DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Since the battle was started to deprive our disabled veterans of benefits granted them, much water has flowed under the Bridge of Time.

By such ridiculous inhumanity, is it possible that some can think we are progressing towards angelic happiness and prosperity? Has the full flowering of these ideas raised us in the moral scale or given us purer eyes and tenderer hearts? We are quite doubtful.

It is true, however, that the gentlemen so engaged do not deny the disabled veteran the right to breathe the fresh air or to count the stars in the Heaven while he counts the days or weeks until he passes to the Great Beyond.

Of course, there are all kinds of men in this country. Because a man eats without the aid of a fork is he necessarily a worse man than he who does not? If a man fights his country's enemy with a gun is he inferior to the gentleman who wears spats and sends a disabled veteran and his family to the streets because he cannot pay his rent? We think not.

It seems in this country we not only have a superior culture but a superior barbarism as well.

E. P. Clarke, editor of the Riverside (Calif.) Daily Press, says:

"America's slogan for 1933 ought to be 'Fear Not.'"

"That was the message of the angel who announced the birth of Jesus to the shepherds of Bethlehem; and the message brought comfort, hope and inspiration to the world. In this time of economic stress, we need the same message of reassurance and courage."

"We do well to remember that the resources of the country are not impaired. Crops are abundant and the industrial output is nearly normal. The problem for American genius is to find a way to bridge the gap between production and consumption; and we ought to believe that American genius is equal to that task. There is not only a latent consuming capacity for what we produce from factory and farm, but an accumulated need due to limited buying in the last four years."

"We ought to shake off the menace of fear and enter upon the year of 1933 with hope and determination. That attitude will help restore confidence and gradually bring back employment and prosperity. We have learned many things by the experiences that have been ours since October, 1929, and those lessons should form the basis of a sounder and saner growth for the future. We shall never go forward, however, as long as we are afraid. Let us face the future in the spirit of that Christmas message of old, 'WEAR NOT'."

Sues Max Baer For $250,000

There are so many problems facing almost everyone today, that it is a rare thing to encounter a man or woman of your acquaintance who does not have some account of a disappointment, a sorrow, a mistake, or confession of an error to make.

In these conditions, when one's own mind is filled with feverish thoughts, vague forebodings, and nervous unrest, the only consolation and solace possible is that of the deep and spiritual draughts, or long breaths taken mentally of the higher and firmer reliance upon the promises of God, and his teachings.

In a recent study of Chaldean history, and the glories of Assyria, where opulence, magnificence, and her final destruction and utter forgetfulness came there was so clearly proven the futility of merely personal ambition, purely physical adornment, and of aggressive warfare.

Nations swept away, harems of beautiful women, with languid grace is forgotten; halls of learning, sculpture, bronzes, all under the earth, over which the bare feet of passing slaves tread with never a thought of what had once been.

And so time passes on, and the crumbling of dynasties, becomes a forgotten thing, until resurrected through the efforts of some student.

And we face the crumbling of the modern bulwarks of civilization and society, and wonder how it all came about, what it all means, and why it all happened.

Great corporations failing, great men like Insull, whose name was once revered and respected Ivar Hreugar, and his far reaching philanthropies; based on ill gotten gains, what of these?

Is it strange that the better class of American citizens should strain every faculty, every nerve, to build up an ideal of truthfulness and honorableness for the future generations of American citizenship? And build it on a foundation that will not crumble, as did the glories of Babylonia, and be buried under tons of dust.

Build on teachings of morality, Christian character and high ideals; things not perishable, but that through their possessors, have already written a few names across the pages of American history.

Yes, if small home cares worry and harass your spirit, and seem to cripple your wings in their reaching for the upper flight; if business conditions seem to snatch the very bread from your hands, and the shelter from your head, then stop, look and listen.

Hear that small, inner voice, that whispers, "Put your faith in your Heavenly Father, and you may face the world with head up-right and a courageous heart."

DEUXIEME JOURNÉE
SHEILA SHEAR, 18, whose parents were well known vaudeville entertainers, in a dinner. After weeks out of a job she is hired to substitute for DANNY GLEASON, another dancer who has sprained her ankle. While rehearsing at JOE PAREN'S song shop Sheila meets DICK STANLEY and THEODORE LANE, both rich. Dick is much attracted by Sheila and urges Lane to include her in the program of entertainment at a party he is giving. Sheila declines to come but later accepts.

At the party she meets GORDON MANDIBAKE, well known producer who sees Dick frequently after that. Daisy returns to the show and Sheila again has a job. The show is successful. She has a part in a new play. Her parents begin to care. Sheila becomes friendly with BLAINE, one of the principals in the play.

They go to Atlantic City for the 17-act week. MARION RANDOLPH, the star, becomes jealous because of the praise Sheila receives from critics and therefore she is discharged. She is out of work for some time. Then she secures a part in a show that is giving an actor a chance. The new job will take her out of town so Sheila is given it. She is in a show with Dick. They go to dinner and while Dick is talking to the proprietor of the restaurant, Sheila goes to a nearby table and speaks to Sheila. He has seen her on the stage and praises her dancing. Sheila does not leave this stranger's name.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII
IN spite of all her protests Sheila was to need money before the rehearsal period was over and the play ready to start. She needed it to buy clothes, for one thing—nice serviceable traveling frocks and shoes. Sheila thoroughly disliked the cheap, high-heeled pumps the frizzled chorus girls wore on the road, their silk dresses and bargain basement coats. The fact that the girls couldn't afford better didn't change matters. They could have bought better things for the same price. They should have learned such things just as Sheila had learned them. Instead they laughed at the trim, tweed-suited girls they saw getting into roadsters to small towns, laughed at their sport shoes, the plain, expensive traveling frocks they encountered now and then in dining cars.

These girls in tweed suits were to Sheila the most enviable creatures in the world. She meant to show these members of small town aristocracy that she, too, knew how to dress. Perhaps some day she could live the life they lived.

IN spite of all her protests Sheila was to need money before the rehearsal period was over and the play ready to start. Sheila thoroughly disliked the cheap, high-heeled pumps the frizzled chorus girls wore on the road, their silk dresses and bargain basement coats. The fact that the girls couldn't afford better didn't change matters. They could have bought better things for the same price. They should have learned such things just as Sheila had learned them. Instead they laughed at the trim, tweed-suited girls they saw getting into roadsters to small towns, laughed at their sport shoes, the plain, expensive traveling frocks they encountered now and then in dining cars.

These girls in tweed suits were to Sheila the most enviable creatures in the world. She meant to show these members of small town aristocracy that she, too, knew how to dress. Perhaps some day she could live the life they lived.

Ma liked vaudeville or the pictures best but she wanted to take a look at "Sheila's young man." In Ma's fond imagination it was Jim, not Dick, who held first place in the girl's heart.

How Sheila hoped that some day she might buy something without wondering what to do with it when she packed.

Sheila needed money, too, to pay Ma Lowell. Of course, Ma would be willing, if she asked her, to let the rent bill wait. With a daughter of her own recently married out of the "Fritivolities" Ma knew all about the difficulties of stage life.

The daughter, as a matter of fact, had not married well. Dora's husband worked at something or other in the Village. Now and then Dora worked, too, acting as cashier in an arty sort of restaurant. Oh, there was no doubt that Ma Lowell had a soft place in her heart for girls trying to make their way in the show business! That softness would provide Sheila with a roof over her head but there were other expenses.

One of these was food. Sheila thought shamefully that she should not have turned Dick down so definitely. His luncheon and dinner invitations had been a tremendous help. Of course it wasn't really fair to put it that way. She went to dinner with Dick because she enjoyed being with him. To "sing for one's supper," as the girls called being agreeable to a dinner companion because one needed food, was one thing. To dine with Dick because she liked him was another.

Of course there was Jim Blaine. Frequently she dined with him. There were one or two others who called her occasional friend. With two invitations from Dick, two from Jim and possibly one other each week Sheila had managed fairly well. Breakfasts were inexpensive and she never ate lunch. It was hard to reckon in such a way but lots of girls did it. They had to.

Jim was making a hit in "When Lights Are Low." He had given Sheila tickets and she had taken Ma Lowell to see the play. Ma had enjoyed it. It was seldom she obtained passes except to vaudeville houses for most of the men and women who patronized her rooming house were in vaudeville. Once they had attained the heights of a Broadway engagement they were sure to move.

Ma liked vaudeville or the pictures best but she wanted to take a look at "Sheila's young man." In Ma's fond imagination it was Jim, not Dick, who held first place in the girl's heart.

"These play-writing young men!" Ma would sniff whenever Dick's name entered the conversation. "No good—any of them! Always behaving in their own, burning the lights all night, starring themselves or else moping off in a limousine too big to even speak to a person! They're all alike!"

Frequently Sheila saw Jim on Sundays when they would drive out on Long Island. The play closed at 11 each night and Sheila disliked late parties. Sunday, un-rushed, calm and deliberate, was their day.

They would take a lunch and drive out along the green Long Island roads, lined with streams and ponds and v. adding white ducks.

"There's the little home Glena Grayson built for her mother to keep her out of Hollywood," Jim remarked one day, motioning toward a house that far from the road.

"But mothers are in fashion in Hollywood now."

"Yes, mothers of the duchess type. Glena's mother isn't like that. We stopped there once to inquire about the road and spoke to Mrs. Grayson. Thought she was the cook! She's a nice old lady, though. And she looked comfortable in her cotton dress and house slippers, sitting in a rocker out in the yard."

Sheila laughed. It was fun to be with Jim. It was less of a strain talking to him than to Dick. There was one subject that came between them, though. Jim was a success. Not only did he have a job but he was receiving $250 weekly. Jim was making good and not a struggle like herself.

"I was out to meet my mother some day soon," he told her soberly. "They were seated beneath a tree near Long Island Sound. The splash-plash of the water reached them, and they could see the crowing of the breakers. The air held a faint salt tang."

Sheila looked dreamily toward a white sail far out on the horizon. "I'd love to," she said.

"She'd love to meet you," Jim's voice was nonchalant. "I've told her about you. She is at Montauk Point just now. I wonder if you'd care to drive down with me next Sunday?"

Sheila looked at him. "I don't think I like Jim Blaine."

To the Citizens of Ranger, Texas:

I wish to hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of mayor of this city at the coming election, in April.

In making this announcement and asking your support for this high office I have these statements to make:

A few days ago a petition was circulated in my behalf, however this was started without my knowledge or consent and when I learned about it I asked that it be stopped and secured the lists for various reasons.

I of course appreciate the interest and friendship of those who would sign such a petition, but if I am elected as mayor of this city I do not want to feel that I am under obligation to any one, neither do I want to feel that there is any obligation to any of my supporters.

I was not consulted about nor asked to attend a meeting of business men a few nights ago when a ticket was arranged and published for the coming election, however I do appreciate the favorable consideration of this or any other group of Ranger business men, as it was my intention to announce.

Concerning my qualifications, I would like to call your attention to these facts: That I have been a citizen of Ranger since August, 1919, coming here from Fort Worth after my discharge from the Army at the close of the war.

I am a property owner and taxpayer and I am a member of one of the oldest business and professional firms in Ranger, namely the Ranger Medical and Surgical Clinic.

During my residence here I have actively supported every movement which comes in any way be construed as for the best interest of the city and community. I have been active in organization work in this city and am a member of its important organizations.

I am now finishing my only term of office as your city sanitary commissioner during which I have been able to help bring about some changes which have been for the betterment of our city.

I am under obligation to no group or institution and if you should elect me to be your mayor I will serve to the best of my knowledge and ability and my actions will always be conscientious, unbiased and for the best interests of Ranger.

Respectfully,
HARRY A. LOGSDON.

St. Valentine Day Is Coming Soon

There's nothing that delights a hostess or wife quite so much as the preparation of a smart and differently prepared meal or party food. A hostess remarked to me not so very long ago, "I almost did a yodel or some such Alpine equivalent for joy, when I discovered by refreshment plate took on an altogether different appearance from any I have seen served at such similar affairs. To be different is the desire of almost every woman, individuality denotes personal charm and its pleasing results."

Dainty dabs of chicken mousse, sandwiches no bigger than your thumb, desserts that are too rich and waste of all, a menu that included dessert and nothing else are particularly favored for a Valentine's Day party. It appears that Valentine's Day in this country has really become ladies day, for after all they are the ones who receive heart-shaped boxes of candy, sentimental poems and fancy lace Valentines. Well, why not give every member of your family a break and real treat by preparing a menu they will all enjoy?

Another important feature to be seriously considered is your appointments to carry the full beauty of your Valentine table, and its delicious contents. Rose or red with perhaps touches of white or green are good colors to remember in planning your food.

Mrs. J. L. Reed included in social happenings last week was that of a very enjoyable open house party, held at the home of Mrs. Joe Dennis, Blundell street from 2:30 until 5:30 complimenting Mrs. J. # SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY, SEA Service Writer

WOMEN—No live near the sea coast and are versed in the ways of varying fish dishes make delicious and nourishing soups from fish. Many of these concoctions are little known inland, for with the exception of oyster stew, fish is seldom used as a basis for soups and broths.

Clam broth is easily digested and often appears on the invalid tray. It also makes an excellent first course for the mid-season dinner. There are many excellent brands of canned clam broth on the market and the busy homemaker will find them a valuable time saver.

Clam chowder is another nourishing dish that can be prepared in the home kitchen or purchased in cans. Fish chowders are almost a meal in themselves, and compare favorably with a meat stew in nourishment.

Scallop Broth
One pint scallops, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 cup water.

Wash scallops and cut in small pieces. Sprinkle with lemon juice and let stand 15 minutes. Add water and bring to the boiling point. Heat milk and add to scallop mixture. Add butter, salt and pepper and simmer just below the boiling point for 15 minutes. Strain and serve.

Cream of Scallop Soup
One quart scallops, 3 cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons lemon juice.

Reserve 1/2 cup whole scallops and chop remaining scallops and sprinkle with lemon juice as in preceding recipe. Simmer 30 minutes in milk. Rub butter and flour together to make a smooth paste. Strain scallop mixture. Thicken with butter and flour and add whole scallops which have been parboiled. Season with salt and pepper and make very hot. Serve with crisp crackers.

Shrimp Stew
One and one-half cups canned or fresh smoked shrimp, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour.

Melt butter and add peeled onion, minced celery leaves, carrot, salt and pepper. Simmer over a low fire until onion is tender. Sift over flour, stirring constantly. Add milk and bring to the boiling point. Strain. Return to heat with shrimps and parsley and heat thoroughly. Serve with a sprinkle of paprika over the top.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Halves of grapefruit, cereal, cream, country sausage, pancakes, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Shrimp stew, apple-celery-raisin salad, Boston brown bread, grape juice.

DINNER: Braised shank of veal with vegetables, stuffed sweet potatoes, broccoli with easy Hollandaise sauce, canned asparagus salad, chocolate pudding, milk, coffee.

2 1/2 cups milk, 1 small onion, 1/2 cup celery leaves, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons minced parsley.

Melt butter and add peeled onion, minced celery leaves, carrot, salt and pepper. Simmer over a low fire until onion is tender. Sift over flour, stirring constantly. Add milk and bring to the boiling point. Strain. Return to heat with shrimps and parsley and heat thoroughly. Serve with a sprinkle of paprika over the top.

Men Who Build Our Community

J. E. MERONEY, Ranger

When J. E. Meroney got out of the Army at Camp Travis he came to Ranger to settle down, arriving in the city on March 1, 1919.

He was first employed by the Parkersburg Rig and Reel company, erecting steel tanks. He worked at that job until A. J. McCarty, local manager sent him to Desdemona on May 17, 1919, as field foreman when the Desdemona field came in. He stayed in Hogtown until September of that year when he came back to Ranger as crew foreman of the American Tank company, building wooden tanks.

He then bought a truck and did trucking and contracting for himself for a while and in May, 1920, took the civil service examination as a postal clerk, going to work in the Ranger postoffice on June 9 as a temporary clerk before the result of the examination had been learned. He worked as a temporary clerk, his hours being from 6 at night until 6 in the morning, until the first of October.

The last day of 1920 he considers the most important date in his life, because on that day he got married.

On June 26, 1926, he was appointed as postmaster of the Ranger office, a position he has filled from that date.

He has been a member of the Lions club of Ranger since October, 1926, and has served as secretary of the club since Oct. 1, 1930, and was district secretary under the governorship of Horace Cuddey of Eastland in 1931.

In addition to his other activities he has been a director of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce since 1926 and was at one time a director in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is now serving as district chairman of the Ranger district of Boy Scouts, has been on the board of the Church of Christ since 1920 and was for two years a trustee of the old Tharpe Springs Christian college, resigning from that position when it was moved to Terrell.

Mr. Meroney has served on practically every civic committee in Ranger in the past few years and has been chairman of many of the committees that have been appointed from among the citizens for the betterment of the town.

F. M. KENNEY, Eastland
F. M. Kenney, one of the representative citizens of Eastland, may be said to have written his history in terms of study for the business he is in, that of druggist.

Mr. Kenney came to Eastland in 1929, and after four months' association with the Corner Drug Store, moved to Cisco, where, after a year's residence, returned to Eastland, not only on account of the family's fondness for this city, but as the best town in this section.

He entered the drug business years ago, working for Dr. Mann of Decatur, a pioneer druggist of Texas for 10 years.

He studied under Dr. Mann and then matriculated from Decatur Junior Baptist College, and later

PARIS.—For cocktails and afternoon parties, the Princess Pio, who was Donne Sveva Vittoria Colonna of Rome, chose a black crepe marocain dress with an open-work yoke resembling Richelieu embroidery and short sleeves with a border of the same design.

This lovely blonde bride also selected for her trousseau another gown in this same order in pale blue marocain. It had long sleeves with an intricate knotted movement just above the elbow. The yoke had the same open-work effect as the other model. The design was repeated in the belt of the pale blue gown.

Among the costs the Princess Pio decided on at Chanel's was a very practical traveling model in brown corduroy velvet. It was made with revers crossed over and buttoned at the waist-line. Another was of beige-wool trimmed with brown astrakhan. The sleeve, just above and below the elbow was trimmed with the fur in triangles and there was also a straight, tailored collar of it.

The evening gowns in this particularly youthful trousseau were gorgeous and yet very simple at the same time.

Hermit Woman On First Visit to City After 23 Years

ABERDEEN, Wash.—The "hermit woman of the Hoh," after 23 years on her frontier ranch near Spruce, has once again returned to city life.

It is the first time she's been away from her ranch since 1909 when she attended the Alaska-Yukon exposition in Seattle.

The "hermit woman," Mrs. John Huelson, was brought "out" by her husband when she developed a bad ankle and couldn't ride a horse. He rigged up a sled for her and hauled it over the Hoh trails.

Since being here, Mrs. Huelson has taken her first automobile ride.
