ORCHESTRA GIRLS ENTER TAIN THE BAND BOYS

Do you want to know why the band boys are wearing a smile these days? An old idea is, you know, "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." The girls belonging to the orchestra tried this plan last Thursday evening. Can't say as to the results yet. It was intended to be a surprise to the boys, but folks generally have a strange way of finding out everything. We had a wonderful feed consisting of sandwiches, salads, fried chicken, olives, pickles, two or three kinds of cake, cream, and a five pound box of candy presented to the orchestra and band by Mr. Bascom Howard. The doors of the Cosy were thrown open about 7 o'clock and one by one the boys went down the receiving line then on down to the feast awaiting them. Each one was served generously and all declared themselves satisfied indeed. The rehearsal went well after all this and we all departed after a rather late hour to meet again on the following Monday evening.

Some new music for both the orchestra and band has arrived and you can now look out for something good in the near future.

COUNTIES ORGANIZE FOR RED CROSS SEAL SALE

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 29.—Organization of the counties of the state for the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale which will be held between December first and tenth is now going forward rapidly and will be completed within a few days. The latest counties to be organized and the chairmen are: San Miguel, Mayor F. O. Blood, of East Las Vegas; Union, Joseph Gill of Clayton; Colfax, Ernest D. Reynolds of Raton; Quay, F. C. Beebe of Tucumcari; Guadalupe, Frank Faircloth of Santa Rosa; Roosevelt, R. G. Bryant of Portales; Eddy, Will Purdy of Carlsbad; Grant, J. W. Carter of Silver City; Lea, Powhatan Carter of Lovington; and Otero, Tom Charles of Alamogordo.

THE PRESIDENT'S GIFTS

As estimated in the gossip of the Republican cloak rooms of Congress, the gifts received by President Wilson from the rulers and people of Europe were worth any sum between a vague "half a million" and a more indefinite "several millions" of dollars. This immense valuation was placed on them by the partisans not as a measure of President Wilson's popularity in Europe but as a spur to criticism of him at home.

Now the truth is revealed in the official list of the gifts and appraisement of their value—which intrinsically is rather small. It discloses that the Republican critics, including Senator Sherman and Representative Rodenberg, were as far from right in their guesses on this subject as they usually are in respect to other statements. The presents are neither so costly as the orators declared nor yet so cheap as these gentlemen must feel after having got the facts—against their will.

GAS BLOWS TOOLS FROM WELL NEAR TUCUMCARI

A report reached Portales this week to the effect that the drillers at the McGee oil well near Tucumcari struck a big flow of gas last Monday night. The flow was strong enough to blow the tools about 200 feet into the air. No estimate was placed on how much gas was struck but it must have been a heavy flow to have blown those heavy tools out. The well is now down 2,600 feet and is the same one which struck gas some ten days ago and caused so much excitement.

HENRY GEORGE ACQUITTED

The case of the State of New Mexico vs. Henry George, charged with the murder of Jeff Partin on July 18th, last, was given to the jury on Saturday afternoon of last week and they returned a verdict of not guilty Sunday morning at about ten o'clock.

On account of the wide acquaintance of both parties, this case attracted more than usual attention, the court room being crowded all through the trial.

The State was represented by Assistant District Attorney R. E. Rowells, Judge T. E. Mears and an attorney from Anson, Texas. The defendant was represented by Judge G. L. Reese and Judge James A. Hall, both of this place.

After the jury turned in their verdict, Judge Brice adjourned court until Monday, December 8th.

ELECTRICIANS FOR MEN OF WAR

In no branch of endeavor is there so great an opportunity to learn and to advance as in electricity. The navy requires aboard its ships, highly competent electricians to care for the intricate and expensive electrical apparatus so essential to the fighting efficiency. Men are prepared for this work by being given a thorough course of instruction and practical work in the U. S. Navy Electrical School. The course of instruction at the Electrical school covers 32 weeks, and embraces everything that an electrician should know from the essential theory of electricity to the care and repair of the electrical apparatus found on board a modern Man-of-War.

Anyone who might be interested in this line of service can get further information by writing or applying to R. Pritz, Naval Recruiting Officer, Clovis, N. M.

OZARK TRAIL IS NOW PRACTICALLY ASSURED

Letter From Col. W. H. Harvey to the County Judges of the Several Counties Makes Clear What Must Be Done to Secure the Route—Plan Easy.

County Judge J. C. Compton is in receipt of a letter of instructions from Col. W. H. Harvey, president of the Ozark Trails Association, submitting a line of procedure for the several counties as follows: Collingsworth, Hall, Childress, Briscoe, Swisher, Castro and Parmar Counties, Texas, and Curry and Roosevelt Counties, New Mexico, through which the Ozark Trail has been designated, provided certain plans and specifications are carried out by these counties. The plans laid out by Col. Harvey are very reasonable and it is now up to us to meet these requirements and get this route, which will mean so much to the future of our town and county as well as the country in general.

The first suggestion was that a route meeting be called at some central point, calling leaders from Elida, Portales, Clovis, Texico, Farwell, Dimmitt, Nazareth, Tulla, Silverton, Quitaque, Turkey Estelline, Childress, Memphis and Wellington and form a route organization for the purpose of promoting this Trail from Kenna to both Childress and Wellington. This meeting has been called to meet at Tulla, Texas, on Wednesday, November 19th, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of forming this organization, and it is hoped that a goodly attendance from Portales will be on hand. There will be a meeting here some time next week to elect delegates to this meeting. After the Route Organization has been selected it is suggested that each county organize clubs in the various towns and villages to assist in any way possible.

The main requirement and one on which Col Harvey laid especial stress is the proposition of concrete markers, or pyramids, to be placed along the route, sixteen or eighteen in all. We are not, at this time, able to give the plans and specifications of these pyramids, but we consider them as a matter of small import as against the securing of such a route as the Ozark Trail, and we believe that they will be furnished without a murmur. The time is now ripe for all to get in the collar and pull, for, in our opinion this is the best proposition that has come our way at any time and we feel that it presents an opportunity for advancement and development of a character that has not been presented before. Let all who can attend the meeting which will be called next week and let's send a good live delegation to Tulla on the 19th of November.

In conclusion Col. Harvey says: "I am submitting you this proposition because of forming a favorable opinion of your route, its feasibility, the character of its citizenship and the extent to which I was told that most of it was financed—and my confidence in what organization, as I have out to you, will do. As I have planned, your route will connect with both our Wellington, Mangum, Hobart, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Kansas City, Joplin, Springfield, St. Louis route, and Hollis, Altus, Lawton, Chickasha Route on the east and Roswell, El Paso route on the west. And your future prospects, when ripe, are an extension of the Childress end to Owanna, Vernon, Wichita Falls and Dallas. The Clovis end to Tucumcari, also Fort Sumner and west. You stand favorably to be on the shortest trans-continental route. With the probability of your making some 200 miles of properly made sand and clay road and the Palo Duro Canyon as a scenic feature, I will take great pleasure in advertising your road from coast to coast. I am requiring the pyramids of you as a condition precedent as they will be a classic feature worth many times their cost to you—counting in two ways—one, your people on seeing them will say to themselves and one to another, 'we must have a road that compares with these pyramids.' They will be a daily reminder the road is not finished until it is, and affecting maintenance the same way. And in another way, they will be talked about soon by more than a million people, advertising your country and your route as nothing else would. Ten thousand dollars raised by your nine counties to carry out the enterprise will bring their strip of country results that it is hard to estimate."

An Editor's Duties

Most any man can be an editor. All the editor has to do is to sit at a desk six days a week, four weeks a month and twelve months in a year and edit such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry. Joe Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell landing on his back porch. While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise from the church social last Saturday evening a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square. Mr. Frang, while harnessing a broncho last Saturday, was kicked just south of his corn crib." Exchange.

The circus has come and gone and all seem very well satisfied, because when you mention circus to anyone who attended they just smile and we suppose that is a sign that they all had a good time.

Col. Dan Morgan Smith

Commander in France of "The Battalion of Death" will speak at the Methodist Church in Portales on Wednesday, November 12th, at 7:30 p. m. His subject will be "The World's War and the Battlefields of France." All are invited to hear him. Admission free.

HALLOWE'EN

(Composed by Mildred Merrill)
Tonight is Hallowe'en,
The witches will be out;
Let's be a little mean
And stir things all about.

You bring your jack-o'lantern,
I'll bring my spooky face;
Then we'll hunt up some kids,
And give them a merry chase.

Then we'll change the sign boards
round,
And hide Miss Brown's gate;

En' turn loose Old Bill Johnson's houn,

An' mix things up first rate.

And then we'll put a tick-tack
On Sallie Gardner's door,
While I watch her thru a crack,
And Gee! I bet she'll roar.

SEVEN MILLION RED CROSS SEALS RECEIVED

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 29.—Seven million Red Cross Christmas Seals, tiny emblems of holiday cheer yet powerful agents in the fight against tuberculosis and other diseases, have been received by the New Mexico Public Health Association, state agents for the seals, for use in the coming drive of December 1 to 10 by which $60,000 is to be raised for public health purposes in this state.

The shipment includes more seals than have been in the state since the health association started the sale in 1911. More seals were sold in 1916 than in the five previous years; more in 1917 than in the six previous years. The sale was combined with the Red Cross Roll Call in 1918, but will be a separate feature this year, and it is believed that far more seals will be sold than in the seven former years in which the sale has been conducted.

CORNER CLIPPING

Mrs. E. S. Hamlett happened to a painful accident Wednesday. Thunder jarred a brick from the stove flue, striking her on the head in falling, inflicting a very ugly wound.

Rev. S. H. Shackelford left our community Monday for the Old Soldiers' Home at Austin, Texas, where he will spend the winter.

O. S. Strickland has finished his 3,000 bushel adobe potato house. He and L. L. Brown have their potatoes dug and housed, filling the building to the brim.

J. W. Taylor and family are making preparations to go to the cotton fields.

Mrs. John Beard of Mineola, Kansas, has moved to Portales to make this community her home. She will be joined by her husband next week. Mr. Beard is a brother of Frank Beard.

Rev. Stuckey, Supt. Sam J. Stinnett and family, Frank Smith and family, and Dr. Byrne and family were out to the Strickland-Brown potato farm this week.

Mr. Withroader, formerly of this community, was out among us this week shaking hands.

J. B. Crow brought some cattle to the Hamlett pasture this week.

J. W. Taylor made a bumper apple crop on his place this year.

Uncle Bob Woods is able to drive around in his buggy and crack jokes with his neighbors. We are all glad to have him out among us again.

Everybody seems to be getting along fine harvesting their bumper crops.

The Portales Overland Company composed of C. W. Ison and G. A. Dickbreder, are this week erecting a building on the lot belonging to Mr. Ison just west of Walter Crow's cream station and joining the McDonald Grocery. They will establish their offices there and also will make a show room for their cars. They are expecting a carload of Overlands most any day now.

Judge G. L. Reese was a business visitor in Clovis Wednesday.

RETURNED FROM THE BAPTIST CONVENTION

Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Newman, Rev. H. C. Slaughter, Coe Howard and wife, Mrs. Mary E. Joiner, Walter Crow and Miss Beulah Fonville, represented Portales Baptist church at the recent meeting held at Santa Fe. They all report a fine time and a successful meeting. All debts for the years work were paid and a handsome balance in the treasury to begin work for the new year. Of more than ordinary importance to Portales was the permanent location of the Orphans Home. The home was born at Portales and the local people generally were very anxious to keep it here. The church went to work and by the help of other friends a good bonus was raised consisting of the Dr. Bailey place in the northern part of town and $6,500.00 in money. Several other places were wanting the home but when they saw the determination of the Portales people and the splendid treatment the children had been given here they all withdrew except one place. Portales was an easy winner for in the vote Portales received every vote but two.

Now, since the home is located here for keeps, we hope that everybody will help to make conditions as pleasant for the children so that the Baptists of the state will never regret having located it here.

The convention was a great inspiration to all the messengers and the people of Santa Fe showed them every courtesy and made their stay in the Capitol city very pleasant.

The next meeting of the convention will be held at Roswell and no doubt many more from this section will attend.

SHELBY SCHOOL NOTES

Honor Roll

Following is a list of those who made 90 or over in their grades and were neither absent or tardy more than three times:

8th Grade.—Elsie Harris.

7th Grade.—Victoria Bostick.

3rd Grade.—Bentley Bostick.

The Shelby school holds its literary society every Friday afternoon and all are invited to attend.

The party given at Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley's last Wednesday night was well attended and all had a most enjoyable time.

The Mesa Oil and Gas Company who are drilling their test well No. 1 on the Hart Ranch some thirty miles west of Portales are progressing nicely and are down something near 400 feet. Arch Gregg, treasurer for the company is in Kansas City and other northern cities this week in the interest of the company. They received a telegram from him Tuesday instructing them to take their stock off the market. We didn't learn the reason, but suppose they have sold enough to complete the well. These people are getting down to business and are losing no time, and seems that they are doing all they can to push the well to completion.

According to the Kenna Record the Great Western Oil and Refining Company has made arrangements with another oil company to complete its well near Kenna, which they were forced to shut down because of disagreements with their drillers.

Married at Texico

A double wedding took place at Texico on Wednesday afternoon of this week in which the contracting parties were of Portales. They were Mr. Homer Compton and Miss Lou Hatch; and Mr. Ernest Smith and Miss Annie Williams.

The News joins the friends of these young people in wishing for them much happiness and prosperity during their sojourn.

LABOR CONFERENCE IS BROKEN UP

LABOR DELEGATES BOLT PRESIDENT'S ROUND TABLE

CAPITAL DELEGATES ALSO GO Public Group Sticks to Job—The President May Name Others to Outline Program for Nation.

Washington.—Out of the national industrial conference, which began its sessions here thirteen days ago with representatives of labor, employers and the public in attendance, there remains only the delegates appointed by President Wilson to act for the public.

Meeting after the withdrawal of the labor delegates, the employer and public groups heard, through Secretary Lane, the conference chairman, a message from President Wilson requesting the public delegates to carry on the work for which the body was called—the establishment of a new relationship between capital and labor.

Chairman Lane, after laying the president's wishes before the two groups, declared the conference adjourned. The employers' representatives, after issuing a statement in which they pointed out three distinct gains from the controversy over collective bargaining, dissolved as a group and dispersed to their homes.

The course which the public delegates will pursue is far from clear. After spending more than four hours in executive session, the major portion of the time being devoted to discussion of various interpretations of Mr. Wilson's message, the public conferees were not in agreement as to the president's intentions, and were still undecided whether they should merely make recommendations as to the organization of a new conference or should undertake the mission of the original body.

In official circles it was said that the latter course was the one the president had in mind. Labor withdrew from conference after its final effort to obtain adoption of a collective bargain resolution had been defeated by the vote of a majority of the capital group.

U. S. CONSUL IS KIDNAPPED

$150,000 Ransom Asked For Release of Jenkins, Puebla Agent. Washington.—William O. Jenkins, American consular agent at Puebla, Mexico, was kidnapped by three masked bandits at Puebla and is being held for $150,000 ransom.

The American embassy on inquiry has been informed by the Mexican foreign office that the government would take all possible steps to affect the liberation of Jenkins. The American embassy has been authorized to detail a member of its staff to Puebla to assist in obtaining the agent's release.

The dispatch received by the state department quotes the Mexico City newspaper Excelsior, as reporting that the bandits entered a factory owned by Jenkins, gagged and tied the watchman, forced the safe and robbed it of 60,000 pesos and then took Jenkins away with them. The bandits are reported to have told Mrs. Jenkins that they were rebels and would hold her husband for 300,000 pesos ransom.

R. R. CONTROL ENDS JAN. 1

ROADS WILL REVERT TO PRIVATE OWNERS

Director Hines To Give Up Control Without Waiting On Congress

Washington.—Despite the tangled status of railroad legislation in congress, plans for returning the railroads to their private owners on January 1 are going steadily ahead, it was learned at the railroad administration.

Officials of the railroad administration stated that they were making their plans in accordance with the statement of the president in his message to congress on May 20, that the railroads would be returned at the first of the next calendar year.

Director-General Hines has publicly expressed his belief that federal control will cease on January 1.

At the White House it was stated that the president has the power to turn the roads back without further legislation by congress, although such legislation is highly desirable.

Railroad administration officials are steadily clearing their desks in order to carry out the president's proposed program. Pending disputes with employes on the questions of wages, working hours, etc., are confidently expected to be adjusted by December 1.

It is the opinion in both railroad administration and White House circles that the roads will be turned back to private ownership on January 1, regardless of what congress may or may not do in the matter of legislation.

The legislative status of the railroads is a troublesome state, although Senator Cummins, chairman of the Interstate Commerce committee, expects to have the bill for the return of the railroads taken up immediately after the disposition of the peace treaty.

The proposed bill, however, includes an anti-strike clause and this is bound to cause a long and heated fight.

Members of congress will vigorously oppose any action by the president to turn the railroads back without legislation, but it was expected that such contemplated action might speed the work of congress and secure the passage of a bill for the return of the railroads at least early in the next session of congress.

RUPPRECHT IS AMONG LIST

Will Be Tried for Crimes Committed in Belgium

Paris.—The names of Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria and others of the former royalty and nobility of Germany appear on the lists of German officers whose surrender for trial for common law crimes in France and Belgium will be demanded in accordance with the terms of the Versailles treaty.

The newspaper says the list now approaching completion includes about 600 names, each accompanied by a detailed account of the offenses charged and the evidence on which they are based.

The supreme council will soon decide the date upon which the list is to be presented to Germany, which, according to the protocol to the treaty must be within two months after the treaty comes into effect.

Promotions to Generals

Washington.—Appointment of General March, chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett and Robert W. Bullard to the permanent rank of lieutenant-generals in recognition of their service during the war would be authorized under a bill introduced by Chairman Wadsworth of the senate military committee.

1,500 Karat Diamond Found

London.—The Premier Diamond Mining Company of the Transvaal is reported to have found a flawless white diamond of 1,500 karats, valued at 500,000. The famous Cullinan, found in 1905 in the same mining property, weighed 3,023 karats.

Red Cross Makes Report

Washington.—The first complete picture of the activities of the American Red Cross during the war is given in the report of the war council of the organization. Headed by Henry P. Davison, the first installment of which has been made public. It shows that between May 19, 1917, and February 28, 1919, the American Red Cross received a total of $400,000,000 for relief work, $233,500,000 of which came from war drives. It was estimated that more than 43,000,000 persons contributed to the second drive.

Hun Opera Starts Riot

New York.—Mounted police charged a crowd of 300 service men who had massed in front of the Lexington theater to prevent production of German opera, on which Mayor Hylan had placed an official ban. Dispersed by the police, the service men hastened to Times Square, recruited nearly 1,000 civilians and returned to the theater. One section of the line engaged in a fight with the police, lay down a barrage of bricks and stones. In the melee several shots were fired, but no one was hit.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Our personal responsibility for temperance reform.

I. The Rechabites Tested (vv. 1-5).

In the days of Jehoiakim the Lord charged Jeremiah to bring the Rechabites into the house of the Lord and test them regarding the drinking of wine. This he did in a place where the people might behold them, the aim being to teach Israel by example. The father of the Rechabites had given command that they should not drink wine. Their filial obedience put to shame the Israelites for their lack of obedience. Jonadab, the father of the Rechabites, was only a man, but the one whose commands Israel were disregarding was the Almighty God, their Creator and Savior. It is God's plan that every man be tested. Being a free agent he only can have character through testing. It was for this reason that God placed Adam and Eve in Eden and permitted the devil to test them. While we should be concerned with the removal of temptations from men, we should be more concerned with teaching them how to overcome.

II. The Filial Loyalty of the Rechabites (vv. 6-11).

Though they were out of their own country, in the midst of a foreign people, they refused to drink wine, declaring that they had been true to the instruction of Jonadab all their lives. Obedience to his instructions had been practiced by all men, women and children. It is a fine thing when children keep in memory their fathers and render obedience to their commands.

III. The Loyalty of the Rechabites in Contrast With the Disloyalty of the Israelites (vv. 12-16).

1. The appeal (vv. 13, 14). He made the appeal on the basis of the filial loyalty of the Rechabites. He reminded them that the Rechabites were obedient, though their father was dead long ago. He also reminded them that he had spoken to them in person, rising up early to do so.

2. The ministry of the prophets (vv. 15, 16). When the people failed to render obedience to God he sent to them the prophets, who plead with them to amend their ways by turning away from their idols. Matthew Henry indicates the points of contrast somewhat as follows: (1) The Rechabites were obedient to one who was but a man; the Jews disobeyed the infinite and eternal God. (2) Jonadab was dead long since and could not know of their disloyalty or correct them from it. God is all-wise and lives forever and will punish for disobedience. (3) The Rechabites were never put in mind of their obligations, but God sent his prophets who rose up early to remind them. (4) Jonadab left the charge, but God gave the people a goodly land and blessed them in it. (5) God never tied up his people to any hard task like Jonadab did, yet God's people disobeyed him and the Rechabites obeyed their father.

IV. Judgment Upon the Jews for Disobedience (v. 17).

God declared that he would bring judgment upon them according to what he had said. Judgment is determined upon those who disobey and rebel against God.

V. Reward of the Rechabites for Their Loyalty (vv. 18, 19).

* Because they had been true to the commands of Jonadab they should have continued representation before God. God has such regard for filial obedience that he lets no act go unrewarded.

God Knows His Own.

The church must keep herself pure. Neither false doctrine, nor false life, is allowable. The searching eyes of God see every corner of his dwelling place. Nothing is hidden from his search. "The Lord knoweth them that are his, and them that are not he cannot deceive him. So, let everyone that nameth the name of Christ, depart from iniquity."

The Miracle of Divine Grace.

The miracle of divine grace is too great for our understanding. The most dreadful thing about sin is the terrible feeling that the sinner can never again be as though that sin had never been. —Rev. Reginald J. Campbell in the Churchman.

Power of Prayer.

Prayer is the summing up of the Christian life in a definite act, which is at once inward and outward, the power of which on the character, like that of any other act, is proportioned to its intensity.—Benjamin Jowett.

What We Will and Must.

There is no contending with necessity, and we should be very tender how we secure those that submit to it. "This one thing to be at liberty to do what we will, and another thing to be tied up to what we must."—L'Estrange.

Serious Kidney Trouble Had Made Life Miserable, But Doan's Removed All the Trouble. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had such severe pains in my back," says Mrs. Albert Alroy, 324 W. Indiana Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., "that they almost doubled me up. Many a day I could not do my housework and at every move it seemed as if my back would break in two. My feet and ankles swelled until I had to wear large-sized slippers and sometimes I couldn't stand up."

"I had dizzy spells and dreadful headaches and fiery flashes passed before my eyes. Had a heavy weight been resting on my head, the pain could not have been more distressing. The least noise startled me, I was so nervous. I couldn't control the kidney secretions and the pain in passage was awful."

"I began to look as though my case was beyond the reach of medicine until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box benefited me and four boxes cured all the troubles. I have had no further cause for complaint."

S. PLAN VIGOROUS WARFARE IN TUBERCULOSIS IN THE SOUTH

AT EL PASO, ESTABLISHED FOR THIS PURPOSE WILL GET FINANCIAL AID FROM 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN EDUCATIONAL PROPAGANDA TO INFORM PEOPLE TO COMBAT PLAGUE WILL BE CONDUCTED.

Building of Southern Baptist Sanatorium for treatment of tuberculosis, located 4500 feet above sea level.

that tuberculosis is the South than in the country? The rate from tuberculosis is not greater than in the North, and greater than in the South and in this dreaded disease within the territory of the Baptist Convention. It is estimated that 150 people a day, or one in every six in this section who are afflicted with tuberculosis. The loss to the South from tuberculosis is $175,000,000. The facts were brought to the attention of the Southern Baptist Convention in 1916 at once adopted the spread of the disease as far as possible.

75 Million Campaign this institution will receive $500,000 for the erection of additional buildings and $500,000 for an endowment that will enable the sanatorium to minister to those indigent patients who are unable to pay for treatment.

That there is an imperative need for an institution of this character is shown in the fact that all institutions in the South and Southwest for the treatment of tuberculosis have a total capacity of only 8,757 beds, or one bed for only one person out of every sixty in this section who are afflicted.

Everything connected with the Baptist Sanatorium is modern and of the very best, but its present equipment is far too small to cope with the demands that are made upon it. Of the improvement fund that is to be provided, $100,000 is available already and architects are already designing new buildings worth $450,000. These will be constructed just as rapidly as possible.

While the sanatorium is being operated by the Baptists, it will be open to the people of all creeds and no creed. Due to the crowded conditions, however, it is necessary that arrangements be made in advance by communicating with Dr. H. F. Vermillion, superintendent, at El Paso.

The sanatorium is under the general supervision of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, and in addition to treating patients who have already contracted tuberculosis, it will seek, through a campaign of publicity, to inform the people of the South and Southwest on the nature and prevention of this disease that the alarming death rate from the white plague can be immediately lowered and finally reduced to the minimum.

URGE SENATE TO HASTEN PEACE

LEADERS IN FORTY STATES REGARDLESS OF PARTY SIGN APPEAL

TREATY WITHOUT AMENDMENT

Say Every Day of Delay Puts World in Imminent Peril of New War—Point to National Unrest as Result of Delay

New York (Special)—Two hundred and fifty leading Americans, republicans and democrats, representing forty different states and every prominent activity, have joined in a non-partisan effort to bring about the ratification of the peace treaty "without amendment and without delay." Their names are attached to an address to the United States senate which was made public today through the League to Enforce Peace, after it had been sent to every member of the senate.

The signers almost without exception are men and women of national reputation. They include such prominent citizens as ex-President William Howard Taft, George W. Wickersham, attorney general in the last republican administration; A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard; Charles C. Moore, of San Francisco, president of the Panama Exposition; Judge Geo. Gray, of Wilmington, Del.; President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor; Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, retiring president of the chamber of commerce of the United States; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the Philadelphia publisher; President Heber J. Grant, of the Mormon church, and John Spargo, leader of the socialists who supported the war.

The signers declare that every day of delay in ratifying the treaty puts the world in "imminent peril of new war." Their statement follows: In the senate at Washington, now that the committee on foreign relations has reported the treaty, the lines are sharply drawn between the immediate ratification of the treaty of peace with Germany and its amendment, with a reopening of negotiations that would bring great delay and prolonged uncertainty in settling the great issues of the peace. No partisan plea can be made. Party lines are already broken. Standing at a distance from the conflict in the senate chamber, we plead for immediate ratification without delay.

Our land requires it. A state of nervous strain, tension and unrest exists manifesting itself in disturbances which in some cases have no self-evident connection with the war, but which are in fact its aftermath. The world is put in imminent peril of new wars by the lapse of each day. Disensions between us and our former allies are being sown. We firmly believe and solemnly declare that the states and cities in which we dwell desire immediate peace.

The waging of war steadied and united the American people. Peace will bring prosperity, and prosperity content. Delay in the senate postponing ratification in this uncertain period of neither peace nor war has resulted in indecision and doubt, bred strife and quickened the cupidities of those who sell the daily necessities of life and the fears of those whose daily wage no longer fills the daily market basket. We beseech the senate to give the land peace and certainty by a ratification which will not keep us longer in the shadows of possible wars but give the whole world the light of peace. Reservations in the nature of clarifications in the meaning of the treaty not inconsistent with its terms will not require the reopening of the negotiations with Germany and with our associates in the war, which we all and each united to win, but there is no possibility of doubt that the amendment of the treaty, as is now proposed in the senate committee on foreign relations, would require negotiations and a reopening of all the questions decided at Paris. Months of delay would follow.

The perils of the present would become the deadly dangers of the near future. All the doubt engendered would aid the plots for violent revolution in this and other lands. The issues here and elsewhere between capital and labor, the conspiracy of speculator and profiteer would all grow and become more perilous. This cannot be. The American people cannot after a victorious war permit its government to petition Germany, which has accepted the treaty, for its consent to changes in it. Yet, if the United States should amend the treaty for its own purpose and policy, Germany would have full right to ask for concessions. Germany has agreed to make no claim in regard to enemy property seized in this country to an amount of seven hundred million dollars. Our recent foe could ask for a reopening of this issue and of the Lusitania claims. It could raise every question open before hostilities in regard to submarine warfare and the treatment of its nationals in this country. All the provisions for our trade in Germany raised by the economic clauses of the treaty, many of them vital to our industries and our farms, as in dye patents, dye supplies and fertilizers, the working of the reparations commission which superintends the trade of all with Germany, could all be brought up by Berlin for readjustment by our negotiators acting for the United States alone and no longer associated with other victorious powers nor supported by a victorious American army on the German border.

Peace itself, the peace of the world, is delayed until ratification comes, and any amendment postpones peace. Germany and England alone of the principal powers have ratified. The other principals necessarily await our action, influential and powerful as we are today in the world's affairs. The ravages of war on more than a score of fighting fronts are continued by any needless delay. Let the senate give the world peace, by ratification without amendment.

Even the amendment for which most can be said, the provision in regard to Shantung, will secure nothing which cannot be gained if China, backed by the powerful advocacy of the United States addressed itself to the machinery for righting international wrongs and meeting just claims created by the league between nations. China, after eighty years oppressive treaties and despoiled rights by which all the greater powers have profited directly or indirectly, has for the first time in this covenant and treaty the means and method to secure justice and the removal of the oppressive economic interference of stronger nations whose citizens are within her gates protected by a long succession of international agreements. Moreover, it should be remembered that the clause regarding Shantung is made upon the statement by Japan that she will return the territory to China and therefore upon that condition, compliance with which promise the league of nations can require. The peace of the present and the righteousness of the future can be best served by the ratification of the covenant and treaty without amendment. Let the senate take no action that will give any party to the treaty, and especially Germany, ground for maintaining that the ratification of the United States is not complete and that changes requiring a resumption of conference and negotiation have been made in it.

TEACHING OF THRIFT IN SCHOOLS URGED BY SECRETARY GLASS

Along with the "three R's," teaching of thrift is urged in the schools. As the child's mind is trained so will he grow. Secretary Carter Glass of the Treasury Department has asked that all teachers co-operate in helping make thrift a happy, national habit.

Members of the teaching profession are thanked for the assistance rendered by them in the Liberty Loan and War Savings campaigns of last year by Secretary Glass, who also says:

"Besides being of immediate value in meeting the financial needs of the Government, these campaigns have been of permanent value to the country in encouraging habits of wise spending, intelligent saving and investment. These habits of saving and patriotism, encouraged and stimulated by the necessities of the war, will have a great permanent value to the country if applied to its development in time of peace.

"The teachers of the country, by their daily contact with the children who are to be its future citizens, can do much to influence them in teaching good citizenship and thrift. It is therefore my earnest request that the school authorities throughout the country incorporate the teaching of thrift in the school curriculum from this time on."

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION ENDORSES THRIFT MOVEMENT

Responding to Secretary Glass' request, the National Education Association has endorsed the Thrift Movement in the following resolution:

"As essential to the character formation, to the welfare of the American people, and to the promotion of a national habit, we urge that the present national program of thrift instruction, and the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps become a permanent part of the public school procedure.

"We recommend that a committee of the National Education Association be named to co-operate with the Savings Division of the Treasury Department in pushing a campaign in all the State school systems."

Thousands of teachers in New Mexico, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas schools are already devoting regular school periods to thrift lessons. A pamphlet text-book "Adventures in Thrift" has been sent to English composition teachers of upper grades and high schools in the Eleventh War Savings District and other literature is being sent out or prepared.

A list of ways in which money can be saved by children has already been prepared and sent out to the teachers. It is also suggested that parents try putting their children on a budget system and thus inculcate ideas of thrift in the growing minds.

RED CROSS GIVES FULL ACCOUNTING

War Council Tells How Millions Contributed by Public Were Used For Relief.

BIG TASK IS DESCRIBED

In Twenty Months $184,000,000 Was Spent Overseas and $119,000,000 in the United States.

Washington, (Special).—Through a complete report of the work of the American Red Cross in the war by Chairman Henry F. Davison, on behalf of the war council, the organization on the eve of its annual enrollment of members during the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 3 to 11, has rendered an accounting of the many millions given it by the American people to help our fighting men and our allies. The statement is, in part, as follows:

"The war council of the American Red Cross is now prepared to make a complete accounting to the American people of money contributed and expended, as well as the work done by the American Red Cross during the period in which the war council was in control of its affairs. The war council was appointed May 19, 1919, and went out of existence February 28, 1919.

"It was the practice of the war council to give complete publicity to its policies and finances, but it is only now that a picture of the war period as a whole can be presented. It is the feeling of the war council that a report in this summarized form should be made directly to the public which provided the money and gave the effort which made the American Red Cross a success.

"A statement of the American Red Cross effort and finances since the war council relinquished its control will be made to the public through the executive committee, and it is important, therefore, that the fact that this report covers the period only until March 1, should be carefully noted."

Following are certain round figures covering American Red Cross participation in the war, as revealed by the war council's report:

SIMPLICITY AND BEAUTY IN DAINY NEGLIGEEES

The average woman may have little use for very elaborate negligees, but for daintiness, loveliness of color and simplicity she has an instinctive longing. These always appeal to her and specialists in the manufacture of negligees understand this—so that the bulk of their output combines just these elements. "Negligee" is a term that includes a very wide variety of garments—inspired by the garb of many peoples—for it is in the seclusion of home that women may indulge themselves in the fanciful. Japan and China contribute much and we have interpreted their ideas to suit ourselves besides buying generously of their productions. France is an exhaustless source of inspiration and we use its wonderful creations all the time, adopting and adapting ideas according to our own needs.

Our needs demand at least ten negligees that are simple and pretty, daintily made in lovely colors, to one that is elaborate. Morning jackets and coats of taffeta in gay colors, to be worn with lace-trimmed petticoats are popular, because they embody the things we like best, and negligees of the character of the two shown here are in constant demand. All these appear in flower-like colors—pink, rose, blue, yellow, lavender, light and vivid greens; occasionally cerise and rich reds. Imagine the negligee shown at the left of the picture in any of these lovely colors and you will find yourself deciding as to which one would suit you best. In this model a long close-fitting and plain slip of box-plaited crepe-de-chine is the easiest thing that ever was to slip into. Over it there is a short kimono-like jacket—a slip-over garment—with scalloped edge buttonhole with embroidered silk, and small sprays of embroidered flowers scattered over it. It could hardly be simpler—or prettier.

The negligee at the right has straight under-slip of charmeuse satin with a long-draped overgarment of the same material edged with lace. The material is gathered at the shoulders and sides and arranged in a drapery that widens at the hips and narrows toward the bottom. It has the effect of a long coat with ribbon that ties across the front below the waistline, to confine it, but this is a one-piece negligee easy to get into and as pretty as any one can ask for. Autumn brides will be interested in these fine examples of American designing and so will every other woman who has eyes to see them.

Hats That Interpret Autumn

If, in all the varied styles in millinery, there is a single point in common, it is that fall hats interpret the season. They are rich, brilliant, generously trimmed, many of them superb and unusual, and they are refined. Three ultra-smart examples pictured in the group above may have been selected as exponents of the mode, but three hats selected at random would probably convey the same ideas. The hat at the right of the group is made of black satin ribbon, bordered with gold. The barrette is mounted on a band of plain satin ribbon, overlaid with two rows of gold-edged ribbon, and this same ribbon makes the plaited pompon at the left. Worn with this hat is an overblouse of silk voile made to match the hat by the addition of a collar and wide band of the embroidered ribbon. This hat might be named October.

most beautiful. Sometimes the colors are like those of nature and often they are entirely different. Besides the grapes a generous trimmer has allowed this rich turban a bow of narrow gold ribbon near the back. A hat and a veil of equal importance, at the left of the group, is to be classed among the unusual and pleasing things that the autumn shopper is always running into. Perhaps this veil was made for the hat, or the hat was made for the veil; at any rate the design shows them to be inseparable. This small turban has a crown of taupe pashm velvet and a brim of plain dark brown velvet that supports the veil. Straps of velvet, fastened down with metal ornaments, are brought down over the veil at the front, back and sides. Veils and hats have had their fortunes cast together on many a hat this fall, where each would fall without the other, but together they make a success.

My Fight With the Middleman

By JAMES P. RICHARDSON.
(Dean of the Prose Preparatory School, Houston, Tex.)

SEVERAL years ago, in response to the urge then prevalent of "Back to the Farm," I traded my large city property for an 80-acre apple farm in the Ozark mountains. This farm had once been exceedingly valuable, but under a non-ident owner and a very shiftless tenant it had been allowed to degenerate till it was almost valueless. I took possession in July and the gross receipts for sales that fall from the entire farm were less than $80—less than a dollar an acre in income.

I had moved to the farm with my family and I devoted that winter to studying apple culture. I procured and read all the pamphlets issued by the national government and the state on this subject and corresponded with successful apple growers. By spring I felt myself competent to assume control. Under my direction we pruned and plowed the orchard and sprayed at what we thought the proper time. We had a large crop—or what seemed to me a large one—picking more than 4,000 bushels of apples. They were, however, of poor grade and affected with bitter rot and San Jose scale, while the curculio moth made heavy ravages. My net income was $700.

I realized now that it was necessary to appeal for help. I did so. Upon the suggestion of the state board of agriculture I secured the services of a young man just graduated from the college of agriculture, where he had spent four years in studying fruit raising, particularly apples. He came to the farm in January and I at once put him in complete charge.

He knew his business. I believed in him from the start. To watch him prune the trees was an inspiration. He took the utmost care not to infect one tree from another, using aseptic solutions with his tools. He cut the trees till I feared there would be little left. But most of all to be admired was his method of determining when and how to spray. From the various trees he cut cuttings which he forced to grow in fruit jars, and watched them for the development of the various kinds of diseases. With this knowledge he set his time for spraying, and mixed his ingredients to fit the special cases.

The result was astounding; that very year we harvested more than 8,000 bushels of apples, and more than three-fourths of them were of first grade. My old farmer neighbors who had laughed at the "college feller" who ran my orchard, now came and admitted that he was right and asked him to give them suggestions with their own fruit.

But not yet had I succeeded; for I learned that it was not enough to know how to raise superior apples. I must also learn how to market them. We sold them through the usual channels of the jobbers in the large cities, and our income for the whole season was but slightly more than $1,000—just 20 cents a bushel on the average for first-class fruit.

The jobbers reported to us that our shipments came at a time of glutted markets, or were so badly damaged on the way that they had to be sacrificed. One carload of Jonathans which I had carefully selected and packed myself, knowing that not a poor apple went into the boxes, was turned into vinegar as being too small and too poor to be sold for eating; at any rate that was the report sent us and upheld by affidavits. For this carload we got $100.

A CITY MARKET

During the winter I formed a new campaign. I moved to the city, leaving the farm in charge of my tried and true assistant. The week before the Jonathans were to ripen I visited every grocery store in the city, large and small, and offered to deliver to them such apples as I showed as samples, for $1.90 a bushel box, prepaid. As that grade of apple was then selling to the retailer by the jobber for $2.50 at the least, they were pleased by my offer, and within three days I had sold three carloads—1,800 boxes. I wired to the farm to ship them, and gave the express company the names and addresses of the consignees.

About ten o'clock in the morning of the second day the express company telephoned me to come down at once. I did so, and there found all my apples but 100 boxes, piled in the hot depot. Every shipment except one had been refused by the dealers. They had not even opened them for inspection, and in most cases had refused to let them be unloaded from the delivery wagons.

I started out to learn the cause of this extraordinary behavior. My first inquiries were unsuccessful, the dealers evading answer. But after a while I found an old German who was willing to talk, and he told me that the jobbers of the city had sent an agent to see them the day before and told them that if they took my apples as agreed, the jobbers would refuse them further "courtesies"—which meant they could buy no more fruit from the regular wholesale dealers. In self-protection, therefore, the retailers had to decline my shipments. The one who had dared to disobey this drastic order from the overlords was the largest retail firm in the city, which also conducted a wholesale department, and had taken the apples in that side of their business.

Still unconquered, but feeling mighty weakened, I went to the jobbers direct. The first man who learned my name turned on his heels from me and slammed the door of his office in my face. The next one told me with an oath that he couldn't do business with me. So it went along the row till at last by giving a fictitious name and even denying that I was myself, I found two jobbers who would take the apples, to be sold on the morrow on commission.

The next morning I attended the sale of my own apples on the sidewalk in front of the wholesale house. I saw the apples sold at prices ranging from $2.50 to $2.80, and I felt quite reconciled to myiasco. But when I came in for settlement their books showed that no box had sold for more than $1.50, and their clerks all declared that to be the case. I was offered and had to accept that sum, less their commission of 25 per cent.

The other dealer reported that he must learn how it happened that the little oriole had not been duly insured as directed by the owner and consignee. "Indeed," said Mrs. M. (said owner and consignee), "I surely told that man to insure the oriole, and now I ought to be paid." "I certainly am sorry the poor thing got hurt," humbly replied the postmaster. "You know what an oriole is, don't you, Mr. Springsteen?"

had found no sale for my apples and had shipped them to an adjoining town 50 miles away, where they were sold at a price, which, after deducting two commissions and the additional freight, left me 55 cents a bushel.

Naturally this took all the fight out of me and the rest of our crop was marketed through the jobbers. The total sales for the 8,000 bushels were $4,500. But these apples cost the consumer more than $20,000.

I had a new scheme for the ensuing year. I advertised in the papers of several towns that we would deliver fancy No. 1 apples to the homes of the people, with the privilege of inspection before paying, express prepaid, for $2 a bushel. At that same time the usual retail market price was more than $4. We also sent circulars to the people whose names appeared in the telephone books. As a result of this campaign we sold less than 600 bushels, which did not pay for the cost of the advertising. Evidently the housewife is not anxious to save money, or else she has little faith.

Since then we are going on raising the best apples we know how to produce. We prune and plow and fertilize. We spray carefully. We pick by hand with the utmost solicitude. Our apples are large and free from bitter rot and other blemishes.

But we sell them through the jobbers, and we receive an average of $2 a bushel even now with the prevailing high prices, and these same apples cost the retail dealers twice that sum. The difference goes into the rapacious and never-satiated maw of the men who do nothing to raise fruit or to sell it or to put any real value into it; but who live on the efforts of the other two real laborers. I think that they ought to spell their names with an initial R instead of J.

But they have on their side antiquity and religious prestige. For even 'way back in the time of the Garden of Eden there was an apple tree. Eve tended this tree and watched its fruit. When it was ripe she presented it to Adam. Thus Eve was the producer and Adam the consumer. But that was not all. Even there was to be found the middleman; the Bible calls him by a more characteristic name.

Educated Clerks.
Two Terre Haute school teachers, both college graduates, spent a week recently clerking in a Chicago bakery. One day they sold several articles to two customers. The bill came to exactly 93 cents and both were elated, because of the size of the sale. They were further elated when they heard one of the women remark to the other one as they left the store: "They must have educated clerks here now. Did you notice that they counted up the bill in their heads instead of using a piece of paper as the old ones did?"

"Oh, yes, I know, it's a bird," came the proud reply. "No it isn't either," said Mrs. M. "It is one of those baby carts that fold up." "Indeed," said Mrs. M. (said owner and consignee), "I surely told that man to insure the oriole, and now I ought to be paid." "I certainly am sorry the poor thing got hurt," humbly replied the postmaster. "You know what an oriole is, don't you, Mr. Springsteen?"

PRINTERS, WHO THEY ARE AND WHAT THEY DO

(By H2O)

Printers deal in publicity and ink.

They say their work is "the art preservative," which means it works like embalming and putting away in alcohol. Most printers chew tobacco or smoke a pipe others indulge in profane language on occasion and some while away the leisure hour on the banks of the Ambraw. Cub reporters smoke cigarettes, which are not furnished by patriotic ladies. Female printers are called angels, and the kid learning the trade is the printer's devil; both live up to all their names imply. Some printers set by hand, some manipulate the linotype, and others set by the stove and recall ancient days. Journeymen are printers who come into town on a through freight. As soon as the train slows down to 20 miles an hour, he jumps off, hikes to the nearest printshop and negotiates the price of a square meal. Then he comes back and helps along through the rush—maybe. The rush may mean hustling down a back alley with a can full of foam etc. As soon as he earns enough to buy a pair of socks, he wipes the ink on his hands on the office towel, pulls his cap down over his ears and rides the bumpers to the next town.

The linotype is a wonderful machine. It was invented by Otto Mergenthaler (not an ally) who afterwards died of consumption. Many purchasers have suffered hemorrhages from the consumption of raw material and supplies by the invention since then. It is a mixture of a type-writer and an old carpet loom. The engineer in charge is called an operator. He operates mostly on the payroll and upkeep column. He enumerates a chair near the floor at the front, and plays with nimble fingers on the keys when the letters "run" nicely. This kicks the mats out of bed and rolls them down stairs to the basement where they left dress till enough to make one "line of type" are in the ranks. Then the operator sets his paw on a lever and the assembled line is taken up, stairs on an elevator and shoved across the hall and down another elevator to the bathroom. Here they are given a shower bath from a pot of melted metal and then pulled out and dragged upstairs where they are hung out on the line to dry and drop, and await the next draft.

Sometimes the operator strikes the wrong key or letter, but he never knows the difference until his wife reads it to him out of the paper. It is positively alarming the difference a missing letter or one letter in the wrong place will do to a lovely advertisement or the header for a war news item. These mistakes occur and no well regulated print shop hopes to escape them. They creep into society items, marriage notices, and editorials. They often enliven an otherwise dry and musty contribution to literature.

Some printers set their type by hand, with the wrong side up. The types are read by standing on your head and going from left to right like a Chinese laundry ticket. The reason is that a Hun named Gutenberg made the first moveable type.

Gawk discovered "pi" fifteen minutes later. It is the printer's mess, but is not relished.

"Gooty" studied it all out in his head and made the letters out of wood. He met with great difficulties making a good impression. However, he finally succeeded and then died. Some have died since who never made any kind of impression.

Printer's ink is a plastic liquid about as thick as sorghum molasses on the back porch on a zero morning. It is smeared on by a roller. Most of it is found on the towel by the wash basin. It comes in different colors, and is noted for its tenacity. If you want to remove this ink from anything, just throw the mess into a red-hot furnace. There is no other way.

The type used is of different sizes from the kind used in setting up the delinquent tax list to the assortment of stallion letters used on the front page for advance war news that sometimes proves false. Sale pills and road cards, used by candidates, always use the large kind.

The white space in advertisements is called furniture, plat or velvet. These terms need no explanation. The pictures illustrating articles are called cuts. They are very helpful, if it so happens they don't get in upside down.

Printers usually join several lodges, a church, band or fire department to establish their mental poise. At odd times they serve on the school board or city council.

The printer's business is to set copy. It is none of his business where it came from nor where it is going. Nor, yet, who wrote it. Some copy is hard to decipher, especially a self laudatory notice for the front page as a news item. The waste basket is a necessity, and many a literary gem has found its way to innocuous desuetude via this capacious convenience. Sometimes contributors with H2O on the cerebellum rush into print and receive a merited rebuke from competitors whose spelling belong to the kindergarten department. This brings loud guffaws from the readers and the participants earn their meal tickets.—Charleston (Ill.) Daily News.

It isn't what you pay for your ad that counts, it's what your ad pays you. Advertise it in the News and results are assured.

BAPTIST CAMPAIGN GOMES CHEAPLY.

Expense in raising the $75,000,000 sought by the Baptists of the South in their 75 Million Campaign will amount to considerably less than one per cent, Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director, announces. This includes the expenses of both the general headquarters and the eighteen state headquarters. This is probably the lowest overhead expense in the history of large money-raising efforts in this country.

Los Angeles Woman In Poor Health Many Years— Is Restored By Tanlac.

"Tanlac has done for me in just a few weeks what I have been trying for years to get other medicines to do," said Mrs. America Renaker, who lives at 1269 West 36th Street, Los Angeles, Cal., while talking to a Tanlac representative the other day.

"My health has been very poor for a great many years," continued Mrs. Renaker, "but for the past six years my condition has been exceptionally bad. I had stomach trouble and indigestion in the worst way, and everything I ate disagreed with me. When I commenced taking Tanlac I had lost at least fifty pounds in weight and was so weak and run down that I was hardly able to get about at all. My nerves were in terrible condition, and very often I would lie awake all night long. I had taken so many different kinds of medicine without getting relief I was completely discouraged over my condition.

"Tanlac had evidently not been introduced in California at that time, but I had been getting the papers from my home town, in Kentucky and I read what several people there whom I know, had been greatly helped by taking Tanlac, so I sent all the way to Kentucky for a bottle of this medicine. It wasn't long after that before I noticed that Tanlac could be obtained here, and as the first bottle had been such a wonderful help to me, I just continued to take it until now I am enjoying perfect health again. Why, I have regained almost all I lost in weight. My troubles have been completely overcome and when night comes now I sleep like a baby, and get up every morning feeling just fine. I have a splendid appetite and eat three hearty meals every day, and never suffer a particle afterwards. I will tell anybody that Tanlac is the best medicine I have ever seen and am glad to recommend it to everybody."

Get the Banking Habit

--IT IS WISE

Modern methods of banking are typical of America's democratic way of doing business. Rich and poor alike keep their money in the same bank and the dollar check drawn by the girl clerk in a department store on her small account is honored just as quickly and with as little question as a check drawn by John D. on his own account.

A deposit in a bank is the basis of credit for any man or woman. It establishes a personal relation between the depositor and the bank, which may be of value in many ways to the depositor. If he will ask his banker's advice before investing his savings in numerous schemes which are afloat today seeking to get his money, he will in many instances be saved severe losses.

The banking habit is a good one to cultivate. It raises you in your own estimation and sense of confidence in your ability to do things.

A bank depositor and a home owner are not good material for the Bolshevik and socialist agitators and herein lies America's safety today.

Give the world

LISTEN, fellows, to some straight talk. Many a man when he gets to be 40, misses something. He may have lots of money, and a fine family but—

He never "got out and saw things". After he gets settled down, it's too late.

Every man wants to see the world. No man likes to stand still all his life. The best time to TRAVEL is when you're young and lively—right NOW!

Right NOW your Uncle Sam is calling. "Shove off!" He wants men for his Navy. He's inviting you! It's the biggest chance you'll ever get to give the world the once over!

The Navy goes all over the world—sails the Seven Seas—squints at the six continents—that's its business. You stand to see more odd sights, wonderful scenery and strange people than you ever dreamed of.

You'll work hard while you work. You'll play hard while you play. You'll earn and learn. You'll get, in addition to "shore-leave", a 30-day straight vacation—which is more than the average bank president can count on.

You can join for two years. When you get through you'll be physically and mentally "tuned up" for the rest of your life. You'll be ready through and through for SUCCESS.

There's a Recruiting Station right near you. If you don't know where it is, your Postmaster will be glad to tell you.

WOLVES of the SEA

By RANDALL PARRISH

She turned her head, and I felt her eyes searching the dim outline of my face questioningly. "Of course I did everything I knew," she replied. "Why should I not? You are here, Captain Carlyle, for my sake; I owe you service."

"And must I be content merely with that thought?" I urged, far from pleased. "This would mean that your only interest in me arises from gratitude."

"Your meaning is that true friendship has as a basis equality?" "Does it not? Can real friendship exist otherwise?"

"No," she acknowledged gravely. "And the fact that such friendship does exist between us evidences my faith in you. I have never felt this social distinction, Captain Carlyle, have given it no thought. This may seem strange to you, yet is most natural. You bear an honorable name, and belong to a family of gentlemen. You held a position of command, won by your own efforts. You bore the part of a man in a revolution; if guilty of any crime, it was a political one, in no way sullying your honor. I have every reason to believe you were falsely accused and convicted. Consequently that conviction does not exist between us; you are not my uncle's servant, but my friend—you understand me now?"

"And you would actually have me speak with you as of your own class—a free man, worthy to claim your friendship in life?"

"Yes," frankly, her face uplifted. "Why should it be otherwise? No man could have done more, or proved himself more staunch and true. We are in danger yet, but such peril is nothing compared with what I have escaped. I feel that your skill and courage will bring us safely to land. I am no longer afraid, for I have learned to trust you. You possess my entire confidence."

"But do you understand fully?" I questioned anxiously. "All I have done for you would have been done for any other woman under the same conditions of danger. Such service to another would have been a duty, and no more. But to be with you, aiding and protecting, has been a delight, a joy. I have served Dorothy Fairfax for her own sake—not as I would any other."

"Did you not suppose I knew?" Her glance flashed into mine through the star-gleam, with a sudden message of revelation.

"You knew—that that it was you personally I served?" "Of course I knew. A woman is never unaware of such things. Now, if ever, I must tell you the truth. I know you care for me, and have cared since first we met. An interest no less fateful has led me to seek your acquaintance, and give you my aid. Surely it is not unmanly for me to confess this when we face the chance of death together?"

"But," I stammered, "I can scarcely believe you realize your words. I—I love you Dorothy."

"And is it not also possible for me to love?" "You—you mean, you love me?" "I love you—are you sorry?" "Sorry! I am mad with the joy of it; yet stricken dumb. Dorothy Fairfax, I have never even dared dream of such a message from your lips. Dear, dear girl, do you forget who I am? What my future?"

"I forget nothing," she said, proudly. "It is because I know what you are that my heart responds. Nor is your future so clouded. You are today a free man if we escape these perils, for whether Roger Fairfax is alive, or dead, he will never seek you again to hold in servitude. If alive he will join his efforts with mine to obtain a pardon because of these services, and we have influence in England. Yet, should such effort fail, you are a sailor, and the seas of the world are free. It is not necessary that your vessel fly the English flag."

"You give me hope—a wonderful hope."

"And courage," her hands firmly clasping mine. "Courage to fight on in faith. I would have that my gift to you, Geoffrey. We are in peril still, great peril, but you will face it beside me, knowing that whether we live or die we are together. I am not afraid any more."

"Hand in slowly, lads; yes, let go, the rope will hold, and the boat ride safely through. Let a couple of men come up till we see what's wrong with the hooker—the rest of you trail on. Let Schmitt and Sam come with me. I helped them clamber up and then lifted my body onto the rail, from which position I had a clear view of the forward deck. It was luxuriously dirty, yet otherwise ship shape enough. Nothing human greeted me, and conscious of a strange feeling of horror, I slipped over onto the deck. The next moment the negro and Dutchman joined me, the former staring about wildly, the whites of his eyes revealing his terror.

"My Gawd, sah," he ejaculated. "Ah done know dis boat—it's shore de Santa Maria. Ah's cooked in dat galley. She was a slaver, sah." He sniffed the air. "A kin smell dem niggers right now, sah. Ah suah reckon dars a bunch o' ded ones under dem hatches right dis minute."

Schmitt's hand fell heavily on my sleeve and I glanced into his stolid face. "I just bet I know vat was der trouble."

"What, man?" "Cholera," he whispered; "we haf boarded a death ship."

CHAPTER XXVII. On Board the Slaver. The terror of the two men as this thought dawned upon them in all its horror was apparent enough. Nothing, not even fire, was more to be dreaded than a visitation of this awful nature on shipboard. Charnel ship though this might be, it was safer by far than the cockleshell towing alongside.

"Let's find out the truth first, men," I said quietly. "Hold your tongues. There is no use giving up until we know what the danger is. Will you come with me?"

through the pallid light of the dawn. It was all a desolate, restless waste in the midst of which we tossed, while above hung masses of dark clouds obscuring the sky. We were but a hurtling speck between the gray above and the gray below.

The first thing needing my attention was the food and water. I crept forward cautiously and soon had Sam busily engaged in passing out the various articles for inspection. Only essentials had been chosen, yet the supply seemed ample for the distance I believed we would have to cover before attaining land. But the nature of that unknown coast was so doubtful I determined to deal out the provisions sparingly, saving every crumb possible. The men grumbled at the smallness of the ration, yet munched away contentedly enough, once convinced that we all shared alike.

"All right, lads," I said cheerfully. "Now we understand each other and can get at work. We'll divide into watches first of all—two men aft here and one at the bow. Watkins and I will take it watch and watch, but there is enough right now for all hands to turn to and make the craft ship-shape. Two of you ball out that water till she's dry, and the others get out that extra sail forward and rig up a jib. She'll ride easier and make better progress with more canvas showing."

The men gradually knocked off work and lay down, and finally I yielded to Dorothy's pleadings and fell into a sound sleep. It seemed as though I scarcely lost consciousness, yet I must have slept for an hour or more, my head pillowed on her lap. When I awoke Schmitt was again at the steering paddle, and both he and Dorothy were staring across me out over the port quarter.

"What is it?" I asked eagerly, but before the words were entirely uttered a hoarse voice forced bawled out excitedly:

"There you see it; straight out agin that cloud edge. It's a full-rigged schooner."

"Ay," boomed another, "an' headin' straight cross our course astern."

I reached my feet, clinging to the mast to keep erect and, as the boat was again swung upward, gained clearly the glimpse I sought.

"Ay, you're right, lads!" I exclaimed. "It's a schooner, headed to clear us by a hundred fathoms. Port your helm, Schmitt—hard down, man. Now, Sam, off with that red shirt; tie it on the boat hook and let fly. They can't help seeing us if there is any watch on deck."

We swept about in a wide circle, headed straight across the bows of the on-coming vessel. All eyes stared out watchfully, Sam's shirt flapping above us, and both Watkins and Schmitt straining their muscles to hold the plunging quarter-boat against the force of the wind. A man forward on his knees growled out a curse.

"What's the matter aboard there?" he yelled. "Did yer ever see a boat yaw like that, afore? Damn me, if I believe they got a hand at the wheel."

The same thought had leaped into my mind. The schooner was headed to pass us on the port quarter, yet yawing so crazily at times as to make me fearful of being run down. I could perceive no sign of life aboard, no signal that we had been seen. The sight angered me.

"Stand by, all hands," I cried desperately. "We'll board whether they want us or not. Slip across, Miss Fairfax, out of the way. Now, Watkins, run us in under those fore-chains; easy man, don't let her strike us. Lay hold quick, lads, and hang on for your lives. Give me that end of rope—ready now, all of you; I'll make the leap. Now then—hold hard!"

It was five feet, and up, my purchase the tossing boat, but I made it, one hand desperately gripping a shroud, until I gained balance and was flung inboard by a sharp plunge of the vessel. My head was at a level with the rail, yet I saw nothing, my whole effort being to make fast before the grip of the men should be torn loose. This done, I glanced back into the up-turned faces below.

"Hand in slowly, lads; yes, let go, the rope will hold, and the boat ride safely through. Let a couple of men come up till we see what's wrong with the hooker—the rest of you trail on. Let Schmitt and Sam come with me. I helped them clamber up and then lifted my body onto the rail, from which position I had a clear view of the forward deck. It was lux-

CHAPTER XXVII. On Board the Slaver. The terror of the two men as this thought dawned upon them in all its horror was apparent enough. Nothing, not even fire, was more to be dreaded than a visitation of this awful nature on shipboard. Charnel ship though this might be, it was safer by far than the cockleshell towing alongside.

"Let's find out the truth first, men," I said quietly. "Hold your tongues. There is no use giving up until we know what the danger is. Will you come with me?"

The terror in Sam's eyes caused me to laugh and my own courage came back with a rush.

"Afraid of dead men, are you? Then we'll face them together, my lads, and have it over with. Come on, now, both of you. Buckle up; there is nothing to fear, if you do what I tell you—this isn't the first cholera ship I've been aboard."

It was no pleasant job confronting us, although we had less dead men to handle than I anticipated. Indeed, we found only five bodies on board. There were only two on deck, a giant, coal-black negro, and a gray-bearded white man, his face pitted with smallpox. Determined on what was to be done, I wasted no time with either body. The two sailors hung back, terrorized at the mere thought of touching these victims of plague. I steeled myself to the job and handled them alone, dragging the bodies across the deck and launching them over the low rail into the sea. I ordered Schmitt to cut the lashings and take charge of the wheel.

"See here, Sam, and you too, Schmitt, I am in love with that girl in the boat. Do you suppose I would ever have her come on this deck if I believed she might contract cholera? You do as I say and you are perfectly safe. Now, Schmitt, remain at the wheel, and you, Sam, come with me. There will be a dead nigger aboard unless you jump when I speak."

He trotted close at my heels as I flung open the door leading into the cabin. The air seemed fresh enough and I noted two of the ports wide open. A tall, smooth-shaven man, with an ugly scar down one cheek, lay outstretched on a divan at the foot of the after mast, his very posture proclaiming him dead. His face was the color of parchment, wrinkled with age.

The negro crept up behind me and stared at the upturned face.

"My Gawd, sah, he was de ol' captain. Paradilla, sah; damn his soul!"

In what was evidently the captain's room I discovered a pricked chart and log-book, with no entry in it for three days. Without waiting to examine these I stowed them away in my pocket. Between us we forced the stiffened form of the captain through the open after port and heard it splash into the sea astern. There were two dead seamen in the forecastle, both swarthy fellows, with long Indian hair. I never saw a dirtier lot, the filth overpowering, and once satisfied that both men were beyond help, I was content to lower the scuttle and leave them there. God! it was a relief to return once more to the open deck and breathe in the fresh air. I hailed the boat towing below.

"Come aboard, Watkins," I called sharply. "Pass the lady up first, and ture the boat adrift."

I caught Dorothy's hands and aided her over the rail.

"Why was the vessel abandoned?" she asked. "What has happened? Do you know?"

Quietly I told her the truth and assured her that if we staid on deck and used our own bedding and provisions we were in no danger.

"How can I help you?" "Tell the men just what I have told you," I said gravely. "They will be ashamed to show less courage than you."

We turned and faced them together as they formed a little group against the rail. Hallin was first to speak. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Soul That Is Truly Great. Emerson, that greatest of modern philosophers, has told us that it is easy when in a crowd to allow ourselves to be swayed by the opinions about us and comparatively easy to keep our individuality and sweetness when alone, but that the great soul is he who in the midst of a mass of other individuals can still keep the poise and sweetness of solitude.

Work and Workers. There is not so much difference in the world's work as in the world's workers. It is not so much difference what we are doing—so long as it is useful—that counts as the way in which we are doing it. The work of which we are ashamed we either have no right to do, or we are not doing it as we should.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. Grateful Colored Man Promised to Go if Services Should Be Needed.

"The race riots in Chicago remind me of the same sort of excitement that ran around Atlanta when I was living there as a young man," said George McDaniel of Metro, Cal., recently. "My brother and I were both medical owners of smooth and virgin sheepskins. We shared the same office and lunched at the same counter. In the midst of wild confusion, one day, a wounded negro rushed into our office and begged for protection. This was freely granted, for we had no race prejudices, in spite of our Southern upbringing. We also poured salve on the negro's bruises. 'Yo' shuah been good to me,' said the grateful darkey, turning to my brother—who, by the way, is now practicing in Los Angeles—'an' I'll 'member it, doc. WISE POLICY TO SELECT SEED FOR TWO YEARS FROM THIS SEASON'S CORN CROP

Save Two Years' Seed From This Kind of Field—There May Be Nothing Like It Next Year.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The 1919 corn crop is a wonderful crop from which to select seed corn. Over most of the country it is well developed, fully matured, hard and sound—just the sort of corn that a fellow can bank on for a good stand and big yields.

But it takes time to select seed corn. You are busy. Some other job is calling you before you finish the one you are at. You guess you will not take the time to select any seed corn to speak of.

All right—it's your business. But think ahead a little. Imagine that it is the spring of 1921. The year 1920, say, was a poor corn year. Frost came early and nearly all of the corn was soft. You haven't any that is fit to plant. The busy spring season is at its busiest. A score of things are calling to be done at once. You have to hitch up the horse or crank the car and start scouring the country for some man who has a crib of old corn. Probably you fail to find him and have to wait while the county agent or somebody "sends down South" and gets you some hard corn to plant. Some waste of time connected with the process, isn't there? After you get it, perhaps it is unadapted to your locality and yields a poor crop of immature corn.

Save for Two Years. This is one of the reasons why the corn experts of the United States department of agriculture urge farmers to select out of this year's crop enough seed corn to meet their needs for two or three years. No farmer, particularly in the northern portion of the United States, has time not to do it.

Still, the mere saving of time is not the only reason. By getting two or three years' supply of seed corn out of separately, the custom outfit can do the work at a price equal to or below the cost of doing it with an individual outfit and still return a profit to the owner.

Where Co-operative Plan is Not Feasible Many Farmers Prefer to Hire Work Done Rather Than Buy Individual Rig.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Use of power machinery in preparing firewood will reduce labor requirements to a point where the farmer should be able to get his wood ready to burn without seriously neglecting other work. A great many farmers already have gasoline engines suitable for furnishing the power for wood-sawing machines. The sawing machines themselves are comparatively inexpensive and the labor one saves will be sufficient to pay for it long before it is worn out. One outfit can do the work for several families each year. The purchase of a complete outfit, including an engine to furnish power, may be profitable for a group of farmers or for one who has an opportunity to do custom work for his neighbors.

Where the co-operative plan is not feasible, many farmers prefer to have their wood cut with a hired outfit rather than to purchase an individual rig. The machines are sometimes hired by the day or hour and sometimes by the cord. In cutting poles or heavy wood that has not been put into cordwood, the outfit is usually hired on a time basis. When the saw owner furnishes the fuel for the engine and his own time, $1 or less per hour is usually charged in the eastern part of the country. If the saw is kept busy wood can be cut at the rate of at least two cords per hour. Thus the use of a hired machine for cutting wood will cost the farmer less than 50 cents per cord. In cutting cordwood the outfit is often hired at a fixed rate per cord. Where the saw owner furnishes the fuel and only his own time, the price is usually 35 to 50 cents per cord. If a custom rig has a great deal of sawing to do every year the charges for depreciation, interest, and probable repairs will be considerably less per cord than on the individual outfit. Con-

WASTERS OF SOIL FERTILITY

Gullies Between Corn Rows Act as Channels Which Wash Deep and Do Much Injury.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Gullies are wasters of soil fertility. In many corn-producing sections the rows between the corn sometimes act as channels which soon wash deep and carry away much of the best soil of a field. Although it is not a simple matter to reduce these gullies, it is practical to attempt it. A successful scheme practiced throughout the corn belt by many farmers consists in thrashing settings of grain—where grain follows corn in the crop rotation—at intervals along the gully so that the by-product straw will be deposited in such a manner as to block and prevent further soil erosion. Even though wheat and rye straw are valuable for bedding purposes, it is advisable to sacrifice some of the latter as the farmer will eliminate a material source of loss and an eyesore from what probably is otherwise an attractive field.

GENERAL FARM NOTES

All seed corn should be tested. A well-filled silo will save feed worries next winter. A concrete walk from the house to the barn saves many a kitchen floor scrubbing. By using a hay press many farmers are able to store a great quantity of feeds without erecting new buildings. A barn without plenty of light is not necessarily a wholly bad barn, but it is a long way from being a good one. A half hour spent each day planning the work will shorten the total time needed in which to get the work done.

WANTED TO SEE THAT PIG

"Animal" Had a Strange Fascination for the Thirty Easterners of a Century Ago.

The present prohibition law is much more stringent than was the dry law of Massachusetts of 100 years ago, when the "Striped Pig" gained its fame. At that time the law read that liquor could not be secured, save in 15-gallon lots. That gave the "pig" its chance.

Ar. enterprising resident attended the military muster on the Rendville fair grounds, and established a side show. A banner before the tent flaunted the likeness of a red and black pig which, a sign said, could be seen for four pence. Many men went in to see the strange animal, and returned many times. As the law did not prohibit the exhibitor from giving away liquor he gave each patron a generous glass of the forbidden drink from a huge stock he had laid in. The "Striped Pig" became famous overnight. Songs were written about the animal, a burlesque was named after it, and a burlesque play in New York adopted the absurd title.

Animals Slaughtered. It is estimated by competent authorities that 30 per cent of the leather furnishing animals of Italy have been slaughtered for food purposes during the war. Some years are necessary to recoup these losses.

Business Picking Up There. During the 15-year period, 1904 to 1918, inclusive, only four American vessels called at Sourabaya, of an aggregate net tonnage of about 6,500. Seven American ships, aggregating over 15,000 tons net, called at Sourabaya for discharge and loading of cargo during the first six months of 1918.

British Columbia's male population on registration day a year ago was 186,747.

Brazil's production of sugar has reached about 300,000 tons a year.
