Gov. Tingley Says Work of Caring for Those Not Able to Work Solved; Money to be Raised by 1st of March.

Governor Clyde Tingley has suc-cessfully solved the first big probem which confronted him as governor, a problem which has predecessors did not have to face.

Under a new policy of the federal government, states must provide funds to care for their own unemployables . . . men and women on relief who are not able to work. New Mexico's quota for providing care for its unemployables was $500,000, a sizeable amount for a state with a population of less than half million. "This money must and will be raised before March 1st," Governor Tingley announced, and set about

The legislature responded and in ooperation with the governor passed a tax levying $1 per $1,000 capitalized value on all corpora-tions in the state. This bill is estimated to raise some $300,000, based on the amount the present tax of five cents per $1,000 raises.

Mother Knows Best

By PAUL M. VEST WNU Service.

THE two of them attracted considerable attention as they entered. Regular nightly visitors at the Silver Slipper had learned who they were.

"Oh, look!" a girl in a green hat nudged her escort, "That's them society swells. Her mother's the De Peyster society dame." The millionaire rubber man's son overheard the comment and frowned. "Good heavens, Grace!" he muttered. "Must we come to this awful place every night? Whatever do you find of interest here?"

The girl fingered the menu and looked idly about. "Oh, I don't know. Von - there's something about it I like. Perhaps it's the music." Her wide blue eyes were upon the slim back of the orchestra "Humph!" was the response.

never knew you to take such an interest in second-rate music before." They danced a few times, but Von was utterly bored. "I've had about all I can stand," he complained irritably. "Come, can't we go somewhere else?"

"In a little while, darling," she consoled him. Over his shoulder her eyes met the dark, flashing ones of the orchestra leader. A smile touched the violinist's lips-in a moment the orchestra commenced playing the "Rendezvous Waltz."

As the number ended, Grace excused herself. "Just a moment, darling, until I dab on a bit of powder, and we'll gallop along." Von couldn't carry a tune and scarcely knew one song from another. Consequently he was not aware that every night, immediately following the "Rendezvous Waltz," his fiancee found it necessary to "dab on a bit of powder." But then Von wasn't a very observ-

Mrs. DePeyster drew herself up the counties included: egally, her dark, imperious eyes blazing. "You are engaged to Von Taos. and you will marry him. Enough of this nonsense. Mother knows best!

The wedding was a brilliant social event. Following the ceremony Grace and Von sailed for Cherbourg on a wedding trip.

Back home again a month later, Grace, for some obscure reason, insisted upon visiting the Silver Slipper once more "just for old time sake," she said.

Von groaned. "Oh, that terrible I'll humor you this once but this is the last time."

How old are the lighting fixtures in your home? In all probability they are as old as the house itself. And how unfortunate that is! Old-fashioned lighting fixtures are a constant offense to the eye, although many of us are not actually conscious of that fact. We replace rugs and draperies and furnishings when they have outlived their usefulness or have become shoddy. Repapering is done at regular intervals as a means of beautifying our homes and making them more livable. But the out-of-date lighting fixtures remain year after year, relics of the day when they were hastily designed to replace the flickering gas jet.

Charm-Charm is that indefinable something which makes all the difference between a room from which you wish to escape, and a room in which you wish to linger. Modern lighting equipment will imbue a room with a wealth of charm.

Beauty-Modern ceiling and wall fixtures will impart a dominating note of beauty to any room in your home. They will enhance the attractiveness of your other furnishings.

Eye-Comfort-Whether you are reading or sewing, playing bridge or simply chatting, your eyes demand modern lighting, sufficient, soft and pleasant. When you save your eyes you are saving your health, and you are much happier.

For charm, beauty, and eye-comfort-install modern lighting equipment.

Such work would be a permanent investment in these government-owned properties and would contribute to the ultimate objective of "multiple use" of the lands for wild life, water-shed protection, recreation, grazing, timber production and erosion control.

For New Mexico it is proposed to acquire approximately 1,676,000 acres to add to the present area of 6,696,000 acres of federally owned timber producing lands. The lands being considered for public acquisition consists mainly of timbered portions of grants.
