Every man shou'd take his county newspaper before anything else, and next to this he should take a good general newspaper, such as the Constitution. His county paper gives him the local home news, which is not supplied by a newspaper furnishing the general news from all parts of the country and from all over the world. Before a man seeks information from outside he should first feel sure that he s being kept posted on what is going on at home. When, however, the opportunity is offered to get the best weekly newspayer in the country with your home paper, the inducement is such as to elicit prompt response from our readers.

We will be glad to receive club bing subscriptions with this paper and The Constitution, and if there are any who are now subscribers to this paper, who wish to take The Constitution also, we will be glad to receive supscrip tions to the latter and forward them, having authority from that paper that to do so.

The Constitution should be in every southern home:

A correspondent is informed that the queen's will has not been opened. and that according to present arrangements it will not be opened until after the funeral, its details being unknown to the royal family. There is no truth in the statement that King Edward and Emperor William knelt by the bedside of the queen and swore to preserve peace.

A significant feature of all the deathbed scenes has been their absolute naturalness and the absence of false or dramatic elements.

PEACEFUL PASSING

Of Queen Victoria to the Realms of the Departed

AFTER NEARLY SIXTY-FOUR YEARS

As the Head of the United Kingdom Great Britain and Ireland and Also Empress of India.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 23 .-Queen Victoria is dead and Edward VII reigns. The greatest event in the memory of this generation, the most stupendous change in existing conditions that could possibly be imagined. has taken place quietly, almost gently upon the anniversary of the death of Queen Victoria's father, the Duke of Kent. The end of this career, never equaled by any woman in the world's history, came in a simply furnished room in Osborne house. This one of the most respected of all women, living or dead, lay in a great four-posted bed and made a shrunken atom, whose aged face and figure were a cruel mockery of the fair girl who in 1837 began to rule over England.

Around her werere gathered almost every descendant of her line. Well within view of her dying eyes there hung a portrait of the prince consort. It was he who designed the room, and every part of the castle. In scarcely audible words, the white-haired bishop of Winchester prayed beside her as he had often prayed with his sovereign, for he was her chaplain at Windsor. With bowed heads the imperious ruler of the German empire and the man who is now king of England, the woman who has succeeded to the title of queen, the prince and princesses and those of less than royal designation, listened to the bishop's prayer.

Six o'clock passed. The bishop continued his intercession. One of the younger children asked a question in shrill, childish treble, and was immediately silenced. These women of this royal family sobbed violently and the tion.

The queen passed away quite peacefully. She suffered no pain. Those who were now mourners went to their rooms. A few minutes later the inevitable element of materialism stepped into this pathetic chapter of international history, for the court ladies went busily to work ordering their mourning from London.

The wheels of the world were jarred when the announcement came; but in this palace at Osborne everything pursued the usual course. Down in the kitchen they were cooking a huge dinner for an assemblage, like of which has seldom been known in England.

London, Jan. 23.-The latest bulletins previous to the announcement of the queen's death, especially the message sent by the Prince of Wales, dispelled the last gleam of hope. The crowds silently dispersed from in front of the Mansion house and a few groups awaited the appearance of the final inevitable announcement. A strip of paper a foot square posted on the wall of the Mansion house at 6:50 Tuesday night gave the first notice to London's homeward hurry thousands of the death of the empress queen and the advent of a king. Access to the bulletin was difficult by reason of the fact that excavations had been made in the course of the work of improving the street.

Prince and Princess Louise of Battenburg arrived at Osborne just too late to see her majesty alive.

London papers abound in eulogie of the late queen.

Two murderers, whose crimes at tracted unusual attention in Europ last year, have just been beheaded. One was the Swede, Nordlund, who killed seven persons on the steamer Prinz Karl in May. The other was Gonczi, who killed a rich w.dow and her daughter in Berlin three years ago and was convicted after being extradited from Argentina, where he had taken refuge. He protested that he was innocent and left unsolved the legal knot as to whether mother or doughter was the first one killed. It is still a mystery.

Similarity.

A well-known electrician has remarked on the striking facial resemblance between Edison and Napoleon I. The mental likeness is not so pronounced, although each in his way has shown the conquering power of preeminent genius. They are strangely alike, however, in the ability to dispense with sleep. Napoleon, as well known, when on a compaign would go for days and nights without sleep. Similarly Edison, when engaged on a problem, will remain awake long period . On one occasion he worked without cessation for four days and nights.

CRAZY SNAKE CAPTURED.

After an Exciting Time the Indian Chief is Made a Prisoner.

Henrietta, I. T., Jan. 28.-Deputy Marshai Grant Johnson and Bunnie McIntosh of Eufaula, noted for their bravery and daring in hazardous expeditions against outlaws, made a dash upon the encampment of Snake Indians Sunday and captured Chitto Harjo, Crazy Snake. After an exciting escape from the hostile Creek camp they managed to land their prisoner at this place, and he is now held captive under a strong guard of soldiers under the command of Lieut Dixon. The capture of the central figure of the uprising and the show of force which the troops will make will likely put an end to the threatened outbreak.

QUEER AND QUAINT

Were the Ceremonies Attendant on Accession

OF KING EDWARD VII TO THRONE.

Arrayed in Gorgeous Apparel, Officials With Old Titles Take a Decidedly Prominent Part.

London, Jan. 25.-London Thursday was given a glimpse of medieval times. The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII was prelaimed at various points of the metropolis exactly followed ancient precedents. The officials purposely arranged the function an hour ahead of the published announcement, and the inhabitants when they awoke were surprised to find the entire way between St. James palace and the city lined with troops. About 10,000 soldiers, lifeguards, horseguards, footguards and other cavalry and infantry regiments had been brought from Aldershot and London barracks after midnight. All the officers had slept on their arms and the drums and brass instruments were shrouded with crape. The troops in themselves made an imposing sepctacle, but they were entirely eclipsed by the strange spectacle presented by the officials of the College of Arms.

The ceremony began at St. James palace, where at 9 o'clock Edward VII was proclaimed king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India. The proclamation, which was read by William Henry Weldon, king-at-arms since 1894, and formerly Windsor herald, was as fol-

"Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call to His mercy our late sovereign, Lady Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose decease the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, we therefore, the lords spiritual and tem- Mrs. Nation Receives a Trouncing by poral of this realm, being here assisted with those of her late majesty's privy council, with numbers of other princimemory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, Edward VII, by the grace of God, king of the United Kingroyal King Edward VII with long and but they, were released on bond. happy years to reign over us."

encement to the close. The proclatrumpets. At the conclusion of the ceremony the band belonging to the court whence the proclamation was read were the Duke of Norfolk and other officers of state. The balcony was draped in crimson cloth. Besides the officials in resplendent uniforms were stationed the state trumpeters. Here was seen many prominent persons, among them Sir Henry Arthur White, private solicitor of the queen; the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family.

The lord mayor, in the meantime, proceeded to the Mansion house, stepped out on the upper balcony, and said in ringing tones: "Join in singing from the bottom of your hearts, 'God Save the King." The response was uncertain, for the people present feared to undertake the unfamiliar words until the common sergeant (legal adviser of the corporation) led off, whereupon hundreds joinin. This was repeated three times, each time hundreds more taking up the singing, until it became a mighty roar. Then came more cheers for the king and for the queen consort, hearty but solemn-of a vastly different sort from He will doubtless be sent for from adopted son of Jay Gould and private the shouts heard for Queen Victoria's mbiles.

Muskogee, I. T., Jan. 25 .- There has been no improvement I nthe conditions regarding the Creek uprising and they continue alarming. Quiet is not expected until the troops arrive on the scene. United States Marshal Bennet received word that a troop of cavalry would leave Fort Reno, Ok., at once for Henrietta, a small town on the St. Louis, Oklahoma and Southern, in within a half day's drive of the site of the insurrectionary Creek government.

Ground Thursday, six Indians who had violated their laws were to be whipped. five receiving fifty lashes each and one 100. These punishments were to be inflicted because the Indians rented lands to white men. The inhabitants of Checotah and Eufaula, south of here are very much alarmed, and the mayor of Bristow, a town in the extreme northwest part of the nation and some forty or fifty miles north of what was supposed to be the heart of the uprising, has telegraphed Indian Agent Shoenfelt that between 600 and 700 Indians are assembled near there and threten to burn the town. Agent Shoenfelt si unable to lend any aid until the troops arrive.

Marshal Bennet received a message from Eufaula saying that Crazy Snake was in town. He immediately left for that place with five of his best deputies and willendeavor to capture Crazy Snake before he leaves Eufaula. Should Crazy Snake be captured it will either end the uprising or make it worse.

By the Joint Action of the Texas Legislature the Congressman is Sent to the Upper House.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 24.-At high noon Wednesday both branches of the Texas legislature jointly assembled and Hon. Joseph Weldon Bailey was declared elected a senator of the United gations in the churches in all parts of States to serve for the term of six years, beginning March 4 next.

Immediately thereafter Mr. Bailey was formally notified of his election by a committee, composed of Senators Potter and Odell and Representatives Schluter, Harbison and Gray.

As Mr. Bailey entered the house chamber, every part of which was crowded with spectators, including at mid-day to signalize the death of many ladies, there was considerable the queen, one gun for each comapplause, which became general and pleted year of the queen's age. vociferous as Mr. Bailey mounted to the speaker's platform and shook draped with black, the stores are dishands with Gov. "It is customary on an occasion like this for a senator-elect to lay before those who have honored him with their confidence a full statement of his views on important public questions, but I shall not follow that custom, and I refrain for a double reason. In the first place, my opinions and my principles are sufficiently well known to the people of Texas to need no restatement now, and in the second place, I prefer to wait until the end of my term, and then tell you how I intend to serve you.

"I had desired—indeed, I do still desire, at one time I had expectedthat, while refraining from discussion of my personal views, to ask you to hear me while I discussed some questions which I conceive to be of vital interest to the welfare and success of the Democratic party, but I have determined even to deny myself that pleasure. The hour at which I have been called upon to accept this honor is such as to render an extended address inappropriate, and had I remained until a more suitable occasion for you I could not have reached my public duties at aWshington as early as they seem now to require."

London, Jan. 24.-London donned a garb of mourning fro mend to end, and an early hour Wednesday found a thick fog enveloping the city like a pall, a fitting accompaniment of the funeral apparel of every one. Throughout the West End drawn blinds are the order of the day, while on all the government buildings and offices the flags are half-masted.

The law courts, the stock exchange and all the produce and metal exchanges through the country only assembled to close immediately after the presiding officers had addressed to the members a few words of tribute to the dead monarch.

There were extremely large congrethe country. At St. Paul's cathedral the prayers of the royal family were altered to read:

"For our sovereign lord, the king, and the queen consort."

All of the services were ended by the playing of the "Dead March."

The various naval and military stations fired a salute of eighty-one guns

The public buildings are being playing many signs of mourning and business is practically at a standstill. Dense crowds, beginning at St. James street, lined the entire roule to Victoria station from an early hour. The Mall and the front of the Buckingham palace were especially thronged. All along the former from the palace to Marlborough house carriages filled with ladies stood as if for a drawingroom except that the coachmen, footmen and occupants were all dressed in mourning. The police precautions were unusual. Men on foot and mounted guarded almost every yard of the way. The crowds waited patiently for hours to greet their king. Preceded by half a dozen mounted policemen, the new sovereign arrived in a plain brougham, which was driven very rapidly, with the coachman and footman in their usual gray livery with mourning bands on their arms. An equerry was seate I beside him. The king was, of course; dressed in the deepest and "Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Gentle- most simple mourning, and carefully

> The troops showed no signs of mourning except the bands on the ficers had crepe on their sleeves.

> The king drove to St. James palace from Marlborough house to preside at the first privy council by way of Marlborough house yard and the garden entrance of the palace. He was attended by Lord Suffield, who has been lord of the bed chamber to the Prince of Wale since 1872, and was escorted by a captain's escort of the Horse Guards. The procedure was exactly as on levee days.

> Shortly afterardw his majesty entered the room in which the councillors were assembled and addressed them in a brief speech. The lord chancellor (Lord Halsbury) then administered the oath to the king. Afterward the various members of the council, commencing with the lords in council, took the oath of allegiance and then passed in turn before his majesty as at a levee, excepting that each paused and kissed the king's hand before passing out of the chamber. This brought the ceremony to a close.
