ATES A FIELD TRIAL

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 1.—The world cotton crop this year is estimated at 23,400,000 bales by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. This compares with 27,500,000 bales in 1931-32, and a 1927-1931 five-year average crop of 24,140,000 bales. The world crop this year is reported as being the smallest since 1923-24.

World Cotton Crop 23,400,000 Bales

Decreased production in the U. S. is said to account for most of the reduction from last year, and the crop in Egypt was reduced one-third. Minor decreases are reported for Brazil and Mexico, but increased production is in prospect in India, China and Russia, says the bureau.

Each entered a plea of not guilty and were unable to make bond at a preliminary hearing before Dan Savage, United States commissioner.

4,551,774 Acres of Land Filed on 1931

Citizens of the United States filed upon 4,551,774 acres of public land during the past fiscal year, according to the annual report of the commissioner of the general land office released yesterday. The new entries included more than 50,000 acres in excess of the annual average for the ten-year period expiring on the date. The area passed to patent was 1,897,978 acres. Filings under the homestead laws accounted for about 90 per cent of the acreage in original entries and more than 75 per cent of that patented.

Parents should supervise the writing of these letters and see that they are made plain enough to read easily.

RESOURCEFULNESS

A recent writer says that we human beings have become mere parasites on civilization, and that, away from the haunts of men, we are, of all creatures, the most helpless.

He is about ninety-nine per cent right. The man of today who has an ounce of personal initiative, is the man who is in the big money class—and the man who has profited by the depression.

One year ago, a young man who had a wife and baby to support came into Hagerman. He had been out of work for nearly twelve months. He was a machinist by trade. He tried to find work here and there was none. He couldn't let his family starve, so he decided to formulate some plan of making a living.

A few days ago, we were in that man's home. He was on a homestead where there was plenty of grass. He had built out of scrap lumber one of the finest little three room houses, that a person will ever see. The kitchen has a built in cabinet, a table, and bench built in an alcove of the wall, according to the latest ideas in cute breakfast nooks. The living room contained a combination couch and quilt box covered with tapestry to match the window curtains. These beautiful curtains were hung on links of chain about an iron support for a bed, cut off with a hack saw, and fitted with spear points made of wood. The entire curtain rod was painted red. In this room was also a home made chair. It had been built of rough lumber, planed smooth. The rockers were formed by pouring a small quantity of water in the middle of a piece of green wood, and allowing the sun to draw up the ends to form an arc. Later this timber was sawed down the center, in order to make the two rockers even.

We have gone into detail in our description of this house, in order to show how one resourceful man, who had just a small amount of money took advantage of a bad situation to demonstrate his manhood. Hiss little three room homestead, as clean and neat as a pin, with its home made furniture—and a section of good grazing land, bespeak for this man success, and a means of making an honest living.

Mentally we contrasted this home with another in our own community which we visited on an errand of mercy. Destitution was self evident, but filth and dirt were predominant. When we remarked about the unsanitary conditions, we met the old excuse, "Well, we haven't any money to do anything with."

It isn't money which people in America need the most today; it is the ability to adjust themselves to a new economic order; to make the most of the materials at hand, and above all, a spirit of courage which will not die.

There are millions of men in America today who have created themselves new jobs—are now their own bosses on the road to financial independence, all because the Lord in His wisdom, used the depression as a switch to give us a good licking.

PUTTING THE MIND TO WORK

To the pupils of Hagerman public school:

Something has been said to you about keeping the mind employed upon something useful, such as the information contained in your text books. Something has also been mentioned about mastering the tools of knowledge, such as reading, spelling, geography etc. A good pupil stands up for his school because he is getting something from the school. He is a gentleman and is willing to help out in the things that help him out. The same is true of the larger group. When you get out in life and find your government is rendering you service of untold value you are willing to help it out with your vote or even your personal service in case you are needed. This willingness upon your part is sometimes called loyalty and patriotism. We sometimes sum up all these qualities under the general head of citizenship.

Our government and the institutions it fosters does not only attempt to teach you but to keep you well so that you can earn well and

New York Cotton

NEW YORK—Early advances of 7 to 10 points in cotton yesterday were more than lost later under increased southern hedge selling and liquidation promoted by weakness in the stock market. The trade demand was less active and new buying was largely lacking as traders were still inclined to await developments in connection with the foreign debt problem and the government's attitude toward agriculture. March advanced to 6.03 but later declined to 5.84. Around 2:00 p. m., the market was 6 to 12 points net lower.

One Sad Thing About Christmas

The saddest thing about Christmas is that the good fellowship the day inspires too often withers with the Yule tree and is tossed out of doors.

About Old Santa Claus, Children's Patron, Saint

THE dictionary merely tells you that Santa Claus is a contraction of Saint Nicholas (see Nicholas, Saint). A turning of the pages reveals that Nicholas was bishop of Myra or Smyrna in Asia Minor about 300 A. D. He was the patron saint of old Russia and was believed to offer special protection and comfort to "sea-faring men, thieves, virgins and children." His affection for children was based on the assertion that he brought back to life three schoolboys who had been murdered. An encyclopedia attributes the name by which he is known in America to the early Dutch settlers who called him San Nicolaag.

But it little matters whether he be known as Saint Nicholas, Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, or a dozen other names, for the presence of his spirit on this climax holiday of the year is the important thing. It enters every home in the four corners of Christendom and touches the hearts of all the men and women in them. Moreover, it is essentially the spirit of childhood, the freshness, the courage, and the eagerness of young lives. Saint Nicholas may seem old, but he has none of the fears, regrets or prejudices of age. He and his children stand on the threshold of the world. Their banner is good will and their goal is peace.

So this day, dedicated to the memory of the birth of a child, belongs to all children. It is their carols, their laughter, their happiness which makes it sweet. And we older folk should on this day at least share their kindness, their tolerance, their purity and their Saint Nicholas.—The Boston Herald.

Great Yule Feast Given by King Richard in 1399

CHRISTMAS in England, of course, is an old feast day, though the Santa Claus and Christmas tree traditions come to us from another source. William E. Mead's "The English Medieval Feast" (Houghton, Mifflin) quotes from Stow's "Survey of London," an account of the great feast which King Richard gave in Westminster Hall in the year 1399, just after rebuilding the hall of William Rufus:

"A most royal Christmas, with daily joustings and runnings at tilt, whereunto resorted such a number of people that there was every day spent 28 or 26 oxen, and 300 sheep, besides fowl without number; he caused a gown for himself to be made of gold, garnished with pearl and precious stones, to the value of 3,000 marks; he was guarded by Cheshire men and had about him commonly 13 bishops, besides barons, knights, squires, and others more than needed; inasmuch that to the household came every day to meet 10,000 people, as appeareth by the messes told out from the kitchen to 300 servitors."

SELL NOTHING IN POOL HALL

The town of Mount Pleasant, Utah, has ruled that no beer or wine can be sold in local pool halls no matter what action is taken on prohibition. A proclamation by the mayor says "Nothing can be bartered or sold in the pool halls of this city, not even Bibles or hymn books . . ."

Its a good thing the operator don't follow copy on everything that comes his way. Somebody might think he was talking about a drunk Indian, and from what we've heard about drunk Indians . . . well, that would be a Thanksgiving dinner worth attending.—The Op

Phillipsburg, Kansas "News" hands out the following fatherly advice:

"My son, never speak unkindly of price cutters. Never knock them, because God made them the same as He made fleas, lice, bugs, wasps, snakes, skunks, and other poisonous things. In His inscrutable wisdom He made them. Why He made them, only He knows. Some day He may enlighten us, but now, I'll be darned if I understand."

Saxon words "Waes Hael," Meaning "Be in Health"

CHRISTMAS fare has always occupied a big part in Yuletide celebration. Our Anglo-Saxon forefathers were excellent trenchermen, and eating and drinking were a necessary part of every gala day. Stuffed boars' heads, peacocks, geese, capons, pheasants, mince pie, plum pudding—these decked the board. The turkey was unknown. That excellent fowl did not enter into the bill of fare until the discovery of the New World. Of course, there was drink aplenty. Punch was the customary wassail bowl. This bowl takes its name from the Saxon words, "waes hael," meaning "be in health." It was a great bowl of punch into which baked apples were thrown to enhance its flavor. Mince pie originated in 1596. It was first made from mutton. The Puritans condemned it as an ungodly dish, and the Quakers would have none of it.

CANVASS BOARD MEETS

The official election canvassing board of the state will meet at Santa Fe on December 5th, to canvass the results of the general election. Mrs. M. P. Baca, secretary of state, last week reported that five counties had failed to file their returns. Eddy county was among this number. Other counties remaining to be heard from on that date were: Bernalillo, Lea, Catron and Taos.

Protect Children When Celebrating Christmas

CHRISTMAS time being a season of joy, every precaution should be taken to prevent any untoward circumstances which might enter into its celebration.

Too often the careless placing of lighted candles has resulted in painful burns, and even death to those participating in the Yuletide festivities. "Santa Claus" has been the victim in innumerable cases. Tiny electric lights now are most used in lighting the Christmas tree, and that reduces the fire danger materially. If candles are to be used in the decoration—and they undoubtedly lend an effect not to be obtained by the electric lights—they should be placed on the mantel and in other secure locations where contact with their pretty flames is not likely to be made.

In Christmas sports involving the slightest danger, children should be directed in their play by an older person who is competent to effect a rescue if necessary.—Charles Frederick Wadsworth.

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs. At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years? There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways. This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful.

Peacock Dinner English Custom Many Years Ago

FASHIONS in Christmas dinners come and go. In olden days at a Christmas feast in England, next in importance to the boar's head as a Christmas dish was the peacock. To prepare the bird for the table was a task entailing no little trouble. The skin was first carefully stripped off with the plumage adhering. The bird was then roasted; when done, and partially cooled it was sewed up again in its feathers, its beak painted with gilt and so sent to the table. Sometimes the whole body was covered with leaf gold and a piece of cotton saturated with spirits placed in its beak and lighted before the carver commenced operations. This "food for lovers and meat for lords" was stuffed with spices and sweets, basted with yolks of eggs and served with plenty of gravy.

The noble bird was not served by common hands; that privilege was reserved for the lady guests most distinguished by birth or beauty. One of them carried it into the dining hall to the sound of music, the rest of the ladies following in due order. The dish was set down before the master of the house or his most honored guest. The latest instance of peacock eating recorded was at a dinner given to William IV, when duke of Clarence, by the governor of Grenada.

Christmas in 1066

The most tragic Christmas day in English history was that of 1066, when William the Conqueror was enthroned. The Saxon archbishop, Eldred, before placing the crown on William's head, asked in Saxon if the congregation would have William for their king. Their "yea," uttered in a hoarse roar, made the Normans fear that they were about to kill William, and they drew their swords and attacked. On that dreadful Christmas day the Abbey pavement ran red with blood.

OPPOSES COLTON BILL

SANTA FE—Adoption of the Colton public lands bill would defer the acquirement of the unappropriated lands by the state in fee, Byron O. Beall, chief tax commissioner, said yesterday in answer to a request for a statement on his opinion of the measure before congress. The measure, Beall said, is a substitute measure for several bills proposed by the federal lands committee all of which have been disapproved by New Mexico and most of the western states. The bill has been introduced as house resolution 11,816 by Representative Colton of Utah and is now in the hands of the house public lands committee.

FORD BETTER

DETROIT. — Barring unforeseen complications, Henry Ford is on the road to recovery from the illness—a strangulated hernia and an infected appendix—which Saturday took him to his own $10,000,000 hospital for an emergency operation.

MILLER RELEASED

NEWKIRK, Oklahoma — Col. Zack Miller, of the 101 Ranch, was released from the Kay county jail late Monday after two national guard officers sent here by Gov. W. H. Murray informed District Judge Claud Duval and Sheriff Joe McFadden they were prepared "to use force" if necessary to free the prisoner.

Neither Judge Duval nor the sheriff recognized the chief executive's right to thus free a civil prisoner but the latter yielded "under protest" when the matter was passed to him.

BUCK KILLS RATTLER

There is a tradition among hunters that a deer will take care of a rattlesnake very quickly. This theory received confirmation not long ago in a one-sided battle R. G. Walker of Alamogordo saw. Mr. Walker has a ranch near the foothills on the west side of the Sacramento mountains. The canyon running up from his ranch is not often frequented so he does considerable prospecting and also hunts there during the big game season.

Mr. Walker relates that he became tired from prospecting one day and sat down on the edge of the canyon to watch the movements of a buck, two does and a couple of fawns about three hundred yards below him.

Soon he saw the buck hoist his antlers in the air and apparently listened for something. Then he walked a short distance jumped and came down on his front hoofs sharply. He performed this movement three times then walked off apparently quite contented.

BIG PERCENTAGE OF LOANS HAVE BEEN PAID

R. L. Kile, federal crop loan agent for Chaves, Eddy, Lea and Lincoln counties reports that a big percentage of the federal crop loans have been paid back to the federal government. On the final check, Mr. Kile estimates that there will only be about five per cent of unpaid loans in Eddy county, while Chaves county will run about ten per cent.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

THE custom of hanging evergreens in the house during the Yuletide originally had a purpose beyond that of decoration. In olden days each kind of evergreen was believed to confer special blessings on those who passed beneath its boughs. To pass under holly insured good fortune throughout the year, bay meant victory, while laurel was supposed to impart a spirit of beauty and poetry.—Missouri Farmer.

53,217 CHILDREN ENROLLED IN RURAL SCHOOLS OF STATE

Santa Fe.—During the 1931-32 school year, New Mexico has 53,217 children between the ages of six and seventeen enrolled in its rural schools. George I. Sanchez, director of research of the state department of education, said Monday in a report on the age-grade status of the rural child in New Mexico.

Of this number 18,258 were enrolled in the first grade and 2,813 in the eighth. There were six pupils in the first grade who were seventeen-years-of-age. In addition to the 53,217 children between 6 and 17 there were 126 pupils enrolled who were between the ages of 18 and 21. Of this group one eighteen-year-old pupil was in the first grade; two nineteen-year-old pupils were also enrolled in the first grade.

"An extreme and serious condition of retardation (backwardness among pupils) exists in the rural schools," Sanchez said. "It amounts to 22,779 or 41 per cent of our rural children in the first eight grades. These children, even on a conservative two-years-at-age basis, are over-age a mean of 2.2 years with half of them over 1.4 years. The retarded condition extends over every grade and county in quite comparable amounts. This leads to an assumption of great need for relief and remedial measures in the early grades of the elementary schools."

He recommended as possible remedies the financing of county rural school supervisors in three counties; purchasing of supplementary readers and circulating libraries for every county in the state; and allocation of indigent funds for the purchase of text books to every county.

EXCUSABLE FOLLY

IT IS true that men and women at Christmas time do things which are foolish, especially in the giving of presents. But when did cold wisdom ever make people happy? Who wants to see a Christmas when nobody spends more than he should, or when there is no giving of things that are trivial or needless or foolish? A truly sane Christmas would be a miserable one.—American Magazine.
