Another 'round all you young sportsmen. Today's guest star is a very young sportsman over in Big D. He's eight-year-old Corky Rosch, and believe me he's as sharp as a you-know-what-brand razor.

Corky is one of the youngest sportswriters in the United States being, as we said, of the very tender age of only eight years. But after you read a few of his paragraphs, maybe you'll understand how he may well become another Granny Rice in the years to come.

EASTLAND'S 91ST COURT MAY SURVIVE AUSTIN BATTLES, MANY OBSERVERS BELIEVE

Eastland has not lost her 91st District Court, despite many rumors to the contrary.

And at this moment it seems that such a loss may never be. The Texas lower house has passed such a bill and a struggle forward, but in the end the bill was passed, and so far as the Texas House of Representatives is concerned, Eastland was to lose her court. But—

It so happens that the House of Representatives doesn't have the power to "kill courts," but must

Two Students In RJC Recital Tonight At 8

The Department of Fine Arts of Ranger Junior College will present Polly Hibdon and Bill Blackstone in Graduation Recital tonight at 8 o'clock in the Fine Arts Building on the college campus.

Miss Hibdon, from Brady, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Hibdon of Brady. Polly was a member of the crack Brady Bulldog band, and came to Ranger Junior College with a wealth of experience and training to her credit. She was a Division One soloist in IL competition on the Sousaphone. Since her former director, Doug Fry is now located at ACC, Miss Hibdon plans to continue her education there as a member of the ACC band.

Another member of the Brady Band, and also a member of the Sousaphone section is Mr. Blackstone. A tenor, and preferring the vocal field to the instrumental, Bill has done splendid work while at college. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Blackstone, now of Lubbock, and was very prominent in the vocal activity of Brady during his high school days. He sang with a mixed quartette, competed in IL contests, and was a member of the chorus.

Included among the activities of Miss Hibdon at Ranger Junior College were the Band, Chorus, Stage Group, The Madrigal Singers, and Fine Arts Council. She also served on the Annual Staff, and is a member of The Debs, both under the sponsorship of Mrs. Hamrick.

Mr. Blackstone was also a member of the Band, Chorus, Stage Group, The Madrigal Singers, and The Fine Arts Council. He was initiated into the Peregrinity Club his Freshman year, and last year sang one of the lead roles in The Gilbert and Sullivan Opera, "Patience."

This is the concluding program in the series of recitals presented by the Department of Fine Arts, this season. Recitals of Mrs. Kiker's students, Bob Downtain, and Maxine and Bill McCotter will be announced at a later date.

Enter Arlington State Meet Tonight—

RJC Rodeo Clubbers Ready For Big Event

Ranger Junior College's "Rodeo Club" members will compete in two important events within the next few days.

This weekend, the RJC arena artists will be among 13 college and university rodeo teams in a three-day meet sponsored by the Rodeo Club of Arlington State College at the Audie Murphy arena near Euless tonight at 8 p.m.

The contestants, members of National Intercollegiate Rodeo Assn., will include Dick Barnett of Hardin - Simmons University, Abilene, 1952 National College Champion Cowboy; John Ackel of Sam Houston State, Huntsville, national champion bull rider; and Joe Chase, an Indian student at H-SU, champion bronc rider.

Members of the RJC Rodeo Club include: Payton - Whittaker, calf roping; Holey Cotton, calf roping; Monroe Lawrence, bull riding; Charles Rodriguez, bronc rider and bull rider; Cecil Edgar, bronc rider and bull rider; and John Lawrence, calf roping.

The really big event on the RJC Rodeo Club's agenda comes next week.

The RJCers will join college cowboys from all over the nation, representing the best in individual and team competition, at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, for the 1953 NIRA Championship Rodeo.

H-SU is sponsor of the "tournament of champions" this year. The championship rodeo, an annual affair, pits the top 84 collegiate cowboys in the nation against each other and the rodeo stock. Entrance in the rodeo is by virtue of a cowboy's or team's record for the preceding individual college rodeos. The top 10 teams made up of 46 colleges and universities, and the four highest ranking cowboys in the six approved rodeo events will be at Hardin-Simmons May 14-16.

Several thousand dollars in saddle, buckles, merchandise, and a one-horse trailer await the college members of NIRA will also compete here.

The rodeo is to be held in the university's own Carl Myers Memorial Arena in two matinee and three night performances. The nightly performances will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday; matinee action will unfold Friday and Saturday.

Tommy Steiner of Austin will furnish rodeo stock. E. W. (Bill) Ledbetter, H-SU athletic director is general manager of the rodeo and NIRA President Dick Barrett of H-SU will handle reins on behalf of the cowboys.

Judges in all events will be Buck Rutherford, Nowata, Okla.—RCA top cowboy and runner-up at 1952 national champion cowboy in 1952; and Hubert Dalton of Duncan, Okla., runner-up world's champion cowboy last year. And rodeo announcer will be announcing Nat Fleming, Wichita Falls, radio announcer.

Each of the 16 states in which the 46 school members and the 500 contestants are from will probably be represented in the highlight of the national collegiate rodeo year.

Friday, Week, seven days of western action at H-SU, will be held in conjunction with the rodeo. Hundreds of Hardin-Simmons students will be acting on committees to accentuate the rodeo and the western week here.

Teams eligible to contest in the rodeo will be named after points are awarded in the last rodeo before the championship event, May 8-9.

Spring's Earliest Flowers Easy to Grow From Seed

Perennial borders, which were headline attractions in the spacious gardens of private estates, are becoming fewer, thanks to changing fashions and reduced garden space. But perennial flowers continue to be the largest that can be grown, and unpassed for garden beauty.

Every flower garden needs them, in considerable numbers, if the display of color is to be maintained throughout the season. From early spring until almost midsummer the perennials furnish nearly all the flowers blooming in the northern states.

Many perennials can be grown from seed as easily as radishes, and for best results they should be sown at the same time, as soon as the garden soil can be prepared. Waiting until midsummer, as many do, only increases hazard, and reduces the growing CONTOUR ROWS HOLDING WATER—Contour farming assists terrace systems in slowing down the run off of water. Only the water that is held on the land is of value for crop production.

Use Of Grass Waterways Makes Runoff Water Work For Farmer

Eastland County farmers have long recognized terraces as an important soil conservation practice. But properly protected terrace outlets are important too. Water from terraces cannot be suspended. On the average Eastland County gets about 28 inches of rain each year. That's not too much. Most farmers would like to have more. Some of that 28 inches however, has a habit of coming in storms.

It falls faster than the soil can soak it up. On sloping land water that the land cannot absorb must run off. Often it does very little good and sometimes does great damage. The conservation farmer knows that proper terrace outlets are a vital part of his conservation program. He will agree that the safe disposal of run-off water is the system of a good conservation plan.

The conservation farmer knows that the terrace water can be made to run off harmlessly—that it can be made to do good instead of harm.

How often have you heard farmers make this statement? "I sure wish I had more pasture. If I could run a few more livestock I wouldn't have to row crop so much."

The farm waterway is a mighty good place to grow a few more acres of grass—the best grass on the place. Spread the water from the terrace outlets out over the waterway. Put the extra water to work. It will grow grass. That's one way of turning a loss into a profit. It is an important step toward putting each acre to its best use.

Only 16 per cent of the 142,000 square miles of Japan is considered suitable for cultivation.

1953 will be held in Cologne, Germany May 25-28. The preliminary program includes orchestral, chamber, and choral works, as well as a performance of experimental music. Public discussion following the concert will be recorded on sound film.

Ducks banded in Nebraska in recent years have been noted as far south as Columbia and Ecuador.

Timely Tips

With the first budding of the trees, life seems to take on new energy. And a good thing, too, for this is when we need it...for Spring housecleaning. Here are a few tips to help make your job easier.

Always wash walls from the bottom up. Washing solution dripping down on a soiled surface leaves stains.

Bulges and bubbles can be removed in wallpaper. Make a small slit in the paper, then insert a large needle to which paste has been applied. Flatten the spot, using a white blotter to prevent finger marks.

Always wipe chromium plated things with a dry cloth after they have been thoroughly cleaned and rinsed. They will shine better.

New Battery Is Sweeping Nation

A battery made that is "Guaranteed for the Life of your Car" has expanded its scope of sales from Texas alone to some 15 states in less than one and one-half years.

The revolutionary product, the "O-Life Battery," was first placed on the market in August, 1951. Span-O-Life Batteries, which are literally guaranteed for the life of the owner's car and not on a pro-rated basis, has since

Do you get those "cramps" that give you that "monthly look"? Do your mirror show an older-looking, worn-out, nervous face during your "bad days"? swept the nation.

At the beginning of 1952, Span-O-Life's were only being sold in Texas by some 190 dealers. By the end of 1952, the dealer list had grown to number 1,700 in ten Southern states. Five new states have been added since the beginning of 1953, bringing the total to 15 states. King Motor Co., is the Eastland dealer.

Robert V. Abshire, Span-O-Life president, has announced plans to expand to all 48 states before the end of 1953.

In addition to the expansion of sales, Span-O-Life production will also be increased by some 300 per cent by the acquisition of a new 27,000 square foot plant in New Braunfels. The new plant will be in full operation by June 1, Mr. Abshire said.

Gus Dabney, general sales manager of the company, has reported that Span-O-Life sales in Texas alone were up 102 per cent in the first quarter of 1953 over the same period in 1952.

Another Texas product that will sweep the nation is the Span-O-Life battery.

Murder she yelled

By Joseph Shallit

THE STORY: Al Kemmer, owner of Rock Hill Lodge, has been murdered and Eddie Fields, his partner, seriously hurt by an ax-wielder at the plumb summer resort. The violence seems to have connected with the gaudy murder of Rocky Silone in the vicinity. Don Morrison, athletic director, is suspicious of C. O. Griscomb, who lives across the lake and who has "connections" in the underworld. Don sees a suspicious sort of a payoff to Griscomb from a man in a blue service suit the previous night from with a rifle and then claims that his operators "saw the hand with their blood," and he reveals the intrusion of visitors.

XIX
GRISCOMB had to think a while to bring himself up to date. "You—" he said finally, "you people are just the same—intruders and murderers, every bit as bad in your way as those savages. And if something happened to Mr. Kemmer, it was only fitting—it was history dealing out its own punishment."

What was he doing—rustling himself up an excuse for Al's murder? It was still hard to see him as the ax-wielder. If Griscomb had written the blackmail note, and then found no money at the bridge, he might have suspected that Al was taking the matter to the cops. Fear that they might trace the letter to him could have driven Griscomb to tackle Al that night without going home for his gun—lear could have driven him to bash Al with the first thing available in order to recover that note.

But maybe Griscomb was deliberately planting the idea in my head. Maybe the old boy was foxier than I thought. Maybe he was aware I suspected him of the Rocky Silone killing and he was trying to incite me to tag him with Al's murder, too, just to make my whole story sound too fantastic to the cops, too much to believe. By inviting the extra guilt, he'd be easing himself out of any guilt at all.

No matter. I still felt pretty sure he was the guy who riddled Rocky Silone, and the gun involved was the one lying across the room at me.

He spoke abruptly: "It's not your fault—what I was just speaking of. You're only a hired hand, as I understand it. You're not responsible for bringing this riffraff here."

"That's right. I'm just—" "You just keep out of here, and see that your people do likewise." "You hit it right on the head, Mr. Griscomb. I think you set a perfect example of the sensible way to maintain friendly relations. Like, for instance, you and that pleasant chap here a little while ago—what's his name?"

"Slick. Not slick enough. Griscomb's face was as stiff as a tombstone. "Why do you ask about him?" he said quietly. "I just—I just thought I'd seen the man before—I was trying to place him."

That seemed to bother him—it seemed to bother him very much I could see the tension edge along his fingers. I wanted that gun.

"Where did you see him before?" Griscomb's voice probed me. "Somewhere... I'm trying to think..." I'd hit a touchy point, but where did I go now?

"Think hard." He was threatening me now. Even the dog seemed to sense it.

The dog sprang up, trotted to his master, nuzzled his knee, then backed around and came trotting at me, his tail swinging.

I slid to the edge of my chair and put both arms around the dog's neck. I got his razor-strop tongue in my face. "Up, Buster," I said, slowly easing up out of the chair. The dog rose with me, his paws on my shoulders.

Griscomb started up, his gun alert. The dog was between us. "Wonderful dog," I said, moving backward toward the door, holding the paws firmly on my shoulder. Buster walked unsteadily bluestem and Sand love grass.

This thirty acre planting is an excellent demonstration of how grass will respond to different types of seed bed preparation. The grass seed used to plant this field all came from the same place. It was all planted with the same drill and planted at the same time.

There is a tremendous difference though in the looks of the stand on the different seed beds. On one seed bed you can see every drill row and there is a perfect stand of grass. On the other seed bed you have to dig down in the weeds and needle grass to find the grass seedlings and when you find them they show the effects of the competition that the weeds and needle grass has given them.

after me. "Friendly," I said. "Amazing how we hit it off." Griscomb was hurrying at me. "Let him down!"

I was in the doorway now, blocking it with the huge pile of dog. "Can't," I said. "Let him down!"

I eased out onto the porch. Griscomb squirmed past the dog, swung around at me— I had that gun so quick. I had simply pushed the dog into him.

As he dodged, I grabbed the gun barrel, jammed it toward his chest and breaking his grip. Then I stepped back a comfortable distance, made sure the bolt was home, and aimed the rifle at his middle. Griscomb stood there bewilderedly, gripping air.

"Show me what that guy gave you," I said. "In your breast pocket." Buster jumped up at me, wanting to play some more. I shoved him away. "Down, boy!" He barked and leaped off the porch and turned, waiting enticingly.

"Okay, Griscomb, let's have it," I said. "Throw it on the floor." "You're not going to shoot me," he said. "Okay, you win," I said quickly. "If I shoot you, they might book me for murder. But not if I shoot your dog—"

I WHEELED and snapped the trigger. Wham! the rifle had a kick like a tommy-gun.

The dog barked and streaked away. I'd aimed a good six feet behind him, but Griscomb couldn't know that. I kept aiming at the dog till Griscomb was almost on me—then yanked the butt off my shoulder and slammed it into Griscomb's belly.

As soon as he hit the porch, I was down on top of him. I slipped a small manila envelope out of his breast pocket and stepped off the porch.

I took a hefty sheaf of bills out of the envelope. Tens, twenties, one $100 bill—I counted them quickly. Not a fortune; just an even $500.

Proper Seed Bed Necessary When Planting Grass

Mr. S. A. Chambers, who lives just out of Williams, Texas, on the farm to market road, is a cooperator with the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District and has had assistance from the Rising Star work unit in planting about 70 acres of native grass mixture. Right next to his house he has 30 acres of grass that was planted in the spring of 1950. The planting is a mixture of big bluestem, Indian grass, Upland switch grass, Little bluestem and Sand love grass.

This thirty acre planting is an excellent demonstration of how grass will respond to different types of seed bed preparation. The grass seed used to plant this field all came from the same place. It was all planted with the same drill and planted at the same time.

There is a tremendous difference though in the looks of the stand on the different seed beds. On one seed bed you can see every drill row and there is a perfect stand of grass. On the other seed bed you have to dig down in the weeds and needle grass to find the grass seedlings and when you find them they show the effects of the competition that the weeds and needle grass has given them.

How did Mr. Chambers prepare the seed beds? Where he has the excellent stand of grass he broke the land the year before he planted the grass and planted Hegeria in rows. The rows were kept clean and when the grain matured it was harvested and all of the stubble left on the field. Nothing more

Sen. Johnson Reports—

By Lyndon B. Johnson

Peace or a Sword

Are we on the road to peace—real peace? That is the major question before all of us.

The Russians have indicated a willingness to settle some of the questions that have kept the Korean War alive. Possibly there will be a Korean truce by the time this appears in print.

Of course, we are ready for a truce on honorable terms. Every American wants to end the Korean fighting at the earliest possible moment. We cannot, however, permit the prospects for a Korean truce to lull us into a false sense of security that will cause us to weaken our defenses.

We must be vigilant—ready to discuss and accept proposals that will lead to real peace, but refusing to let down our guard.

was done to the seed bed. The grass seed was just drilled into the stubble. Results—perfect.

What happened where the grass doesn't look so good? The land was broken just before planting time, leaving the seed bed loose and hard to plant properly. It also provided a seed bed that was more suitable to weeds and needle grass. One trip over Mr. Chambers' field is most convincing.

Farmers and ranchers who plan to seed old fields to pasture grass should give very careful consideration to the seed bed that they are going to plant their seed in. Many grass seedlings have failed or have been very slow to make a stand because proper consideration was not given to the seed bed.

Many people seem to feel that because a grass will grow out in the pasture they should be able to get it started in an old field just by scattering out a few seeds. Nearly everyone that has tried just scattering the seed has been disappointed.

Grass will respond to good treatment just like a crop of cotton or corn. Only grass requires a different seed bed. Grass likes a firm, almost hard, seed bed. Grass seeds cannot stand to be planted over a quarter of an inch deep.

Our Government is Strong

Our system of government has weathered all the storms of its history. It is a system resting upon three pillars—a legislative branch that is a deliberative body and not a grand jury; a judiciary that determines the guilt or innocence of those accused of breaking the law; an executive who conducts the business of the United States and its relations with other countries.

Let one wage guerilla warfare against the others, and our freedoms are weakened. Let one surrender its rights and authority to another, and our freedoms are gone.

Whether we be Democrats or Republicans, it will certainly serve none of us as Americans to use the tactics of the jungle against our fellow Americans. Still less will it serve us to use those tactics to tear down the great foundations of our government.

We cannot tear down our foundations without pulling down the house itself. If we pull down the house, we will all be buried in the ruins.

Can We Cut the Budget?

The budget can and should be cut. We must not forget that 87 cents of every Federal dollar goes to pay for past wars, foreign aid, defense, veterans' aid, and interest on the national debt. Even in the field of defense, three is much waste that should be eliminated. But it is hard to make any astronomical cuts out of that 87 cents. Any saving will be welcomed by the hard-pressed taxpayers.

But we are headed for a letdown if we look for "big savings"—savings that will balance the budget—this year.

Secretary of the Interior McKay learned about the Panhandle's Canadian River Dam project last week.

The educational job was done by Joe Jenkins, former Mayor of Amarillo and now President of the Rex Baxter, Manager of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, also was in Washington, had earlier visited the Secretary with Mr. Johnson. Mr. Jenkins attended a Civil Defense conference while here.

If You Want To Own A Farm, Then Buy One; Dream May Be Made True If You Watch, Work To That End

If you really want that farm of your own don't give up the idea because it seems impossible. Look around at friends who have figured out a way. For some it was easy. Others have acquired farms against almost impossible odds. Never in history has it been so hard to get a start in farming as it is today. Yet it's still being done—regularly. Before you buy, give it a lot of thought, warns Capper's Farmer—there's a lot to think about. Bear in mind that your success or failure as an owner will depend more on the quality of "you" than the quality of the farm. Next in importance to you, the operator, is the financing necessary to swing the deal. The wrong financing can break you just as quickly as the wrong farm. Be sure the plan you select will not cripple you during a boom or break you during a bust.

When a farm is for sale, find out first WHY it's for sale. Often you'll get one answer from the man selling it and a different one from the neighbors. Be satisfied in your own mind there are no hidden defects which prompt the sale.

Buildings, fences and roads are helpful in making money, but the land decides the profits you will make. After you estimate the basic productivity of the land, determine the amount of production that you must have if you are going to come out in your investment. Check soil maps, then look over every acre. There can be spots in individual fields that don't show up on the soil survey maps. Be thoroughly familiar with the weed condition.

Slant your farming activities toward the things that you do best, and then buy your farm in a community suitable for this type of activity. Don't be oversold on a well-painted set of buildings, because in themselves they won't make you a nickel.

Forget the house for a minute and check the rest of the buildings against the type of farming operations you intend to follow.

How is the house? Have your wife with you when you check this. You'll be surprised at what she will find—both good and bad. Remember, no house is perfect.

Finally, remember there is one big difference between you and the man in the city—your place of business is also your home. Size up the community. Is it a good place to raise a family? Are the neighbors friendly and co-operative? Are they your kind of folk?

Everything in this world isn't measured in dollars and cents, and there are a lot of things more important than 80 or 90-bushel-an-acre corn. Be sure it's a community in which you'll be happy and a community that will be happy to have you.

NEWS FROM CHEANEY

Directors of the Eastland County Farm Bureau will meet in regular session Thursday night, May 14, at 8:00 p.m. in the Christian Church Annex, building at Eastland; was the announcement made by Ray Norris, secretary of the organization. All directors are urged to attend this important meeting.

At this time, Saturday's gathering at the Alameda cemetery is still uppermost in everyone's mind. Many of the old timers have passed on, but their resting place is visited each year by members of the families who remain. Many of these visitors drove numerous miles to be here for this annual homecoming and cemetery working. Some reported coming as far as 600 miles.

Names of some of the pioneer families noted were Blackwell, Brown, Tucker, Fox, Watson, Love, Prestidge, Rogers, Melton, Strickler, Jones, Lane, Hamilton, Young, Perrin, Lee, Watkins, Rodgers, Smick, Duncan, Reid, Butler, Weekes, Moseley, Ashcraft, Boles, Lewis, King, Underwood, Pilgrim, Duffer, Scott, Walton, Griffith, Calvert, Lemley, and possibly others whom I failed to place, all enjoying the noon lunch and afternoon singing together.

During a short business session, Elmer Blackwell was elected president of the Alameda cemetery association for the next two years and Walter Duncan will serve as new committeeman for the same term. Fred Moseley is secretary-treasurer and reports $540.00 contributed to the maintenance fund.

"County Government" was studied by members of the Cheaney Home Demonstration Club, at the meeting Thursday afternoon, April 30, in the home of Mrs. L. A. Moody.

Roll call was answered by naming county officials.

The next meeting will be Thursday, May 14, in the home of Mrs. John Love, at which time the agent will give a garden demonstration.

Overnight guests in the Ben Freeman home Friday were Mrs. Rilla Williams, of Abilene and Mrs. Vera Beck, of Anson, who were here for the cemetery working.

Visitors in the L. Z. Melton home recently were Mrs. Norma Filgrim and son, J. D. of Dumas, who also visited in Desdemona with her daughter, Mrs. Rena Hogg and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy A. Tucker and son, Garland Lynn, of Jal, New Mexico, will spend their time here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Joiner and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tucker. Billy is employed by the El Paso Natural Gas Co.

Miss Minnie Walton of Brownwood and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Walton, of Ranger, were callers in the John Tucker home on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. John Blackwell tells us she had a very nice vacation trip to Galveston, Corpus Christi and College Station recently. Her grandson, Jimmy Henderson, of Lubbock, spent the week end here, returning to his home Sunday afternoon in the company of Mrs. Cora Love and Miss Berle Blackwell.

Rev. and Mrs. Bill Grasham were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hatley Dean Sunday, following the morning church service.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Underwood and family and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Underwood and family, all of Fort Worth, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Underwood last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strickler and son, Johnny Mac and Clayton, were also here from Fort Worth, over the week end. Clayton is a Navy trainee.

Mrs. John Love and Mrs. Bill

Tucker were among the Farm Bureau group attending a meeting in Abilene Monday and Tuesday of this week. The purpose of the meeting was to clarify the provisions of the Agricultural Act of 1949. The principal speaker was John C. Lynn, legislative director of the American Farm Bureau, of the Washington office.

Stay Lost" — and he says: My friend Pat Barry Jr., who lives on Witham Street in Dallas said "Why don't you write something for young sportsmen that will help them get lost when they are out hiking or hunting." So I told him I would.

There are only two ways to get lost. One is where someone can find you and the other is where nobody can. The best way to get lost if you are going to is to get lost where someone can find you and here is how you can do that.

First thing is not to get excited when you think you are lost. Just sit down and try to figure out where you are. Sooner or later someone will come looking for you and that time is when they notice you are not at home for dinner. And most people eat late so that means that it might be dark before they come looking for you.

If you have read the papers you pretty nearly always see where the story says "So and so said that he noticed the kid going into the woods at such and such a place." So sit down and don't ramble around the woods. Save our voice because people will be looking for you and they will be more excited than you are and when they holler you can answer them back.

Don't worry about getting hungry. It may bother you but normal people can fast for 20 days and suffer no serious trouble.

If you are lost at night find a big tree, clear away all the brush and then make a good spot to lie down. If you start a fire this is important as all the weeds and brush will not be able to catch fire around you. If you get cold dig a pit about two-feet deep and when the wood coals are going good cover them up with the dirt you took out and you will have a warm place to sleep on.

One thing every kid should have is a whistle. Three blows on a whistle is a lost signal. Whistles carry more than voices and it doesn't tire you out as much as hollering.

Whatever you do, don't get scared. Don't travel during the night as you might fall and break your leg or something serious. Travel only when you are sure where you are.

It is well to carry a piece of paper with your name and address on it in your pocket.

I can't understand how you can get lost if you will do what it says in this article. Old Indians have done this for some years and you never heard of a lost Indian. At least I never did.

APARTMENT — A place where you start to turn off the radio and find that you've been listening to your neighbor's set.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will make application with the Ranger City Commission next Tuesday night to increase local telephone rates. The proposed rate hikes, in brief: Business telephone, from $8 to $9 monthly; individual-line residence telephone, $4.25 to $5; two-party service, $3.50 to $4; and four-party service, $3.00 to $3.25. More details in your Times tomorrow.
