Commiss Attempt To Trap 8th Army

Enemy Drives 45 Miles South 38th Parallel

By Earnest Hoberrecht
TOKYO, Jan. 5 (UP)—Spearheads of a 180,000-man Red flanking column drove 45 miles south of the 38th Parallel today in an attempt to trap the U. S. 8th Army forces in full retreat south of fallen Seoul.

Some 10,000 Chinese and North Korean troops slashed almost to Wonju, 53 miles southeast of Seoul, in a menacing new offensive aimed straight at the 8th Army's retreat highway to Taegu and Pusan.

Hongchon, 23 miles north of Wonju, was under attack from three sides.

In the west, the 8th Army rolled on south below Seoul out of contact with the enemy. The United Nations forces did not even attempt a stand on the south bank of the Han River, which flows around the southern and western edges of the former capital.

Nearly 1,000 Chinese troops with supporting artillery crossed the frozen Han west of Seoul and occupied abandoned Kimp'o Airfield today, but the Reds made no immediate attempt to seize similarly abandoned Inchon, key port 18 miles west of the former capital.

The Reds also threw patrols across the Han into Seoul's southwest suburb of Yongdungpo and at several other points both north and east of the capital. But the enemy seemed in no hurry to pursue the retreating United Nations forces.

The 8th Army appeared to be pulling back south through Suwon, 18 miles south of Seoul, in a series of leap-frog retreats. Rear guard patrols kept tabs on the Reds, however, with reconnaissance thrusts into Seoul last night and Yongdungpo today.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the 8th Army, visited the front and reported on his return to headquarters farther south that "everything is going fine up there."

High Army Officer Claims Retreat Is Far From A Rout

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (UP)—A high Army officer said today the United Nations retreat in Korea is "well organized, carefully planned and is far from a rout."

"I want to dispel any such idea," he told newsmen at a Pentagon press briefing. "This withdrawal plan already was made when the attack came."

The spokesman said the UN forces made a successful withdrawal with the exception of two South Korean units which were cut off.

French Cadet Flies To His Death Because He Had Been 'Washed Out'

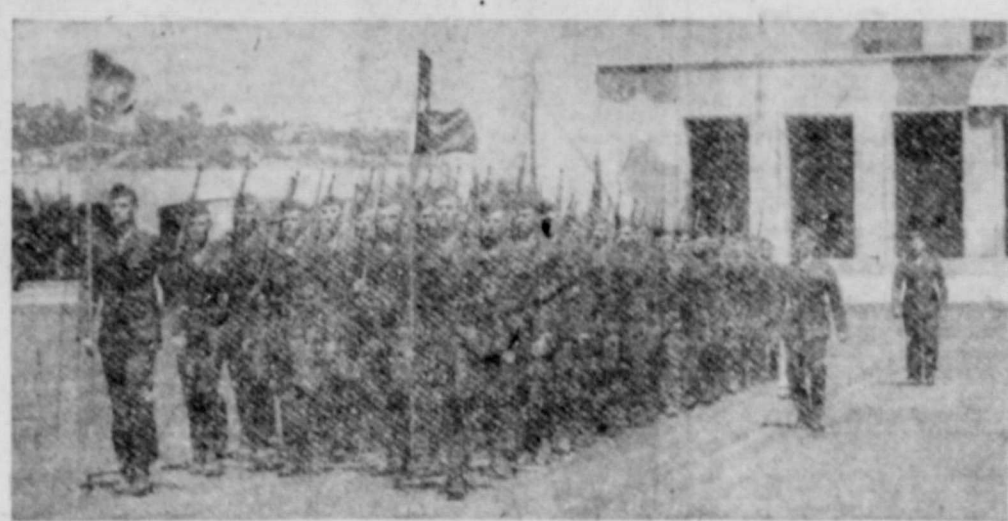

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 5 (UP)—A young French aviation cadet, who loved flying more than life itself, flew off into the wild blue yonder to his death because he had been "washed out."

The cadet was identified today as Jean Le Moutard, 22, the son of a French surgeon. His home address was given as Tangier, Morocco. He had failed in pilot training Dec. 29 and was slated for transfer to navigators' school.

He walked out to the Randolph flight line yesterday and climbed into a single-engine T-6 trainer. Then he roared off the field and buzzed Brooks, Stinson and Randolph fields in some gay and reckless flying.

Capt. Alain Jourdain, French liaison officer in charge of French cadets training here under the North Atlantic Pact, climbed into another training plane and took off in pursuit.

Over the plane-to-plane radio, Jourdain pleaded with the boy to climb to 5,000 feet so he could

Slot Machine Bar May Close Clubs

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Jan. 5 (UP)—Officers and chief petty officers' club at Corpus Christi Naval Air Base may have to close because of the smashing of 42 slot machines, a spokesman hinted today.

He said the machines, smashed in accordance with a new federal law banning gambling devices on military reservations, had grossed nearly $70,000 monthly in revenue for the two clubs. He said the machines were valued at $12,600.

At any rate, the spokesman said, smashing of the "one-arm bandits" would mean higher dues and prices at the clubs.

2 Dallas Traffic Deaths

DALLAS, TEX., Jan. 5—(U. P.)—Cornelius Deloach, 80, of Dallas, and W. T. Caster, 63, of Irving, were the first two traffic deaths in Dallas County in 1951.

Applications for assignment to the North Texas Marine Recruit Platoon" will be accepted during the next 29 days, with the applicant being informed as to what day he will be required to report to the District Headquarters in Dallas for physical and mental examinations.

After the processing in Dallas, the applicant will be returned to his home to await a going-away ceremony to be held in Dallas on the night of January 26, 1951. Transportation to the ceremony will be furnished by the Marine Corps in each case where travel is involved.

The morning of January 27, 1951, all the members of the platoon will be entrained in Dallas and shipped to the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif., where they will undergo their recruit training as the "North Texas Marine Recruit Platoon." The platoon will be similar in purpose to the "Texas Platoon" enlisted from the state of Texas during World War II, in that it will afford the selected group of young Texans the chance to enlist together, travel together, train together, and return home on leave together.

Korea Retreat Is Asia's Greatest Tragedy Of All

U. S. 8TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Jan. 5—(U. P.)—Eighth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today that the retreat of United Nations troops and Korean refugees was "perhaps the greatest tragedy to which Asia has ever been subjected in the course of its long history."

"Everything else is dwarfed by the ethos of this tragedy," Ridgway said. "And our American people haven't the faintest concept of it. In the words of Shakespeare 'there are most things in heaven and earth unknown of our philosophy.'"

Speaking at a press conference, Ridgway asked correspondents to describe to Americans the "Greek human tragedy" entailed in the flight south of hundreds of thousands of Koreans.

He also told them to warn the American people that the "issue is not Korea." "The issue," he said, "is whether, some day the same thing goes on in America or whether we can keep it away from our shores until international agreements have worked the problem out in more orderly fashion."

Ridgway spoke after a visit to new United Nations defense positions south of the Han River. He said that "everything is going fine there."

The general said he had visited two Army corps and had a "first hand knowledge of the situation."

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 5 (UP)—State Treasurer Jesse James today began his fifth two-year term in office.

GOP THINKS IT FANTASTIC NOT TO BOMB CHINA HOMELAND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (UP)—Republican Senators warned today that the United States must decide now to wage all-out war against Communist China—or get out of Korea.

They said American forces may suffer heavy casualties and be driven into the sea unless the United Nations grants permission to bomb Red supply bases in China and Manchuria.

President Truman told his news conference yesterday that the government is not considering asking UN permission to bomb Communist China because it might lead to formal all-out war.

Sen. Styles Bridges, R. N. H., said the Air Force should be ordered to bomb Chinese Communist bases and supply lines. Other Republicans agreed that it was "gratuitous and fantastic" not to let the Air Force strike back at the Chinese homeland.

Elsewhere in Congress: Housing—Key congressional democrat assured the administration they will support a new defense housing bill that may cost more than $2,000,000,000. The bill was expected on Capitol Hill as soon as administration experts put the final touches on it.

Crime—Senate crime investigators called in Anthony J. (Tiny) Accardo to ask him if he is the kingpin of the nation's organized crime. But they did not expect him to answer. They believed he would refuse to answer questions on ground that his answers might tend to incriminate him.

Alaskan Statehood—Sen. Hugh Butler, R. Neb., said Congress should hold on-the-spot hearings in Alaska before taking any action on making the territory a state.

Butler, an opponent of Alaskan statehood, said he will introduce a bill to let Alaskan elect their own governor.

Committees—Senate Democratic leader Ernest W. McFarland, Ariz., said his party has chosen the members for its senate policy and steering committees for the new Congress. The committees decide what bills should be considered first and who should be the regular standing committee.

Reconstruction Finance—Sen. J. William D. Arky, said he had support of his Senate committee for his five-man RFC bill with a single.

But the bill may meet opposition in the House.

Oklahoma Surprised At Statement Of Brownwood Group Fearing An A-Bomb Attack If Camp Reopens

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 5 (UP)—Civic leaders in two Oklahoma cities let it be known today they're not shunning defense projects for fear of being atom-bombed.

Their comments followed a petition by a group of Brownwood, Texas property owners who objected to reactivation of Camp Davis for fear the area would be a-bombed.

"I'm surprised that such a statement would come from any Texan," said Mrs. Mattye Williams, secretary-manager of the Altus chamber of commerce.

The Brownwood group telegraphed Texas congressmen that reopening of the camp might invite a Russian A-bomb attack that could "wipe out the entire camp and all the inhabitants of the city of Brownwood."

However, another group of Brownwood residents is trying just as hard to have the camp reactivated.

Mrs. Williams took a philosophical view of a possible atomic bombing.

Matchless Princeton Offense Belongs to Charlie Caldwell

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

PRINCETON, N. J.—(NEA)—"While Charles William Caldwell, Jr., readily admits he has been most influenced—football-wise—by Dick Harlow and Gus Dorais, the matchless Princeton offense is his own. No one has gotten more out of the back lateral series of the single wing originated by Bernie Bierman 30 years ago.

It is ironic that Minnesota is shopping for a successor to Professor Bierman in the year Caldwell graduated from the single wing played its greatest success—at Princeton, Ohio State, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and the professional Giants and Steelers, to name clubs that come to mind off hand.

Charlie Caldwell is one of the comparative handful of coaches who did not fall for the modern T formation.

When Princeton finished showing the book at Yale, one of the Elis cracked:

"They must have used everybody including the Dean of Men. I never saw so many men handle a football."

DWELL'S election by his colleagues as the Coach-of-the-Year nation-wide poll conducted by the New York World-Telegram is the culmination of year after year of hard work.

He was directing Williams from 1923 until being called back west in '45. Caldwell developed his summers to attending clinics at his own expense.

13 Lucky Guys

by FRANK R. ADAMS
COPY. 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: SEE EDDIE Emmons' speed in slipping out in action and the men realize they are dead when they find themselves in the hands of the cops. Eddie is a young man of all but Joe. The only living creature who can see through the fog of the night. Eddie can see and Eddie sees the situation. Eddie is a young man. Eddie is a young man. Eddie is a young man.

XVII
EDDIE watched a dozen motor coaches come in, load and depart. But Old Ironsides did not show up. Maybe it had been in a wreck, or sold down the river to become a school bus. He would be disappointed if anything had happened to it. He felt almost as if he owned the old crate.

Under the instrument panel was where he had always hidden that lucky coin, so he would never give it to a passenger by mistake when making change. It was about the size of a quarter and had a square hole in the middle—a Chinese coin, somebody had told him. Every day, when he first sat down in the driver's seat, he hooked it on a bent nail way under where no one would see it. He always put it back in his pocket when he was relieved. All but once—that last trip when he had been so excited about leaving for the Army that he'd forgotten the darned thing.

Eddie had just about given up hope when an old rattling, snorting monster came lumbering around the corner under 220, possession landing and stopped at the door of the waiting room.

"Bollweaver bus!" shouted the starter. "Leaving right away!"

It was Eddie's bus. And Eddie's bus was driving it. Eddie was stretching the truth a little for Eddie to call Margie Lou his girl. Just, she was the special thing to him he had ever had. She was the first person toward whom he had felt a protective tenderness.

THE very definitely earthly body of Max Bengel was right behind Margie Lou's seat. Eddie hadn't seen him get on.

"I won't bother her," said Max with a heavy good nature. "She's a friend of mine."

The starter was a big man, too, and his supper wasn't agreeing with him. "Get back in the bus like I told you."

"Don't get him angry," Margie Lou cautioned Max, pleadingly. "Sometimes he gets awful tough."

The starter was on the step. The passengers who were waiting to get aboard grouped behind him patiently.

Margie Lou's advice to Max Bengel did not have the effect she intended. Max got the idea she admired the progress of the lanky bus leader. He couldn't bear to have one of his women friends admire anyone else.

So when the man shoved him Max shoved back hard enough to push him off the step. Unluckily for Max the starter had a grin on his coat lapels and dragged Max right with him when he fell.

They rolled around on the concrete platform for a while, neither side scoring a touchdown. When they finally got to their feet the majority of the waiting passengers had climbed aboard and now there wasn't room for an emaciated sardine to squeeze in anywhere.

"Take it away!" shouted the starter with what breath he had left.

Max made a tentative attempt to get a foothold somewhere on the bus but the folding door blocked him off. He compromised. "See you later, baby," he yelled at Margie Lou. "I'll bring you this big palooka's teeth to wear for a bracelet and some of his hair for—" It was about here that the starter hit Max for luck. The argument continued.

EDDIE had both an itching desire to get his hands on the wheel and an unfamiliar feeling of awe and tenderness toward the girl who was handling it. He did some back-seat driving, but Margie Lou naturally got no benefit from his muttered advice. Then, on a stretch of unobstructed highway, Eddie squatted down and peered under the instrument panel.

Contrary to his expectations, there was the coin with the hole in it, hooked over the crooked nail. With a murmured thanks to Lady Luck, he reached for it. Nothing doing. He'd forgotten he couldn't pick anything.

While he was absorbed in his baffled speculation, Margie Lou took her right hand off the wheel, reached forward under the instrument panel. When her hand came out the coin lay in the palm.

Comacho Gets Honorable Mention On Class A All-State Team; Kermit, New Braunfels Place 2 On Squad

BY UNITED PRESS

State champion Wharton, runner-up Kermit and semifinalists New Braunfels each placed two men on the Class A all-state schoolboy football team announced Thursday night by the Texas Sports Writers Association.

But, to Kermit went the outstanding honor of having the only man being awarded unanimous selection from among some 800 sports writers coaches and scouts balloting on the final selections.

Other schools gaining berths on the first team were Brady, Dalhart, De Kalb, Arlington and Mount Vernon. Wharton and Arlington also placed one man on the second team, while Littlefield's unsuccessful 1949 state champs was the only club to place two on the second eleven. Others represented there were Mineola, La Vega, Slaton, Georgetown, Haskell, Jacksonville and Uvalde.

Rounding out the backfield with Spinks were Rusty Gunn, Arlington's 180-pound fullback and the only junior on the team; Bill Jack Meredith, 180-pound threat from Mount Vernon, and Bill Cline, 189-pounder from Wharton's who's been good enough to be all-district four years.

The ends were Weldon Dacus of Brady and Charles Schriever of New Braunfels, who tipped

At tackle, were Don Koepfle, Dalhart's squad 190-pounder who has never had a time out called for him in four years of rugged play, and Lawrence Kalmus, 232-pound star of the Wharton line which checkmated the threat-rushing attacks of New Braunfels and Kermit.

Don Terrell, 195, of De Kalb, and Tommy McCoy, the New Braunfels lightweight at 165 pounds, were the guards. McCoy was the double duty man in a line that allowed only 218 yards rushing against it all season.

Don Kay Brown, Kermit's offensive-defensive terror at 195 pounds, was the center.

Only Difference Between Winter And Summer Foxhole In Korea Is Amount Of Clothing Soldier Wears

By H. D. Quigg
WITH U. S. FORCES, Korea, Jan. 4 (UP)—It would be nice if I could tell you that front line positions are fixed up fancy with shelters on the tops of the foxholes to keep the rain and snow out and heating devices inside and pinup pictures on the walls.

But they're not. They're just plain cold and dirty holes in the ground. The only thing fancy about their exterior getup is a facade of dirt-filled bags stacked at the business end of the foxholes.

About the only way you can tell a winter foxhole from a summer one is by looking at the men inside. They have more clothing on in the winter—and their noses are redder.

Out in front of their positions are the standard defense lines of barbed wire, designed to discourage those of the enemy who have not already been discouraged by the artillery fire and mine fields in front of the wire. At appropriate places in the wire are booby traps.

At night the temperature drops ten to fifteen degrees and it's not an easy thing for a G.I. keeping watch to look into the wind that whistles over the snow covered ridges and beats against his narrowed eyes until tears roll down his cheeks.

There are usually two men to a hole. One watches for an hour while the other sleeps. And then they trade off.

"It's one hour up and one hour down," said Sergeant Carl W. Westfall, 31, of Clarksburg, West Va., a rifle squad leader with a line company. "The guy who is down gets his sleep the best way he can. He sort of settles with a blanket around him, half crouching and half sitting."

With Westfall as strawbosses of one section of the line are two other West Virginians—a squad leader and a platoon sergeant—and they've formed sort of a West Virginia club. They gathered around the hole in which I sat and chatted as I took their names.

The other rifle squad leader was Corp. Virgil A. Simms, 18, of Parkersburg, West Va. The platoon sergeant was Cecil B. Hale, 21, of Cornstalk, West Va. The other two laughed loudly as Hale gave his hometown. It's a big joke around the company. When asked his street address Hale shrugged.

OUTDOOR TECHNICOLOR EPIC AT ARCADIA TODAY

ALEXIS SMITH and STEPHEN McNALLY in a dramatic scene from Universal-International's "WYOMING MAIL," in color by Technicolor.

"Cornstalk is just a wide place in the road," he said.

"How did you three from the same state manage to get together and become buddies?" I asked.

"Just luck I guess," Hale replied.

Although they can't build fires to keep warm at night—an open fire would disclose the positions to the enemy—most G.I.'s are pretty well protected from the cold. In this particular outfit the men have been issued the old style officers overcoats with wool liners. Each man has a blanket or a wool sleeping bag which is the thickness of one blanket.

Thus, a man who is sleeping has the use of two blankets—his own and that of his buddy who's on watch.

Problem in California

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (U.P.)—A 36-degree temperature, and local frost reports had officials at the city hall worried about the banana crop. Most apprehensive was Police Chief Paul Finley who suggested the crop—one small bunch of finger-size bananas on a tree outside the building—be protected by a lighted bulb to keep the frost away.

Safety First

BOSTON (U.P.)—So that everyone will know what to do in the event of an atomic attack, Civil Defense Director John F. Stokes said each of Massachusetts' 1,200,000 homes will receive a booklet of instructions.

Children Made Safer
SOUTH SIOUX CITY, Ia. (U.P.)—Fred S. Martin has patented an invention to prevent casualties among school children as they board and leave buses. It is a new type of stop-and-go signal device, operated manually by the bus driver. The light stops approaching and passing traffic while the children are getting on and off the bus.

Postponed Too Long
CHICAGO, (U.P.)—She was meaning to get her hair cut, Harry Baker said of his wife. She was found dead of head injuries and loss of blood, her waist-long tresses caught in the wringer of her washing machine.

Presenting the New 1951
Cadillac

Far More Beautiful... Gorgeous New Interiors... and an Even Finer High-Compression Engine!

Today, we are privileged to present the new Cadillac for 1951—finer and more wonderful from every conceivable standpoint. . . . Numerous refinements in exterior design have made it more lovely to behold—while wholly new interiors, so rich in fabric and tailoring that they defy description, impart a sense of luxury that is simply beyond compare. . . . And, oh, the things that have been done to make it more gentle to handle—and more comfortable to ride in! The changes in this regard are manifold—and the results are a revelation. The car's quietness is now akin to silence; driving is all but a response to your wish; comfort leaves literally nothing to be desired. To ride or drive is to relax—and to rest. . . . The great master engine has also been refined—down to the smallest details. Its voice is closer to a whisper; its power application is faster; and it's even smoother in operation. . . . And there is an even finer Hydra-Matic Drive—with a new reverse for easier shifting, and for "rocking" the car in sand or snow. . . . There is new steadiness on the road—better balance on turns and curves—easier and softer braking. And throughout the chassis are vital improvements which add to endurance and dependability. . . . All in all, here is new lustre for the Cadillac name—and a far higher standard for the automotive world. . . . There are ten distinctive body types and four individual series—the "Sixty-One," the "Sixty-Two," the "Sixty Special," and the incomparable "Seventy-Five". . . . Why not come in and see them today? We'd be most happy to see you—and we are certain you'd find it an interesting and enlightening experience.
