A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
HOPE IN GOD: Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is health of my countenance and my God.—Psalm 42: 11.

WHAT HAPPENED TO GROSS INCOME OF FARMERS?

According to an annual estimate of the federal department of agriculture the gross income of farmers declined $6,775,000,000, or 57 per cent, from 1929 through 1932 to $5,143,000,000 in the latter year, while their cash income after deducting various production expenditures declined about $3,400,000,000 or 72 per cent. More startling than this the 1932 gross income of farmers was the lowest gross income in any year on the records of the agriculture department which go back to 1909. A reminder for the Texas lawmakers that the farmers have a real grievance and when they call for drastic reduction in the cost of government they expect favorable consideration. If civilization begins and ends with the plow then the plow of 1932 was rusty and hard to handle.

COTTON ACREAGE HIKE IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma is a cotton producing state. A. E. Kobs of Oklahoma City is the manager of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' association. He is predicting an increase in cotton acreage of 20 to 30 per cent in the Texas Panhandle and West Oklahoma as a result of wheat acreage abandonment. Hundreds of acres of wheat were ruined by the recent wind and dust storms, and the viewpoint of Manager Kobs is: "The farmer has been forced to plant cotton." Well, another bumper crop of 16,000,000 bales may play havoc with the lean wallet of the cotton growers.

WALKER D. HINES GOES TO FOREIGN LANDS

Walker D. Hines is one of the famous rail lawyers of America. He has been named to head a group of American advisers designated at the request of the Turkish government "to assist restoration of prosperity in that nation." Hines is one of the outstanding rail lawyers and economists of the country. He is well known in Texas. He directed American railroads during the war and in 1925 investigated Rhine and Danube river navigation for the league of nations.

Incidentally, the group of committee is to draw a broad economic program for recovery of Turkey. Washington correspondents had Hines slated for rail czar of America under the proposed new deal plan of the administration. It is said he declined. He is a man of wealth. He has visited nearly every country on earth, and his Texas friends are confident that he will be happy in his new mission of business and adventure to the land of the Turk.

WALTER SPLAWN MAY BE THE RAIL CZAR

Bascom N. Timmons, Washington correspondent, predicts the appointment in the near future of Dr. W. M. Splawn, former president of the University of Texas, now the real economist of the interstate commerce commission as coordinator of the railroad. If Dr. Splawn takes over the task it will be conceded by all Texans that it is a very long journey from a Tarrant county farm to the position of czar of the American railways in the New Deal administration of Frank D. Roosevelt. There are many Texans who are climbers, not crashers, but men who began at the foot of the ladder and battled rung by rung for the peak of the ladder.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
 By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

R. C. HOLMES, president of the Texas Company, in a recent statement, said:

"Seventy-five million barrels of crude oil were produced in excess of Conservation Commissions' allowances for the 15 months ended March 31, 1933.

"Texas produced nearly 32,000,000 barrels of this in utter disregard of conservation laws and the Railroad commission's orders. Injunctions granted by courts because conservation authorities issued orders in illegal form permitted 21,500,000 barrels to come out at the expense of the law-abiding.

"In Oklahoma 11,230,000 barrels were illegally produced.

"California produced 10,000,000 barrels which however is not classed as illegal oil. Rather, it is unfair oil, produced by a few operators in excess and out of proper regard for the allowances set by the voluntary curtailment committees fixing allowances for the majority of the industry in California, in an effort to prorate their production to somewhere near the market requirement.

"Activities of this kind are without possible defense. They can be prevented. We predict that they will be prevented and that a stabilized and more creditable condition will exist."

New Road To Camp Billy Gibbons

Through the cooperation of the citizenship of Richland Springs and certain individuals in the different towns plans have just about been completed whereby the last five miles of the road leading to Camp Billy Gibbons will be completely made new, graded, and about one and one-half miles cut off of the distance. A new crossing just below the swimming hole will be made. It has been mutually agreed that those who desire to assist in the transportation of boys to and from camp during the camping period, Hugh L. Stewart, chairman of the camping committee and the scout executive made a trip to the camp last Saturday and found the camp looking in excellent shape. There are a number of new things that we hope may be possible to be worked out for the camp this summer. Don't forget the camp dates, July 11 to 18 and 19 to 26. Scouts start now to saving your nickels and dimes so that you will not miss this enjoyable and instructive experience.

The fact that the last five miles of the road is to be made so much more agreeable to the operator of a car, we feel that no parent or friend of Scouting will object to aiding in the transportation of boys to and from camp during the camping period. Hugh L. Stewart, chairman of the camping committee and the scout executive made a trip to the camp last Saturday and found the camp looking in excellent shape. There are a number of new things that we hope may be possible to be worked out for the camp this summer. Don't forget the camp dates, July 11 to 18 and 19 to 26. plained the procedure that must be followed in seeking self-liquidating loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

On the program for tonight and tomorrow night were preliminary contests in the "My Home Town" speaking competition, entered by 37 boys and girls who will describe the many virtues of their home communities for the benefit of delegates from other points. The finals of the contest will be held Saturday morning in the municipal auditorium.

The second group conference will be held Friday afternoon with 900 West Texans representing local committees cooperating with the chamber meeting to review the financial conditions of local and state governments.

Directors will be elected during the general session Friday morning at a breakfast the directors will elect officers for the chamber.

Among distinguished visitors and speakers were James E. Ferguson, former governor, scheduled for an address Friday morning and President Bradford Knapp of Texas Technological College who will speak Saturday on "A New Constitution for Texas."

Thorough preparations were made for entertainment and accommodation of delegates and the families of delegates at the convention. Sports events, dances, musical shows at night and bridge teas for women visitors Friday afternoon and breakfast programs have been arranged.

One of the features of the convention will be the town exhibits from the various communities in the chamber area. The exhibits will be forwarded to the Century of Progress exhibition at Chicago if plans of Vice President Spencer A. Wells of Lubbock and General Manager D. A. Bandson of Stamford are carried out.

Sterling C. Evans, district extension agent, has prepared for display at the convention an exhibit of extension projects now under way in West Texas.

The Harte beautification trophy will be awarded Saturday morning to the community winning first place in chamber's five-year community beautification contest. Scores of towns entered in the contest sent local committees to the convention.

Retiring president of the organization is Wilbur C. Hawk of Amarillo.

President Hawk in his annual report for 1932-33 said:

"Action was taken on the outstanding characteristic of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce during the past year, and I am gratified to be able to report that in the activities he reported that "Our most popular and foremost activity this past year was obtaining for West Texas cities and counties relief funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation through the governor of Texas. This resulted in West Texas receiving $2,024,675 during the period from Nov. 1 to April, 1933."

"Of the chamber's activity in producing the budget system to local governmental units he said:

"The program of budget making has been successful in a majority of the affiliated cities. Reports to our office disclose that over $10,000,000 has been received from the current budgets of local units of government as a result of the introduction of budget making procedure."

Hawk stated the 43rd legislature is following recommendations of the chamber relative to economy in state government "in that it is reducing expenditures, and apparently not going to adopt new revenue-producing measures."

The president reported 100 cities entered in the first year of five years beautification competition in 1932. "During this year," he said, "the beautification program has attained big proportions."

He closed his report as follows:

"I think no greater tribute can be paid to West Texas than that it has continued to maintain regional chamber on a high efficient plane during these trying times when many organizations have gone out of existence because of lack of funds with which to cope. It is a tribute to the never-dying spirit that prevails in West Texas—an evidence that West Texans always want action."

Fourth year of this unprecedented economic depression, our regional chamber is moving ahead with full steam."

Muscle Shoals Delayed End of The Civil War

By JIM WALTON
Written for the United Press
(Copyright 1933 by United Press)
EUROPA, Miss.—Came the cataclysm of Civil war, from which the South emerged crushed and broken. But for Muscle Shoals, the Union army might have terminated the war a year earlier. After Shiloh and Vicksburg, gun boats, transports and other paraphernalia could have been sent up the Tennessee, and Atlanta could have been taken a year sooner—but Muscle Shoals was in the way.

Ten years of reconstruction left Muscle Shoals to roar and thunder on its undisturbed course. But a distinguished Confederate brigadier general, John Morgan of Alabama, had begun the building of the Panama canal when Morgan became senator, but the French failed.

Mobile was the outlet through which eastern Mississippi sent much of her lumber and naval stores to foreign countries. The Panama canal was his pull with Morgan. But Morgan couldn't dominate the whole senate in order that he might hold Mobile. But there was Muscle Shoals in North Alabama.

"Why not use Muscle Shoals to line up enough senators to push matters—use it as the spade to turn the first shovel of dirt in the canal project?"

Georgia had a rapidly growing city—Atlanta. Atlanta wanted port rates. But Atlanta didn't have a creek big enough to float a Cajan pirogue. However, Georgia had a far-seeing senator—Senator Bacon—to whom Senator Morgan appealed.

"Help me get the Panama canal issue before the people, and I will show you how to get port rates for Atlanta," was Morgan's proposition to Senator Bacon. Needless to say that Senator Morgan had Bacon's attention at once.

The plan was to place locks and dams at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee, and make that river navigable from the mouth of the Mississippi to Chattanooga, Tenn. The state of Georgia owned a line of railroad between Atlanta and Chattanooga, being the only state owning a railroad in fee simple.

"Build docks at Chattanooga, run your Georgia-owned freight cars alongside the boats and barges coming up from the mouth of the Mississippi, and the tricks done," Senator Morgan told Senator Bacon.

And U. S. Senator Bacon was the first man to sign Senator Morgan's request for permission to bring the Muscle Shoals-Panama canal question before the senate—three names being necessary for such permission.

Sensors from Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois and South Carolina soon followed Senator Bacon's lead, making a formidable bloc in favor of locks and dams at Muscle Shoals—and the Panama canal.

His Shoals Idea

"Why not make the Tennessee navigable from the Ohio to Chattanooga?" he frequently asked.

"How?" was the reply.

"By building locks and dams at Muscle Shoals," he would answer.

Ten years after the Civil war, Gen. Morgan was elected U. S. senator from Alabama. The French had begun the building of the Panama canal when Morgan became senator, but the French failed.

Mobile was the outlet through which eastern Mississippi sent much of her lumber and naval stores to foreign countries. The Panama canal was his pull with Morgan. But Morgan couldn't dominate the whole senate in order that he might hold Mobile. But there was Muscle Shoals in North Alabama.

New Tire Prices Are Announced By Dealer

Anderson-Pruet, local Chevrolet dealers, announce today new prices on Goodyear tires. This firm has stocked a splendid line of tires and urge the public to inspect their product before making tire purchases. They also carry complete service under one roof and guarantee to give the kind of service that is bound to satisfy. Read their advertisement elsewhere in this issue of the Times.

TROOPS RULE IOWA FARM WAR FRONT AFTER JUDGE IS BEATEN

Rioting Iowa farmers, fighting foreclosures, are pictured here in one of the acts of violence that resulted in martial law for two counties. After halting a foreclosure sale at Pringhar, the farmers forced the sheriff's deputies and an attorney to kiss the American flag on the lawn of the courthouse. The same mob is suspected in the abduction and mistreating of Judge C. C. Bradley at Le Mars.

Congressmen To Have No Complaint Of Redistricting

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN.—Present Texas congressmen have no cause for complaint of the new redistricting bill.

A study of the new districts shows that every congressman's home town has been left in his old district and that a new district is carved around the home town of one of the three congressmen-at-large.

Dallas has two of the three congressmen-at-large in addition to its old district congressman so it was impossible to put each of them in a separate district. With that exception the new redistricting places no two present congressmen in the same district.

George B. Terrell, the third congressman-at-large, has a new district placed about his home town, Alto, in Cherokee county.

Congressmen Hatten W. Sunners of the old fifth district and Congressman-at-large Joe W. Bailey Jr. and Sterling P. Strong all live in Dallas. Dallas county is made a district to itself in the new congressional map. Rockwall and Ellis counties, both formerly grouped with Dallas, are transferred to the fourth and sixth districts, respectively.

The fact that Dallas has three of the 21 congressmen was one of the arguments for redistricting.

Grafting Operation On Foot Succeeds

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The grafting of pig skin on Little John Gentry's foot, which was crushed early this year, has proved successful. Physicians who performed the operation, the first of its kind in this section of the country, said the 6-year-old boy was fully recovered and will suffer no ill effects of the unique operation.

A similar case was reported recently in New Orleans and the operation also was a success.

The pig from which the skin was taken now is John's pet and lives in a pen in the boy's backyard.

The Gentry family has discontinued using pork for food since John promised never to eat any meat taken from a pig. He points to his left foot with a knowing look when the subject of the farm animal is discussed.

Great Comic Cast In Jolson Picture

In "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," his United Artists picture which comes to the Lyric Theatre on Thursday, Al Jolson corralled a cast of Hollywood comedians the like of which has never before been seen in one film production unit.

Because of this several weeks were spent in selecting the cast of characters, and all sorts of care was exercised in choosing the right people. First Harry Langdon, comedy star, was selected for one of the principal roles, and then Christopher Conkin and his walrus moustache were signed. Frank Morgan, Broadway stage star, came next, and Tammany Young, who has played both on Broadway and in Hollywood, stepped into the picture, too.

Professors donate their services. The school is in charge of E. S. Burdell of the Department of Sociology.

No records will be kept and no grades given, since courses do not carry university credit. The first term will last six weeks.

The school is designed to serve a two-fold purpose, President George W. Rightmire explained. One is to help in vocational re-adjustment of the unemployed and the other to make the university's facilities of maximum usefulness to the state.

The school will be operated in co-operation with unemployment relief organizations and public and private schools.

Courses offered will depend upon the demand.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

Cochet, Borotra, Brugnon
Form French Cup Team

PARIS.—The first few weeks of outdoor tennis have confirmed predictions that France's Davis Cup team again will be built around Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon.

These three stars, who successfully have defended the cup during the past three years, will be joined by Christian Bousous, young left-hander, who ranks third in France.

This is the same quartet which was chosen last year, when Bousous was held in reserve. The French strategists, however, propose to shift the men around in the hope of finding a more effective combination.

Cochet will play two singles matches, but will be saved from the doubles, as this would necessitate playing on three successive days. The French authorities believe that Cochet can win two points if he does not have to face the doubles strain.

Bousous will be the other singles ways disappointed in international play, but French critics believe he may win one point in view of his familiarity with the Autcourt courts and crowds.

Borotra and Brugnon will be the doubles team. On paper this is not considered as good a combination as Cochet-Brugnon, who lost to Allison and Van Ryn last year, but it is considered that Borotra always out-does himself in Davis Cup play and may furnish the inspiration to win.

These four men will form the official French representation at Wimbledon, where Borotra and Brugnon won the doubles titles last year. If any one of the quartet proves disappointing, a new combination may be selected for the defense of the cup in July.

DRUNKARD RODE HORSE

By United Press
WENATCHEE, Wash.—The booking officer at the local police station was perplexed the other night when Louis Reid, a local youth, was hailed in jail. "Would you call that 'horsing' while drunk?" he asked of the arresting officer after learning that young Reid had been arrested for riding a horse while in an intoxicated condition. (No the horse wasn't drunk, Reid was.)

Puts An End To Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Paramount Pharmacy or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed, it will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Money Back If One Bottle of Dares Mentha Pepsin Does Not Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloating that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gassy.

You think perhaps you are suffocating.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dares' Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such ailments altogether? Why have indigestion that keeps the stomach in constant rebellion and one will prove it.

Over 6,000 bottles sold in small New Jersey town last year. Ask yourself why. Demand Dares' Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant health building stomach elevator. Paramount Pharmacy and all pharmacists anywhere in America guarantee.

The "gadget" is a little machine that shows the difference between ordinary cord, used in other tires, and Super-twist cord, used in Goodyears. The difference is in the stretch and comes back—you can see how Super-twist cord stretches and comes back, how the cord in other tires loses its life and elasticity. # DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONNIE O'DARE is secretly engaged to DAN O'DARE. He does not want his parents to know of the engagement because they oppose the marriage. Monnie and Dan plan to elope in January when he will come into some money of his own.

HOW GOES ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

ANGIE stammered, "Pleased to—" and then, thinking better of it, went on hurriedly, "Bill told me a lot about you."

Mr. O'Dare said, "I'm glad he thought you were worth meeting."

"What he meant it, in spite of the sinking of her heart, was to discover that Bill's girl was as Kay had described her, a bad sort."

If her bright water fitted the curves of her head, she would have been a beauty. Still, the big eyes framed in the arched lashes had a likable quality about them. All Belvedere—that is all that part of it—knew the O'Dares well enough to observe their comings and goings—would gossip that they were the old ladies' call on Bill's mother. "What's the world coming to?" old ladies would ask, and upraised hands. "Time was when that sort of woman was the door."

the trouble was, Mrs. O'Dare reflected, that Angie was what the old ladies meant by "the world coming to." Angie was fundamentally an unwisdom. She had been trapped by and Superstition into an unwisdom. This, at 21, she was struggling to and come out of the trap.

admired the ferns in the under the windows. Under said—"Bill, under her chatter, she was under Bill's mother, wondering what was behind all this apparent simplicity and friendliness. Angie, she wasn't much used to business! She was a bit suspicious of it."

made some feed tea, Bill, and when the cookies and the pantry," his mother added, conscious of her neglecting attention.

quiet of Denny street on afternoon brooded over the two were alone together at the table. "Bill like a blanket on both. O'Dare broke it, "Bill as you plan to be married soon as the divorce goes through?"

stared at her, with just a touch of trouble. "Yes, that's what we're thinking."

when will that be?" O'Dare could not quite keep her anxiety out of her voice.

stared at the curtains, and in the breeze, she don't exactly know," she said almost sullenly. "Stan is in things. He's got a law office in the city. He'll let me know."

Mr. O'Dare considered. "Think—somehow I'm feeling you'd be better off in some new place. I'm afraid Bill will be wondering what he ever saw in Angie. You can't make him understand now. No use trying."

hadn't expected this reception. Unconsciously she had braced herself for tears, reproaches, pleas. She had expected to be looked over coldly, snubbed, dismissed. This quiet little woman with the gray chestnut hair and the fine eyes seemed actually to be accepting her.

She gulped. "Yes—I mean certainly, Mrs. O'Dare. That's what I was telling Bill only the other day. He doesn't exactly see it my way." Her defenses down, she plunged forward, voluble, excited. Bill and she could get a little flat in the city. She could get another job—she always did—and there were so many big garages there. Bill would be sure to find work. She forgot to be careful of her grammar.

"She does love him," the mother thought. "She's really a good little thing. She's only— Even in her own mind she couldn't finish the sentence. If only Angie weren't so palpably the product of the wrong sort of training, or rather the lack of training, her rebellious heart cried out! Well, it couldn't be helped. You didn't choose your own wife. In Mrs. O'Dare's simple code, you made the best of it."

Bill came back in, awkwardly balancing a tray. He glanced anxiously from Angie to his mother, relieved at what he saw.

"I'll have to be taking Angie back now, mother," he said after an interval, glancing at his watch. "I promised Harnett I'd be back at 6. He's got to drive his wife to the Springs."

He was relieved, she could see, that everything had passed off so smoothly. Poor boy, he had probably dreaded the ordeal. She kissed him, smoothing his ruffled hair back. Poor Bill, too hardened at 22, anxious, in love with the wrong girl! Well, it couldn't be helped. She sighed, watching the flash of Angie's sweater through the greenery. She would do the best she could. She simply would not think what the loss of Bill's earnings would mean to the little family. Kay was beginning to help now. That meant a lot. And poor Monnie! Well, there was no use looking ahead, borrowing trouble. You had to live each day as it came. It was the only way.

SHE went about, straightening cushions, picking up glasses. Kay came in, hair dripping wet from a swim. She had gone with Rissy down to the river.

"Well," Kay challenged her. "They're just gone." Mrs. O'Dare sat down, sighing. "She's really a good little thing, Kay. Only so—so—" she hesitated for a word.

"Ordinary," Kay finished the sentence for her.

"Yes," Bill's mother shrugged her shoulders. "It shouldn't matter, I suppose, what she does with the language, but somehow it does."

"Of course it does. Silly to pretend it doesn't," said practical Kay. "We're all a little ambitious, really. What I can't understand is why she doesn't bore Bill to tears. He's smart, really. Likes to read and he's always been so ambitious."

"I know. That's the sad part. In ten years or less perhaps I'm afraid Bill will be wondering what he ever saw in Angie. You can't make him understand now. No use trying."

"Not a bit in the world." Kay glanced at herself in the mirror. Her voice sounded grown up. Mrs. O'Dare reflected. Something had happened to Kay this summer. She refused to go back to high school, since Charles Eustace had managed to get this post at the library for her. Kay was old for her age. She would have been in her final year at school but she proposed instead to go to night sessions and study when she could in her daytime.

"I'm old enough to start helping," she had said practically. Last year at this time Kay would have raged and stormed at Bill for having dared to shirk his responsibility.

She gave her sleek golden locks a final pat and turned to smile at her parent. "Well, that's that!" she observed.

"That's that!" Her mother echoed dryly.

KAY rushed upstairs to change her dress. She was invited to Dr. Waterman's house for tea. There would be older people there. Kay thought, but that wouldn't really matter. They were going to talk over plans for some amateur theatricals to be put on before Christmas. Kay was terribly excited. The Waterman's house was one of the finest in town. The doctor was Charles' uncle. Not even Geraldine Cardigan had ever been invited there. Sandra was asked occasionally when Lansing, the young son of the house, was home from college.

Kay smiled at herself in the mirror, remembering how stunned Rissy had been when she had told her about the invitation—to Sunday night supper, of all things. Sunday night supper meant you belonged to the inner circle in Belvedere society.

"But they'll all be as old as Methuselah," Rissy had said, pretending she thought it was a terrific bore. Rissy had made her voice very disdainful. "Better call them up and say you can't come. Johnny Link's coming over in his Chevy and he'll get a boy for you. Come along," Rissy coaxed.

Kay had shrugged her shoulders, quite in the grand manner. Rolling through the country lanes with a raw youth's arms around her seemed positively revolting.

"No, thanks," she had said distinctly. Rissy had tossed her head and turned away.

Kay dressed with care, making her hair a demure frame for her ivory-lit face, ever so faintly sun-touched. Out of this frame her gentian blue eyes glowed.

Things were better these days. She was in favor at home. Monnie was proud of her—they all were. Who knew what these amateur theatricals might lead to? Kay could see a great producer leaning forward from his seat in the back row, asking eagerly: "Who is the young lady playing the lead? Marvellous!"

Someone would answer, "Kay O'Dare."

Or maybe she wouldn't get the lead. Maybe she would distinguish herself in a small part—a maid or something like that.

"Small Town Girl Startles Broadway!" She could see the headlines. Idly, staring at her reflection in the mirror without really seeing it, Kay dreamed on. Yes, much depended on the outcome of the evening.

to small grain in the fall as soon as the sultan grazing plays out, to make a winter pasture. Italian rye grass, down broadleaf at the rate of 20 pounds per acre or 2 bushels of oats per acre or 1 bushel of wheat or 1 1/2 bushels of barley or 1 bushels of rye are recommended. Italian rye grass is not so apt to winter kill as the small grains. Such pastures should give good grazing for 2 to 3 months.

The ideal to work toward in the eastern part of Texas where there is 30 inches or more of rainfall yearly, is a permanent pasture composed of improved grasses and clovers in addition to native sod. Such a pasture gives grazing every month in the year and saves large amounts of feed. Where such pastures are used the feed requirements listed above may be sharply reduced. All land should be terraced for soil and water conservation and the use of all barnyard fertilizer is recommended.

France's Fate In Soar Awaits Vote

PARIS. — Two years hence, France will know the outcome of a wager involving billions of francs represented by her stake in the Saar Valley.

The 1935 plebiscite will determine whether the 738 square miles will be French territory, German, or whether the 750,000 inhabitants remain under the League of Nations' jurisdiction.

French newspapers are filled with articles emphasizing the vital value to France of the Saar Basin and calling upon the public to interest themselves.

The Saar, once regarded as a "powder barrel of Europe," today buys approximately two billion francs of French goods annually. Under the Versailles treaty, France became sole owner of the coal mines in the territory, but if the plebiscite results in a return to German rule, France stands to lose her Saar trade, and likewise the preferential position of her industrialists who have established themselves throughout the district.

Militarily, Saarbrücken, chief city of the district, is strategically important as it is a junction point for six of the 10 important railroads between Germany and France. The present official concern is due primarily to the recent demonstrations by youthful Nazis at Saarbrücken, the government fearing the population may vote for a change merely as a change.

ORANGEVILLE, Ind. — The founders of this little town near the rises of Lost River stopped all liquor over prohibition when the town was settled. Old-timers say there never was a saloon here.

A stipulation adopted by the town's first inhabitants in 1849 resolved that:

"The proprietors of Orangeville and their successors forever will not make, sell, dispose of or permit others to make, sell or dispose of any spirituous liquors except for medicinal or mechanical purposes."

$5 fine for each day's violation, the proceeds to go to the school fund, were provided for in the stipulation.

SIGN-POSTS

IMAGINE yourself on an unfamiliar highway at night in the country. You want to go to Allison. You come to a forked road. No signs! You turn left and come to a crossroad. No signs. You turn right. You come to a town. It proves to be Liberty. You go back to the fork and turn left. A mile or so farther on you come to another crossroad. A sign pointing right says "Allison three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles—spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements! Think of the number of stores you would have to visit, qualities and prices to check, reliabilities to consider.

Advertisements are sign-posts. They are information. They save you from wandering aimlessly from store to store. They keep you advised of the newest products; of the latest values. They save you time, and put greater buying power in your dollars. They assure you of quality and service in merchandise, for only honest goods honestly advertised can stand the spotlight of publicity.
