GIL KILLED IN EASTLAND AUTO CRASH

ABOUT THIS AND THAT.....

The reason we haven't had the usual dose of information in this column for our clients is that we haven't had anything in particular to write about and the only suggestion we got from outside sources were that we explain the German situation. That was somewhat beyond us because though we had ideas, we did not know just how good they were. Then another columnist explained it for us in about these terms:

"As we understand it, Germany left the war, and that makes the Germans responsible for paying all the war debts incurred by the rest of the world. So, when the price of wheat went down to 15 cents and the duty on imported pipe organs was raised to 14 per cent of the differential on duty, thus equalizing the market quotation on railroad stocks and fixing the redemption rate on economic statistics at 10 per cent, it gave Mr. Hoover a severe headache. And that is what is the matter with Germany."

And now that the question has been answered for us to the satisfaction of everyone, we will devote an entire column to our personal moratorium on newspaper columns and will try to keep the thing going in the future.

We did get one suggestion from a source that is going to be kept quiet for various reasons. It was that we start a movement to have the directors of the Chamber of Commerce have day beds installed in their offices so that the habitual nester can have a more comfortable place to rest. The new cooler full of ice water was considered quite a concession to those who did not feel like walking to a drug store but the day bed idea was offered on the plea that they would be more comfortable than the chairs.

Which reminds us, for no reason at all, that a druggist told us that his bill for matches was $18 a month and that all the matches were given away. It may be some consolation to him that we have heard a number of smokers declare that they would swear off smoking after the cigarette tax law went into effect.

We have asked a number of people who the flag pole on top of the city hall got so crooked. We have had a number of top tracks in answer to the query, though most of them were based on the idea of association so we refused to print them. It does look, though, as if some bit-and-fly airplane pilot might have gotten tangled up with it at one time. We knew of one case where the scales were knocked out of the hand of a county courthouse by a low flying pilot. Or at least that was the explanation given us as to how she lost her arm.

The Texas legislature has spent five days without getting anywhere and will probably accomplish nothing in the next few days. Then when and if they do decide to get together it may take them ten days to decide that they are through and ready to go home as it did in the regular session.

We heard a discussion on the other day about the state government and were almost convinced that a good state manager should be selected to run the government just like a city manager handles municipal affairs. Then a committee on a committee or whatever you would want to call it, would meet like a city council and would decide upon affairs of state. But we do not see that very many cities are run on any better basis than the state is, and few are off any better financial condition, so the plan may not be as good as it sounded when we first heard it. Anyway, even though we did approve of it they would not make the change, so there is no sense in bothering our head about the details.

STATESMEN GATHERING IN LONDON

LONDON, July 20.—The statesmen of seven world powers assembled at the House of Commons tonight for a historic conference at which perhaps the greatest effort at international cooperation ever made, Germany's financial salvation will be attempted.

The conference was convened at 6:30 p. m. in the premier's room of the House of Commons. The nations represented through their leading statesmen were Great Britain, United States, France, Germany, Belgium and Japan.

Those who had no previous experience at target practice were given instructions in the art of handling rifles on the range.

At noon a barbecue dinner was served to the members of the company and several visitors.

The company returned to Ranger about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Kansas Farmers Dump Wheat on Streets as Price Drops to Lowest in History

Faced with financial disaster as they pour the greatest flood of golden grain in history on an already glutted market that sees wheat prices the lowest since Kansas became a state, Kansas farmers are taking their predicament with irony. Here you see Forest Kennett of Ducklin, Kan., dumping a wheat-laden truck in the street, rather than sell his crop at 27 cents a bushel. The mule painted on his truck bears the caption "Kansas Wheat Farmer" and on the other side a sign reads "Farm Board."

Her Suitor Slain

A farmer's feud for the love of Miss Blanch Davis, above, pretty 24-year-old telephone operator, was advanced as the motive in the killing of Lester T. Milligan, 28, whose body was found in a highway in Jefferson county, Kan. Milligan is alleged to have aroused the envy of Fred Steyer, 27, said to be another suitor, who is charged with murdering Milligan.

THOMAS DAVIS CASE OPENS AT ALBANY TODAY

ALBANY, Texas, July 20.—A venire of 60 men appeared in 42nd district court for the trial of Thomas Davis, under a five-year suspended sentence for the slaying of Lusan Shook.

The outcome of Davis' trial is expected to effect the fate of Clyde Thompson, condemned to death for the murder of Lucian and Leon Shook in Eastland county in September, 1928.

Governor Ross Sterling granted Thompson a 90-day reprieve to await the outcome of the Davis trial.

The Davis case was transferred here from Eastland.

Homer Brelsford, who just retired as president of the Eastland Rotary club, was presented with a past president's pin by the members of the club in recognition of the services he had rendered the organization. Dr. J. H. Gator, made the presentation speech. Mr. Brelsford accepted the gift in a few well chosen remarks.

Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, and J. C. Patterson, county agent, made talks in which they asked the Rotary club's co-operation in connection with the coming Eastland county fair which is to be held in Eastland in September.

President Chasney appointed J. E. Lewis as chairman of a committee, the other members to be named by Lewis, to work with the Lions club and other civic organizations of the town in connection with the fair.

"Homer Brelsford and 'Fuzzy' Furse were named as the program committee for next Monday's meeting.

GUSHER IN MICHIGAN CLAIMS 9

By United Press.
MT. PLEASANT, Mich., July 20.—Struble No. 1, biggest gusher in the history of the Michigan oil field, was a roaring pillar of flame today after taking nine lives when it went wild and caught fire.

A carelessly dropped cigarette was blamed for the first major disaster since oil was discovered in Michigan. It was feared the death list might reach 15.

A call was sent to Oklahoma for cappers and fire experts who may be brought here by plane if today's efforts to check the fire fail. Seething streams of fire crept dangerously near a 50,000-barrel storage tank and workers battled all night to prevent a new conflagration.

The tragedy occurred late Saturday just after the well was "shot" and came in with a flow of nearly 3,000 barrels a day.

The crowd grouped closely about the column of spouting oil.

Suddenly the area surrounding the well was enveloped in a flash of fire. Those nearest the center of the blast fell screaming on the ground. Others, their clothing banked into the outer crowd, spreading the fire to new victims.

George Kelly, 43, owner of the farm on which the strike was made, saw his vision of wealth turn to tragedy. His wife was so seriously burned she was not expected to live and he is in a serious condition.

Two lives were lost when the flames trapped Mrs. Robert Guy, 18. Her baby was to have been born soon. An operation failed to save the child.

TWO ARMY FLIERS DIE IN CRASH

By United Press.
NEW YORK, July 20.—Two army fliers jumped to safety in a spectacular air crash today but two other army officers met death near Hartford, Conn., according to advices received at Mitchell field today.

The dead are Second Lieutenant Benjamin Lowery of Hemstead, L. I., and Corporal Harold S. Trostnyder, Wichita, Kan.

Near Hartford the plane of Lowery and Trostnyder collided with the plane of Second Lieutenant Francis X. Kelly of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his mechanic.

Kelly and the mechanic jumped but the other two were killed.

EASTLAND WINS TENNIS MATCH AT THURBER

Eastland tennis stars proved their superiority over other towns of the Oil Belt late Saturday night when they capped the first two prizes in the first annual Oil Belt Tennis tournament.

The main prize of the day, the doubles championship of the Oil Belt, went to Edward Laurent and Milburn McCarty, Jr., when they defeated Hogan and Kleiwer of Ranger to win the first flight. Second flight honors were captured by Josephine Martin and Billie Cheatham, who downed Healer and Langston of Ranger in their final match. Eastland would have made a clean sweep of the meet had they won the third flight, but Tanner and Bacon, Eastland finalists in this division, were forced to default to Forrest and Leedy, the Thurber team.

The finals of the first flight, played beneath the lighted courts of the T. P. Coal and Oil company at Thurber, proved to be an exciting and bitterly-contested affair. These ranking doubles teams from Eastland and Ranger were closely matched and nearly three hours of tense play was required before the Eastland combination was able to turn back the attack of the Rangerites and sweep through to victory, 3-6; 7-5; 6-3. Hogan and Kleiwer got the jump on the Eastland team in the first set, but the first set and got a 4-3 lead on the second. The Eastlanders, however, seem to find themselves, and by the aid of Laurent's cannonball service, which flashed across the net again and again for clear aces, and McCarty's accurate lobbing and quick court-covering, they retaliated to take the last three sets in succession and win the match.

Miss Josephine Martin, lone girl player among a host of men tennis stars, proved her worth when, paired with Cheatham, she stroked her way to victory over the Healer-Langston combination. She and Cheatham played brilliant tennis to turn back the fighting Ranger team to the tune of 7-5; 6-3.

Forrest and Leedy, Thurber winners of their third flight, had no opposition in their last match when Tanner and Bacon defaulted, but they had reached the finals only after hard-fought contests with Gordon and Ranger teams.

A large crowd was on hand at the T. P. courts to witness the final matches. At the termination of the night's play Guy Randall of Thurber presented the trophies and cups to the victors.

An Oil Belt singles tournament is now being planned to take place sometime in the near future.

Relief Being Planned For Oklahomans

By United Press.
HENRYETTA, Okla., July 20.—State and local relief agencies united here to provide clothing and food for the destitute families in this poverty-stricken mining section.

Governor W. H. Murray, Barclay Morgan, Henryetta mayor, and W. A. Elliott, director of relief here, promised relief and set forth a program of public improvements to provide work for more than 200 men. Food was dispensed from an emergency station in the city hall.

A demonstration here Saturday in which more than 150 men marched through Henryetta's main street asking for food and money from business men and store proprietors led to immediate action.

The food demonstration came as Governor Murray and Cicero Murray, his cousin, were setting up an organization to provide state-wide relief throughout this fall and winter to all unemployed and drought-stricken farmers in Oklahoma.

"We will see that everybody is fed," Morgan said after talking with Governor Murray at Oklahoma City, "but everyone who eats will have to work."

Scores of persons looked in the windows of the bank while the robbery was in progress. They took the cash in the cashiers' cages but were unable to gain entrance to the vault.

Surveys for Inter-American Highway Progressing Rapidly

WASHINGTON, July 20.—After weeks of struggling through steaming jungles in the lowlands and across cold wind-swept areas in the mountains, engineers of the United States Bureau of Public Roads have just completed their first reconnaissance survey of the proposed inter-American highway route through Costa Rica, in Central America.

The reconnaissance in Costa Rica is part of a general survey of the projected route through Central America which some day will carry automobile traffic with speed and comfort from the Texas border to Panama City, via the countries of Mexico, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, a total distance of approximately 3,200 miles.

On the Costa Rica section of the survey, the engineers have encountered many hardships in traversing practically undeveloped regions in the southern part of the Republic, yet they report that the proposed highway is entirely feasible even through this difficult region, and that it will open up rich agricultural lands and water-power resources.

Writing from San Jose in June, after a trek from that capital southeast to the Panama frontier and return, D. Tucker Brown, engineer of the bureau of public roads in charge of the survey, reported: "We have just completed the hardest trip that any of our party has ever undertaken, including one man who has made several trips to the upper Amazon. Every night we went to bed dripping wet and the rain interferred so much with building fires that we had scarcely anything to eat. Tigers came prowling around the camp at night, but unfortunately they make poor eating; monkeys are better, and we shot a number for food. The rivers, especially the Sevegre (which has tremendous potentialities for water-power development) were raging torrents, and we had to fell trees in order to cross. In the vicinity of the continental divide, the summit of which exceeds 8,000 feet altitude, trails were rough and rocky, steep and circuitous; men became too exhausted to mount or dismount, and the horses' feet frequently slipped on the south side of the divide, however, we found the beautiful El General Valley, a rich and open-region still almost entirely undeveloped and inhabited chiefly by Indians; possibilities for agricultural development in this valley are very great."

On the route from San Jose northward to the Nicaraguan frontier, the engineers found more favorable topographical conditions and they anticipate little difficulty in this region. An aerial survey of the entire section of the inter-American highway through Costa Rica has been undertaken by the United States Army Air Corps with the permission of the Costa Rican government, and these air photographs, together with the reconnaissance surveys by engineers on the ground, are expected to permit of definite decisions as to the location of the proposed road. Within another year, it is expected that reconnaissance surveys of all the countries traversed by the highway will have been completed. Reports from Central America indicate that government authorities and leading citizens already are discussing methods of financing the initial sections of the highway. The total cost of the entire route has been tentatively estimated at $50,000,000.

Naval Balloon Is 1931 Race Winner

By United Press.
AKRON, Ohio, July 20.—The United States naval balloon, piloted by Lieutenants T. G. W. Settle and Wilfred Bushnell, apparently won the 1931 Litchfield trophy national balloon race with an official distance of 215 miles. The navy balloon landed at Marietta, N. Y., early today.

The district attorney who prosecuted Lane requested clemency.

LEGION BOWLERS TO MEET

DETROIT.—The first national bowling tournament of the American Legion will be held in connection with the organization's national convention, to be held here Sept. 15-23.

Cards have become so universal a pastime that the old nautical expression should be revised to read: "All hands on decks."

TWO MEN AND WOMAN HELD FOR QUIZZING

No Charges Filed Against Trio Following Fatal Accident.

Jackie Henbest, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Henbest of Lueters, was fatally injured late Sunday night when the car in which she was riding with her parents and others, was wrecked and turned over on her on the Rankhead highway two miles of Eastland. The accident occurred when the Henbest car was moving north on the highway and a woman, said to have been from Abilene, were riding, collided head on. No one else was hurt.

Bruce Butler of Eastland was among the motorists on the highway that happened along about the time of the accident and helped to take the car off the injured child. Her head was badly crushed and she evidently was instantly killed as she was dead when removed from beneath the car. Her father took her in his arms and brought her into Eastland. The body is at the Hamner-Barrow Undertaking parlors awaiting funeral arrangements.

The two men and woman driving the car which is said to have collided with the Henbest car were being held in the county jail this morning pending investigation of the accident. The men gave their names as Paul Walker and Grady Ford and the woman's name was given as Mrs. Dick McKinney. No charges had been filed against either of the men this morning and Justice of the Peace Jim Steele said none would be filed until he had had sufficient time to investigate the case.

According to F. J. Henbest, W. E. King of Eastland visited the Henbests Sunday and on the trip burned a bearing out of his car. The Henbests brought him back to Eastland and were returning to Lueters when the accident occurred.

Dick McKinney, husband of the woman, came to Eastland this morning and offered to make bond for his wife.

TRIAL OF MRS. BESSIE SHARP IS UNDERWAY

SANDERS, Tex., July 20.—Initial efforts of attorneys to delay the trial of Mrs. Bessie Sharp, 29, on charges of fatally poisoning her husband to marry her lover failed here today.

District Judge Joseph Jones overruled a motion in behalf of Mrs. Sharp, contending that her daughter should be tried for insanity instead of murder.

"Bessie has been insane since June 20," said Mrs. Ivy.

TEXAS HAS MORE PEOPLE THAN COWS.

Bascom N. Timmons writes that the day when Texas has less than a cow per capita has arrived; that in 1930 for the first time since Texas was a republic, there were more people in Texas than there were cows on the range. According to the figures made public by the census bureau, there were 5,824,715 in Texas in 1930 as compared with 5,567,175 in 1920. Moreover in the decade between 1920 and 1930 the number of people in the Lone Star state increased by 1,360,540 and the number of cattle decreased 589,530.

Speaking of dairy cattle Correspondent Timmons says Tarrant county which supplies the Fort Worth and Dallas milk market led but barely pushed Harris county, which in turn supplies the Houston market, out of first place; Tarrant county having 21,150 and Harris 21,031. Dallas was third with 20,000 cows with 17,005; Bexar which supplies the San Antonio milk market was fourth with 16,486, followed by McAllen which supplies the Waco market with 12,805, and Grayson, which helps supply the Dallas market, with 12,354; Travis, which supplies the Austin market, had 10,968. Fayette, which gets into both the Houston and San Antonio markets, had 16,097; Jefferson county, which supplies the Beaumont and Port Arthur markets, had 5874; Potter and Randall, which supply the Amarillo market, had 1605.

Bascom N. Timmons is a Washington correspondent who knows his Texas, its people and its history, and why not? He is a native of the Panhandle country. He grew to manhood in the Panhandle. He invaded the newspaper business in the Panhandle. He won his spurs in the office of a county weekly, moved on to a Texas daily in the city of Fort Worth, had his try out and then marched on to Washington here he fixed a place for himself in the newspaper sun.

COL. GAW OF CHICAGO

Col. George D. Gaw was born in Kentucky. Twenty-one years ago he invaded Chicago with only a puppy dog and a lick of licorice to kill his appetite. Now he has been named Mayor Anton Cermak as an official greeter. Gaw must have been a quick traveler. In Chicago he piled up a fortune in a vast deal of popularity. He was made a colonel by a former governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky. There are more colonels in Kentucky than there are oil stock sellers in Texas. Col. Gaw will have at his disposal as official greeter snow white automobile and two white motorcycles for police riders to escort the distinguished guests of the city. Col. Gaw is loaded to the muzzle with argument. It is his viewpoint that Chicago is the world's best city. Chicago has 40,000 school pupils. Chicago has nearly 35,000 acres of forest preserve. Chicago has 18,000 acres of city parks. Chicago has 1700 churches. Chicago has 18,000 school teachers. Chicago has put away Col. Alfonso Capone. Now Col. George D. Gaw is to be in the headlines of the American press. He is a democrat and he has been named as the first fiscal greeter of the Wonder City of the Lakes.

STUDENTS PAY THEIR DEBTS.

Oklahoma is known as the "Sooner State." It is Dr. W. Bizzell, a former Texan who is president of the Oklahoma university. He has let it be known Lew Wentz student loan fund at the University has operated for five years, and this without a single student's note being charged off the books as being uncollectable. This is shown by the report of a university auditor. Loans totalling $50,992 were made 207 students during the last school year. Records of the Wentz Foundation, established for the aid of deserving students, now totals $134,600,556.

Lew Wentz is an oil millionaire. He is one of the general patrons of the university. He is a republican. Governor Murray does not fancy Wentz either as a personal friend or political enemy. While the legislature was on the governor ordered the university without gloves. Now the olive branch seems to have been accepted by all concerned. Governor H. has other fish to fry. It is petroleum this time. He believes that there should be a shut down of all oil wells in the northwest and he is patiently waiting for Texas to lead the way. Where is Cicero? In the not remote past he was in up to his ears. Now crude is selling as low as eight cents the East Texas field and Texas lawmakers are invited to vote the cross puzzle which affects the interests of tenets and the pockets of thousands who are engaged in theroleum game.

WATCHING THEIR THREE BILLIONS.

According to Washington advices American business men are three billion or more at stake in keeping close watch on German financial situation. Half this sum represents German investments in Germany, acquired since the world war. These figures compiled by the department of commerce do not take into consideration short time credit extended at one billion dollars. Americans hold a half billion dollars worth of bonds of government guaranteed corporations including banking and public utilities, and another investment to private corporations of all kinds totals $400,000,000. Americans own an interest in 78 German concerns and International General Electric company, the General Motors company, and Henry Ford are said to be in the three most important German concerns and branch houses. There is no means, it was said at the department of commerce, of ascertaining with any definiteness the amount of short term credit allowed German firms and banks by American banks and individuals, but this may run anywhere between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000. Before the coming of the World War men talked in millions. After the war it talked in billions. And the gold mines of the world are to be decreasing in output from year to year. As for silver, it will be as cheap as copper unless Senator Key Pittman of Nevada forces the restoration of the white metal and sets it on a par with gold. Senator Pittman is on his way to China to bring about its resurrection. What is needed now is a market for the surplus cotton crop of the South. Foreign buyers are needed and in the "good old days" Germany was one of the largest takers of the fleecy staple.

Some of the new movie heroes have no assured future, others are hated by every man who sees them.

The honeymoon isn't over if she mentions the change found in the cracks beside the cushion of his easy chair.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 N.E.A. Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia we have none, but aeronautical relations between the two countries are close and cordial. The governments do not even speak to each other, but each listens sympathetically when the other's flyers ask permission to fly over its territory and for any necessary help. O'Hara, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh wouldn't be able to make their forthcoming flight and Post and Gatty couldn't have made theirs.

You have to have permission to fly over or land on another nation's territory. Foreign flyers, when they head over the United States, even have to have the permission of every state governor, although the State Department handles that for them as a matter of formal routine.

Despite our government's continued non-recognition of the Soviet, long distance flyers have had to accord more recognition year after year. Russia covers such a large section of the earth's surface that it has been harder and harder to make any flight that would attract attention without crossing a part of it. Post and Gatty flew about 6500 miles over Russian soil during their great 15,500-mile flight. Next summer, it seems likely, someone will be attempting a non-stop flight around the world and that presumably will involve more Soviet co-operation than ever when Soviet planes are used to refuel the flight plane in the air.

Senators Cable Moscow
 Applications for Soviet permission are made here to Boris E. Skvirsky, head of the Soviet Union Information Bureau, who sometimes is referred to as Russia's "unofficial ambassador." Skvirsky transmits the requests to the foreign office at Moscow, which invariably acquiesces. For some reason unknown here Post and Gatty were at first refused permission, but the foreign office almost immediately reversed itself. Senators Thomas and Gore of Oklahoma had also cabled Moscow on behalf of Post and Gatty. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho has asked to introduce Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn on their projected world flight.

Communications about fuel en route are handled by the Amtorg Trading Corporation at New York.

The Soviet promptly granted permission for Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh to land during their cruise down the Siberian coastline after they cross Bering Strait en route to Japan. Lindbergh also arranged to land Japanese oil and gas on Kamchatka and will receive cooperation from the Soviet Aviation Society, the Soviet Oil Trust and the Soviet weather service. Although the national governments do not entertain visiting aviators, the flyers get enthusiastic welcomes just the same. Post and Gatty reported here that they received such welcomes during their five stops in Russia and the Aviation Society gave them a banquet in Moscow.

Aerial Reciprocity
 Most of the American-Soviet aeronautical relations have involved our own flyers, but several U. S. government departments—State, Navy, Treasury (with its coast guard) and Agriculture (with its weather bureau)—co-operated with the Moscow-New York flight of the "Land of the Soviets" two years ago. We saw to it that the Russians had their gas and oil waiting for them at the far end of the Aleutians, that they got latest weather reports and that their way was greased as smoothly as any government could grease it. Our mayors and governors welcomed them, they were cheered by many thousands and banqueted in New York. Our most famous aviators, including Lindbergh, met them when they landed at Curtiss Field.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE

That the merchants of your city are offering you the best variety of retail bargains ever offered. The extent and quality of these bargains are amazing.

You should always read the advertisements of your merchants before you buy. You can save money by buying from them.

You should never buy from a catalog or a peddler until you first price the same article at your home stores.

When you buy from home merchants you are sure of getting value received.

You can't send money away from home and then expect to sit and watch the home city grow. It won't.

Money sent away from home helps to build some other city and kills yours.

In order for a city to grow and its people to prosper, everyone must keep busy helping it grow.

A rainy Sunday afternoon did not keep the gun lovers from the regular weekly shoot on the American Legion Rifle club range just south of Eastland.

Representatives of Broadway America to Visit Ranger

A. German Hoefel, field representative of the Broadway of America Highway association, who is expected in Ranger soon, reports a most successful trip over the highway to Memphis in raising funds for the exploitation of the highway. Towns and cities all along the route have been quick to respond in meeting their quotas, based on population.

In Ranger, Mr. Hoefel will meet with local business men interested in increasing tourist travel through Ranger over the Broadway. An extensive campaign is now being waged to attract more tourists over the Broadway, the campaign being national in scope. "Business men all along the route realize the value of stimulated tourist travel," Mr. Hoefel advises. "Cities and towns are raising their quotas through chambers of commerce and service clubs. National headquarters of the Broadway have mapped out an extensive advertising and publicity program which is sure to result in greatly increased tourist travel next fall and winter over the Broadway."

Germany seems to be breaking its mark in the world.

Economic Policy Commission of American Bankers Association Recommends Aids to Progress in Banking Business.

FOLLOWING a nation-wide survey of banking conditions and efforts among bankers, the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association has made the following recommendations for banking betterment:

"Under the category of improved bank management specific improvements we might summarize are:

(1) Liquidation or consolidation of banks where changed local economic conditions render this desirable;

(2) Wider affiliation among state banks with the Federal Reserve System;

(3) Development of United branch banking where economic conditions and legal authority make this expedient;

(4) A more general practice, especially lacking among country banks, to analyze the cost of carrying accounts and other operating details and the establishment of proper service charges to make all classes of function profitable;

(5) A more general application of the theory and practice of secondary reserves;

(6) A revivification by banks of undue borrowing merely to increase their own profits by re-lending at higher rates, or to over-expand credit to local business in order to increase their own business;

(7) Cooperation among bankers in local communities through city or county or regional clearinghouses so as to promote mutually beneficial conditions and practices;

(8) The insistence upon higher educational effort and qualifications among employees, especially those to be trusted with executive duties.

and will supply real added defense to the public interests they are appointed to protect.

"(4) In connection with the policies of bank chartering departments, we would recommend that, even to a greater extent than is now the practice, the greatest care and moderation should be exercised in granting new charters, so as to guard against over-banking or the launching of new banks by unqualified persons, which have doubtless been serious factors in the bank failure situation in the past.

"(5) Also, referring to Federal Reserve practice not requiring legislation, we believe that the Federal Reserve Banks should exercise more freely their rights to examine banks and use their discretionary power to refuse rediscount facilities to banks indulging in objectionable banking methods."

Banker-Farmer Plan

An editorial in Southern Cultivator says: "Favorable comment is being made upon the wisdom and promised results of the farmer-banker agricultural program in Georgia. Industrial leaders and publicists, noting that 115 of the 161 counties in the state have pledged prosecution of the 'live-at-home' farm reform, are regarding the working out of the plan this year as of more interest to American farmers than any developments of the Soviet five year plan in Russia. Agricultural actuaries are of the opinion that if Georgia farmers, backed by our co-operating bankers and supply men, demonstrate the expected economies and profits of this home-support plan, it will quickly become a contagious custom all over the agricultural areas of the nation. It will be the writing of a new declaration of independence for the individualist farmers of the country, putting them upon solid terms of credit and prosperity without need of recourse to federal or state financial relief measures. The man of the soil who lives year in and year out 'on his own' will stand up in his community as an economic freeman, making his own terms with the world of finance and trade."

A meeting of farmers, bankers, and newspaper men of St. Croix County, Wisconsin, recently organized a drive to promote the growing of alfalfa in such quantity as to save the dairyman the expense of commercial feed, and insure greater dairy profits. It is planned in this campaign to have, within the next three years, at least one acre of alfalfa produced for each dairy cow in the county, or a total of about 40,000 acres.

Heart of Liane

By MABEL McLELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Cass Barrett, poor and struggling stock company actress, gladly seizes the opportunity to play
snooze - stock at Willow Stream,
a small Long Island colony. Here her daughter, Liane, meets Van Robard, handsome and rich. Cass shows alarm at hearing his name and begs the girl to have nothing to do with him. She promises although feeling a great attraction
for the man.

One night Van takes her with him searching for Muriel Ladd, de-butante who he believed to have eloped with Chuck Desmond, a reporter. The couple turn up later, and Elgie Minter, the company in-genue, informs Liane there is gossip about Van and Mrs. Ladd. The girl is heart-broken at the news.

Liane is left with the rich Mrs.
Cleespaugh while her mother goes on tour. Cass becomes ill in Philadelphia and Liane goes to her.
While in delirium, the woman bab-bles of a mystery concerning the girl's birth. Liane learns Robard and Muriel Ladd are engaged. Cass returns to the Cleespaugh house to convalesce. When Clive Cleespaugh asks Liane to marry him - a marriage of convenience - she accepts.

Mrs. Amberton and her sister,
Tressa Lord, visit the Cleespaughs.
Tressa is rude to Liane, determined to break off the affair between Clive and Liane. Van Robard makes love to the young girl. Clive tells his mother of the engagement and she is pleased. Tressa visits an university newspaper office and starts the wheels rolling in a plot to ruin Liane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIII
Thump-thump! Bang! The great drum beat out a jungle dirge and the saxophone wailed to heaven.
Occasionally the man with the brass abandoned his multiple instruments of torture and rose to add his nasal voice to the clamor.
The beat went on and on endlessly. Liane, dancing with Clive, felt herself grow limply weary.
Tiresome, the musicians labored on,
adding bells and cymbal to the accompanying.

Now the man with the brasses
was wailing mournfully. His woes seemed to be the woes of the world. No one in the Alexis Club
paid him any heed. The girls shuffled around in the arms of their
escorts, their young faces curiously mask-like in the shifting lights.
They danced without effort, almost without spirit. The music led
them a melancholy pace.

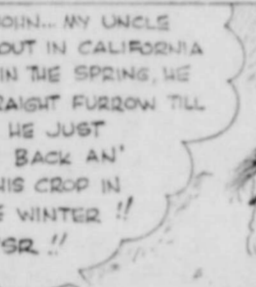

Liane thought, "This might go
on forever." Quite suddenly she wanted to scream. No wonder Mrs.
Cleespaugh had objected to the expedition. The girl knew in her heart that she was being fanciful

EVERY UNCLE JOHN. MY UNCLE

HE HAS HIS CROP IN
FOR THE WINTER!!
YSR!!

GOOD GRACIOUS...
YOU CALL THAT BIG?

HEY, OUT IN IOWA, WHERE I COME FROM,
IT'S 'TIL USUAL THING TO SEND YOUNGSTERS OUT TO GATHER THE EGGS—WHEN THEY GET BACK TO THE HOUSE, THERE'RE CARRYIN'
CROWN CHICKENS

WELL, ALL RIGHT.
IF YOU THINK YOU
CAN TELL A BETTER
ONE THAN HE CAN,
GO AHEAD!!

AN, SAY! THERE'S NO
USE IN YOU TRYING
TO GET THE BEST OF UNCLE JOHN.
OSCAR!!

BOY! I THOUGHT OF
THIS ONE
ALL LAST NIGHT.

seemed to be the woes of the
world. No one in the Alexis Club
paid him any heed. The girls shuf-
fled around in the arms of their
escorts, their young faces curi-
ously mask-like in the shifting lights.
They danced without effort, almost without spirit. The music led
them a melancholy pace.

Liane thought, "This might go
on forever." Quite suddenly she wanted to scream. No wonder Mrs.
Cleespaugh had objected to the expedition. The girl knew in her
heart that she was being fanciful
but all at once there seemed something curiously depraved in the atmosphere of this place. She sensed the grimness back of the waiter's
almost cringing, obsequiousness,
the threat back of the dinner-
coated captain's oily welcome.

"I'm slightly touched in the head," she said lightly to Clive as they threaded their way past innumerable tables at the dance's interminable end. "Does it seem to you that there is something vaguely menacing about this place?" Clive observed, "I had felt it myself. Never been here before. It's new and Tressa was anxious to come. She said Van recommended it."

"Oh, it's nothing, really," Liane

shrugged. "Just my imagination I suppose. I've been reading too many stories of battle and sudden death among gangsters."

Clive said thoughtfully, "I wonder."

Back at the table Tressa with young Lambert Hammond was sip-ping a pale amber drink and looking like a great lady on a slum-ming party. She was magnificent tonight in a sheathe-like frock of gold tissue. It fitted her as if she had been melted and poured into
it. Liane, in her white satin, felt like a girl graduate beside her.

"Oh, Clive," began Tressa animatedly, "I see the Wayne Hopkines over in the corner. Take me over like a sweet thing. Bert and Wayne don't speak, or I'd ask him."

Clive threw a swift glance to Liane. "Go along," she told him.
"Lordy, I am sorry," Tressa trilled sweetly. "I forgot to ask permission." She gave Liane a stunning smile and marched off to Clive's arm.

Liane felt suddenly very young and inexperienced. An older woman would know how to treat Tressa
she thought fiercely and indignantly. There was something deliberately cruel in her baiting. And yet the barbed shafts were so carefully placed no one else had taken note of them.

She said "I beg your pardon" to young Hammond a moment later.
"Want to try this one?" the laquid young man asked again.

Liane was rising with just the proper show of enthusiasm when a tall man, like a thin shadow in his black and white, glided up to the table.

"Mister Hammond?" he asked defeetentially. "A message for you.
The telephone." She sat alone at the table, fighting off that self-consciousness that attends the young woman left sans escort in a public place. It was strange, but she could not see Clive and Tressa anywhere.

Strangely, all the dark man who
had summoned Lambert to the
telephone was coming back to the table. He drew out a chair and without permission sat down.

Strangely, all the dark man who
had summoned Lambert to the
telephone was coming back to the
table. He drew out a chair and
without permission sat down.

Liane made one startled movement.

The low voice, persuasive yet
with a note of command in it, said,
"Sit still."

Liane did just that. In the mind arose a troubled memory of all the crime stories she had ever read.

"I'm picking you claws for seventh because the Phils can't be hailed out of that cellar. If the Phil could win a few ball games
you'd be eighth."

To which Uncle Robbie, in high duodecim replied.

"We'll have a better standing than you high hat Yankee when this season's over."

They Fooled Him
WELL, as it turned out, the Robbie won 86 ball games last year and lost 63. And the Yankees? Maybe you didn't notice it, but they also won exactly 86 ball games and lost 63.

Old Robbie came very close to making his prediction good.

This year the Babe says Brooklyn will win the flag. He said it even before the season started,
and the other day in New York he told me he had not weakened.

And why should he? Such power cannot be squelched forever. One of these days soon those large legs will start booming in unison, and things will be just too bad.

Liane sat, hands locked, staring out over the shadow of the trees.
She had put out her night light and, wrapped in her satin and elder-drown dressing gown, had curled up in the big chair to think.

What on earth should she do?
To have that silly old story dragged through the newspapers would surely kill her mother. Cass was so proud of her. And she herself had been, in that adventure, so innocent, so ignorant. Worlds away seemed that pleasure-starved young girl who six months ago had gone unthinkingly to dinner with Molly Cronin and "a couple of the boys." How was she to know the dinner would end in a brawl and shooting?

Step by step she reviewed in her mind the events of that fearful night. Cass's strained face...
Molly's impudence... Shane Mc-
Dermond's kindly Irish smile...

Shane McDermond! Why hadn't she thought of him before? Out of all the world there was one man who might be able to tell her what to do. Because of course the question of getting the money for these people was simply absurd.

Who were they and why had they decided to prey on her? She had heard of such things. She had known they happened in a big, wicked city. But that this should happen to her! Liane shuddered and began to tremble all over with fear and cold.

She thought, "I'd better crawl
into bed before I catch pneumonia."

And, thinking of Shane McDer-mond, she finally did fall asleep.

Babe Says Those Robins Will Win
LAST year Babe Ruth picked our ball team to finish seventh our manager, Uncle Wilbert Robinson, went over in the Yankee August one afternoon and asked him to explain that slander.

Our team, if you must know, is the Brooklyn Robins. It has been our team ever since the springtime when your correspondent was bewitched by the baning
of hats at Clearwater where Robbie had his men in training—was so beguiled in fact as to pick the team to win the National League pennant in this year of reverse prosperity, 1931.

But Why?
WELL, last year when Uncle Robbie called and asked the Bambino to tell him why he had named the greatest ball team Robbie ever managed to wind up perilously close to the eight-ball,
the Babe retorted:

"I'm picking you claws for
seventh because the Phils can't be hailed out of that cellar. If the
Phil could win a few ball games

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN

"Life" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 19.
The golden text was from John 5:26. "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Included in the service were the following passages from Proverbs:
"As righteousness tendeth to life—
so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death (11:19). In the way of righteousness is life;
and in the pathway thereof there is no death" (12:28).

These citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also read.

"By putting 'off the old man with his deeds,' mortals 'put on immortality' (p. 262). Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death."

Underground Still Discovered in Hunt

By United Press.
PHOENIX, Ariz.—A subterranean distillery fooled officers for months before being located by accident.

Police entered a shack on the outskirts of town. They were looking for a Mexican and located a trap door. The door led to a tunnel 60 feet long to an underground room where a 150-gallon still was in operation.

The still ventilator was poked
through the ground adjacent to a cottonwood tree. It was the most cleverly concealed still ever found in Phoenix.

Fish with all other delicious things to eat which form a perfect menu was enjoyed at this gay supper party. Paralytic Eager To Become a Laborer
 TEXARKANA.—List among the unsung heroes of this world the name of Douglas Harrison, 37-year-old painter.
 "Hard times" have dulled not a whit Harrison's ambition to work, despite the fact that the loss of two vertebrae have deprived him of the use of his body from the waist down. Harrison fell from a false floor in a building where he was painting and suffered an impacted spine. Surgeons removed two vertebrae, and kept him flat on his back for six months.
 A suit for damages against his employe failed. But Harrison finds some profit and much enjoyment in his garden which provides the family table with a quantity of food.
 Sinewy arms and hands were not affected by his fall, and Harrison is now seeking vocational training for a job, which would make him "the happiest man in the world."

Christian L. Thaulow, Concert Violinist and Composer Will Give Concert in Eastland

Christian L. Thaulow, pupil of Leopold Auer, concert violinist, composer and symphony conductor of note will give a concert at the First Methodist Church auditorium Saturday evening at 8:15.

Mr. Thaulow, a native of Norway, has been in America about a year. Most of this time he has spent in Dallas as concert master of the Dallas Symphony orchestra. At present he is head of the violin department at Simmons University, Abilene. He comes of a long line of musicians and composers. His father, a contemporary of Grieg, was a composer and violinist.

An interesting story is connected with the life of Leopold Auer and Christian L. Thaulow. When Leopold Auer was exiled from Russia, he fled to Norway and took refuge in the home of Mr. Thaulow's father. Here Auer lived, composed and taught violin for almost five years.

At his concert Saturday evening, Mr. Thaulow will play the difficult Brahms Concerto, which proves much too intricate for most violinists.

There will be no admission charges, and all music lovers are cordially invited to attend.

They give you what you want

If customers get what they want... they'll stick!
 It's no accident that Chesterfield wins and holds its smokers.
 Riper, milder, sweeter-tasting tobaccos and purer cigarette paper can't be bought.
 And Chesterfield cigarettes are made right. Each type of tobacco used in the Chesterfield blend must pass rigid laboratory tests for mildness, flavor and aroma. No purer cigarette can be made!

 Try them. You'll find every Chesterfield like every other. In taste, evenness of burning, smoothness and coolness.
 Milder? Plenty milder! And that goes for the "nightcap" Chesterfield as well as the morning "eye-opener"!
