I. Safety Meet Tonite

City is invited and urged to attend the Rock Island safety meeting in the district court room at 7:30, because it will determine of interest and importance to the housewife, business motorist as well as the worker, the chamber of commerce pointed out this morn-

Patrolman Jake Ellison, stationer Dalhart and one of the foremost exponents of safety will attend.

Meeting, of course, is free and will be attended by prominent officials, employees and families. In charge will be Bogue, superintendent of Chicago; and Tom C. district safety superintendent Kansas City.

Eight of the meeting will show a number of films, with synchronized sound "Open For Infection." illustrates the crying need for a better safety message and how they can be Rock Island meetings are being held in Dalhart today. The first was at 2 this afternoon in the Division Superintendent's office.

Herdman to discuss movement of Panhandle wheat crop and summer. Officials present are W. Limestone, general manager of Kansas City; K. superintendent of refrigeration; O. Maxey, superintendent of freight loss and damage; Pete Cass, of the car department, all of Chicago.

Following this meeting a staff meeting will be held, with Herdman presiding. Staff of the district will attend from Amarillo, Liberal.

Dalhart Poloists Will Play Sunday

Dalhart poloists will open their season Sunday at 2:30 on the Dalhart field, south of the Rock Island stockyards, when they meet Pampa's mighty challenge.

The Pampa poloists met Dalhart twice last year and each time lugged home the bacon. "We're going to try to start getting even Sunday," said Captain J. C. Parker of the Dalhart team this morning.

There will be no admission to the game which will go six chukkers and everyone is invited. John Colquitt will referee.

The Dalhart players for the first time will be playing under the Dalhart Coca Cola Bottling Co. colors of blue and white. Colquitt, head of the firm, has given each of the players a blue and white polo sweater, carrying the coca cola insignia.

Players, in addition to Parker, are W. H. Coon, Dan Spencer, Cecil Jones, Neal Freeman, Dr. E. U. Johnston, Arch Bailey, Ludrick Jones, Eck Brown.

A lineup has not been announced.

COMMISSIONERS MEETING
Channing. — County commissioners were unable to meet Tuesday as scheduled, because some of the members could not attend. They are meeting today, but will give attention only to routine business, according to one of the members.

Benefit Ball Is To Be Held May 2

Bill Newman and his six-piece band of Amariillo will play at the Trianon hall in Dalhart the night of May 2 for a ball benefiting the Dalhart high school band.

Mothers of band members form a committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Jim C. Hammack. Admission will be $1.

During the evening the 55-piece band, all in uniform, will stage special stunt marching and formations.

The ball will also be a Golden Heart event, which means that a substantial per cent of the proceeds will go to the Golden Heart Charities for Children, serving Dallam and Hartley counties.

The Golden Heart organization is pledged to secure adequate medical or surgical aid for children of Dallam and Hartley counties who otherwise would not be able to get it.

Elmer Summerour Auto Is Stolen

A 1940 black two-door Ford sedan, bearing a 1941 license No. 241-080, belonging to Elmer Summerour of Conlen was stolen from the one-way street just north of the court house yesterday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Sheriff H. D. Foust reported this morning.

Roads radiating out of Dalhart have been watched, and since that maneuver has turned up no traces of the car officers believe it may have been abandoned in some out-of-the-way place. The general public is asked to be on the lookout for it.

Bank Call Shows Cheerful Trend

The latest bank call shows the resources, loans and deposits of Dalhart's two banks substantially above those of a year ago.

The First National Bank in Dalhart, and the Citizens State Bank have been for several years the only banks in Dallam or Hartley counties.

The combined figures for the two

Red-eyed—from loss of sleep or grief for loved ones killed in the worst of all Nazi raids last night—Londoners today were still unbowed and scrawled chalk messages on sidewalks and buildings to "Bomb Berlin. Show them we can murder too."

There were endless variations, but the impact of the sullen, anonymous messages were all the same.

Nazi planes, ferrying their cargoes of death and destruction across the narrow English channel, kept London under a constant rain of explosive and incendiary bombs from 9 p.m. till about dawn.

Tens of thousands of persons today are homeless. Hundreds were killed; thousands maimed. Property destruction is enormous, yet by this afternoon London—so heroic are its people—was about back to a normal composure.

Nazis apparently escaped with loss of five bombers last night, but two more fighter-bombers were shot down today when they crossed the channel.

However, there is also good news for England today. The British fleet yesterday sank five Axis supply ships and three destroyers convoying them in the Mediterranean. They apparently were rushing reinforcements to North Africa. British lost one destroyer.

British forces are still holding the eastward Nazi push at Salum. (Turn to Page 7, Column 1)

VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

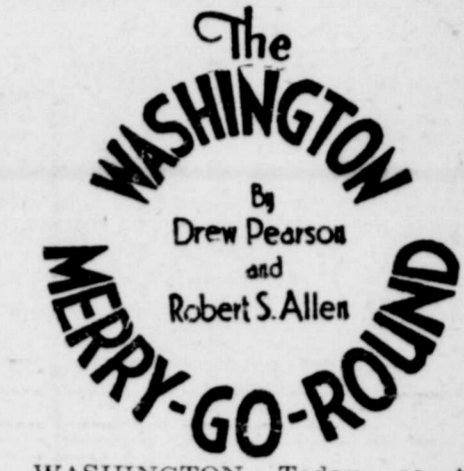

Chicago, Apr. 17 — Sheriff H. L. (Hicks) Wilbanks of Spearman, Tex. interviewed here this morning, predicted that a solution in the Spearman murder mystery would be reached today.

He said the 45 to 50-year-old red haired woman, found beaten to death near Spearman last March 20, had been identified as Leota Frances Murphy, a divorcee of Marion, Ind.

He said she had left her home a few days before her death to meet a San Francisco, Calif. man in Chicago. They had been corresponding with him, but had never seen him. They were to marry, according to information so far accumulated by Wilbanks.

Relatives had not been particularly worried because they had had some postcards, purporting to be from her, postmarked Mexico, and indicating she was married.

Wilbanks said he had trailed the No. 1 suspect in the case a thousand miles and would unveil the mystery this afternoon or tonight.

WASHINGTON.—Today, as the foremost editors of the nation gather in Washington for their annual conference, the foremost question before them is government news censorship.

So far the authors of this column have not been among those who thought the New Deal was attempting to throttle the press. In fact, we have contended that press relations under the Roosevelt administration have been the freest in history, completely devoid of attempts to high-pressure publishers into firing independent newsmen—a policy of the previous administration.

Even today—and this column is not written without rubbing shoulders daily with many government officials—we find most of official Washington completely devoid of censorship. However, there are certain notable exceptions.

These exceptions are: The Navy; certain sections of the Office of Production Management and other defense agencies; and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

It should be noted that when we use the word "censorship" we refer only to information to which the public is entitled, not to confidential matters or military secrets.

 WHO WORKS FOR U.S.?

For instance, there is no reason why the public should not know who are the dollar-a-year men working for the government. There never has been any secrecy before this about the identity of government employees or government voluntary advisers.

However, when we asked for this list several months ago it was at first refused. Later it was stated that the information would be given only if a written request was made—a highly unusual procedure in Washington, where a mere list of government servants is considered automatically public property.

Last week the OPM finally, on its own initiative, made public a complete enumeration of dollar-a-year men on its staff.

Similarly, we were refused a list of employees of Miss Harriet Elliott's defense consumer's division and their salaries without a formal written request. In contrast, the traditional practice of established agencies such as the State and War departments is to publish the salaries of every official in the annual register.

Again, the RFC at first refused to reveal the salary of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith's son-in-law, who is on its payroll; and it was forthcoming only after the question was put up to the RFC board and debated there.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, like the RFC, is ruled with an iron fist by Secretary Jesse Jones. Recently Carroll Wilson, executive of the bureau, assembled all its employees and threatened them with "severe consequences" if they gave any information to newsmen about the sweeping reorganization now under way. One of the new officials Jones has brought into the bureau is (Turn to Page 9, Column 1)

She Kicked a Cop On The Shins

That woman in an eastern city who deliberately kicked a policeman on the shins with the result that she was hailed before a judge and immediately placed in one of the city's best jail cells, after she had plead guilty with the plea that "I just hate cops," has probably had sufficient time to ponder over the value of having adequate police protection.

By this time the lady has had time to realize that most of us at some time abuse our best friends. Or maybe she has grown more sullen and more resentful of the law. Maybe she would get a lot of pleasure out of kicking another cop but the fact remains that if we didn't have law enforcement officers this same lady would be suffering more than she has ever suffered at the hands of the law.

Farmers who have wrestled with repairing a tractor in the rush season may sympathize with the lady who kicked the officer. Most of us can recall times when we would have liked to throw a hammer at some of our farm machinery, cuss it a couple of minutes, then go off to the house and let the darn thing rust.

Just as common sense will teach the woman who hates cops that she is abusing her best protector, so do we realize that when we mistreat our tractor, or other farm equipment, we are hurting ourselves; that when we attempt, with the use of bailing wire and a pair of pliers, to make repairs that require genuine parts and skilled mechanics that we are not saving time or money, but spending useless hours of work, and just delaying the expenditure of money.

The next time you want to save money and time on repairing your FARMALL tractor may we suggest that you consider the woman who hated cops? Don't force yourself into "jail" by attempting the repair work yourself or continuing to use the machine when it shouldn't be used, but bring it to our skilled mechanics and sit back in comfort while they work. It is your assurance of time and money saved on the operation of your FARMALL.

IN AND ABOUT TOWN

Mrs. Ben Richards left today for Nashville, Tenn., where she will spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. L. E. Parson (Margaret Elliott) and family. On her return trip she will stop in Memphis for a visit with relatives and friends. Accompanying Mrs. Richards, as far as Memphis, is Mrs. Helen Nabors of Amarillo, sister of Mrs. John Colquitt. Mrs. Nabors is en route to Atlanta, Ga., to visit her mother.

Mary Anna Schlofman has resumed her studies at Loretto Heights College, Denver, after spending the Easter season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Schlofman.

Mrs. E. W. Keplinger, Amarillo, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hutton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Schuhart have returned from an Easter visit in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Jennie Childers, and daughters, Miss Sallie Childers, Mrs. Frank Ward of Denver and Mrs. Mary Fletcher of Gruver are leaving tomorrow morning on a motor trip to San Angelo to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Childers. On their way home they will visit the Carlbad Caverns.

Abilene. — The Hardin-Simmons Cowboys next Turkey Day will meet the Texas Tech Red Raiders for the first time in six years.

Slatings of this game completed next fall's 12-game schedule for the Cowhands who will open Sept. 20 against Texas Wesleyan at Fort Worth.

The second game will be against Baylor at Waco. Frank Kimbrough, Hardin-Simmons alumnus and one of its football greats, has been coaching the Cowhands for several years. A few weeks ago he was offered the coaching post at Baylor to succeed Morley Jennings, who went to Texas Tech.

New head coach at Hardin-Simmons is Warren Woodson, who strangely enough is a former Baylor athlete at Waco. In the past five years, Woodson's teams at Arkansas State college, Conway, have won 13 championships in three sports.

Woodson is now putting the Cowhands through their spring training chores.

SEVENTY-FIVE ENJOY DANCING

About thirty-five couples were present for last night's class in old-time dancing at the Country club, which is being taught by Miss Katherine Coons.

The course will last six weeks. The program included Ten Pretty Girls, Schottische, Little Brown Jug, Rye Waltz, Tango, Rhumba, La Conga and others.

Joe Lang has announced the purchase of the Main Street Service Station at Sixth and Denrock from North Blanks, who operated the station for several months.

Lang is a former cowboy, coming to Dalhart with a herd of cattle in 1913. Since that time he has worked on ranches from Dalhart to Wyoming, but has always claimed Dalhart as his home. The station features Phillips "66" products.

JIM MINNICK VISITS

Jim Minnick, for many years a bosom pal of the late Will Rogers, was in Dalhart yesterday and visited briefly with his good friend, Joe Langhorne. Langhorne, Minnick and Rogers several years ago went together on a hunting trip into New Mexico.

Langhorne said each morning Rogers would go to his car, dig out an old portable typewriter, set it up on his knees and pound out his short daily column.

A VITAL MESSAGE

WHITE COLLAR WORKER, switchman, trainman, or mechanic. . . whether you belong to the Big Four Brotherhood, or any other organization . . . by your actions, and fine example in the past, you lead the entire country in demonstrating how organized labor and management can settle their difficulties through arbitration . . . a sane and patriotic procedure. A truly remarkable and enviable record.

During the present crisis . . . a crisis that strikes at the very existence of this glorious country . . . we all . . . employee and management, must bend our every effort toward placing our country in such condition, that no aggressor nation, or combination of nations will dare match their strength with ours. It is a time for all of us to give our best . . . and to remain level headed at all times.

Today the nation is calling into training thousands of our finest young men. They must sacrifice their civilian life and must serve during this emergency, in the armed forces for $21.00 a month. They cannot strike if conditions and remuneration do not satisfy them. All over the nation publications report men striking on defense projects . . . men who receive in many instances as much per day as men called to serve in the armed forces of our country receive per month!!! Is this fair? Are the men responsible for these strikes patriotic? Are they backing our government to the limit? Are they doing their utmost to help protect the land that guarantees them a living . . . and the peaceful pursuit of happiness? Or on the other hand

. . . are they stabbing us . . . the public . . . in the back?

If a man doesn't love his country enough to make a few personal sacrifices . . . he had better change countries . . . we don't have room for their kind.

Railroad employees . . . regardless of the job you are holding down . . . by your patriotic actions you have shown that labor and management can settle their difficulties through the peaceful method of arbitration . . . and that, at a time like the present, every one of us should be Americans above all else.

WATCH WHERE IT FALLS

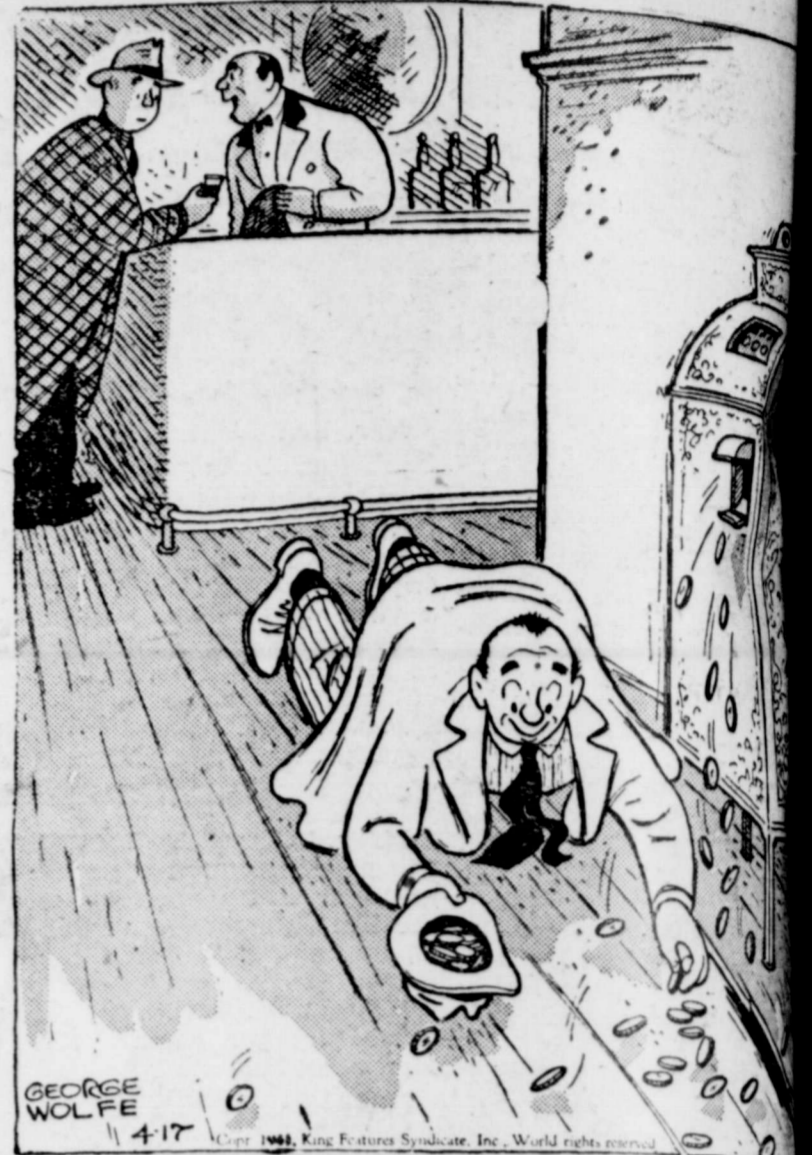

Small operators of commercial trucks may find a boomerang in bills passed by numerous states increasing the load limit for trucks, bills which the truck owners supported vigorously and for which they contributed large sums of money to paid lobbyists. That boomerang will strike also at the heart of the small communities that have heretofore been recipients of the benefits of railroad payrolls.

Thousands of new trucks and trailers are being purchased by the Railway Express Agency, owned by the railcarriers, to be used by the railroads who are out to meet competition. The Agency recently ordered 2,667 trucks and trailers to add to its present fleet of more than 13,000. It is assumed that these new trucks will be placed in operation in states where load limits have been increased sufficiently to justify them.

Burdened by Interstate Commerce regulations, state regulations and huge taxes the railroads are fighting back with the only recourse left them; competitive operation. The public is demanding service at lowest possible costs and this is what the railroads are attempting to deliver.

We wonder again if the public didn't shoot an arrow into the air with little thought of where it might fall.

TREES

By D. A. Sullivan

With Apologies to J. K.
I hope I shall never see
Another mess just like my tree.
A tree for which I paid Six Bucks
And in my drive-way duly stuck.
A water bill I paid each first
Marveling at my tree's great thirst.
I nursed that tree when wind and dust,
Stripped off the leaves to my disgust.

Nor did it help when the neighbor's kid
Climbed out upon the largest limb, and there amid
The branches long and green and slim Came crashing down, the Kid, also the limb.
Still I cherished this tree of mine
Through summer showers a thing divine.
But now that spring is here again
With soft new grass and gentle rain,
Into my throat there comes a lump
Because my tree is just a stump.
I thought I could grow a tree,
But November ice made a fool of me!

"I may be a chump

For all to see
The November ice
Made a fool of me.

My trees look like
A dehorned cow
But I'll grow more
This I'll vow.

I'll dig and I'll dig
Till I have pains
But I'll grow more trees
For these old plains."

Tomorrow this column will contain a letter from Guy V. Caskey, minister of the Church of Christ, in reply to statements made in this space last Saturday. It is a very fine letter and one that I appreciated because Mr. Caskey offered some good evidence that I had the wrong slant on lots of things relative to Christianity. At the time I wrote the column I realized fully that I was on a subject that is highly controversial and one with which I am not too familiar. Most any of the local pastors could have corrected me in a number of instances, I'm sure, just as I would have wanted to correct them if they got to talking or writing about the newspaper business. So be sure to read Rev. Caskey's letter in this space tomorrow.

Henry Ford says: "Take all the experience and judgment of men over 50 out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it."

And the Progressive Farmer says: "A smart man is the one who hasn't let a woman pin anything on him since he was a baby."

Whee, the big edition is off the press, the noise has quieted down, things are back to normal and more people have received The Texan than ever received it before in the forty years it has been published. With the help of all our regular force, plus the services of three very charming young ladies, Misses Eleanor Cotton, Betty Steel and Betty Mae Carlberg, the last paper was in the postoffice by 6:30 Wednesday. It was a new record for our paper and it's our sincere wish that it pleases those merchants who bought this extra circulation and eventually brings them fine results.

As usual when a small town newspaper attempts such a tremendous job many mistakes are made. For instance we left Dr. L. D. Porter's ad out of the paper, left the Williams Service Station off the list of cooperating firms, and figured just half as much postage as was needed. We told the committee that one cent each would take care of the paper, and it weighed so much that the postage was just doubled. Our sincere apologies to Dr. Porter and the Williams Service Station. The other error was paid for by us.

Write Congressman On New Deal Ideas, Says Roger Babson

By ROGER BABSON

New York, April 17.—If any reader believes that the administration has set aside its social reforms he is sadly mistaken. Washington may give the impression that it is working hand in hand with manufacturers on the defense program. Certainly, we have a right to expect that. In this period of national emergency personal ambitions would be set aside. Our leaders in Washington surely should bury the hatchet of hate for business. If anything will save England, Canada, and this country, it will be an "all-out" schedule of production through the co-operation of the administration and our business leaders. For a year or more, business has forgotten itself in an attempt to back up the administration. Unfortunately, the New Dealers have not yet seen fit to relieve the pressure on business.

Washington Grows Bigger

In my several trips to the capital, I have been greatly impressed with the bureaucracy that is growing up there. It is bigger than anything this country has even seen and shows no sign of slackening off. Of course, much of this is necessary for national defense. The Army and Navy departments are justified in their growth; but too much of the increased personnel of other government departments has been unsuccessfully developed under the smoke screen of national defense. Readers who can possibly do so should visit Washington and see and hear what is going on there.

Our present national emergency is a great gift to the New Dealers who, while outwardly quiet, are by no means asleep at the switch. If they had their way I fear they would kick the dollar-a-year business men out of Washington and take over their work. The President is too wise to permit this. Such an act would slow up much of the practical defense work which, in spite of everything, is moving along. It would also bring into the open the personal jealousies, the continual bids for power, and the real program of the old New Dealers who still have the President's ear. The defense program appears to have taken first place in the heart and mind of Washington; but it is being used by a small group as a means of promoting further governmental power over business.

Methods of Control

Capital and labor have always had their difficulties and always will. This is really a healthy state. Our high standards of living are due to the efforts of certain intelligent and unselfish labor leaders. On the other hand, management usually is willing to meet the demands of employees halfway. Left alone, sensible and honest leaders of both sides could settle their difficulties. Neither side needs nor wants government interference in settling wage disputes and in establishing policies. The administration, however, is being forced by irresponsible radicals to take an increasingly active part in the disputes between management and labor. If this keeps on increasing, it will end by the government outlawing strikes and putting both employers and workers into uniforms, at least for the period of the national emergency.

Bankers and investors have so long been subject to controls that they are more hardened to them than are manufacturers and other business men. Most business men, however, are scared stiff. It is by no means the scareheads from abroad that are keeping the stock market stagnant. Most of Hitler's moves, including any spring drive against England, have already been discounted. It is fear by business men of further internal domestic regulations and taxes which par-

Ruth Mitchell, above, first foreign woman ever to join the revolutionary death-defying Comitati, a Yugoslavian death society which will harass the Germans when and if they cross the Yugoslavian frontiers, has identified herself as a sister of the late American flyer, General "Billy" Mitchell. Miss Mitchell, who was given a phial of poison (the Comitati boasts that no member ever is taken alive) when sworn into the society, is the former wife of an Englishman. The Serbian death group is composed of 38,000 members who do espionage work when war comes.

A Planned Production

Once the New Dealers were talking about a planned economy. This included fixing prices for farmers, a redistribution of property, and many other broadly socialistic ideas. Fortunately for the country the Roosevelt administration has thus far never quite got the machinery set up to accomplish this. Now they have it given to them on a silver platter in the form of the defense program. The new term for our coming economic order is Planned Production! Through priority controls alone, the government can plan industry's entire activity.

In World War I the War Industries board and other agencies functioned independently of politics. Today, the program is largely directed and controlled by the administration's bureaucracy. No organization, except the charitable ones like the Red Cross, functions free of red tape. Yet, I have confidence this will cure itself if you voters will only write your congress how you feel. I am still bullish on the United States. President Roosevelt is getting wiser as he becomes older. Even New Dealers leave Washington when some New York law firm offers them more money! Honesty, hard work, and thrift will make you succeed, whoever runs Washington.

Flying Graduates Are Making Good

Texhoma, April 17.—Four of the several dozen young men who have graduated from the CAA pilots training program established at Texhoma last summer are climbing rapidly in their chosen field, according to word received here.

Cletus Schultetus and Robert Meyer took secondary pilot training courses at Amarillo and are now in the U. S. Navy training stations at Pensacola, Fla.

Lester Osborn and Joe Michael, two more graduates, are in aircraft factories in Wichita, Kan.

A. E. Smith and Frank Shaw, Army aviation instructors, give the flying work in Texhoma, while the ground courses are taught at Panhandle A. & M. college in Goodwell, ten miles east.

Socialist Power Issue Coming Up

The rejection of public power by Spokane, Wash., located "in the shadow" of Grand Coulee dam, looms as a vital factor in the forthcoming political campaign to sell West Texans on the socialistic plan for distribution of electric power generated at Possum Kingdom dam through government agencies, according to news reports.

Spokane voters turned down municipal ownership of their electric distribution system by a thumping majority.

Although Spokane had enjoyed a boom-town prosperity for nearly 10 years as a result of Grand Coulee's construction, when given an opportunity to choose between political management and investor-owned utilities, the city's voters cast 26,609 "No's" on the question of going into the power business. In favor of the proposition were 17,279 votes.

Defeat of the proposal, according to Spokane newspapers, was due in large part to "the officious intervention of senators, congressmen, Secretary Ickes, and the Bonneville brigade."

"There can be no question that the verdict on the principal issue, that of the ordinance to establish a municipal distributing system, represents a well-settled judgment of an overwhelming majority of Spokane voters," said the Spokesman Review. Strong condemnation of the ordinance by Ickes and other power proponents from as far as Mississippi was voiced in the Review and the Spokane Tribune.

Ted Houghton of the Board of Directors was looking after the matter during his visit in Dalhart Wednesday.

'The Lady Eve' To Continue Tomorrow

Good news for movie goers. "The Lady Eve" will show again tomorrow. Persons who have seen this brilliant comedy, the latest from the gifted pen of Preston Sturges, are urging their friends not to miss it.

Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck are the stars. In capsule form, the story is this: Fonda is a tremendously rich young man whose only interest in life is catching rare species of snakes. But on board ship a gang of cardsharps try to lure him into their toils with a beautiful girl—their usual bait.

Fonda falls all right, but so does Barbara, who is the lure. She plans to tell him all about her gang, however, before they are married. But Fonda's tough-guy butler exposes Barbara before she gets a chance to tell Fonda.

Finding she is a double dealer at cards, Fonda figures she also is a doublecrosser at love so he throws her over. Deeply hurt, then revengeful, Stanwyck vows to get even. She gets into high society at Lady Eve, a titled English woman, captivates everyone and married Fonda.

Then she torments him until he leaves her. That's not all, but that's enough to tell you that this film is superb entertainment.

Army Film Will Show Tomorrow

Sgt. Robert D. Short of the U. S. Army recruiting service will be in Dalhart tomorrow night at 7 and will present several brief films in the county court room, showing life in the regular Army and in the Flying Cadet corps.

Everybody is invited. Sgt. Short has written the Roy Rhoades Legion post and asked it to interest as many persons as possible, especially young men and their parents, in attending and seeing these authentic and graphic action films.

Coots, Dalhart, for $5200 in connection with an automobile collision at Hartley in September, 1938, it was learned this morning from defense attorneys.

Judge James Witherspoon of Hereford will charge the jury today, attorneys will make their arguments and belief at mid-morning was that the case would go to the jury this evening. The litigation now is in its third day.

Morgenthau said government expenditures in the 1942 fiscal year beginning next July 1 would be $19,000,000,000. He says two-thirds of this should be met by taxation, one-third by borrowing. Current taxes, he added, will bring in $9,223,000,000, leaving $3,444,000,000 to be raised by new taxation.

A good way to do this, Morgenthau said, would be to let business pay a third more taxes than it is now paying. He declined to reveal proposed methods, but said the new taxes probably would reach persons who have never before paid a direct federal tax.

U. S. naval authorities today said that the nation almost daily is sending substantial sinews of war to the embattled democracies.

IN THE ARMY NOW! WHY AND HOW

By S. T. Williamson

First impressions of the new headgear and field jackets now being issued to the Army are unpleasant. They have about as much snap to them as a truck driver's working clothes, which they resemble. There's not much romance to them; nothing about them will make the heart of one's girl friend beat either fonder or faster. Mothers will scarcely know their own sons, and Hollywood directors will cry themselves to sleep.

But there's good solid common sense behind these new garments. The Army's new field service clothes fulfill the first requirement of the well-dressed man; that he shall be appropriately dressed for the part. Soldiers of the new Army won't do much parading, but they are called upon for a weary amount of bush-whacking across country and other energetic outdoor pursuits.

The field jacket is belted like a sport coat and with two bellows pleats which give free play for arms and shoulders. It is the product of months of experiment at the Philadelphia quartermaster depot, which is probably the world's biggest military sewing circle. The cloth, a wind resistant cotton fabric similar in weave to what Admiral Byrd's men wore as an outer layer down among the Antarctic penguins, was tirelessly tested for ability to shed water and keep out the breezes. Not content with their synthetic workouts, the quartermaster people made up several hundred jackets and sent them to the Alaskan defense force, which wore them all winter, and within a few weeks 2,000,000 of them will be ready for the New Army.

Now for the mail.
D. J. S., Kenwood, N. Y.: Why do anti-aircraft regiments belong to the Coast Artillery, when many of them are stationed far away from the coast?

It is just one of those things. The first anti-aircraft units were part of our coastal defenses, just as the air service once was part of the Signal Corps.

J. S., Williamsburg, Va.: Will you print the Army's various weight requirements at the different heights?

Minimum height-weight requirements are 60 inches, 105 pounds. For each inch increase of height to 66 inches, add two pounds. At 66 inches, minimum weight must be 117 pounds. For each inch after 66 inches, add four pounds, which would be 165 pounds at 78 inches. Chest expansion also figures in these requirements. It must be 23 3/4 inches at 60 inch height, increasing one-quarter inch for each inch increase in height.

Today's Don't: Don't send him bath salts. The Army has showers.

d Naval intelligence ap-be chiefly interested in the of the information; in other what officers in the Navy, or officials in other government agencies, have disclosed inefficiencies.

When this column revealed the fact that thirty of the Navy's new destroyers were so top-heavy that they tended to turn turtle in the water, Naval intelligence claimed that it has traced part of the news leak to a civilian engineer employed in a private company. And the admirals made it so hot for the firm which employed this engineer that he almost lost his job.

In this case, the Navy did not deny that the destroyers were top-heavy. It admitted the truth of the story; but then tried to crack down on what it thought was the source. In other words, it did not want the taxpayer to know that his money, spent on brand new destroyers, had been partially wasted.

KNOX VS. MRS. PATTERSON

This policy of news suppression was inherited by Republican Secretary of the Navy Colonel Knox.
But he has done nothing to change
it. If anything, he has increased it. And because he himself is a newspaper publisher, he knows the game.

One thing he apparently did not know, however, is that it is usually wiser to speak softly to a lady.
Not long ago he was talking with Eleanor Patterson, red-headed publisher of The Washington Times-Herald, when she asked him about his newly initiated policy of suppressing news of ship movements.

"What about pictures of ships?"
the lady publisher asked.

"If you publish a picture of a British ship in an American port," shot back the Secretary of the Navy, "I'll put you in jail."

A short time later, the battered British battleship Malaya arrives in New York harbor. Remembering Knox's threat, Mrs. Patterson slapper a picture of the ship on Page 1.

She has not yet gone to jail.

LAND BANK REFORM

A sweeping reform of the Federal Land bank system to strengthen government control and to liberalize loans for small, debt-ridden farmers, is being quietly mapped out by Farm Credit Administration chiefs. Two major changes are contemplated in this tentative plan:

(1) Abolition of the requirement that all Land Bank borrowers must purchase stock in farm loan associations equaling 5 per cent of the amount borrowed; (2) government guaranty of Land Bank bonds, instead of backing them with the loan association stock.

The FCA also is planning to ask congress to freeze the temporary reduced interest rate of 3 1/2 per cent on farm loans until 1946. Thus farmers who borrowed at rates ranging from 4 to 6 1/2 per cent would have the benefit of the reduced rate for another five years.

Farm loan associations were set up originally to enable needy farmers to borrow money more easily and at lower rates, since cooperative borrowing lessens credit risks.
Under the law, the cash value of stock bought in an association, equal to 5 per cent of a loan, is supposed to be returned to the borrower when the loan is paid off.

However, it hasn't worked out that way in practice. More than 60 per cent of the associations have folded up and their stock is worthless. Many borrowers never got their money back, and their stock-purchase amounted to a service charge, or kickback on their loans.

Three Women In Citizen Contest

Texhoma, April 17.—Three women have now been nominated in Texhoma's Most Useful Citizen contest, inaugurated by The Texhoma Times. They are Mrs. J. H. Settles, a former Texhoma teacher and still a religious and civic leader; Mrs. Tiff Thomason, widely known as a business woman and president of the P.T.A.; Miss Eva Jacobs, manager of the telephone exchange.

The other most recent nomination was Raymond G. Sweet, lumber yard manager and volunteer secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Nominated a week ago were Dr. R. G. Obermiller, A. H. Dawson, I. H. Gist, L. B. Field, A. M. Wickstrum, Rev. A. F. Click and J. D. Divine.

WOTAN'S WEDGE by FRANCIS GERARD A PRELUDE TO BLITZKRIEG

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

During the course of his long and successful police career, Sir John Meredith had had more than his share of glowing publicity but he quite honestly loathed ballyhoo. He was humanly pleased indeed when somebody, whose opinion he valued, patted him on the back, of course. Moreover, he did not suffer from false modesty. He was an individualist essentially.

But now, as Sir John sat in the morning room of his home one gloomy winter's day after breakfast, he decided that this new case which he had stumbled upon was too big, too important to be kept to himself. One of the secrets of Meredith's extraordinary success was his ability to pick the right man and to use him in the right way.

So Meredith telephoned Scotland Yard and asked for Inspector Bradford.

"Bradford speaking," came a voice.

"Look, Bradder," said John without thinking. "I want to see you. Very important matter. When can I call?"

"Eleven-thirty at the office here."

Sir John was punctual to the minute for the boom of Big Ben's second stroke rolled away down the river as he walked into the inspector's office. "Huh!" grunted Bradford. "Right on the dot. What's the matter? Murder, arson or abduction?"

"Ever heard of a cove called Slimy Hart?" asked Meredith by way of reply.

"I have. You took him in over that business of the post office; you gave him plenty before you pulled him. Remember?"

"Yes, and he got seven years," said Meredith. "How much of it did he do, and how long has he been out?"

For answer, Bradford telephoned the Records Office and when he hung up, said: "Two months out."

"Two months out," repeated Meredith. He made a rapid mental calculation. "Then he's on ticket-of-leave," he ended.

"What's this all about?" queried the chief inspector.

"Like to pull him in?" countered Meredith.

"Of course, I would. He's a bad one; he ought to have hanged for that last job. Yes, I should like to put a rope round Slimy's neck. Have you got anything on him?"

"He's carrying a gun," said Meredith.

"Lovely," said Bradford, and once more reached for the telephone. "Give me Cannon Row. . . Hello, Sergeant! Put out an all-stations call. Pull in George Hart, known as Slimy. . . What charge? Use your imagination. What d'you suppose you're drawing your pay for. . . Oh, all right. On suspicion of being in possession of firearms contrary to the Act. He's to be held at the Row and put on ice until I get there."

When Bradford finished speaking, he looked at Meredith and said, "I've taken your say-so, ol' man. Hope you're not putting anything over on me. Are you?"

"Why?" asked Meredith innocently.

"Oh, nothing," grunted the other. "Except that Sergeant Blewitt of the Special Branch got it in the neck after your little party the other night."

"Blast!" said Meredith. "I didn't mean Blewitt to get in dutch.

Choked off about it, was he? Sorry about that. I'll go over and have a word with him and make my peace. Oh, by the way, Bradder, any chance of my being present when you question Slimy?"

The other looked doubtful. After a moment he said hesitantly, "Supposing you should happen quite by accident, to be near the charge-room at Cannon Row. Supposing you were just having a sort of chat with the sergeant who is old Bratram, and supposing the door should be open. . . I'm not to know you're there, am I?"

"Thanks, ol' man. I'll be at the club—The Maple Tree. I can be down there in ten minutes."

That evening George "Slimy" Hart was enjoying a double whisky and soda (microscopic) at the Bush and Pelican when two large men, wearing large bowler hats, came into the bar, walked up, and touched him on the shoulder. One said gruffly, "All right, Slimy, we're taking a walk."

"I don't think," replied Mr. Hart. "You've got nothin' on me. Run along!"

"You're a convict on leave," replied the other detectives patiently. "I'm requestin' you to accompany us to a police station." He dropped his voice to a whisper. "Are you coming, Slimy? Or do I 'ave to take you to a . . . ospital!"

"Slimy" Hart was no fool; he knew that further refusal would empower the police to "take such steps as the officer deems necessary." Loudly protesting his innocence, "Slimy" was escorted to the pavement outside.

As Hart was hustled into the charge-room at Cannon Row, he caught sight of Bradford leaning against the wall chatting to the desk sergeant.

"Ello!" he exclaimed. "Ol' Bradford 'imself."

"All right," said that individual. "Frisk him."

"'Ere, I say," exclaimed Hart as he was searched. "What are you looking for? Now, now, don't tickle me, Sergeant."

"No gun?" asked Bradford when they were through.

"Gun," echoed Slimy Hart. "Of course, not. Where d'you think we are? Chicago?"

"George Hart," said Bradford with commendable patience, "I have received information to the effect that within the week you have been seen in the possession of a lethal weapon, the same being an automatic pistol."

"Who says so?" asked the crook, his narrow eyes wary.

"Sir John Meredith."

"What, that busybody 'at's retired and 'as got a 'andle on his name now? I haven't seen him for years. He's a liar. I'd say it to his face."

"Do so," said a quiet voice behind him and John Meredith walked into the charge-room.

"'Ere, what's 'e doing 'ere?" exclaimed the crook edging behind Bradford. "I know the regulations just as well as you do, and 'e's no business 'ere. You turn me loose or there'll be questions asked in Parliament."

"No guns?" queried Meredith his eyes turned to Bradford. The other shook his head and John went on, "Too bad. You'd better turn him loose, as he says, Bradford." He swung round to Hart and stood over him. "Remember this, Hart, I'm not a policeman now and I don't 'ave to think about regulations. D'you want me to give you something that will balance that bad eye of yours?"

"You can't do nothin' to me, Meredith. What about your capers the other night? I know the law. Assumin' false identity for your own ends."

Meredith jerked his head towards the door. "Use what little brain the powers-that-be gave you and get going, Slimy!"

When the crook had taken himself off, Bradford stirred and, looking up, asked Meredith, "Well, where has that got us?"

Sir John Meredith shrugged. "Nowhere far," he said. "But I could bear to know what slimy Mr. Hart is doing for a living."

"Oh, I know that," replied Bradford astonished. "He seems to be going straight."

"Ha, ha," said Meredith.

"Me, too," nodded Bradford. "None the less, he's got a bona fide job with a bona fide firm. He's driving a lorry for the Makyn Road Transport Company."

"Makyn Road Transport," repeated John. "Thanks a lot, Bradder. Good-night."

"Half a mo'," said the chief inspector. "I've done my side. When do I know why I've done it?"

"Give me three or four days, Bradder," replied John. "And I hope I'll have a lot to tell you."

When Meredith woke the following morning in his room at the club he wondered, for a moment, what he was doing there. He rang for tea and picked up the telephone.

"May I speak to Captain Tracy, please?" he asked. "Sir John Meredith speaking."

A moment later, a voice, evidently still husky with sleep, said, "This is Geoff, ol' man. Everythin' all right? Or all wrong?"

"Look here, Geoff, haven't you some sort of relation who's a big noise at Somerset House?"

"Oh, absolutely. Jolly old cousin what's-his-name."

"Well, what is his name?"

"Ulysses," replied Geoffrey. "Ulysses?" echoed John. "Fact, ol' boy."

"And is his surname Tracy?"

"No," came Geoffrey's voice hollowly.

"Well, what is it?"

"Boote," said Geoffrey. "Ulysses B-o-o-t!" exclaimed Meredith incredulously, spelling out the last name.

"Yes, Merry; but it's spelt with an 'e' at the end."

"Well, look here, Geoff, can I blow in on your cousin and use your name? I want some information."

"Oh, absolutely, John, that's what Cousin Boote is there for."

"Thanks," said John briefly. "See you soon."

At 10:30 a. m., Meredith turned from the Strand into Somerset House and a bit later found himself facing Geoffrey's cousin, Mr. Ulysses Boote.

"I want," said John, "to know all you can tell me about the Makyn Road Transport Company."

"The Makyn . . . Road . . . Transport . . . Company . . . I think . . . you said?"

Geoffrey Tracy's cousin talked slowly, at each pause raising his chin so that he could look through his spectacles, and every time he spoke he looked over the top of them. Meredith nodded yes.

"Bring me . . . the 'M' file . . . in the . . . mechanized . . . and motorized . . . transport department."

Kay Herman

If you can take your eyes off Kay Herman for a moment, note the diamond she is holding. It's the world's largest uncut gem, the Vargas diamond, and it's valued at $2,000,000. The stone will be cut into 23 smaller ones which will range in size from five to 50 carats. Miss Herman wears a piece of the famous Jonkers diamond, estimated at $1,000,000, around her neck. The picture was taken in New York.

Clayton Choir Will Sing In City Sunday

The vested choir of the First Methodist church in Clayton will present a 45-minute program of sacred songs and music at the Pine St. Methodist church in North Dalhart next Sunday evening, April 20, at 8:00.

The Clayton choir is coming in response to an invitation from Rev. R. H. Campbell, pastor.

Among the Clayton singers will be W. L. (Pete) Adams, formerly of Dalhart and son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Adams, who have been Dalhart residents and members of the Pine St. church some 29 or 30 years.

A large number of Clayton folks plan to accompany the choir, renew old friendships in Dalhart and make new ones.

Amarillo Is Ready For Legion Parley

Amarillo, April 17.—The 18th District Legion and Auxiliary convention is just around the corner and it looks now like a banner crowd will be on hand.

This is the latest word from District Commander Jim Johnson of Canadian, who is here making the final arrangements.

The convention will really open with a 40 & 8 luncheon at noon Saturday and wind up with an elaborate program of business and entertainment Sunday.

Delegates will register early Saturday afternoon at the Legion home and the Amarillo and Hering hotels. Later in the afternoon the 40 & 8 will throw a "wreck," their term for an initiation. A dance will be held Saturday night.

A commanders and adjutants breakfast, service officers school, Sons of the Legion meeting, church attendance, noon banquet, joint Legion-Auxiliary meeting and a final business session are on the program Sunday.

Final AAA Meet Opens Tomorrow

The final AAA meeting in the Dallam county series to explain the 1941 AAA program in detail and to enable farmers to make out their farm plans will be held tomorrow and Saturday in Dalhart, the County AAA committee emphasized today.

Meetings have been held at Coldwater and Conlen. Perico today is winding up a two-day meeting and a one-day only meeting opened at Kerrick this morning.

No Censorship, Says President

Washington. — President Roosevelt today told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that the government would never impose a news censorship except on vital military secrets.

He said every other problem in connection with news dissemination he was willing to leave to the good judgment of the American press.

The President emphasized that gagged speech and a muzzled press were the chief weapons used by dictators against their own people and the world.

Grain And Stock Markets Are Mixed

Prices on both grains and stocks are mixed today.

Chicago wheat at noon was unchanged to a quarter up; May 91 3-4. Corn was an eighth to three-eighths down with May at 68 1-4. Oats slid off an eighth to a quarter, the May quotation being 39 5-8.

In the Dow-Jones list on the New York stock market, industrials were down 19 cents at $118.41. Rails, however, climbed 18 cents, while utilities were off a nickle. The entire 65 stocks were unchanged at $40.50. Third hour volume was 270,000 shares.

American Legion Meet Is Tonight

Members of the Roy Rhoades Legion post will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Legion home and among other things will arrange a delegation to the 18th District Legion and Auxiliary convention in Amarillo Saturday and Sunday, and also decide whether to sponsor "I Am An American Day" May 18.

This is the third year the nation has observed "I Am An American Day," sometimes called Citizenship Day. It is especially to honor those who in the past year have accepted the full privileges and responsibilities of citizenship either through becoming 21 years old or through the processes of naturalization.

President H. H. Wilhite, Hartley, of the Dallam-Hartley-Sherman Counties Teachers association, has offered the full cooperation of his organization in observance of the Regional League Meets This Week

Regional Interscholastic League competition will be held this weekend at Canyon.

One-act plays will be given tomorrow afternoon instead of Saturday afternoon, this to avoid congestion, regional league officials said.

Tennis, track and field preliminaries will open Saturday morning. Finals will be in the afternoon. Golf will open at 2 p.m.

Storm Hits Over Nara Visa Area

Nara Visa, Apr. 17 — The storm that ripped through the Nara Visa area last week damaged both homes and farm buildings.

Lightning struck the Corey Stroud house, but only burned out a light fixture.

The cyclonic wind demolished a barn belonging to Smith Cox, 20 miles northwest of Nara Visa; and one belonging to "Cooney" Kemppel at Ione. A chicken house belonging to Clarence Kimble was ripped apart and a number of chickens injured.
