$600,000 ROAD BOND ELECTION CALLED FOR DECEMBER 20TH

$50,000 WORTH OF TURKEYS BEING MARKETED—4TH CARLOAD SHIPPED

EXPERT TURKEY ROUGHER ASTOUNDS CITIZENS WITH EXTRAORDINARY PERFORMANCE—30 SECONDS REQUIRED TO KILL AND DENUDE BIRD OF FEATHERS.

It sounded like a fairy tale, and Brady citizens had to see it with their own eyes before believing the story—but two men slaughtered and picked over 1200 turkeys between them in a day's work Monday—and it was a short day at that, 7 1/2 hours to be exact. The leader of the two hung up a record of 625 birds in 450 minutes working time, or 25 birds every 18 minutes. For his work he was paid at the rate of 5c a head, and at night he nonchalantly pocketed a check for $31.25. By actual timing, however, it is exactly 30 seconds from the time Turkey No. 1 is grabbed off until his successor, Turkey No. 2, is ready for the same trick. In the intervening time, the turkey has been killed, bled, his wing and tail feathers deposited in a barrel, and the greater portion of the body denuded of feathers.

The foregoing is a brief synopsis of one of the interesting features of Brady's great annual fall money carnival—the turkey trot—or the preparing of McCulloch county turkeys for the Thanksgiving market. The great national bird is being dressed for market and shipped out from Brady at the rate of a car a day this week, and is being distributed in carload lots by express shipments to New York, Boston and New Orleans. The first carload express shipment moved out Monday, and the birds have been passed through the cold storage at the local ice plant and loaded onto a carload each day. That means from 2,000 to 2,500 birds in each shipment.

The scene of all this activity is laid in the turkey dressing department of the Mayhew Produce Co., and it is some busy business place just now. Turkeys are arriving in coops in farmer's wagons; are being hauled in by the truck load; are being shipped in by express. The turkey pens in the rear of the main building, and which cover an area 100x100 ft. square, contain more turkeys than one would think were produced in all West Texas. As each new bunch of turkeys is received, it is placed in a separate pen, and given time to rest up, before the turkeys begin their march to the executioner's post.

Under the direction of C. O. Griston of Fort Worth, a packer and cold storage man of 17 years' experience, and who has complete supervision of the preparing of the birds for market at the Mayhew Produce Co., entirely new methods are pursued. The birds are gradually fed into a chute, which leads along within reach of the roughers. As fast as one turkey is tanken from the chute, another is moved forward to take its place. These roughers are men of years' experience. The leader of the three now employed here is Will Turner, who hails from Lowry City, Mo. His two companions are Elmer Hill and Walter Landaker, both of Clinton, Mo. There is art in "getting the stick on and bleeding" a turkey. The killing of a turkey is accomplished by cutting the artery in its mouth. The knife is then made to pierce its brain.

This relaxes all the muscles and enables the removing of the feathers with comparative ease. Improperly performed, this operation would merely convulse the muscles of the bird, and set the feathers so hard, it would be impossible to remove them. Then, as before stated, the tail and wing feathers are removed. About three motions of the hands are required to accomplish this. The skilled hands pass over the body half a dozen more times, and the body is virtually denuded of feathers. The bird is ready for the ordinary more or less unskilled pickers, about a hundred of whom are kept busy by the three skilled roughers, and who grab it off its hook and remove the pin feathers. For this they receive a check worth 10c. A good picker can knock out $3.00 to $4.00 per day. From their hands the bird is passed over a counter, padded to avoid bruising the carcass, and then it is hung up to cool, the head being incidentally wrapped in paper to avoid blood-staining the body. Eventually it is carried to the cold storage plant for further cooling before being placed in the refrigerator car for transportation to market.

The Mayhew Produce Co. is operating killing plants, similar to the Brady institution, at Mason, San Saba and Menard. They are also shipping live birds from Eden to Brady. All the birds are concentrated at Brady for shipment to market.

This turkey trot means a profitable crop to the farmers of this section. Highest price paid so far for the Thanksgiving bird has been 29c. The birds average $3.75 paid to the farmers, and the carload shipments represent from $8,000 to $10,000 put in circulation here. The Thanksgiving shipments will represent $50,000 put in circulation here through the Mayhew Produce Co. alone, not to mention the other produce dealers in Brady. This week will see the finish of the Thanksgiving shipments, and a lull of a week or so will ensue before the slaughtering of the birds for Christmas and the holidays will be undertaken.

Come to see me. C. H. Arnsperger.

BACK TO THE DECLARATION

The Brady Standard's Americanization Series

In his campaign for the Senate, against Stephen A. Douglas in 1858, Abraham Lincoln said:

The Declaration of Independence was formed by the representatives of American liberty from thirteen states of the confederacy. These communities, by their representatives in old Independence Hall, said to the whole world of men: "We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This was their majestic interpretation of the economy of the Universe. This was their lofty, and wise, and noble understanding of the justice of the Creator to His creatures. Yes, gentlemen, to all His creatures, to the whole great family of man. In their enlightened belief nothing stamped with the divine image and likeness was sent into the world to be trodden on and degraded and imbruted by its fellows. They grasped not only the whole race of man then living, but they reached forward and seized upon the farthest posterity. They erected a beacon to guide their children, and their children's children, and the countless myriads who should inhabit the earth in other ages. Wise statesmen as they were, they knew the tendency of prosperity to breed tyrants, and so they established these great self-evident truths, that when in the distant future some man, some faction, some interest, should set up the doctrine that none but rich men were entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, their posterity might look again to the Declaration of Independence and take courage to renew the battle which their fathers began, so that truth and justice and mercy and all the humane and Christian virtues might not be extinguished from the land, so that no man would hereafter dare to limit and circumscribe the great principles on which the temple of liberty was being built.

Now, if you have been taught doctrines conflicting with the great landmarks of the Declaration of Independence; if you have listened to suggestions which would take away from its grandeur and mutilate the fair symmetry of its proportions; if you have been inclined to believe that all men are not created equal in those inalienable rights enumerated by our chart of liberty, let me entreat you to come back. Return to the fountain whose waters spring close by the blood of the revolution. Think nothing of me—but come back to the truths that are in the Declaration of Independence. You may do anything with me you choose, if you will but heed these sacred principles. You may not only defeat me for the Senate, but you may take me and put me to death. While pretending no indifference to earthly honors, I do claim to be actuated in this contest by something higher than any anxiety for office. I charge you to drop every paltry and insignificant thought for any man's success. It is nothing; I am nothing; Judge Douglas is nothing. But do not destroy the immortal emblem of Humanity—the Declaration of American Independence.

(Editor's Note—The articles appearing in the above space from week to week are taken from "Americanization" by Elwood Grisco, Jr. This excellent volume, which is a collection of articles upon the general theme of patriotism and good citizenship, is presented to the schools of Texas by the Bodies of Scottish Rite Masonry in Texas.)

COMMISSIONERS ACT UPON PETITION AND CALL COUNTY-WIDE ELECTION

LONG LIST OF PETITIONERS, REPRESENTING ALL COMMUNITIES IN COUNTY, ASK FOR ELECTION—GENERAL SENTIMENT IN COUNTY IS FAVORABLE.

Acting upon the petition of Jas. T. Mann and 445 other qualified tax-paying voters of McCulloch county, Commissioners court late yesterday evening ordered a county-wide election to be held on Tuesday, December 20th, to determine whether or not McCulloch county shall issue its bonds in the sum of $600,000 for the "purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof." The bonds are to bear 5 1/2% interest, and are to run for a period of thirty years. Following the calling of the election, the court voted adjournment for the November term.

The petition asking for the election was the culmination of a strong good-roads sentiment which had been crystallizing throughout the county for the past several months. It was brought to a head last Monday when a number of representative Brady citizens, and live-wire good roads men, met and outlined a county-wide campaign to sound out the citizens of the various communities as to their stand in the matter. Committees were named to visit all the communities in McCulloch county and petitions were carried along for signatures. So generally favorable was the sentiment found in practically every community that all the committees returned highly pleased with the results, and firmly convinced that a county-wide road bond issue in the agreed sum of $600,000 could be put over if proper interest were maintained, and the benefits of such an issue fully explained to the voters.

In several of the communities the committees report sentiment 100% strong for the bond issue. In none of the communities was there any great degree of opposition, and what opposition was encountered was chiefly because of a desire to more fully understand the proposition.

In order that the interest of the citizens of the entire county might best be served, it was agreed to among the citizens' committees, that $500,000 of the $600,000 bonds, if the election is carried, or so much thereof as is necessary, shall be expended upon the three designated highways traversing McCulloch county, three of these roads coming to Brady from the north, and two running from Brady to the south. The remaining $100,000 of the $600,000 bond issue is to be expended in putting the main traveled roads of the county, other than the designated highways, in first-class shape. To this plan the commissioners court pledged itself, and has accordingly placed itself on record.

With the federal aid that is certain to be granted in the building of the designated highways through the county, there is no doubt but what all of these highways can be completed from county line to county line. With the remaining $100,000, supplemented by the 30c county road tax, each commissioner will have funds at hand to place all the main traveled roads of the county in first-class condition. Further than that, the completion of these highways will enable this 30c road tax for a number of years to come to be devoted to building up the laterals and by-roads connecting communities with the improved highways and roads.

As to the tax levy which the voting of these bonds will make necessary, the exact amount cannot be definitely stated. However, based upon the present county tax values, the rate will be approximately 50c per $100 valuation.

As before stated, advocates of the election is carried, or so much there-

Turkeys vs. Cotton—Good Roads Fav- ored—Thanksgiving Program.

Voca, Texas, Nov. 16.

Editor Brady Standard:

This week and last week there has been a fine lot of turkeys hauled out of this country to the Brady market. They are bringing a good price and the turkey industry brings lots of money to the farmers. Some say they beat a cotton crop, and I am sure there is less expense attached to raising turkeys. This section is noted for its production of the national bird.

Last Tuesday just at noon this writer was surprised to see drive up in front of the house Messrs. B. A. Hallum, C. H. Vincent, H. C. Samuel, Bass Awalt, of Brady, and G. L. Burns of Voca. I began to think not what I had done, but what I had not done when some of them began to Ku Klux Klan but I told them that would not do—they looked too pleasing and their faces looked too honest, but they soon told me they were out in the interest of a good roads bond election, and when a man comes to me in the interest of good roads he comes to one that has always advocated and worked for the same. Let's vote for the bonds and build some roads. It will give work for those who want to work, and besides, it's a pleasure to travel on good roads. Let's build some roads in old McCulloch county!

On Thanksgiving day, as our custom is, and has been for a number of years, the patrons of Lost Creek school will all meet at the school building at 10:00 o'clock, where the school children will give the following short program, assisted by patrons:

- "The Origin of Thanksgiving"—Velma Holaway.
- "Some Things for Which We are Thankful"—D. H. Henderson.
- "Bill McDonald's Farm"—7 Boys.
- Reading, "Making Up"—Lola Mc-Bee.
- "Miss Muffett"—Ruby Nell Westerman; Malcom Holaway.
- "Do You Wish?"—Oliver Underwood.
- Song, "John Brown's Baby"—Six Girls.
- "The Future"—Malcom Holaway.
- "The Farmers"—Six Little Boys.
- Reading—"A Small Boy's Trouble"—Opal Evans.
- "Ten Little Peppers"—Ten Children.

Spelling Match, in Webster's old blue back spelling book—children vs. patrons and other grown-ups. The school will invite County Superintendent W. M. Deans in a more special way, and arrange a place on the program for him. He is to arrange his own talk, that is, if he accepts the invitation. At 12:00 o'clock a picnic dinner on the school ground will be had, and it is needless to say that there will be everything that is pleasing to the taste and pleasant to look upon on the table. And at 2:00 o'clock p. m. a basket ball game will be had.

The editor and family is invited to spend Thanksgiving day on the Creek. "A CITIZEN."

PEAR VALLEY PICKUPS.

Armistice Day Celebrated at School House—135 Pupils in School.

Pear Valley, Texas, Nov. 14

Editor Brady Standard:

November 11th was celebrated at Pear Valley school house, with a short program by the pupils. Most of the program was rendered by the sixth grade pupils.

Mr. Jim White and wife, Mr. Seymour and wife, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Lane and Miss Carrie Ludwick attended the First Quarterly Conference held at Rochelle, Saturday.

Bro. Wall, the new Methodist pastor, filled his first appointment here Sunday morning. He is to preach Sunday morning and Sunday afternoon each second Sunday and Saturday night, Sunday morning and Sunday evening each fourth Sunday. We are glad to welcome him in our midst. We hope to have the new Methodist church finished soon.

The school boys played the outside team an interesting game of basket ball Saturday afternoon. The school team went to Salt Gap this afternoon (Monday) to play.

Several new pupils started to school today. There are about 135 pupils enrolled now.

FIFE FINDINGS.

School Chautauqua a Howling Success—Masonic School Held.

Fife, Texas, Nov. 15.

Editor Brady Standard:

A light shower fell here Tuesday night and we have hopes of more rain soon, as it is cloudy and threatening. Let her come.

The health of the community is good this week.

The girls basket ball teams of Fife and Waldrip schools met here Saturday and played the first game of the season. The score was 26 to 4 in favor of the Fife girls. They will play Pear Valley next Saturday.

Uncle "Fuzzy" Adams of London is here this week teaching a school of instruction in the Masonic Estatic work.

Friday was a holiday for the school kids and they, with their teachers, loaded into three trucks and attended the Armistice Day celebration at Brady, returning to the 3-mile well for dinner, and climbing the Table mountain. A good time generally was had and the kids wish Armistice Day would come every week.

The school chautauqua Saturday night was a howling success; $82.00 was taken in after all expenses were paid. This amount will go to the credit of the school's Athletic Fund, which places the school in good shape as far as athletics are concerned. We wish to thank the neighboring communities for their help in making the program a financial success.

W. D. Crothers and H. F. Schwenker of Brady were here Tuesday in the interest of the good roads movement. The folks here are all for good roads if we are assured we will get them, and we think we are in this move.

A GOOD FRIEND.

A good friend stands by you when in need. Brady people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. A. H. Connor, carpenter of Brady, endorsed Doan's four years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

"My back hurt me pretty bad and it seemed that the pains were mostly over my left kidneys," says Mr. Connor. "My kidneys were very congested and the secretions pained in passage and contained sediment. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills relieved the trouble with my back and regulated my kidneys."

(Statement given April 29, 1915)

On May 16, 1919 Mr. Connor said: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as I did when I previously endorsed them. I think Doan's are a fine kidney remedy and I find occasional use of them keep my kidneys in good shape."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Connor had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

WONDER WORDS.

Wonder, Ore., Nov. 8.

Editor Brady Standard:

Noticing in a recent issue of The Standard the little episode of Reagan and McClure, or the skunk or opossum, I crave your indulgence for a little digression in the way of Oregon current history of a similar nature.

Just about the same time of the moon your humble servant heard a commotion in his own hen house. He forthwith lighted his lantern, grabbed his 32-calibre carbine—not having a shotgun, and sallied forth. Upon entering the hen house he found a large skunk eating on a young chicken about the size of a partridge. He immediately began galloping around trying to find the hole he came in at. (I mean the skunk did.) I set the lantern down and not being able to see the sights of the gun I just pointed it at him and pulled the trigger. As I expected, I missed him; but the second shot I killed him. The next night an owl came and lit on a shed. I went and got the gun again and pointed it at the owl and fired: and down dropped the owl. I call that two good accidents in succession. But listen to this one. As you are aware, this is a mountainous country, covered with forest and jungle; and it is no wonder we are visited by all sorts of wild animals. The deer come in our gardens and eat vegetables sometimes, and coons, jack rabbits and coyotes eat our fruit and chickens. (Of course the rabbits eat no chickens.) But what that porcupine was after I cannot say, unless it was apples. However, be that as it may, my faithful dog, Barney, first discovered him. As usual, I got my gun and lantern. When I got in the back yard to where the dog was barking, I discovered a round looking ball of something about as large as a water bucket under a bench next to the fence. Upon getting up closer I saw it possessed long scattering gray hairs about four to six inches long, somewhat similar to those of the possum which protrude at a greater distance from the skin than the underlying fur. But instead of fur next to the skin as in the case of a possum, the porcupine has white quills with black points, sharper than anything you ever saw; so sharp that you can't see the point. These quills, as they are called, have very fine beards all along the outer surface which causes them to keep on burying themselves deeper and deeper into the flesh of an animal when once they are started. Well, what did my foolish dog do but try to kill the thing! and before I could make him quit he got his nose and mouth all covered with the quills. I shot and killed the porcupine; but I had to let my poor doggo go until morning and by that time the quills, a dozen or more, were worked in to the depth of about an inch, with only about an inch sticking out. The dog, a real intelligent, bright-eyed shepherd and of a real friendly disposition, was in so much pain it took three men and three ropes to hold him still enough to pull the quills out with a pair of wire pliers. Some of the quills had worked through his lips and came out in the opposite side from where they started. They would have probably have caused his death if we hadn't pulled them out.

"EVERYTHING FROM A PIN TO A LOCOMOTIVE." BRADY, TEXAS

A True Prophet.
One of the attractions at the county fair was a fortune teller's tent. A woman had taken her son inside and the seerss bent over the crystal ball.
"Madame," she murmured in deep, mysterious tones, "your son will be a noted man if he lives long enough."

"How wonderful!" breathed the lady. "What will he be noted for?"
"For his old age."
Danger Ahead.
Speaking of white mule, two rustic sports were uncertainly flivvering their way home from the county seat. Ads.

TIME IS TURNED BACK 25 YEARS,
SHE DECLARES

"Tanlac has made such a change in my condition I feel like time had been turned back twenty-five years," said Mrs. Helen Kinman, 524 South Peak St., Dallas.

"It has been all of twenty-five years ago that I began to suffer with stomach trouble and rheumatism and from that day until Tanlac came to my rescue I suffered almost constantly. My kidneys bothered me a good deal, too, my nerves were keyed up to a high pitch and actually, my muscles at times would throb with pain.

"I had been told that my case was hopeless, so the relief I have gotten from Tanlac has been a joyful surprise to me. My heart is just overflowing with gratitude and happiness now and I'm feeling better and stronger than I ever hoped to feel."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock, in Rochelle by C. W. Carr, and by leading druggists everywhere.

RIP VAN WINKLE HAS NOTHING ON KANSAS CITY MAN

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 13.—Rip Van Winkle came back after twenty years and marveled at the villagers grown old. His shock was nothing to that of James Petty, 60, who, after thirty-two years of darkness, had sight restored to him by an operation here and saw for the first time.

Women and girls in knee length dresses and rolled down hose. Buildings towering twenty stories. Carriages without horses and street cars without mules.

Electric signs, movie theatres, tight skirts and rouged cheeks.

When led to the street from the physician's office where a cataract had been peeled from one eye, one of his first exclamations was:

"Why, they do wear 'em to the knees. I had heard they did, but I could not believe it."

Mr. Petty said his next greatest shock was when he looked in the mirror. All human beings disappointed in appearance.

"They are not as good looking as they used to be," he said.

He constantly marveled at the beauties of the material world.

"Everything is so beautiful, so clear and so close," he said again and again.

The Court House.

Did you ever stop to figure just how long that building stood!
And what what a lot of things occur within it, bad or good?

The County owns this building for its various kinds of needs,
It's here a man may be set free, or, hanged, as justice pleads.

The lawyers, jurymen and the judge expend their strength and might,
To put a blame where it belongs, or bring a deed to light.

Then here it is taxes are paid, and various dues we owe;
Our license for our "Ford" each year we buy with honest dough.

The courting couple call to see the clerk of county court,
For papers suited when they call back home to make report.

And thus for years the courthouse in the center of the square,
But means no more to some than to "tie a mule up there."

Then some recall it only when they want the time of day,
To others it's a great big "Bull" that's always in the way.

Look back along the sunny paths, you people on the hills,
Now gaze upon this structure grand and note the place it fills.

It's sacred to a thousand homes, a thousand memories rise,
So Brady, reverence this old spot beneath the Southern skies.

WONDER WORDS.

Wonder, Or., Nov. 5.

Editor Brady Standard:

You remember I told you about our ice on the 13, 14, 15 and 16th of September? Well, we haven't had any more since. Our weather now is damp and chilly. We have fog until noon and then sunshine in the afternoon. Everything gets dripping wet from the fog and it doesn't get entirely dry before night comes again. It is cold enough to have fire going all the time. Tho' we are blessed with a superfluous abundance of the very best of wood, of any kind wanted or desired.

Dear editor and your host of Standard readers! What do you think will be the result of the peace conference? Or the limitation of armaments? Does it presage the ushering in of the millennium? When the swords will be beaten into plowshares and the spears into pruning hooks? I received a letter not long since from the Funk & Wagnalls Co. publishers of the Literary Digest, announcing publication of a new history of the world's greatest of all wars, and of course soliciting my subscription. I wrote and told them that indeed I should like very much to have an unbiased history of every great war that had ever been fought. I should want a history wherein every party to the conflict should be allowed to give their own side, stating their grievances as they saw it. Here is his answer, which follows.

"O. I. C. U. R. RIGHT."

"Mr. J. T. Roberson,
"Wonder, Oregon.

"Dear Sir: Unquestionably you have got the right idea as to a history of the World War, in which each nation could tell its own story. That will probably be done eventually, but the present time is hardly opportune for such a publication. It will require a few more years of time to roll before a work of that sort can be undertaken, because heads will need to cool off considerably before men of various countries can write a history which will contain the real unbiased point of view. The secret archives of the various countries would naturally have to be put at the disposal of such writers if the task were to be successfully accomplished."

HONEST INJUN.

Wouldn't it be a big ad if all our turkeys when shipped to market could be labeled "McCulloch County, Texas, Product."

THE GOOD ROADS ISSUE.

A good roads bond issue is next to claim the attention of the citizens of McCulloch county. We trust every citizen will give the proposition careful and serious consideration. As has often been said, and must be acknowledged, there is no argument against good roads. They are coming to stay! It is a question of whether we shall climb in the hand wagon, or stay out of it. The Federal government thinks enough of good roads to offer to match counties dollar for dollar on the building of highways, so approved by it. The value of the highways to the Federal government was never better illustrated than during the war. They formed indispensable links between cities, counties and states. In times of peace they are even more indispensable.

Looking back over the past couple decades we can see promising towns that have fallen in ruins; that do not even represent a dot on the map today. Why? Simply because a great railway system passed them by. May be the town's citizens had refused to co-operate in securing the railway. Perhaps the exigencies of circumstances made it more practical to route the steam cars another way. Be that as it may, those cities and towns and communities that saw advantage in connection by rail with the outside world offered huge bonuses, freely granted right-of-way, depot grounds and other privileges to get on the main line.

Today there is even a bigger proposition before the citizens. It is that of building good roads to and through every community. Compared with the value and benefits to a community, these good roads tower head and shoulders above a railway proposition. They enable travel in good times and bad, in fair weather and foul, early and late. Those who would use them, do not have to wait on schedule, belated trains or other inconveniences. The road is always there, ready for service when ever called upon. In times of bad weather, should a sudden rise in market values make profitable the immediate marketing of a crop, a good road will enable transportation being accomplished without delay.

Great is a good road. Even greater is a system of good roads. Let us once secure a system of good roads, and it will be a comparatively easy matter to improve the byways leading to and from them. No great railway system was ever builded so as to reach every community that wanted it. These great systems first endeavored to become transcontinental systems. They then gradually build feeders, took over lateral roads and expanded the original trackage.

McCulloch county can accomplish the same results by the same methods. Let us devote our united efforts to making graveled pikes of our highways, first-class thoroughfares of the important and main traveled roads leading to the various communities of the county. This, then, would put a first class road within a few miles of each community in the county. With all these main roads in first-class shape, it will then be an easy matter to build the by-ways that connect with these main roads. Let us work to unite all of McCulloch county in a universal system of good roads. It will be but to "Carry on" the work of the early day pioneer who blazed the trail that we are today following.

LOCAL SUPPORT.

It is the easiest thing in the world to knock, to lay down in the harness, to let the other fellow do it.

It takes a man unselfish, liberal-minded and public-spirited, to help in a good move, to work for public good, to sacrifice his own interests in order that his neighbors might benefit.

All of which leads up to the thought that the Parent-Teachers association is a most worthy institution and is deserving of the whole-hearted support of the community.

Sometimes another community will make us almost ashamed of our efforts. For instance, we note that the newly organized Parent-Teachers association formed by the citizens of Lost Creek community has purchased a pig and will feed it on scraps from the children's lunch baskets, selling the pig this fall and giving the proceeds to the school. Further they have provided school play-ground equipment, and to cap it all, have arranged to provide hot lunches for the children during the winter months, with three changes in the five-day menu.

That is what can be accomplished by united community effort. If Lost Creek citizens can accomplish so creditable an undertaking, what proportionately greater things could be accomplished for the Brady schools if the citizens would wholeheartedly support the Parent-Teachers association in its endeavors.

THE RED CROSS CAMPAIGN.

The Red Cross has begun a campaign of 14 days for public support in the various humanitarian activities in which it is engaged that require financial resources far beyond the present income of this most meritorious organizations.

It is hardly necessary to give reasons why the Red Cross deserves all the assistance that it is possible for the public to give. Its work of mercy which recognizes no such lines of human delimitation as race, creed or social status is so wide-spread and permeating that every man, woman and child in the world knows of it. Its labors are bounded only by the ends of the earth.

At the same time that it is feeding flood sufferers in Pueblo, Colo., it is saving children from starvation in Armenia; while it is helping a flood racked community in China to rehabilitation, it is staying the ravages of cholera in Asiatic Russia; with one of its many generous hands it is giving milk to infants in Austria, while with another it is bringing medicine to the lips of the stricken in Mongolia. Wherever there is human anguish there will be found the Red Cross.

Let it not be thought that the cessation of war has curtailed to any great extent the efforts of the society. Think of Russia with its dying millions, think of Central Europe with its undernourished children, think of China and India with their almost perennial floods, famines and plagues and of our own disasters at home from storm and flame that require help.

The Red Cross is the mother of the world—and, like all mothers, its work is never done.—St. Louis Star, November 13, 1921.

RESPECT THE FLAG.

When you see the stars and stripes displayed, son stand up and take off your hat.

Somebody may titter. It is in the blood of some to deride all expression of noble sentiment. You may blaspheme in the street and stagger drunken in public places, and the bystanders will not pay much attention to you, but if you should get down on your knees and pray to Almighty God or if you should stand bareheaded while a company of old soldiers marches by with flags to the breeze, some people will think you are showing off.

But don't you mind! When Old Glory comes along, salute, and let them think what they please! When you hear the band play "The Star-Spangled Banner" while you are in a restaurant or hotel dining room, get up, even if you rise alone; stand there, and don't be ashamed of it, either!

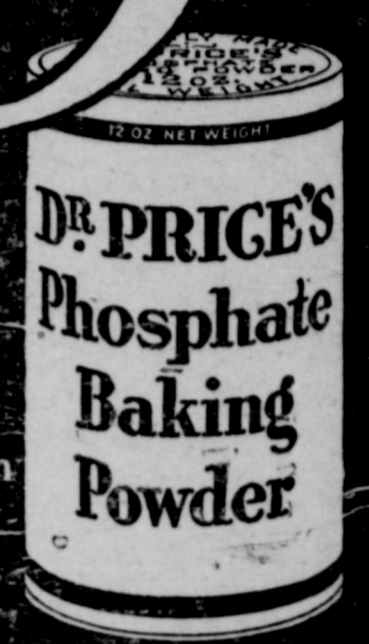

For of all the signs and symbols since the world began there is none other so full of meaning as the flag of this country. That piece of red, white and blue bunting means five thousand years of struggle upwards. It is the full-grown flower of ages of fighting for liberty. It is the century plant of human hope in bloom.

Your flag stands for humanity, for an equal opportunity to all the sons of men. Of course, we haven't arrived yet at that goal; there are many injustices yet among us, many senseless and cruel customs of the past still clinging to us, but the only hope of righting the wrongs of men lies in the feeling produced in our bosoms by the sight of that flag.

Other flags mean a glorious past, this flag a glorious future. It is not so much the flag of our fathers as it is the flag of our children, and of all children's children yet unborn. It is the flag of tomorrow. It is the signal of the "Good Time Coming." It is not the flag of your king, it is the flag of yourself and of all your neighbors.

Don't be ashamed when your throat chokes and the tears come, as you see it flying from the masts of our ships on all the seas or floating from every flagstaff of the republic. You will never have a worthier emotion. Reverence it as you would reverence the signature of the Deity.

Listen, son! The band is playing the national anthem — "The Star-Spangled Banner!" They have let loose Old Glory yonder. Stand up—and others will stand with you.

This tribute to the flag is offered to the country in appeal to all men and women of all races, colors and all tongues, that they may come to understand that our flag is the symbol of liberty, and learn to love it.

RESIDENCE OF O. B. JOHNSON DESTROYED BY FIRE MONDAY MORN

The residence of O. B. Johnson, located in the north addition to Brady, and west of the August F. Behrens' residence, was completely destroyed by fire at 3:30 o'clock Monday morning. The fire had its origin in a front room, in which no fire had ever been had and which had been unused for some two or three days. When aroused by the noise of the crackling flames and the acrid smell of smoke, Mr. Johnson opened the door to the front room, to find it a solid mass of flames. The opening of the door caused the flames to spread through the balance of the house, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson fled for their lives. But a couple articles of wearing apparel, a chifferobe and a couple mattresses were saved.

The house consisted of three rooms and was especially well built. Mr. Johnson had just moved his garage back from the house, which saved it from the flames. He estimates his loss at over $1,000, with $500 insurance on the house, and $500 additional insurance on the garage, tank and household goods.

The loss represents everything accumulated by Mr. Johnson since his discharge from army service May 1, 1919, he having been in service for a two year period, and having been in France for a period of twelve months.

The house occupied by Earl Keith, just north of the Johnson residence, was endangered by the flames, and only the changing of the wind saved it from destruction.

"PARENT DAY" TO BE OBSERVED BY PARENT-TEACHERS ASSN., WITH PROGRAM

Today (Friday, November 18th), is "Parent Day," and will be appropriately observed with an interesting and instructive program tonight at the Methodist church, the program beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The entertainment as arranged by the Parent-Teachers association will include a program by the school children and also two short talks—one by Supt. J. B. Smith, and the other by the Rev. G. T. Reaves.

Following the program, a social hour will be had. A cordial invitation is extended the general public to attend, with assurance that they will thoroughly enjoy the entertainment offered.

Death of Dr. R. J. Baze

News of the death of Dr. R. J. Baze at his home in Chickasha, Okla., Monday, November 14th, was received here by his sister, Mrs. H. P. C. Evers, and was learned with deep regret by his many friends. Dr. Baze had spent several weeks here while endeavoring to recuperate his health, and had only recently returned to his home in Chickasha. At the time of his coming to Brady, he was very hopeful of regaining his health and strength through a change of climate, and incidentally by reason of getting away from his home, where his skilled services were so constantly in demand by those searching for relief from their bodily ills.

Dr. Baze was born in Scott County, Ark., October 12, 1870, being the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baze. He was a graduate of the Medical College of Memphis, Tenn., and began the practice of medicine at Fredonia, Texas, at the age of 18. After some six months, he moved to Mason, where he practiced for some fifteen years. While at Mason, he was married to Miss May Bridges.

About fifteen years ago, Dr. Baze moved to Chickasha, Okla., where he established a sanitarium and did surgical work. His extensive practice and his devotion to his duties eventually undermined his physical strength, and about two years ago he was forced to retire from active duty and seek a change. He visited Dallas, Oklahoma City, St. Louis and Chicago in search of relief, but without success.

Dr. Baze had been a member of the Christian church for 33 years, and at the time of death he was an elder of the Christian church at Chickasha. He was also a Knight Templar. Despite his ill health, he ever maintained a cheerful spirit and his warm handclasp and his sunny smile made him loved and respected by all.

Dr. Baze is survived by his widow and two married daughters, Mrs. Jay Lone and Mrs. Carroll Campbell. There also survive his mother, Mrs. J. P. Baze of Brady; five brothers, Dr. P. A. Baze of Mason, G. T. Baze of Blanchard, Okla., Dr. W. J. Baze of Chickasha, Okla., E. A. Baze of Melvin and Martin Baze of Junction, Texas; and three sisters, Mrs. H. J. Lowry of Lubbock, Mrs. J. B. Kidd of Katemey and Mrs. H. P. C. Evers of Brady. Also four grandchildren. To all is extended universal sympathy.

JUNCTION TEAM CAPTURES SECOND GAME FROM LOCALS FRIDAY

The Brady high school eleven journeyed to Junction Armistice Day only to meet decisive defeat upon the gridiron. The final score resulted 26 to 0. The Junction team presented an impregnable front on line bucks, and outplayed the locals on passes and various other plays. It was Junction's day in the field, and they made the most of it. The best the boys could do was to give them a hard fight for the victory, and this they did throughout the game, never playing off for a minute. The game was refereed by Louis Vierling, former Brady boy, and who won the admiration of the Brady aggregation by his knowledge and understanding of the game, and by his fair decisions.

The Brady boys returned highly praising the Junction players and citizens for the many courtesies shown them. It appeared Junction could not do enough for the Brady boys, and virtually turned the town over to them.

Saturday Brady is scheduled to take on Menard, the game being played on the local field. A large crowd is expected out, and everybody is wanted to help root for the home team.

LEGAL NOTICE

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of McCulloch County--Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summons Edgar Littlefield, by making publication of this citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, to appear at a regular term of the County Court of McCulloch County, Texas, to be held at the Court House, in Brady, Texas, on the third Monday in January, 1922, the same being the 16th day of January, 1922, then and there to answer the plaintiffs petition filed in a suit in said Court on the 5th day of October 1921, wherein Ed. A. G. Broad and A. H. Broad are plaintiffs and Edgar Littlefield, Brady National Bank of Brady, Texas, Haynes Coffee, "Fog" Coffee and Simpson Johnson are defendants, the file number of said suit being No. 700, and the nature of plaintiffs demands and his cause of action is as follows: The defendant, Edgar Littlefield on or about January 8, 1921, for a valuable consideration, executed and delivered to plaintiffs a certain promissory note for the sum of Two Hundred Forty-Four and 32-100 Dollars, payable to Broad Mercantile Company, in Brady, Texas, on the 1st day of April, 1921, and at the same time the defendant Edgar Littlefield executed and delivered to plaintiffs a chattel mortgage lien on the following personal property: One brown horse 16 hands high, One bay horse 14 hands high, which the Brady National Bank has taken possession of; One gray horse 16 hands high and one brown horse, 5 years old, 15 1/2 hands high, the last two of said horses have been taken by said Haynes Coffee and "Fog" Coffee. The defendant Simpson Johnson is also claiming to hold a lien on the above described horses. Wherefore plaintiffs pray for proper citation in the premises and for judgment and foreclosure of their chattel mortgage lien on the above described personal property, and for other special and general relief as they may be entitled to.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court on the said first day of the next term thereof, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION.

THE STATE OF TEXAS--

To the Sheriff or any Constable of McCulloch County--Greeting:

You are hereby commanded that you summon Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill, by making publication of this citation in some newspaper published in McCulloch County, Texas, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day of this citation, to be and appear before the District court of McCulloch county, Texas, at the next regular term thereof, to be held at the Court House in Brady, Texas, on the Eleventh Monday after the First Monday in January 1922, the same being the 20th day of March A. D. 1922, then and there to answer the Plaintiff's Original Petition filed in a suit in said Court on the 12th day of September 1921, wherein Ernest Cornils is Plaintiff, and Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill are defendants, the file No. of said suit being No. 2105, and the nature of Plaintiff's demand and his cause of action is as follows:

"The State of Texas, In District County of McCulloch, In District Court, McCulloch County, Texas, September Term, 1921.

To the Honorable District Court of McCulloch County, Texas:

Your petitioner, Ernest Cornils, hereinafter called plaintiff, complaining of Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill, hereinafter called defendants, respectfully represents that plaintiff in McCulloch county, Texas, and that all of the defendants are non-residents of the State of Texas, and that defendants are doing business under the name of Day-Daley Petroleum Association and compose the Day-Daley Petroleum Association or firm, and for cause of action plaintiff respectfully shows:

That said defendants have been engaged in the business of drilling oil wells and prospecting for oil in McCulloch county, Texas, having defendant, Thad O. Day, located in McCulloch county in charge of said work with full power and authority to employ hands and secure labor to carry on said work and make any and all contracts necessary or essential in the prosecution of said work, and said defendant, Thad O. Day, acting for himself and said other defendants, employed plaintiff to work for defendants in said drilling operations, under which contract plaintiff began work for defendants on or about April 29, 1921, under the terms of which contract defendants agreed to pay plaintiff the sum of $10.00 per day straight time for each and every day, Sundays included, plaintiff being employed by defendants and working for defendants as a tool-dresser and working as a tool-dresser in the work of drilling said wells, and acting under said contract of employment plaintiff worked for defendants continuously from the time he began on April 29th, 1921, to and including September 11, 1921, amounting to 136 days; that under said contract under which plaintiff did said work for defendants, plaintiffs said wages were to be paid on the first of each and every month for the preceding month, and plaintiff's wages were due at the end of each of said months, and said wages for said eleven days since September first were due as performed, as hereinafter alleged, and plaintiff says that all of said wages so due him by defendants are long past due and wholly unpaid, and though often requested so to do defendants have wholly failed and refused and still fail and refuse to pay same or any part thereof; that defendants paid plaintiff the sum of $15.00, leaving a balance due and unpaid of $1345.00, and all of said sum of $1345.00 is past due and wholly unpaid. That plaintiff is the legal owner and holder of said account. That defendants ceased active operations in McCulloch county on August 20th, 1921, and the defendant, Thad O. Day, who was in charge of said work as aforesaid, left McCulloch county and the State of Texas on or about said last mentioned date, and before leaving told plaintiff that his, plaintiffs, said contract and employment would continue and his wages under said contract would continue to run until plaintiff was paid off and discharged, and that defendants would need plaintiff to hold himself in readiness to ship their equipment and property out of McCulloch county to defendants at such place in the North as defendants might desire, and under such instructions from defendants plaintiff has continued in said employment and sees to recover said sum of $10.00 per day since August 20th, until and including September 11th, together with said wages due prior to August 20th, 1921.

Wherefore, premises considered, plaintiff prays that defendants, who are non-residents of the State of Texas, be cited by publication to appear and answer this suit, and that upon hearing hereon plaintiff have judgment against defendants for his debt in the said sum of $1345.00 and all costs of suit, and for such other and further and different relief, general and special, legal and equitable, as plaintiff may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court, on the first day of the next term thereof, this Writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Brady, Texas, this 10th day of October A. D. 1921.

Expression of Appreciation.

As chairman of the McCulloch County Red Cross, I want to personally express my appreciation of the splendid spirit of co-operation and assistance by all those who so willingly took part in the Red Cross parade, and Armistice Day celebration November 11th, I think it was even better than we had hoped for, with so short a time for preparation, but with such splendid assistance, I was not surprised. So many expressions of appreciation were heard that I believe all were glad and happy over the results of the occasion, and I know you feel amply repaid in that you were rendering a service for the Red Cross, which means a service for humanity.

I want to especially mention the band of whom we are so proud. We not only have the material to make a band, but we have the instructor to develop the material, and it is being developed. Also the Legion boys, whom we love and reverence so much. It could not be an armistice celebration without them, and the Red Cross has meant and now means so much to them. Also Mrs. Holton, our secretary, who worked unceasingly and who was largely responsible for its success. Also the different schools representing the efforts of Mrs. Anderson of the Brady high school and of Miss Cunningham of the Central school were so much appreciated; as were also those of the other schools—but I do not know who were personally responsible for the splendid re-presentation.

The peace time program (and we hope there will never be any other kind) operates largely through the schools. We ought to be willing to put forth more effort to build up than to destroy, and to clear up the stream it is more sensible to begin at the source than at the mouth. In case of war we need to care for our soldiers, but isn't it much better to spend more effort on the younger generation in combatting the spirit of war and its influences?

Again, let me express my thanks to you all, and say it is a pleasure to serve with such people. My greatest hope is that we will all study the merits of the Red Cross move and support it both morally and financially, to the end that we will get the benefit of the program the national organization is offering us, if everybody co-operates.

Father Dies at Coleman.

A. B. Stobaugh Wednesday noon received the sad news that his father, J. W. Stobaugh of Coleman, was not expected to live, and accompanied by Mrs. Stobaugh, left at once for Coleman. They arrived there just five minutes before he passed away. Mr. Stobaugh had just returned the first of the week from a visit with his parents.

The elder Mr. Stobaugh was one of Coleman's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens. He had made his home there for something like 35 years, having engaged the greater part of his life in farming. For the past ten or fifteen years years he had operated a wagon yard in the city. He was widely known, and all his many friends will learn with regret of his passing. At the time of death he was 70 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Stobaugh had ten children of whom five boys survive, E. T. and Cal Stobaugh of Rockwood, Buck and Perry, of Coleman, and Burt, of Brady.

Death of Mrs. Levi Wilkerson.

Mrs. Levi Wilkerson of Hext passed away at the local sanitarium Saturday, November 12th, following an illness of some two or three weeks with mastoiditis. At the time of death, she was aged 52 years. She leaves a husband and a number of children to mourn her loss. The body was carried to Hext for interment.

Disarmament.

That universal peace might be supplied;
The blessed Son of God was crucified.
This armament of steel would not suffice
But armament of love and sacrifice.

Upon the "conference"
The smile of Heaven descends
And all the heroes in prayer
That wars shall end;
The work and prayer and faith were
Not in vain;
In conclave at that hour the duty's plain.

The hour has struck, oh, God and Righteous Son;
Help these to go not till their duty's done!
Stay by dear God we pray enthroned in men,
"Till love and truth shall every act commend.

Then help disarm this horde that cannot see
The wrong that shuts a world from Thee;
Unite thy people, Lord—"divisions" wrong,
"All one body we" this is our song.

But sacrilegious as we voice it now,
"A lie to God and man! the sinners vow—
Disarm us Lord of selfishness and strife
And arm us with the "Way," the "Truth," the "Life."

The Speech of True Faith.

A traveler who believed himself to be the sole survivor of a shipwreck on a cannibal isle hid for three days in terror of his life. Finally, driven out by hunger, he discovered a thin wisp of smoke rising from a point inland. Crawling there cautiously on his hands and knees, he arrived just in time to hear a raucous voice demand:

"Why the blinkety-blankety-blank did you play that blank-blanked card?"
"Praise the Lord!" gasped the survivor, kneeling devoutly. "They are Christians."

A Resemblance.

"Your husband says he leads a dog's life," said one woman.
"Yes, it's very similar," answered the other. "He comes in with muddy feet, makes himself comfortable by the fire, and waits to be fed."

SHERIFF PUGH REPORTED AS BEING STILL BETTER; VERSION OF FALL GIVEN

Sheriff Pugh was resting very well this afternoon, a report from the surgical institution where he is being treated, said, and it was also added that his condition is much improved. It will be one week tomorrow since Mr. Pugh was injured while trying to get out of the second story of the Harper hotel, which was on fire. By-standers have since stated that the sheriff would have made the jump without danger, had it not been that just as he cleared the window one of his feet struck the window ledge which jerked his head towards the ground and caused him to strike in that position.—Brownwood Bulletin.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," as he likes to be known, son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in eastern Tennessee, abandoning a life of ease—and incidentally a bride, Patricia Claverling, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe" Littleford, typical mountain girl. By Heck, a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home. Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, David Moreland, years ago, owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle. Moreland's description of "Carlyle" causes Dale to believe the man was his father.

CHAPTER II.—Dale arranges to make his home with the Moreland family, for whom he entertains a deep respect.

CHAPTER III.—Talking with "Babe" Littleford next day, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" Ball, bully of the district, to leave "his girl" alone. Dale replies spiritedly, and they fight. Dale whips the bully, though badly used up. He arranges with John Moreland to develop David's coal deposits. Ben Littleford sends a challenge to John Moreland to meet him with his followers next day, in battle. Moreland agrees.

CHAPTER IV.—During the night all the guns belonging to the Littlefords and the Morelands mysteriously disappear.

CHAPTER V.—Dale arranges to go to Cincinnati to secure money for the mining of the coal. The two clans find their weapons, which the women had hidden, and line up for battle. "Babe," in an effort to stop the fighting, crosses to the Moreland side of the river, and is accidentally shot by her father and seriously wounded.

CHAPTER VI.—To get proper surgical aid, John Moreland, Ben Littleford and Dale convey "Babe," unconscious, to the city. Doctors assure them she is not seriously hurt. Dale meets an old friend, Bobby McLaurin, who had married Patricia Claverling. Telling his father of David Moreland's coal, the old gentleman's actions convince his son of his father's guilt in the killing of Moreland.

CHAPTER VII.—It is arranged that "Babe" is to stay with Mrs. McLaurin to be educated. Dale, refusing his father's proffered financial aid to develop the mine, interests Newton Wheatley, capitalist, who agrees to furnish the money. Dale realizes he loves "Babe."

CHAPTER VIII.—Returning to the Halfway Switch, Dale meets Major Bradley, lawyer, and real friend of the mountaineers, whom he engages as counsel for the company. A man named Goff, of evil repute, tries to bribe Dale to betray the Morelands by selling him the coal deposits, and telling them they are of little value. Dale attempts to threaten him, but Goff draws a revolver. Dale is unarmed.

CHAPTER IX.—Goff enlists the aid of a turbulent crowd, the Balls and Torreys, to make trouble for Dale's company. The Littlefords and Morelands agree to forget the old feud and dwell in harmony.

CHAPTER X.—"Babe" returns to her home, fearing she is a burden to the McLaurins. Dale remonstrates, and she agrees to go back, for the sake of an education. "Wayland" "Black Adam" Ball, Dale fights a pistol duel with the desperado, and Ball is killed. Dale is arrested and taken to jail at Carterville. He doesn't see how his shot could have killed Ball.

CHAPTER XI.—There is much speculation as to who really killed Ball, the general opinion being it was By Heck, who had constituted himself Dale's guardian.

CHAPTER XII.—On the pretext of investigating another coal deposit, Dale is decoyed to a gathering of the Balls and Torreys. They "try" him for the murder of Adam Ball, find him guilty, and sentence him to be hanged next day. He is rescued by By Heck. Goff is forced to leave the neighborhood.

CHAPTER XIII.—"Babe" writes Dale that she is living with her parents and that her education is progressing. Jimmy Payne, rich and dissolute, asks "Babe" to marry him, but she tells him she loves Dale.

CHAPTER XIV.—"Babe" comes to Carterville to attend Dale's trial. He is acquitted of the murder of Adam Ball. Dale asks "Babe" to marry him. She loves him, but tells him she cannot be his wife.

CHAPTER XV.—"Babe" tells Mrs. Dale her son had asked her to marry him and that she refused. Pressed for a reason, she confesses she killed Adam Ball to save Dale's life, and that she feels she is not worthy to be his wife.

CHAPTER XVI.—Jimmy Payne presses his suit. "Babe" finally and definitely refuses him, though he promises that if she will marry him, he will help and educate the Littlefords, the girl's dearest wish.

CHAPTER XVII.—Learning that the Balls and their kindred are planning to attack the place and kill him, Dale gathers the Littleford and Moreland clans for a last fight against the outlaws. The Balls are worsted and rounded up. A small boy is sent to kill Dale, but his generosity conquers the little fellow. Dale and the clan chiefs release the outlaws, giving them their freedom.

CHAPTER XVIII.—With "Babe" and John K. Dale visits David Moreland's grave. The girl has long since guessed the grim secret of Dale's life, the killing of David Moreland in a drunken rage. John Moreland meets the old man at the grave and prepares to kill him. "Babe" pleads for his life. Learning he is "Bill" Dale's father, Moreland relents and finally agrees to forgive and forget the past.

"Put 'n' gun down—wait until I tell ye," John Moreland, what I've got to tell ye!" she cried tensely, lapsing into the old dialect in her excitement. While Moreland stared, she went on:

"It wasn't Newton Wheatley 'n' put up the money to start yore coal mine a-goin'; it was this man here! And the Alexander Crayfield Coal corporation—which has been a-payin' yore two prices for yore coal—that was this man here! Mr. Hayes was his—his ally through it all. And he's sorry, John Moreland, this man is—so sorry; that he wants to die; and can't ye see it, John Moreland?" She caught her breath again and continued tearfully: "Oh, he don't deserve to be killed, and er he did—yore're too good a man to kill him. He's done paid—you don't know, like I do, how he's paid. You mustn't forget that. And you mustn't forget Bill Dale, his son. Put down that gun, John Moreland! Yore people is saved, as David wanted 'em saved. Now d-d-don't go and s-s-spoil it all, fo' God's sake!"

The big mountaineer's eyes were wide with amazement, for Elizabeth Littleford's every word had borne the ring of truth. He was too dazed to understand her allusion to Bill Dale as his old enemy's son. The rifle came back from across the palings, and its steel-shod butt found a place in the snow beside John Moreland's foot.

Slowly John K. Dale arose and drew close to him, and then from John K. Dale's soul came pouring the pent-up anguish of remorse that had seared it through the years. The torrent of words flowed on, while the mountaineer stood rigidly regarding him with a strange light in his piercing eyes.

"I can't ask you to forgive me," Dale finished brokenly. "I don't expect forgiveness; my crime was too great. But can't you, for the sake of the boy, let me keep on trying to atone for my sin?"

John Moreland looked long and searchingly into the face of the pleading man before him. The bitter struggle that was going on within him was mirrored on his rugged countenance. But gradually the bitterness faded; his huge frame trembled; he put a hand slowly down on the other's shoulder.

"The boy," he muttered—"Bill Dale; is he yore boy? Yore name was Carlyle then—"

"My boy, yes—my boy, Bill Dale. Carlyle is an old family name. My father was at the head of a big coal concern; he sent me down here in cognito to get a line on the Moreland vein. Maybe he thought the price would be high if it were known that he wanted it; I don't know. I—I can't remember."

Ben Littleford's daughter was watching closely, hoping against hope, praying to heaven with all 'er heart; and then she saw John K. Dale put his right hand up to John Moreland's enclosure on the highest point of David Moreland's mountain. He held the lighted lantern while Moreland worked. They were there for hours. When the work was finished David Moreland's brother arose from his knees in the snow, put the hammer and the chisel into his pocket, and spread open his cold, cramped fingers.

"Ef David could know," he said wearily, "I believe he'd be glad 'at I done it. Anyway, it makes me feel better."

Ben Littleford put a big hand on John Moreland's shoulder.

"Yes," he agreed, "ef David could know about it, he'd be glad 'at ye done it, John. The 'tain't no doubt 'at that. And who can say he don't know about it?"

Elizabeth learned of it early on the following morning. When breakfast was over, she whispered to John K. Dale that there was something she had to show him. She wouldn't tell him anything in advance. So he went with her to see for himself.

When at last they stood inside the weatherbeaten palings, Elizabeth pointed and said:

"Look there, and thank God!" Dale looked and saw. The color left his face, then came back. He shut his eyes, swayed a little on his feet, opened his eyes, looked and saw again. He turned to the young woman with a great joy shining on his face.

"I haven't been so glad," he told her, "for twenty-five years."

The chiseling away of the lower five lines had not only obliterated the curse; it had left an almost perfect cross. Then John Moreland's bare, cold and tireless hands had gone to work and made it, in every respect, a perfect cross.

CHAPTER XX

The End of It All.

The sun shone very brightly that day, and the snow began to melt on the places that were not shaded. When he returned with Elizabeth from the crest of David Moreland's mountain, John K. Dale took a rocker before the fire and sat there thinking, thinking, until the midday meal was announced. When the midday meal was over, he resumed his chair and sat there thinking, thinking, until the afternoon was half gone.

Then he called Elizabeth to him.

"Will you go to my son and tell him I wish to see him?" he said. And he added under his breath: "I think it is best that they should know."

Elizabeth heard that which he had said to himself as well as she heard that which he had said to her. A sudden knock! Know what? She had a sudden wild fear that Mrs. Dale had broken her promise never to breathe suddenly Dale looked toward his host and asked: "Where is my son?" At that moment Dale the younger, in boots and corduroys, appeared in the outer doorway and answered for himself:

"Here he is, father. Are you well?" Dale the elder arose, and their hands clasped warmly. Young Dale then shook hands with Elizabeth, who blushed in spite of herself as she faced him.

To hide her confusion, Elizabeth turned to the tall and lanky By Heck, who had come in behind Bill Dale. "How are you, By?" she greeted him.

"Hungry," grinned By Heck, taking her hand awkwardly. "I never et nothin' but a couple o' baked 'possums and a peck or two o' sweet 'taters fo' dinner, and I've been as busy as the dev—as thunder a-doin' nothin' ever sence. Doin' nothing shore does make me hungry, M-M-Miss Babe."

Supper was announced, and they went into a long, log-walled room that served as both kitchen and dining room.

Bill Dale sat beside his father and talked of nothing but coal veins—big and little coal veins, long and short, broad and narrow, deep and shallow, blue and black coal veins. Babe Littleford, who wouldn't marry him, who had come back to the hills to torture him with a beauty that he had never believed possible in any woman, shouldn't know that he was even thinking of her!

He talked coal with his father until bedtime, and he was wiser in the ways of the black diamond when nine o'clock came. After Ben Littleford had haltingly conducted family prayers—and in this he mentioned even the Balls, Turners and Torreys—Bill Dale bade them all good night and started for his office to sleep, rolled in a blanket on the floor. There was a lack of beds at Ben Littleford's that night.

A little later, John Moreland drew old Ben out to the cabin yard. The skies were clear, and the moon was shining brightly; everywhere there was beauty and peacefulness.

"Ben," softly, "I've got to bother ye a minute, as late as it is. I wanted ye to find me a hammer and a chisel and a lantern."

"I've got 'em all three right thar in the house," replied Littleford. "But wha't'n the name o' Torment and thunder do ye want with a hammer and a chisel and a lantern, John, old friend?"

The answer came straightforwardly. It was the Moreland way.

"I'm a-goin' up thar to whar pore David he's buried at, and cut off some them letters offen the stone, Ben. I can't sleep until it's done. You can guess whar part I'm a-goin' to cut off, can't ye?"

"Yes," said Littleford. "Babe told me about what happened up thar afore dark. And I'm pow'ful glad ye're a-goin' to do it, John, old friend."

He went with Moreland to the little enclosure on the highest point of David Moreland's mountain. He held the lighted lantern while Moreland worked. They were there for hours.

When the work was finished David Moreland's brother arose from his knees in the snow, put the hammer and the chisel into his pocket, and spread open his cold, cramped fingers.

"Ef David could know," he said wearily, "I believe he'd be glad 'at I done it. Anyway, it makes me feel better."

Ben Littleford put a big hand on John Moreland's shoulder.

"Yes," he agreed, "ef David could know about it, he'd be glad 'at ye done it, John. The 'tain't no doubt 'at that. And who can say he don't know about it?"

Elizabeth learned of it early on the following morning. When breakfast was over, she whispered to John K. Dale that there was something she had to show him. She wouldn't tell him anything in advance. So he went with her to see for himself.

When at last they stood inside the weatherbeaten palings, Elizabeth pointed and said:

"Look there, and thank God!" Dale looked and saw. The color left his face, then came back. He shut his eyes, swayed a little on his feet, opened his eyes, looked and saw again. He turned to the young woman with a great joy shining on his face.

"I haven't been so glad," he told her, "for twenty-five years."

The chiseling away of the lower five lines had not only obliterated the curse; it had left an almost perfect cross. Then John Moreland's bare, cold and tireless hands had gone to work and made it, in every respect, a perfect cross.

a word of the truth concerning the Adam Ball affair. Nevertheless, she put on her hat and her gloves and went to Bill Dale's office.

Dale sat with his elbows on his desk and with his head in his hands. To all appearances, he was unaware of the presence of the girl in the doorway.

She spoke. "Bill!"

He sat up straight and faced her. He seemed surprised.

"Well, Babe?"

"Your father wants you," in a low voice. "He's got something to tell you that—that will make you think almost nothing of me!"

Young Dale frowned. "What is it?" "I'd rather he'd tell you about it, Bill Dale, I don't think I could bear to tell you myself—"

She turned and was about to hasten away, when he called to her: "Wait!"—and she waited.

"Has it," he asked, "anything to do with your marriage to Jimmy Payne?" "No!"

He arose and put on his broad-rimmed hat. "I'll admit," he smiled, "that I'm worse than a granny woman for poking my nose into other people's affairs—when are you going to marry Jimmy, Babe?"

The answer came quickly: "Never." "Never!" repeated Elizabeth, very quietly.

"Never?" cried Elizabeth, exasperated.

"Goodness!" laughed Dale. "You're dramatic, or vehement, or both. May I walk home with you, Babe?"

"Yes, sir," promptly, "if you want to."

They set out across the snow-covered meadows, and neither spoke another word until they had reached Ben Littleford's log house. The girl looked at him queerly as they entered. After he knew—

Old Dale still sat before the fire, and near him sat silent John Moreland. Old Dale motioned toward an inside door.

"Please close it, Elizabeth," he requested, and she obeyed. "Now sit down. I've got something to tell the three of you. And I fancy it will interest all of you."

The two who had just come in took chairs at the fireside. After a moment, John K. Dale began:

"You've often wondered, Bill, about that savage streak—as you choose to call it—that is in you. You inherited it. Much of that which we are, it is claimed, is inherited, and it must be correct; like begets like, of course. But there is no savage streak in you, Bill. You are hot-headed, that's all. Your virtues overbalance that, by far. I have never seen another man who had a greater love for honesty and fair play, or a greater hatred for all that is hollow and false, or more courage to stick up for that which seems to be right, than you. Now I'll tell you how you came by those fine qualities and the hot-headedness—"

Elizabeth Littleford sat wide-eyed, tense, half breathless. If he would tell it, why didn't he tell it! Why did he beat about the bush like that?

"Bill, this is hard for me. It brings back a terrible thing. You know about David Moreland. . . . When I awoke that morning and found him lying dead at my crated, drunken hands, I wished that I, too, were dead. . . . That great and silent wilderness smothered me. I imagined that I could hear voices calling to me, saying—

"'Cain! Cain!' "They came from the laurel thickets, from the trees overhead, from the ground, from everywhere. You see, I wasn't all bad, even in my wild-outr days. Then I thought of the law, and I ran. . . .

"But the cry of a child from the cabin I was leaving halted me before I had gone thirty yards. David Moreland's wife had left him with a baby only a few weeks old, which I didn't pay any particular attention to until that morning, that black morning. At that time there was no other house for miles around. I couldn't leave the child there to die of starvation, after killing its father. So I went back and got the baby, and all its clothing, and took it away with me. I left it at a farmhouse down in the lowland, and went to another city, and started life afresh."

Face to Face.

An Irishman whose face was so plain that his friends used to tell him that it was an offense to the landscape, happened also to be as poor as he was homely.

One day a neighbor met him and asked, "How are you, Dennis?"

"Mighty bad; sure, 'tis starvation that staring me in the face."

"Begorra," said his neighbor, sympathetically, "it can't be very pleasant for either of you."—Harper's Magazine.

hand, take it and press it—and she saw John Moreland, his bearded mouth jerking, give the answering squeeze that meant something very akin to forgiveness.

She ran out at the gate, ran up to the giant hillman and put her arms around his neck; she drew his great brown head down and kissed him on the cheek. And John Moreland let his rifle fall unnoticed to the snow, put his arms around her shoulders as though she were his own daughter, bowed his head and sobbed out a few words she did not understand.

Night had fallen when they reached Ben Littleford's cabin home. The girl was welcomed with much joy; old Dale was received with almost affectionate cordiality. A roaring fire was soon going in the best room, and old Dale was given the cosiest of the sheepskin-lined rockers. Ben Littleford, washed scrupulously clean of coal smut, sat near the guest of honor. John Moreland, who was so thoughtful that he seemed to hear and see nothing, sat close to Ben Littleford.

Christian Church Service.
"The Golden Text of the Bible"

Thanksgiving Service.
In keeping with the custom established in Brady, all the churches will have a united Thanksgiving service.
The service this year will be held at the Baptist church. Inasmuch as this day is of such importance as to be set aside as a holiday, I believe we, as citizens of the "Queen of the Nations," should observe it as such. It should not be used simply as a day of exemption from labor, but also as a day of devotion in giving thanks unto the bestower of all blessings; so in keeping with the day let us meet at the Baptist church and show our national spirit and true devotion for all the day means to us. It fell to Bro. Dunn's lot to deliver the Thanksgiving address this year, but as he has planned to be out of town that day he has asked me to make the address in his place. You may not have the pleasure of giving your attention to a Sage stuffed with turkey, but after the service I hope you will have the good fortune of giving your attention to turkey stuffed with sage.

The services will be at 10:00 o'- clock.

MARINES GUARD MAILS ON FRISCO TRAINS TO BRADY

Announcement that marines were being sent to Dallas for service as guards on trains carrying valuable mail excited all the more local interest since such protection is now being afforded all mail brought to Brady via the Frisco. The first of the "devil dogs" arrived in Brady on the Frisco the morning of the 11th, Armistice Day. The marine is possessed of sufficient artillery to produce terror in the heart of any would-be train robber, and mail clerks who knew not just when they would be commanded to throw up their hands, or give up their lives, now may carry on their duties with the safe assurance that Uncle Sam has one of his tried and trusted marines safe-guarding them and the valuable mails they handle.

The action of the Federal government follows the numerous daring and murderous hold-ups of U. S. mails perpetrated in recent weeks. The use of the marines for this service is to be only temporary, and as soon as possible they are to be replaced by ex-service men, thousands of whom have made application for the position of mail guard. These ex-service men will have to undergo rigid examinations and will have to show up gilt-edge credentials before they will be entrusted with this responsible work.
