

W. R. RICE, McCULLOCH COUNTY PIONEER CITIZEN, PASSED AWAY AT 6:00 A. M.

W. R. Rice, pioneer citizen of Brady and McCulloch county, and one of the best-known citizens of this section, passed away at his home six miles northwest of Brady this morning at 6:00 o'clock, aged 74 years, 5 months and 7 days. Death resulted from Bright's disease. Mr. Rice had suffered with swollen feet for the past couple of months, which kept him confined to his home, but maintained his usual good spirits and good humor throughout, and hoped eventually to overcome the ailment. About a week ago his condition became decidedly worse, and for several days his life had been despaired of, death coming as a merciful relief.

Mr. Rice was one of the few remaining first settlers in Brady and McCulloch county, having come here about 1875, and he was one of the first, if not the first to pay taxes after the organization of McCulloch county. For many years he was engaged in business in Brady, retiring to his ranch some seventeen or eighteen years ago, and where he has made his home since.

Jovial of nature, whole-souled and possessed of most likable qualities, Mr. Rice was popular with all who knew him and was held in highest esteem by all. Possessed of keen business judgment, he accumulated considerable property, both in Brady business property and farm lands, and was regarded as one of the most prominent and influential citizens of the county.

Mr. Rice was the last remaining member of his family, having been preceded in death by his two brothers, Huey and John Rice, within the past few years. Nearest of kin are his nephews and nieces, included among whom are the four daughters and three sons of his deceased brother, John Rice, who, with their mother, had for a number of years made their home on the ranch and cared for him, and also O. H. Turney of Brady.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) at 10:30 o'clock at the family residence, northwest of Brady, the Rev. S. H. Jones conducting, following which the Masonic fraternity, of which deceased had long been an honored and valued member, will take charge of the body and commit it to the grave. Interment will be made in Brady cemetery.

Father Died in Oklahoma.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shell and niece, Miss Jean Polk, returned Saturday night from Oklahoma City, where they had been called by a message received last Tuesday night announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Shell's father, James Brown, former member of the state legislature of Oklahoma. Mr. and Mrs. Shell and Miss Polk left immediately, but arrived in Oklahoma City too late to see the father in life, he having passed away early Wednesday morning. The following account of his death is reprinted from the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman:

James Brown, 76 years old, former member of the state legislature from Edmond, died Wednesday at 1212 West Thirty-third street, where he had made his home for the last five years. He is survived by his widow and six children. The body was sent to Edmond where funeral services will be conducted Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Brown was born in Ireland in 1847. He came to America in 1867 and settled in Edmond in 1889 where he was engaged in the lumber business. Brown was a pioneer in Edmond, establishing the first lumber yard and general store at that place. He retired from business and in 1918 removed to this city where he has since made his home.

FIRE ESCAPE ERECTED AT COURT HOUSE—DESCENT ON S. E. CORNER

The regulation steel fire escape purchased a month or so ago by the county commissioners from the Southern Manufacturing company, arrived the past week, and has been assembled and erected at the court house. The fire escape has been placed on the south side of the court house. The exit on the third floor leading to the top landing of the fire escape is through the window on the southeast corner of the commissioners court room, while the landing on the second floor is accessible to the district court room, through a window on the southwest corner of the room. The fire escape stairs leads west from the third to the second floor, and east from the second floor to the ground.

The placing of the fire escape is well arranged, inasmuch as it will be accessible from both second and third floors, the more especially should the regular interior stairway be on fire.

The fire escape for the new Hotel Brady, order for which was placed with the Southern Manufacturing Co. simultaneously with that of the court house escape, has not yet arrived. While the Hotel Brady is the last word in fire-proof construction, and it would appear an impossibility for this monument of brick and concrete to be destroyed by fire, or for fire to even gain so much as a start anywhere in the building, yet the hotel directors, desiring to comply with the law requiring the placing of fire escapes on all buildings of over two stories, have ordered the fire escape, so that there may not be the least shadow of a doubt of their intention and desire to fully safeguard the lives and property of hotel guests.

NEW HEARING DENIED BY HIGHER COURT IN BROOKE SMITH, WM. GRAHAM CASE

In the higher court decisions announced at Austin Wednesday, a rehearing was refused before the Third District Court of Civil Appeals in the case of the Brooke Smith Realty Company against William Graham from Brownwood.

It will be remembered that this case was decided by the Third Court of Civil Appeals at Austin a few weeks ago, in favor of the Brooke Smith Realty Company, that decision being a reversal of the case as terminating in the District Court of Brown County. The attorneys of William Graham petitioned the higher court for a rehearing of the case, which has been refused.

This case will now be tried again before the District Court of Brown county, to which it has been remanded.

William Graham, the plaintiff in the case, claims an interest in the improvements of the building in Brownwood known as the New Graham Hotel, amounting to several thousand dollars. The issue in the case is based upon that claim.—Brownwood News.

DEATH OF ELMO SLEDD, V.-P. FORT WORTH NATIONAL, OCCURS FRIDAY

The sudden and unexpected death of Elmo Sledd, vice-president of the Fort Worth National bank, which occurred at his home in Fort Worth last Friday, was learned with deep regret by his many friends throughout the McCulloch county section. Mr. Sledd was the oldest man in the Fort Worth National organization, with the single exception of Major K. M. VanZandt, president. Death came unexpectedly, following a violent coughing spell. He had caught cold the day before, remaining at home Friday, although not being confined to his bed. Mr. Sledd came to Fort Worth from Kentuck thirty-seven years ago, being then only a messenger boy to his late position. He had visited in Brady upon several occasions, and stood in high esteem of everyone who knew him.

SCULPTORED HEAD OF LEE UNVEILED; STONE MOUNTAIN

SOUTH HONORS BELOVED CONFEDERATE COMMANDER IN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES DEDICATING GREAT MEMORIAL CARVED ON MOUNTAINSIDE

Stone Mountain, Ga., Jan. 19.—The head of General Robert E. Lee, sculptored high up on the side of Stone Mountain, was unveiled here Saturday. Distinguished guests from Southern States and Confederate veterans in their uniform of gray, stood in hushed reverence at the mountain base as Mrs. Helen Plane of Atlanta loosened an electric spark that was the signal to reveal the features of the beloved commander of the Army of Northern Virginia.

Hollins N. Randolph of Atlanta president of the organization that led in the building of the memorial, presided over the gathering from a temporary stand at the base of the mountain. The exercises were opened with prayer, and Mrs. Plane, widow of a Confederate veteran, was then introduced.

Unveiling Spectacular.

Attended by small boys and girls, holding banners for each State that was a member of the Confederacy, Mrs. Plane moved forward and gave the signal to reveal the head of Lee.

There was a rumbling from the stone piece as tons of granite were let loose from the scaffolding 400 feet up the mountain side. The loosened stone rashed to the ground with a roar and two American flags slowly unfurled, disclosing the features of the Confederate chieftain. In the sculptured area waved the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy.

Several Governors Present.

Governors from several States, attended by their military aids, were present, as were representatives of the military of the United States, in the person of guard units from Atlanta. Maj. Gen. David C. Shanks, representing the army, and Rear Admiral James G. Williams of Charleston, S. C., representing the navy, Daughters of the Confederacy and hundreds of civilians also witnessed the unveiling.

Lee's head is but an unit in the great memorial now being carved on Stone Mountain. When completed the memorial will cover an area of 1,300 feet by 140 feet and embrace some 700 figures, depicting in granite the history of the Confederacy.

South Pays Its Homage.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—The South Saturday paid homage to the memory of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Governors of Southern States, Confederate veterans and men and women high in rank in national and State affairs were to stand with bowed heads as tons of granite crashed down the

THREE CASES FOR TRIAL IN CO. COURT

Three cases of more or less interest to the citizens of McCulloch county are scheduled for trial this week in county court, which opened Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Judge Evans J. Adkins presiding.

The first case to come up for trial was that of State vs. Jack Gartman, charged with aggravated assault. Testimony was concluded this morning, and the judge's charge was read at the opening of the afternoon session, following which the opposing attorneys made their arguments.

The case of C. M. Burns, charged with pulling down a fence, which was set for trial this morning, was necessarily postponed, but will come up in court immediately following the conclusion of the Gartman case.

The case of H. S. Kennedy, charged with aggravated assault, was originally scheduled for trial this afternoon, and numbers of witnesses from Fife were yesterday ordered to report for today. The Kennedy case will be taken up as soon as the Burns case is disposed of.

Interest in the various cases is manifested by the large numbers of witnesses, and spectators as well, the court room being quite well filled at each court session.

NOTE 48 YEARS OLD ORDERED PAID BY COURT IN KANSAS

Topeka, Kansas, Jan. 14.—The supreme court has upheld a note given 48 years ago for $950 and held that the interest on the note for the entire period, amounting to $15,500, must be paid.

The case came up from the Franklin county district court. Forty-eight years ago Mrs. Andrew Given inherited $950. She loaned the money to her husband who gave a note reading: "At the expiration of my life I promise to pay to Sarah J. Given or her heirs from my estate or any part $950 with 6 per cent interest from date, payable annually, and if interest be not paid to become as principal and to bear same rate of interest annually."

The note was dated April 12, 1874, and the state supreme court held it to be a valid obligation and that the original amount of the note with interest should be paid.

SAVE YOUR STEERS, MISTER, SOME DAY YOU WILL BE ABLE TO TRADE 'EM FOR A TURKEY

Two calves will pay for a turkey—if they are good calves. If they happen to be a little off in color, or some other minor defect, you will be expected to pay the difference in cash.

Recently a lawyer in a nearby city telephoned his butcher that he had two calves to sell. The butcher agreed to take the calves, and in due time went after them. A few weeks later, and just before the Christmas holidays, the same lawyer phoned the same butcher that he was in the market for a good, dressed turkey. The butcher filled the order and the day before Christmas the turkey was left at the home of the lawyer.

Nothing more was thought of the matter until after the first of the year. Then one day the attorney got a statement from the butcher, which read:

To one dressed turkey $8.30
Credit by two (2) calves $8.00
Balance due 30c

A COMPLIMENTARY CORRECTION

The editor of the Stephenville Tribune last week reprinted The Standard's account of Rochelle's victory over the Alexander basket ball team by a score of 20 to 16 on January 5th, and then makes the following correction in the account, and incidentally pays the Rochelle team a very nice compliment:

The Standard is wrong in its reference to the Alexander team as champions of Erath county. While the team representing the Alexander school is one of the best in the county, the season has just been opened and until a representative schedule has been played and the county meet held can the championship of the county be decided. It will be remembered that Rochelle appeared here at the district meet last year representing McCulloch county and at that time they had a well oiled machine and came near getting into the finals for the championship game.

RELATION OF PUBLIC HEALTH TO GOOD ROADS

The county was to vote on a bond issue which would criss-cross it with hard roads. At a public meeting in the county seat the arguments presented from the forum were largely directed against the issue of bonds, based on the higher taxes which would be paid and the fact that "we already have all we can pay."

The chairman was an anti-bond advocate. After a pro-bond speech, to which he listened with ill-concealed impatience, he called Farmer Jones to his feet. "You tell 'em, Brother Jones," he said. "You would be heavily taxed, and yet you wouldn't be with in a quarter of a mile of the road." Turning to a lieutenant he smiled. "He'll tell 'em, too! I've heard him talk before. He's hot against extra taxes for roads!"

"Friends," began Farmer Jones, "for years I have fought good roads at county expense. I was wrong. I'm here to tell you why. Last winter my little girl got sick. She was awful sick. I got the doctor on the telephone and he said he'd be right out. It took him eight hours to get to the house. When he got there it was too late. My little girl choked to death with diphtheria. My road tax might have cost me fifty dollars a year for a few years; and I'd have a daughter. I saved the money and bought a tombstone with it, and the roads are just as bad as ever. I'm for the bond issue, and when the road is built, I'll build my own quarter of a mile so I can get to it. I've still got two children."

The bond issue was passed.—Rockdale Reporter.

FREE CAMP GROUNDS NOW A NUISANCE.

Something of a craze for free camp grounds has swept through the country during the past two years. However, now, the Tourists and the Sportsmen's Journals appear to be unanimous against the practice of having free grounds. In these camp grounds, water, toilet and cooking facilities are provided and many of them provided with free fuel and it has been found that a lot of "jitney tramps" come to these free places and make permanent homes while their occupants obtain jobs nearby and compete with the home labor, yet live, rent and fuel free off of the community. In time the camp grounds infested with these people look like a veritable shanty town. Practically all of the authorities who study the tourist business say that a rental of at least $1.00 per week should be made on each car and the money derived there from should be used in furnishing police protection and in keeping the camp grounds in a sanitary condition.—Junction Eagle.

Endorsing Mr. Huffman's Plan.
I certainly endorse H. J. Huffman's plan to do away with the County Treasurer's office, and also Mr. Huffman's way of management of road work. I believe that no new roads should be contemplated or undertaken until the roads we now have are placed in a passable condition. I will suggest that the Sheriff's office handle the Tax Collector's office and that the Judge act as County Superintendent. While I believe McCulloch county could do away with the County Court and turn its cases to the District and Justice courts. I would suggest to our Representative to try to have a law passed where a person is guilty of theft, for the State to pay the loser face value for goods stolen, and add that length of time more to the criminal's term.
Yours for the best interests of State and County,

Hefner's Comedians to Show Here This Week Open Play Monday

Hefner's comedians opened a week's engagement in Brady last night, showing in the company's own canvass tent, located on the lot just west of and adjoining the new Hotel Brady. The opening play, "A Pair of Country Kids," was a clever bit of clean-cut comedy and was manifestly thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance. One of the cleverest of the actors was Mr. Arthur, the comedian, who never failed to get a laugh and a hand in his sallies and quips and virtually kept the audience in an uproar throughout the night. Incidentally, to him also goes credit for authorship of a number of plays to be shown during the week, and which promise to still further enhance his reputation both as an actor and as a playwright. Mr. Hefner and Miss Dorothy Dawn, both of whom appeared here last year with Harley Sadler's show, the former in the leading role and Miss Dawn in character, fully lived up to the splendid reputation they already enjoyed with Brady theatre-goers. They are clever, capable artists, and no part in which they are cast, is ever too difficult for them to portray true to life. Miss Lucille Love is leading lady, and her splendid support of the leading man won both commendation and approval from the audience. The balance of the cast is well-selected, and each player harmonizes perfectly in the presentation of the play.

Of special note were the specialties and vaudeville between acts. The singing and dancing was both clever and entertaining, and the talking was up-to-the-minute and refreshing. The novelty xylophone solo, with orchestra accompaniment was particularly pleasing, his rendition of "Barney Google" as played among the various nations bringing down the house. Tickets are given patrons each night, and a "County Store" is the promised feature for tomorrow (Wednesday) night. Saturday night the holder of the right ticket will be given his choice of a Ford car or $350 in cash.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Messrs. Ira Mayhew and Wilson Jordan returned Sunday from a week's business trip, during which they visited in Brownwood, Fort Worth and other points. Upon the return trip, they drove a big Republic truck out from Fort Worth, and which will replace the truck destroyed last month in the Mayhew Produce Co.'s fire.

Sunday night, or rather early Monday morning the coldest spell of the winter was registered in Brady, the thermometer registering around about 11 degrees above zero between 7:00 and 8:00 a. m. A cold, penetrating wind yesterday prevented what might otherwise have been a bracing, sunny day, and today continues cold, with a sharp wind, and with a haze more or less obscuring the sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Si Proctor enjoyed a visit the past week of his brother, Hugh Proctor, who left Monday after spending four days here as their guest. Hugh is well remembered here and his many friends were glad to greet him after his ten years' absence, while on his part, he was free to express his surprise and gratification at Brady's remarkable and substantial growth and progress. Mr. Proctor is employed as traveling salesman for the Waco Cigar Company.

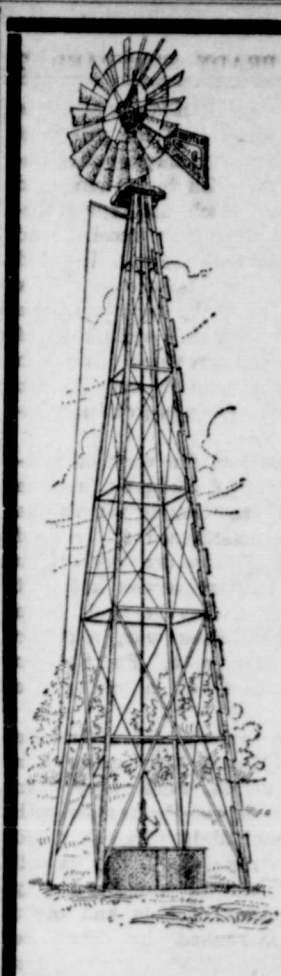

They were an innocent-appearing couple, and the bright lights of the city had evidently never caused them to stray far from their native heath. Consequently, the bride found great delight in the many new and strange things she saw in the store, and incidentally gave opportunity to the stalwart groom to show his superior wisdom and wide experience. As the couple walked into the grocery store, the first thing she observed was some fine grape fruit. "O, look, Charles," she exclaimed, "aren't those the biggest oranges you ever saw?" "Huh, what d'you know about that," said the groom, "she thinks those pineapples are oranges!"

Wm. R. Davidson returned Monday from Madison, Ind., where he had been to attend the funeral of his father, Dr. Wm. R. Davidson, pioneer and beloved citizen of that place, whose death occurred on Friday, January 11th. Mr. Davidson reports the weather as having been extremely

Mr. Gilder is now completing his first term in office, and in the past two years has proven his ability to care for the duties in a manner which has won approval of the city council, and, as well, the general citizenship. In addition to being courteous and pleasant, Mr. Gilder has been faithful in the performance of his duties, being constantly on the job, and keeping his records complete and up in first class shape. In seeking re-election, he rests his claims entirely upon his record of past achievement, and he believes careful investigation by the voters of Brady will prove that he has merited another term in office. He will appreciate the consideration of all voters, both ladies and gentlemen, and more especially their support and vote in the coming city election.

cold in the north, although it was somewhat milder during his stay in Indiana. Upon the return trip, another cold spell swept the country, and as the train passed through Illinois, it ran into a heavy snow-storm, the snow piling on top of the coaches to a depth of something like eighteen inches. The train made it through, although running several hours behind time upon arrival in Saint Louis, necessitating his taking the Katy Flyer from that point to Texas. The continued cold caused this fast train also to be late in arriving at Fort Worth.

The Cost of a Car is no measure of its value

These are the things to consider

THE cost of a car depends in large part on volume and efficiency. It is no criterion of value. Studebaker builds 150,000 fine cars yearly. All of them are Sixes. The main costs are divided by that enormous output. Thus at prices of $975 and up we offer the utmost in quality. We offer maximum values. Don't judge these cars by prices. Under other conditions they might cost twice as much, yet offer less than these.

Some major costs

Quality cars require costly facilities. Studebaker has $50,000,000 invested in modern plants and equipment. $8,000,000 in drop forge plants alone. $10,000,000 in body plants, to carry out the Studebaker standards. There are 12,500 up-to-date machines employed to build these cars. Some are enormously expensive. Few outputs justify such facilities. Then parts must be bought outside, and profits paid to others.

Studebaker engineering costs $500,000 per year. That to us is $3.33 per car. Our Department of Research and Experiment employs 125 skilled men. It makes 500,000 tests per year to maintain our standards. Our Bureau of Methods and Standards fixes the requirements for every part and detail. 12,000 inspections are necessary for each car to insure against flaws and mistakes. We employ 1,000 men to make them. Cars like the Studebakers cannot be built without such facilities, such research, such care. Yet enormous output alone makes them possible at Studebaker prices.

The best we know

Studebakers represent the best we know. And with our army of engineers, with our wealth of experience, we probably know what is best. We use 35 formulas for steels. Each is best suited to certain parts, as proved by years of tests. On some steels we pay the makers a bonus of 15% to get them exactly right. There is no room to excel us there.

We machine the entire surface of each crank shaft, as was done on Liberty Airplane Motors. That extra cost is heavy. But thus we get ations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish. Open cars have real leather cushions. They cost, over imitation leather, about $25 per car. No closed cars could be more luxurious. That lining of Chase Mohair is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. A velour lining would save about two-thirds that cost—up to $100 per car. Note how every detail denotes infinite care. That, as you know, is expensive.

Note the completeness of our larger models. The nickel-plated bumpers, extra disc wheels with cord tires, a steel trunk, a courtesy light. These are rare extras, even on the costliest cars.

Nothing is stinted

Compare part by part with any rival cars. Studebaker will show you some scores of advantages. Then consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this name has stood for quality. When people rode in carriages, Studebaker built the best. Now those same traditions are applied to motor cars alone.

Just Go and See

Studebaker is today the leader in the fine-car field. Studebaker builds more quality cars than any other concern in the world. Buyers of fine cars last year spent over $200,000,000 for Studebaker models. The demand for Studebakers has almost trebled in three years—as people found them out. Then go see them. Compare them with any car you will. Don't spend $1,000 or over without knowing what Studebaker offers. You owe that to yourself.

that perfect balance, that absence of vibration.

We use more Timken bearings than any other car which costs under $5,600. They cost considerably more than ball bearings.

These facts apply to all Studebakers, of all styles and sizes. The materials used in all chassis are alike.

Beauty—Luxury—Finish

The Studebaker coach work has been famous for decades. No one can excel it. The finish is produced by 26 oper-

Consider Studebaker records. Mark how these cars in service have multiplied demand, until people last year paid $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Consider their service records. One Studebaker car, built in 1918, has run 475,000 miles. It is still in active service. It lately made a mid-winter trip from Los Angeles to New York. That means 80 years of average service, of 6,000 miles per year. What more can you dream of in a motor car than the Studebakers offer?

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

WHY R. E. LEE IS SO GREATLY LOVED BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

By JULIA BEAZLEY in Houston Chronicle.

"I am not disposed to speak of General Lee," said Charles Sumner in the United States senate, shortly after the great Virginian's death. "I hand him over to the avenging pen of history."

What history has since said of Robert E. Lee is warning truly severe against any such attempt as Sumner's to anticipate her verdict. Speaking a generation later, another and nobler son of Massachusetts, Charles Francis Adams, expresses a far different sentiment. "If in all respects similarly circumstanced," says Adams, "I hope I should have been filial enough to have done as Lee did."

Perhaps the love for dramatic contrasts accounts in part for the fact that biographers never tire of the ugly duckling motif in the lives of the great. "During my whole life," Darwin is quoted as saying, "I have been singularly incapable of mastering any language." David Hume's mother considered him "uncommon weak-minded." Lord Byron stood at the head of his class only on the occasions when the positions of its units was reversed, in order that the capable might have the satisfaction of "turning down" the incapable.

If only for the sake of variety, it is with relief that we find Lee a vindication of all the soundly ridiculed maxims in the copybook. Napoleon Bonaparte graduated forty-second in his class. Lee was second in his, and received not a single demerit during his whole four years at West Point. Henry Ward Beecher, having spent his study time in the woods, "would be driven to the expedient of writing out his Latin verb and surreptitiously reading it out of the crown of his hat."

Lee improved each shining hour in approved copybook style, and to such good effect that after the lapse of half a century he could compliment a translator of Homer's Iliad on his fidelity to the original. The cherry tree episode, which, whether true or not, is a convenient vehicle for the priceless bequest of courage and honesty that Washington left for posterity, could not have been told of Lee. Lee would have felt the urge to try his new hatchet on the tree, but he would have suppressed it. "Robert was always good," wrote fiery Light Horse Harry, who never saw his grandson after the child was 3 years old.

Which by no means proves that the great commander was a milksop. It is admitted that he "had a fierce and violent temper, prone to intense expression." It has been said that in reckless audacity and stubborn self-will he took a fearful chance at Gettysburg—and lost. But, wherever the blame for this irretrievable disaster to the Confederacy may be finally fixed, there is no doubt that Lee rose to the heights of sublimity seldom reached by frail humanity when he said, "it is all my fault, and you must help me out of it the best you can."

He punctiliously paid his taxes in the midst of the violent war, and in Lexington after the war it was observed that he always gave the pedestrian from the opposite direction the right-of-way when there was no room for both on a board across the mud. One may venture to suspect that such incidents as these were not wholly disconnected with that high notion of what was due from such as they, which has been called over-weening in the cavaliers of the Old South. With all his humbleness Lee seems to have had a keener sense of noblesse oblige than, let us say, the present exceedingly blue-blooded incumbent of the Spanish throne. When offered $50,000 a year for the use of his name as nominal head of an insurance company, he said, "if my name is worth that much, do you not think I should be very careful of it?" And all his regard for the invalid wife and dependent daughters who looked to him for support, and all his own taste for the good things of life which could never be his, did not prevail upon him to accept the offer.

He was not free from the ordinary impulses of ordinary men, he simply suppressed without mercy those that did not seem to him right. "Do your duty," he counseled his son. "You can not be expected to do more, and you should not wish to do less."

For more than half a century the man to whom duty was the sublimest word in the language lived his busy, useful life, unsuspected by himself or others of extraordinary genius. He was devoted to his mother, his wife, his children. He took deep interest in all the brothers, sisters, in-laws, friends, relatives and neighbors that fell his lot as a Virginia gentleman. He worked hard at the technicalities of engineering in New York, Boston and St. Louis.

He served with distinction through the Mexican war, but as to rewards he said, "I know how the president will be besieged with clamorous claimants. I do not wish to be numbered among them. Such as he can bestow I shall gratefully receive, and have no doubt that these will exceed my deserts." A professional soldier must needs be truly captain of his soul to speak with such equanimity of a matter. The greatness that can rise above the soldier's very human thirst for distinction is greatness indeed.

He had reached the rank of colonel, was aware of the gray hairs in his head, and was looking forward as the shadows lengthened to tranquil enjoyment of all those dear ones whom 32 years of military service had kept him from more that he could have wished. Then came war, and the star of his glory rose. But the sun of his happiness set, never to rise again.

It was the tragedy of Lee that the inexorable voice of duty called him to sacrifices that were more than vain. Had he chosen the broader path on that fateful night when he paced the floor at Arlington, his own as well as Lincoln's statute would probably adorn the cities of this and other lands. He is ranked by Theodore Roosevelt "as without any exception the greatest of all the great captains that the English-speaking people have brought forth." With his knowledge of Virginia, and with the resources of the North to give full scope to his genius, he must have brought the war to a speedy close and been hailed the savior of his country. Nor would there have been any aftermath of vengeance, with the voice of Lee carrying weight. By casting his lot with the weaker side he prolonged one of the most lamentable of wars—a war that was to destroy his people individually and as a group. "Where is the splendid division you had this morning?" cried Lee to Hood after Antietam. "They are lying on the field where you sent them," was the reply. Those sons of the old South who so readily laid down their lives on battlefields could never be replaced.

It is said by those who should know that the Confederacy did not lose the war in the field. Had Lee seized the reins of power, his genius for organization might have produced the supplies whose tragic lack made it impossible for his unfed troops to carry on. And it is not at all likely that he would have done Sherman the favor of removing Johnston from his path. But ends did not justify means with Lee. He was incapable of trampling on constituted authority, even had his humanity permitted him to consider himself more able than his government.

When regular warfare was no longer possible, it was Lee's hand that delivered the death blow to the Confederacy for which the best blood of the South had been so lavishly sacrificed. "What will be said of the surrender of an army in the field?" demanded a subordinate at Appomattox. "That is not the question," returned Lee. "The question is, is it right to surrender this army? If it is right, then I will take the responsibility." Had the beloved leader listened to those who counseled guerilla warfare, a worse situation than Spain's forcible occupation of Cuba would have confronted the federal government. The North owed a very great debt to Lee.

Those who laid down their arms at his instance could not foresee the steps that would be taken "to make rebellion odious." Neither did Germany foresee the occupation of the Ruhr, or ancient Carthage guess the lengths to which Roman severity would go. It is one of the horrors of war that the forces of fierceness it generates continue to gather strength and to demand expression after the firing is over.

Lee died before the incubus of reconstruction was lifted, and in his last illness "he neither expected or desired to recover." There is measureless tragedy in his words, "Life is indeed gliding away, and I have nothing of good to show for mine that is past." And yet, he said: "If it were all to do over again I should act in precisely the same way."

For Lee there were not two sides to a question when duty stood on one. Had he harkened to the voice of ambition, probably the world would have acclaimed him more, but it would love him less. There is hope for a world that can love its Lees. And scarcely in the troublous times when he died were his ideals of selfcontrol, reverence for law and freedom from bitterness more needed than they are needed now.

Once we were prone to honor the high-born because they were high-born, regardless of the fact that he who would be called noble should bear himself nobly. We have broadened this tendency, and now honor humanity because it is humanity, regardless of the fact that only he who wears his humanity worthily should receive honor. Now and then a sociologist lifts his voice to say that the quality of the individual is all-important, but we are too absorbed in material things to heed. It is only such striking examples as the life of a man that can make us realize what a man should be.

With character a race will become great, said Charles Francis Adams, in his tribute to Lee as "essentially a man of character"—"without character any race will in the long run prove a failure, though it may number in it individuals crowned with the genius of Napoleon."

The picture deals with a lad's successful efforts to find the murderer of his father, a politician, whose life had been taken on Christmas eve on his way home. The winter scenes are so realistic that no one beholding them in "Heroes of the Street" would ever believe they were filmed thousands of miles away from Manhattan. Wesley Barry stars in this picture as the plucky little hero, whose muscles and training help him bring an elusive crook to justice for a crime.	Thursday, January 24 BETTY COMPSON —IN— "OVER THE BORDER" 7 REEL DRAMA Romance and thrills amid snow-clad hills. Daring deeds and rescues amid the blizzards of the north. The romance of a dazzling heroine who bewitched the law. When love bewitches duty which does a man forget? The answer is written in this greatest of all dramas of the north. Also FOX NEWS, current events.	Friday, January 25 NORMA TALMADGE —IN— "LOVE'S REDEMPTION" 6 REEL DRAMA A drama of Island fires and awakening love—and civilization that chilled it. Norma Talmadge, the star, takes the role of the young girl whose unselfish interest and devotion brings a deeper sense of obligation to those with whom she comes in contact, than could be brought by intensive study. The fiery, capricious character that the star has drawn teems with heart interest, love, pathos, and quiet humor, and makes the portrayal one of the most effective of Miss Talmadge's fine screen history. Also "SPRING FEVER," a 2 reel comedy.	Saturday, January 26 HOOT GIBSON —IN— "OUT OF LUCK" 6 REEL WESTERN COM-EDY-DRAMA Hoot Gibson in "Out of Luck," Edward Sedgwick's story of a cowboy's life in the navy, is a play combining thrills with laughs, and romance with the spectacular exciting fights and hilarious comedy alternate. The great pacific fleet in full view and target practice with the huge guns of a super-dreadnought add thrill to the picture, and romance runs through the action of the engrossing play. Don't miss this one. Also "FIGHTING BLOOD"	Monday, January 28 WILLIAM RUSSELL —IN— "TIMES HAVE CHANGED" 5 REEL DRAMA "Times Have Changed" is an entertaining feature which presents the serious side of life humorously. Its attitude speaks the popular phrase, "it is to laugh." It is an ostensibly serious drama tempered and refined by much irresistible humor. Satire plays an important part in the development of its multifarious situations. In brief, the story concerns the unfortunate circumstances of an aunt coming to live with a newly-wed couple. The events that lead to their ultimate rebellion against her sovereignty offer highly sensitized amusement. Also "Unreal News Reel" a 2 reel comedy.	Tuesday, January 29 JACK HOLT —IN— "THE MAN UNCONQUERABLE" A man among men, fighting his grim battle for right, alone. The scenes of the picture are founded on a story by Hamilton Smith, are laid in the pearling grounds of the South Sea Islands, where authorities conspire with thieves and the only law is the law of might. This condition provides ample opportunities for a story chock-full of tense situations and twofisted, red-blooded action. It is an excellent photoplay and well worth seeing. Also FOX NEWS, current events.
