Reports From All Over The Country Show That The Conditions Are Good

NO CHANCE FOR "HARD TIMES"

We have heard so much of late of the hard times, of the shortage of this and that, high prices and no money, that since a few reliable reports have come to our notice it might be worth while to publish a few extracts from them

Of course this particular community has been exceptionally hard hit owing to three continuous vears of drought, but get "rosie," things are bound to turn out right soon.

The Continental and Commercial National bank, of Chicago, second largest bank in the United States, has just published the results of an inquiry by letter addressed to many thousands of banking correspondents and business houses throughout the south and west, into the general business situation, the outlook for the future, and the experiences of the recent past. From the published summary the following very reasuring paragraphs deductions from the most conservative sources of information avail-

There is work for everybody, in many localities complaints that production is restricted for want of labor and the competition frost holds off for a couple of weeks of employers is pushing wages longer good winter range will be assteadily higher. It is interesting to note the complaint everywhere that the automobile industry is making labor scarce and dear, for ty, the Fort Stanton team was deit illustrates how each development of civilization reacts upon the condition of the humblest member of society.

The volume of business has been large; but there are frequent complaints that competition is sharper lots were cast, of which Messrs and the margin of profit smaller Canning and Aragon received each than ever, that labor is dictatorial and that improved methods are constantly required to offset its demands. But the story of industrial progress reads like that from the died at the Hust home in Tortolita beginning.

We have made considerable inquiry into this, and our information is that the farmer who buys an outomobile generally pays cash in Carrizozo. for it and is better able to own it to him than to any other class of purchasers.

another year of substantial prosperity. The northwest has been hurt by a short crop, as Texas and Oklahoma were hurt last year, but the latter have done well this year, and a good average for the whole country seems to be practically assured. The industries and enterprises of the country will go forward upon this with renewed confidence and energy.

CAPITAN CORRESPONDENCE

Three criminal cases in the Justice Court and a lively ball game made "something doing" in Capitan Monday. The criminal cases referred to were styled the Territory of New Mexico vs. Ben Leslie, R' J Wood, abduction and were the out come of the elopement of Ben Leslie, a son of Bob Leslie of Santa Fe, N M. with the 14 year old daughter of W. TAX ASSESSMENT returns are all amusing if not interesting statistics in regard to their peculiarities. The Assessors usually put forth their best efforts to return as complete and accurate rolls as within their power, it being to their personal interest to do so, but the people, nevertheless, with-hold much of their per sonal property and when the figures are summed up they assume peculiar proportions at times Assessor Robert Hart has favored us with a summary of Lincoln county taxes as assessed by him this Spring and recently approved by the Commissioners There is no question about Mr. Hurt doing his duty but the people don't. Take for instance a few of the items in the following list. There is only a little over one thousand dollars worth of jewelry in the whole county when any observing citizens could glance around among his friends and see three times that value in "blue white rocks" displayed on their persons--yet there are over $2000 worth of watches and clocks. The county has a long run on Sewing machines $5,045 worth, and the total value of the wagons, carriages etc. in the county is only a third more $7,985 The total value of the household goods of the county is only $12,080 and it would be difficult to try to buy,

The sheep valuations is only $177,980 and yet one of the local sheep inspectors has dipped over 86,-000 sheep and there are three others at the same job. The summary is as follows

BE SOMTHING BY P. C. BAIRD

There is a moral grandeur in the thought "I have made my self". The world may wag their heads and you may be denounsed, but if you are caucious of that integrity of purpose which has always characterized you, and that you now stand on an eminence placed there by your rectitude of heart, you have nothing to fear.

You have not the influence of wealth, not the "God speed you" of powerful friends; but you had more a heart fixed and determined and this is what has made you what you are. Go on, add virtue -Word comes from Attorney to virtue; look steadily at the goal teachers and artful companions -Francis Canning will leave will aknowledge your superiority and feel proud of being among the number of your friends.

In Address Before the Conservation Congress at St. Paul He Says New Methods of Developing and Using Natural Resources of Country Are Needed.

on "National Efficiency" before the conservation congress today, former President Roosevelt impressed on his hearers the fact that conservation has become a national duty and must be looked at from a new point of view and accomplished by new methods of developing and using the natural resources of the country. His address was the feature of the day's program and was listened to by a throng that tested the capacity of the hall and that frequently applauded the colonel's vigorous language. The address in full was as follows:

America's reputation for efficiency stands deservedy high throughout the world. We are efficient probably to the full-limit that any nation can attain by the methods hitherto used. There is great reason to be proud of our achievements, and yet no reason to believe that we cannot excel our past. Through a practically unrestrained individualism, we have reached a pitch of literary unexampled material prosperity; although the distribution of this prosperity leaves much to be desired from the standpoint of justice and fair dealing. But we have not only allowed the individual a free hand, which was in the main right; we have also allowed great corporations to act as though they were individuals, and to exercise the rights of individuals, in addition to using the vast combined power of high organization and enormous wealth for their own advantage. This development of corporate action, it is true, is doubtless in large part responsible for the gigantic development of our natural resources, but it is not less responsible for waste, destruction, and monopoly on an equally gigantic

The method of reckless and uncontrolled private use and waste has done for us all the good it ever can, and it is time to put an end to it before it does all the evil it easily may. We have passed the time when heedless waste and destruction, and arrogant monopoly, are any longer permissible. Henceforth we must seek National efficiency by a new and a better way, by the way of the orderly development and use, coupled with the preservation, of our natural resources by making the most of what we have for the benefit of all of us. instead of leaving the sources of material prosperity open to indiscriminate exploitation. These are some of the reasons why it is wise that we should abandon the of and why conservation has become a pa-

Waterways Development.

One of the greatest of our conservation problems is the wise and prompt development and use of the waterways of this Nation: The Twin Cities, lying as they do at the headwaters of the Mississippl, are not upon the direct line of the proposed lakes to the gulf deep waterway. Yet they are deeply interested in its prompt completion, as well as in the deepening and regulation of the Mississippi to the mouth of the Missouri and to the gulf. The project for a great trunk waterway, an arm of the sea, extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes, should not be abandoned. The lakes to the gulf deep waterway, and the development of the rivers which flow into it, should be pushed to completion vigorously and without delay.

In nearly every river city from St. Paul to the gulf the water-front is controlled by the railways. Nearly every artificial waterway in the United States, either directly or indirectly, is under the same control. It goes without saying that (unless the people prevent it in advance) the railways will attempt to take control of our waterways as fast as they are improved and completed; nor would I blame them, if we, the people, are supine in the matter. We must see to it that adequate terminals are provided in every city and town on every improved waterway, terminals open under reasonable conditions to the use of every citizen, and rigidly protected against monopoly; and we must compel the railways to co-operate with the waterways continuously, effectively, and under reasonable conditions. Unless we do so the railway lines will refuse to deliver freight to the boat lines, either openly or by imposing prohibitory conditions, and the waterways once improved will do comparatively little for the benefit of the people who pay the bill.

Adequate terminals properly controlled and open through lines by rail and boat are two absolutely essential conditions to the usefulness of inland waterway development. I believe furthermore that the railways should be prohibited from owning, controlling, or carrying any interest in the boat lines on our rivers, unless under the strictest regulation and control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, so that the shippers' interests may be fully protected.

The National Forests.

If any proof were needed that forest protection is a National duty, the recent destruction of forests in the west by fire would supply it. Even with the aid of the army added to that of the forest service the loss has been severe. Without either it would have been vastly

But the forest service does more than protect the National forests against fire. It makes them practically and increasingly useful as well. During the last year for which I have the figures the National forests were used by 22,000 cattlemen with their herds, 5,000 sheepmen with their flocks, 5,000 timbermen with their crews, and 45,000 miners. More than 5,000 persons used them for other special industries. Nearly 34,000 settlers had the free use of wood. The total resident population of the National forests is about a quarter of a million, which larger than the population of certain More than 700,000 acres of agricultural land have been patented or listed for patent within the forests, and the reports of the forest officers show that more than 400,000 people a year use

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—Speaking | the forests for recreation, camping, hunting, fishing, and similar purposes. All this is done, of course, without injury to the timber, which has a value of at least thousand million dollars. Moreover, the National forests protect the water supply of a thousand cities and towns, about 800 irrigation projects, and more than 300 power projects, not counting the use of water for these and other purposes by individual settlers.

Country Life Institute. The investigations of the Country Life Commission have led the farmers of this country to realize that they have not been getting their fair share of progress and all that it brings. Some of our farming communities in the Mississippi valley and in the middle west have made marvelous progress, yet even the best of them, like communities of every other kind, are not beyond improvement, while much needs to be done in some other sections to improve country life. As yet we know comparatively little of the basic facts of rural civilization. The means for better farming we have studied with care, but to better living on the farm and to better business on the farm the farmers themselves have given scant attention. One of the most urgent needs of our civilization is that the farmers themselves should undertake to get for themselves a better knowledge along these lines, and then to apply it. Sir Horace Plunkett, for many years a Wyoming cattleman, and now devoting himself in Ireland to the country life problem there, has suggested in his recent book on the "Country Life Problem in America" the creation of a Country Life institute as a center where the work and knowledge of the whole world concerning country life may be brought together for the use of every nation. I am strongly in sympathy with this idea, and I hope to see it carried out with the co-operation and assistance of our own people. Last spring, while visiting the capital of Hungary, Buda-Pesth, I was immensely impressed by the Museum of Country Life, containing an extraordinary series of studies in agriculture, in stockraising, in forestry, in mining; the exhibits were of the utmost practical importance and were also intensely interesting and instructive. As a people we have not yet learned to economize. One of the virtues we Americans most need is thrift. It is a mere truism to say that luxury and extravagance are not good for a Nation. So far as they affect character, the loss they cause may be beyond computation. But in the material sense there is a loss greater than is caused by both extravagance and luxury put together. I mean the needless, useless, and excessive loss to our people from premature death and avoidable diseases. Wholly apart from the grief, the suffering, and the wretchedness which they cause, the material loss each year has been calculated at nearly twice what it costs to run the Federal government. In addition to the state and city health officers and organizations, there is urgently needed a Federal bureau of health, to act, so far as the National government properly may, to relieve our people from this dreadful bur-

National Conservation Commission. One of the most important meetings in our recent history was that of the governors in the white house in May, 1908, to consider the conservation question. By the advice of the governors the meeting was followed by the appointment of a National conservation commission. The meeting of the governors directed the attention of the country to conservation as nothing else could have done, while the work of the commission gave the movement definiteness and supplied it with a practical program. But at the moment when the commission was ready to begin the campaign for putting its program into effect an amendment to the Sundry civil service bill was introduced by a congressman from Minnesota with the purpose of putting a stop to the work so admirably begun. Congress passed the amendment. Its object was to put an end to the work of a number of commissions, which had been appointed by the president, and whose contribution to the public welfare had been simply incalculable. Among these were the commission for reorganizing the business methods of the government, the public lands commission, the country life commission, and the National conservation commission itself. When I signed the Sundry civil service bill containing this amendment, I transmitted with it as my last official act a memorandum declaring that the amendment was void, because it was an unconstitutional interference with the rights of the executive, and that if I were to remain president I would pay to it no attention whatever.

The National conservation commission thereupon became dormant. The suspension of its work came at a most unfortunate time, and there was serious danger that the progress already made would be lost. At this critical moment the Netional conservation association was organized. It took up the work which otherwise would not have been done, and it exercised a most useful influence n preventing had legislation, in securing the introduction of better conservation measures at the past session of congress, and in promoting the passage of wise laws. It deserves the confidence and surport of every citizen interested in the wise development and preservation of our natural resources, and in preventing them from passing into the hands of uncontrolled monopolies. It joins with the National conservation congress in holding this meeting. I am here by the joint invitation of both.

Unless the governments of all the American republics, including our own, enact in time such laws as will both protect their natural wealth and promote their legitimate and reasonable development, future generations will owe their misfortunes to us of today. A great patriotic duty calls upon us. We owe it to ourselves and to them to give the American republics all the help we can. The cases in which we have failed should be no less instructive than the cases in to drive the which we have succeeded. With prompt public life.

action and good will the task of saving the resources for the people is full of hope for us all.

State and Federal Control. But while we of the United States are anxious, as I believe we are able, to be of assistance to others, there are problems of our own which we must not overlook. One of the most important conservation questions of the moment relates to the control of water power monopoly in the public interest. There is apparent to the judicious observer a distinct tendency on the part of our opponents to cloud the issue by raising the question of state as against federal jurisdiction. We are ready to meet that issue if it is forced upon us. But there is no hope for the plain people in such conflicts of jurisdiction. The essential question is not one of hair-splitting legal technicalities. It is simply this: Who can best regulate the special interests for the public good? Most of the predatory corporations are interstate or have interstate affiliations. Therefore they are largely out of reach of effective state control, and fall of necessity within the federal jurisdiction. One of the prime objects of those among them that are grasping and greedy is to avoid any effective control either by state or nation; and they advocate at this time state control simply because they believe it to be the least effective. In the great fight of the people to drive the special interests from the domination of our government, the nation is stronger and its jurisdiction is more effective than that of any state. The most effective weapon against these great corporations, most of which are financed and owned on the Atlantic coast, will be federal laws and the federal executive. That is why I so strongly oppose the demand to turn these matters over to the states. It is fundamentally a demand against the interest of the plain people, of the people of small means, against the interest of our children and our children's children; and it is primarily in the interest of the great corporations which desire to escape all government control.

The Conservation Fight.

On of the difficulties in putting into practise the conservation idea is that the field to which it applies is constantly growing in the public mind. It has been no slight task to bring before 100,000 people a great conception like that of conservation, and convince them that it is This much we have accomplished. But there remains much to be cleared up, and many misunderstandings to be removed. These misunderstandings are due in part at least to direct misrepresentation by the men to whose Interest it is that conservation should not prosper. For example, we find it constantly said by men who should know better that temporary wthdrawals, such as the withdrawals of coal lands, will permanently check development. Yet the fact is that these withdrawals have no purpose except to prevent the coal lands from passing into private ownership until congress can pass laws to open them to development under conditions just alike to the public and to the men who will do the developing.

Abuses committed in the name of a just cause are familiar to all of us. Many unwise things are done and many unwise measures are advocated in the name of conservation, either through ignorance, or by those whose interest lies not in promoting the movement, but in retarding it. For example, to stop water power development by needless refusal to issue permits for water power or private irrigation works on the public lands inevitably leads many men, friendly to conservation and believers in its general principles, to as sume that its practical application is necessarily a check upon progress. Nothing could be more mistaken. The idea, widely circulated of late, that conservation means locking up of the natural resources for the exclusive use of future generations, is wholly mistaken. Our purpose is to make full use of these resources, but to consider our sons and daughters as well as ourselves: just as a farmer uses his farm in ways to preserve its future usefulness.

But in spite of these difficulties, mest of which are doubtless inevitable in any movement of this kind, conservation has made marvelous progress. I have been astounded and delighted on my return from abroad at the progress made while I was away. We have a right to congratulate ourselves on this marvelous progress; but there is no reason for believing that the fight is won. In the beginning the special interests, who are our chief opponents in the conservation fight, paid little heed to the movement, because they nelther understood it, nor saw that if it won they must lose. But with the progress of conservation in the minds of our people the fight is getting sharper. The nearer we approach to victory, the bitterer th opposition that we must meet, and the greater the need for caution and watchfulness. Open opposition we can overcome, but I warn you especially against the men who come to congresses such as this, ostensibly as disinterested citizens, but actually as the paid agents of the special interests.

This congress is a direct apeal to the patriotism of our whole people. nation wisely looks to such gatherings for counsel and leadership. Let that leadership be sound, definite, practical, and on the side of all the people. It would be no small misfortune if a meeting such as this should ever fall into the hands of the open enemies or false friends of the great movement which it repre-

It is our duty and our desire to make this land of ours a better home for the race, but our duty does not stop there. We must also work for a better nation to live in this better land. The development and conservation of our national characacter and our free institutions must go hand in hand with the development and conservation of our natural resources which the governor's conference so well called the foundations of our prosperity. Whatever progress we may make as a nation, whatever wealth we may accumulate, however far we may push mechanical development and production, we shall never reach a point where our welfare can depend in the last analysis on anything but honesty, courage, loyalty, and good citizenship. The homely virtues are the lasting virtues, and the road which leads to them is the road to genuine and lasting success.

What this country needs is what every free country must set before it as the great goal toward which it works-an equal oportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for every one of its citizens. To achieve this end we put a stop to the improper political do-minion, no less than to the improper economic dominion, of the great special interests. This country, its natural resources, its natural advantages, its opportunities and its institutons, belong to all its citizens. They cannot be enjoyed fully fully and freely under any governmen in which the special interests as such have a voice. The supreme political task of our day, the indispensable condition of national efficiency and national welfare, is to drive the special interests out of our

Then I went to a specialist who told me I had catarrh of the stomach and said he could cure me in four months but would have to have his money down. I could not raise the necessary sum and in my extremity I was led to quit coffee and try Postum.

"So I stopped coffee and gave Postum a thorough trial and the results have been magical. I now sleep well at night, something I had not done for a long time; the pain in my stomach is gone and I am a different

"I dreaded to quit coffee, because every time I had tried to stop it I suffered from severe headaches, so I continued to drink it although I had reason to believe it was injurious to me, and was the cause of my stomach trouble and extreme nervousness. "To my surprise I did not miss coffee when I began to drink Postum.

SANTA FE AND ROCK ISLAND GIV-EN HEARING-WAGE-RAISE TABLE INTRODUCED.

Chicago-Coincident with the closing of the testimony of the Santa Fe system before the special examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the statement from the road's statistician that the increase in freight rates asked would net and J. C. Hedgcoxe sold his five acres the Santa Fe only $94,000 increase yearly in earnigs, there came a suggestion that the railraods now on the defensive might change their tactics and seek to compel the shippers who oppose the advance in freight rates to declare how much they profit on the different commodities under consideration.

A request from Attorney F. J. Norton, counsel for the Santa Fe, for the names of the different associations of shippers represented at the hearing, that he might question certain of the shippers, gives color to the reports that shippers would be asked about their profits. One prominent railroad man declared that inasmuch as the shippers are protesting that the profits of the railroads are unreasonable, the railroads might well ask the shippers what their profits are, so the commission may know whether they are $22,742 over last year; Chaves, $4,468,seriously disturbed by the increase which they are fighting.

When the initial presentation of the contentions of the Santa Fe system was concluded the hearing was transferred to the Rock Island road.

F. O. Melcher, second vice president of the Rock Island, told of increased expenses of the road in late years, due, according to him, to advance in the wage scale and increased cost of opera-

He was questioned by Attorney W. S. Dickinson, counsel for the road. He offered in evidence a table showing that increased wages paid in the operating department of the road amounted in 1906 and 1907 to $528,000; in 1907 and 1908, to $1,314,000; in 1908 and 1909 to $1,314,000; in 1909 and 1910 to $1,451,000, and in 1910 and 1911 the estimated increase would total $2,465,-000, and in 1911 and 1912 the estimated increase would be $2,612,000.

Mr. Melcher said that the road does not get more efficient labor by reason of the increased wages. Some of the increases, he said, were the result of threatened strikes and some were granted after arbitration.

SYNOPSIS.

Thomas Ardmore and Henry Maine Griswold stumble upon intrigue when the governors of North and South Carolina are reported to have quarreled. Griswold allies himself with Barbara Osborne, daughter of the governor of South Carolina, while Ardmore espouses the cause of Jerry Dangerfield, daughter of the governor of North Carolina. These two ladies are trying to fill the shoes of their fathers, while the latter are missing. Both states are in a turmoll over one Appleweight, an outlaw with great political influence. Unaware of each other's position, both Griswold and Ardmore set out to make the other prosecute. Both have forces scouting the border. Griswold captures Appleweight, but Jerry finds him and takes him to Ardsley, her own prisoner. Ardmore arrests a man on his property who says he is Gov. Osborne. and takes him to Ardsley, her own prisoner. Ardmore arrests a man on his property who says he is Gov. Osborne. Meanwhile another man is arrested as Appleweight by the South Carolina militia. The North Carolina militia is called into action. When Col. Gillingwater, Jerry's fiance, finds that real war is afoot, he flees. Appleweight is taken secretly by Ardmore and lodged in a jail in South Carolina. Returning to Ardsley, Ardmore finds that Billings, the banker, and Foster, treasurer of North Carolina, have been arrested.

CHAPTER XIX.

In the Red Bungalow.

"What do you think," cried Mrs. Atchison, glowing before Jerry and Ardmore on their return; "we have a new guest!"

"In the coal cellar?" inquired her

"No, in the blue room adjoining Miss Dangerfield's! And what do you think! It is none other than the daughter of the governor of South Carolina."

"Oh, Nellie!" gasped Ardmore.

"Why, what's the matter?" demanded Mrs. Atchison. "I had gone in to Turner's to look at that memorial church we're building there, and I learned from the rector that Miss Osborne, with only a maid, was stopping at that wretched hole called the Majestic hotel. I had met Miss Osborne in Washington last winter, and you may forget, Tommy, that on our mother's side I am a Daughter of the Seminole War, a society of which Miss Osborne is the president general. I hope Miss Osborne's presence here will not be offensive to you, Miss Dangerheid. She seemed rejuctant to come, but I simply would not take no, and I am to send for her at four o'clock."

"Miss Osborne's presence is not only agreeable to me, Mrs. Atchison," responded Jerry, "but I shall join you in welcoming her. I have heard that the ancestor through whom Barbara Osborne derives membership in the Daughters of the Seminole War was afterward convicted of robbing an orphan of whose estate he was the trusted executor, and such being the case I feel that the commonest Christian charity demands that I should treat her with the most kindly consideration. I shall gather some roses. with your permission, and have them waiting in her room when she arrives, with my card and compliments.'

Ardmore had rarely been so busy as during the afternoon. Several more newspaper correspondents were found prowling about the estate, and they were added to the howling mob in the Ardsley cellars.

"It has all happened very handily for us," said Collins; "we've got the highest-priced newspaper talent in the world right under our hands, and before we turn them loose we'll dictate exactly what history is to know of these dark proceedings."

"When we've settled with Griswold and proved to him that he's lost out and that the real Mr. Appleweight is in his jail, not ours, we'll have to find Gov. Dangerfield and be mighty quick about it," replied Ardmore. "Paul says there's a battery of South Carolina artillery guarding the Dilwell county jail, and that they've fooled the people into thinking they're North Carolina troops, and nobody can get within four blocks of the jail. They must have somebody in jail at Kildare. I don't like the looks of it."

Jerry-a pleasing figure to contemplate in white lawn and blue ribbons -suggested that the meeting take place in the library, as more like an imperial council chamber; but Ardmore warmly dissented from this. A peace should never be signed, he maintained, in so large a house as Ardsley. At Appomattox and in many other cases that he recalled, the opponents met in humble farmhouses. They finally agreed on the red bungalow as convenient and sufficiently modest for the purpose. And so it was arranged.

A few minutes before five the flag of North Carolina was hung from the wide veranda of the bungalow. At the door stood an armed militiaman. Col. the real Appleweight, and as we are Daubenspeck had been invited to be on your territory and in a measure present, and he appeared accompanied your guests, it is only fair that you fiture. form. Word of the meeting place had been sent through the lines to the enemy, and the messenger rode back with Griswold, who was followed quickly by the adjutant general of South Carolina and half a dozen other officers. The guard saluted as Griswold ran up the steps of the veranda, and at the door Ardmore met him and greeted him formally. At the end of a long table Jerry Dangerfield sat with her arms folded. She wore, as befitting the occasion, a perched a trifle to one side.

She bowed coldly to Griswold, whose hand, as he surveyed the room and glanced out at the flag that fluttered in the doorway, went to his mustache with that gesture that Ardmore so greatly disliked; but Griswold again bowed gravely to his adversaries.

"Miss Dangerfield, and gentlemen," began Griswold, with an air of addressing a supreme tribunal, "I believe this whole matter depends upon the arrest of one Appleweight, a wellknown outlaw of North Carolina-"

"I beg your pardon-" It was Jerry who interrupted him, her little fists clenching, a glint of fire

"Certainly," said Jerry. "Our prisoner does not deny his identity. It gives us pleasure to produce him."

At a nod from Col. Daubenspeck the orderly at the door ran off to where Cooke and the prisoner waited.

In the interval there was a general exchange of introductions at the bungalow. The adjutant general of South Carolina was in a merry mood and began chaffing Ardmore upon the deadly character of apples found in his orchard beyond the Raccoon.

"I deeply regret," said Ardmore, rubbing his chin, "that the adjutant general of North Carolina is suffering from a severe attack of paralysis agitans and will be unable to meet with us."

"I deplore the fact," replied the adjutant general of South Carolina, "for one of our scouts picked up a darky in the highway a while ago who had on a uniform dress-coat with the initials 'R. G.' sewed in the pocket."

"If you will return that garment to me, general," said Ardmore, "I will see that it reaches Col. Gillingwater gray riding-dress and a gray felt hat by special messenger, where, upon his couch of pain, he chafes over his enforced absence from the field of danger."

Steps sounded on the veranda and all rose as Cooke appeared in the door, leading his handcuffed prisoner, who stood erect and glared at the company in gloomy silence.

"This man," said Ardmore, "we declare to be Bill Appleweight, alias Poteet. I ask you, sir"-he addressed the prisoner-"to state whether you are not known by one or both of these names?"

The man nodded his head and grumbled a reluctant affirmative.

"Prof. Griswold," Ardmore went on, "the gentleman in charge of the prisoner is Roger Cooke, for many years in the secret service of the United Miss Dangerfield! Let us agree that States. Jerry nodded affirmatively.

"Then, Miss Dangerfield, and gentlemen, I must tell you that you have lost your contention, for Appleweight spent last night in jail at Kildare, and to secure his safe retention there, we generously lent your state a few of our militia to guard him. The proceeding was a trifle irregular, we admit-the least bit ultra vires-but the peculiar situation seemed to justify

"There are not two Bill Appleweights," remarked Col. Daubenspeck. "I assure you that the real criminal spent last night in jail at Turner Court House, guarded by trustworthy men, and we are able to produce him."

"The quickest way to settle this point, Prof. Griswold, is by bringing in your man," remarked Ardmore icily.

"On the other hand"-and Griswold's tone was confident--"as there is no reason for doubt that we have

She was lost in the woods and came upon the captive much to her own surprise."

Griswold lifted his brows in amazement and turned toward Jerry.

"If that is the case, Miss Dangerfield, I salute you! I am sorry to confess, however, that I did not myself Dealer. see the man who was captured by my friends at the church, owing, it appears, to Miss Dangerfield's prompt and daring action, and the regrettable cowardice of my men. I want to say to you, gentlemen, in all frankness, that I am greatly astonished at what you tell me. Our prisoner is about the same height as this man, has the same slight stoop in the shoulders, and the same short beard; but there the resemblance ends."

Ardmore was trying not to show too plainly his joy at Griswold's discom-

Appleweight, that we may have a look they lived remote from the scene of his exploits. Habersham's men, who had so signally failed in the descent upon Mount Nebo church, had taken to the woods on the appearance of the state soldiery along the border, and could not be found to identify the man seized at the house on the creek. Habersham had discreetly declined to support Griswold's venture at the last moment; to do so would, he pleaded, ruin his chances of political preferment in the future; or worse things might, indeed, happen if he countenanced and supported the armed invasion of North Carolina by South Carolina militia. The zealous young militiamen who had captured the stranger in the house on the creek had pronounced the man Appleweight, and their statement had been accepted and emphasized when the man was taken before Griswold, to whom he stubbornly refused to make any statement whatever.

"Now that you cannot deny that we have the real Appleweight," began Jerry, "who is, you must remember, a prisoner of the state of South Carolina, and must be returned to the Mingo county jail at once, I think we may as well look at your prisoner, Prof. Griswold. He may be one of Mr. Appleweight's associates in business; but as we are interested only in the chief culprit, the identity of the man you hold is of very little interest to us."

"If," said Griswold, "he is not Appleweight, the original blown in the

"Jug, if you please!" interposed Ardmore very seriously.

"Then we don't care about him and I shall make you a present of him."

"Or," remarked Ardmore, "I might exchange him for a ruffian I captured myself down on the Raccoon. He seemed quite insane, declaring himself to be the governor of South Carolina and I locked him up in a corncrib for safe keeping."

THREE ACTORS IN SORROW

Showing How Easily Makers of Mirth May Be Involved in Personal Tragedy.

A pathetic story of the tragedies of the stage is revealed by David Beehler, who has just returned from Sioux City, Ia., where he encountered De Wolf Hopper and Arthur Dunn. The trio were in the West hotel in Sioux City. It was their first meeting in years. After the exchange of courtesies had been passed Mr. Dunn asked Hopper, "How are your folks?" and received the reply, "Very well, thank you. How are yours?" "Immense,' replied Dunn.

Three days later Mr. Hopper received a wire announcing the death of his mother and was forced to cancel engagements. That same day, two hours later, Mr. Dunn received a telegraphic announcement of his father's death, and on the same night was informed that his brother-in-law, Ezra Kendall, had passed away. The men met on the outgoing train from Sioux City and condoled with each other over the bereavement which had befallen them.-Chicago American.

To Gain Social Success.

To be successful socially, a woman must possess brains and looks, a ready wit and perfect manners. She must be well posted on general topics and have a fund of what the English call "small talk." She can never rise to any prominence in the social world unless she has a firm will, sound sense and ready sympathies. These qualities, added to enough of wealth to do as she would do, make the best and most representative type of the American society woman. But then, our women possess all these qualities even when their lives are not thrown in the most pleasant places. No woman in the world possesses the adaptability of the American woman. R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weak-nesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclaysays, it is "worth moun-tains of gold" to suffering women.
