THE BASEBALL CRAZE.

BY JOE SAPPINGTON.

I never took an active part in but one game of base ball in my life, and was then sent home to my wife on a stretcher at the end of the third inning. That was fifteen years ago, and my spine is still out of plumb and my off hip fails to work on damp, cloudy morning.

I will never forget how the assassin, improperly called a pitcher, sought my young life on this occasion. I soon saw that he was trying to slay me and I tried to hide behind the empire, who was a life long democrat and a member of my church. Up to the third inning, or at the time I was knocked senseless by the pitcher, I had struck at the ball once and had been hit from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet twenty-three times.

While I never expect to "play ball" again, yet I am passionately fond of the game, as an innocent spectator, and love to say hard things about the umpire when the game goes against me. I have said some awful hard things about umpires—to their backs—on several occasions and came very near whipping one umpire on the impulse of the moment just a few weeks since. It was at the conclusion of a trial of skill between our "Invincibles" and a visiting team of scrubs in which the score stood 47 to 2 in favor of said scrubs that my wife insisted on me going forth and whipping the umpire for being a rascal. I told my wife that I preferred hurling epithets at him with the rest of the crowd from the grand stand, and that if she only knew how hard I was to control when I once smelled blood, that she would be the last person on earth to encourage me to fight. She replied that if I didn't go and fight that umpire she would always believe that I was a big old coward. I argued the question with her and called her attention to his (the umpire's) magnificent physique, and told her that just the day before our family physician had warned me about my heart, and had cautioned me not to fight anybody, not even my wife. I then "hollered" at the umpire and called him a populist and many other hard names and dared him to come where I was. He made out like he didn't hear me, but I don't think he wanted to, or he could, since he "hollered" just as loud as the other 500 men and women that were squalling at him. Just to satisfy my wife and prove to her that I was no coward, I got down from the grand stand and went with about 250 other men out to where the umpire was standing. I was right close to him at one time and could almost touch him with my naked hand, and he never called me on a single thing that I had said about him while I was on the grand stand. I finally turned on my heel and left him with contempt, remarking as I did so that "I have nothing to take back and had just as soon die here as further up the creek."

When I returned to my wife I had a gleam of triumph in my eyes. I told her that I had given that umpire the straightest talk that he ever had in his life, and that I would have whipped him, but he looked so scared and talked so pitiful that I didn't have the heart to strike him. When I said this my wife gave me a look of withering contempt and told me to come on home with her, as she was afraid to leave me alone, as some one was liable to run over me.

I have known men who became so absorbed in the national game of base ball that they would forget to hold family prayer, work their crops, entertain their wife's kinfolks or do anything else that was burdensome. It is just awful for base ball to settle on a man's brain. I once knew a base ball fiend who went to sleep at church during the sermon and just at the time when the members were crowding around a new convert to extend the right hand of Christian fellowship, he awoke and rushed toward the pulpit yelling at every step, "Kill him! Kill him! Kill him!" and was only kept from assaulting the new convert by the prompt action of a young man who grabbed him as he tried to pass. He explained his mad act the next morning to a committee of church members by saying that he had been asleep and had dreamed that he was at a base ball game, and that his side had lost through an unjust decision of the umpire; that on awaking he thought the crowd was trying to kill the umpire, and that he wanted to assist in the killing.

Base ball is no respecter of persons nor localities and people are just as crazy about it in the country as they are in the towns. Just last week a long-legged, "yaller-eyed" man living away out in the rural districts dashed into town on a mule wet with sweat; with both sock legs down over his plow shoes and his pant legs worked up over his knees, and stopped his panting mule at a drug store, and called for a doctor saying that his mother-in-law was "wusser." On being informed that the doctor inquired for was attending a base ball game, he dug his spurs into the ribs of his tired mule, and arrived at the base ball grounds just as the game began.

Not being able to find the doctor on his arrival, he was not long in deciding that his mother-in-law was not very sick anyway, and that he would stay until the game was finished. He not only stayed until the nine innings were played, but he bet on the game and lost his spurs, saddle and sixty-five cents in silver, besides getting his nose broken by the umpire, whom he had pulled a fight off with. Now, all this time his poor mother-in-law—the only one he had to his name—lay at his home suffering, all on account of this base ball craze.

I have a son who has just finished shedding his teeth, whom I fear is infected with base ball germs; for just a few days since as I was approaching our house, thinking, sadly thinking of the bread and meat proposition that was looking me right in the eye, I was startled by hearing him say, "get on to that curve, dad" and just then I was struck on the stomach and knocked down by a base ball. I got up and ran him into the house, where he sought his mother's protection. I demanded of her his immediate surrender, but my wife dared me to strike him a single lick. She informed me that she had witnessed the entire performance and that I was wholly to blame in the matter, as our son had delivered me a simple "left curve," and that I could easily have dodged it if I had known the least thing about base ball.

United States Supreme Court Decides For Railroad.

AGAINST TEXAS LAW

Opinion Holds That Cattle Shipping Enactment Transcends the Police Power of the State and Is Too Arbitrary.

Washington, April 3.—In an opinion by Justice Brown, the supreme court of the United States Monday decided the case of the Houston and Texas Central Railroad company vs. J. A. Mayes in favor of the company. The case involved a claim made by Mayes against the railroad company on account of failure of the road to promptly supply cars for the shipment of cattle, and brought into question the validity of the Texas state law under which the claim arose.

Mayes in 1903 lived in Llano county, Texas, and engaged seventeen cars for the transportation of 625 head of cattle to Red Rock, Okla., the agreement being that the cars were to be furnished April 20 of that year. The cattle were driven into the stockyards on the morning of that day, but the cars for their shipment did not arrive until the afternoon of the next day. Mayes made a claim for damages on account of weight and other injuries to his cattle to the extent of $3 per head, or $1,875, and also in accordance with the state law for $425 as a penalty under his contract with the railroad company. The case was begun in the district court of Llano county, which awarded him the full amount of the penalty and $500 damages. The supreme court for the Third judicial district of Texas affirmed this decision, and the railroad brought the case to the supreme court on a writ of error, setting up the unconstitutionality of the law providing a penalty of $25 a day on each car ordered as in the case.

Justice Brown's opinion sustained this contention on the ground that the law transcends the police power of the state and encroaches on the power of the national government to control state commerce. He said that the law takes no account of the possibility of accident, and is too arbitrary. The chief justice and Justices Harlan and McKenna dissented.

CONFEDERATE COLUMN.

THOMAS JONES.

The subject of this biographical sketch was born in Tennessee, Nov. 3, 1833, and on the very day, June 8, 1861, that his state seceded and cast her lot with the Confederate states, he was sworn into her service and became a member of Co. A, 21st Tenn. Regiment, which was organized and drilled at Union City Tenn., until the last of August, when the regiment was sent to Columbus, Ky., at which place they stayed in camp drilling until Nov. 7, 1861. On that morning they were to be tested, to see how well the drilling had seasoned them. Hastily cooking ten days rations and drawing 60 rounds of ammunition, they were double quicked to the Mississippi river, there boarded a boat waiting for them, they crossed the river to the Missouri side and joined the commands of Genls. Polk and Pillow at Belmont, which place Genl. Grant was moving against. In this fight which lasted for sometime, we finally drove the Yankees to their boats, killing many of them while they were going aboard. In this battle the C. S. loss was 641, the Yankees lost over 1200 yet they had the assurance to claim a victory. One of the significant results of this battle was that up to this fight, Grant had superciliously refused to recognize Gen. Polk as one with whom he could exchange prisoners, yet after it he sent a flag of truce to get such privileges. The man destined to have the credit of ending the war, evinced even that early that he did not know when he was whipped. After this battle the 21st Tenn. went into winter quarters until Feby, 1862. The army then fell back to Corinth, Miss., but the 21st Tenn., was stopped at Union City to forage and gather supplies, where it remained until April 1st. When the Yanks gave it an April fool and run it out in double quick time. At Tupelo, Miss., the army was reorganized and the 21st Tenn. and a part of an Arkansas Regiment were consolidated and called the 5th Confederate Regiment and went by that name to the close of the war. After this consolidation campaigning became quite active. First the Kentucky campaign, when we went close to Louisville then turned back and fought the battle of Perrysville, one of the bloodiest of the war, then through Cumberland Gap to Knoxville, then to Murfreesboro where we fought the severe battle of two days, Dec. 31, 1862 and Jany. 1, 1863, then to Tulahoma, Tenn., then to Elk River, then to Chattanooga, then Sept. 19th and 20th the battle of Chickamauga, in which battle the enemy was driven back to Chattanooga, then the Missionary Ridge fight, then the Ringgold and Taylor's Ridge fight. Then the last of April 1864 the Georgia campaign commenced, during which this subject was captured July 22, 1864, sent to Camp Chase, Ohio, where he was kept until the close of the war, and was released May 1865. In all the campaigns and battles in which the 21st. Tenn., and the 5th Confederate Regiments were engaged the subject of this sketch participated up to the time of his capture except the battle of Chickamauga, and then he was sick in the hospital.

THURSDAY, APR. 5, 1906

The Legislature patched up bleeding section 120 and adjourned Tuesday.

It looks, from the evidence that Judge Terrell may have inadvertently "snake-tracked" his own bill.

The blanket primary proposition was defeated in the legislature, but seed was sown that will ripen into victory next year. Remember this prediction.

The Farmers' Union in session at Abilene March 21-22 by unanimous vote adopted resolutions opposing the creation of the office County School Superintendent.

No, Gilliland did not make up the city ticket or school board, nor did we even suggest a single name for either place, but did indorse both tickets, and so did the voters by almost a unanimous vote, which we think is a sufficient answer to criticisms of the ticket, no matter who selected them.

The investigating committee at Austin which is trying to find out who knifed Section 120 has developed the fact that there was considerable felicitating among the most active friends of the bill on the last night of the called session when the bill passed. Judge Terrell was telegraphing with the boys too, it seems, and THE STAR has a theory, mind you, it is only a theory, for we have nothing but the published testimony before the committee. The theory is this, in "felicitating" themselves over the passage of the bill some of the immediate friends of the bill, whose duty it was to look after the correct enrolling of the bill, possibly became so full of felicity that they probably make a mistake and snake-tracked the wrong amendment, in other words the section was unintentionally slaughtered by the hands of its friends. The evidence shows Judge Terrell went home early that night, possibly he could not stand as much felicity as the young and exuberant members, who were celebrating the event in a hilarious manner. If this does not account for the snake tracking and worm fencing of the bill it is not likely that Judge Terrell will ever find out who struck "Billy Patterson"

There was a right serious wreck at Eskota last Friday. The east bound passenger ran into a freight and quite a number of passengers were hurt but none dangerously so we believe. Dr. R. G. Powell, the Company physician at Baird went on to Fort Worth with the injured passengers, but we have been unable to see him since his return.

A wooden pulley on the dynamo in the power house was crushed Friday night last while the engine was running at full speed and fragments of the broken pulley were thrown all about the room. Mr. Crook, the Manager, went to Abilene that night to have another pulley fixed up but failed to get it by the noon train and the plant could not be run Saturday night.

There was a lively scrap at Hotel Seay last Saturday between the proprietor J. E. Jenkins and a railroad man, whose name we did not learn. Mr. Jenkins put the man out of the hotel and he went after his gun and came back when the ladies begged W. C. Asbury, who was standing in front of the hotel, not to let the man come in. W. C. Asbury and the man then mixed up in a scrap and the scrapper was struck on the head and right severely hurt. Later he was arrested by the officers.

THE STAR office is gradually improving all the time. The latest is a large paper cutter put in last week J. H. Walker has bought a large job press, which will arrive some time this month. We are determined to keep up with the procession if not a little ahead of it. THE STAR has been all home print for several months and frequently we have to add two to four pages to accommodate our advertisers. Have you an ad in THE STAR? If not why not?

Measures Introduced by Hawkins Prevailed in the Senate.

Austin, March 29.—The senate Thursday adopted resolution presented by Senator Hawkins, which caused such a sensation, providing for an investigation of certain state officials who are stockholders in the Capital Bank and Trust Company of Austin. Just before the adoption of the resolution the following communication was read from John W. Robbins, state treasurer, and J. W. Stephens, comptroller, two officials alleged to be aimed at in the resolution:

"We have had our attention called to a resolution introduced in the senate with regard to our connection with the organization of the Capital Bank and Trust Company of Austin. With respect to the same we desire to say to the senate that we do not wish our friends to oppose the very fullest investigation, and now respectfully invite that the investigation be immediately made to the end that justice may be done to ourselves and the public informed.

"JOHN W. ROBBINS,
 "J. W. STEPHENS."

Senators Decker, Harbison, Harper and Hawkins were appointed to conduct the investigation in accordance with the resolution.

NOT DETRIMENTAL.

Majority of Committee Says Public Service Is Uninjured.

Austin, April 3.—Findings of majority of committee to investigate certain state officials holding stock in Capital Bank and Trust company are that these have not proved detrimental to the public good. Senator Hawkins agrees with majority, but fears such practices might be detrimental in future.

STEAMBOATS STOP.

Landings on Alabama and Tombigbee Rivers Under Water.

Mobile, April 2.—Situation in Alabama and Tombigbee river towns have become so serious that steamboats, owing to high water at landings, cannot reach them. For 150 miles above Mobile landings are under water. One steamboat is tied up at Claiborne, on the Alabama river, without fuel to keep up steam. The flood has reached the proportions of the disastrous overflow of 1871, when both rivers reached stages never before known. Cattle are starving. With full cargoes steamers are being held here ready to be rushed up the rivers when the waters recede.

Over one hundred miles above Mobile is now under water several feet deep, and still rising Monday. Since Saturday the overflow extended about fifty miles. The situation is gloomy and crops will be delayed for weeks. There is no way of estimating the damage. Only one or two losses of human life have been reported so far.

BROWN SHOT TO DEATH.

Sequel to Difficulty That Had Its Inception Last August.

Alvord, Tex., March 31.—In the early part of August of last year John Brown, illegit. Bud Ham had ruined his stepdaughter, shot him down, inflicting a painful wound. Friday the two men met again. It is asserted that Brown called to Ham on the street and told him to fix for trouble. Ham went away, returning a few moments later with a double-barreled shotgun, and on approaching Brown lowered the gun and fired. The first shot took effect in Brown's breast, the second in his left eye, killing him instantly. Ham immediately gave himself up to local officers, claiming self-defense.

When examined a Colt's pistol was found on Brown's person. Ham is nineteen years old, and has been married only two months. Brown leaves a widow and several children.

PORT O'CONNOR.

Katy Railway Is Trying to Have a New Deep Water Port.

Washington, March 31.—If the efforts of the Katy railroad prevail Texas will have another deep water port at Port O'Connor, to which place the new line, is generally believed, the road is building from San Antonio. Theodore Harris, representing the projectors of the line, is at work on the matter at this end, and as the result Representative Burgess will introduce a bill appropriating $10,000 for a survey and estimate of cost of deepening the channel through Pass Cavallo to Port O'Connor, formerly Alligator Head on Matagorda bay. It is believed a deep permanent channel can be constructed for $200,000. Mr. Burgess is pleased with the proposed development of this territory, and is bending every effort to put the bill in shape for favorable consideration at first opportunity.

HALF MILLION MINERS

Have Laid Down Their Tools and Remain on Top of Earth

TO-WAIT SETTLEMENT

There is a Complete Cessation in the Anthracite Region of Operations and Attention Riveted on the Conference.

Indianapolis, April 2.—Although half a million members of the United Mine Workers of America have ceased work, awaiting granting of wage demands by coal operators, there was nothing at headquarters Monday to indicate that anything unusual had happened. All officials are out of the city, and a corps of clerks and stenographers are in charge of the offices. President Mitchell is at New York to meet anthracite operators in a final effort to arrive at an agreement. Vice President Lewis is in Ohio directing the strike in that state. Secretary Treasurer Wilson is at Clearfield, Pa., attending the joint conference of the Central Pennsylvania district.

Feeling at national headquarters of miners concerning the situation in the bituminous coal fields is hopeful. It was known that the Pittsburgh Coal company would sign the scale, and it was thought many independent operators would do likewise.

Advices from Philadelphia stated that firemen, engineers and pumpmen, who are not affected by the coal strike, reported for work as usual in the Pennsylvania district, but it was apparent that the scores of empty cars which have been hurried to the collieries will not be needed unless President Mitchell and the coal presidents reach an agreement.

That a great many miners believe a strike is imminent and there will be a bitter struggle between workmen and employers was evidenced by the departure Sunday and Monday of scores of miners from the Schuylkill region. The majority of these men are foreigners, who go to their homes in Europe, and there will await the outcome of the pending strike. In the Lackawanna district there was a feeling among the more conservative miners that an agreement would be reached at the New York conference, but others are less hopeful and are prepared for a long siege. The only colliery in the Luzerne-Wyoming district which attempted to work Monday reported up to noon was the Hazleton shaft of the Lehigh Valley Coal company. The coal which had been loosened last week was run through a breaker for about an hour, after which the men withdrew from the shaft and returned to their homes. At many collieries in that district the mules were taken from the mines, thus indicating that no effort would be immediately made to resume mining. Quiet prevails throughout the Pennsylvania districts and as long as the men remain away from the mines no disorder is anticipated.

Suspension of work in anthracite region is complete.

There was a complete shut-down Monday in the bituminous coal fields included in the Southwestern Miners' association in Missouri, Kansas, western Arkansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory. The few mines operated by non-union men resumed as usual. No scenes of disorder were reported, men generally remaining quietly at their homes.

In compliance with the order of President Mitchell to quit work there was a total suspension of mining in the Wyoming (Pa.) region Monday.

SEVERE FIRE LOSS.

Kansas City Southern's General Offices and Other Buildings Burn.

Texarkana, March 1.—Fire originating in the residence of Mrs. Ella Reinhardt destroyed that building, the general offices of the Kansas City, Southern and Gulf, the seventy-three room Grand Central hotel, the Kansas City Southern's freight house and dwelling of Pat Cohn. The calamity occurred at an early hour Saturday morning.

The losses on the general offices will foot up $25,000; on the hotel, $5,000; Mrs. Reinhardt's residence, $2,000; Cohn's residence, $3,000. Telephone and electric light companies lose about $500 each. The railroad company was fully covered by insurance, the others partially.

Origin of fire is unknown. A high wind caused it to spread rapidly. Several guests in the hotel came near burning up. Lack of water handicapped the fire department.

TWELVE EXECUTED.

PUTRID HORSE MEAT.

This Was the Horrible Diet of Thirteen Imprisoned Miners.

Lens, France, March 1.—The story of thirteen men who were rescued, after twenty days of entombment in the Courrieres mine, is one of horror. They lived on putrid horse meat and amid total darkness and in the stench of decaying corpses.

The presence of human flesh would speedily have forced the starving men to resort to the last desperate extremity if they had not been rescued. The survivors were sturdy young miners from 17 to 25 years of age, except their leader, Henri Nemy, who is 38 years of age. All show the terrible effects of their experience, being emaciated, exhausted and blinded. Their rescue caused a temporary nervous lucidity during which they greeted their relatives and graphically related their sufferings. The doctors then enforced quiet upon them, fearing the result of fever and poisoning from their having eaten decayed horse flesh. They also ate hay.

The survivors brought up portions of the decomposed horse meat. They said they never slept.

There were touching scenes as wives and mother greeted those whom they had long given up as dead. Crowds besieged the hospitals to which the men were taken, cheering the survivors and imprecating the ineffective nature of the work after the disaster.

The total number of men missing after the catastrophe was 1,212. The bodies recovered approximately numbered 500, and there are still unaccounted for approximately 700.

English, Ind., March 31.—In response to a knock on his door, made by a rock being hurled against it, a wealthy bachelor farmer residing near this city, found eight boys ranging in age from two months to two years, tucked in blankets and all arranged on a large quilt.

A note pinned on the coverlid bore this scrawl: "These are all your own; care for them."

He yelled for his mother, who keeps house for him, and that worthy lady made great haste to take in the youngsters and assure her son that he was not dreaming. Later on, however, they both decided it was a blackmail plot and they have requested the county officers to take charge of the foundlings.

BLANKET PRIMARY DEFEATED.

House Votes an Amendment Down by a Majority of Thirty.

Austin, March 29.—An effort was made in the house Thursday to have injected in the senate election bill an amendment providing for a direct, pure and simple blanket primary, but it was voted down by a vote of 71 to 41. Thus the house placed itself on record as being opposed to a direct primary at this time. This does not, however, affect the amendment adopted Wednesday, which has all the essentials of a blanket primary.

The house was afraid to adopt the direct primary amendment for fear that the senate would never consent to it, and with the amendment adopted Wednesday its advocates think the senate may concur in it, but it is not believed such will be the case, and a free conference will have to be appointed. The direct blanket primary amendment offered Thursday was by Representative Barcus of McLennan county, and provides for a plurality nomination of candidates for state and district offices.

Representative Kennedy offered an amendment to the election bill that the state executive committee of any party may prescribe a test of participation in state and district primaries. Tabled by a vote of 100 to 13.

The previous question was then ordered on the bill and amendment by a vote of 66 to 52. This cut off all debate and nothing remained but to vote on the bill, but before this could be done the hour had arrived for the Hogg memorial.

Speeches were made by Messrs. Onion, Cottrell, Shannon, Terrell of Travis and Greenwood.

After the Hogg memorial exercises the election bill was passed to engrossment with hardly any opposition.

The house passed finally the mileage and per diem bill appropriating $35,000 to pay members of legislature for called session.

Quite a stir was created in the house Thursday morning by the introduction of a resolution by Representatives McKenzie, Reiger and Hudspeth requesting the governor to transmit the 108 letters of members who had written either to the governor or Judge Terrell agreeing to come to Austin for a special session to correct section 120 of the election law and serve without compensation, as the statement had been freely made that the letters were the inducement or consideration that caused the governor to call the extra session, and have the letters printed in the journal.

Objections came from all over the house, and the resolution went over until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

A resolution was adopted on the death of Governor Lubbock; also resolution endorsing the Farmers' Union movement to have school lectures.

BY TWO VOTES.

Blanket Primary Amendment Not Concurred In by Senate.

Austin, April 2.—By a vote of 15 to 13 the senate Saturday refused to concur in the house blanket primary amendment to the election law.

The senate by a vote of 16 to 12 refused to concur in the second amendment, exempting the smaller counties. Lieutenant Governor Neal appointed the following free conference committee: Senators Looney, Faulk, Stafford, Davidson and Pihl.

House adopted resolution of regret over the death of the late President Prather of University of Texas.

Speaker Seabury appointed Messrs. Greenwood, Brelsford, Johnson, Hudspeth and Brown of Karnes, house conferees on election law amendments.

House adopted a resolution requesting President Roosevelt to appoint Railroad Commissioner Mayfield as a member of the interstate commerce commission should same be increased.

AGREED TO ADJOURN.

Senate Also Passes Bill to Pay Members of Legislature.

Austin, April 3.—Senate passed house bill appropriating $35,000 for mileage and per diem. The senate also passed under suspension of the rules house bill appropriating $500 for contingent expenses after it had been amended to read $1,000.

Senator Looney offered a resolution providing for sine die adjournment at noon Tuesday. It prevailed—15 to 9.

Senator Looney reported conferees on election bill could not agree.

House extended courtesies to former Governor Herrick of Ohio and H. C. Rouse, chairman of the Katy board. Resolution of regret over death of Dr. Julian C. Field of Grayson county, a former member of house, was adopted.
