EX-PRESIDENT W. H. TAFT TO SPEAK IN BROWNWOOD

Word has been received in Brady by local business men that former president, Wm. Howard Taft is to lecture in Brownwood tonight, Friday, April 16. Mr. Taft is the only living ex-president of the United States and the only one who has ever honored this section with a visit. His engagement in Brownwood will be taken advantage of by many Brady and McCulloch county people, as well as from all parts of this vicinity. Commenting upon the engagement, the Brownwood Bulletin says:

"When former President William H. Taft arrives in Brownwood Friday morning, to fill his lecture engagement here Friday night, he will be given a reception which is expected to eclipse any similar undertaking in the history of the city. The plans for this reception are being worked out today and when completed are expected to include in some manner practically every citizen of the city.

"The arrival of Mr. Taft's train at 3:40 Friday morning will be heralded by the sounding of the wildcat fire whistle, which will summon all the members of the reception committee to the Santa Fe station. All the public school children of the city are expected to be at the station, the schools having announced a recess for that purpose. Headed by the mayor and a committee representing the Chamber of Commerce, a committee of scores of the leading business and professional men representing all political parties, and all churches and other organizations, and institutions here, will join with the school children and general citizenship in greeting Mr. Taft as he leaves the train, and will escort him to the Southern Hotel, where a suite of rooms has been engaged for him. It is probable that he will be taken to a private home for breakfast, after which he will occupy his rooms at the Southern.

"At the noon hour Mr. Taft will be honor guest at a luncheon which is now being arranged, and throughout the remainder of the day will be accorded a semi-public welcome, and will be the recipient of many honors."

Death of Bob Ake.
Tuesday night marked the passing away of one of Brady and McCulloch county's best-known and most highly esteemed citizens, Bob Ake, whose spirit took its flight at 10:50 o'clock. At the time of his death Mr. Ake was aged 56 years, 9 months and 6 days. Death occurred at his home in South Brady, following an illness of 6 weeks.

After an operation for a correct diagnosis of the cause of Mr. Ake's sufferings, it was found that cancer of stomach had developed and his condition was at once realized as very grave, little hope being had for a turn for the better. Physicians in attendance held that his days were numbered and that this life was nearing the end. However, his strong constitution enabled him to linger and maintain life beyond all expectations, and was never in an unconscious state until near the last.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at East Sweden cemetery, where interment was made, the Rev. T. P. Grant conducting the services, many friends and relatives being present to pay tribute to the memory of the deceased.

Bob Ake was born in Llano county, July 17, 1863, grew to manhood and has ever since been a resident of Llano, Mason, San Saba and McCulloch counties, having lived in McCulloch county a total of 17 years. His life has been one that is worthy as an example for others, he being a kind husband, father and neighbor, as well as his willingness to accommodate friends and strangers alike and to perform any service within his power for the betterment of the community. All these have made him popular and esteemed by everyone with whom he met, and his untimely end is sincerely mourned by all.

He was married on October 17, 1887 to Mrs. J. W. Hendryx, who, with five children, of the family survive him. The children are, Mrs. Claudie Washburn, Abilene; Miss Maudie Ake, Brady; Messrs. J. R. Ake, Dublin; R. P. and R. H. Ake of Brady. Brothers of deceased are, Messrs. Walter Ake, Brady; Pink Ake, East Sweden; John Ake, Lohn; Geo. Ake, Pontotoc; one sister, Mrs. Lucy Larremore of Fairview. All were in attendance at the funeral with exception of Geo. Ake, Pontotoc, who was too ill to leave his home. Also a step-son, J. W. Hendryx, of Snyder, Texas, arrived in Brady Thursday morning to be with the bereaved and grief-stricken ones.

Besides the immediate family Mr. Ake had numbers of other relatives living throughout this county and section, to whom The Standard joins with friends in extending heartfelt sympathy.

Death of Jack McGaughy.
The funeral of Jack W. McGaughy, who died in Austin early Monday morning, was celebrated this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the family residence, 1909 Coggin avenue. Rev. Rex B. Wilkes of the First Methodist church, and interment was made in Greenleaf cemetery. The remains reached Brownwood Monday night and were received at the Santa Fe station by a number of friends.

Mr. McGaughy was a loyal Texan and only to intimate friends would he admit that he was not a native of this state. He was born in Tennessee March 10, 1867, and while yet a baby was taken to Alabama with his parents, and at the age of six years was brought to Texas when his parents moved to this state. The family became citizens of Hood county shortly after reaching Texas, and when he was about sixteen years old Mr. McGaughy came to Brownwood and made his home here continuously from that time. He received his education in the Add-Ran-Jarvis college at Thorpe Springs, the institution which is now known as the Texas Christian university, and is located at Fort Worth. On April 10, 1895—twenty-five years ago last Saturday—he was married in this city to Miss Ada Sanders, elder daughter of the late W. Sanders and wife. For many years he was engaged in the cotton business in this section of the state, spending several seasons in Brady as well as Brownwood, and representing Crawford & Pyrne and the McFadden company; later he spent several cotton seasons as an individual dealer. His last business connection was with the International Harvester company. Some four years ago his health became impaired and for the greater part of this time he has been an invalid, only occasionally able to meet with his friends and at no time strong enough to undertake to resume his business affairs. For the past year or more he suffered intensely, but his characteristic optimism was always present and his suffering was born with marvelous fortitude.

While in the prime of his health and strength, Mr. McGaughy was one of the best known and most substantial business men of this territory, and for a number of years took an active interest in the commercial affairs of Brownwood, Brady and other towns in which he had business interests. He was also quite active in local and state politics, and continued his keen interest in political matters even through his long illness. He was a wonderfully devoted husband and father, and numbered as friends thousands of people throughout this part of the state. Mr. McGaughy is survived by his widow and one son, J. Fred McGaughy; by one sister, Mrs. Charles Blakeney of Stephenville; and two brothers, J. E. McGaughy of Merkle and Charles McGaughy of Rising Star.—Brownwood Bulletin.

SCHUMANN-HEINK ENGAGEMENTS TO BE ESTABLISHED

Madame Schumann-Heink, whose engagement for a concert in Brownwood early in March was cancelled on account of her continued illness, and for which event many Brady and McCulloch county citizens purchased tickets, will be glad to know she will appear in recital in Brownwood on the evening of May 14th, as the feature of the May Musical which is now being arranged. This announcement will be received with much enthusiasm and gratification by music lovers all over this section.

Announcement is made that the engagement of Madame Schumann-Heink will be a two-days program, and that plans were rapidly maturing for a great musical entertainment which will occupy May 13th and 14th. The proceeds of the series of entertainments will be divided with the Brownwood Band, to aid that organization to purchase uniforms. Other musical organizations of Brownwood will have part in the two-days program.

"FISH, EAT, DRINK AND BE MERRY, FOR TOMORROW WE MAY DIE," IS SLOGAN

"Recreation" is the word with our fellow-citizen, T. J. Mayse who, in a most unique and befitting way has resolved to forever abide by Nature's laws—and by so doing advanced age counts for but little. We gladly publish the following article submitted us by the above-named gentleman:

"Are we taking it for granted that the out-door is a necessary element of recreation, but is it not so? If we believe in recreation, and are willing to spend our time in taking it shall we not insist upon the best? Nothing so invigorates the whole being—both mind and body as does the fresh living, personal contact with Nature's silent, healing and soothing forces,—just to sit upon the grass, whose life-work is simply to grow and to keep green; just to look up among the shining leaves whose life-work is simply to breathe for the tree; just to listen to the brook whose life-work is to run and to sing; just to forget that I, or you, have any work in the world to do except to grow and be happy—this is Recreation of the very highest type.

"So, be it resolved, that, T. J. Clinton, 72 years old and J. S. Mayse, 63, say, "Fish, eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we may die."

NOTICE.

FIFE FINDINGS.

Farmers Co-Operative Council Formed—Will be Big Help to Farmers.

Fife, Texas, April 13.
Editor Brady Standard:

It is getting dry enough here that farmers are mostly busy fishing. Corn was not killed by the recent frost and looks fairly well. Some of the fruit was killed but there is a good deal left yet.

John Newlin and J. H. Long are recent purchasers of Overland cars after a few months of taking it a-foot.

E. B. Ranne of Killeen, Texas, is a visitor here this week.

J. L. Smith was down from Lohn Tuesday meeting the people and swapping yarns.

H. D. Bradley was at Fort Worth this week on business.

A Farmers Co-Operative council was formed here last week with something like 40 members, with E. B. Baldrige president, Thos. Mitchell vice-president and Carl Doyle secretary-treasurer. County Agent B. D. Black assisted in the organization and the members are highly enthusiastic over the prospects of solving many of the farmers' problems thru the organization. The council meets on Friday night before the second Saturday in each month.

A. E. Cochran was a visitor at Brady Monday on business.

C. M. Rumbough has opened up a blacksmith shop here. Mr. Rumbough comes highly recommended as a workman and citizen, and we welcome him to the community.

The cattle dipping season is here again and the stockmen here expect to begin dipping again this week.

S. H. Deathridge of Doole visited with his daughter, Mrs. W. S. Speights here Sunday.

H. T. and E. D. Baldrige left this week for Ranger, where they have signed up to play baseball with the Ranger team in the West Texas League for this season.

John Newlin went to Coleman Tuesday on business.

WONDER WORDS.

Wonder, Ore., April 4.

Editor Brady Standard:

I see now very plainly that I have either got to improve my chirography or else get me a typewriter. In my former article about the Irishman's tea (tae), it was printed "toy" Also the preacher's lecture on lying, was printed lecture on "living." However, that will not prevent anyone from raising as large hogs as I raise if he tries.

An old gentleman who was raised in Arkansas came along while I was butchering my 685-lb. hog and asked me if I thought he would go 200?

He seemed to thing 200 a very large hog. I could easily have made him take another 100 pounds, but I was ready to butcher right then and didn't want to wait.

Did you ever read Will Thompson's "Three Years in Arkansas?" If not, you have missed several good laughs. He tells of the different kinds of hogs they raise back there. One kind he called the "Balance hog."

They put a pole under the middle of the hog, and balance him across it. If his head is the heavier and goes down, then he is not fat enough to butcher. But if the tail-end goes down and the head flies up, then he is considered fat enough.

Your County Agent, Mr. Black, said a whole mouthful when he said, "Never keep a runt for breeding purposes." I will make it stronger and say, if you want to improve the stock and attain the very best results and raise larger hogs than anybody else, never keep any for breeding purposes except the very very best pig in the whole litter.

You can easily tell the best one at a month old. Never keep the pig of a gilt to raise from.

Many hog raisers have asked me why I keep some of my hogs till they are two or three years old. They say it pays to turn them off at ten months old. I tell them that I only keep the ones I use for breeding purposes. A fully grown, well-matured sow will raise far superior pigs than will a young immature gilt. If not, why not? It is the rule also applicable to other kinds of stock as well, and even also to the human race.

My experience in stock-raising has demonstrated this principle to my entire satisfaction. Some of you, however, may not think as I do, now, until you have tried it for yourself. "Everybody to their own notion," as the old woman said when she kissed the cow. The preacher said "It will not do for all to see things alike, else all the men would want my wife." Then Pat, always equal to the occasion, said "Sure, and if they all saw as I then no one would have her, begorry!"

DIAMOND WHICH BOUGHT LIFE OF RUSSIAN DUCHESS ON EXHIBITION IN DALLAS

This interesting story is reprinted from the Dallas Daily Times-Herald of April 6:

"A glittering reminder of the glories of Russia under the regime of the Great White Czar is the $30,000 diamond which once graced the swan neck of Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the ruler of all the Russias. The peerless jewel is on display in the windows of the Joseph Samuel & Brother jewelry store, 1406 Main street.

"A month or so ago American Red Cross workers in Southern Russia discovered a woman living in a box car crowded with other refugees from the bolshevik terror. She wore ragged clothing, a peasant woman's shawl was around her head, her feet were encased in heavy man's boots. Despite her poverty she was ministering to the half-starved women and children more unfortunate than herself. Reluctantly she admitted that she was the Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the murdered czar, and once the most powerful political influence in the Russian court against the treacherous tide of German propaganda.

"It was at Grand Duchess Olga's throat that this wonderful square-cut diamond flashed and glittered as Muscovite noble, Cossack hetman and Tartar chief from beyond the Urals, bent to kiss her hand in homage. And today the jewel with its history of bloodshed and red tragedy reposes peacefully in a Dallas shop window ready to respond to the beckoning of the American dollar for a change in ownership.

"The Russian princess' diamond weighs 48.05 karats. Its original shape, when wrested in dark years gone by from some prince of India, perhaps torn from the forehead of some silent, smiling Buddha in a Rajput mosque, was round. At that time the stone weighed 128 karats and was worth $52,000. The barbaric splendor and waste of the Russian court asserted itself in ordering that the perfect round stone be transformed into an original of its kind. It was sent to Amsterdam with imperial orders that it be recut into the form of what is known as an emerald shape. The jewel lost 80 karats in the cutting but it came from the hands of master Dutch workman the largest emerald cut diamond in the world. And thus it, still remains unique.

"Tortured, starved, living in indescribable filth and squalor at the whim of the brutal bolshevik guards, death came as a welcome relief to the proud Czar Nicholas and the women of his family. The girls of the royal family, after suffering unprintable degradation, walked with their heads erect before the dozen, filthy firing squad. Their bodies, shot to pieces and horribly wrecked with bayonets, were thrown down a well in the courtyard of their prison by executioners who, conscience-stricken, fled from the scene of their crime.

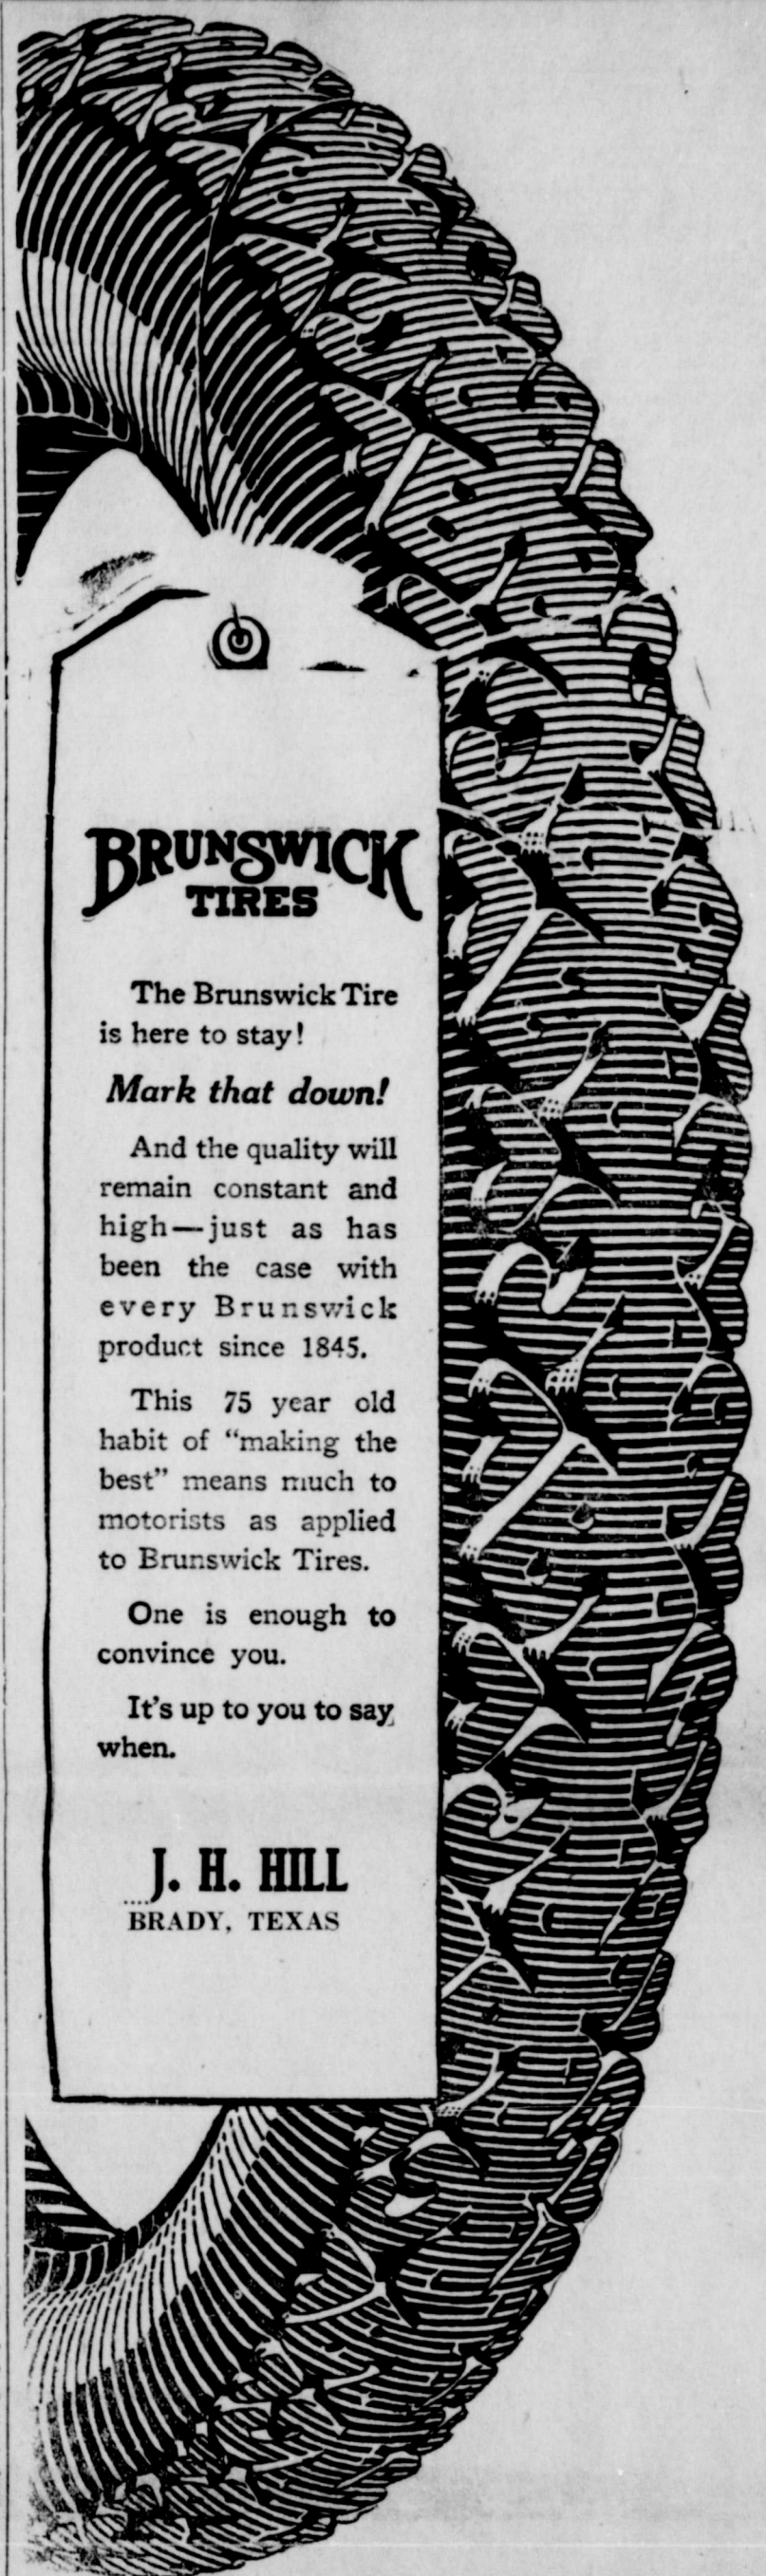

"Of the whole royal family Grand Duchess Olga alone escaped. The diamond was her talisman. Hidden carefully against the day of need, the flashing jewel bought her way to liberty. She was able to fly to Denmark. Later the woes of her native country cabled her and she returned home to work for the poor and suffering, even though proscribed and her life at stake.

"And from Denmark through England, Olga's diamond gravitated naturally to America, the world market for precious stones. In Dallas it reposes where all may see, plainly labeled 'Russian Crown Jewel No. 2172.'

AGRICULTURE CLUB BOYS HAD MOST INTERESTING AS WELL AS INSTRUCTIVE MEET

Last Saturday morning the boys that had joined the agricultural clubs met in the county agent's office for their first lesson in livestock judging. There were 25 of these boys able to get to this early meeting. It was some task for them to travel 20 or 25 miles before 10:00 o'clock, but they did it just the same. This first lesson was on judging swine. The boys were each given a score card and taught the use of it in applying the figures representing the importance of each part of the hog. Certain characteristics of a hog showed strength and vitality or the reverse. They were taught how to look for the good and bad points from the standpoint of both the butcher and breeder. They were taken to pens of good hogs and some that were not so good to see the very things that they had read on paper. Mr. W. G. Bessley, District Agent, from A. & M. College was present and gave the boys a splendid talk. He told them of what was being done at other places and inspired them to higher attainments. He explained the four large prizes that are being offered for club boys. One was a trip over the U. S. this summer—a three weeks' educational trip, visiting fine stock, and Washington, among other large towns. One was a trip to London, England, at their stock show; another was a trip to Chicago to the international stock show, and the other is to be given by the A. & M. College and is a scholarship which will amount to about $400. Any boy who is a club boy in good standing can win any one of these prizes. For further information regarding these prizes come to the next boys meeting and Mr. Black will explain to you. The McCulloch County club was organized and the second Saturday in each month was agreed upon as the regular meeting date, at 10:00 a. m. The officers elected were as follows: Truman Joyce, president; Mitchell Hargrove, vice-president; Jas. Espy, secretary. cut full size and made of best materials. C. H. VINCENT, Couth Side.

McCULLOCH COUNTY SWINE BREEDERS ASSOCIATION FORMED

Last Saturday the swine breeders of the county met in the court room and organized the Swine Breeders Association. The purpose of the organization is to study cooperatively the swine business and to make it pay to raise as good hogs in McCulloch county as can be produced in Texas.

There were forty men and boys present and all were deeply interested in what was being said and done. County Agent Black discussed with them their problems and gave suggestions as to the best methods of swine management, until the Santa Fe train brought Mr. A. L. Ward, Swine Specialist from A. & M. college, who took charge and made a very fine talk on how to care for and succeed with fine hogs. He also gave us some very interesting figures and facts about the good hog movement. In reply to questions asked him, he said in part:

"To obtain better livestock of necessity means a larger and more general use of purebred livestock. Farmers, feeders and breeders all now recognize the fact that the interest of the purebred breeder and the market producer are identical.

"The dairymen of the country have found that a purebred dairy cow properly fed and developed will produce as much milk as three ordinary milk cows and make five times the net profit.

"Cattle feeders have found that the well-bred steer will produce as much beef in one year as the common steer did in four years.

"Pork producers know that the purebred barrow can be made ready for market in seven to eight months and he will cost less and sell for more than the razor-back or ordinary kind. We have 600,000 farms in Texas today and out of this number we only have 2,000 with registered hogs on them.

"But there is always somebody afraid we are going to overdo the good things. Yes, sometimes people do overdo things, but let us study this pork production and consumption a little.

"In 1880 the population of the U.

S. was fifty million, and we had 47 1/2 million hogs, or .95 of a hog for each person. In 1916 the U. S. had a hundred and two million people and 67, 716,000 hogs and the pork consumed per capita was 95.7 lb. In 1920 it is estimated the population will be 108 to 110 million while we only have 75 million hogs, or .70 of a hog per person—less than we had per person 40 years ago, and at the same time we have a stronger appetite for pork. This does not include the export trade either. If Europe ever does get a basis of credit and she certainly will, the export of hog products will jump by leaps and bounds, for during the war the people of Europe learned to eat American pork.

"Will there be over-production? Figures of 1919 are not yet available but for the calendar year 1918, 331,500 purebred hogs were recorded in the U. S. This was less than one-half of one percent of the hogs on the farms in the U. S. on January 1, 1919. And if we take into consideration every hog that was ever recorded in the U. S. since the beginning of our record associations—that total number compared with the hogs on the farms of the U. S. January 1, 1919 would be only 3 1/2%. Certainly you will agree with me that we have not yet reached the millenium in the purebred business and that there is still a chance for the farmers of McCulloch county to sell purebred hogs if only they will produce them. If every registered sow in the U. S. were brought to Texas there would not be enough to place one on every farm.

"What more do you want to know. I am sure that you will agree with me when I say that the purebred hog is the best and most profitable. Some one asks if we can grow hogs like they do in the corn belt.

"But gentlemen, if you do not grow better hogs than the corn belt does, it is your fault, and not the need of corn. The South can grow larger and better hogs than the North, and do it cheaper than the corn belt. Corn alone is not an ideal hog feed. In your own county you have a much greater variety of growing and fattening and palatable foods can be produced twelve months in the year and each of the twelve months are also growing months for your pigs, while in the North their fields are for three months or more covered with snow while their pigs are compelled to be housed or else exposed to extreme cold weather—many of the breeders do not even attempt to raise fall litters. In Denmark, which does not attempt to raise corn produces more pork of the highest quality than any other equal area in the world.

"So we see that there is a demand for market hogs and breeding hogs, and that pure bred hog is the best hog and most profitable, and that the hog can be produced and grown better and more cheaply here than in the corn belt. With that agreed it is square up to you as individual breeders to give over a part of your farm to the production of good hogs. It more evenly distributes your labor throughout the year and also distributes the cash income from the farm. Last but not least, think of the pleasure and contentment that comes from dealing with high class stock. The satisfaction that comes from producing something better.

"When you raise cotton alone you are in competition with all classes of people in marketing. When you are growing fine stock you are placed with the very best business farmers of the country."

It was unanimously decided that no pigs would be sold for less than $25 each for breeding purposes. No runts will be sold other than for pork.

The regular meeting date was fixed for the third Saturday in each month at 2:00 p. m. in the court house. Everybody who has registered hogs of any kind are urged to be present at the next meeting. You cannot afford to be out of the association.

W. F. Roberts, Jr., of Lohn was elected president; Truman Joyce of Brady, vice-president; E. D. Robertson of Rochelle, secretary.

INTERESTING STORY OF THE TRAIN ROBBING CAREER OF SAM BASS

Our country stands alone as a field for daring highwaymen in the matter of train robbers. This line of industry and financial betterment is of comparatively recent date. It came into vogue shortly after the Civil war ended. The James boys and Younger brothers, perhaps, were the first to engage in this enterprise, but they doubtless were hounded into it, as they were outlawed for serving in Quantrell's guerillas. Others without even color of excuse have followed in their wake, but all have eventually come to grief. Texas has not escaped.

The first train robbery in Texas was in 1878, at Allen, in Collin county, about twenty miles from Dallas, in the early spring, a Houston & Texas Central southbound passenger train being held up by what is known as the Sam Bass gang. Bass had with him Frank Jackson of Denton, Henry Underwood and "Arkansaw" Johnson. The supposition, from his nickname, was that Johnson came from Arkansas, but Underwood's antecedents were unknown. They, however, gave evidence that they were hard customers, and by no means novices in crime. The job was easily accomplished, for such a thing as a holdup had never happened on this or any other road in Texas, hence the crew and passengers alike were utterly surprised and defenseless.

The gang immediately fled into Denton county. In the meantime Bass was securing recruits in the persons of Billie Collins, Albert Herndon and Sam Pipes, who lived and had been reared in Dallas county, all of good families and themselves of excellent repute.

The next robbery was at Hutchins, on the same road, ten miles south of Dallas City. Bass had the same men he had at Allen and the above-named recruits with him at Hutchins. This second outrage added fuel to the excitement, not only here in North Texas, but throughout the state, and the third robbery at Mesquite, 12 miles east of Dallas, of a west-bound Texas & Pacific train, fanned the flame to so fierce a heat that the state authorities began to take steps to apprehend the brigands.

Major John B. Jones was commanding a battalion of six companies of State Rangers, but as his men had all they could attend to along the Rio Grande border and some other points, none of them could be spared. He wired Captain June Peak, then Judge of the City Police Court of Dallas, to meet him in Austin. Captain Peak complied, and being offered the captaincy of a company of State Rangers assigned especially to the work of hunting down the Bass marauders, he resigned his judgeship and accepting the captaincy at once raised a company of forty men.

At the Mesquite robbery, Conductor Jules Alvord, assisted by the train "butcher," a mere boy, attempting to defend his train, opened fire on the robbers, which, being returned, Alvord received a broken arm, but the "butcher" shot Sam Pipes in the stomach with a 22-calibre pistol, which placed Sammy hors du combat, and this mishap of Pipes was the first inkling as to whom or whence the gang might be. The first clew, however, that Captain Peak secured as to the personnel of the gang was from a young man then living in Dallas, a friend of Billie Collins and Herndon, who had attempted to enlist him. He informed Captain Peak of the identity of each member and also that Collins, Herndon and Pipes were then at the home of Billie Collins' father. He immediately got his company ready and after dark proceeded to the place indicated, reaching there about midnight. Old Man Collins opened the door in answer to his knock and with three or four men Captain Peak entered the house, slipped up a stairway to a big room, where he found his quarry fast asleep. Securing their pistols before they awoke, he arrested them and took them to Tyler, where they were indicted by a Federal Court grand jury and admitted to bail. This was the beginning of the end, albeit the trail after the other miscreants was a long, winding and bloody one. Billie Collins jumped his bond and fled to Canada. Herndon and Pipes were convicted and sent to Sing Sing prison, New York.

A man named Jim Murphy, who lived in Denton county, was at Tyler also, under indictment for harboring the Bass gang. He proposed to Captain Peak that if he would get the indictment against him dismissed he would join Bass and keep Captain Peak posted as to his movements. This plan was agreed upon, and thru a third party, who acted as go-between for Murphy and Peak. Murphy kept his word and informed Captain Peak that the gang's rendezvous was in the underbrush in Salt Creek bottom in Denton county. Proceeding to the indicted point, Captain Peak surprised Bass and his gang in bivouac. The robbers made a rush for the underbrush. Their horses were tied nearby and to get between them and their horses was Captain Peak's first movement. Underwood and Johnson had headed at once for the horses, Underwood's endeavor being to get them into safety. Captain Peak, meeting him face to face, fired at him, wounding him in the neck, and then Underwood made his getaway. "Arkansaw" Johnson and First Sergeant Tom Floyd of the Rangers met in close shooting distance. Floyd says Johnson would have killed him, but having his bridle reins over his arm every time Johnson fired the horse jerked his arm and he missed, hence Floyd killed Johnson.

Getting away through the underbrush, the robbers stole new mounts that night and headed westward, going up into Jack county, Peak and his company hot on the trail. From Jack county Bass turned back down into Wise, thence by a circuitous route to east of Trinity river, thence through Kaufman county to Porters Bluff on Trinity river, where he crossed and pursued his way towards Waco.

Captain Peak received notice from Murphy that Bass planned to hold up a bank in Waco, so the Captain hurried in that direction, but at Waco he received further notice from Murphy that, it being inopportune, Bass had abandoned his bank robbery scheme at Waco, substituting Round Rock, where he was proceeding to rob the bank there. His horses being too jaded to reach Round Rock in time, Captain Peak wired Major Jones at Austin of the situation. Major Jones gathered up a few Rangers who happened to be in Austin, and some peace officers, and proceeded in post haste to Round Rock, arriving there in time to arrange with the bank officers. Placing some of his men, hidden in the bank and some others at points of vantage nearby, he awaited for what might happen, the band proceeding calmly at business.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon Bass and his men rode leisurely into the town, dismounted, leaving their horses in care of Seabe Barnes, one of their later recruits, and proceeded into the bank. After they had well entered they were confronted with cocked pistols thrust into their faces with the command "Hold up your hands." Their reply was a volley of pistol shots. One Ranger was wounded and one of the peace officers killed. As they fired they fled for their horses under a rain of bullets from the Rangers and peace officers. Seabe Barnes was killed and Sam Bass wounded. Bass reached his horse, mounted and fled away at full speed with Underwood and Jackson. Riding some five miles, Bass could go no further, so dismounted, tied his horse and laid down under a live oak tree to await the rapidly approaching officers. When they came up Bass formally surrendered, and, being removed to a nearby farmhouse, died next morning.

Turning to Sergeant Dick Ware of the Rangers, Bass said: "Dick, you are the man who shot me, and I knew your bullet had hit the right spot when it struck me. But it is all over now. I bear no malice and let the past be the past." He then presented Sergeant Ware his bowie knife, which Sergeant Ware later on presented to Captain Peak, who has it as a souvenir of the arduous and bloody campaign he had conducted in hunting down the robbers whom he had dispersed with the capture and imprisonment of some and the death of others without the loss or even wounding of a man of his company.

One other robbery than those mentioned was of the Texas & Pacific train at Eagle Ford, five miles west of Dallas, and Round Rock was the closing chapter of this serial of crime, and the fate of those who severed their connection with the band at Tyler, by operation of the law, is not uninteresting.

As stated, Herndon and Pipes were sent to Sing Sing prison in New York where they served a few years. One day a vessel landing near New York Harbor with its crew down with the plague, volunteers were asked for from the Sing Sing prison to nurse the plague-stricken seamen. Herndon and Pipes volunteered. They nursed their patients so attentively, so devotedly, that President Cleveland pardoned both. They returned home to begin life anew. A year or two later Pipes was mortally wounded in a personal encounter, dying a few days later. Albert Herndon has made good.

Billie Collins, when he jumped his bond, went into Western Canada. His bondsmen, learning of his whereabouts, United States Deputy Marshal William Anderson, armed with proper credentials, went after him. Learning that Collins got his mail at Pembina, on the American side of the line, he secreted himself in the postoffice to await his visit for his mail. As Collins approached the delivery window, Anderson pushed his pistol in his face, commanding "hands up." Collins reached for his pistol, and as he drew it, Anderson shot him and dodged behind a door. Collins reeled, but got his pistol cocked. Anderson poked his head from behind the door and Collins killed him in his tracks, himself falling dead. Not long after his death his bondsmen sent George Waller to Pembina, where, after tedious effort, he discovered Collins' body, at once recognizing him.

Not long after the train robbery campaign, Captain Peak went to Mexico to engage in railroad building. One day, on his way with some of his men to a nearby town, a stranger rode up and asked permission to accompany the party, as he was going to the same town. Consent was readily given, but Captain Peak saw something about the man familiar to him, but failed to place him. Finally, noticing a scar on his neck, he immediately knew the man was Henry Underwood. Having told one of his men his suspicions, at the nighttime rest, he fixed his pistol so he could get it readily, and sat down near the man and remarked:

"Well, Henry, it's about time we understood each other, don't you think?"

"All right, Peak," responded Underwood, "I am willing to let it all go by."

Thus they made known their mutual recognition, but Captain Peak had scant confidence in the former train robber, and told him he thought they had better part company, and that was the last he ever saw of Underwood, nor has he ever heard of him since.

Of the gang who started so gaily in the exciting business of train hold-ups, Sam Bass, the leader and moving spirit of the party of reckless young men, is dead, as are "Arkansaw" Johnson, Seabe Barnes, Billie Collins, Sam Pipes and Henry Collins, all, save Pipes, from gunshot wounds in affrays with officers of the law. Henry Collins possibly participated in some of the hold-ups, but if he did not he was an accessory before and after the fact, but he lost his life resisting arrest in Grayson county on some charge, dying in the county jail. Jim Murphy is dead also, but he died a suicide. Indeed, "the way of the transgressor is hard, and the wages of sin is death." Still, we have the train robbers and bank robbers, and but few of the perpetrators fail to die by violence, at a rope's end or in a prison hospital. If we stop to moralize, however, do we not know there are a multitude operating within the pale of the law, just as guilty under the law of morals, of justice, or honor and of honesty, as the train robbers, who go scotchless? The criminal outside the law is a ruffian, while he who sins under the aegis of the law is a gentleman, in this life, but what of the next?—Chas. Lee Martin, in Dallas News.

Passengers on the Wednesday morning Frisco report bad luck was had in that the train left Fort Worth on time, 11:00 o'clock p. m. and did not reach Brady until noon the following day. The delay was caused from engine trouble and the headlight did not function properly. The trip was interrupted by numerous stops, until finally another engine was substituted and then no further trouble was experienced.

Jim Turman of Fort Worth is spending a few days in Brady, visiting with friends and relatives on a combined business and pleasure trip. He has been selling stock for a puncture-proof auto casing company, who plan to build a factory at Fort Worth for the manufacture of their products. All the stock has been sold and work is to begin at once. It is said the new auto tire is guaranteed a million miles and that it rides easier, with fewer jolts than the pneumatic tire.

Messrs. Silas Lewis and J. C. Nix of Farmersville, Texas, made a visit to Brady Wednesday, looking after oil interests located in this county. The men own three tracts of land near the Dutton tract which they purchased from A. W. Tipton some time ago. Messrs. Lewis and Nix were paying their first visit of their holdings here and were favorably impressed with prospects. Incidentally they paid this office a call and made arrangements for The Standard to be sent to their address, in order that they might keep up with developments here.
