Quick Work of Police, Firemen Nips L&J Blaze

J. A. (Jimmy) Smith of the L & J Supply Co., 403 W. Main, expressed hearty appreciation Monday for the vigilant efforts of a Ranger patrolman and members of the Ranger Volunteer Fire Department in discovering and quickly extinguishing what might have been a disastrous fire at the store Tuesday night about 8 o'clock.

A short-circuited motor on a soft drink vending machine in the building was attributed as the cause of the small blaze which was discovered by alert Ed Freeman of the Ranger Police Department. Freeman immediately summoned the fire department, and the blaze was quickly extinguished before it had an opportunity to reach more damaging proportions.

"We are certainly grateful for the fine work of Ed Freeman in detecting the fire and we're also mighty thankful for the work of the Ranger volunteer firemen, too," Mr. Smith said.

Fortunately, damage was very light. The firm handles appliances, paints, wallpapers and home supplies. Failure to discover a fire in control would have resulted in heavy damage, possibly a total loss, of the building and its valuable contents.

Farm Income Off From '52

A 22 per cent drop in farm cash income the first four months this year, compared with the same period a year ago, was reported today by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

This year's total was $431,994,900, about $123,000,000 under the 1952 January-April total.

Major crops were income from cottonseed, wool, grain, sorghum, cotton, corn and cattle.

Mid-May prices to Texas farmers, meanwhile, showed a slight improvement over the month previous but trailed the 1952 total.

Manager J. A. Estes and his Ranger Eagles make their first bid in the 1953 race for the American Legion district diamond pennant this afternoon when they meet a Breckenridge nine in a conference duel.

First pitch is scheduled for 4:30 p. m.

The district American Legion league is composed of Ranger and five other teams—Cisco, Breckenridge, Stephenville, Mineral Wells and Goldthwaite.

Manager Estes said at noon today that Jerry Wharton, a south-paw hurler, will start on the mound for the Eagles in their crucial conference opener.

The Eagles go into the 7-inning AL contest as favorites having whipped the Breck boys twice last week—7-6 on Monday night and 9-2 over at Breckenridge Saturday night.

Jim Littlefield will do the catching for the Eagles, and around the infield it'll be Bill Calvert at first, Larry Pruitt, second, Bill Herrington at short, Howard Neely, third, and out in the pasture at left will be Scott Pomey, David Huxton at center field, and Jerry Simmons in right.

Admission to the game is free, and the public is invited.

After this afternoon's encounter, the Eagles rest two days before they meet Goldthwaite at Goldthwaite in another American Legion league affair.

Other AL games today include Mineral Wells at Goldthwaite, and the Cisco Indians battle the Stephenville Blue Jays at Stephenville.

The Goldthwaite nine trimmed the Eagles, 8 to 4, at Goldthwaite last Friday night. The Rangers scored three tallies in the initial frame, added another run in the second—and that was all. Goldthwaite tallied one in the first, a pair in the second, one in the third, one in the fifth and three in the sixth.

Morris started on the mound for the Eagles but was relieved after the second stanza by J. V. Wharton who finished.

In their Saturday night triumph over at Breckenridge when the Eagles slammed the Breck lads 9 to 2, the Ranger timber-wielders pounded out four runs in the top of the first, scored one each in the second and third, and added three more in the sixth frame.

Breck went scoreless until the bottom of the sixth when they scored their two runs.

The state contest will be held on July 21, 1953, the day prior to the opening of the State FFA Convention in Fort Worth.

A memorial service is held each year, and during the service Sunday it was revealed that eleven members have passed away during the past year.

Children Over 16 Eligible For Industry Jobs

With the coming of summer vacations for school children, many of whom seek temporary vacation jobs, employees were reminded today of the 16-year-minimum age limit for most industrial type jobs under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

Regional Director William J. Rogers of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions at Dallas pointed out that prospective employers may not employ children under the age of 16 in interstate commerce, or in the production of goods which move either directly or indirectly in interstate commerce, or in any process or occupation closely related and directly essential to the production of such goods.

Children 14 or 15 years of age, however, may be employed in certain specified types of jobs, such as office work, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. for not more than eight hours a day or 40 hours a week when school is not in session.

Furthermore, he said, there is an 18-year minimum for jobs covered by any of the 11 Hazardous Occupations Orders issued by the Secretary of Labor under authority.

Appointment Is Kept Through Mishap on Road

NORTH WINDHAM, Me.—Bill Bolton, was in a hurry but he couldn't in conscience pass a motorist mired in a ditch. He stuck his head out the window of his car and yelled:

"I've got an appointment in 10 minutes to show a fellow my summer camp, but I'll dash back and pull you out."

The bogged-down motorist asked for a lift "because I have an appointment to see a camp in 10 minutes, too." They found their appointments were with each other.

Mrs. Graves, 37, Killed In Hunting Accident Sunday

A squirrel-hunting trip south of Ranger Sunday afternoon ended in tragedy.

Mrs. Alta Louise (Blue Arnett) Graves, 37-year-old Ranger woman, was shot to death on the banks of the Leon River 15 miles south of Ranger at Lone Cedar about 4:30 p. m. Sunday when she was struck by a bullet which accidentally discharged from a single-shot 22-caliber rifle.

Funeral services for Mrs. Graves were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the First Methodist Church in Ranger. Rev. D. D. Brian, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, officiated and interment was in Evergreen Cemetery. Morris Funeral Home, Ranger, was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Graves, born May 29, 1916 at Miami, Okla., had been a resident of Ranger since 1918.

Survivors include her son, Johnny Hayden Graves, 17-year-old Ranger High School student; her mother, Mrs. D. M. Carr of Ranger; two sisters, Mrs. L. W. Pancake of Pioneer, Tex., and Mrs. Lewis Warren of Austin.

According to statements to Charles Bobo, justice of the peace, the 9-year-old lad, carrying a single-shot 22-caliber rifle, was walking along the river bank behind Mrs. Graves when he attempted to put the gun on safety and the weapon discharged.

The bullet entered Mrs. Graves' back and pierced her heart. She died almost instantly.

Palbearers at the funeral this morning were Roscoe Hopper, Ralph Pancake, George Rogers, Jack Mace, Chick Brown, and Garland Panake.

Dead are Gwendolyn, 9, a n d Jeanette Gerhardt, 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Gerhardt, a prominent Eastland County farm couple.

The drownings occurred about 11 a. m. in a tank, less than 75 yards from the Gerhardt home at 1 miles south of Cisco near the Cisco-Brownwood Highway (U. S. 183).

Two Sisters Drown In Tank Near Cisco

Cisco firemen worked for almost three hours with a resuscitator to revive them after the parents and neighbors took the girls to Graham hospital at Cisco. A faint heart beat detected in Gwendolyn by a physician had boosted hopes she might be revived.

Jeanette was pronounced dead at 1:30 p. m. and her sister 40 minutes later.

Neighbors told how Gwendolyn, seeing her sister sink beneath the surface, plunged in in a frantic effort to reach her, only to go under herself.

The sisters, together with their two brothers, James, about 2 1/2 and Johnnie Jr., 6, and Alice Ruth Stroebel, a friend, had gone to the tank to play at the water's edge. The boys stayed on the bank with Alice Ruth, who did not venture into the water because of a sore throat, neighbors said.

Jeanette entered the water first. As she was wading, she suddenly slipped into a deeper portion of the tank and became strangled. Gwendolyn, who could swim only a little, went in as their playmate went for help.

It was not known if Gwendolyn reached her sister before both went under. There were no cries from the sisters, only the sound of splashing water.

Mrs. Gerhardt, in the house with another son, Larry, was the first to hear of her daughters' peril from Alice Ruth. A farm hand, Bill Ramsey, heard Mrs. Gerhardt's screams and ran to the tank.

Ramsey, who had been in a field near the tank only a few minutes earlier, plunged in without taking off his clothes. He found Gwendolyn floating just under the surface, and pulled her out. Jeanette was not in sight.

Ramsey immediately began artificial respiration on Gwendolyn. Mrs. Gerhardt started for help in a pickup truck, but a tire went flat as she was driving down the road leading to the highway. She returned, got in the family car, and started again. She found her husband working on a combine in a wheat field about a mile from the house.

With the neighbor, Ham Konegny, the parents raced back to the tank. Konegny and Ramsey went into the water as the father worked on Gwendolyn.

Jeanette's body was recovered in 12-foot deep water by Konegny after both men had made repeated dives. Konegny brought the body to the surface.

Both bodies were recovered within a half hour after they were last seen struggling in the water. (Continued On Page 6)

First Methodist VBS Is Success

A large crowd of Methodists and their friends attended the closing exercises of the Vacation Bible School on Sunday evening. The final appearance of the Vespers Choir for the Summer, under the direction of Mrs. M. G. Smith, with Fred Baumgardner at the organ, helped to make the evening service an outstanding success. Fourteen members of this fine organization sang the responses and gave the special music, using for the anthem: "Let us Sing unto the Lord," by Wooley.

The service began with a parade, starting outside the sanctuary. Two of the boys carried the Christian and U. S. flags to their places, after which everyone stood and gave the customary salute. There followed the salute to the Holy Bible. Mrs. Arthur Deffebach was in charge of this part of the service. Miss Mary Ellen Deffebach was at the piano for the appropriate songs which were sung by the children.

The various departments, under the able leadership of conscientious workers, rendered the program that had been assigned to them with effectiveness and a feeling of fervor. Mrs. Lavender, superintendent of the school, made some remarks appropriate for the occasion, after which she issued 86 certificates to those who had fulfilled the requirements—attendance at 5 of the 8 sessions of the school.

Following the service in the sanctuary, the parents and guests were urged to visit the departments to see the work that the children had done.

"The credit for the success of this year's VBS is certainly due to the wonderful cooperation of both workers and parents," states Mrs. Lavender. We thank everyone who had any part in the school. We are also deeply grateful.

Sunday Afternoon Church Ceremony Unites Miss Tankersley, C. E. Dick

Miss Anita Yvonne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tankersley of Morton Valley and Charles E. Dick were married at 4 p. m. Sunday, June 7, 1953, in the First Christian Church in Eastland.

Rev. Alfred Nelson, pastor of the Olden Baptist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. J. L. Dick of Olden and the late Mr. Dick are the parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Curtis Young, organist, presented the wedding music and accompanied Miss Mary Ann Henderson, soloist, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because." The altar was decorated with tall baskets of white gladiolus, tall candleholders held white cathedral tapers. A large arrangement of Maroon dahlias decorated the chancel rail.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a waltz-length dress of white nylon, fashioned with a fitted bodice, and a full cut skirt. She wore white lace gloves, which matched the Juliet cap, holding in place her shoulder length veil. She carried a white prayer book, bouquet of white Stephanotis and carried a basket bouquet of blue carnations.

Mrs. P. J. Sturn, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pink organza dress, waltz-length, fashioned similar to that of the bride. She wore a matching coronet and carried a basket bouquet of blue carnations.

Miss Brenda Sue Tankersley, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, wore an identical costume made of blue organza and carried pink carnations.

Onous Dick served his brother as best man. Larry Tankersley, brother of the bride and Le Jeune Horton served as usher.

Murder she yelled

"XXXV
I EXPLAINED to Midge: "You can picture Al's reaction, catching Eddie at the safe. He'd blow his top for sure at a ratty trick like that. It isn't hard to see Al grabbing the first thing that came to hand and bopping him. Eddie, very wocoy, must have managed to snatch the ax out of his hands, and when Al charged him again, Eddie swung. In desperation Eddie's no lion. He must have been appalled when he saw what he'd done. And starting to collapse from the blow he'd gotten. Con-cussion sometimes doesn't get you all at once. Eddie could have been down on the floor by now, but still conscious enough to do what was needed to make it look like robbery. He crawled to Al, emptied his pockets and his own, swiped the ax handle clean, then started to crawl to the door to holler for help. But unconsciousness hit him at the door—the way I found him."

"Then—then if that's the case, the stuff from their pockets had to be hidden here—it must still be here!"
"Hey—you've got an idea! That would prove it, one way or the other—"
I placed a person-to-person call to Bart Jamison in New York. I waited.
"Ready with New York," the operator said.
"Hello," I said, "this is Eddie Fields."
Bart Jamison's voice was big, expansive, exhilarated. "Glad to hear from you, Fields! Glad to hear from you!"
"Same here," I said, sturring my words, keeping the pitch high. "What's the situation?"
"Situation? Didn't you get my letter?"
"Haven't seen any letter yet."
"What've you got out there—pony express?"
"Well, tell me—what's in it?"

Midge was down on her knees now, pretty dress and all and examining the floorboards.
"It's got the whole plan, fella," Jamison said. "And a receipt for the fifteen hundred. When do I get the balance?"
"Balance...? Suppose I—suppose we wait a couple of weeks."
"For cripes sake, Fields, what's the matter with you? Didn't I tell you I don't want to make a move till I get the other sixty-five hundred? Can't you understand? You've got to do this in one big splash if you want to make any kind of impression. Spending it in dribbles is pure waste."

MIDGE suddenly squealed. She came running from the closet with an old raincoat, leaned over my shoulder and emptied the pockets on the window sill: Two wallets, some keys, a lighter, and a crumpled mass of greenbacks—they tumbled all over the window sill.

She poked me ecstatically. "What're you planning to do?" I snubbed into the phone.
"Well, we'll start with a blow-out for you. I have a raft of celebrities lined up to come—have to pay some of them, of course, but the shindig will make most of the columns. Then a week touring the night spots. Then we fly you out to the coast—"

Midge suddenly shook me, urgently whispered something.
"I'll read the rest in the letter," I said. Somebody was moving behind me—the desk drawer was opening. "Goodbye." I dropped the receiver, turned—Eddie Fields, holding the office revolver, was backing to the door. He closed it, snapping the lock.

"What are you trying to do to me?" he said. The revolver was pointed at me. It was small change, he said.
The silence came down on us huge and heavy, like a circus tent collapsing.

"Eddie, pal, h-w are you?" I babbled.
He hooked a chair with his foot and dragged it against the door. He looked pale and shaky. He oozed down into the chair. "You been trying to fix me ever since this got started. Now you think you did it, don't you?"

"THE hand with the gun was a his lap, the muzzle aimed at my face. The desk was between us. Midge stood beside me, rigid, quivering.
"You think I'm a killer," Eddie said dully. "I'm no killer—you ought to know that, Morrison. He hit me first with that ax. I was only trying to protect myself."
"Why didn't you tell that to the cops?"

"What good would it have done?" He shook his head wearily. "Nobody would believe Al would slug me with an ax just out of meanness. I would've had to come out with why he hit me—what I was doing in the office—and then they'd have me with a first-degree case, all wrapped up."
"How did you ever let yourself get into such a mess?"

He said nothing for a while. Then his eyes slowly narrowed, glinting. "Watched his hands?" He waited for me to take that in. "Watched him open it one night—from outside the window. Blood-ular. Shade was almost down—he couldn't see me... Eddie's lips got tight. "If Al had only come across with what I asked for," he said bitterly. "I had fifteen hundred from changing Rocky's dough—all I needed was sixty-five hundred more to send that guy you were just talking to. That's all I asked Al for in that note—not a nickel more than I needed. It was small change, he said."

Several Cities Give Employees Nice Pay Hikes

At least four cities raised wages of their employees or gave extra compensation in late 1952 or early this year, the International City Managers' Association reported.

All employees of Cincinnati, O., received a five per cent raise Jan. 1 because a survey showed industrial pay rates had gone up that amount during 1952.

Each city employee at Lebanon, Mo., was given $120 at the end of last year, if he had been with the city for the entire 12-month period. An employee with less than one year's work received $10 for each month worked.

A merit increase program was begun at White Plains, N. Y. Under the system a merit salary increase could amount to $200 a year more than the salary fixed by automatic increases.

Murder she yelled

By Joseph Shollit

XXXVI
FEDDIE FIELD'S face twisted queerly as he talked. His forehead went down against his right side, the lower ribs, as if he had a stitch in his side. I sneaked off my chair.

"Let's—maybe we can get you out of this trouble," I said hoarsely. The guy had told us too much. Was he going to let Midge and me walk out of here?
Eddie didn't seem to hear me. "Everything would've been all right, even at that," he said dully, his gaze wandering over the floor. "But Kitty got me. Caught me in that dumb lie about the car. She had me one hip in the hot seat. All right, I said, I'd tell the cops her story about Al's last words, and she said she'd slip me the sixty-five hundred I need. I did my part, just like I promised. Then I come back here and . . . Eddie's gaze drifted back up to me. "I took her for a walk in the woods and asked her to pay off. It's all a bust, she says—she can't get a dime. I grab her by the throat. Ask Morrison, she yells. Then she can't yell no more."

I got my feet set to dive at him over the desk.
"No, she ain't dead," Eddie said. "She'll soon be around, raising a holler."
Midge was partly in the way—I nudged her aside with my knee—
He dangled the revolver down to the floor and let it drop. "I'm bleeding to death, Morrison. I've been listening to the drip in there for the last half hour." He reached inside his shirt, around to the right side, and pulled out a wadded handkerchief. It had a bright red spot, not large. "All the bleeding's inside. She had a stiletto. She pulled it out of her red garter."
His head drooped again. He closed his fist and slowly pushed it against his side, up under the ribs. He started to stand up—got halfway—abruptly sat down again, a look a vast surprise blistering his face. He struggled up again. His body made a ridiculous twist—he fell flat on his side.

ALL the people said it was better it happened that way, better that Eddie died casually—quickly, rather than facing the horror of the chair. Isn't it amazing how crime always seems to bring its own appropriate punishment, they said—generalizing from that one instance and ignoring the cases that didn't fit their theory.

They didn't talk, for example, about the case of Torchy Covilla. I'm willing to swear that Torchy killed Rocky Silone; and Harry Evans, the man I put in the hospital, said the same thing. He told the police it was common knowledge among the guests at Torchy's rest home that their host had done Rocky in. But you can't convict anybody on that. The murder weapon was never found. Torchy just sat tight and kept denying everything, and he never stood trial for murder. They did convict him of manhandling Midge—the charges were assault and battery and false imprisonment. The judge gave him the maximum—$10,000 fine and two years in the state pen. Besides that, of course, there was the closing down of Torchy's little business.

Kitty Lane? Nothing happened to her. She readily admitted that she'd stabbed Eddie, but it was self-defense; he'd been choking her—there were finger marks on her neck and hemorrhages in the larynx to prove it. For a while she lost her voice, which, in a singer, seemed appropriate retribution indeed. And when her voice came back, it was changed—deeper, huskier, with a grating undertone. It made her. She was a sultry singer now, exotic—she gave singers to male audiences. Justice? The court went crazy on Dave Fields. He was convicted of two crimes, attempt to procure money by fraud, and forgery. It could have been put away for a good long piece, but instead they put him on probation for two years. Dave's main defense was that he wasn't trying to get the dough for himself—he did it all to make Eddie financially stable so he would stop being a worry to his mother.

NOW, Roslyn. Technically, she was guilty of conspiracy to procure money by fraud, because she'd advised Dave on what to put in the will; however, the D. A. didn't bother to prosecute her—poor, sad widow. But Roslyn was responsible for her own troubles and everyone else's. Would there have been any trouble at all if Roslyn hadn't hounded Eddie till he teamed up with a counterfeiter? The discovery of Rocky's body on our grounds was what started Al Kemmer fusing around until he finally wound up slugging Eddie and getting his skull crushed in return. And all that led to Midge going out and getting manhandled, caused me to get socked and conked, and a poor, innocent hood to get a bullet in the chest, saved Dave Fields to take up forgery, caused Eddie to get himself stabbed to death. All because of that miserable, dissatisfied little witch.

Midge Burnett. Oh, you lovely little darling, Midge Burnett. You're wondering perhaps why I haven't come to see you, haven't come a-calling at your cozy 29-room show place in Merion, on the gilt-edged Main Line. Please know the sad truth, Midge: I'm busy looking for a job. These summertime romances . . .

THE END

OUR SENATOR REPORTS

PEACE PROGRAM: A program for real peace was presented to the world by President Eisenhower in his recent address before American newspaper editors. The President spoke as the leader of the nation—not as the leader of a political party. He looked for ways of getting out of our difficulties—not for pointless arguments about how we got into them. He stressed the basic principles that unite Americans—not the partisan differences that divide them.

As your Senator—as an American—I support that kind of program. I am ready at any time to do whatever I can to help the President carry it out.

FLOOD CONTROL: Texas flood control projects are threatened with drastic stretch-outs. Heavy cuts in appropriations are suggested in the revised budget for flood control and rivers and harbors, presented to Congress last week.

Suggested appropriation for the Dallas floodway is slashed from $2,500,000 to $750,000, that for the Fort Worth floodway from $1,550,000 to $1,000,000. These projects are designed to prevent flooding of the Fort Worth-Dallas area by the Trinity River. The cuts, if put into effect, will simply delay completion of the overall project. That delay could be disastrous. Who knows when the Trinity will flood again?

The revised budget cuts out altogether $975,000 for the Galveston seawall. It would reduce the appropriation for the Garza-Little Elm Reservoir from $4,935,000 to $3,635,000. It proposes an appropriation of $7,265,000 for the Texarkana Reservoir, compared with $8,565,000 in the original budget.

POSTMASTER EXAMS: Postmaster vacancies in 80 Texas towns and cities have been announced. There may be more to come. All eligible registers were terminated when the Civil Service Commission, at the request of the new Postmaster General, "raised standards" for postmasters.

I wrote the Postmaster General to ask (1) if postmasterships are to be denied because of political affiliations to persons who have passed Civil Service examinations recently but whose appointments have yet to be confirmed, and (2) if postal appointments are to be removed from Civil Service. The Deputy Postmaster General replied that "No one is being denied opportunity to compete for a postmastership because of political affiliations." He said standards had been raised because: "The position of postmaster is much more important than has been generally recognized. It is interesting that the Republicans didn't recognize the importance of postmasters until they started making the appointments. He also wrote: 'There is no intention of removing from office any of the postmasters appointed during the previous administration if they are now performing and continue to perform satisfactory service.'"

TEXAS STATE SOCIETY: President and Mrs. Eisenhower were honor guests at a Texas State Society "brunch" last Sunday. We felt it highly appropriate that our first native Texan President should attend this post-San Jacinto Day celebration.

Nearly a thousand Texans now living in Washington were on hand. QUICKIES: John C. White, able young Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, was here on official business. . . . So was Harry Ulom, Chief of Biometric Services for the State Hospital Board. . . . W. W. Cardwell of Bandera visited my office and presented me with an invitation to attend Bandera's mammoth Centennial Celebration, June 11-13. Woody Edmiston is General Centennial Chairman.

Want a good cookbook? I'll send you the Agriculture Department's "Family Fare" on request. . . . A number of fine Texas ladies were here last week for the national meet of the D.A.R. Several paid us a visit, among them Mrs. Hampton Robinson, Sr., of Missouri City, Mrs. E. A. Riggs of Graham, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Sr., of Victoria, and Mrs. Emmett Wallace of Bryan. . . . Some live wires from the Texas League of Women Voters also came by to see me. They were Mrs. William Penn of Midland, Mrs. John L. Brewster of Dallas, and Mrs. Elmer Richards of Waco. . . . Castor Oil For Long Life — Use Externally

DETROIT, Mich. — Mrs. Lala Murray, 109, whose relatives claim she is Michigan's oldest living resident, attributes her long life to daily rubdowns with castor oil. Mrs. Murray, a Georgia slave before the Emancipation, has outlived all but one of her 14 children. She now makes her home in Detroit with a grand daughter, Mrs. Robert Brooks. Mrs. Brooks says her grandmother learned of the castor oil treatment during the days of the civil war when she worked as a slave on a plantation near Cordele, Ga. "An old lady on the plantation told her about it 75 years ago," Mrs. Brooks said, "and she's been doing it ever since."

Here's Remodeling Magic

By rebuilding a dilapidated old four-room shack (inset at lower right) into an attractive, modern home with five rooms and bath, an Arkansas farm family effected the transformation shown in these before-and-after photos and won first prize in a statewide home remodeling contest. The major "face-lifting" change was achieved by covering exterior walls with asbestos-cement siding shingles. The shingles, in a soft shade of green, provide their own decoration, plus fire-safety and permanent weather protection. The wall overlooking the front porch is pine paneled. Also added were a concrete pier foundation, fireplace, kitchen, new asphalt roofing and electricity. The owners, the George F. Tabors of near Smackover, Ark., did the work with the aid of one carpenter and a loan arranged through the Farmers Home Administration office in El Dorado. The latter also helped in the planning. The contest was sponsored jointly by the FHA, the Arkansas Press Association and the state power and light company.

This Wasn't Ed's Lucky Day

MILWAUKEE — A "lost and found" ad in the newspapers here seeking the return of $1,500 told only part of the bad luck of Edward Ratz, a tavernkeeper.

Ratz lost the money—in bundles of $500 on his way from a bank to his bar where he planned to cash paychecks for workers from nearby factories. A search for the money was fruitless.

That evening during a quiet period in the bar, three men entered, held up Ratz and escaped with more than $900.

Rabbit Threat Is Attendance Aid To Rotary

Few club members ever went to as much trouble to avoid breaking an attendance record as did Jack Roberts of Clinton, Ky. He had a good reason for extra effort—he didn't want those rabbits.

The Clinton Rotary Club was leasing the state in attendance for more than a year, not a single member had missed a meeting until Roberts did because he was taken to a Fulton hospital for an emergency appendectomy.

Rotary's rules give a member a full week to make up a missed meeting, at any club. The following Tuesday, just beating the deadline, Roberts rode to a luncheon meeting in an ambulance, and ate his luncheon from a stretcher while clad in a hospital night gown.

Clinton's record was saved, and Roberts was saved from a horrible punishment. The club's method of keeping up attendance is simple but effective. Any member who misses a meeting is given custody of a pair of rabbits.

He keeps the rabbits—and any resultant offspring—until another member falls from grace.

Mickey Rooney tells Bob Hope and Marilyn Maxwell that what they're doing is not permissible, in this hilarious scene from Paramount's new comedy sensation "Off Limits," which opens Tuesday at the Tower Theatre. Misfortune struck another blow at the Gerhards. The car in which they were driving to Cisco with the girls broke down en route. A passing motorist, Mrs. Ray Royall, stopped and then drove the parents and the girls to the hospital.

Neighbors said they had left the scene only a few minutes before a doctor and a nurse arrived with oxygen from Rising Star.

The sisters will be buried in a Lutheran cemetery near their home in a Higginbotham Funeral Home, Rising Star, will direct arrangements.

Jeanette was born Dec. 5, 1941, Gwendolyn was born Dec. 1, 1943. They were reared on the Gerhardt farm which was homesteaded by their grandfather, a German immigrant, during the early 1900s. Other survivors include their paternal grandfather, Mrs. John Gerhardt Sr., who lives with the family. She was not home when the tragedy occurred.

TOO MUCH STARCH?—Not at all. The Wheeling, W. Va., housewife above, left, just made the mistake of hanging out her wash on a bitterly cold day. Giving up the attempt to fold the rigid fannels, she hoisted them to her shoulder and took them inside to thaw out.

The Assistant Director said the success of the undertaking hinges squarely on the hunters' response to the questionnaire. "If they do not report their hunting results," he explained, "We have no way of determining what happened and thus cannot effectively proceed."

Hunters' Aid Solicited In Game Bag Job

Cooperation of Texans hunters is being sought in a special Trans-Pecos study by the Game and Fish Commission, according to the Assistant Director of Wildlife Restoration for the Commission.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bullock and son, Jimmy, have returned from a vacation trip to Midland, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Barber; Houston, where they visited in the Gardner Harris and Jimmy Warren homes and Waco, where they visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moody.

The idea, "is to find out how much effort it took for the average hunter to kill game in different parts of the area west of the Pecos River. They will tell us where we have too little game to supply the hunting need. We can then begin special efforts to increase the supply to meet the demand in the right places.

"If you had poor luck, your first thought will be that this does not apply to you—but it certainly does. If only those who killed lots of game returned the cards, then it will appear to us that there are no problems. If you hunted many times and killed nothing, tell us that. If you did not hunting check 'No Hunting' and return the card. We need every man's story, good or bad."

The card questionnaire carries columns to report on the harvest of mule deer, whitetail deer, javelina, bear, blue quail, gambel quail, mourning dove, whitewing dove and waterfowl. The numbers bagged and the time spent in the field also is requested. Replies should be sent to P. B. Urzell, Wildlife Biologist, Game and Fish Commission, Box 826, Alpine.

The Commission can take direct action on restoring projects in the affected area because it has regulatory authority West of the Pecos.

Deer Herd Test Ready To Begin

First steps already have been taken to comply with the new state law authorizing possible experimental harvest of a limited number of female deer as a means of balancing deer herds in three Hill County counties.

The Executive Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission said Eugene Walker, Wildlife Biologist who has been specializing in big game management, has been assigned to the new project. He will shortly move with his family from Austin to establish headquarters in Kerrville.

Under the law, passed by the 1953 Legislature, closely supervised harvesting of surplus deer is permitted in Gillespie, Mason and Kerr counties. The experiment is authorized for four years beginning this year.

The Executive Secretary said it was uncertain as to whether the program could be advanced in time to permit actual starting of the supervised harvest during the 1953 big game season, opening Nov. 16. The plan was sponsored by ranchers and wildlife technicians as a means of stabilizing the deer population. The Executive Secretary explained that there is only so much food available and that excess population of big game works to the general detriment of the herds. He pointed out that many states have found regulated taking of female deer, where the sex ratio is out of balance, to be sound conservation practice.

Under the program authorized by the Legislature, final decision on whether the limited harvest shall be permitted is left up to the County Commissioners' Court. Meanwhile, herd surveys will be made, meetings arranged with interested land owners and the ground generally laid for the new undertaking.

Whales Partial To Coast Inlet

KITTY HAWK, N. C. — Old-time residents in the area of Caffey's Inlet maintain that their section of the Outer Banks attracts more large whales than any other area along the Atlantic coast.

Several of the large mammals have been washed ashore this year, but so far none has been as large as the 75-footer that was washed up near Paul Gamble's Hill Coast Guard Station in World War II. That one apparently had been mistaken for a submarine because its carcass showed evidence of having been hit by a bomb.

A. W. Drinkwater, veteran weather observer, said the reason so many whales come ashore in the Caffey's Inlet area is because the ocean currents there have a tendency to sweep inland from offshore.

WET ROADS? WIFE 'EM DRY WITH THE GREAT GULF TIRE! SURE-FOOTED TREAD WITH SHARP SAWTEETH. This tire has 7 sharp-edged, zigzag ribs that fight skids. They flex-wipe as they roll, thus break up water film on wet pavements. And there's less chance of blow-outs and carcass failures with this Gulf Tire because a double breaker strip cushions shocks. 7 ribs give the advantage of a 'riding bar' right down the center of the tire. Thus, where the load pressure is greatest, you ride on rubber, not on a groove. The Gulf tire runs cooler (and safer) at high speeds because of a special ingredient in the rubber. A flatter tread design meets the road more squarely, distributes the load better. So this tire wears more evenly, edge to edge... hence wears far longer! This tire can stand punishment. It has a stronger carcass with more cords and stronger cords in every ply! Sidewall shields protect tire against curbstone bruises. Warranty accompanies every Gulf Tire—is honored by Gulf Dealers everywhere! Stop in and see this great Gulf tire—it's a beauty!
