PROCLAMATION ON MORTGAGES IS REQUESTED

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—A resolution adopted by the house of representatives today urged Gov. Miriam Ferguson to issue a proclamation requesting mortgage holders to hold in abeyance, steps to foreclose for the time necessary for relief legislation.

The resolution recited that 42 per cent of owner-operated farms are mortgaged. A bill in the house to limit recovery on mortgages to the real state alone without judgment for an unadjusted balance, lacked only one vote of getting immediate action today. It was held up until a house committee can consider it along with other relief measures.

Ranger Legion Post Has a Big Surprise For Meet

Clint Davis, post commander of the Carl Barnes post of the American Legion, has announced that a big surprise program was in store for all who attended the regular weekly meeting Thursday night at the Ranger Legion hall.

Aside from stating that the program would be new, unique and would carry a big surprise, no statement was forthcoming as to the nature of the plans for Thursday night, but Commander Davis was emphatic in his statement that it was a program that would appeal to all who attend.

The program committee for this week has been working out plans for the entertainment feature and, with the exception of the committee and those on the program, no one knows just what can be expected, Davis said, though the program is one that will no doubt appeal to all and will send everyone away from the meeting with the feeling that it was the best entertainment that has ever been provided for one of the weekly meetings.

Eastland Lions Favor Retaining County Agents

An interesting session marked the Lions club luncheon Tuesday when varying talent presented by the program chairman, for day, Glen S. Stire and W. B. Pickens, brought Harley Sadler, who in turn presented a trouper pair of comedienne players, whose music was rich and unusual.

Then the White House Twins, comedienne and dancers, gave three tripartite numbers.

At close of this program, business affairs brought the passing of a resolution offered by B. E. McGlamery and unanimously voted asking the Eastland county commissioners court to discontinue with the Eastland county demonstration agents, whom they considered necessary to the welfare of this county. Statement was made there was a move on foot among some taxpayers to discontinue with the demonstration agents. Added information brought the fact that employing these agents cost the county only 74 cents out of every $1,000 collected; this for two agents.

Secretary Crowell of Lions club was instructed by President Harley Sadler to present a resolution to the commissioners court.

At close of luncheon Harley Sadler gave a fine but short talk on the necessity of the theatre and the church, that people should attend both and try to lift themselves out of this depression, thru change of thought and contact.

Farmer Is Held in Slaying of Witness

STEPHENVILLE, Feb. 1.—W. R. Cupp, Erath county farmer was held in jail here today, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of W. James Gamble, Dallas police officer, who retired after oil was struck on property he owned in East Texas.

Gamble was shot yesterday after he had testified at a divorce suit of Cupp. He died at a hospital here last night.

Newest Two-Horsepower Free-Wheeling Model

You can't raise gasoline in your own fields, but you can raise hay, and an old flivver can be made to run on hay. All you need is a simple attachment consisting of two horses. Hans C. Hansen of Audubon, Ia., proved that when he hitched his team, well-fed on crops he can't sell, to the old "buggy", and snapped the switch.

DON BURGER IS NEW MANAGER GHOLSON HOTEL

Howard Gholson today announced that Don Burger of Abilene has taken over the management of the Gholson hotel, having assumed his new duties this morning at 7 o'clock. Burger will have as his assistant H. W. Fuller, who is an experienced hotel man.

When interviewed this morning Burger said that he intended keeping the entire personnel of the hotel intact and would make no changes at present. He said he was glad to be in Ranger because he already had a number of friends here and had always liked the town and the people. He has extended a cordial invitation to the citizens of the town to visit him at the hotel and said he would welcome any suggestions that anyone might make.

Burger comes to Ranger well equipped to handle his new situation, having had a number of years' experience in the hotel business in some of the best hotels in West Texas. He is a graduate of the Abilene high school, went to Baylor university at Waco on completing high school and from Maylor went into the hotel business, which he has been following since 1923.

Both Burger and Fuller are enthusiastic over their new venture in the hotel business and the two have joined in extending an invitation to the people of Ranger to visit them at any time and become acquainted.

DON'T QUOTE ME

WASHINGTON.—The worries of the athletic manager of Sweetwater college, who must provide seats on the 50-yard line for empty thousand spectators at the big game, are much like the worries confronting Rear Admiral Carey T. Grayson and his inaugural committee.

Everybody and his brother, it seems, wants to sit in the reviewing stand when Franklin D. Roosevelt becomes president of the United States March 4.

It's the job of the admiral and his cohorts to allot the limited number of tickets where they'll do the most good—or at least—the least harm. The rest of the citizens will have to stand up and crane their necks to see Messrs. Hoover and Roosevelt shake hands.

The admiral's assistants hope he won't be held personally responsible for the neck straining.

Mrs. John Allen Dougherty has the same problem as chairman of the inaugural ball. Everybody's toes are sure to be stepped upon, no matter how large the hall, no matter how few—or many—tickets she distributes.

Robert Woolley, chairman of the badge committee, isn't in such a tough position. He's going to order plenty of official looking red, white and blue ribbons on souveniers, so there'll be lots of souvenirs for grandchildren to admire in generations to come.

Hammer Slayer Sought In Houston

HOUSTON, Feb. 1.—Charles Outlaw, 38, charged as the hammer attacker of four persons near Lufkin 10 days ago, was the object of a city-wide search here today after a woman reported a man resembling him came to her door asking for food. Her description of him tallied with police information.

Collector Receives Hangman's Noose

KALISPELL, Mont.—A hangman's noose which had seen actual service was among the Christmas presents received by Sam Johns.

Johns is a collector of historical items. His friends decided that a noose used to hang one Frederick Bebead, April 2, 1909, would make a valuable addition to his collection—so Christmas day there it was, dangling from his Christmas tree.

The Lebeau case was famous in Montana, partly due to the fact that Lebeau was convicted of murder and hung after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict that did not connect him with the death of Riley Youkam and his father.

The son and father were found dead in their cabin, apparently the victims of a murder and suicide affair in which the son killed the father, then himself. Lebeau, returning to the scene following the verdict, was arrested on the strength of a companion's testimony, tried, convicted, and hung.

H. P. EARNEST IS NOW RANGER TEXACO AGENT

H. P. Earnest of Ranger today took over the Texaco wholesaler agency for the Gorman, Ranger and Frankell area, buying out C. B. Pruet, who has been the agent in Ranger for a number of years.

The actual transfer of the business was made today with A. Kutchinbaker, representative of the Texas Company, and F. N. Caldwell, company auditor, assisting in the transfer. Mr. Pruet has not made any announcement as to what he intends to do now that he has sold the Texaco agency.

The new owner is well known in Ranger and throughout this section of the country and is an experienced oil man. He came to Ranger in March, 1918, as chief clerk of the production department of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, a position he held until the merger of the Prairie and Sinclair interests eight months ago.

Since the merger of the two companies Mr. Earnest has been looking over various business interests in this section with the view of getting into some business for himself and finally decided on the Texaco agency in Ranger.

In an interview today he said that as a resident of the city for the past 15 years, he has confidence in the future of the city and of the business he now manages and that he was glad of the opportunity to get something of the kind and remain in Ranger.

Warner Staggs Win From Randolph

The Warner staggs defeated Randolph junior college of Cisco by a score of 33 to 21 in a fast, rough game at Cisco Tuesday night. The score at the half was 20 to 15 for Randolph. The Staggs were slow in getting their scoring machine to functioning, but out-passed the heavier and slower Cisco team at all times.

High point man for the game was E. K. Kardatske, Warner forward, who made 12 points. McClusky, Warner center, and Kardatske, Randolph forward, were second with 10 points each to their credit.

The return game will be played at Warner Memorial college on Friday night, Feb. 10. The stage will play the Ranger Shoevaker team at Warner Friday night, Feb. 3. Warner has beaten this quintette by a single point in a friendly game; so this one will be worth seeing.

The banquet and program committees of the Ranger Retail Merchants-Chamber of Commerce joint banquet, met in the offices of the chamber of commerce this morning and worked out plans for the banquet, which is to be held on Thursday night, February 9.

Cudworth, above, chairman of the American Legion's Americanization committee, following her denunciation as "un-American" of a dozen organizations, including the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. She charged the church council and a dozen other "liberal" organizations were working to undermine Americanism.

The depression, of course, was blamed.

OFFICERS SEEK NEW LEADS IN BROWN SLAYING

DALLAS, Feb. 1.—New leads were sought by officers today in their search for two suspected slayers of Deputy Sheriff Joe Brown of Rhomb.

Unsuccessful in their trip late yesterday to Lake Worth, where it was believed Glen Hunsucker and John Stanton, suspected slayers of the deputy, might be hiding, peace officers today looked to old outlaw dens for possible clues.

A Lake Dallas storekeeper, who took a shot two nights ago at a Texas Ranger who was hunting the slayers, was back in jail today.

He was arrested a second time after he made threats against the Ranger, Red Hannah, officers said. He is in jail at Denton.

"So far as I am concerned, I shall continue to do my bit as a private citizen to aid my wife, the legislature and all other public officials in discharging their duties for the benefit of the people."

He congratulated the legislators, especially the 35 under 30 years of age, for the way they are working.

HOUSE VOTES IN FAVOR OF CAR TAX DELAY

Most of Bills Expected To Aid Hard Pressed Citizens of the State.

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—An avalanche of 343 bills, many of them relief measures for hard-pressed citizens of Texas, swept down upon the state legislature today.

The house voted 126 to 3 to extend the time for legally operating automobiles on 1932 license plates until March 1. The bill may reach the senate before tonight.

Senate Albert Stone has a similar bill to introduce in the senate but he may call for action on the house bill instead. Stone's bill would extend the period for automobile license payments at least 60 days.

Among the bills introduced today was one to relinquish penalties and interest due the state for non-payment of property taxes, two bills to prevent forced sales of homes for two years were introduced and another to give the right of redemption for two years after a forced sale.

Resolutions offered proposed that the state constitution be extended poll tax payment time to July 1 and to abolish the fee system of paying officials.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

DELIVERANCE AT HAND: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him.—Psalm 91: 15.

"WHEREVER THERE IS OIL THERE IS HELL"

"Wherever there is oil there is hell," according to Edward L. Dohney. This was his verdict after his invasion of the Mexican oil fields in the long ago. Well, the Texas house of representatives has authorized an investigation of the state railroad commission administration of conservation rules in the East Texas petroleum fields. Moreover, the oil and gas and mining committee of the house was empowered to subpoena witnesses and records and given the right to invoke rules of a district court in adducing testimony. Rep. Bob Long of the mid-continent petroleum district is responsible for the inquiry resolution which was approved by a vote of 76 to 56 after an uproarious debate. Oklahoma has an investigating committee, and Col. Cicero J. Murray, a relative of the governor of that name, is a star witness. Colonel Murray and his soldiers enforced the proration orders to prevent waste. Now the investigators are seeking to uncover what they call "nefarious practices." Of course, the taxpayers of Oklahoma will foot the bill. Col. Cicero will land right side up with care and Gov. Bill has announced his willingness to meet all comers—investigators or critics or political guerillas as well as those very enterprising Oklahomans known as "fire-in-the-rear warriors." Investigation appears to be the legislative order of the day everywhere. Taxpayers who are groaning under the burdens they are carrying will foot the bills. It appears to be the mission of a taxpayer to sweat and grunt and grunt and—then pay.

JOBS FOR TEN THOUSAND JOBLESS

Kansas City is an important American municipality. Kansas City has the manager form of municipal government. E. F. McElroy is the manager. He has fed hundreds out of his own pockets during the winter months. He has submitted to his city council plans for projects which will involve the expenditure of $1,000,000. He estimates the plans will provide jobs for 10,000 Kansas City citizens. As far as possible hand labor will be employed in the program. Kansas City, governed by Manager McElroy, follows strictly the policy of giving the available jobs only to citizens of the municipality. Now the jobs for 10,000 will be provided under "a ten year bond improvement program." This is a cheerful little earful and it is passed along the line. It demonstrates the difference between the old and the new. In other years the practical politicians ran Kansas City and dominated its government. Now the methods of city management by a real manager appeal to all the independent minded taxpayers of the second city of Old Missouri.

RAIL REVENUE SHOWS A HEAVY DROP IN TEXAS

Rail revenue in Texas during the 11 months ending Nov. 30, 1932, decreased $12,936,455 or 70.24 per cent compared with the corresponding period of the previous year. This is not in the nature of a cheerful little earful for the nature of a cheerful little earful for the rail executives or operators. Why should there be increased taxes in the face of decreased revenue for all corporations and individuals. Are the pledges given to the people of Texas to be redeemed by its lawmakers? Yes, "the proposal is on the knees of the gods."

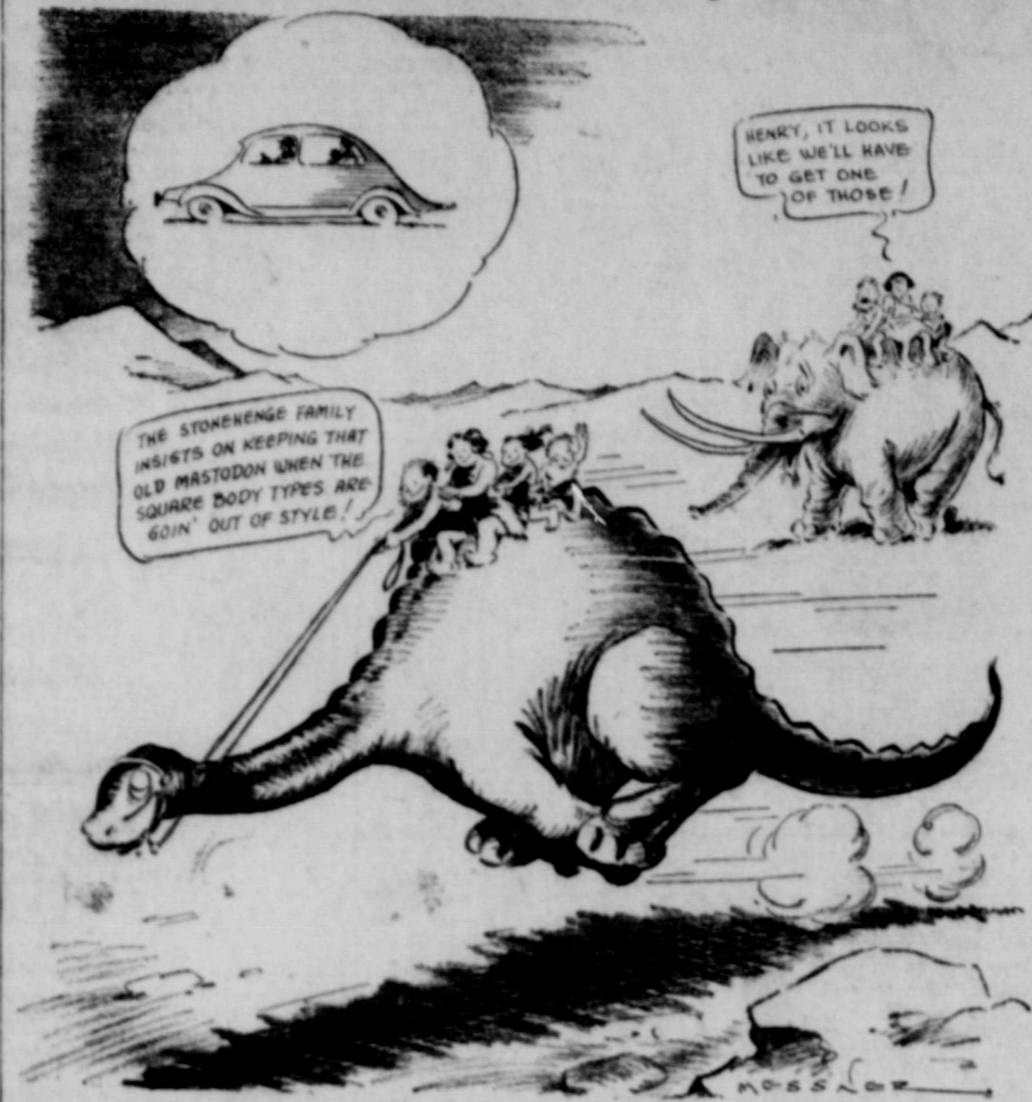

One of the best ways to cut down the cost of living is to buy from the merchants who advertise. They sell the best for less.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Among all the forecasts we Washington correspondents are making for 1933, there is only one sure bet. Everything gets tossed into the lap of Uncle Frank Roosevelt. Uncle Frank is not merely receptive. He is eager for it—eager for the most gosh-awful accumulation of aggravated, intensified, vitalized and toughened assortment of problems that ever confronted a newly inaugurated president.

We were given to understand that Uncle Frank would be pleased no end if this lame duck session of Congress would provide repeal of the 18th amendment, legalization of beer—with a tax on it—farm relief, through some such scheme as the domestic allotment plan, and a certain amount of budget-balancing.

It now appears that Uncle Frank was rather optimistic—that he had much more faith in Congress than has ever been justified in its past performances or is now being justified in its current performances. It now appears that we are not going to get any of those things, which means that they will be passed along to the special session of the 73d Congress which Uncle Frank will be calling some time after the fourth of March.

A REPEAL resolution seems hopeless since the defeat by the House. Beer, if it should pass the Senate, would almost surely be vetoed by President Hoover. The farm relief prospects are poor, what with the probability of veto. And Congress has shown little disposition toward any pretense of "balancing the budget."

Uncle Frank is nobody's fool and he realized such facts at least as soon as anyone else could be certain of them. So he is prepared to handle all those rather important issues by himself, along with such other issues as he was sure would have to be reserved for him in any event.

Among these latter issues is the problem of war debts, which the governor wants to take care of in his own administration, as he has made plain to Mr Hoover. Also among the issues to be held for Roosevelt appear to be those of unemployment relief.

There are also such matters as tariff reform, government reorganization, economy—featuring the Democratic promise of a 25 per cent cut in federal expenses, railroad legislation, the St. Lawrence waterway and the five-day week in government service which are going over into the Roosevelt administration.

BUT there is no question that Uncle Frank, regardless of how fervently he hoped that some of his favorite measures would be enacted at this session, is preparing for one of the snappiest, most active and most effective sessions of Congress this country has ever seen.

His agents and investigators now operating in Washington, officially and voluntarily, are so thick that you can hardly turn around without bumping into one. By March he should be as thoroughly informed on all phases and aspects of the government as any gent who ever stepped into the White House.

FAMILIARITY may breed contempt, but the fellow who knows his job real well these days is sticking to it.

Gulls Ride Tide To Save Energy

NEW ORLEANS, La.—A story of how sea gulls, tired and with their stomachs full after a day's fishing out in the Gulf of Mexico, have learned to ride home on the incoming tide at sundown and conserve their energy, was brought here by two employes of the state department of conservation.

The men, Forrest Durand and Gordon Gunter, spend their time trawling Louisiana waters for marine life oddities.

"We were anchored inside Barataria bay about sundown one evening when we noticed what seemed to be large patches of white floating in to shore," Durand said.

"The current there was pretty swift and the objects were coming in at a fast clip. When they came close enough, we saw that it was a large body of sea gulls who were calmly riding the incoming tide. They had evidently learned from experience that all they had to do was catch the tide and it would carry them home without effort on their part."

HERE--- AND THERE

By Elvie H. Jackson

Are you a believer in omens or signs? Tomorrow is "Groundhog Day" or what we as Americans term this day, the second day of February.

What is also called Candlemas Day, the day on which the annual commemoration by the Roman Catholic Church of the Purification of the Virgin Mary, takes place and on this day, the candles for the use of the church services through the coming year are consecrated.

This day is also observed by the Anglican and Lutheran churches in foreign countries. In Armenian a new sacred fire is kindled on Candlemas Eve.

In some parts of Germany, and other countries abroad, certain rites were observed on Candlemas day in order to insure good crops in the coming year.

It is odd that this observance dates probably to the reign of Justinian, with the first Candlemas observance in 542, and grew out of heathen festivals, held in the month of February.

Link these meanings together and you will get the establishment of Groundhog Day and Candlemas Day.

The word February denotes purification; at this time purification of the people took place following Christ. Then came the ceremony of lighting the candles and we have the origin of these Christian feasts which by gradual transition resolved themselves into church celebrations and finally a new held in the Roman Catholic churches as aforementioned.

Candlemas was an old English holiday and the study of colonial times will show that countless English fashions were transmitted to America through the colonists in the early colonial period and have become established American customs.

Groundhog Day as we know it popularly through the country is that day on which the little ground hog comes out of his hole on the second day of February and if he sees his shadow, crawls into his retreat again to hibernate for six weeks, which indicates a late spring.

If he fails to see his shadow, he remains out, for the spring will be early.

And so, if the day is cloudy and gray, we may know we are going to have an early spring, fewer gas bills, less cold, long dark nights and birds and flowers.

But if it is a sunny day, and his little woodchuck sees his shadow, then look out for your wood supply and save up enough from your dough, to meet the increased gas bills.

For the groundhog is that little woodchuck, a burrowing rodent, who is a vegetable feeder, and who burrows deep into the ground where he makes his home, coming out only to eat and then nibbling among vegetables and green growth, and scampering back to his underground hole.

He ranges from the Carolinas to Hudson Bay, from the Atlantic coast to Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota.

"Uncle Remus" has many interesting stories, in his homely versions of Groun' Hawg Day, that have entertained countless children through the artistry of Joel Chandler Harris.

Lil' groundhog doesn't borrow trouble, he just comes out, sniffs around, and if he is warned by his shadow duplicate, just quietly disappears from view, bobs down serenely, and bobs up again when things seem clear.

It wouldn't be a bad thing if human beings emulated the groundhog's example.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sheila Shayne, dancer, is discharged from a new play because Marion Randolph, the star, is jealous of her. Sheila searches for work and finally secures a part in a musical show soon to go on tour. Dick Stanley, rich and socially prominent, asks her to give up this job and marry him but Sheila refuses. Her idea of marriage is a home in a little town far from Broadway.

The company sets out on their tour and Sheila becomes friendly with Jappy, a chorus girl. In a little midwestern city Sheila meets Jerry Wyman, who works in a factory. She does not know that Jerry's father owns the factory. The young man takes her to supper after the performance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

Jappy shut the door of the dressing room behind her. "So help me, Sheila," she exclaimed, "I believe you're in love!"

"Cold cream jar suspended in midair, Sheila stopped short in her preparations before the mirror. Towel pinned firmly around her head, eyes critically considering her reflection, she spoke carefully.

"In love? Why, my dear Jappy?"

Jappy tossed aside her coat, ripped off her hat and, sinking into a chair, began to unfasten her strap pumps. She was late by recognized standards but, being roppy, she would probably reach the wings a good four minutes ahead of Sheila.

"That's what I said—in love! I've spoken to you twice and you haven't answered. And, speaking of love, who was the Romeo you were with last night? And the night before? And today at lunch?"

Sheila rose from the dressing table, fastening her headress, slipped off her kimono and drew her costume over her head.

"You'll be late," she warned the other girl.

"I'll make it. Just saw McKee getting in."

"McKee doesn't open the show." "I'll be on time. Jappy faced the mirror, spreading cold cream expertly, rapidly a dusting of powder, rouge, blue lines about the eyes. "What's his name, Sheila? You're beginning to worry me!"

In the mirror, without seeming to do so, she eyed her friend sharply. "Too bad we're leaving tonight," Jappy went on. "I'm not going to leave. I'm staying over. I'll make the jump Monday morning. There's a train."

"Oh!" The monosyllable was expressive. Sheila usually liked to spend Sunday in the town where the show played on Monday resting, shampooing, going over her wardrobe, doing her mending. To remain behind for Sunday, a dreary day among strangers, meant just one thing: Sheila must be very much in love.

"Who is he?" Jappy asked finally. "I can at least wish you luck."

Sheila told her his name was Jerry Wyman. Just a nice boy who worked in a factory. He had shown her the little houses where employes lived. Little houses with tiny lawns and gardens, ironing boards that went back into the wall, showers, electric refrigerators, every convenience.

"Did you discuss rents?" Jappy wanted to know.

"Doris Haynes married that automobile salesman we met in Carville," Sheila said irrelevantly.

"And Grace Gordon married a cotton millionaire. But you notice she's back on Broadway."

"The stage was all Grace cared about," Sheila protested.

"Five minutes," droned the call boy and for four of them conversation was suspended. In the flurry of excitement Jappy's shoes could not be found until she located them in the cretonne pocket of the dressing chair.

As Sheila waited in the wings she thought happily of Jerry. Yes, she was in love with him. She was sure of it.

She remained in Spencer until Monday. Jappy bade her goodby with warnings not to fake the country but too seriously. She was joking but with that sort of railleury which veils deeper meanings.

Sheila and Jerry had planned a picnic for Sunday. They would start a little late for picnics but early, Jerry said, for stage people. Jerry had to attend church with the family. Sunday dinner was a family rite, too, but he said he could escape that. "Just this once," he told Sheila.

He had not told her much about his family. She guessed, in spite of the insignificant car he drove, that his family was important. She guessed that there were other cars but that this one was Jerry's to do with as he pleased.

Sheila ordered lunch for two packed at the hotel. The head waiter raised his eyebrows as she ordered and promised to see that everything was as it should be. "I'll make it," Jappy said. "I'll be on time. Jappy faced the mirror, spreading cold cream expertly, rapidly a dusting of powder, rouge, blue lines about the eyes. "What's his name, Sheila? You're beginning to worry me!"

By 1 o'clock she and Jerry had parked the roadster and were seated by a brook far from town. Oh, yes, Sheila was in love with Jerry. She liked the way he moved as he leffly laid out the lunch and broiled the steak which he had added to the feast. Sheila understood that his acquaintance with woodland picnics exceeded her own.

He laughed when she tried to balance her plate on her lap, brought her water in a paper cup to serve as a finger bowl, dried her hands on his huge handkerchief and then abruptly swung himself beside her. As abruptly he kissed her.

"Do you love me?" he whispered. Two bees were circling about the remains of the case and Sheila fastened her eyes on the abandoned improvised table.

"You know I do." "Sure!" His teasing blue eyes held hers now.

"I'm sure—but what will your family say?" "What can they say, darling?" Even as he kissed her again Sheila felt a little coldness about her heart. He had evaded the question. All that week he had evaded any reference to his family. She did not know anything at all about them. To be sure his manner, his clothes were impeccable but that told little. She recalled some of the leading men she had known in the theater. Occasionally one saw a humble father, an overworked little mother, with confusion and pride blending in their faces as they watched their handsome son.

Sheila was an aristocrat in her own sphere but it did not matter to her from what stratum in society Jerry came. She loved him and that was enough.

He had said, "What can they say, darling?" Later he said, "They don't need to know." She was inexpressibly hurt at that. Jerry had implied that his family would look down on her because she earned her living on the stage. It was not that he had said those words. Had he put it to bear?

"But," she faltered, "they'll have to know some time, won't they?" "Please, Sheila—why should we bother about my family? Let's just think about us."

There he was evading questions again. It did seem as if he would want to tell her about himself just as she had told him about herself.

"You've never mentioned a beau," he pointed out once when she was talking of rehearsals. Ma Lowell's rooming house, her father and mother, her early life.

"I've never had a beau." "What Sheila wanted to say was, "I've never been in love before, but she did not say it. Somehow it did not seem quite the admission to make.

At dusk he brought her back to the hotel. This disappointed her. He had originally planned that they should dine together some where and ride through the moonlight, arriving back in town much later.

Samaritans Aid Then Arrest Man

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—The hand that helped Allen Cook there recently turned the tables and bit him. Cook was searching diligently about his premises when two strangers came upon the scene.

"Sure," Cook answered. "Come on. I'm looking for some liquor I hid the other night. If we find it, I'll give you a couple of snorts."

The two strangers found three quarts. "But that's not all of it," Cook volunteered. "There's lots more around here."

Further search failed to disclose more whisky, however; so the two strangers revealed their identity. They were undercover federal prohibition investigators, and Cook is in jail awaiting trial on charges of possessing whisky.

"I'd like to but I'm tied up at home," was his apology. "But I'll see you again!" Sheila spoke timidly. For answer Jerry tilted her head back, holding his finger tip to her chin, gazed mischievously into her eyes and kissed her.

"Sweet thing you know, I'll phone you about noon." He did not phone about noon. Sheila's train left at 1:20. She packed, called a cab and went to the station alone.

Let's look at the cigarette advertising trick called "Heat Treatment." All cigarette tobaccos are treated with heat. But it is not from "heat treatment" that a cigarette gets flavor and mildness. Mildness, flavor, throat-ease—all come from the use of costly, ripe tobaccos. It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos than any other popular brand. Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette. Smoke Camels, and enjoy the fine delicate flavor of costlier tobaccos.

Booster Class
Will Entertain

The booster class of the Methodist church Sunday school enjoyed a wonderful lesson given by Judge W. P. Leslie at their class meeting Sunday morning, opened by Mrs. W. W. Phillips in the absence of their president, with a voice solo, "My Father Watches Over Me" (Gabriel), beautifully interpreted by Miss Lillian Thompson, with Mrs. Sam G. Thompson as accompanist.

Judge Leslie dwelt on observance of the Sabbath day, and brought out points that each individual has a different manner of spending the Sabbath, which is done according to their individual needs; but that all such methods of observing the Sabbath should be such that they would meet with the approval of Christ.

During a brief business session the class planned a social for Saturday afternoon, 3:30 o'clock, in their classroom, honoring Mrs. Joe C. Stephens, Mrs. F. J. Nicholson, and Mrs. Garner Kinard, long faithful members of the class.

Those present, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williams, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Kelly, Mrs. J. C. Patterson, Carl Johnson, Frank Hightower, W. W. Phillips, Neal Moore, J. C. Creamer, Milton Lawrence, B. M. Collier, Misses Lillian Thompson, Lesbia Word, Aileen Walker, Jessie Lee Ligon, and J. Frank Sparks.

Dragon Recital
Delightful Event

The dragon student recital in violin and piano, again drew a crowded house, in the auditorium of the Methodist church, Tuesday night.

The scene was a most attractive one, in a background of ferns, flowers, and shaded lights, and the group of eager young folk, charmingly dressed, and who in their individual numbers were delightfully presented by Wilda Drago.

The violin chair of 18 members artistically group, charmed their audience with the smooth and even music which ran the schedule through classical grades.

Each one presented played their part exquisitely and the entire evening was one long to be remembered.

Little Card Club
Entertained

Mrs. Alex Clark was an informal hostess Tuesday to the regular meeting of the Little Card club, entertaining with a two-course luncheon at 1 o'clock followed by two tables in contract.

The sessions are always very simple, and the interest is in the game only, there being no prizes awarded.

Club members attending were Mrs. Carl Angstadt, J. H. Cheatham Jr., Theodore Ferguson, P. G. Russell, Mrs. McCurray of Cisco, and hostess, Mrs. Alex Clark.

Guests substitutes for absent members were Mrs. Aubrey Cheatham and Mrs. Bess Chastain Terrell.

Elks Club Dance

Eastland society turned out en masse for the dance at the Elks club last night, when prominent young people were there as well, from Cisco, Breckenridge, Ranger, Gorman, Desdemona, and even Dallas, all enjoying the wonderful music by the Pearson 11-piece orchestra whose strains are familiar to many radio listeners.

The entire power plant club attended and a number of prominent Eastland chaperones were in evidence.

The dance was sponsored by Odell Grubbs, who stated there was an attendance of 160 people.

Knights of Pythias Meet

The Knights of Pythias had their installation of officers called off until next Tuesday evening, by Chancellor Commander Artie Liles, as several of the incoming officers were absent at Tuesday night's session, and Karl K. White, confined to his home on account of illness.

There were 14 members present, who heard fine talks from Knights Tom Lovelace and Rev. O. B. Darby.

Third rank work will be conferred next Tuesday night.

Miss Wilma Beard
Entertained

Miss Wilma Beard was hostess to an informal evening Saturday at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Beard, entertaining with 7 o'clock dinner and the Lyric theatre afterwards.

Miss and Mrs. Maddox, Miss Jean Williams, and Mr. Orville Higgs of Ranger, and J. Hollis Clark of Talaha, who is visiting Cisco friends. The table, laid in modern style, centered with lovely white flowers and place were indicated with white cards. Lighted rose bouquets further enhanced the delicacy of the setting, of the appointments, and serving of the three-course dinner.

Miss Beard attended a dinner party in Ranger Tuesday night at the home of Miss Crystell Head, when the table appointments were carried out in the gold and white motif, and other guests were Mrs. and Mrs. R. L. Maddox, Miss Wilma Beard, Messrs. Orville Higgs, and Bobby Cowell. The evening was spent in delightful games and charming music.
