Mrs. Alma Parrish of San Gabriel, California, left last Sunday morning for home, after several weeks visiting here with relatives and friends.

Workers are moving materials on the lease to start drilling operations on an interesting wildcat west of the Pecos river and a half mile northwest of the Military Institute at Roswell. This test well will be drilled by the R. D. Compton Oil Co., of Artesia and is known as the Emerson No. 1 in the SWSE sec. 20-10-24. The wildcat is on fee land and is expected to cause a great deal of activity should oil in commercial quantities be developed.

Producers in the Hobbs field are being given new prorations tests through the tubing under the direction of Glen Staley, proration umpire for the purpose of establishing a more accurate potential of the field. Less than a third of the wells have been tested up to date according to field information and the task is expected to consume all of the present month. Early tests indicate that the potential of over 1,150,000 barrels daily may be reduced to least twenty per cent. The new potential when the work is finally finished is expected to reduce the field's possible output well under a million barrels. The biggest reduction in production has been found in the older wells. One of the field's first wells is said to be producing fifty-seven per cent less oil than at its peak.

Materials are being moved on the new wildcat in Western Eddy county, this being the New Mexico Oil Syndicate, McClelland No. 1 in the NE sec 22-22-23. The Paul No. 1 of the Avalon Oil Co., NESE sec. 26-20-27, has been shut down for orders at 1,000 feet. Kaiser No. 1 of the W. A. Scott NWSE sec. 7-18-27, is drilling below 500 feet according to an early report.
Efforts to develop a commercial producer in the No. 1 well of the Warman Oil Syndicate in the N<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> sec. 15-14-25, Chaves county apparently failed with the placing of a 40 quart shot at two levels from 1,142 feet to 1,162 feet. The well will be drilled deeper, it was said here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

The picnic given by the losers in a contest at the Presbyterian Sunday school, on Tuesday evening was quite a success as told by the one hundred and thirty-one people present.

Through the bountiful generosity of Aaron Clark, who donated a beef, and the magic wand of the chef, Buck Boyce, plus the delicious sandwiches, salads and cakes, provided by the ladies, all enjoyed the supper and outing very much, and agitated another similar affair.

Miss Rennee Banta will teach summer school in Hagerman beginning the last of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Knoll and Mrs. C. W. Curry accompanied Mrs. Parrish to Wink, Texas last Saturday, returning on Sunday.

This interesting subject was developed from the standpoint of young men and women building their lives with good materials, according to God's plan, not carelessly, but carefully.

A choir made up of a few members from each church, sang three beautiful numbers as part of the program. The invocation was led by Rev. Bryan Hall and Rev. J. A. Hedges read the scripture lesson, and said the benediction.

Further plans concerning the future operation of the hatchery were not received.

Owing to repairs on the church building and absence of pastor the first ten days in June the Daily Vacation Bible School of the Presbyterian church will not be held until the 11th of July. ### SHEEP AND GOATS KILLED IN TERRIFIC HAIL AT HARDIN RANCH

Belated news of the worst hail storm ever seen on the range southwest of Hope was related on Monday by Wink Hardin, sheep rancher. The hail hit in the vicinity of the Hardin ranch thirty-one miles southwest of Hope and killed about 250 of Mr. Hardin's best sheep, fifty or sixty goats and a number of lambs. Mr. Hardin and a Mexican herder was out with the sheep about a mile and a half from the ranch house on the afternoon the hail fell, which was May 10th. Seeking protection when the hail first started to fall, the sheep herded the sheep as near the head of the draw as he could and when the hail began to fall as big as hen eggs, the sheep crowded under the horse's legs, making it impossible to move.

Hail sometimes does strange things and the hail on the 10th was no exception. Looking up toward the head of the draw Mr. Hardin saw a wall of hail six to eight feet high rolling down. The wall swept the horse and sheep along with it. When the storm broke which lasted over an hour, it left Mr. Hardin with a sore body and a few knots on his head. Dead sheep and goats were scattered down the draw four or five miles. Two tanks built one behind the other, down the draw caught the hail or rather the last one caught it as the wall of hail swept over the dam of the first tank. And the hail had not melted when Mr. Hardin was in town Monday. Juniper trees in the path of the storm were simply stripped of leaves and branches.

But for the hail Mr. Hardin would have had a lamb crop of at least 1,200. Now he does not anticipate the crop will be over 700.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Morrison, of El Paso are in Hagerman for a visit with Mrs. Morrison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mann.

HAGERMAN JUNIORS LOSE

The Hagerman Junior baseball team lost a hard fought game to Lake Arthur here Sunday afternoon by a score of 5-4.

Off to a poor start, the boys were unable to ring up a score until the fourth inning. In the seventh, three men crossed the plate for the locals, to tie the score, and in the eighth, the Lake Arthur boys took the lead which they sustained until the end of the game.

The local boys are showing up well, and with a little more practice, will undoubtedly be able to hold their own with any Pecos valley Junior team.

THORSON TEACHING A COURSE IN SCOUTING TO LOCAL LEADERS

The "Elements of Scoutmaster-ship," a training course for leaders of boys is being conducted in Artesia this week at the Central school. The purpose of the course is to acquaint the students with the subject matter of the Boy Scout program and to recruit leaders for the organization. It deals with the methods used in teaching boys. The course is organized as a Boy Scout troop with the following personnel: Troop committee: E. B. Bullock, Dr. H. A. Stroup and C. J. Dexter; Scoutmaster S. W. Gilbert, patrol leaders, Harold Dye, W. C. Thompson and R. G. Knoderer. The following men have enrolled: Austin Stuart, Martin Yates, Ed Watson, Paul Stroup, Walter Martin, Gayle Woodside, Rev. McCrory, W. H. Colby, Howard Williams, A. P. Mahone, Pete Lovington, Walter Kerr, J. W. Collins, and two men from Hagerman, Rev. Harold Dye and C. G. Mason, also two men from Lake Arthur: Z. Pate and Howard Beasley. An outdoor session will be held probably Friday night. The men will take and cook their own supper followed by a program around the campfire. Any man 18 years or older, who is interested in boys is invited to attend.

The meetings begin promptly at 7:30 and close promptly at 9:30 o'clock. P. V. Thorson area scout executive is acting as senior patrol leader of the course.
H. C. Morehead, camp director gave a lecture at Wednesday evening's session on "Juvenile Delinquency."

EDDY COUNTY COURT DECISION REVERSED

SANTA FE—The New Mexico state supreme court Thursday reversed the judgment of Judge C. G. Richardson, Eddy county, in the case of Lulu Cantrell, administratrix of the estate of the late Alexander Webb, appellant, versus C. T. Buck, Noah Buck, T. E. Caffall, Scott Meyer and Helen Meyer, appellees.

The original suit involved an injunction to enjoin maintenance of a dam and irrigation ditches on the property of the appellants and to recover damages. The lower court sustained a motion to dissolve the injunction and dismissed the case.
Mrs. Cantrell appealed.

TWO ARRAIGNED IN SHOOTING AFFRAY

W. H. Tarrant and I. E. Walker who shot Deputy Sheriff Jim Williamson of Hagerman north of Artesia, and then stole his car to get away in, were arraigned before Judge Frank Richards of Carlsbad on May 11th and pleaded not guilty to everything included in the bill. Judge Richards put them under bonds of $2,000 each, and they were remanded to jail to await the process of the district court. So far they have made no attempt to raise bond.

Both men admit the shooting of Williamson, who has very nearly recovered, but insist it was an accident.

HEALTH COLUMN

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Earp, Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health. CURABILITY OF CANCER Notwithstanding much opinion to the contrary, cancer is to a considerable extent at present a curable disease. The cure of cancer in general depends either upon its removal from the body or its destruction in the body. Surgery accomplishes the former; irradiation by x-rays and radium produces the latter. The surgical treatment of cancer has established a brilliant record of achievement. It has yielded innumerable cures and has saved many lives. When a cancer is within easy reach and is quite localized, its direct removal by surgery is a very effective method of obtaining a cure. When a cancer is deep-seated, or is widely spread throughout the body, its removal is not a simple procedure and the effectiveness of surgery is accordingly limited. The employment of radium and x-rays in the treatment of cancer marks a new era in the practice of medicine. Here for the first time an invisible agent, operating at a distance has been used to accomplish the actual destruction of abnormal growths in the body. The successful results of radiation treatment for cancer depends upon the ability of the rays to destroy cancer cells without injuring the surrounding tissues of the body. Many cancers, of both the superficial and internal varieties, are cured by the application of radium and x-rays. The resistance of certain cancers to the destructive influence of radiation limits to some extent, however, the effectiveness of this agency. In some cases the combined use of surgery and radium or x-rays, or the employment of all three, is necessary to obtain a cure. In every case of cancer, the early application of correct treatment is absolutely essential for a cure. Time is the ruling factor; and generally renders the decision on the outcome of the disease. This is the ninth of a series of ten articles on cancer prepared for the New Mexico Bureau of Public Health by the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

POISONOUS PLANTS CAUSE MANY LOSSES At this season of the year, the extension service receives a great many inquiries regarding losses of animals caused by poisonous plants, says W. L. Black of the New Mexico State College. Most of these losses can be prevented if a few simple rules are followed. Most poisonous plants are unpalatable and are only eaten when animals are forced to do so to prevent starvation. Losses, therefore, usually occur only on overstocked ranges or where animals have been driven until extremely hungry. If given an opportunity, an animal will select its diet very carefully, avoiding those plants which are injurious. Most ranchmen stop feeding cottonseed cake too early in the spring. This is false economy since results at the New Mexico experiment station show that it is profitable to feed animals a reasonable amount of cottonseed cake from the time of the first killing frost in the fall until the grass has attained considerable growth in the spring. The experiment station's work was on a strictly commercial basis, simply taking the weights of the animals into consideration and without regard for lessened losses due to animals not eating injurious plants. After an animal becomes poisoned to the extent that symptoms appear, in most cases it is useless to try to cure it because no symptoms are seen until the poison enters the blood stream and it is too late then for medicine to remedy the situation. Where considerable losses are being sustained due to poisonous

TROUT FISHING STARTS FRIDAY One of the biggest armies of fishermen, perhaps the biggest, that has ever mobilized in New Mexico will begin to descend upon the trout streams Friday says a statement from Santa Fe. This year the season opens May 20, 10 days ahead of the opening date of past year. The change was made by the state game commission because the American Legion protested against having Memorial day, May 30, for the opening of the trout season. The season will be 10 days longer, lasting until October 31.

POISONOUS PLANTS CAUSE MANY LOSSES At this season of the year, the extension service receives a great many inquiries regarding losses of animals caused by poisonous plants, says W. L. Black of the New Mexico State College. Most of these losses can be prevented if a few simple rules are followed. Most poisonous plants are unpalatable and are only eaten when animals are forced to do so to prevent starvation. Losses, therefore, usually occur only on overstocked ranges or where animals have been driven until extremely hungry. If given an opportunity, an animal will select its diet very carefully, avoiding those plants which are injurious. Most ranchmen stop feeding cottonseed cake too early in the spring. This is false economy since results at the New Mexico experiment station show that it is profitable to feed animals a reasonable amount of cottonseed cake from the time of the first killing frost in the fall until the grass has attained considerable growth in the spring. The experiment station's work was on a strictly commercial basis, simply taking the weights of the animals into consideration and without regard for lessened losses due to animals not eating injurious plants. After an animal becomes poisoned to the extent that symptoms appear, in most cases it is useless to try to cure it because no symptoms are seen until the poison enters the blood stream and it is too late then for medicine to remedy the situation. Where considerable losses are being sustained due to poisonous

TROUT FISHING STARTS FRIDAY One of the biggest armies of fishermen, perhaps the biggest, that has ever mobilized in New Mexico will begin to descend upon the trout streams Friday says a statement from Santa Fe. This year the season opens May 20, 10 days ahead of the opening date of past year. The change was made by the state game commission because the American Legion protested against having Memorial day, May 30, for the opening of the trout season. The season will be 10 days longer, lasting until October 31.

plants, the best plan, if possible, is to move the animals to another range that is not infested with these plants or one that has a larger proportion of beneficial forage plants.

Ancient Ethiopian and Egypt Under One Ruler

The country known today as ancient Ethiopia was known to the Greeks and Romans of that time as Aethiopia and to the Hebrews as Cush. It lay to the south of Egypt, and in its most extended sense it embraced modern Nubia, Sennar, Kordofan and northern Abyssinia. That is about the region now known as the Sudan and northern Abyssinia. The northern boundary of Ethiopia was the southern boundary of Egypt, and it is indicated in Ezekiel 20:10, where Syene is mentioned as marking the border. The Hebrews do not appear to have had much practical acquaintance with Ethiopia itself, though the Ethiopians were well known to them through their intercourse with Egypt. The inhabitants of Ethiopia were a Hamitic, or as one might say, an African or negro race, and were divided into various tribes, of which the most powerful were the Sabaeans. The history of Ethiopia is closely interwoven with that of Egypt. The two countries were not infrequently united under the rule of the same sovereign. Shortly before the birth of our Lord a native dynasty of females, holding the official title of Candace, held sway in Ethiopia, and even resisted the advance of the Roman arms. One of these queens is noticed in Acts 8:27. The latter part of this chapter, beginning at verse 26, tells the beautiful story of Philip coming upon the man of Ethiopia journeying "unto Gaza, which is desert." The traveler was "of great authority under Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for worship."

British Royalty Seen Without Its Trappings

One day he (William IV) went to inspect the Tower of London, and a contemporary writer gives this picture of the royal party, wrote Clare Jerrold in "The Early Court of Queen Victoria." "The king is a little, old, red-nosed, weather-beaten, jolly looking person, with an ungraceful air and carriage; and as to the duke of Sussex, what with his stiff collar and cocked hat bobbing over his face, nothing could be seen of him but his nose. He seemed quite overcome with heat, and went along puffing and panting with the great, fat duchess of Cumberland leaning on his arm. The queen is even worse than I thought—a little insignificant person as ever I saw. She was dressed, as perhaps you see by the papers, 'exceeding plain,' in bombazine with a little shabby muslin collar, dyed Leghorn hat, and leather shoes."

Found the Natural Way Out

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

MARY MARDEN nibbled her pencil as persistently as the young lambs nibble the first succulent grass on the hillside in spring. Her story, the one she must get out before the end of the week, have the wrath of the big editor-down up her fair head, was going along smoothly and excitedly and Mary had great hopes for it.

As a matter of fact, she hoped it would prove one of her best. She had signed a contract to give all her stories to one very large publisher, and she wanted to produce only her best, since they appreciated her stories to such an extent as to sign her away from all other publishers.

So Mary nibbled away most of her pencil in her effort. The telephone rang at her side. "Drat!" said Mary, started out of her splendid trend of thought. "Hello!"

"I say, Miss Marden, did you or did you not sign a contract with me to sell stories only to me?" The voice of the great editor was full of wrath.

"Unless we are both out of our senses, I most certainly did," said Mary.

"Then what do you mean by giving one of the best you've ever done to Ladies' Review?"

"But I didn't!" expostulated Mary. "I never sold a story to that magazine in all my life."

"Well, there's one in today's issue signed Mary Marden. Better come along and have a chat about it. It's called 'The Rogue' and—"

"I didn't write it—it's not my story," almost shouted Mary, "and we'll just see who's using my name."

After an interview with the publisher Mary went forthwith to the editorial office of the Ladies' Review and of the editor-in-chief demanded knowledge of the person who was writing under her own name.

"We have not met the young lady personally," said the editor, "but as a matter of fact, Miss Marden one cannot put a copyright on a name—perhaps the young lady also bears that title lawfully. Perhaps the best thing to do would be to write a letter, which we will be glad to forward, and arrange a meeting. Perhaps you can come to some amicable arrangement."

"You're quite right," she said. "I will just pen a note now, if you don't mind. My publisher is very wroth—he quite raked me over the coals when he thought I had sold you a story."

"And I don't blame him—I wish we'd been the lucky firm—you've got a mighty fine pen, Miss Marden."

Pretty much nibbled, thought Mary, and wrote her note to that other Mary asking for an interview.

She had a letter back, in which the writer suggested a meeting at a small Bohemian cafe called the Blue Rat. "I will be seated at the table in the left-hand corner as you enter and will be wearing a small nosegay of a few violets and a single red rose. If you wear the same emblem we will have no difficulty in recognizing our namesakes."

Mary laughed when she read the letter. No doubt that other Mary was also a good writer—the letter suggested to her that she and the other Mary would perhaps find much in common.

Two evenings later Mary Marden sallied forth, daintily frocked in mauve and wearing the few violets and a single red rose that was to introduce her to the other Mary Marden.

Upon reaching the door of the Blue Rat she hesitated for the fraction of a second on the threshold. Some funny little sensation made her hear beat rapidly—after all, there was a real bit of adventure in what she was doing. She half-way wished she had brought some one else along.

She smiled to herself, however, and went boldly in. Seated at that table in the left-hand corner was a young man with a few violets and a single red rose in his lapel. Mary blushed hotly, but it was too late to turn back without making herself conspicuous. Besides, the very good-looking young man had arisen obviously to greet her and she took her seat opposite him as if they were very old friends.

"I'm Mary Marden," said the young man, and laughed. "I'm frightfully sorry you thought I was a lady, but I can't help that now. I've been writing under the name of Mary Marden for a good many years, out on the Far West—so what are we going to do about it?" He laughed again and Mary smiled.

"I was just—surprised," she finally said softly. "My publisher was so cross with me when he saw what he supposed was one of my stories in a rival publication."

"I'll punch his head—for being cross with you," said the other "Mary" in a very threatening masculine voice, "but first, before we discuss what we'll do about our names in duplicate, let's order dinner—I'm hungry, aren't you?"

And even before the dinner was half finished they both came to the conclusion that collaboration in the literary world would be a very simple and natural course to follow and that the two Marys would merge into one being—also quite naturally.

HAGERMAN TO PLAY DEXTER BASEBALL TEAM HERE SUNDAY

The first regular baseball game of the 1932 season will be played here Sunday when a strong Dexter team comes down for a nine inning argument with the Hagerman town team. The game will start promptly at 2:30, as both managers have pledged themselves to have their teams ready for play at that time.

Under the management of D. Herbst, one of Dexter's leading citizens, the invading nine has been well organized and molded into the best team that the neighboring city has boasted in many years. In a practice contest last week they lowered the Hagerman colors by the narrow margin of a 2-0 score in a thrilling exhibition of well played baseball. Even at that, both Dexter runs were facilitated by errors since a bit more care on the Hagerman defense would have resulted in a scoreless tie.

For Dexter, Shorty Hood, who has played with Roswell for several years is the keystone man in their fielding. The flashy little fellow robbed Hagerman of four runs in the preliminary game and one of his dazzling catches came in the last inning with the bases loaded. His heavy bat is respected by opposing pitchers, although big Phil Monical is considered the strongest of their several sluggers. With Bob Reed taking excellent care of second base and a fine old catcher behind the log, the visitors are sure to account themselves creditably in the coming fracas.

For the first time in two years, Hagerman should be able to present a mainstay of the veterans from the great 1930 team. Six of the boys are back in the fold ready to hit the comeback trail that once saw them win 18 games out of 25. With three new places to be filled, Lyle Moots, Charles Hampton and Wayne Graham seem to have the inside track in a hot race for the regular berths.

Hagerman expects to play fast ball this summer. The leading teams of the valley will be carded for appearances here and scheduled several weeks ahead. Only clubs that are definitely organized and accustomed to playing in uniform and on time, will be considered by the local management.

Ford is back from Arkansas in good early season form; Johnnie Bowen is ready after a dandy performance at Dexter last week; Alma Nail rates, as usual, a deadly wallop at the plate; Harrison Hampton has become one of the best catchers in the valley with a powerful throwing arm; John Langenegger is prepared to catch anything in center field that even looks like a baseball and Wilfred McCormick will probably be on hand to pitch for Hagerman.

With a fast, well worked diamond and two eager, aggressive teams waiting for Ernest Langenegger's "play ball," there should be a long awaited treat for local fans who have been hungering to see a return of our national pastime in Hagerman. The game starts promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Loman Wiley, secretary-treasurer, Miss Borschell gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Care of the Home."

GRAHAM AND HARWELL ARE HONORED FRIDAY

Friday evening, May 13th, Mr. and Mrs. D. Herbst and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Durand entertained at the Herbst home, honoring Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Graham and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harwell. Beautiful roses from Mrs. A. Durand's flower garden were the effective house decorations. Following several games of bridge a delicious plate of chicken salad, hot rolls, olives, potato chips, cake and coffee was served. A beautiful corsage of pink roses were presented to Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Harwell.

POTASH INDUSTRY IS REVIEWED IN TALK MADE BY W. B. LANG

W. B. Lang of Roswell with the U. S. Geological Survey made some interesting comments relative to the potash development in southeastern New Mexico in a recent talk at Carlsbad. With one exception New Mexico deposits constitute the only source of this valuable mineral that can be profitably developed. More than 100,000 samples and more than forty miles of core has been inspected as the twenty-three test holes drilled by the government have been finished. Mr. Lang defined the greatest potash deposits running in a line parallel to the Pecos valley and extending into Western Texas.

One of the most important statements made by Mr. Lang was when he stated there was a possibility that potash might give way in a few years to become a by-product of magnesium, which is found in large quantities in the potash deposits and is used extensively in the manufacture of light aluminum metal.
