A Community Fair Is Planned Monday Eve for Cottonwood School

The Cottonwood school is sponsoring a community fair to be given at the Cottonwood school on Monday evening, September 30th, F. R. Zumwalt, principal, announced here yesterday.

Mr. Zumwalt said efforts would be made to have exhibits in sewing, flowers, vegetables, grains, home canning, poultry and domestic animals.

Corn-Hog Output May Be Increased

WASHINGTON—Some AAA quarters indicated yesterday that efforts may be made to increase hog production next year while at the same time curtailing corn acreage.

This word was given as corn-hog farmers representing thirty-four states converged on Washington to discuss the 1936 adjustment program with AAA officials.

Technically, the hearing is to determine whether or not there should be a corn-hog program next year. The farm administration will express its views to the farmers, and then receive their opinions on the need for an adjustment of production next year.

The AAA amendments provided that a hearing must be held before an adjustment program can be placed into effect by the secretary of agriculture.

SENATORS VISIT CAVERNS

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, author of the Wagner labor bill, accompanied by Senator Carl Hatch of Clovis, were guests of Col. Thomas Boles, superintendent of the Carlsbad Caverns on a trip thru the caverns yesterday.

A Community-School Fair To Be Given At Hagerman Tomorrow

A number of people from the various points in the valley plan to attend the Hagerman community-school fair to be given at Hagerman tomorrow.

Displays to be seen include the school farm products, the school livestock, the school poultry, and home economics, the school cooking and canning, school manual training.

Large Number Of Farm - Livestock Exhibits At Fair

ROSSELL—With additional communities from different parts of New Mexico being heard from daily, officers of the Eastern New Mexico State Fair which starts here next Wednesday, October 2, predict by far the largest attendance in the history of the fair.

Last year's attendance figure was placed at 50,000 for the four days, but advance information indicates this figure will fall.

Because of the unexpected rush of entries in both the products and livestock departments it has been necessary at the last minute to provide additional space.

As to the market, trade during the past week has just about absorbed the increased hedges. The market has held fairly steady. No doubt the threat of war has had much to do with the increased demand but the domestic demand is due largely to improved business conditions and the further fact that wholesalers and retail establishments are both very low on cotton goods.

SYNOPSIS

Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community...

Corinne entered in her green tweed riding habit. "You're back early," Roddy said...

He slowed down as he saw a horse and rider. It was Silver Grenoble. "Where do you think you're going, all by yourself?" he laughed...

"But, Lord! How Am I going to Explain It to the Folks?"

In a dappled enclosure of birches where new leaves were like a sunny green rain, Corinne Willard leaned against a tree...

In the afternoon of the next day, Jason and Paula departed. It had been a fine wedding, Sophronia thought with a swelling heart...

Twice, three times around the circle of the great oak's shade they waltzed, old Roderick adapting his knowledge of dance figures...

"Go on with you, silly!" Sophronia said, and gave Roderick a little push. "I'm thinkin' the cider pitcher needs fillin'."

"Why don't you go out and join in the fun?" she asked.

"I guess I'm not in the mood," he replied.

"Phronie gave him a sharp glance. "Small wonder!" she remarked.

"When do you expect Corinne back?"

"Tomorrow night," Roddy said, without looking around.

"Well—I don't understand what got into her to go off—"

"I'd rather not talk about it," Roddy interrupted.

"No—I suppose the least said about it the better," Phronie agreed.

"I don't know what to think about it, but I wouldn't go moonin' about the house for anyone. I never did—and I never would. Why don't you get out and dance with the rest of them? No one will ever thank you for bein' a soft-hearted fool over any woman, even if she is your wife."

Roddy began impatiently rolling a cigarette. "A devil of a lot you know about it!" he exploded.

Phronie looked at him in surprise. "I know you've never talked like that to me in your life before," she said.

Roddy got to his feet and put an arm about her. "I don't mean it like that, ma," he said affectionately. "You know I don't. But there's more to this than I want to talk about. Now that Paula's gone I don't know how we're going to get along up at the house. I can't afford another girl, and Corinne doesn't know a darn thing about housework. Even if she did—she isn't strong enough to do it."

"Have you told Corinne about that?" Sophronia asked.

"Yes," he said darkly, "I told her."

"Well, there's no use borrowin' trouble. Corinne will swing into it when she knows she has to, like anyone else. I'll come up now and then to help her get started—and Silver will be glad to give a hand when it's needed. I don't know how I'd do without that girl."

Corinne did not return on the following afternoon. She telephoned Roddy to explain that he had not completed her shopping and that rather than drive home after dark, Evelyn Richter preferred to stay in town for the night. She herself would stay with the Lombards. And was the wedding a lot of fun, and how was he feeling? Roddy, listening to her tumbling, sweetly infected questions, and giving his monosyllabic replies, stared at the wall beside the telephone.

Even after he had hung up the receiver, he continued to stare at the same spot on the wall. There had been something in Corinne's voice—an over-emphasis of apology, of solicitude.

He had tried to talk to Corinne about his corn, but she had given him only her patient smile. "You would have made a good artist, Roddy," she said once, "—one of those futurist artists who usually starve to death in a garret unless they have a patron."

Roddy ran the brush aimlessly over his hair and returned downstairs. At the supper table, he told Sophronia that Corinne would not be home until some time tomorrow. "You'll have Steve and me on your hands for another day," he said.

"And why not?" Phronie replied. "Though the way you're bottin' your food, I have a notion to let you go without."

Steve chuckled. "It's that corn-field of his," he volunteered. "He's scared it won't be there in the morning."

"Are you going back to finish it tonight, Roddy?" his father asked.

Roddy did not raise his eyes. "I'm going to try," he said.

Phronie glanced across at him. "I was hopin' you'd stay around tonight. It's sort of lonesome with Jase and Paula gone. Have another cup of tea. And take it easy or you'll be gettin' your stomach all upset."

He gave a short laugh that fell ominously on Sophronia's ears. Then he remained as preoccupied as if he were alone at the table. It occurred to Sophronia that Silver, too, appeared lost in her own thoughts. Once she caught Silver staring at Roddy with a stricken expression in her eyes. Something, Phronie concluded, was amiss, and unless she was a dundering idiot, she knew what it was.

The meal over, Roddy left the table immediately and started for the fields.

"That corn of his is just an excuse," Sophronia declared. "He's workin' his head off these days to keep from goin' crazy with worry. It ain't fair!"

"Well, it won't do much good if you add your worry to his," old Roderick remarked. "Whatever is to be will be," he said finally, "and there's no preventing either mildew or a good harvest."

Like a striking of cymbals, old Roderick's words smote a dark music into Silver's mind. "There's no preventing either mildew or a good harvest."

CHAPTER XI

IT WAS already dark before Corinne returned home on the following evening. Roddy had heard the muffled approach of Evelyn Richter's automobile. He went out of the back door just as the car came to a stop in the yard.

Corinne stepped down and Roddy put his arms about her.

"Corrie!" he cried. "What has kept you so late? I've been imagining all sorts of things—accidents—"

Corinne laughed and released herself. "Nonsense! Help me get these parcels out. Evelyn has to hurry."

"Take this box, Roddy, darling, but be careful with it. That's my precious hat!"

In a moment Roddy's arms were full and Evelyn called her hasty good night and drove away.

In the living room, Corinne's purchases were placed on the couch.

"I have some coffee percolating for you, Corrie," Roddy said. "While you unwrap those things I'll go and get it."

"Sweet of you, Roddy," Corinne said absentedly, while she untied a string that bound her hat-box.

When he returned with the two cups of coffee and set them on the small table in the corner of the room, Corinne came in from the hall where she had put on her new hat in front of the mirror in the hallway.

"Isn't it darling?" she exclaimed, resting her head sideways toward her shoulder as she smiled up at him.

"Very fetching," Roddy laughed. "And, Roddy!" Corinne drew a deep breath. "Only eighty-five—reduced from twenty-one dollars! And it will do me until fall. Roddy! Don't you adore it?"

"Sure! It looks great, but—" "Of course, it's exclusive. You've got to pay for models like this unless—"

"What else did you get?" he asked her, seating himself. "You'd better drink your coffee before it gets cold."

Corinne unwrapped a box containing a pair of high-heeled, blue-kid pumps. "These were on sale, too. Eighteen dollars—reduced to eleven-fifty. Aren't they sweet? Cut steel buckles—the buckles are expensive, you know, but they'll do on other shoes later. I'll take the other things upstairs to unpack them. You wouldn't be interested in them. Stockings—gloves—underwear—and I simply had to have a bottle of toilet water and some face cream and powder. Those things look small, but they count up when you come to buy them." She laughed. "I have only forty-five cents left out of what you gave me, Roddy."

Roddy regarded her with dull wonder. "Didn't you get yourself a dress, or a coat, or anything—anything substantial?" he asked her, and felt immediately that what he had said was somewhat incoherent.

Corinne laughed, but Roddy thought there was a hard little edge to her laugh. "How could I—with what you gave me? There's no economy in buying cheap things that will look like rags in a week. I can wait until—"

"You'll probably have to wait for quite a while," he observed somberly. "Can't you see that we'll need every penny just to keep going?"

"Well—after all, I don't know anything about such things," she protested negligently. "And I hate discussing money matters."

"I guess there must be something the matter with me," he muttered, and as he heard his own voice he was struck with the utter strangeness of it. "I have done my best to explain our position to you, Corinne. I told you I had overdrawn my account at the bank before we sold the grain. You either can't understand—or you don't care. I wish to God you'd tell me which it is!"

Corinne faced Roddy with blazing eyes.

"Flowage Rights" The expression "flowage rights" refers to the right of overflowing land when a dam is built for the purpose of furnishing irrigation or power. The person whose land is overflowed has a right to compensation for any loss. When the right of overflowing a person's land is purchased, this is referred to as flowage rights.

Assassination of Senator Long Stirs the Nation—Great Britain Ready to Take Sanctions Against Italy—Ickes Versus Hopkins.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

HUEY P. LONG, United States senator and political dictator of Louisiana, is dead, the victim of an assassin's bullet. As he passed through a corridor of the state-house in Baton Rouge, where the legislature was passing more laws to solidify his control over the state, he was shot once through the body by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., one of the "King-fish's" political opponents. The assassin was immediately shot to death by the senator's ever-present bodyguards.

Huey P. Long

The surgeons and physicians worked unceasingly to save Long, but his strength steadily waned and shortly after 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, about 30 hours after the shooting, he passed away.

Long's body lay in state in the rotunda of the Capitol building while many thousands passed by the bier. The impressive funeral services were held on the front terrace and the dead senator was interred in a sunken garden of the Capitol grounds. Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, the young minister who deserted a rich parish in Shreveport to follow Long, was the only speaker at the funeral. The only music was the song, "Every Man a King," played in minor key and dirge time by the State University band.

Though the man who killed Long was known as one of his political foes, the real story of the assassination was shrouded in uncertainty. Earl Christenberry, secretary of the late senator, declared that Long was murdered as a result of a conspiracy; that a number of his enemies formed a "jury of death," and that Doctor Weiss was selected by lot to fire the fatal bullet. To those who are familiar with the conditions in Louisiana this story does not sound especially fantastic.

What will become of Long's "empire" is a question that agitates all his followers, and all the people of the state as well. For the present, it seemed likely, the members of the Long machine will sink their personal ambitions and try to hold the organization intact. It will be difficult for them to decide on a successor to the "Kingfish" as their leader. Gov. O. K. Allen is considered too mild and peace-loving. Seymour Weiss—no relative to the assassin—treasurer of the Long organization, is the strongest man in the lot, but he has always drawn back from holding public position. Allen A. Ellender, speaker of the house, may be the man finally selected, though Lieut. Gov. James A. Noe is to the fore.

Political leaders of all parties expressed their deep regret for the assassination of Senator Long. His devoted followers in Louisiana and elsewhere mourned his death. He had been one of the picturesque figures in America's political life, creating innumerable enemies but persistent in advocating his ideas which appeared fantastic to most citizens. A Democrat, he had broken with the administration and often bitterly attacked President Roosevelt and the New Dealers. It was the belief of many that he intended to become the Presidential nominee of a third party comprising his own "share the wealth" crowd and various other groups dissatisfied with the policies of the old parties.

MUSSOLINI tacitly consented to the appointment of a committee of five nations by the League of Nations council to handle the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio, and after protest agreed that Great Britain and France should be among the members of that body. The other members are Spain, Turkey and Poland. Senor Salvador de Madariaga of Spain is the chairman, and he and his associates at once began the task assigned them. Each country is represented by its chief delegate, being besides Madariaga, Eden of England, Laval of France, Rustu Arras of Turkey and Josef Beck of Poland.

Soon after the assembly of the league opened its session, Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, electrified the gathering by an outspoken warning to Italy and France. He declared Great Britain recognized Italy's need for expansion and raw materials but would not admit that these could be obtained peaceably. Pounding the tribune, he said:

"Britain stands for steady collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression." He paused, struck the tribune again, and repeated quietly:

"Steady collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression." Sir Samuel more than intimated that Great Britain was prepared to take sanctions against Italy in case of aggression provided all the other members of the league shared the risk; and if not, then England was prepared to isolate herself from the continent. This seemed to put it up to Premier Laval of France, to choose between the friendship of Britain and that of Italy. Laval meanwhile was trying to persuade Mussolini to accept another plan he had devised and postponed his speech to the assembly.

Representatives of the Netherlands and Sweden were the first to support Hoare's position announcing their countries would fulfill all obligations including collective penalties if any member became a victim of aggression.

In two speeches in Rome Mussolini gave indication that he would not be diverted from his purpose to conquer Ethiopia. Though in one he said "The Italian people want peace provided it is accompanied by justice," in the other he declared "we shall march straight on." The Ethiopian government announced that "telegrams from the northern frontier show that the Italians are making important troop movements on the Ethiopian and Eritrean frontier, indicating an early offensive against Ethiopia."

Accepting the advice of his "brain trust," which includes Everett A. Coleson of the United States, Emperor Haile Selassie instructed his representatives in Geneva to reject all solutions thus far offered by the powers for settling the quarrel with Italy. These are a tripartite mandate over Ethiopia, as suggested by France, with the League of Nations guaranteeing Ethiopia's independence and territorial integrity; France's proposal for an Italian protectorate similar to that of the British in Iraq, and an international police force similar to the one that occupied the Saar before its restoration to Germany.

PUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATOR ICKES and Work Progress Administrator Hopkins got into such a quarrel over the spending of the $4,000,000,000 fund that the President had to call them to Hyde Park, together with the third and neutral member of the triumvirate—Frank G. Walker, the director of the national emergency council and administrator of applications.

Others called to the important works-relief parley included Daniel Bell, director of the budget; Charles West, under-secretary of interior; Corrington Gill, assistant of Hopkins; Fred Ironsides, administrative assistant of Walker; and Col. Horatio Hackett, chief of housing in the public works administration.

Mr. Roosevelt was determined to have peace, and told those present that the prime necessity at this time is to make jobs quickly, always keeping in mind the idea of turning workers back to private industry as business warrants. This looked like a victory for Hopkins, who favors quick jobs, over Ickes, champion of permanent public works. The President has declared that he hopes 3,500,000 persons can be removed from the relief rolls and put to work by the first of November.

RESTORATION of the Greek monarchy is coming nearer and presumably former King George will be the man to occupy the throne. Premier Tsaldaris has put himself on record as favoring the restoration, and President Zaimis has indicated he will be willing to resign to make room for a king. Tsaldaris said in his statement:

"I attribute the nervous tension at present existing in public ranks and the army to general anxiety concerning the question of a constitution. I consider democratic royalty as the natural regime of Greece and ask the people to vote for it in the impending plebiscite."

THOUSANDS on thousands of enthusiastic Germans gathered in Nuremberg for the convention of the Nazi party, and to them Reichsfuehrer Hitler issued a proclamation asserting that Germany has won her military freedom and attacking the "Fourteen Points" of Woodrow Wilson on which the Versailles treaty was built. A feature of the convention was a great showing of the nation's rebuilt military strength.

ent investigation of the 250 war veterans in the hurricane reported they had evidence indicating culpability on the part of any one. They were States Attorney Worley of Miami, Attorney representing Federal Registrar Hopkins, and Oil E. Jams of the veterans representing President Hoover.

This finding was deemed "whitewash" by James J. Zandt, commander-in-chief of Veterans of Foreign Wars J. Skillman, commander of Miami chapter of the same organization, and other representatives' societies. Van Zandt statement called on President Roosevelt to ignore the officials guilty of negligence.

"If these officials had heeded storm warnings or had been least familiar with seasonal conditions, the tragedy have been averted, all agree," Van Zandt declared.

The commander's statement continued: "Whitewash reports, though they may be, bear testimony when eye witnesses, reporters, and trained news people are unanimous in the opinion there was gross negligence on part of properly constituted officials."

"WE WENT to war to make the same way," declared 150 of the grazed veterans attended the annual reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic in Grand Rapids, Mich. stately old men marched in parade while the rest, more than 250, rode in automobiles. There all that remained of the dreads of thousands who served call to the colors in Civil war save for a few who were home by extreme age and ill health. Some of the states had representatives in the line, but they were carried nevertheless. In other states there were but a few. It was a pathetic but stirring procession, watched by thousands whose eyes were dimmed and escorted by Sons of Veterans, American Legionnaires, Veterans of the Spanish war.

Oley Nelson, ninety-one, of Iowa, was elected commander chief, to succeed Albert E. Elbridge, N. Y. In a similar organization the proposed union at Gettysburg next year of the Confederate veterans was discussed, and Commander Nelson made it plain that the affair would not be held under the auspices of the Grand Army, the organization originated in Pennsylvania.

LEGAL attack on the soft coal act has been stepped up by 16 coal companies operating in Harlan county, Kentucky, in a suit for injunction against the enforcement, charging that it is the federal Constitution in the ways:

1. It violated the fifth amendment, which forbids taking property without due process of law.

2. It violated the tenth amendment, which reserves to the states or to the people, all rights not granted the federal government, forbidden the states.

3. It attempts to delegate legislative power.

4. The section levying a 15 percent tax on all coal produced with a 90 percent refund to producers submitted to the voters by the act, is an unconstitutional attempt on the part of Congress, under the guise of taxation, to punish those producers of bituminous coal who are unwilling to surrender their constitutional rights.

5. Congress has no jurisdiction over and no power to legislate on certain matters covered by the state or the code.

The companies declared they would refuse to submit to the act and the code it authorized.

Former Federal Judge Charles Dawson filed the action as counsel for the plaintiffs. Judge Ickes recently left the bench to return private law practice after discharge from the NRA, the anti-clearance condemnation program, the taxes imposed by the Smith tobacco act, and other Deal measures.

REACTION of American business and financial men to President Roosevelt's latest public statement that his basic program has reached substantial completion and that he will have a breathing spell in the campaign between mild hope and despair, right belief. Those who predicted themselves to be quoted very generally extremely cautious in their expressions, but were usually a vein of skepticism in their remarks. Wall Street brokers were gladdened by a spurt of trading in higher prices, but bankers were more than doubtful, and economists insisting that a balanced budget, which wasn't mentioned in President's letter to Roy Hovey publisher, was a prime requisite.

Silas Strawn, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said: "Business generally will say that the improvement in some lines of business has been in spite of, rather than because of, the activities of the administration."

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Huey Long Is Dead Power in Personality A Ship of Horror
Bathub Danger
Huey Long is dead at forty-two years of age.

The world says: "How young, how pitiful, to die without full opportunity!"
Everything is comparative, Alexander the Great, who died at thirty-two, was ruler of half the world at twenty-five; Keats died at twenty-six; Shelley at thirty. Today, men do not develop as rapidly as in old days, when Napoleon thought of suicide because he had done nothing at an age that found Alexander ruler of the world.

The death of Huey Long, regretted throughout a nation that loathes cowardly assassination, is important not alone because of Senator Long's powerful personality, but also because of its possible effect on the national election of 1936.

Senator Long is gone; his power ceases, as though he had never lived. Others will pick up the reins of power, in New Orleans and Louisiana; another will take his place in the senate. Efforts, futile, will be made to find "another Huey Long."

There is nothing left but the memory of a powerful man, again emphasizing Goethe's definition of "personality," "as the highest good fortune of earth's children."

France discourages crime, and really discourages it. The dreaded prison ship, La Martiniere, is on her way to the criminal colony in French Guiana with 773 convicts locked in eight strong iron cages in the hold, with iron bars, cement floors, wooden benches, hammocks, and overhead a criss-cross of pipes that would fill the cages with deadly live steam if mutiny broke out.

No parole board sits in French Guiana. Each man ordered to the ship receives a new suit of clothes, a blanket, an extra pair of wooden shoes. That, with perhaps a few books and packages of chocolate from relatives, constitutes his wealth as, wrists chained, the convicts march, single file, up the gangplank, between rows of bayonets.

They go to prison, to stay in prison. It is a hard system, but being murdered on the American plan is also a hard system.

Within a few days two women, and past sixty, the other seventy years old, have been found dead in these bathtubs, apparently drowned. The slippery surface of a porcelain tub is dangerous for older persons. They should observe the greatest care; a slip, the head striking the edge of the tub, can easily cause unconsciousness, followed by drowning.

Rubber factories should make and extensively advertise rubber mats for the bottom of bathtubs, with a suction arrangement to prevent slipping.

While the League of Nations talks and arbitration Mussolini rejects his consuls from various places in Ethiopia, reminding you of the man who had a call to a large man. His little daughter said, "Daddy is in his library, praying for me, and mamma is upstairs packing."

Mr. Max Baer, of the Jewish race, fought on September 24 Mr. Joe Louis, of the African negro race, already $300,000 worth of tick-horse been sold. The price for good seat is $25.

Mr. Baer, who gave a pitiful exhibition, not long ago, when he admitted his "heavyweight championship of the world" to wriggle of the hook, now promises to ease that boy (Joe Louis) out of ring in two rounds.

Publicly Mr. Joe Louis gives an exhibition of "B'er Rabbit," and a little.

Maneuvers demonstrating French power, as it stands today, convince European experts that France possesses "the strongest military machine in the world." She possesses, also, men willing to fight, shown at Verdun and elsewhere.

The government, floating five hundred million dollars more of interest-bearing notes, rejoices because they are snapped up "in a day." Of course they are "snapped up" under prevailing conditions. Men with a prime requisite of money are as glad to hide it away in government notes and bonds as men in a cyclone country are glad, temporarily, to hide away in cyclone dollars.

Nile to Be Deflected From the Pyramids

BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE MERRY LITTLE BREEZES HELP LIGHTFOOT

COULD you have seen the hunter with the terrible gun and Lightfoot the Deer that morning on which the hunting season opened you might have thought that Lightfoot was hunting the hunter instead of the hunter hunting Lightfoot. You see, Lightfoot was behind the hunter so as to keep track of him. As long as he knew just where the hunter was he felt reasonably safe.

The Merry Little Breezes are the best friends that Lightfoot has.

"It Was That Confounded Jay," Muttered the Hunter.

They always bring to him all the different scents they find as they wander through the Green Forest. And Lightfoot's delicate nose is so wonderful that he can take these scents, even though they are very faint, and tell just who or what has made them. So, though he makes the best possible use of his big ears and his beautiful eyes, he trusts more to his nose to warn him of danger. For this reason during the hunting season when he moves about he moves in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes may be blowing. He knows that will warn him.

Now the hunter with the terrible gun who was looking for Lightfoot knew all this, for he was wise in the ways of Lightfoot and of the other little people of the Green Forest. When he had entered the Green Forest that morning he had first of all made sure of the direc-

ON LABOR DAY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ONE never knows the satisfying taste Of bread until he earns it . . . Better still To plow the stubborn earth, to plant the waste And carry the threshed wheat down to the mill. Bread that one gains by sweat is better than The proffered loaf . . . The gift of luxury Will never sing into the heart of man As will his triumph over poverty. Once the soiled hands of Labor were not held In high repute, but now our daily prayer Is not for gifts of bread . . . Our pleas have welled From weary hearts that have too much to bear. But with new courage for the bitter toil, We pray to earn our bread by honest toil. Copyright—WNU Service.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: There is a man living next door to me who is very lazy. In fact he lets his wife support him by taking in washing. Shouldn't he be ashamed to let his wife support him in that way?
Sincerely,
ALEC. TRICKIRON.
Answer: I wouldn't blame the husband so much, if I were you. Maybe his wife is ignorant and can't earn a living any other way.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Can you tell me how it is that so many men are bald headed?
Yours truly,
DAN DRUFF.
Answer: Men lose half their hair worrying if their sweetheart will marry them. After they are married they pull out the other half worrying how to get a divorce.

SECRET OF CUSTARDS

CUSTARDS are such good desserts for children and aged as well as for those who have weakened digestion. The secret of a good custard is in the cooking.

Steamed Cup Custard.

Beat two eggs lightly until the whites and yolks are well mixed, add three tablespoons of sugar, a bit of salt and a generous grating of nutmeg. When the sugar is well dissolved add a pint of good milk, stir and mix well and pour into three custard cups if large—four if small. Set in a pan of hot water and put on to steam. Do not let the water stand too deep in the pan so that in boiling it will roll into the cups. Watch carefully after the boiling begins; test with a clean knife thrust down the center of the custard. When the knife comes out clean remove the cups at once from the hot water and chill before serving. For variety in flavor—melt a few tablespoons of sugar in a smooth frying pan and pour this caramel into the bottom of the cups before adding the custard. When cooked they may be turned out and the caramel will form a brown sauce over the custard. © Western Newspaper Union.

HOW QUICK CAN YOU STOP?

Some time ago a questionnaire was submitted to motorists by the city of Memphis concerning the distance necessary for stopping cars going at given speeds. The survey demonstrated that the average driver has an exceedingly poor conception of stopping distances—and that he believes he can bring his car to a halt in a much shorter space than is actually required.

For example, drivers were asked how many feet would be needed to stop a car with four-wheel brakes moving at a speed of 40 miles per hour on an ordinary highway. Two per cent of the drivers answered ten feet or less; 15.9 per cent answered eleven to twenty feet; the heaviest majority, 23.2 per cent, answered twenty-one to thirty feet, and 14.1 per cent answered fifty-one to sixty feet.

The true answer is 80 feet—and it was given by less than 6 per cent of the drivers. Only a minority of motorists realize that, no matter how good a car's brakes, it is impossible to stop within fifty feet—that a car going forty miles an hour will skid farther than that with locked wheels.

Memphis has provided a good example showing that we vitally need continuous and intensified "schooling" for drivers—and that the driver who has operated a car for twenty years should be given attention, as well as the beginners.

Adequate knowledge of the limitations and capabilities of the motor car is a fundamental of accident prevention.

PEDESTRIANISM IS NO JOKE

The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters points out that of the 36,000 fatalities resulting from automobile accidents last year, 16,000 were pedestrians.

Two elements of this situation are important. One is the statistical truth that by far the greater number of pedestrians involved in accidents are doing things which they should not do. The other is that a pedestrian may be in the right, but that doesn't reduce the disadvantage at which he will always be until collision-proof armor is invented.

Ironically the pedestrian has become standard material for the jokesmiths and cartoonists just as the hen-pecked husband or the taxpayer. No doubt we shall have a new version of the old wheeze, making it the pedestrian, not the chicken, who crosses the road to get to the other side.

The premise of many jokes, that the pedestrian is a persecuted animal, does not hold water. The pedestrian is safe from any automobile if he observes a few commands:

1. Cross only at intersections.
2. Cross with the traffic signal whenever there is one.
3. Keep children off the street.
4. On rural highways walk to the left facing oncoming traffic.
5. Avoid walking from behind parked cars.
6. Look!

A Line To You

BY E. M.

We are wondering: Why one certain senior girl has to have her hair set on Friday.

What the girl's name is, that raises chickens.

Who came to chapel last Friday with tears in their eyes.

If you realize that Hagerman has the greatest number of boys and girls away at school, that it has ever had at one time before.

Do you know who is the proud possessor of a new fur coat, from a fond dad?

Can you guess which handsome young gentleman was mistaken for the proud papa? And by some very attractive young school ma'ams.

Say! and were we laughed at this week, all because it was a D instead of an R. The joke, we realized, was on us. (Our apologies offered).

School Notes

The juniors of the Hagerman high school held their first class meeting September 11. The following officials were elected: President, Dub Hardin; vice-president, Ruth Wade; secretary-treasurer, Sammy McKinstry. Class sponsor, Ramon Welborne. Other members of the junior class are: Stenson Andrus, Garner Mason, Vencil Barnett, Edward Greer, Dalton Keeth, Gordon Smith, Quentin Bartlett, Dolores Bartlett, Irene Newsom, Naomi Jenkins, Nellie Lange, Julia Ferrell, Beulah Ridgely, Lola Ridgely and Johnnie Faye Mitchell.

The Sophomore class of the Hagerman high school has been organized and the following officers elected: President, George Cassabonne; vice-president, Bertha Askins; secretary, Willa Smith; treasurer, Clifford Wimberly. Miss Katherine Hammock was elected sponsor. Other members of the class are: Rowena McCormick, Charlie Mae Ferrell, Oma Dene Graham, Letha Green, Ruby Bailey, Lila Lane, Reas Lathrop, Johnny Cassabonne, Richard Lange, Geo. Goodwin, Lex Key and Roy Dollohon.

The Senior class and a number of the faculty members motored to Roswell Tuesday evening to see Will Rogers in "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." Those attending the show were: Phyllis Andrews, Charlene King, Alma Sue Boyce, Grace Wade, Sara Beth West, Virginia Deter, Sammy McKinstry, Clarence Bogle, Earl Hammons, Oscar Allison, Charles Wier, Nora Clemons, Gene Seeley, Almareeta Growden, Catherine Hammack, Mary Jones, and Jessie George.

Circulation managers say no tragedy in New York's memory so stunned the metropolis as the extras announcing the deaths of Rogers and Post. Nearest to it was the Lindbergh kidnaping. Sales in department stores and smaller shops came to a full stop for almost an hour. The news eclipsed the luncheon period and proprietors report that, while people ordered, scarcely anyone ate and in instances food was left untouched. Along streets men and women were brushing away tears. Even shock-proof Wall Street seemed dazed. Josh Lee, United States representative from Oklahoma, states: "Not since the assassination of Abraham Lincoln have the American people mourned the passing of any national figure as they have Will Rogers and Wiley Post. Will Rogers, a native Oklahoman, a First American, the descendant of the American Indian, came from an humble home and in his life-time walked and talked with presidents, kings, dictators, but never lost that common touch which appeals to the average layman. People from every rank of life feel that Will Rogers' death is the loss of a friendly and kindly neighbor.

The World History class of last year which was composed chiefly of freshmen boys and were taught by Miss Jessie Gerge, made an extensive study of the Paris Peace Pact. The contest was open to all high schools of the United States and was sponsored by the National Student Forum. The study is to encourage peace, especially among the youths. As recognition in making a basic study of the Paris Peace Pact, the class and Miss Gerge have been awarded an honorable mention certificate. The certificate has been framed and hung in the history class room. A study of this type seems to be one of the most important studies of present-day topics. If the nation is to maintain peace, it must appeal to the youths in grade school, high schools, and colleges.

The F. F. A. chapter of Hagerman has been organized for the ensuing year and the following officers elected: President, Oscar Allison; vice-president, Clarence Bogle; secretary, Charles Wier; treasurer, Quentin Bartlett; farm watch dog, Richard Lange. Those eligible for this organization are those who are now enrolled in agriculture, or have previous credit. Price Curd is sponsor. Goals for 1935-1936 are: Initiation of "Green Hands," initiation of "Future Farmers," Father and Son Banquet, enter a judging team in the district contest, enter the state judging contest, poultry and egg show, livestock show, beautify the school building and grounds, socials, a summer outing, each student visit all the projects, encourage seed testing, encourage milk testing, athletic contests, dues paid one hundred per cent, to have at least one candidate for the "State Farmer" degree next year.

"Do cats go to heaven, mother?" "Why, no. They don't have souls so they could hardly be expected to go to heaven." "Then where do the angels get the strings for their harps?" "Come, dear, it's time for you to go to bed."

The home of Mrs. Mammie Walton is being remodeled this week. Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith are re-roofing their house this week. Mr. and Mrs. Don Riddle spent the week-end visiting friends in Roswell.

Sy Murphy from Clovis is working on the railroad section for a few weeks.

Fred and Arvel Edington motored to Mentone, Texas, last Friday afternoon on business.

Warren B. Scott from Portales spent the week-end visiting with his brother, Ben B. Scott.

The Misses Mozelle Holden and Maggie Rue Taylor were in Lake Arthur visiting the school Monday.

Miss Hannah Gerard and her sister Jessie Mae visited their father in Dexter last Saturday.

Last Friday afternoon the high school softball team was defeated in a game by Hagerman, 10 to 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edington, who have been living near Mentone, Texas, are now living in Lake Arthur.

Mrs. Ed McWenig and son Fred arrived Sunday afternoon for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Pate.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Bradley have finished moving to Portales where their daughter Gertrude is attending the Junior college.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church plans to go to Roswell this coming Sunday to a Fifth Sunday League meeting.

Mrs. Dougle Downs has returned from Clovis where she has been with her husband who is in the hospital and is reported to be some better.

Last Sunday night a very interesting program was enjoyed at the Methodist church before the preaching services were held by the Rev. McGrew. The program was directed by Miss Emmarie Perce, who was assisted by the Epworth League.

The sophomore class and their sponsor, Miss Eva Deering, entertained the high school students at a party given at the auditorium last Friday evening, initiating the freshmen. After a gay evening spent in playing games, refreshments of sandwiches, potato chips, cookies and koolade were served.

Mrs. J. R. Spence gave a stork shower for Mrs. Fred Edington last week. Those present were the Mes. J. M. Jones, Lesley Ellington, Otto Dozier, Tom Derrick, John Turner, Lyle Moots, Mary H. Moots, Orin Smith, Roy Hammons, E. L. Cummins, Homer Ingie, L. T. Alexander, Roy Vermillion, Z. Pate, Roy Buck, John Buck, and Will Walden. Many lovely gifts were received. Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served.

DOVE SEASON OPENED

Both the federal and state dove season opened Saturday, the 21st, over this area. Doves are reported fairly plentiful this year and hunters thus far have had good success.

A young man working for a Hebrew merchant asked for a raise. The Hebrew got out his pencil and paper and began to figure there are 365 days in a year—you work eight hours a day. That makes 122 days that you work. Dere are 52 Sundays vich leafs 70 days. Dere are 13 legal holidays, vich leaves 54 days. You get one hour for lunch, vich makes 40 days, date leafs 14 days. Den I give you two weeks holidays every year, so ven in the hell do you work?

Becoming Sports Frock With Jabot Is "The Top"

PATTERN 2341

It is not easy to find a sports frock that plays No Favorites when it comes to showing up the imperfect figure. But here's one that flatters, regardless, by the very simple device of a rippling jabot collar. But notice that our designer has not sacrificed one whit of the tailored chic and easy freedom the sports frock needs. The pleated sleeve for arm action—pleats in back bodice and skirt for freedom. Here is just the most perfect model for one of the lovely new printed satins that are being shown in such delicious pastel shades. A tie silk would be lovely and any number of cottons are available for a simpler version. Accent with matching buttons.

Pattern 2341 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 3/4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Smiles

Did you hear about the awful thing the teacher did to Jimmy? "No." "She made him wash his face at school, and when he got home his dog didn't know him and bit him."

Will Be Nice for Clerks

Wife—I'm going to town this afternoon. Hubby—Shopping? Wife—No; I won't have time. I just want to get some things I need.

No Doubt!

City Boy—How did you like shoeing that mule? Country Cousin—Oh, I got a big kick out of it.

How It Started

He—Your head reminds me of a story when you're asleep? She—Sleeping Beauty? He—No. Sleepy Hollow.

As to College Wardrobe, Here It Is

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A LOGICAL way to assemble the all important "back-to-school" wardrobe is to divide it into two types—the "musts" which are absolutely necessary, and the "would like to have's," which make clothes a thrill and a venture.

In the "musts" smart shirtwaist frocks in the new silk weaves should alternate with sweater and skirt outfits. We speak particularly of "new silk weaves" because that's what they really are—"new." Handsome, practical, dependable-wearing silks which have the "look" of wool, are the last word in smart fabrics. Don't overlook, especially, the new sun silks which have a rustic-looking rough-surfaced texture. These wool silks, as they are sometimes called, are practically crushless, and though they look like wool they are much cooler for early fall days and steam nicely, too.

The girl seated in the little inset picture is off to class in a strictly tailored frock of plaid wool silk which, to look at, you would think was wool. The dress buttons down the back and has cuffs and Peter Pan collar of pique.

The shirtwaist dress is full of bright ideas this fall. Round yokes, jeweled or fancy metal buttons, fur Peter Pan collars glorify the new silk models. Skirts have silk pleats; box pleats placed just above the knee all around are new and girlish looking.

The two-piece type of dress vies with one-piece styles. Perfect for campus wear is a two-piece frock as pictured to the left in the illustration. It is made of one of the chic tie-silks which are having such a pronounced vogue. This one is wine color with green dots. The blouse has flap pockets and the skirt buttons all the way down the front.

Prom-trotting daughters can really let themselves "go" on the subject of clothes. They can be glamorous and exciting and sophisticated and gloriously young, too, in satin, silk velvet or one of the new metal silks. This year's evening frocks go in for molded bodices and waistlines, wide belts or sashes and fullness spreading gently from the waist. Bodices are tricky. Sometimes they are merely a straight band of the fabric held up by camisole or "shoestring" straps. Again they are built up to cover the front of the throat in elaborately twisted, draped and winged treatments, with low-back décolletage.

Girls adore black. Let your daughter wear black in gleaming slipper satin or black velvet and then tell her to have her beau send her flowers for her hair instead of her corsage if she wants to be swish. Daughter will be very grand in a black slipper prom frock as pictured. It has the high-in-front wing-like effect above mentioned, contrasting the low-cut décolletage at the back. The shiny belt is all-over-stitched, which is the latest wrinkle for belts.

If your young hopeful is going to a coed college, she will want a few soft dressmaker-type afternoon dresses. For tea dancing nothing could be more ideal than a black silk-satin ensemble. Don't merely ask the salesman for "satin." For satisfaction in wear and appearance specify silk satin and insist upon it. The dress should have a cowl neck—that means glittering clips to daughter. The jacket should be cut on the classic lines of her sports jacket, with patch pockets and notched lapels. The skirt should come just below the break of the calf. Worn with one of the new baby bonnets of black silk velvet with ostrich plume tips, daughter will be devastating to her "date."

EVENING ENSEMBLE

Velvet for evening, velvet for daytime, velvet, velvet, velvet! All signs point to a velvet season. The evening ensemble pictured is of deep red stiff velvet—a Chanel model. Luxurious marten collar and cuffs add to the glory of this superb creation. Note the button fastening of the gown. Many of the Paris dresses show a down-the-front button closing.

FASHION SIGNALS GREEN FOR AUTUMN

Yellow, the sun's own color, is usually a summer favorite. This year has been no exception; yellow with brown, yellow with black and yellow with green is yellow still. This brings to mind that green is being waged on as the follow-up color.

When utterly satiated with the idea of current fashions it's a relief to be able to peer into the future. On a recent peek behind the scenes the discovery was made that green looked good to many manufacturers whose fall lines are in preparation. And why not? It's one of the Renaissance colors and a change from the inevitable browns, reds and rust. Each autumn brings a change also from the blues in which we have been steeped all summer.

There are a number of likely looking green woolen dresses ready to make their shop window debuts. Some of them are sure to win applause. It won't be long now before shopping throngs will flatten their noses against the plate glass front which shields the cloth-clad mannequin from the street.

Green, White Jade Having Tremendous Vogue in Paris

Green and white jade is having a tremendous vogue of popularity in Paris now. One-third of every jewelry shop window is devoted to fascinating carved necklaces, pins, clips and earrings, while fat rounded bracelets of uncarved jade are matched by round jade rings. Knick-knacks of carved jade such as small, fat Buddhas on jet stands, ugly little monkeys and awkward elephants are made in green and white jade and vary in size from tiny miniatures to statuettes of 8 or 10 inches in height.

Lesson for September 29

JOHN (THE MINISTER AND HIS PEOPLE)

LESSON TEXT—Third Epistle of John. GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, imitate not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God; he that doeth evil hath not seen God.—III John 11. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Letter From John. JUNIOR TOPIC—With Ink and Pen. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Our Church Friendly. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Friendly and Hospitable Church.

I. Personal History. 1. He was the son of Zebedee and brother of the apostle James (Matt. 4:21). The implication is that his father was in easy circumstances, for he had boats and hired servants (Mark 1:19, 20). 2. He was a disciple of John the Baptist (John 1:35-40). This was a most valuable training, for John was a man sent from God (John 1:6). The fiery eloquence of the Baptist no doubt profoundly impressed him. 3. He was called to follow Jesus (Matt. 4:21, 22). He was first called into the relationship of a disciple. As a disciple he came to know Jesus personally. 4. Appointed as an apostle (Matt. 10:2). Having been tested as a disciple, he now is appointed as an apostle (Mark 3:13-19; Luke 6:13-16).

II. His Character. 1. He was reserved. That is, he was decidedly reticent about himself. He speaks of himself as "the disciple whom Jesus loved" and "that other disciple." 2. He possessed a rare gift of penetrative insight. The truths set forth in his writings did not come as a result of reasoned judgment, but of penetrative insight. He was indeed a seer. 3. He was thoroughly masculine. Christian art does him a thorough injustice in portraying him as effeminate. He was intense, vehement in his temperament, as Christ declared (Mark 3:17).

III. Some Instances of Behavior. 1. Intolerance of irregular service (Luke 9:49, 50). There was a certain disciple who seems to have been intelligently witnessing and God had honored his testimony with power to cast out devils. John forbade him because he was not working with them. 2. His righteous indignation displayed (Luke 9:51-56). When Jesus had set his face toward Jerusalem some Samaritans refused to extend hospitality to him. This treatment of his Master so aroused the anger of John and James that they desired to call down fire from heaven to burn them up. This action grew out of John's great love for his Master. 3. John's care of Christ's mother (John 19:25-27). From the cross Jesus beheld his mother and committed her to the tender care of John. The intense love that he had for his Lord would move him to express the tenderest affection for his mother. 4. His Third Epistle. This is one of the three private Epistles of the New Testament and gives us a look into the early church life and also a picture of the aged apostle. This Epistle consists of the following parts: 1. The salutation (vv. 1-4). This letter was addressed to Gaius, with the fervent wish that his temporal prosperity and physical health would be measured by the measure of the increase of his spirituality. His supreme joy was to hear that his children were walking in the truth. 2. His praise for Gaius (vv. 5-8). This praise was for the hospitality which Gaius showed toward some traveling evangelists. In spite of the opposition of a certain prominent member of the church, Gaius received these preachers into his home. To receive God's messengers into our homes and send them forth on their journey is a deed worthy of God. One of the best ways to help the truth is to show hospitality to its messengers. 3. His condemnation of Diotrephes (vv. 9, 10). The sin of this man was his over-weening self-confidence and arrogance. He loved to have the place of pre-eminence; therefore, for that reason he refused to receive these traveling evangelists and expelled from the church those who had received them into their homes. He even maliciously attacked John the beloved pastor. His spirit of pride moved him to acts of tyranny toward others. 4. His commendation of Demetrius (v. 12). Demetrius was perhaps the bearer of this letter. John gives the assurance that Demetrius was of good report among all men. His life of good deeds proved that he was in fellowship with God.

Victory

A more glorious victory cannot be gained over another man than this, that when the injury began on his part the kindness should begin in ours.—Tillotson.

Going After Old Al Capone Taxes

Joseph Lawrence, administrator of taxes and penalties of the Department of Justice, is pictured at his desk poring over documents which furnish information for the assessment of $120,000 in old liquor taxes against Al Capone and some of the members of the old Chicago syndicate with which he was connected in the days of prohibition. A total of some 19,000,000 old barrels of high power beer, seized by authorities between 1921 and 1932, furnished the basis of the assessment.

She Ran Aground, but No Life Was Lost

This is the Morgan liner Dixie which, with 200 passengers and a crew of 140 aboard, lashed in a hurricane, went aground on a reef off the Florida keys, about 50 miles south of Miami. The Dixie was taken off in safety. The Dixie's officers and crew won high praise for their gallant behavior.

BURMA'S SACRED CITY

The Ananda, a Temple of Pagan.

By National Geographic Society.
 Pagan, B. C.—W. S. U. Service.
 Burma's Sacred City, solemnity and mystery; it is enchantment. Here, southwest of Mandalay, the traveler finds himself in a veritable forest of temples, pagodas, large and small, perfect or almost unrecog- nized because of decay. Before he bulks the traveler be- comes painfully conscious of his own insignificance. His presence seems an impertinent intrusion on the crumbling walls, the fall- ing spires and the desolation are the vanity of fame, the transience of glory, and the futi- lity of human effort.

5,000 or more temples that are to be seen, the Ananda, Thathaynyu, and Gawdawpalin, all three within a circle of a mile radius, are as beautiful and majestic. The Ananda rises like a struc- ture of foam. On its summit, like a sun upon some altar, a silen- tly shining spire gathers the radi- ant sun and flings it forth every quarter. It is the all the temples to com- plete the traveler's attention; it is upon which he gazes as the steamer bears him away. Thathaynyu has suffered from time and neglect than Ananda. Its walls are red and much of the detail ornamentation has fallen. It is hardly beautiful; it is about it is a suggestion of solemnity and a noble conception.

Third temple has neither the beauty of the Ananda nor the simplicity of the Thathaynyu; the perfect harmony of its lines, the refinement of every detail has a charm of its own. It shares with the others to all which Pagan casts over the most careless visitor.

View From Circuit House.
 The Gawdawpalin the path to the circuit house. At a step is revealed some new effects, some new har- mony of proportion or felicitous call, and from the spaciousness of the resthouse the view never to be forgotten. West- ward the river and the hills, silver and blue in the sunset; eastward the Gawdawpalin, orange light and soft purple rays mingling and shifting over the battlements; farther away Ananda and the Thathaynyu, distinct in the twilight; and round, the half-seen outlines of Pagan.

Conquered by the Chinese.
 For more than two centuries the successors of Anawrata more or less worthily maintained the dignity and prestige of Pagan. But in the north was developing a power that was soon to engulf not Pagan only, but almost the entire continent of Asia. Kublai Khan in 1254 con- quered what is now Yunnan, and the Chinese were thus brought into contact with Burma. To the result- ing conflict there could be but one issue. In 1286 Pagan fell before invaders from the north, never again to attain historical signifi- cance. Of the great battle between the two armies on the plain of Voelam, Marco Polo gives a graphic and spirited account.

Anawrata's Great Reform.
 After Anawrata ascended the throne Buddhist missionaries came to Pagan from the country of the Talings, a people dwelling south and, as a result of the contact and easy communication with India by sea, highly civilized. The Taling missionaries found a zealous convert. He ex- horted the priests of the abomin- ous cult that for so many years debauched his people, strict- ly proscribed the Naga worship, and everything in his power to fur- ther the efforts of the preachers. His fervor had, however, one in- evitable result. Hearing that there were in Thanton, the Taling cap- tives and several precious relics, he sent a noble envoy to beg for portions as might be spared. The reasonable request was refused in singularly insolent manner. With characteristic energy An- awrata assembled an army and moved against Thanton. He completely successful, and as spoils of victory he carried back Pagan not only the books and price- less relics but the king queen of the fallen city, to- gether with principal nobles, rich and poor, 32 white elephants, and a host of 30,000 artificers and schol- ars.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
 by William Bruckart
 National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—For fifty years, American diplomatic methods have been the subject of titling among the trained agents of foreign na- tions. True, they never laughed openly or in a loud guffaw at the international practices of the United States but it is a well known fact that American methods were always mentioned somewhat in a spirit of mirth. And well they might be. The American government with its system of constantly changing its foreign emissaries has had few outstanding diplomats and never has kept those few outstanding individuals on the job very long un- der any circumstances. The condi- tion of American diplomatic capa- city is shown no better than by the latest debacle—the Russian recog- nition case. As usual, the American government got licked on the diplo- matic field. It may reassert itself yet by breaking off relations with the Russian Soviet government but it is uncertain at this writing whether that can be done with safety.

What I am trying to say is that in according recognition to the So- viets, American statesmen were not clever enough to guard against the more shrewd and better trained ne- gotiators sent here by Dictator Stalin. The result is that our protests about Soviet communistic propa- ganda in the United States were rejected, tossed bodily out of the window with an ejaculation that the objection had no basis.

Let us go back to the original ne- gotiations, "the events leading up to the tragedy" as it were. It will be remembered that in 1933, Pres- ident Roosevelt invited the Russian government to send a commission here for a discussion of relations, or lack of them, between Moscow and Washington. He told the Rus- sians that he wanted to be a good neighbor to them and wanted them to be a good neighbor to us. He saw no insurmountable problem or ob- stacle to recognition of the exist- ing government of all the Russians; the government was functioning and it was entitled to be regarded as a sovereign power. He proposed, there- fore, that consideration be given to establishment of formal relations between the two powers.

Maxim Litvinoff, a Soviet official corresponding to our secretary of state, appeared in Washington and negotiations for recognition were open. It was decided early in those con- versations that the war debt of the Czarist government to the United States should be set aside and a settlement worked out after the two nations had reached an agreement on other phases of international re- lationships. The Soviet always has disclaimed any obligation in con- nection with the debt contracted by Czar Nicholas during the World war and the United States has had noth- ing to show for the several hundred millions advanced to the Czar ex- cept some L. O. U's.

Numerous Hitches
 The proceedings developed num- erous hitches but each was ironed out in turn and in a series of com- munications ex- changed between Mr. Roosevelt and M. Litvinoff, the various pledges and promises usual between nations were made. Includ- ed in these pledges was one which since has become the bug-bear of a controversy and which, if American recognition is withdrawn, will be the crux of the incident.

Activity in Politics
 The passing of Labor day in Washington seems to be the signal for the bulk of government of- ficials to return to their desks and always with that return there comes swift and burning activity in politics. Usually, also, the passing of Labor day sees the return to Wash- ington of other types of vacation- ists—Washington being what it is in August—and they, too, bring back new political ideas. Hence, just at this writing Washington is deluged with all kinds of political fireworks.

As far as I have been able to analyze the situation, there are three distinct classes. The first em- braces those who go out on vaca- tions to see whether they can find as much or more support for the ad- ministration in power at the time than in the previous vacations; a second group includes those who go out with a determination to find that the administration is in a tailspin and losing ground rapidly, and the third is made up of vacation- ists who do not concern themselves directly about politics but who can- not avoid political discussions be- cause of their residence in Wash- ington. So, just now, we are sur- feited with political declarations that Mr. Roosevelt is stronger than ever before; that he has lost so much ground that his election is improbable and the unblasted as- sertions that he has gained in some communities and has lost immeasur- ably in others.

Old Fashioned Patchwork Quilts

Grandmother Clark's Patchwork Quilt Designs
 By GRANDMOTHER CLARK
 From all indications quilt makers will be busy this winter making more quilts. Quilts are still very attrac- tive for needle workers, and any sug- gestion on this work will be wel- comed.

Patchwork Quilt making is much easier today than during Colonial days. Patches are more easily ob- tained. Diagrams and cutouts for patches and books of instruction are printed. All of these make the work easier and more quilts are being made.

Grandmother Clark's Book No. 20 on Patchwork Quilts contains 30 quilts with cutting diagram for patches, also several ways to assem- ble 12 and 18-inch quilt blocks.

This book contains information and diagrams for the quilts shown above and many other old designs. Send us 15 cents for this book No. 20 and receive it by mail.

DOGIES, DEACONS STILL HEARD IN SPEECH OF WEST

Cowboys may not be churchgoers, but they know their "deacons"; they may not be familiar with interior decorations, but they're well acquaint- ed with "hatracks."

Although much of the picturesque language commonly associated with the "Wild West" of a few decades ago has been swallowed up in chang- ing times and customs, a few of the terms applied to live stock in another generation still linger on in the modern live stock and meat industry, ac- cording to the Institute of American Meat Packers.

"Notwithstanding the fact that tre- mendous improvements have been made in live stock breeding in recent decades and many new terms have been coined to identify the better grades of cattle, hogs, and sheep, the same names applied to certain grades fifty years ago are still accepted to- day," the institute explained.

"For instance, a 'deacon' is still a very young calf, and a 'hatrack' is still merely an animal that is too thin to be sold for fresh beef."

Other terms which have survived in the face of vast changes and im- provements in the live stock and meat industry include "dogies," which are small cattle native to the south- ern states and made famous in a cowboy song-hit of recent memory; "singers," which are hogs with nar- row backs and straight sides well adapted for lean bacon; "mules,"—sometimes called "mooles,"—which are hornless breeds of cattle; "jack pots," for mixed lots of cattle; and "pewees," which are exceptionally small pigs or lambs.

May Still Get Project Thru To Plug Old Wells

Approval by the president of WPA projects allotments does not necessarily mean work will be started on them, Lea Rowland, New Mexico WPA director, warned Monday at Santa Fe.

Some of the projects may never be built, he said, because "we may never get the money. No project is to be started unless the money is here, cash in the hand as it were."

Several projects, Rowland said, have had the money allotted by the president, but on return to the WPA officers in Washington the projects have been turned down and the money returned to the general WPA fund.

Another couple of projects refused were capping wells in the artesian basin. Rowland said the load had been put on his shoulders and he has practically the last word on the projects.

There will be no road work, either, until actual cash is in hand, Rowland said, and when such, if any, road work is begun it will be with proper and ample equipment.

"I will not approve start of any road job," Rowland said, "until we get enough and the right kind of equipment to do a first-class job. I am not going to throw any money away on road projects when there is a lack of equipment, or where there is improper equipment."

Parson Smith of Louisiana, whose shoulders are drooped with the responsibility of carrying on the "Share the Wealth" campaign in Louisiana, has apparently about faced on his exhortations. He's telling the public to have a good time with the distribution of wealth here on earth rather than trying to prepare for a better world and he's probably got a bigger following than when a minister because he says he can influence 300,000.

Dexter Items

The Little Gray Church The congregation of the Little Gray Church, Dexter, are making preparations for an elaborate dedication of the Presbyterian Gardens, Sunday, October 13th, 2:30 p. m., on the lawns of the gardens.

The construction of the Presbyterian Gardens began six years ago and has continued to grow in extent and beauty. Last fall the gardens attracted nation-wide attention by winning third-class rating in the "More Beautiful America Contest," in which there were more than four thousand contestants representing almost all parts of the United States.

The church buildings are ordinary, but they fit into the surroundings making it, perhaps, the most beautiful church and gardens in America with the exception of the Cathedral in Washington, D. C.

One thousand people are expected to attend the ceremony, with people from Albuquerque, Roswell, Artesia, Hagerman, Dexter and Carlsbad taking part. The pastors of all churches of Roswell, Carlsbad, Hagerman, Dexter and Artesia are invited as honor guests and their congregations are invited to attend in a body. The public is invited.

A hymn, "The Little Gray Church," words and music have been arranged for the occasion and will be rendered.

(Apology to "The Church in the Wildwood")

There is a little gray church in the gardens, The loveliest place in the dale; No place is so dear to our children As the little gray church in the vale.

'Tis so sweet every Sabbath morning, To walk through its fair blooming trails; Its beauty softly is calling: Will you come to the church in the vale.

There surrounding the church in the gardens, Grow the flowers we love so well; Here they grow in the West near the meadows;

For it's here God's love never fails, Enter the church in the gardens, For it's here God's love never fails; No place is so loved by our children As the little gray church in the vale.

'Tis there, within the church, in the gardens, 'Neath the trees where the fair flowers bloom, Where God's hymns of praise shall be chanted, Christ shall reign evermore in my soul.

8 Hundred Million In WPA Funds Are Ready For Work

WASHINGTON — The Works Progress Administration's cash register Monday rang up an additional eight hundred million dollars intended to stimulate its dragging campaign to transfer three and a half million individuals from the dole to jobs by November 1.

One of the first official acts of the president upon returning to the capital from Hyde Park, New York, was to add this sum to the nine hundred million dollars set aside in the work-relief act for loans or grants on non-federal works projects.

WPA officials said broad cuts in funds for such activities as highway construction, grade crossing elimination, and rural rehabilitation and electrification would be necessary to obtain the eight hundred million dollars.

But no authoritative predictions were ventured on just where the curtailments would fall.

The president's executive order boosting the total for WPA loans or grants to one billion seven hundred million dollars was based on a provision in the four billion eight hundred million dollar works act

ELEANOR PADDOCK HONORED AT PARTY

Miss Eleanor Paddock, whose marriage to Wilfred McCormick will occur this fall, was the honoree last Sunday afternoon at a very charming tea, given by Miss Harriet Poorbaugh at her home.

Lovely flowers were used as decorations in the rooms, the tea table was beautifully arranged with a lace cloth, and centered with roses and lighted by tapers. A dainty salad course was served. Favors were corsages of rosebuds.

With the honoree and the hostess guests were those who had taught school with Miss Paddock at the East Side school, namely: Mrs. Hilton Cox, Misses Alma Greenwood, Lenore Shafer, Flossie White, Oriol Curtis, Margaret Wolfe, Florrie Rabb and Rose Hurt.

The Junior class entertained the Sophomore class last Friday evening with a picnic at the siphon. Several cars furnished transportation and both classes were well represented. Games were played, and a picnic lunch enjoyed. Miss Katherine Hammock and Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Welborne were chaperones.

T. CLUB

Mrs. Gladys Lawing was hostess to the T. club on Thursday of last week. The afternoon was spent in sewing and planning on making Christmas presents. Refreshments of sandwiches, potato chips and iced tea were served to Abbie McAllister, Boots Graham, Mary Phillips, Mrs. Richmond Hams and the hostess. Plans were also made to serve the Men's club on Tuesday evening.

D. D. CLUB PARTIES

The club met on Monday night of last week with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Losey and were served a delicious chicken salad dinner. Present with the hosts was Jack Sweatt, and Messrs. and Mmes. Dub Andrus, Cliff Hearn, Ramon Welborne, Misses Jessie George, Gene Seeley and Frances Welborne, who substituted for Mrs. Jack Sweatt. Dub Andrus was high score winner.

On Monday evening of this week they met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hearn. The home was beautifully decorated with large baskets of wild flowers, which had been picked on a trip to Weed by the hostess on Sunday. All members were present for the dinner and games. Dub Andrus was high score winner.

PRESBYTERIAN AID

Mrs. C. G. Mason was hostess yesterday to quite a large guest and membership of the ladies aid. After a short business session, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of ginger bread topped with whipped cream and coffee were served.

allowing him to use twenty per cent of the total to increase any individual appropriation "if he finds it necessary" to effectuate purposes of the act.

With only 936,000 persons moved from relief rolls to payrolls at the close of last week, WPA faced the gigantic task of creating an average of more than 64,000 jobs daily to reach the November goal.

Another branch of the works program, relied on by officials to provide directly and indirectly around 300,000 jobs in the next year, was virtually ready to get under way. Secretary Ickes told a gathering of all state public works administrators that a new list of PWA projects were ready Monday night to lay before the president.

PWA will get only two hundred million dollars more for new projects under the revised set-up. Ickes said, however, that the list which probably will be announced

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Tom McKinstry made a business trip to Roswell on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Jacobson have moved to the Mineral Wells apartments from the south apartments.

Roswell Seed Company put on a very interesting broadcast on Tuesday, advertising the Hagerman School-Community Fair. This is a wide-awake store and misses nothing. We appreciate their publicity.

Friends of Miss Helen Pritchard of Roswell will regret to learn that she recently underwent an appendicitis operation and on Wednesday suffered a relapse and will have to remain in the hospital for a while yet.

Elsewhere in The Messenger you will find a welcome from one of our former boys in Hagerman high school. Roy King has purchased the Mint Cafe on East Second street, and is serving wonderful meals.

Miss Ruth Wiggins left today to accompany her grandmother, Mrs. Mitchell, to Long Beach, California. Mrs. Mitchell has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins for several weeks. Ruth expects to visit in Long Beach for about a month.

John Garner, who left last week for New Orleans, had a very pleasant day on Saturday in Dallas visiting his aunt, Mr. Garner's sister. He arrived in New Orleans on Sunday and wrote that he had already seen many old historic scenes in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hearn and Mrs. J. T. West went to Weed last Sunday to take Miss Clara Hearn, an aunt of Mr. Hearn, who had been visiting them. Miss Hearn will visit Mrs. M. G. Hearn in Weed and later they plan to spend the winter in Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Mason report a very pleasant trip to Albuquerque and other northern towns last week. In Albuquerque they attended the undertakers convention. From there they visited Santa Fe, Chimayo and Santa Domingo, where Mrs. Mason collected Indian curios.

John Duke Garner left last Friday for New Orleans, Louisiana, where he enrolled in Tulane University. Work comes from him that he is liking everything fine and school opened on Wednesday. John is one of Hagerman graduates in the honor class, and was a 1935 honor graduate from the New Mexico Military Institute.

An old country boy was about to take a trip and he bought a ticket and inquired as to the price of a sleeping berth. "Upper or lower?" asked the agent.

"What's the difference?" "A difference of fifty cents. Besides, the lower is higher than the upper. The higher price is for the lower. If you want it lower you'll have to go higher. We sell the upper lower than the lower. In other words, the higher, the lower. Most people don't like the upper, although it is lower on account of its being higher. When you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed, and get down to get up. You can have the lower if you pay higher. The upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. If you are winning to go higher it will be lower."
