THE LEGISLATIVE GRAPEVINE By GRADY HAZELWOOD

Many members of the Senate will long remember the filibuster which began last Monday at about 2:30 P. M. and continued until 4:22 A. M. the following morning.

At least, the writer will never forget it. The bill under consideration was referred to by newspaper men as the "Lansburg Shark Bill." The entire substance of the bill may be stated in one sentence—it permits the attorney general or any prosecuting attorney to file an injunction suit against anyone bringing in excess of the lawful rate of interest.

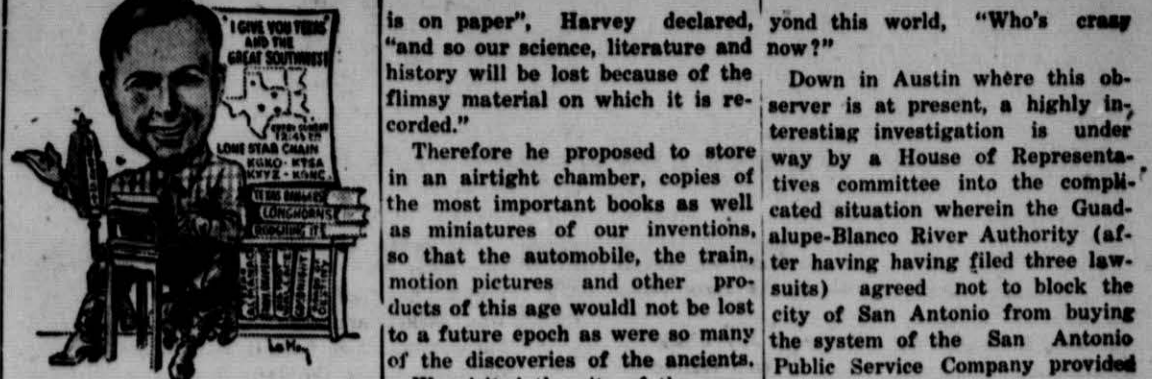

Several members of the Senate are in the army, and because members are frequently called outside the Senate chamber by out of town constituents it is sometimes difficult to maintain the necessary quorum.

Technical terms placed "a call on the Senate." The usual procedure then was for the Sergeant at Arms to immediately summon a sufficient number of the members of the Senate to constitute a quorum and lock all doors and exits. No member was permitted to leave the Senate chamber until after the roll call was taken.

Senators had to depend on their wives and friends to smuggle in sandwiches, malted milks and coca colas. Some went to sleep at their desks and had to be aroused whenever a roll call was made.

One member laid down on the floor. Now, to those of you who have read about filibusters, this is the way they actually work under parliamentary rules and procedure, and the writer of this article sincerely hopes he will never be compelled to endure another one.

The writer happened to be in the House of Representatives when the resolution was introduced inviting Senator O'Daniel to speak.

By BOYCE HOUSE Thought for the day: "I live for those who live me, For those who know me true, For the heaven that smiles above me, And awaits my spirit too; For the cause that lacks assistance, For the wrong that needs resistance, For the future in the distance, And the good that I can do."

My acquaintance with the coin Harvey was not nearly as far back as 96, however. It was in 1928, when he had settled down in the pretty little town of Monte Ne, Ark., up in the Ozarks, and was building a "pyramid of civilization."

He explained that forces were likely to wipe out this civilization, just as the civilizations of Chaldea, Assyria and Egypt were destroyed.

Well, another six weeks has almost gone and passed again. Everybody seems to have studied a little harder, this time. Just one more six weeks and then school will be out. So, everybody, study harder.

It looks like the results of the Senior play went over good. It seems that everyone enjoyed it, although some had to see it standing up.

Mrs. Elvish Burch and Jessie of Lubbock visited with friends in Dimmitt last week-end. Mr. Burch came for them Sunday and Mrs. Ours Stephens returned home with them for a week's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tate visited in the homes of their sons in Amarillo Sunday.

CRISIS IN MANPOWER "Renegotiation" Might Touch You

Today's problem of manpower means as much to the farmer with one hired hand, as to the merchant with a single clerk, as it does to the industrialist who employs thousands and persons. It is all a matter of proportion.

The war program has reached such a stupor that the government is now unable to produce the proper distribution of manpower as much importance as the war program. This war program is not a new program, but an extension of the old one.

It has been such a short time since there was more manpower than industry and agriculture could absorb that we may be a bit slow in waking up to the fact that today each man and woman who can be used to help in the battle of production is needed, and needed badly.

Where Manpower is Wasted Our new Congress must make sure that those in charge of this task, in Washington, cast about to see where able-bodied people are being needlessly employed.

Need for UNITED EFFORT In the last fiscal year the cost of operating these automobiles was $4,243,602. According to the use of the first four months of the present year the cost of these automobiles was $1,000,000.

Why More Payroll? Another example of the need for united effort is found in the problem of the government's excessive profits on war contracts. This is a problem that is not only a national one, but a world one.

NAZARETH

The Mother Sodality of the Holy Family Parish held their regular monthly meeting on Sunday, April 4. They bought a beautiful Chalice to replace the old one which was rather worn. They are now busily preparing to buy a $100 War Saving Bond.

The kitchen of the community hall has recently been remodeled. New cabinets and a water system have been installed. The local Mother's Sodality is always ready to serve lunches at all of the community socials.

The local P. T. A. has purchased a hundred new chairs for the school auditorium.

The Nazareth Community exceeded its quota for the Red Cross in the first two weeks of the campaign. Father Gregory Boeckman was chairman, and individual workers who reached the public were: Ruth Ann Ferh, Ethelreda Kleman, Margaret Acker, Bonita Kern, Rosemary Guggemos, Rita Hackstein, Martina Heck, Julianna Birkenfeld, Bobbie Hafernik, and Bernice Acker. The quota was $225. Collections in the two weeks amounted to more than $243.

Much sewing and knitting has been done for the Red Cross under the leadership of Mrs. Joe Warren. The science room in the Nazareth school had been used for cutting garments on days when school is not held. These articles are taken home by workers to be sewed, since no public place is available as a sewing room. Especially active in sewing have been Mrs. Frank Annen, Mrs. Joe Bichsel, Mrs. Philip Acker, Mrs. Joe Birkenfeld, Mrs. A. M. Heiman, Mrs. Joe Schwallier, and Mrs. Joe Warren. Active in knitting sweaters are Mrs. Frank Annen, Mrs. Ed Drerup, Byrla Schwallier, and Bonita Kern.

Woolen dresses and skirts have been made, also men's pajamas and children's robes. At present operating gowns are in the making. These will be sewed by members of the High School Junior Red Cross and by members of the P. T. A.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

"Could the Beveridge Plan Be Applied to the United States?"

As debated by Dr. Frank Kingdon and Henry Noble Hall

DR. KINGDON OPENS: Want can be abolished! Our technological society can create enough wealth to supply the necessities of life for all people. The problem is how to distribute wealth to get this result. The Beveridge Plan is a program for social security based on children's allowances, health and rehabilitation services, and maintenance of employment.

The question arises: can we have such planning and preserve individual freedom? The Beveridge Plan overtly faces this issue, and never subordinates freedom to security. It maintains the contributory principle, not only as sound finance, but as a guarantee of individual self-respect. It emphasizes the value of voluntary agencies, for while it provides a minimum for everybody, it leaves individuals free to provide for themselves beyond this minimum. It sets no limit to initiative!

It is not revolutionary. It takes the principle of social security, which has been applied unevenly, and applies it consistently throughout the social order. It plugs present gaps. It does not make the government give the people a higher standard of living. It gives the people an opportunity to share in raising their own standards.

It can be applied to the United States even more effectively than to Great Britain in proportion as our per capita wealth is greater than theirs.

MR. HALL OPENS: The question is not whether want can be abolished. In a country as blessed by nature as the United States, if everybody contributed his maximum in goods and services to the community, without interference from the Government, there would probably be less want than anywhere on earth. The question is whether the Beveridge Plan can be applied to the United States. The idea that a plan, scientifically worked out in great detail to give social security and provide free medical care from the cradle to the grave and irrespective of the recipient's ability to pay, for a highly industrialized community of 46,000,000 people dependent on imports for nearly all their food and living on a tiny island, so small that nowhere can a man stand on it more than 75 miles from the sea, that such a plan could be adopted to the United States where economic conditions and the way of life are almost diametrically opposed, simply does not seem to make sense. The per capita wealth of the two countries does not enter into the question. If it could be applied to the United States, where earnings are higher and distances greater, the Beveridge Plan would cost upwards of one billion dollars a month!

MR. HALL CHALLENGES: The Beveridge Plan would be revolutionary if applied to the United States. In Sir William's own words "the important thing is that the plan is part of a policy of a national minimum, of giving benefits as a right which are adequate in amount (enough for subsistence without other resources) and adequate in time (last as long as the need lasts) and do not vary with previous earnings of the person insured. In other words irrespective of what he does for society, society must give every man a minimum to live on. Could anything be more un-American?"

DR. KINGDON REPLIES: It would be un-American to allow any person, adult or child, to go hungry or homeless if we can devise a way to prevent it. The American minimum of rights consists of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." A man cannot enjoy life without enough to keep him alive, or liberty without minimum necessities of experience. He cannot pursue happiness if he is starving. The Beveridge Plan is a program for mobilizing the energy and wealth of the community to safeguard the well-being of all. It is not revolutionary. It is the explicit application of the principle implicit in the Declaration of Independence!

MR. HALL REPLIES: No civilized community allows a hungry man to die of starvation, but responsibility for those who "face periodic unemployment from causes beyond their control" has nothing on earth to do with the question "Could the Beveridge Plan Be Applied to the United States?" Apart from the fact that there is no need for it in America, that it would be repugnant to American traditions and the American way of life, it could NOT be applied here because it's drawn up to deal with entirely different conditions. It would be bound to fail quite aside from its prohibitive costs.
