Livestock And Kanges Improve Over Last Year

Aided by fairly heavy rains over eastern New Mexico, the ranges have shown consistent improvement and the grass and weed crop is probably the best seen here in several months. Stock water is ample over the state. The condition of the range is reported at eighty-five per cent of normal as compared with eighty-one per cent last month and eighty-four per cent on a ten-year average.

Cattle and all kinds of livestock continue to improve on the range. The calf crop is possibly the largest in years and with the present range conditions the crop should be raised with very small losses. Few cattle sales are reported and practically no contracts yet made for the productivity of the soil on his June Water Level In Ten-Year High

Clifford Smith, artesian well supervisor, said Tuesday substantial progress is being made by the well plugging crew working in the lower part of the artesian basin. The crew has plugged seventeen wells in the Lakewood community and has about three more to plug before moving closer to the Artesia sector. The crew will endeavor to stop the flow in all leaky and abandoned wells in the territory between Seven Rivers and Four Mile before leaving that territory.

The upper well plugging crew has plugged four wells in the Orchard Park district and will shortly move into the Dexter community.

The June readings of the three water gauges in the artesian basin of the Pecos valley are the highest in ten years, according to Clifford Smith, well supervisor. The rising the Gulf was the Smith No. 1, water level in the basin is due largely to the well plugging underway for the past two years. Two gauges, one here and one at Orchard Park, showed the water level to be the highest since 1926.

Artesia records: June 2, 1936, 0.0 feet, the water level being lower each year back by the following feet: 8.1, 7.4, 8.0, 3.8, 4.6, 1.0, 2.1, 9.5, 7.1, and 2.5 lower in

Orchard Park records: Orchard Park 1936, June 2 reading, 0.0, then going back year by year the water level was lower each year than this year on the June 2 date by the following feet: 7.2, 10.3, 9.8, 0.2, 7.2, 8.7, 12.0, 8.5, 8.0 and 0.0 feet

At the Berrendo recorder the ing feet in each year back to 1926, beginning with this year: 0.0 feet, 0.3, 0.6, 2.7, 3.0, 4.0, 4.8, 4.7, 5.4, 6.7. In other words in the Berrendo readings the water level has drop-1926 in June.

These readings show good increases this year in the Artesia and Orchard Park water levels and lower in the Berrendo. The explanation of that, of course, is that Artesia and Orchard Park is lower than the Berrendo and the lower part of the Artesia basin is filling

"A Man-Eating Barracuda" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

FEXT time you're out to Jones Beach State park and see a big husky blond Adonis in a life guard's suit, give him the high sign. He is Capt. William Johns of Jones Beach State park, aw her sitting there, straight and Long Island, and he has had more adventures than you can two things-power a shake a stick at.

> Cap makes the club with a story of a fight he had with a giant barracuda. The barracuda, which is known as "the tiger of the seas," is just about the toughest and most dangerous fish in American waters. Those babies make a full grown shark look like a gold fish when it comes to downright ferocity.

Did you ever see a barracuda? They've got mouths on them like alligators with a double row of needle-sharp teeth that can cut a man's leg like a hot knife cuts butter. They don't come as big as sharks but are much more feared by fishcrmen who know.

Why, by golly, when you hook a small barracuda you've got to kill alm before you pull him in the boat or it's just too bad. They can put up an awful fight even out of water and you'd better be sure he's dead before you try removing the hook or you're apt to lose a finger or a hand, depending on the size of the fish.

Cap Was No Munchausen About His Adventures.

Cap has been a seal hunter in the Baltic; a lumberjack in Canada; a soldier of fortune in Mexico; a sailor under many flags; a boxer and wrestler; a swimming instructor; life guard; a big game hunter and shark asherman and a lot of other adventurous things but he says he never had a closer call than he had with that barracuda.

Cap, by the way, is the fellow who caught a seagull on the wing, down in Florida a few years ago. That trick was an accident but it's worth telling. Cap was fishing for sailfish and using live bait. He threw his line, baited with a small fish, into the air and the seagull swooped down and snatched the hook and bait before it touched the water.

I call catching a bird good fishing. Don't you? Cap let the seagull go, of course, and I'll bet that gull flew away a wiser but sadder bird, Sea Tiger "Picks" on Life Guard.

The barracuda was something else again. Cap was acting as a lifeguard at the Roman Pools-a swimming club in Miami-when he decided o spear himself some breakfast. He waded into the water up to his neck

Cap Drove the Second Spear With All His Might.

He stared hard at the ceiling and looked around for some nice luscious mullet. He didn't see any mullet that morning but he did see a big sand shark and drove his spear into its tough hide. Now a sand shark isn't dangerous like his man-eating cousin I'm all right, but a hand never but the blood from the wounded sand shark attracted a passing sea bandit

That sea bandit was a hungry barracuda and he came straight for Cap. Cap knew what he was up against at a glance. He was glad he had his feet on the bottom. Expert swimmer as he is, Cap knew he wouldn't have a chance in deep water against the tiger of the seas. He knew too that he couldn't run away without taking a chance on losing a limb or two-perhaps his life.

The fish was nearly six feet long-the largest Cap had ever seen-and away. He licked his chops and a man with his shoulder slammed fingers against his lips, "You musttight against the window casing n't talk. You'll be all right. Ezra mite. Cap had two small spears with him and as he saw the flash of those

Cap Just Missed Being a Fish Dinner.

The spear broke off in the tough hide of the fish but didn't seem to phaze him. He leaped several feet out of the water and turning in the air opened that big alligator mouth of his and Cap says he thought it was the end.

Zowie! That foot-long mouth lined with dagger-like teeth snapped shut in Cap's face with a sound like a steel trap. Cap says he'd sooner hear Mauser shells singing around his head any day. He knew that on whatever part of his anatomy those teeth closed that part would come away. The streak of silver shot at him again and Cap grabbed his second spear and, stepping aside, drove it with all his force into his enemy's body, A thrust like that would kill a man-eating shark or cause him to give up the battle but not a barracuda. Those bables just don't know the meaning of the word quit. They quit when they are dead and no sooner,

A Harpoon Finished Old Man Barracuda.

Well, sir, the second spear broke off the way the first one had and Cap found himself with only the wooden bandle for a weapon. He started velling for assistance, hoping that someone would have the nerve to bring him out a harpoon. But, he says, he wouldn't blame anyone for hesitating. The barracuda enjoys such a bad reputation along the Florida coast that most of the natives stay far away from his dental array. And I don't blame them.

But Cap Johns got a break. One of his life saving crew saved their captain. He saw Cap fighting for his life and grabbing a harpoon ran out in the water. The battle had been going on for over ten minutes when he got there. And he arrived just in time. Cap was just about exhausted and those snapping teeth were coming closer and closer. Cap figured be couldn't hold out until the lifeguard got to him and be selled for the other man to throw him the harpoon. The lifeguard threw the sharp weapon. The harpoon flashed in the sun and Cap grabbed it like a juggler and in one quick movement drove knife, point into the jaws that were wide open to grab him! And that was the end of Cap's barracuda as well as the end of Cap's adventure. And, if you don't think it was a close call, just take a peep at a barracuda's upper and lower plates the next

WHEN LIFE HANGS BY A THRE OF TIRE CONSTRUCTO HIGH SPEED

WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE On May 30th, Louis Meyer broke the track record, at 109 miles per hour, driving the entire race without tire trouble of any kind. Heisthe only driver ever to win the race three times, and has always used Firestone Tires. No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

GUM-DIPPED TIRES

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.

Senate Passes Its Own

Tax Revenue Measure THE senate passed the $829,000. ure by a vote of 35 to 24. The bill then went to conference with the house of representatives which had enacted a revenue measure carrying out tax proposals made by President Roosevelt. The senate measure called for a 151/2 to 18 per cent tax on net corporate incomes as compared with the present 121/2 to 15 per cent levy; a new type of 7 per cent tax on undistributed profits; repeal of the existing exemption of dividends from the 4 per cent normal income tax; an increase of 1 per cent in the individual income surtax on surtax brackets between $6,000 and $50,000. The house measure called for a tax on corporate net income scaling up to 421/2 per cent, depending upon the amount of undistributed profits.

Is Father Once More

at the Age of 96 GEORGE ISAAC Hughes, ninety-six-year-old Confederate veteran, amazed the medical world by becoming a father again. This time a girl was born to Hughes' twentyeight-year-old wife, Libby Hill Hughes. The Hughes' first born is now a lusty lad of seventeen months. Surprisingly vigorous for his age. Hughes was the only veteran in his area to attend recent Confederate memorial exercises. The veteran's mental faculties are clear. He is able to do considerable physical work including caring for a garden, chopping wood and doing odd jobs.

Filene Plan Urges Ban on Unfair Trade Practices

IN A report just made public the business advisory council proposes a simplified basis for industrial self-regulation through the medium of voluntary joint agreements on unfair trade practices enforcable by the federal trade commission. The report was prepared by the council's committee on unfair trade practices of which Lincoln Filene of Boston is chairman.

Outstanding among the committee's proposals were suggestions that each branch of an industry, such as wholesale, retail, and manufacturing, police the activities of each other through confidential reports to the federal trade commission and that no attempt be made to include trade practice and labor provisions in the same agreement.
