HOBBLED HORSE DOES DAMAGE TO AUTO BOYS ESCAPE INJURY

Six Cottonwood boys had a narrow escape from serious injury Sunday night as they were return-ing from Artesia when they struck a hobbled horse near the stock yards, north of town. Dallas Golden driving a topless Model A Ford, attempted to pass a car. Blinding lights prevented his see-ing a hobbled horse on the side of the road. Just as the car approached the horse, the animal reared up, striking the front of the car and bending in the radiator and one fender and breaking the windshield. The front feet of the horse passed over the boys in the front seat and on the rumble seat. How they escaped serious injury or possible death will probably remain a mystery.
Dallas Golden, the driver, was cut on the hand and Roy Ingram was cut on the head. Except for slight bruises the other occupants of the car, Idas, Ulas and N. L. Golden and James Felton were not hurt. The horse was none the worse for his experience, so the boys

This is Kenneth Watson, a guard in the prison at Jackson, Mich., who. with Archie C. French, another guard, confessed to one of the most fantastic stories of intrigue ever to come out of an American prison. Watson and French have signed confessions that they plotted with Edward Hall and James Cross, two long-term convicts, to dynamite the prison in order that the two pris oners might escape. The guards said that the prisoners would then rob a "bank in a small Missouri town" and turn the proceeds over to the two guards as reward for their action. Hall and Cross also admitted the plot.

STUDENT PROBLEMS: PUTTING THE MIND

(By E. A. White)

Pope, one of the English poets "The proper study of mankind is man." No pupil can do his best who does not have some conception of his own nature and possibilities. He must know for certain that the mind must be controlled if it is to do useful work. The world's load is pulled by controlled forces. Automobiles are most desirable which are most easily controlled. The train that goes pulsating by does so because its engine is equipped with responding controls. Wrecks along the road-side tell the sad stories of lost controls, of misdirected energy. Human wrecks occur from similar causes. They do not happen, they occur, laying aside the negligible element of accident, because of a failure to observe natural laws of mental

The above ends can never be obtained with any degree of success except through conscious control of the child's energies by the home and the school. The child should know definitely why he is going to school. He should have a definite knowledge of his part in the program, and what he can do to aid in the achievement of these definite ends. The disturbed economic conditions make it necessary for us to face the facts. Lets get together and work the problem. What do you think of the plan?

PUTTING THE MIND

(By E. A. White)

Pope, one of the English poets said: "The proper study of man-kind is man." No pupil can do No pupil can do his best who does not have some conception of his own nature and possibilities. He must know for certain that the mind must be controlled if it is to do useful work. The world's load is pulled by controlled forces. Automobiles are most desirable which are most easily controlled. The train that goes pulsating by does so because its engine is equipped with responding controls. Wrecks along the road-side tell the sad stories of lost controls, of misdirected energy. Human wrecks occur from similar causes. They do not happen, they occur, laying aside the negligible element of accident, because of a failure to observe natural laws of mental

The old philosopher was right when he said: "You shall know the truth, and it will make you Known truths are not very valuable unless they are put to practical use. The effective use of gun powder is well-known, but badly because of the lack of to. sympathetic control in the home and in the school. The aim of both school and home is identical. to see the child master the subto make a good citizen, to make to have some idea of the responsibility of making a living, and how to make a home after learning how to support one. The above ends can never be obtained with any degree of success except through conscious control of the child's energies by the home and the school. The child should know definitely why he is going to school. He should have a definite knowledge of his part in the program, and what he can do to aid in the achievement of these definite ends. The disturbed economic conditions make it necessary for us to face the facts. Lets get together and work the problem. What do you think of the plan?

Most of our readers are familiar with the story "Why I Like the Depression," by a Panhandle resident. There is an editor, Guy Comfort of the Perry, New York Herald, who says "I Don't Like the Depression," and writes as follows in the Publisher's Auxil-

I don't like the lost homes, the long lists of unpaid taxes published in the newspapers; the cutting and slashing of salaries and the doleful look on scores of

I don't like five cent beans because I know the man who grew em will not get over a dollar a hundred for 'em. He can't live on prices like that and neither can he buy the stuff I have to sell, or from the store next door. I don't like the depression because it is unnatural. Everyone is on edge, friendships are sacrificed and we pinch and squeeze and get nowhere. No one dares blossom forth with a new necktie, a cotton gown or a new auto because folks think we should economize. Because we buy no new autos we know that one man is knocked out of work for nine months and he must become a public charge.

I don't like the depression, because no one is happy. Even my wife, who smiles in prosperous times, cannot get a kick out of dull ones. She gets less new clothes than she should and so the ready-to-wear and the dry goods stores are unhappy, too. Moreover the merchantman cuts down his advertising and both he and I have less money to spend.

I don't like the depression because the whole world seems out of tune, and songs without harmony never please the ear. They are neither jazzy, tuneful nor classical. They croon along and then some wisecracker screeches "prosperity is just around the

I don't like the depression because I know greed, avarice and the cardinal sins of mankind brought it on-not overproduction, plenty and righteousness. Want, distress and sorrow always follow in the wake of war and Sherman and millions of others know that "war is hell." Hence a depression is a child of Satan.

I don't like the depression because values change. Money may buy more if you can get the money. It has more purchasing power but strangely enough it will not buy satisfaction nor happiness. Unless money can buy hence I would rather pay 10 cents a can for beans and 10 cents a quart for milk and know that am not living on some farmer's losses, than to eat the farmers' products at half the price.

I don't like the depression benothing tastes so good when it is cheap. Ham at 45 cents a pound has a savor that 121/2 cent ham can never have, even though it comes from the same hog and the same packer. Bread at 5 cents does not seem to have the same vitamin content that it does at seven and ten cents, neither does it toast as well. That's too much imagination, perhaps, but that's another reason why I do not like a depression. Imagination is the stuff dreams are made of and dreams become nightmares when they are depressive.

I don't like the depression because there's nothing funny about it. You can't joke about it and you can't laugh it off. It's like a thunder storm-it sours the milk of human kindness and curd-

I don't like the depression because it makes leaky roofs, the paster comes off the ceilings and the wall paper falls to the floor. It begets carlessness and laziness waxes lazier on it. It makes everything look doleful and anything that has a dole in it, makes folks dependent. When they become dependent fewer folks become independent and no one profits. In fact everybody loses. I don't like the depression because it upsets the civic stomach. You give 'em facts about tax relief and it nauseates. You mention the H. C. L. of a few years ago and no one knows what it means. You go to the post office for your letter expecting a dividend check in it and you get a slip saying "our cash reserved are being conserved for the good of our stockholders." And then you wonder what a stockholder is. You get red ink where you expect black and the banks tell you it's time to pay something on your note. You borrow in prosperity and try to pay in adversity—and not sweet are the ways of adver-

it, the sooner we will drive it from this land. Hate brings on war but a war on depression requires no muskets, no cannons, no battleships. It's time we called back the white flag of truce! It's time to bare our arms, screw up our courage and polish up our spiritual armor! When we do that the depression will be behind us, not ahead.

No, I don't like the depression but I do love prosperity because it tells me, "all's well with the Socorro county has been one of the chief metal producing counties of New Mexico, and the value of this production is given as about $29,500,000. Zinc is the most important metal of the area, but lead, silver and copper have been produced in important quantities. The ores have also yielded a small quantity of gold. More than 90 per cent of the production of the county has come from the Magdalena district. Other districts which have good production records are the Socorro Peak district and the Rosedale district.

Mr. Lasky's investigation took him to nearly all of the known metal occurrences in the county and these are described in the satisfaction, it has little value, bulletin. Wherever practicable the possibilities of the districts and properties are cons The report on the ore deposits of Socorro county is of special interest because it includes a discussion of the San Jose district in the San Mateo Mountains where important discoveries of gold-silver ore were made on the Pankey vein in the summer of 1931. The veins of this district are similar in some respects to the veins in the Mogollon district in Catron county, which have yielded gold and silver ores with a total value of approximately $19,500,000. The ore deposits of the district have been little eroded since their formation, and as a result some of the veins which are only weakly mineralized at the surface may contain valuable ore bodies at depth. The possibilities of the district are presented in considerable detail by Mr. Lasky.

Very little development work has beeen done in the San Jose district. The most extensive workings are at the Rhyolite mine and es the optimism of men.

TO THE OLDER PEOPLE

older of this day seem to think that the younger generation is going to the dogs. We, the younger people of Hagerman, wish to uphold the standards of ourselves and our friends.

I have often heard this statement: "I just don't know what is going to become of this younger It seems to me that you give too much of your time making rash statements about us and that you are not giving enough time to setting examples for us to follow.

Not long ago I heard a minister say most of the young people went to church just to have some place to go. Even if that is true, and it is to some extent, it is far better to be in church where there is a chance that we may learn something that might help us and give us something that is uplifting, than to be off somewhere else into some kind of mischief that might get us in

A certain authority said that reared in Christian homes. These men were started to gambling by having social bridge parties in the Our guess is that they might have gotten away from home and became without funds with which to carry on. So as a result they turned to the only thing they knew-gambling.

Anyway we doubt very much that these homes were Christian homes in the first place. Some of you say, "Oh, its alright as pose that in your home you are rearing a young man of about eighteen. He may not think anyhim get away from home and get without money. Then see what he thinks of first.

Some of you criticize us for being wild about going to shows. It is a fact that a lot of shows are not fit for anyone to see, but as a rule there is a good element in nearly every photoplay. Anyway, if you older folks will provide a home of more interest for the young people they will stay at home and carry on their social activities there.

A lot of midle aged and older men have a habit of talking about eral, especially the modern girl. They should set examples for their sons so that they would not and talk of "Hoover Prosperity,"

ACCOMPLISHMENT

Prof. White, the Board of Education and Miss Clemons make a real team for accomplishing things. Through the combined efforts of these workers the high school has obtained a new Underwood Typewriter. Up to this date many students have desired to take typing, but, due to the lack of typewriters, it has been impossible to accomodate everyone.

This high school is making wonderful progress in its commercial line. Everyone, realizing the depression, is taking advantage of the schooling that they can get here at home in this line. The training in this line is practically the same as that offered in business colleges.

CAT CLAWS

Benjamin Franklin, one of the foremost men of his day, was seventy years old at the time of the Declaration of Independence. A magazine of today, The Saturday Evening Post was founded by him in 1729, under the name. of the Pennsylvania Gazette. One of his most famous publications was Poor Richard's Almanac. This contained many proverbs and old sayings. One of his proverbs "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is especially true. Several of the high school students realize that an ounce of real study during the six weeks is worth a pound of reviewing before an examination. Another one is "Keep your eyes open before marriage and half shut after-wards." We should wonder what some of our men teachers would have to say to that one.

We now have proof for the old adage: "Women are changeable." We produce Thelma Robinson as proof. Everyone has noticed how her affection for a certain senior boy has languished in the last few days. Nt only that, but we are inclined to believe that some of them are curious. Curiosity once killed a cat, although we are not sure whether it was a bobcat or

During a talk in a recent chapel period, Mr. Anderson, of Dexter, told a story about a man who was hauling potatoes, and had been losing them, one at a time, alnog the road. At length, he came to a bad mudhole, and was unable to get out. Upon turning to unload his potatoes, he discovered that he had none, and was "stuck, with nothing to unload." No doubt, some of the students found themselves in the same predicament during the six week's examinations.

WE WONDER

What makes some of the girls so sleepy in the study hall after nights like last Monday night. No wonder.

What Prof. White said to the kids who went to the fair. Why Mr. Curd and Mr. Welbourn waited outside while a declamation was being made on "The Newly Weds" at a certain meeting last week.

Where Ruby and Marteal were Sunday night.

How Prof. likes being a Jew. How the boys glee club would ound in a barrel.

Why Elizabeth and Martha have sore limbs, and why they objected to one of last week's jokes.
