened in sudden determination. "Will you hazard one more adventure?"

Her eyes sparkled and she nodded.

He stopped the car, reversed, changed their direction and sped homeward.

He left her at the door before proceeding to the garage with the automobile. "Meet me at the freight docks inside an hour. I will show you the Foreign Alliance unmasked and the Silent Menace!"

Pearl ran into the house.

In less than the appointed time, at one of the freight wharves at the foot of a well-known street, Pearl Dare met her father's orderly, who awaited her coming. On seeing her his face brightened. Giving her hand a tiny pressure, which she did not resent, he led the way to a rowboat. She took the stern seat and picked up the steering rope. He grasped the oars. In another moment they skimmed upstream at a fair speed. Once or twice Pearl started to speak, but he restrained her with a motion of his head and whispered that great caution was essential to the result of the enterprise. He had prudently muffled the oarlocks and disguised the nature of their errand by placing an eel fisherman's outfit in a place in the boat where it was easily discernible to any inquisitive eye. There were a number of such fishermen on the river, for this was the favorable hour.

In midstream they came upon a tug towing barges. Adams immediately shunted his boat shoreward and pretended an interest in what he was doing. The tug steamed in an opposite direction. In a little while both tug and barges were tied up at the wharf for the remainder of the night, lights were doused and silence fell upon the scene.

"Do you know w-what's in them barges?" Adams whispered to Pearl, with his old familiar stutter.

"It looks like coal; is it?"

He laughed noiselessly. "The top layer, yes. Them potato bomb m-molds of yours are underneath. That stuff's d-down to some submarine somewhere d-down the bay, I'm sure."

"I wonder where?"

"We're going t-to find that out, mebbe."

The time had come to make good his promise to Pearl. He shoved their boat back into deep water, dipped the oars hard several times without undue noise and began to drift. The tide was in their favor and after a long suspense they drew alongside the silent tug.

It was a tugboat of no ordinary design or dimensions and closely resembled, and might have been taken for, a small tramp steamer. There were decks fore and aft and top with a fairly comfortable rail. Adams and Pearl slipped over the side undetected and down a narrow companionway.

Here, either by blunder or intention on the part of Adams, they became separated.

"Adams!" whispered Pearl, filled with sudden forebodings.

She heard his hushed voice and a slight scraping sound in the dark. Then a light flashed, a door swung open and a masked man shoved and locked her into a stateroom.

She pounded on the door hard and cried out. She thought she heard a responding voice—Adams—from somewhere. A ray of light suddenly gleamed through a crack in the board partition. Quickly peeping, Pearl saw the Foreign Alliance in an adjoining room, lounging in chairs, smoking and chatting in low tones. Their faces were unmasked. Every face was strange to Pearl. The Silent Menace was also unmasked, but his back was toward her. He did and he did not resemble Adams in the close foreground in which she saw him. Her momentary doubt of Adams faded, though it did not entirely disappear.

Pearl now listened, eager to catch every word. The discussion concerned the army mobilization data and the now legible Canal defense plans which the Silent Menace held in his hand.

"America is sadly short of munition, while we get all we need," the Silent Menace laughed as he read from the war secretary's file. "Her rifles are rusty and antique. Her machine-gun factories are tied up under contract with Europe. Her fighting men hesitate about taking the new federal outfit. She is short of horses and knapsacks. Her rifle clubs practice arms with umbrellas. Freight trains loaded with export materials block speedy transpor-

An Impulse Came to Pearl to Shout.

Did you see them—the Foreign Alliance and the Silent Menace?"

She flushed with fright and resentment. "Yes, I saw the Foreign Alliance and—you, Silent Menace, indeed!" Tears filled her eyes. "Adams, oh, how could you so wound and disappoint me? How you've tricked us all!"

He seemed not to comprehend her entirely. "You don't mean, g-girl, that you still doubt me? Great Lucifer!" he groaned. Bends of perspiration stood on his forehead, so intense was his emotion.

"I must doubt you, Adams," she faltered, choking back the sobs. "How can I do else?"

He raised his head and listened intently. Suddenly he drew her to the crack in the wall. He peeped first. Then he stepped back, his face wreathed in smiles, and forced her to look.

"There's that there Silent Menace!" he exclaimed, triumphantly.

Pearl, very greatly confused, saw that he spoke truly. The tug-boat captain and the Silent Menace were standing together in the adjoining room, the former receiving orders to get underway at once.

An impulse came to Pearl to shout. Instead, she smiled curiously and whispered: "Who is he?"

Adams did not reply. He kissed the astonished Pearl.

Early in the morning, but long after the tugboat and the barges left the wharf, two fishermen found the bottle containing Pearl's message and, more interested in obtaining the reward than in the startling nature of her intelligence, delivered it to the officers of a revenue cutter at anchor in the Washington harbor. Now followed a thrilling dash to Bar Stable Inlet, a rough, desolate and reedy spot in the lower Potomac marshes. The Foreign Alliance had just gone aboard a submarine, the counting tower had just been closed and the craft was beginning to immerse when, through a periscope, the submarine lookout espied the cutter. Immersion was hastened; but too late! As the tail of the undersea craft lashed and disappeared under the surface the cutter torpedoed her. She sank to the bottom. Her crew perished. The Foreign Alliance was exterminated.

In the midst of these exciting and never-to-be-forgotten movements the tugboat and its barges steamed peacefully down the river and headed toward the ocean, disappearing in a little while around a bend in the stream where they lay. But neither Pearl nor Adams knew how close they were to means of rescue; or if Adams knew, he did not tell Pearl.

"Adams in eight days!" muttered Colonel to himself. Then he smiled. "Eight more days—alone with Pearl!"
