LABOR DISCUSSION.

Outlawing industry-wide collective bargaining on the part of labor unions is a measure which will command much support in the new Congress. Apparently industry-wide operations by such corporations as General Motors, General Electric and Republic Steel are not to be restricted.

On the face of it, this is discriminatory legislation, favoring large business as much as the Wagner act favors labor. It would not be strange if this caused discontent and stirred up unrest instead of allaying it. Before Congress passes any such restrictions, it should be widely discussed.

In fact, all the proposed labor legislation should be thoroughly discussed. The public as a whole is concerned just as deeply as either labor unions or employers. Idleness and unrest affect every citizen in the remotest regions of the country.

In this discussion every effort should be made to consider the provisions of proposed laws with the best intelligence and knowledge at the disposal of any group and without partisan bitterness. Principles should be considered, and the probable effects of new laws, and how the citizen would like a law if he were a union workman — or his family; and how he would like it if he were the employer. And how he does like it, being on the outside.

Then let every group make its conclusions known to its local newspaper and to its Senator and Representative. What's a representative government for?

Vatican Shows Spirit.

Religious News Service: Anticlericalism continued to cloud the religious scene in Italy as Roman Catholic authorities greeted the new year with mingled anxiety and hope. Major concern is over the fact that anticlerical forces show little signs of relenting, but it is felt that Catholic leadership will successfully withstand their attacks.

Communist and other anticlerical leaders are reported to have taken sharp notice of the recent Catholic Action rally when a crowd of 300,000 persons jammed into St. Peter's Square in Rome and enthusiastically applauded Pope Pius XII's summons to resist "the profanations of the divine Church."

What most impressed opponents of the Vatican was that Catholic leaders were able to stage a rally of this size on very short notice. The demonstration was seen as an indication of the high organizational resources of the Catholic Church that could be mustered for a nationwide campaign against anticlerical abuses.

Rome authorities recently stepped in to curb publication of anticlerical newspapers in the capital. The sentence of two years imprisonment imposed on Ruggero Maccheri, editor of two weeklies which allegedly aimed at bringing the clergy into disrepute and discrediting the Vatican is seen as a warning to anticlericals that defamation of the church will not go unpunished.

During the trial, first of its kind since Mussolini's overthrow, the state prosecutor asserted that Maccheri was free to criticize the clergy on political grounds, but insisted such criticism should be objective and not take the form of pornographic cartoons.

Anticlericalism has been mounting in Italy since the beginning of 1946. The anticlerical campaign has been accompanied by the murder of priests, attacks on churches, and acts of sacrilege committed by gangs. Last summer the Vatican reported that twenty priests had been slain by anticlericals in the strongly Communist province of Emilia in the preceding six months and called on authorities to end the "reign of terror" there.

Latest outrage occurred last week at St. Maria delle Fornaci Church in Rome when a small bomb was exploded, causing panic and wounding a priest who was saying mass. A few weeks before, a bomb explosion caused serious damage to the church of St. Sabastiano in Melilli, in the Syracuse Province of Sicily, and attackers fired on a group of nuns who witnessed the explosion.

Armed robbers recently stole valuable jewels from a statue of the Virgin in Milan Cathedral. From other areas have come reports of anticlericals stealing sacred hosts from church altars.

According to Rome observers, increasing anticlericalism has served appreciably to weaken the Christian Democratic party. One indication of the party's weakness was seen in Rome last month when Christian Democrat Salvatore Refecchini was elected Mayor of Rome, but was forced by Leftist opponents to resign one hour after being voted into office.

Confronted with the need of obtaining a majority, the Christian Democrats broke a two-year alliance with Leftists and joined hands with monarchists and liberals to secure Refecchini's election, but when the vote was counted Leftists raised furious cries of "Throw the priests into concentration camps!" and "Away with traitors of the people!"

WORLD WAR II PENSION ROLL DOUBLES IN YEAR

The number of World War II veterans drawing disability compensation has doubled during the past year, statistics recently released by the Veterans Administration reveal. While the World War I roll remained stationary, and deaths cut those from prior wars by 8,000, the list from pensionable disabilities incurred during the last war climbed from 859,762 to 1,689,216 between December 1, 1945 and the same date this year. Each figure in above drawing represents 100,000 active cases.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcetrane (formerly called Barcol Concentrate). Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two table-spoonful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Why Does the Baby Ask, Why . . . ?

. . . is explained with reason by the psychologist, but when a grown person, mature in years and probably business experience, rushes into an abstract office and asks the abstractor "Why didn't I get an abstract when I bought the place?" is one the psychologist doesn't care to explain, and we have never tried. It's a man's privilege to err and blunder which may explain in part why only a small percent of the persons reaching 65 years of age are self-supporting. What a tragedy!

"IN SERVICE"

Pipeline map of Lone Star Gas System.—Because gas enters the system from 75 different gas fields in all directions, it is capable, in most instances, of maintaining an uninterrupted service even though some section blows out, like on morning of December 30. The system comprises a network of 5,000 miles of pipeline. If this network were placed in the northeast part of the United States, it would cover the states of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and reach from Lake Erie to the Atlantic Ocean. (Encircled areas are gas fields.)

With inconveniences to a few customers, Lone Star Gas System met one of the worst cold spells handicapped by the loss, for a few hours, of one of its big lines loaded with gas from East Texas!

From a spring-like afternoon Saturday, December 28, in the upper 70's, temperatures over Lone Star System tumbled to as low as three degrees below zero by Monday morning. Almost all at once over a million stoves in more than 350,000 homes were turned on. It was an unprecedented demand on us! Just before these stoves were turned on, a critical moment for us, one of our big lines loaded with gas from East Texas blew-out and caught fire!

The line is a big one. Its daily capacity can handle the needs of a city about the size of Dallas. In spite of the fire, Lone Star men had the break repaired and line back "in service" in less than 12 hours. Even though pressures in some sections got low, service to practically all homes was maintained.

This incident illustrates value of an interconnected pipeline system like Lone Star's which draws gas from 75 fields in Texas and Oklahoma. Imagine what would have happened had Lone Star been a one-pipeline, one-source-of-supply company.

Every precaution was taken during the emergency to protect the service to homes. One of these precautions was temporarily suspending service to most of the industrial plants and large business concerns which use gas in wholesale amounts. Such service is classed as "interruptible load" and firms contracting for it do so with understanding that service may be suspended in case of emergency and that they will maintain a standby fuel supply. Certainly our home customers must feel, as we do, a deep appreciation for the cooperation of these business firms.

The cold was prolonged and severe, reaching 14 degrees below zero Friday night at Seymour. Never in all our history has there been such severe cold all over the system all at once. This, too, added to our problem. In a few instances, in some sections and in a few towns, pressure at times reached a low level. This was due mostly to the rapid growth of these sections during past few years when all the pipe needed to keep pace with the growth was not available because steel was a critical commodity.

It was a terrific week for us. Never in our 35 years have we been called on to deliver so much gas to so many places on so short a notice. The daily demand jumped up more than 300 per cent in a few hours. All facilities of the company were working efficiently at peak capacity day and night.

Our more than 3,500 men and women worked together as a magnificent team, many working long hours in bitter cold in fields and regulator stations. It was their devotion to public duty combined with wise planning and building over the years which made it possible for Lone Star to meet last week's supreme test.

Immediately following the end of war, Lone Star launched an eight-million-dollar improvement program. This program is proceeding just as rapidly as availability of steel pipe, regulators, compressor engines, etc., will permit. Above is scene along right-of-way during construction early last summer of 80-mile high pressure line from great Carthage gas field in East Texas.
