Breast Cancer Screening Set

According to the American Cancer Society, one of every 11 women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime during her lifetime. Every year, over 37,000 women die as a result of breast cancer which is the number two cancer killer of

In an effort to find cancers at the earliest possible stage and to prevent unnecessary deaths, North Runnels Hospital, Winters, will sponser a mobile breast cancer detection unit at the hospital on Tuesday, January 13, 1987.

Hospital Administrator Rita Williams said the unit is an extension of the Regional Breast

Care Center of Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa.

The unit will be parked near the X-ray department of the hospital that day, and women who wish to have a screening mamogram should call the North Runnels Hospital before that day if possible to schedule an appointment.

Mrs. Williams said the test will cost $50 cash and the results will be sent to the patient's physician who will go over the results with the patient.

According to a spokesman from the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital, "the death rate from breast cancer could be drastically reduced if women would have mamograms done before a problem exists." By using modern state of the art X-ray equipment, breast cancers can be found when they are about the size of a grain of rice and well before the cancer can be felt. A woman who is diagnosed with breast cancer at this early stage has a 90-97 percent survival rate. However, a woman who is not diagnosed until a lump can be felt as approximately a 50 percent survival rate in five years. Mrs. Williams said that women who wish to have the screening done should call the North Runnels Hospital at 754-4553 for an appointment. The women should report approximately 15 minutes prior to the appointment time for the registration. Typically, the exam takes less than 30 minutes. A female technologist will perform the examination.

The films will be returned to the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital where they will be interpreted by a radiologist and will send a report to your physician.

Crunch

An early Christmas morning traffic resulted in minor injuries to the driver of this pick up. The pick up was not so fortunate.

The pick up, driven by Steve DeLa Cruz was west-bound on West Dale street about 5:30 a.m. Christmas morning and failed to negotiate the curve and struck a steel post and landed up-side

In another accident, occurring early Sunday, a car driven by Betsy Burson Ortega smashed into the rear of a parked pick up in the 500 block of North Main. Officers said that the car was apparently travelling at an excessive high rate of speed.

The crash, which could be heard a half-mile away, knocked the pick up over 150 feet down the street. Officers said that the pick up was in park and had the parking brake set.

Ms. Burson was taken to North Runnels Hospital by ambulance for treatment of facial lacerations and cuts to her hands and arms.

Lacking time to pursue the subject, Dr. Lee passed the letter on to me to search out any available information. Since early early records at the courthouse had been destroyed by flooding, a letter was written to the Texas Medical Association in Austin for any help.

My request was referred to the Texas Medical Association Memorial Library, where The Runnels County Medical Society was listed for the first time as an affiliated society of the State Association in the August 1, 1904 Transactions of the Association. Former Winters woman honored

Miss Myra Glover of San Antonio was recently honored as the 1986 Outstanding Working Woman Odyssey Award Winner. The award was presented at a banquet held at the Hyatt Regency in San Antonio. In making the presentation, the following tribute was made:

"The Outstanding Working Woman Odyssey Award Winner for the 1986 odyssey awards is superbly fitting of this award. Myra Glover is an excellent teacher, an example of tenacious perseverance, and has a tremendous zeal for independence. Her life began in a world of total dependence and through sheer determination, she took control of her life and became the motivating, self reliant individual she is today. Her journey has taken her through a substantial amount of roadblocks and hurdles; she won battle after battle against outrageous odds. Myra is someone who refuses to accept something as it is just because someone has said it was impossible. She approaches each challenge head on and works steadfastly until she has accomplished her goal.

Myra was reared in Winters, Texas, a town so small it didn't even have a library. After completing a year of librarian training, Myra decided her hometown would have its own library. Myras devoted fourteen years of her life to developing her hometown library from a small corner in an office building to a full service community library.

Just when Myra thought her life was in order, she lost her parents and her only brother in a tragic series of illnesses and an accident happening suddenly within a two month period. Myra was devastated by the loss of her family. She moved to Austin to live with a sister. Starting over was difficult but not enough to hold Myra back. After an unsuccessful ten month at-Texas and enrolled as a Special it was all deeply appreciated. Education Major. Seven years later Myra graduated as a certified special education teacher.

Myra is now employed at the San Antonio State School teaching 22 severely and mildly retarded persons. She is extremely talented as a teacher. Her patience is inspirational and she is a natural at motivating her students. Myra says, "enthusiasm is something great...when you show enthusiasm it seems to rub off on your co-workers; and when you are interested and thrilled about what you are doing...naturally you want to stay on the job. Myra is looking forward to completing her Master's degree and is willing and ready to go on 'helping others as long as possible.

Myra is truly an outstanding working woman and her unique odyssey began early. An injury at birth left her with cerebral palsy. Myra said her first words at age six and walked her first steps at age eleven. She did all of her own typing in college with one finger. At one time, Myra was often mistaken for being mentally retarded and was never expected to be anything but a helpless person dependent on others. The story of Myra's passage from a world of total dependence to a world of leaderindependence, ship, perseverance, and self reliance is a powerful story. Myra says that "being independent is the happiest life there is ... of course there is fear when you begin...make up your mind and you will do it.'

Congratulations and thank you to Myra Glover-an inspirational, courageous and OUTSTANDING working woman.

Card of Thanks

The family of Alma Hughes would like to say thanks to everyone who helped in anyway while Alma was in the hospital and nursing home, and at the time of her death, to everyone who sent flowers, food, memorials and to the Baptist women for the food they brought.

Francis Parker was recently honored as Banker of the Year for 1986 at Inter-First Bank, Abilene, N. A.

She is a banking officer and supervisor of the loan operations dept. and has been with Inter-First since 1977 when she joined Citizens National Bank as a discount clerk in the credit dept.

Ms. Parker was cited for working well with both customers and staff and for "keeping the wheels turning in loan operations.

Her loyalty and dedication exceeds expectations. In her nine years of service to the bank, she has missed one day of work that being for the funeral of her father.

Francis was born in Winters, the daughter of Ella (Templeton) Parker and the late E. G. (Jack) Parker. Her grandmother, Mrs. Telitha Templeton resides in Winters.

RONdom thoughts

By RON BIRK Resolution Suggestions

Most New Year's resolutions border on being cliches. The same old thing year in and year out. "I'm going to lose weight, be nicer to the spouse, attend worship more often, save more money,

As a public service I have put together a list of creative resolution possibilities that you might consider. No one should expect to keep all of these, but one or two may be worth a try. If none of them strikes your fancy, hopefully they will at least get you thinking and inspire you to come up with some creative resolutions of your own. I have put them in seven general categories with a couple of specific suggestions under each one. SELF: 1) Pick just one negative thing about yourself that you are going to try and change this year. Just one. Remember how you eat an elephant - one bite at a time! Trying to change all your faults at once may be biting off more than you can chew and result in no change at all. Concentrate on one change and it is more likely to occur. If you improve one area of your life per year, think what that will add up to in a lifetime.

2) Remember the positive things about yourself. You are not all bad. Not everything in your life needs changing. But some things may need polishing. As Billy Clyde Puckett says in Dan Jenkins novel Life Its Ownself: "You have an obligation to take whatever you are blessed with in life and try to keep a shine member of your immediate prayers. You need the family? Plan to have at least practice. one long visit with them during the year. Listen to their memories of the family. An audio or video recording of the family heirloom. following quote to your almost anything."

FRIENDS: 1) Find out the baptismal dates of your closest friends. (Their church should have that information.) On that day send them a "Second Birthday" card.

2) Become acquainted with your friend's children. That may help you to a better understanding of your friends, as well as helping the kids to a better understanding of their parents. Plus you may end up with some "second generation STRANGERS: 1) Smile at waitresses, clerks, and others who serve you in the business world. Be pleasant and use kind words. A verbal compliment could be worth more to them than a 50% tip.

2) Remember, "Today's friend was yesterday's stranger." Make one stranger into a friend this year.

CHURCH: 1) Select one doctrine of your church and concentrate on learning all you can about it. Especially try to understand why it is important to your own personal faith and

2) Discover the hobby of your minister. Talk to them about it. If they are open to it, engage in the hobby with them. As Plato said, "You can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation."

LOCAL AND STATE POLITICS: 1) Take a city or county official to lunch. Get acquainted with them as a person. "He who desires the public's ear, must endure the public's mouth," is oh, so true for most elected officials. So don't criticize. Litsen to them. Offer them your support. This may be your way to serve a public servant.

2) Pray for the Governor of FAMILY: 1) Who is the oldest your state. He needs the

Interior plastic storm windows

"Although storm windows can be a good longterm investment in the house, the same amount of energy can be saved by seasonsal use of an interior plastic storm window you can install yourself," Quiring says. According to the specialist, the procedure involves applying doublestick tape to the window trim or wall to hold the plastic in place. Then press a slightly oversized piece of plastic against the tape without stretching. Use a hair dyer to heat the plastic and cause it to shrink. The heatshrinking eliminates all the wrinkles and leaves a clear, taut, interior storm window that can be removed in the spring.

IN-HOME EYE TESTS HELP FIGHT VISION DISORDERS IN CHILDREN

By Marshall M. Parks, M.D. How sharp is your child's Life presents a blurry picture to nearly 700,000 children under the age of 17 with more than 500,000 new cases of eye disorders reported each year, according to information provided by the Bureau of Health Statistics.

Crossed eyes, amblyopia ("Lazy Eye") as well as nearsighted and far-sighted vision are among some of the most common eye problems in chil-

Early vision screening provides doctors with a better chance of detecting these disorders which, if left untreated, could inflict permanent damage to your child's eyesight. The National Children's

Eye Care Foundation has launched a national vision screening campaign whereby eye charts and messages about eye care for children are being placed on milk and juice cartons around the country. The carton illustrations feature the popular cartoon character "Annie" and her dog "Sandy", and were made available to dairies nationwide through the Ex-Cell-O Corporation-a major packaging supplier.

By holding the carton at a specified distance, the eye charts can help you determine how well (or how poorly) around him.

Although the milk carton eve tests are a fun and simple way to detect possible vision disorders in your children, they cannot replace formal screening examinations by a trained professional

Check heat system

Cooler weather has brought relieve from both the heat and high air conditioning bills. But another kind of heat-from the furnace-will begin to drive utility costs up again. Finetuning your heating system may help hold utility costs down by increasing its efficiency, says Dr. Susan Quiring, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. Gas heating systems should be checked and cleaned at lest every other year, she explains. Dirt accumulation inside the furnace is difficult to remove and reduces heating efficiency, she adds. Electric furnaces don't need much maintenance, but heat pumps require periodic servicing. A trained service technician can clean and adjust your system to assure maxium efficiency.

Stocker conference set

"Beef Up America's Diet" is the theme of the 1987 Texas Stocker Calf Conference at the National Guard Armory in Marlin, Jan. 8.

The conference runs from 12 noon to 7 p.m. and features 13 mini seminars on various phases of stocker cattle and beef production and marketing, including new beef products and future trends in the cattle industry. There also will be 27 educational booths and exhibits.

A highlight will be an address by Jo Ann Smith of Micanopy, Fla., past president of the National Cattlemen's Association and current chairman of the NCA's Beef Promotion and Research Board.

The second game in the tournament the Winters JV girls played Jim Ned, not doing quite so well in this game, losing by a score of 69-31.

Sandy Martinez and Kim Slaughter scored 7 points each. Also scoring for the Winters team were, Lisa Farias, 6 points; Heather Brown, 3; Melissa Smith, Christy Collins and Melanie Smith, all with 2 points; and Diana Farias and Stephanie Powers with 1 point each. Five out of 23 free throws were made with an average of 22%.

In game number 3 of the Novice Tournament the Winters girls went up against the Early JV girls, playing a good game but losing by a final score of 48-32.

Kim Slaughter and Melissa Smith both scored 8 points each. Others scoring were, Sandy Martinze, 7 points; Barbie Bradley, Melanie Smith, Lisa Farias and Heather Brown, all with 2 points; and Christy Collins, 1 point. Six out of 23 free throws were made for an average of 26%.

Kim Slaughter and Sandy Martinez made the tournament team.

"The junior varsity played in the Novice Tournament this past weekend. They won their first game against Merkel, lost against Jim Ned's Varsity and lost against Early JV. In all three games the girls played hard but we are only making about 23% of the free throws,' says Coach Whittenburg.

The JV boys played Merkel December 18, in the Novice Tournament, losing by a score of 66-42.

Chris Bahlman scored 12 points by the Blizzards. Others Ysa, Chris Rives and Jimmy Ripley, all with 4 points; Houston Guy and James Salazar, 3 points each; Tommy Selby, 2 points; and Brandon Poe, 1 point. Eight out of 24 free throws were made for an average of 33%.

The second game of the tournament was played December 19 with Winters playing Coleman, this time they brought home a win of 44-37.

Houston Guy scored 12 points for the Blizzards. Others scoring were, Chris Bahlman, 8 points; Tommy Selby, 7; John Salazar and Chris Rives, 6 points each; Dan Killough, 4 points; and James Salazar with 1 point. Six out of 16 free throws were made for a 37% average.

In game three played December 20 the JV boys went against Early, winning by a score of 63-50.

Chris Rives, Jimmy Ripley, Houston Guy and Chris Bahlman scored 11 points each. Others scoring were Dan Killough, 7 points; Tommy Selby, 5; John Salazar and Richard Lett, both with 4 points.

The boys came away with Consolation Place in the tournament. Houston Guy and Chris Bahlman were named to the alltournament team.

"We played very good team basketball in our two victories at Novice. I was very pleased with our effort and the kids showed a winning attitude, I was very proud of them. Our next game will be played at home December 30 against Ballinger." comments Coach Randolph.

Commission denies petition

The Railroad Commission this week unanimously denied a petition by Dallas oil producers H. S. Bennett and William R. Burrow to lower Texas oil production 10 percent.

Commission Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent said that while the nation's oil industry desperately needs help, assistance efforts must be national in scope. "We need a national policy if we're to continue as a producing nation," he said. "Without it, we'll become a na-

Book of signatures of Sam Houston was given to the Sam Houston Center

Former Governor Price Daniel, now a member of the Texas State Library & Archives Commission, said today that a large private day book containing more than 500 original signatures of Sam Houston has been presented to the Sam Houston Center at Liberty, after being in the Houston family 145 years.

General Houston's 571 page day book of signed letters, legislative messages, and other documents was given to the State by Sam Houston's greatgranddaughter, Mrs. Charlotte Williams Darby, of Houston, in memory of her father, the late Franklin Williams. He was Houston's grandson and inherited the book from his mother. Also, he was an avid collector of early Texas documents, some of which were recently presented by Mrs. Darby to Rice University.

Daniel said "this is the largest single volume of Sam Houston signatures in existence. In my opinion, it is the most historic collection that has surfaced during the Sesquicentennial year; it is priceless. Although appraised at a minimum of $50,000, I dare say it would bring a million if offered to collectors of Texana."

The volume is entitled "The Private Executive Records of the Republic of Texas." Until the presentation to the Sam Houston Center, it had never

The single volume, 571 page manuscript, contains Houston's public and private letters, speeches, legal documents, official appointments, legislative messages, veto messages and proclamations from December 13, 1841 to December 9, 1844, when Houston was serving his second term as President of the Republic.

"This valuable, priceless volume will shed new light on the history of the Republic," added Robert L. Schaadt, made between this volume and the WRITINGS OF SAM HOUSTON published in 1940, only about one-fourth of the documents have been published and very few of the legislative messages seem to be available elsewhere. I am certain that scholars will find the volume to be invaluable in shedding further light on the history of the Republic and of President Houston. The Center at Liberty is extremely fortunate in receiving this gift from Mrs. Darby."

tion of cowering consumers subject to foreign control directing crude prices."

Senior Commission member Mack Wallace echoed those statements saying, "the state of Texas alone can't provide a national energy policy, only Washington can." The commissioner noted that over the past 12 months crude oil and refined products imports into the U.S. have increased by more than a million barrels a day. Wallace said the foreign imports are feeding a rise in U.S. consumption while the domestic oil industry suffers. "It's frustrating to us that the industry is being dismantled in such a fashion," he said.

Commissioner Clark Jobe commended the two producers for stepping forth with a proposed solution to industry woes but said, "only the president can help." Jobe called upon President Reagan to impose an import fee on foreign crude as a concrete step to aid faltering U. S. production.

Bennett and Burrow stated in their petition that oil and gas resources in the state are being wasted and asked the Commission to levy a 10 percent production curb on all oil wells except stripper wells and those involved in tertiary projects.

delivered to the members of Congress of the Republic at Washington-on-the-Brazos on December 9, 1844. "There being no carbon paper available, most of the letters and other documents were copied into this volume by his personal secretary, Washington D. Miller. A few of the letters appear to be in Houston's handwriting," Schaadt said. "However, the copy of every document is signed with the well-known signature of President Houston.

A photographic copy of the 571 pages will be available to researchers in order to preserve the original.

The record book is encased in secure plexiglass atop a special mahogany case constructed by the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio. The case and enclosed stand was presented to the Center by Governor and Mrs. Price Daniel in honor of Mrs. Darby. Mrs. Daniel is a great-great granddaughter of Sam Houston and a cousin of Mrs. Darby.

The Sam Houston Center, a part of the Local Records Division of the Texas State Library, is the state historical depository for 10 southeast counties. Of the 24 statewide depositories operated by the Texas State the Second Term of Houston's Library & Archives Commis-Administration as President of sion, the one at Liberty is the largest and the only one with its own separate building. It is located three miles north of been out of the Houston family. Liberty on Governor's Road west of State Highway 146.

Problems in cattle on small grains

A lot of cattle are now grazing small grains, and cattlemen need to be aware of three potential problems that might develop.

Nitrate poisoning, grass tetany and bloat are three major problems that afflict cattle grazing on small grain pastures, points out Allen Turner, county scoring for the Blizzards were Director-Archivist of the agent with the Texas Richard Lett, 4 points; Michael Center. "When a comparison is Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Nitrate poisoning occurs mainly during cloudy, overcast conditions. Under such conditions, nitrates accumulate in plants instead of being converted to protein. Plant stems contain more nitrate than leaves, so nitrate poisoning is more of a problem on heavily grazed pastures.

Hay or grain supplements enable cattle to tolerate higher levels of nitrate than those on pasture only. Splitting nitrogen fertilizer applications may also help prevent nitrate poisoning on small grain pastures. But the safest way to protect animals is to remove them from problem pastures until plants resume normal growth, says Mr. Turner.

Grass tetany is more of a pro-

Set water heater lower for energy savings

If you're searching for ways to reduce your utility bill, don't overlook the hot water heater.

Although heating or cooling air consumes the largest share of home energy, hot water heating accounts for 18 percent of the home energy bill, says home energy expert Dr. Susan Quiring.

"Heating water over 110 degrees Farenheit, which is about the hottest the human body can tolerate, doesn't make much sense," she says. "Yet water-heater thermostats are often pre-set much higher than that at the factory.'

In homes with a dishwasher, a hot water temperature of 140 degrees is needed for best results. But if the dishwasher contains its own heating element, a lower water heater setting will be more practical, says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist.

blem in older cows during early stages of lactation. The condition is associated with low blood magnesium. High levels of protein and potassium that are common in small grain pastures may either depress an animal's digestion of magnesium or increase its excretion of magnesium, resulting in inadequate blood magnesium levels.

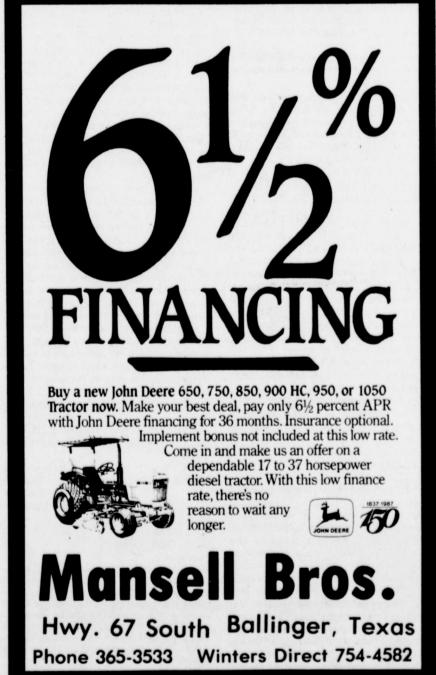

Grass tetany occurs more frequently on heavy, high potassium soils, so producers should avoid applying excessive amounts of nitrogen and potassium fertilizer, advises the agent. Fertilizing magnesium to increase the magnesium content in plants is not practical. The most practical step to prevent grass tetany is to supply a palatable mineral containing 6 to 14 percent magnesium.

Bloat occurs when an animal cannot rid itself of gas produced in the rumen during normal digestive processes. Normally, bloat is not as much of a problem on grass pastures as it is on legumes, such as alfalfa. However, young, fast growing grasses high in protein and low in fiber also can cause bloat, says Mr. Turner.

The chemical agent poloxalene provides effective bloat control if animals eat it in adequate amounts-1.5 to 2 grams per 100 pounds of body weight. However, the supplement used should contain no nonprotein nitrogen such as urea and little natural protein since this will only aggravate the bloat problem.

One effective way to deal with bloat is to remove cattle from bloat producing pastures and to feed hay or a combination of hay and grain until pastures can grow and become more mature, he points out.

Delegates participate in 53rd annual Texas Farm Bureau convention

13 voting delegates representing Runnels County Farm Bureau recently participated in the 53rd annual Texas Farm Bureau convention Nov. 30-Dec. 3 in McAllen.

They were Doyle and Ella Condra, LeRoy and Elaine Pelzel, Rodney and Berney Faubion, Allen and Elsie Belk, J. B. and Josephine Estes, Dale and Linda Duggan, and Mr. and Mrs. Dub McMillon, Runnels County Agency Manager.

Policies directing the state's largest farm organization were adopted by more than 1,300 delegates from 217 organized Farm Bureaus. Approved recommendations on national policies will advance to the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting to be held Jan. 11-15 in Anaheim, Calif.

Speakers featured at the convention included U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas; S. M. True of Plainview, TFB president; and Neal Burnett of Plainview, TFB secretary-treasurer (financial report).

The business session covered the final two days of the meeting. The last order of business was the election of the president, S. M. True.

County leaders also attended several special conferences on federal farm legislation, agriculture and the environment, commodity check-off programs and political action committees. Commodity conferences were also held.

The Tested Teacher

The politicians of Texas have noticed a considerable drop in SRA Achievement Test scores of high school students over the past years. They decided something was wrong with the system. They asked themselves several questions. Has the mental ability of our students dropped? Are the teachers incapable of teaching the material in their class? Are the colleges failing to uphold strict education requirements? As a result of the questioning, teachers were blamed for the lowered test scores. The politicians decided to test all of the teachers in Texas to see if they were capable of teaching. Many of the teachers felt they were being insulted. They had been given life certificates that were now being threatened. Many politicians felt the teachers objected because they were afraid of failing the test, but some of the objections given make sense and should be heard.

The first objection deals with the role of the college and universities in our education system. It is the duty of these institutes to educate the teachers. They must provide programs that will educate teachers on how to teach their subjects to their classes. Since the colleges and universities give the teachers their degrees, it is up to them to make sure the person is able to teach before granting them their degree. The argument of teachers not being able to speak or communicate in English should be solved right here. If a teacher cannot communicate properly, he should not be give a degree. If a teacher is incapable of teaching a subject due to a lack of knowledge, he should not be given a degree. If the colleges and universities are upholding their function in the education system, there will be very few incapable teachers holding a teaching certificate.

A second objection and one that is very strong deals with the area or subject a teacher should be tested in. The politicians' decided to base the test on English skills such as writing, verbal communications and vocabulary. Indeed, it would be difficult for a teacher or any person to teach a class properly if that person were unable to communicate. Yet, to say they must be able to write and talk grammatically correct is going over the edge. Some teachers may not be able to lecture in complete sentences, but they may be the best science or math teachers in the school. At the same time, other teachers may be able to write and talk correctly and still be terrible teachers. A teacher must know and understand the subject he is to teach in order to teach it to his students; therefore, the teacher should be tested in his field.

A third objection deals with the question of when the teacher should be tested for his ability to teach. Many of the teachers who have been in the profession for twenty years or even ten years disagree with the politicians' answer to the question. They feel teachers should be tested on their ability before they receive their certificates. This would lessen the number of teachers who are incapable of their duties from receiving a certificate in the first place. The state could then administer periodical tests to teachers to test their skills. Although many teachers become more capable after the actual experience of teaching, some do decline in their ability after several years due to burn out or their lack of ability to relate to the students.

These should be weeded out. Teachers have been used as the scapegoat in the politicians' efforts to increase the productivity of our school system. The politicians need to listen to some of the objections of the tested teachers. Realizing that each day, teachers must be able to pass an exam much harder than the TECAT. Teachers must pass the test of the classroom, the hardest test of all.

Getting a "Sugar High"

Contrary to popular belief, you are no more likely to experience a "sugar high" from refined sugar than from the natural sugar in foods.

According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionists, raisins and other foods containing natural sugars elevate blood sugar and create a "sugar high" just like refined sugar.

Christmas cheer

Some children tried to show some goodwill toward man this holiday season.

They baked cookies and delivered them by candle light along with some Christmas Carols to the elderly.

Then they delivered food and toys donated by Town & Country Food Stores to some families in the community along with more Christmas caroling.
