A Hollywood actress has insured her fingers for $100,000. Which is rather a high price for a couple of stage hands.

ABOUT THIS AND THAT.....

It is not often that an editor has to make a correction and offer while out of them will get out of doing whenever possible, but this is a time that we are glad to do so. The reason we are glad to do so is the correction is that we made a mistake down in the middle of the "This and That" column several people called our attention to it, thereby proving that we were wrong and we were wrong whether to keep it up or Anyway, we said that Second Monday would be held, when we could have said "Second Monday." Of course every correction is an alibi so here it is. We note it First Monday by mistake in reading it over we caught it and made another, changing Monday to Tuesday.

So everyone is hereby officially notified that the horse swapping will be on the Second Monday in the month, which according to the calendar hanging on the wall will be on June 8. And everyone is invited to bring anything they have to trade from a team of mules down to white leghorn hens and trade it off for anything they get for it.

We received a card Saturday from H. S. Von Roeder, who is Austin working toward his Ph.D. degree. He says "I am enrolled in the work toward my Ph.D. and I am 'ticked' to be a big kid again. We are delightfully located and I have my mules arranged exactly to my liking. I know I will enjoy my work here for the summer."

Today the members of the Ranger Country club are guests of the Country Club in one of the best of matches in the Oil Belt if association.

At the last meeting of the two clubs the Ranger players came out with a heavy defeat. It has been rumored that the Cisco club swingers are for revenge. Personally we don't believe they can do it but that they may put up a good materials offering.

Speaking of scraps reminds that the NEA Service at Cleveland wrote us recently asking our opinion on the winner of the Stirling-Stirling fight. We read that Schmalz would win, but should put Schmeling on the way end of the betting odds as were one of the many who predicted that Dempsey would knock money for a loop-loop before the sixth round, which is about as we come to the right dope which we haven't predicted any ments for Boston or Galveston husband of Mrs. Wilmans Bond is 'Broke'

CHICAGO, June 6.—Henry A. R. husband of Mrs. Edith A. R. Born, former member of the U. S. legislature and one-time candidate for governor of Texas, died he was "broke" and dressed sedgely when he appeared in court to answer his wife's petition for an increase in her $130-a-month temporary alimony.

Born's trousers were covered in patches and his elbows prodded through his sleeves. He told his wife John T. Sullivan he had a living on $4 a week.

Born claimed in her petition she had given up an important position in Texas to marry Born, and said that her husband's worth $100,000 and his income was $2,000 a week from his business.

Born said his business had failed and Sullivan reduced the alimony to $15 a week.

SMITH JURY DISCHARGED SATURDAY

Judge George L. Davenport late Saturday discharged the jury in the Norman Smith robbery with firearms case without the jury having returned a verdict. The foreman reported that the jury stood four to eight for acquittal.

The case of the state of Texas versus Norman Smith, charged with robbery with firearms, which was on trial in Judge George L. Davenport's 91st district court, went to the jury at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Smith, who also went by the name of Norman Stewart, was charged with having held up and robbed George Kistler of a diamond ring in the Laguna hotel in Cisco.

The defense contended that Kistler, Smith and Smith's brother, Baxter, engaged in a poker game at Cisco and Kistler lost heavily and in his losing was the diamond ring.

Baptist Revival Will Continue All This Week

The revival meeting at Central Baptist church is today starting into the second week. Interest grows with each service and the pastor is delivering great messages to both Christians and sinners. Large crowds are meeting in the four prayer bands.

Mr. Maddox is leading the singing in a grand way. The saved are being revived and sinners are accepting Christ. The pastor's subject this morning at the 11 o'clock hour will be "The Heart of God."

Another item that will be far-reaching was the distribution of this morning of a carload of high quality Melbore Big Bowl certified cotton seed. This was brought in through the activities of the agricultural committee and handled at no cost to the buyer.

The same policy was followed at 8:15.

Everyone is cordially invited to get into all of the services this week.

TRUCK BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

AUSTIN, June 6.—Gov. Ross Sterling this morning signed the bill putting motor trucks under more complete supervision of the state railway commission. The companion bill governing dimension and loads has not yet been acted upon. The truck bills were among these haredes fought before the recent session.

Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum holds that the bill takes effect immediately.

It changes the former law which provided for Class A and Class B trucks as well as contract trucks. The new law abolished the latter classes and provides only two divisions, common carried trucks which include the former A and B trucks and contract trucks. The bill puts all that are operated for hire under the railroad commission supervision if they run between two incorporated municipalities.

HAVANA, June 6.—A mob of 1,900 attacked the American consulate at Santiago this afternoon, breaking windows and doors. Many were wounded and more than 40 were arrested when police and military dispersed the crowd, the soldiers using machine guns and revolvers.

The mob was unarmed but used stones. After assembling at a distance it marched to the consulate and about 50 entered the building. At first sight of the throng the consul in charge sent for military aid but when the soldiers appeared in the building threw stones through the windows at the troops.

With considerable difficulty the mob was dispersed and the situation was finally brought to hand with quiet prevailing. During the riot the military supervisor was shot at by a student who was arrested. The supervisor was not hurt.

SEX STORIES ARE BARRED AT BIG SPRING

BIG SPRING, Texas, June 6.—With enforcement of an order prohibiting the sale of magazines containing "sex" stories, readers in this West Texas town who like the more sensational type of literature were going outside the city limits today to satisfy their wants.

The prohibition order is aimed especially at stories with sex themes. To enforce the rule and act as a censor a board of inspectors has been named by the city commission. The board will issue licenses to news dealers and pass on the magazines, periodicals, pamphlets and other printed matter offered for sale.

The board was instructed to inspect printed matter to determine whether it is "immoral or indecent or calculated to corrupt the morals of youth or the public generally."

MAN KILLED IN 25-CENT HIJACKING

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 6.—Two bandits who raided a box car containing 27 holdups and killed one of them, escaped early today with loot consisting of less than one penny from each holdup victim.

Ted McKee, 22, a farmer living at Texanna, near Muskogee, was slain when he resisted the bandit who entered the box car on a west-bound Rock Island freight train.

A dozen men were held at El Reno for questioning but the county attorney, Francis Forta, said he believed they were innocent victims of the holdup.

Ranger Golfers Will Meet Cisco This Afternoon

A Neill, president of the Ranger Country club, announced Saturday that the club would play its match with the Cisco Country club at Cisco this afternoon.

Neill urged as many Ranger players as possible to make the trip to Cisco in order that enough golfers could be on hand to provide plenty of competition to the Cisco players.

All who intend to take part in the scheduled matches are requested to notify J. C. Smith as early as possible so that he can inform the officials of the Cisco club how many to expect.

Queer Things You Never Knew in This Curious World A Daily Feature

TEXAN MAY BE PUT ON FARM BOARD

By United Press.
MISSION, Texas, June 6.—John Shary, pioneer Mission resident and president of the Texas Citrus Growers exchange, has been mentioned as a possible successor to C. C. Teague, citrus member of the federal farm board, and his name has already been presented to President Hoover for his consideration, it was learned here today.

Several prominent Texas statesmen have already pledged their support to Shary, it was learned. Interviewed at his home in Maryland, Shary issued the following statement:

"I have given deep consideration to the farm board matter since December, 1929, when the change made application for a $1,000,000 loan of $1,000,000 have been studying the farm board situation. I have watched the various programs and projects attempted by it with a view to bettering conditions here in the valley and while I appreciate the deep responsibility attached thereto, I would like to serve my fellow growers of Texas, Florida and California on the board if given an appointment.

"I do not believe however that it would be possible for me to discharge such a public obligation because of the press of affairs in the valley. I deeply appreciate the honor paid me by my friends over the past few weeks in placing my name before the President Hoover.

"Of course the success of the citrus industry of Texas is my most cherished ambition and I am working now as for the past eight years to perfect a valley-wide cooperative marketing organization that will place the benefits of sound business principles within reach of all the growers."

Shary is the only Texan thus far mentioned as a possible appointee to replace Teague, who resigned several weeks ago. Men from Florida and California have also been mentioned.

Shary and Teague occupy similar positions in their respective states. Both are heads of the largest citrus marketing associations in their states. Shary's fruit growers' exchange is modeled after the California exchange, of which Teague is president.

FINISH OF THE ENGLISH DERBY

Cameronian! Pounding down the home stretch at Epsom Downs, past the massed stands and the royal box, John A. Dewar's colt, the favorite, here is shown leading the way to victory in the classic English Derby. More than half a million persons in holiday mood jammed the historic course, and near the finish line were King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, Duke of York and other members of royalty. Meanwhile, millions of radio listeners throughout the world listened to broadcast descriptions of the event, and 348 Americans learned that they had won a total of $744,500 in sweepstakes prizes. Not long afterward the ether waves were carrying to the United States this striking picture of the finish, transmitted by the Radio Corporation of America for NEA Service. Note the top-hatted figures in the judges' stand, and how closely Cameronian, with Freddy Fox up, was followed in the thrilling duel by Orpen, second, and Sandwich, third.

The Team Nobody Knows
NAME three of the Boston Braves. It's hard to do unless you happen to be following the team nobody knows.

Not counted as a first division contender when viewed in training at St. Petersburg in the springtime, the Braves have amazed the statisticians by staying in the race during the first five weeks of the campaign, and by giving all sorts of trouble to the clubs that were expected to beat them easily.

Brandt Boils Over
LED by the amazing pitching of Eddie Brandt, who won six straight starts, the Boston boys have been chasing the Giants and Cardinals for the last couple of weeks with blood in their eyes, and it isn't over yet. Brandt, a pitcher who won only three games last year, won six in a row to start the 1931 season.

The other Braves' pitchers, down-trodden in other years and numbering a couple of castoffs in their ranks, have been helping the big southpaw keep the Braves up in the race. Harry Selbold, who broke even last year in 32 games pitched, has started as though he means to win 25 games this season.

A pair of castoffs, Tom Zachary, that are of "nothing" pitchers, and Willie Sherdel, have materially aided in the spurt of the McKechnie forces. Ben Cantwell, sent to Boston by McGraw several years ago in the deal for Joe Denevich, has begun to fulfill the promise McGraw saw in him when he scouted Ben while the young man was pitching for Jacksonville, Fla.

Not Sluggers
THE Braves are not a great hitting team. They figure to bat about sixth in the league. At fielding they should run somewhere in the first division, behind the Giants and perhaps the Pirates and Cardinals.

But figures sometimes lie, as the Athletics have conclusively proved by scoring fewer runs, making

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

THE hint that ball players on other clubs in the Texas League may be out to "steal" Dean, flannel-mouthed young pitcher sent to Houston by the Cardinals, is publicized by "Andy" in the Houston Press. The other day Al Todd, catcher for Dallas, swung a haymaker on Dizzy's jaw after Dizzy had buzzed a fast one close to his tonails. Since going to Houston, Dizzy has been getting all kinds of praise for his splendid pitching, and Andy thinks the other boys may be getting a bit jealous. Dizzy didn't have a chance to mix it with the Dallas catcher, according to Andy. Todd's wallop floored him unexpectedly, Dizzy expecting the young man to argue vigorously but not to let one go. . . . Andy predicts that before the season ends, Dizzy will make Mr. Todd "like it," even if he didn't get a chance to retaliate after the knockdown.

fewer hits and batting last in the American League, but leading the league. The Braves' right now is to be folding third, and that is where the team stands as this is being written.

Sheeley, the first baseman rescued from the minors, leads the Braves at bat with a percentage around 340. Next comes Worthington, a recruit from Rochester, batting around 330. Berger, the centerfielder, who came from the coast last year, has been batting around 310. Catcher Cronin hits 300. The rest of the regulars, Maranville, Maguire, Dreesen, Wilson, Chatham, Richbourg, Schumacher and Clark, have been under 300 this year.

Bill McKechnie told me at St. Petersburg in the spring that his team was "going up." It was a little hard to believe then. It is not so hard now.

Carrie Nation's Moods Varied Says Ex-Manager

By United Press.
ST. LOUIS—According to H. C. Turner, former "campaign manager" of Carrie Nation, militant antagonist of the saloons, she had her peculiarities, but was "highest, keen and intelligent."

"At times she was gentle, kind and considerate to others," said Turner, who now lives here. "Other times she was like a vicious bulldog. On one occasion she said to me:

"Brother Turner, the Lord has made me a veritable bulldog to run along at his heels and snap and bark at the things that hurt His little children in this wicked world. Sometimes I wish that an angry saloonkeeper would kill me and I could go on to glory as a martyr to the cause for which he called me to labor—the destruction of the licensed saloon in America."

Turner said at another time she remarked, "There are just two crowds in this world—the devil's crowd and God's crowd."

Civic Organizations

ed in distributing the cotton seed in that farmers and growers were permitted to obtain small amounts of seed at cut-off prices.

"These two activities show we have accomplished something that will be hard to measure in dollars and cents," said W. D. Conway, president of the chamber of commerce. "On each farm where the fertilizer is spread, that farm is made a little richer for a long time to come. In fields where the Big Bowl seed is planted, the quality of the cotton crop is raised and increased yields will result. We are not necessarily trying to increase the acreage in cotton, but we are trying to assist the farmer in getting more pounds from the same acres."

The impartment of fertilizer and the distribution of high quality seed is right in keeping with the best agricultural practices as sponsored and advocated by the state agricultural college. It has long been known that better farming methods are the only thing that will place farming in the West Texas district up on a par with other business enterprises.

"We are trying to put across the idea that farming is a business the same as any other productive activity," said Wayne C. Hickey, who is manager-secretary of the chamber of commerce and has been for the past four years and more.

"We are trying to assist the farmer in doing what business men and professional men have done for themselves through their various associations and organizations. Every phase of business is organized for the purpose of collecting and distributing the latest ideas and most approved methods. We are helping the farmer to bring these things to Eastland county. One of the things we are undertaking is terracing. It has been found that it will conserve moisture and save the soil from washing. Terracing already is well introduced to the county," Mr. Hickey said, "but there is still room for such improvement."

The instance mentioned are merely illustrative of the wide

CONVICTION OF CAPONE PREDICTED

By United Press.
CHICAGO, June 6.—The indictment and surrender of Scarface Al Capone on charges of evading income tax payments was held as marking the downfall of the most powerful and elusive gang shief-tain in local or American history.

Federal, state and city officials, as well as all newspapers, agree Capone's chances of escaping conviction and imprisonment were slight.

Such predictions were based upon the record of U. S. District Attorney E. O. Johnson, who brought about Capone's indictment after three years of work during which many liquor gangsters were captured and many stills destroyed.

Capone, the chief of all gang chiefs, was the ninth gangster indicted. Johnson has been successful in the prosecution of the previous eight.

Capone's surrender came three hours after indictments against him were made public. He was accompanied to the U. S. marshal's office by his attorneys. A surety bond of $50,000 to cover the amount previously set, preceded him. He was in the office only a short time, signed his bond, then disappeared into the underworld which he had controlled for several years.

Osage Indians Are Losing Out In Oil Business

By United Press.
PAWBUSSKA, June 6.—Oil depression and litigation have combined to threaten the incomes of the Osage Indians who became the world's richest tribe through a cooperative plan of pooling oil revenues.

With incomes already depleted by cuts in prices for the output of their 30,000 wells the Osages now are beset with legal difficulties.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and W. E. Murphy, agency superintendent have communicated regarding the closing of Osage wells pending stabilization of the industry. Operators indicated the wells were producing at a loss.

Hearing on the various suits is pending in federal court at Bartlesville. Judge Franklin E. Kennerly postponed the hearing until June 15.

Pending disposition of the case which probably will go to the supreme court of the United States, oil men are refusing to pay the Indians for oil. Quarterly payments which would run about $400 for each Osage.

Beggar Gets Costly Shoes For Woman

BERLIN.—A cabinet maker's wife here had nothing to offer a beggar but a pair of her husband's old shoes, which, unknown to her, contained his entire savings, 1,500 marks ($380).

The beggar did not inspect them; sold them to a second-hand dealer.

The dealer read the owner's story in the newspapers, turned over the shoes and the money to the police, who returned them to the right owner.

WELLS SORRY HE KILLED WRONG MAN

By United Press.
HOUSTON, June 6.—W. E. Wells, 40-year-old father, under arrest in connection with the shooting of E. A. Horton, 48, and the wounding of H. A. Harrison, 35, was sorry today because he had killed "the wrong man."

Heaton was killed by shots fired at Harrison, who Wells says betrayed his 15-year-old daughter. Harrison was shot in the hand by one of two bullets, both of which struck Heaton, a bystander, in the chest.

"I didn't know Heaton," said Wells. "I never saw him before. I wouldn't have killed him for the world, but I wanted to kill Harrison. He ruined my daughter."

The shooting took place before a dozen persons leaving a bus in the residential section.

Government To Declare War On Rum Runners

By United Press.
GALVESTON, June 6.—Treasure Island rum runners today were choosing highways along the bayous that empty into Galveston Bay following the government declaration of war to the death among Gulf Coast smugglers.

Simultaneously with the announcement that 12 picked veterans of the Canadian border patrol were enroute here to inaugurate a similar service came word from Washington that eight additional picket boats of the U. S. Coast Guard have been allocated to Galveston and are moving down the Mississippi.

The government action followed seizure of several liquor laden vessels during the past few months. The government believes there are more smugglers operating in local waters.

The custom men will form the nucleus of a patrol here similar to those maintained along the Canadian and Mexican borders. They will be in charge of E. A. Gleason, supervising customs agent. While maintaining headquarters here they will be patrolling the coast from Corpus Christi to the Louisiana line.

The picket boats have been assigned to a coast guard station across the channel from Galveston. Each is manned by a crew of five. They will operate under orders of the Cutter Saranac stationed here.

Wm. N. McDonald Plumbing Co. One of Ranger's Oldest Firms Dating Back to Boom Days

Out of the turmoil of the peak of activity in Ranger when the town was running wild and oil was gushing through the pipes at the rates of a thousand dollars an hour, when itinerant workers passing through the territory, grabbing off the money by the handful, William N. McDonald, master plumber was busy as the rest. The plumbing business was keeping in progress with the times.

So McDonald bought himself a house in which to live. Then he bought another. He shipped in more pipe and plumbed more houses. McDonald went in for plumbing of a permanent and dependable nature. Business was good and William N. McDonald got his share. Twenty plumbing shops opened in Ranger. More than a hundred men carrying journeymen cards were in the city. Everybody was busy and McDonald opened up a shop. His idea was to make Ranger a better place in which to live with sanitary engineering replacing the old methods and conveniences.

"I don't know how long this is going to last," McDonald said, "but I'm going to be here when it's over." And he is.

Today at 516 Main street you will find McDonald still in the plumbing business and still doing his share, an amount that is "very satisfactory." Gone are the 100 journeymen. Gone are the great majority of the shops that were here when things were running wild. But McDonald did not go with the rest. He looked about when the plumbing business started to decline with certain other activities of the hurry and rush. He looked about to see what was going to take the place of the declining plumbing. It was electricity.

The big power companies were looking over Ranger in those days with the idea of bringing juice in over big transmission lines. They were looking at the lake, with the idea of putting in improvements. So McDonald turned his hand to his old trade, electrical contracting along with the plumbing.

Business still was "very satisfactory" and this versatile resident, now well established in the business life of the community, got himself organized once more and commenced to look farther to see what could be done to fortify himself against the day when business might slump in another line.

"They were talking about diversification on the farm," McDonald reasoned. And he went about to investigate. He was installing farm lighting plants, and hooking other farms on the transmission lines. It was a fact that the farmers who were spending the money to buy electrical equipment and give their homes something like the same conveniences that were enjoyed by the city dwellers, were all diversification farmers. They had incomes from goats, milk cows, hens, hogs, and from field crops as well. Few of them were single-crop farmers.

"It will work," McDonald said to himself. "The plumbing business supplements the electrical business. I can give the public complete service with these two lines."

The combination was a good combination and when the other plumbers were complaining, McDonald was answering his telephone, "Yes, this is 344," and doing business. He wired the houses and then put in the plumbing.

"Refrigerators," said McDonald to himself five years. "Electrical refrigerators, General Electric refrigerators, the best on the market."

He got the franchise. General Electric refrigerators for any home of any size. He looked about to see just what could be done with these outside the city homes. He found electrical refrigeration fit in many places. The company built many different sizes. The little 4 1/2-cubic foot capacity at $229 was the thing for the small home. Others were planned for the home with the bigger family. Still others up to 60-cubic foot capacity for the commercial establishment. One especially took his eye.

This was a box designed especially for milk handling. It was a good looking affair with a porcelain cover and large shelf space. The more McDonald looked at it, the better he liked the general idea of the General Electric. So he will pass over a week or two of action.

B. C. Whitting, Ranger, owner of one of the best herds of Jerseys in the county, was looking about for something that would increase his profits on good milk. He investigated various kinds of cooling systems and refrigerators. It is the 1931 way of doing things in the dairy world when the dairyman cools his milk as soon after milking as possible and keeps it at a low temperature. Methods change and science discovers additional facts. One of these is that milk, suddenly chilled and kept that way is better milk than when it is allowed to cool slowly and remain at a temperature that is neither warm nor cold. So Mr. Whitting went about to buy a refrigerator, an electric refrigerator, but he had no electricity on his place.

It was a natural thing for him to give McDonald the job. Here was a man who knew his iceless boxes and also knew how to get the power to run it off the lines that went out through the country. McDonald made the installation. He wired the farm, bringing electricity from the line into the dairy barn, the milkhouse, the farmhouse and the yard. It was a transformation that took place at the Whitting dairy. Forty high-grade Jersey cows stood in the stall, eyeing the bulbs swinging from the rafters and took another bite of peanut hay.

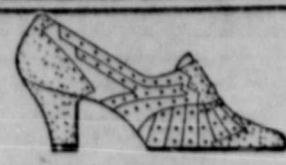

"It is possible to take the milk from its natural temperature when it comes from the cow, down to 50 degrees in a few minutes," McDonald explained. This can be done only by mechanical refrigeration. Were it necessary to take the milk to a lower temperature, a turn of the knob would do it. The General Electric refrigerator is made so it is fool-proof. All the parts are sealed up in a case. Nothing can go wrong. Everything is out of the way of dust and other foreign substances. All one has to do is set the machine at the desired temperature, turn on the electricity and the box automatically takes care of itself. The box at the Whitting dairy has a capacity of 60 cubic feet and that is plenty of room to handle the bottled milk from the herd of 40 Jerseys.

This enterprising business man was not content to sit by and see opportunities die for the want of a bit of nursing. So he added other electrical commodities along side the refrigerator. He put in all the modern appliances that go to make life a little easier around the home. He added fans to his stock of goods, vacuum cleaners, irons and ironing boards, percolators, boilers and clocks.

These fitted in well with the scheme of things and suited the Ranger trade well, for McDonald is still among the plumbers doing business. He added radios to the equipment and the "midnight" that will look well and listen fine on anybody's side table sits alongside the big consoles in his show room.

"Another thing that people do not realize," McDonald said, "is that an electric refrigerator does not interfere with the radio reception."

McDonald said that farm lighting systems and refrigeration were coming into popularity more each year. He said more water is being connected with rural homes and that during the summer and fall he planned a campaign for complete farm home modernization with septic tanks buried under the ground for sewerage disposal. Many "big jobs" in Ranger are to the credit of the McDonald Plumbing and Electric shop. A recent one was the remodeling of the Paramount hotel when 30 new bathtubs were installed. "Yes," McDonald said the other day, "business is fairly satisfactory."

THE MELODY GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, knows that he would never be happy with her half-sister, Irene Everett, and tries to prevent their marriage. Irene is jealous when she fails and Beryl secures a radio contract. Beryl's voice wins her new friends but she cannot forget her hopeless love though she goes to parties with young Prentiss Gaylord. Irene learns that Prentiss is rich and tries to win him from Beryl. Tommy's aunt dies and he loses both money and job through her husband. Tommy tells Irene his bad luck and she breaks the engagement. When Prentiss asks her to marry him she accepts. In despair Tommy drinks heavily and Beryl finds him. She tries to cheer him up and tells Irene that she must go back to Tommy or inform Prentiss how heartlessly she has acted. Irene promises, then slips away and marries Prentiss. She telephones the news home and Beryl realizes she has been outwitted. Next morning Beryl's throat is in a serious condition. The family doctor calls for a specialist. Beryl is greatly worried by the report that Tommy is in bad company. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV "I wish you'd talk sense," Mrs. Everett protested. "All right," Beryl complied, "then I'm having a throat specialist out from New York to tell me if I'll have to stop singing or not." "A throat specialist?" "Yes, and he's a famous person so give him a proper reception." Mrs. Everett naturally wanted more information on the subject but Beryl did not care to discuss that. She said she wanted to sleep, and her mother left the room. Beryl heard the telephone ring shortly afterward and a minute later her mother came up to tell her that Dr. Auguston would arrive in two hours. At the end of those two hours Beryl said to herself: "Sherman had a word for it, all right!" To the eminent specialist, who told her he'd come for her instead of making her come to him because he loved her voice, she appeared calm and self-possessed. The physician too was non-committal. Finally he smiled. "We'll have to watch you," he said. "You have been in danger but if you are careful..." When he was gone Beryl had another battle with herself but this one was of short duration. It was one thing to wait a few hours but something very different to face days of suspense—days in which Tommy might sink to levels from which he could never rise. She left the house quietly—for her mother had heard Dr. Auguston's order for her to remain in bed—and went in search of Tommy. She knew where the Karkin house was located—an old building with rusty brown paint that had peeled off in large patches with ragged edges. Polney Larkin—now the bully "Pol"—had been one of her classmates in the fifth grade at school. Then Polney had given up education for what to him were pleasanter pursuits. Now even some of the town's police officers were known to avoid him. Tommy had been in trouble with the Larkin boys. That could easily be fatal, but this once it hadn't been. The doctor'd have told her. She wished she'd questioned him more, but it wasn't easy to talk about Tommy. Why had the doctor seen Tommy? She should have asked him that. It could only mean that Tommy had been injured. In a store in the village she tried to telephone to Mr. Hoffman

her. "I am not Tommy's girl," she said evenly. "I am a friend. And I know he was in a row with you. If you don't tell me what you did with him I shall go to the police." Pol laughed. "You're hot stuff, sister," he told her, "but I like your spirit even if you are miles off in your reckonin'. The police—that's a hot one!" He was still laughing when a sound behind Beryl caused her to turn hastily in that direction. And there in a doorway leading into an inner room stood Tommy. He was haggard and entirely disreputable looking but he showed a natural surprise at seeing Beryl. "What you doin' here?" he asked, and his voice was as cracked as his skin. "If you'll take me out to my taxi I'll tell you," Beryl answered. Tommy glanced at Pol who was staring at him with a crooked smile. "All right," Tommy said un- easily, and followed her from the room. "What were you doing in that house?" she demanded of him when they were outside. "You were in a fight with those men, weren't you?" Tommy essayed a laugh but it was only a travesty of a sound. "Sure," he said, "and they walloped me good and plenty. But I had it comin'. I tried to get smart with a better man." "But I don't understand," Beryl said, "why you are here, in their house." "They're all right," Tommy said in defense of his new friends. "I see," Beryl remarked scathingly. "They beat that idea into your head." "I'd rather take a beating than a preaching," Tommy warned her. Beryl instantly took a different tack. "I won't preach to you, Tommy," she told him softly. "Come on and let's talk it over on the way back home." "I'm not going home," Tommy declared, and the determination in his voice was alarming. Urge as she would, Beryl could not persuade Tommy to leave the Larkins. He was as well off there as anywhere, he insisted. Beryl sensed that he was governed by a reason more compelling than his liking for the outfit. But she dared not voice her opinion, knowing that opposition would serve only to cement more firmly the evil association. "Please," she begged, after all arguments had proven vain, "keep in touch with me, Tommy." But Tommy did not keep in touch with her, and for days Beryl lived in the agony of dread. She had been put to bed, almost forcibly, and scolded by the family doctor and her mother with such clearness and emphasis that she dared not disobey. Besides her mother watched her like a hawk. Was not her career in jeopardy? Beryl smiled over her mother's solicitude. It would make a difference in the family should they be deprived of her salary. But she was not bitter. Nothing mattered to her except Tommy's welfare. And she could get no news of him. Gossip, yes, but what she heard on
