President Roosevelt broadened his conferences today for a three-hour conversation between himself, Prime Minister MacDonald and former Premier Herriot. Herriot came into the situation sentimentally. It was learned that he had agreed to the conference should consider the practicability of utilizing silver as a supplementary money medium. DOWN ON THE RIO GRANDE

There will be an election held in the 15th congressional district in mid-April to elect a successor to Vice President John Nance Garner. Carlos Watson is in the race as the rival of Milton West, the democratic standard bearer. Carlos Watson is a Brownsville attorney of note and standing. He is a republican regular, and never been known to stray off the G. O. P. reservation. In this race he is sailing under the standard of an independent, which is good politics of the practical kind.

Milton West defeated Gordon Griffin in the run-off by a large majority. Word comes from the Garner district that the republican national committee is neither dead nor sleeping; also, that a handsome campaign contribution to push along the cause of Carlos Watson has or will be sent to the district where it will do the most good.

All this has caused the democratic campaigners to do some extra bustling. They are planning to get all real democrats, speaking of regulars and those "who bow to the will of the majority," to the polls on election day. They express confidence now that Carlos Watson and the democratic irregulars will find themselves buried outside of the political breastworks after the ballots have been counted.

It would be something of a knock on the nose for the democratic donkey for the ancient Rio Grande district to return a republican to the seat in the house held for 30 years by the democratic vice president of the United States. All is said to be fair in love and war and politics. If the high aces of the republican national committee should put it over it would give the followers of Thomas Jefferson a shock that might be lasting for years to come in the political campaigns of Texas.

Let's we forget, "Milton West resigned his seat as representative from Cameron country. It is said there are 16 democrats of all brands, regulars and mavericks included, who will be in the race to win the vacant shoes of West on election day. Are democrats hungry for office, or are they just patriotic, ever willing to sacrifice their special interests on the altar of liberty as nation saviors?"

UNCLE SAM UNLOADS HIS CASH WHEAT

Uncle Sam has unloaded all his cash wheat. Yes, two years ago the farm board owned about 325,000,000 bushels after its effort of 1929 and 1930 to peg grain prices. Also, it had possession of approximately 3,500,000 bales of cotton. Well, the new farm board, bossed by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., no longer holds cash wheat except the amounts that have been ordered to be turned over to the Red Cross. It no longer has cotton for sale, the Red Cross having been given the last of its holdings. Watch the ticker. Wheat hit a new depression price high mark April 19 and a cotton economist predicts that there will be a smart advance in the price of the fleecy staple before the coming of the month of August. Keep a weather eye on the procession said to be "coming around the corner."

KARL CROWLEY IN THE PICTURE

Cato Sells of Fort Worth lost out in his quest for the Indian commissioner prize, but Carl Crowley, Fort Worth attorney and oil man, is said to be slated for a federal plum. Karl is a Tennessean, having moved to Fort Worth 15 years ago. Moreover, a noted Washington correspondent has advanced the information that "Crowley is a close, personal friend of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, having managed a campaign for Hull when the latter was in the senate." After plum picking time is over the cotton picking season will be pushed in under the skies of Texas and there will be many jobs for the jobless.

When days are dark and dreary,
 dear,
 And you are feeling blue,
 Just stop, and though you're weary, dear,
 Remember, I love you.

And when your path seems steep,
 dear,
 And it seems no one is true,
 And though you cannot sleep,
 dear,
 Remember, I love you.

And when you think that life,
 dear,
 Is not worth all the living—
 Through troubles and through strife, dear,
 My love to you, I'm giving.

And though I'm far far away,
 dear,
 —In everything I do—
 In everything I say, dear,
 I hold my love for you.

So keep my love, and hold it, dear,
 Don't ever let it go;
 My heart in yours enfolded, dear,
 Because I love you so!

they've just got to be right

Each and every Chesterfield!

Each tray of CHESTERFIELDS from the cigarette-making machines passes under the watchful eyes of inspectors, trained by long practice to see flaws such as an end of torn paper, or a poorly filled cigarette.

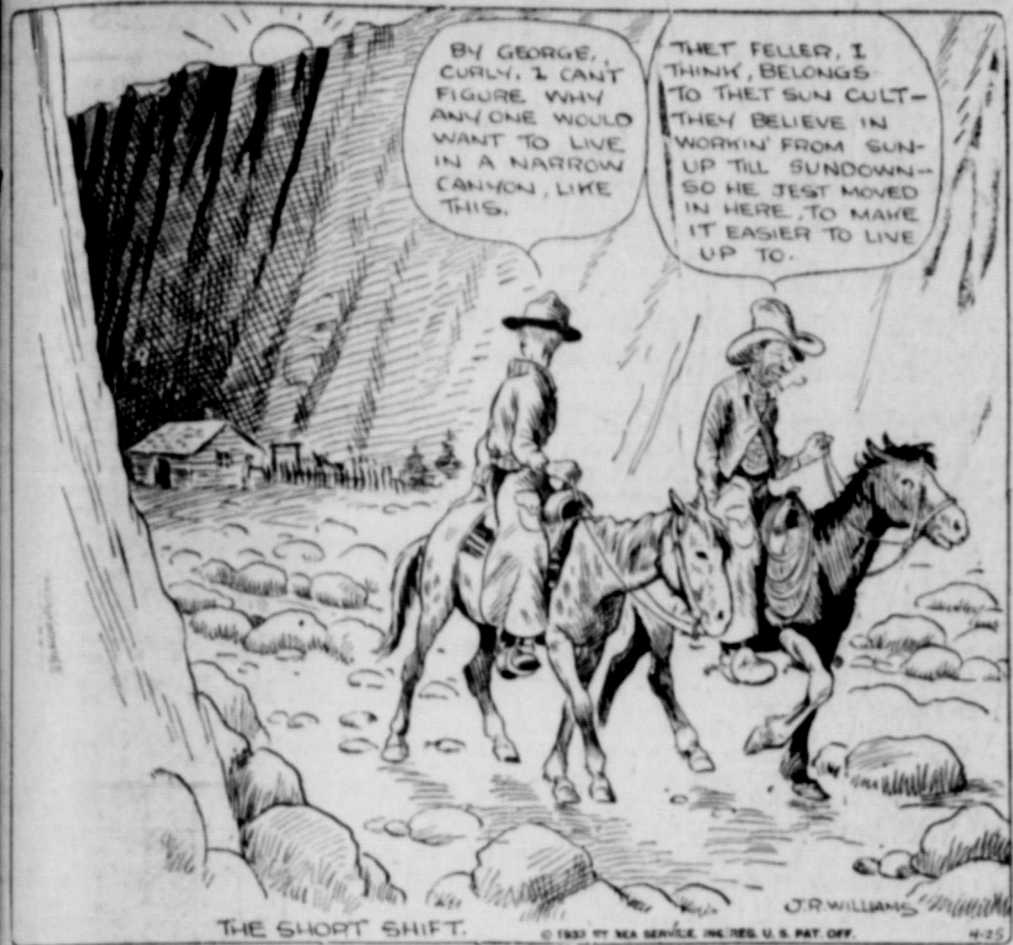

And there's still another safeguard... two "electric detectives" on each packaging machine. Electric fingers "feel" each end of every cigarette, and throw out every imperfect package.

Open your pack of Chesterfields, and look at them. It's no accident that every cigarette is round, firm and full. Somebody's been on the job every minute to give you what you want... a cigarette that's made right in every way and that's milder and tastes better.

End-on, this tray-full of fresh-made Chesterfields looks like a huge honeycomb. Inspectors, expert from long practice, remove with tweezers each torn or imperfect cigarette.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MONICA O'DARE, beautiful, poor and 28, is in love with DAN CARDIGAN who belongs to one of Belvedere's rich families. Monnie works to help support her mother, her younger sister, KAY, and brother, MARK. When BILL, an older brother, is arrested at the garage where he works Monnie goes to his aid. She gets in touch with CHARLES ELSTACE, handsome newcomer to town who she is sure will help her. Bill, obstinately wishing to keep out of his trouble the name of the girl he was with when the robbery was planned, refuses to talk. The girl, ANGIE GILLEN, rushes to him and helps clear his name. Monnie learns Angie is about to be divorced and will then marry Bill.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
CHAPTER VII

MONNIE was writing down a prescription number for old Mrs. Beadle when she heard his voice. Her heart began to hammer against her ribs and she felt the warm color surging into her cheeks. Angriely she took herself in hand. When she turned around, after serving her customer, she was quite composed.
"Hello, Dan!"
"Lo, Monnie."
He was in one of his best moods today, she could see that. He looked splendid in his riding clothes, sure to make the loafers on High street nudge each other and stare. Garbaldine breeches, sleeveless tan sweater, carelessly knotted brown tie with a gold pin in the shape of a crop.
"Haven't seen you in ages," he told her lightly.
Monnie said, "No, Dan."
"I've been out of town," Dan went on with importance. "Dad had some business in Chicago I had to 'tend to.' He lowered his voice and it took on the caressing note Monnie knew. "Missed you, sugar," he said.
It wasn't much, but from Dan this meant a lot. She tried not to be elated but she was. Dan had missed her—he was telling her so. Why, it made everything different, made the shop, the street, the whole town, come suddenly alive.
She straightened a case of powder boxes with trembling fingers and smiled at him. "Nice of you to say that, Danny. I've been frightfully busy."
Just so he wouldn't think she'd been sitting at home waiting for him, that was well, it was true too. She had been busy.
He ordered some cigars and paid for them. Somehow during the transaction he managed to get possession of one slim hand.
"Monnie, honestly, didn't you even know I'd been away?"
She glanced at him nervously, glad there was no one in the store except Mr. Vernon himself, busy at the soda fountain.
"I've been rushed, Dan. Didn't you," her voice grew serious—"didn't you hear about that difficulty of Bill's?"

"Monnie," he said, "honestly didn't you even know I'd been away?"

confidential and in spite of all her pride and resentment her traitorous heart responded to it. But she was not to know, that day at any rate, what Dan wanted to say to her because at that moment an imperious young person in the coolest and freshest of summer white bore down upon them.
"Dan, don't you know Mother's waiting? You said you'd be only a moment." His sister, Geraldine, Monnie's face for a moment. She was cool, distant, self-possessed.
"Oh, how d'ye do?"
Monnie acknowledged the salute with a slight bow. You never would have suspected that before the days of the O'Dares changed fortunes these two had linked arms together at juvenile dancing classes. Geraldine chose to ignore Monnie nowadays because Monnie clerked in a drug store and had only one new dress a year.
"Sandra will be waiting," Dan's sister continued. "She said to be there at one and you're not even dressed."
Dan relapsed into his old dejectedly sullen air and followed her out of the store. Not before he had said, very low, "I'll be seeing you soon, Monnie."
She raged in her heart. So that was the way of it! He hadn't the courage to face his family with the fact that he loved her. He expected her to be content with scraps of comfort, with whispered words now and then. Well, he was mistaken! There was a pain in her chest just the same, a stricken sense of having been cheated. Sandra would see him at lunch. They would laugh and chat about nothing at all. And Sandra didn't care in the least about him—or did she?
This was a thought Monnie had been pushing into the back of her mind for weeks now. Oh, it was folly—it was utter madness! Sandra knew men in every quarter of the globe. Why should she fix her attentions on Dan Cardigan? Just because she, Monnie, thought him the handsomest, most devastating male in the United States was red away, his spectacles pushed high on his forehead. He was a kindly, middle-aged man, Mr. Vernon. Belvedere referred to him as "an old bach." Monnie had no idea of his age, but roughly put it at 50. He was unfailingly kind to her and in return she gave him the best service she knew how to give. She had never known how to thank him for letting her have this job.

She filled Mrs. Burke's order, observing that Donny, the boy who attended to the soda counter, had his hands full. The high school boys and girls often came as far as Vernon's for their ham sandwiches and chocolate malted milks. No need to look for Kay. Kay "took" her lunch eating it, longing to join the gay ranks thronging to the "hot dog" wagon across the way. But it would have been too severe a drain on the family purse to let Kay buy her lunch every day. Monnie sighed again at the recollection of this one last restriction the O'Dares were subject to. Oh, it was difficult to be poor, and so r-lstake about it!

PRESENTLY she was free to leave for her own mid-day meal. She washed her hands at the little "hot dog" wagon. The back room. Mr. Vernon had already snatched a bite at the counter, during the lull. She glanced at herself in the cracked mirror over the bowl. She looked, she thought, pale and dragged. No wonder Dan preferred Sandra's company to hers. Sandra was always gay and witty and well dressed, rosy with sun-tan gained on the links and the tennis court.
A sort of spiritual nausea swept over Monnie with this wave of self-pity. "I hate all this," she cried rebelliously in her soul. "I must find a way out."
All the way home she thought persisted. People said often that if you wanted a thing—long enough and hard enough—you got it. Well, she would try wanting. She made a wish, like the heroine of half a hundred fairy tales, for happiness. "I don't care how I get it or when," she murmured. "But I want to be happy before I'm old."
By happiness she meant, in the way of the young, pretty frocks, someone to admire her, excitement. Most of all she desired freedom from this love bondage which had been like an illness since she first laid eyes on Dan Cardigan.
But try as she might she could not banish anger from her heart—anger and a sense of betrayal for Sandra Lawrence. Sandra pretended to be her friend. Sandra knew how she felt about Dan and yet seemed to be doing all she could to undermine Monnie with him.
"She says she doesn't care a thing about him," Monnie reminded herself. "I wonder!"
"What's the matter, daughter? You don't seem to have any appetite!"
Her mother, sitting opposite her at the dining room table, eyed her anxiously. Monnie roused herself to smile.
"It's pretty hot. I guess that's it."
"I'll have cold things for supper," Mrs. O'Dare said. "Just a salad and some cold meat and—"
The shrilling of the telephone interrupted her.
"I'll take that, Monnie. You finish your lunch."
She was back in an instant, her pale face a trifle flushed. "Monnie, someone for you. It's Mr.—it's Dan Cardigan."

Southern Farm Aid to Students

BATON ROUGE, La.—Ninety youths are farming their way through Louisiana State university here.
A 20-acre farm has been started near the campus, where the boys, not necessarily agricultural students, may earn part of their college expenses by planting and caring for crops.
Less than half of them are in the college of agriculture; there are students in commerce, arts and sciences, and even in protective law on the farm; yet each is as much interested in crops as any farmer.
Previously the farm had been operated by the agricultural school, and this is the first year that it has been turned over entirely to students as a means of helping them earn money.
The pride of the farm this spring is a three-acre patch of strawberries, which Sewell Bahm, farm agent of Tangipahoa parish, said was one of the best in the state.
Most of the produce of the farm is sold to the college cafeteria and to members of the faculty. Some of it is shipped. Students work on the average of 18 hours a week and are paid approximately $20 monthly.

Sea Lion Prefers To Stay On Land

NELSCOTT, Ore.—Old Joe Sealion likes dry land better than the ocean because you can climb people's fences and lock them in their homes by lying in front of the door and you can't do that down amid the waving kelp fronds.
Old Joe has attracted thousands to see him at the beach here. He came on land first, all 1,200 pounds of him, when some men tied a rope to him and dragged him ashore. Now he won't go back to his native haunts, but prefers to climb and break down the highest picket fences in Nelscott.

HEALTH RECORDS KEPT

When children, who started to school this year, graduate from high school they will be presented with a card showing their physical condition as well as their mental rating throughout their years of training.

LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, yellow complexion, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can get rid of common constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Usually, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Some tablet-patients daily will overcome most types of constipation. Success cases, with every mail, if not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Order ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appending recipes and the standard package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Program representatives included Mmes. Fletcher, O. L. Phillips, M. H. Hagaman, J. A. Strackerford, Mrs. C. E. May, and Mrs. Lewis Pitcock.

The next lesson will be given on the afternoon of May 4, with Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, leader in charge of the continuation of the subject, "China and Japan."

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT. United Press Staff Correspondent. ## Eastman Heir Pleads Poverty

George Eastman Dryden of Chicago, who receives a $100,000 trust fund from the estate of his grand-uncle, the late George Eastman, camera manufacturer, has pleaded poverty in answer to his wife's suit for temporary alimony of $250 a week for herself and two children. The Drydens are shown above as they appeared in court.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Stocks are still encouraging us, our president has exhibited another admirable feature by discussing problems with the French statesman, Edouard Herriot, in the latter's own language minus an interpreter, and we've forgotten personal worries long enough to remember May 1-9 is National Child Health Week. Better times!

Having discussed and apparently settled everything with the British Prime Minister, President Roosevelt last night turned to France for conference. One by one we take them, and they leave the White House, smiling. Evidently they like our choice of leading executive.

And while we've seen the subject of ambassadors and important, we recall the "uncrowned king" of England, Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, born April 25, 1599.

And recalling him, we remember the greatest thing he accomplished for England was the restoration of its world influence by means of a wise foreign policy. It looks like foreign policies have always been the kernel of the nut each executive must crack. People have never been content to live to themselves.

I was talking to an automobile sales manager yesterday. He handles big cars, expensive motors, properly protected, and he is surprised and delighted to watch them go even while we cry INSP.

The highways are alive, with them, big, little, powerful, and inexpensive, another return to the good old days when even dad's socks and ties were luxuries, not dire necessities.

If we never saw a paper with public morale dripping from every story, observation tells us we're headed for the heights or the rocks, and being Americans we confidently know it's going to be a matter of height.

The world goes serenely on planning a fair. A big one over here practically under our very noses. And we plan all sorts of trips to it, and know they can't materialize, but go on planning, anyhow.

Chicago is putting herself into print now. The big event is near at hand. Illinois trains and highways and airlines will be swarming with alleged papers, going to a world fair. After that, we can't afford to even hint, hard times. There'll be no use. No one will sympathize.

McEun Is Easy Winner Over Ug Moore Monday

After about 27 minutes of hard scrapping, Tiger Billy McEun regained his lost prestige by defeating Ug Moore, the modern Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde wrestler from Denton, Texas, in a nothing-barred, take-all match last night in the Elks club arena. It was one of the bloodiest and most hotly contested matches the Elks have had this season.

Whitey Davis did a fair job of refereeing these big boys until McEun, causing the referee to hold when McEun secured the very effective and dangerous hold known as the crab hold and sometimes called the back breaker, which made Ug Moore pat the mat. Davis seemed not to know how to break McEun, causing the referee to last longer than Moore's back muscles were able to resist. Moore's spine was so severely injured that he was unable to return to the ring. Moore asked for four extra minutes but McEun refused to give him any time and the referee was forced to award the bout to Tiger Billy McEun.

What most of the fans judged to be the best match of the evening was between Handsome Jack Hendricks and Clyde Farmer of Iowa. Farmer winning the first two falls. It was very clever, fast, and scientific from start to finish and was enjoyed by the packed house very much. This Jack Hendricks is one of the best middleweights ever to wrestle in Texas, and takes with the crowd, especially the ladies. Speedy Franks beat Wildcat Hood in the first match on the card. The house was packed to the rafters with the majority of the crowd ladies. The Elks club will continue these wrestling shows every Monday night, getting the best wrestlers in the country.

So Tired and Nervous She Couldn't Sleep Well

"I was in a very nervous condition," writes Mrs. J. S. Odum, of Waverona, Ga. "I did not get sleep well at night. I would get up in the mornings feeling all tired and worn out. My appetite was poor. My mother-in-law thought Cardui would help me. After I began taking it my appetite increased. I rested better at night. I kept taking Cardui until I felt well and strong. I know it did me a lot of good. It is wonderful for nervousness and other troubles that young women have." Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

Hayes and Gable Are Co-starred In "The White Sister"

Heralded as one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most ambitious productions, "The White Sister," will open on Wednesday at the Arcadia Theatre with Helen Hayes and Clark Gable co-starred for the first time in their respective careers. The picture was adapted by Donald Ogden Stewart from the famous F. Marion Crawford novel and the Walter Hackett dramatization, and was directed by Victor Fleming, whose most recent talk effort was the Clark Gable-Jean Harlow success, "Red Dust."

Lewis Stone as Father. Miss Hayes, who recently scored an outstanding portrayal in "A Farewell to Arms," plays the part of Angela Chiaromonte, daughter of an Italian prince, in "The White Sister." Gable, whose most recent film appearances were in "Strange Interlude" and "No Man of Her Own," has the role of Giovanni Severi, a lieutenant in the Italian army. The strong part of Angela's father is enacted by Lewis Stone and important roles are filled by Louise Clouser Hale, May Robson, Edward Arnold and Alan Edwards.

"The White Sister," termed the most stirring and poignant love story in the history of fiction, was selected by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as an ideal vehicle for the co-starring talents of Helen Hayes and Clark Gable. The period of the story was modernized so that of the World War with aerial bombardments and disasters of the conflict over the Italian Alps taking the place of the more luridly melodramatic volcanic eruption of the original narrative. The picture's Italian backgrounds are said to be among the most artistic ever constructed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

The Dramatic Highlights

Listed as highlights of "The White Sister" are the decision of Angela to break away from the sheltered life she has been living to engage in a love affair with Giovanni, the young Italian officer; the tragic death of Angela's father in an automobile accident while trying to stop her from meeting Giovanni; the young officer's summons to the front just as he and Angela are about to be married; Angela's tragic resignation on hearing a report of the death of her lover in action; her entrance into a convent in an attempt to forget the past; the sensational return of Giovanni from a prison camp and his frantic attempts to get Angela to break her vows; and the final spectacular air raid in which Giovanni undergoes an act of heroism in an effort to protect Angela's convent from bombardment.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY, NEA Service Writer

TABLE linens and damasks seem more beautiful this year than ever before and since the life-long beauty of all linen is dependent on its care, perhaps a few suggestions regarding the laundering of linen will be helpful.

Correct methods of washing and ironing are vastly important. Careless handling and harsh soap solutions are often responsible for lack-luster linens. Strong alkali soaps and bleaching mixtures destroy the natural lustre of linen and the heavy satin texture of damask.

Choose a pure mild soap and wash linens in heavy suds, squeezing the sudsy water through the fabric rather than rubbing. Few laundresses realize that rubbing roughens the fine fiber and shortens the life of all linen. Linen naturally washes easily since it does not hold the dirt in the obsolete fashion characteristic of cotton.

Be Careful With Bluing

Use very little bluing in the last rinse water for linens. Linen absorbs bluing much more readily than do cotton fabrics. Be sure all linens are thoroughly rinsed before putting them in the bluing water. Never starch linen. This applies to all household linens—table, bed linen and towels. Linen possesses a natural sheen and body that does not require the addition of starch.

Many women make the mistake of not ironing their damask dry enough and not having it damp enough to begin with. Too hot an iron is another common fault. It takes time, patience and delight in the finished article to iron damask.

How to Remove Stains

Egg stains should be washed in cold water until they completely disappear. To remove coffee stains, stretch linen over a bowl and pour boiling

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Chilled tomato juice, cereal, cream, cod-dled eggs, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Lentil soup, cheese sticks, rhubarb tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Broiled salt-water herring, scalloped potatoes, green beans, cottage cheese and onion salad, shredded, fresh pineapple, mock angel cake, milk, coffee.

water through it. For tea stains, first pour on glycerine and then pour boiling water through the stain.

Fruit stains are removed by stretching the linen over a bowl and pouring boiling water through the stain, letting the water fall from a distance of three feet.

Rust spots are easily removed by moistening the spot with lemon juice and covering with table salt. Let dry in the sun.

Stub grease spots with lard, thoroughly saturating the spot, and then wash as usual in warm suds.

PERFIDIOUS SAVAGES

IN THE Torres Straits Islands in the East Indies, there are now trees suitable for canoe building. So the natives, a cruel, treacherous race, import their canoes from the Fly River Delta in New Guinea—another place with an unenviable reputation. The distance between these two places is over four hundred miles, and no native in that region travels even one-quarter of that distance.

When a canoe is wanted, the word is simply passed on from tribe to tribe. On the strength of this vague order a canoe is built. Then it is relayed back. Each tribe of bloodthirsty cannibals tests and discuss it before passing it on. Finally the payment, shell necklaces, spear points, arm bands, makes its way to the canoe builders in the same leisurely fashion.

There is reason for this honesty in savages to whom perfidy is natural. If any of the parties in this complicated transaction were to risk being dishonest, their credit would be ruined. And though these natives may kill and eat each other, they hold barter inviolate.

Even savages understand that in commerce it pays to be honest, and to let the world realize your honesty! So in modern business, Advertising must be honest. It is a proof of honesty. A product's advertising is the best guarantee of its quality, usefulness and value.

The man who advertises is inviting your inspection. He is letting his goods stand on their own merit. He can't afford to deceive you. You can depend on him. That's why it pays to read advertising and to buy advertised goods.

Any one can spend money—the reader of advertisements spends wisely
