Latvian To Speak At Local Church

Special speaker at the Assembly of God church Sunday, June 18, will be Rev. Andris Lamberts. He is a native of Latvia. At present he is a student at Wayland College. Rev. Lamberts is a capable speaker and we welcome the public to come and hear this man of God as he gives a first hand account of what is happening in his home land.

We also invite those who are not members of another Church to come to our Sunday School and Worship Services every Sunday. We have a growing Church and Sunday School and we need your help to keep it such. Church members, the challenge is to you. What kind of a Christian are you? It is the kind of life that you live that will influence others. Take your place in the service next Sunday and don't let it be said of you that you are an "INACTIVE Member."

THINK THIS OVER Are you an active Christian The kind that would be missed? Or are you just contented That your name is on the list?

Do you attend the services And mingle with the flock, Or do you simply stay at home And criticize and knock?

Do you take an active part To help God's work along, Or are you humbly satisfied To only just belong?

Do you ever go to visit A Christian who is sick? Or do you leave the work to just a few And talk about the clique?

Think it over seriously, Christian, You know right from wrong; Are you an active Christian, Or—do you just belong? Olan Beauchamp, Pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McClure, Lenett, and Richard of Kress visited in the R. L. Tomme home Sunday. Betty Louise and Billy returned home with them for a visit of several days.

Questions And Answers On 1950 Cotton Marketing Quota Program

Several general questions have been raised in regard to 1950 marketing quota which will possibly be of value prior to the time complete information is available. These questions and answers are as follows:

1. Question: May cotton acreage in excess of farm allotment be disposed of?

Answer: Yes. Farm operator will be notified of measured acres of cotton on farm and if in excess of the allotment, will be given fifteen (15) days to dispose of the excess acreage.

2. Question: How is marketing quota penalty determined?

Answer: When it is determined that cotton acreage in excess of the farm allotment will not be disposed of, the county committee will establish a normal yield for the farm. The normal yield will be the five (5) year average of actual production or an appraisal for each year in line with similar farms in the community. The normal yield excess acres X 50 per cent of parity as of June 15.

3. Question: Will penalty rate vary with class and grade of cotton sold?

Answer: No. The penalty rate will be based on Middling seven-eighths cotton and will be the same on all penalty cotton regardless of the class and grade.

4. Question: When is penalty to be paid?

Answer: To receive a marketing card, penalty must be paid in advance to County Office. If not paid in advance, buyer will deduct penalty from all cotton sold and will continue to deduct penalty until sufficient penalty has been transmitted to the County Office to pay the amount due. The marketing card will then be issued for the farm. A Federal mortgage will be in effect against all cotton produced on an overplanted farm until the full penalty has been paid.

5. Question: Is interest due on marketing quota penalties?

Answer: Interest will be computed on penalties due if not paid by a date to be set by the Secretary in Marketing Quota Regulations.

6. Question: Will penalty be determined on a farm or a producer basis?

Answer: No. Buyers will be required to record marketing card serial numbers on their records. Special reports may be requested in case of violations.

8. Question: Will gin reports be required?

Answer: No.

9. Question: Will a producer receive a marketing card on an underplanted farm when he has an interest in an overplanted farm?

Answer: Not until penalty has been paid on excess farm.

10. Question: Who will be notified by the county committee of the penalty on an excess farm with more than one producer interested in cotton?

Answer: Farm operator.

Allan Shivers Asks "Term Of My Own" As Texas Governor

Gov. Allan Shivers, in formally announcing his candidacy for a first elective term as Governor, said he has done his best to carry out a program for Texas in a manner acceptable to the people of Texas, adding:

"If I have succeeded, I will appreciate their votes for a term of my own."

Shivers, who assumed the Governorship last July, had not held a full-time governmental job before becoming Governor. He was elected to the State Senate in 1934 and twice re-elected. Born in Lufkin, he spent his boyhood in Tyler County and later moved with his family to Port Arthur.

During his public career Shivers has given particular attention to public welfare, rural roads and improved educational facilities. He was a co-author of Texas' original old-age assistance law and helped write the tax bill which still meets the cost of old-age assistance. Under his leadership last February, the Legislature approved a far-reaching reform and improvement program for state hospitals.

"Between now and the July 22 election I will continue to make known my views on important public issues," Governor Shivers stated. "I will emphasize facts and records of accomplishments, instead of easy promises, and will address myself to all the people of Texas rather than to any special group."

The Governor said he considers economy to be the State's top problem. "And that means economy of money, of our soil and of our water resources," he added.

He expressed thanks to "the thousands of individual Texans who have already told me that they will support me in this election."

New Taxes Would Hit Low Income Groups Report

If all personal incomes in excess of $40,000 a year were confiscated by Uncle Sam, it would barely give him the additional money needed to wipe out the $5 1/2 billion deficit and finance the $1 billion first year's cost of the new Federal spending programs proposed in the 1951 budget.

Since the nation faces a choice of submitting to higher taxes or reducing Federal spending if Uncle Sam is to live within his income, the Council of State Chambers of Commerce today pointed up some of the difficulties in increasing Federal revenues.

This study revealed that if, for instance, the Federal Government set $50,000 as the maximum income that could be retained by individuals and took outright all income above $50,000, it would get only about $843 million more than it gets now from present taxes on those incomes. This $843 million would be enough to run the Federal Government only one week.

Or suppose Uncle Sam called $25,000 the most anyone could have and took everything made above that figure. That would give the Government a little over $2 billion in additional revenue. This is just a little less than the Government intends to spend on agricultural activities and subsidies alone in 1951.

But, of course, Uncle Sam would never think of taking such a big tax bite because he knows he would destroy all personal incentives to earn that much again.

The survey showed further that in spite of the high taxes on incomes of $100,000 and over, Uncle Sam collected only $1.2 billion from 10,844 persons with such incomes in 1947 which is the latest year for which complete statistics are available. This total was only 6 1/2 per cent of all income taxes paid that year. And tax rates on incomes over $100,000 that year ranged from 67 per cent to as high as 91 per cent.

On the other hand, 51 million taxpayers reporting incomes of less than $5,000 in 1947 paid $8 1/2 billion which is 48 per cent or almost half of the income taxes collected that year.

The Council said, "There is no getting around the fact that any additional burden of taxes must fall on the lower income groups. They have only two choices: submitting to more taxes or demanding cuts in present spending with a halt to new spending."

Rev. and Mrs. Loy Ferguson and daughter, Marjorie, of Gilmer, Texas left Wednesday after spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ferguson and other relatives here.

Mahon Protests Proposed Cotton Acreage Cut

Representative George Mahon reported to the local PMA that the House Committee on Agriculture is seriously considering the approval of a bill by Congressman Pace of Georgia which would, among other things, drastically reduce cotton acreage allotments in West Texas next year. Mahon states that he has been advised by officials of the Department of Agriculture under the proposal by Pace to reduce the 19th Congressional District allotment from 355,000 acres of cotton to 250,000 acres. Mahon has appealed to PMA officials in Washington and Dallas to seek to be of assistance in preventing this reshuffling of the cotton acreage allotments for Texas. He appeared last week before the House Committee on Agriculture to protest the proposed action, and he states that he will continue to do everything in his power in behalf of the cotton producers of West Texas.

The yield has been very light, some crops averaging only 2 to 3 bushels, others up to 20 bushels per acre. The test weight has been satisfactory, averaging about 60. One grain dealer reported that one crop received averaged 63.

Gibson Recommends Spraying Cotton To Combat Thrip

Many requests are being received by Bob Gibson, County Agent, concerning the ragged appearance of cotton plants in the fourth to eighth leaf stage of growth.

Gibson states: upon investigation he finds all of these fields are severely infested with thrip. Thrip is a very small straw colored insect about 1.16 inch long and smaller around than a pin. They are very hard to see with the naked eye.

Cotton plants infested with thrip look very ragged, the leaves have holes in them and are pinched and curled as if they had been attacked by lice. The leaves do not make a normal growth and the entire plant looks as if it had been through a severe sandstorm. Thrip will weaken the plant and cause the first forms or bottom crop to be thrown off similar to the damage caused by fleahoppers.

Thrip can be controlled by spraying the cotton with 3.4 to 1 1/2 pints of taxophene or 3.4 to 1 1/2 pints of two parts taxophene and 1 pint DDT. Spraying young cotton with these insecticides has proven very profitable and returns very high dividends because it saves the first crop.

City Offers Permanent Type DDT For Sale

As a sanitation measure and in order to combat flies and mosquitoes, the City is offering for sale to local residents a permanent-type DDT for home spraying. The spray is in gallon cans and will sell for around $1.00 per gallon, the Beacon was informed. Residents are asked to bring their own containers when they call at the City Office for the spray.

The DDT is the same type that the City employees will use to spray garbage cans and the backs of local store buildings, it was said. It contains an ingredient that sticks to the surface and is not easily washed off. This makes the DDT effective for long periods of time and when the insect gets on the sprayed area, it kills. It is reported to be effective for 30 to 60 days.

Garbage Collected

The public is reminded by city and health officials that a paid garbage collector is now on the job and all residents are urged to put their garbage in cans on the alley so that it may be collected. The collector is V. F. Lambert, who also collects trash. Mr. Lambert is paid by the city and he requests that if any person has garbage that is missed in the pick-up, they call him at telephone 10-W. However, city officials emphasized that the garbage must be in a container.

How To Get Help If Polio Strikes

Reports from down-state indicate that the polio epidemic in that area is worse this year than ever before. Floyd County, while hoping that the dread disease will not strike in this county this year, should be prepared in knowing what steps to take if it should strike.

It is reported that there has been one light case of polio in the south part of the county this year. Fortunately there have been no serious cases thus far. If polio does strike here is what the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis advises that you do:

1. At first sign of illness call your own doctor. If he suspects polio he will report the case to the Health Department and arrange for hospitalization or home care, as indicated. The National Foundation does not select physicians or hospitals. This is a family matter. If you have no family physician, call your City or County Medical Society, or the nearest hospital.

2. If your doctor says that it is polio and requires hospitalization, the local Chapter of the National Foundation will help arrange for transportation to a treatment center. As soon as the patient goes to the hospital—or if your doctor advises that the patient can be treated at home—get in touch with your Chapter of the National Foundation to arrange for any needed assistance.

Your chapter will get in touch with you as soon as it learns of the case through your physician, the hospital or the health department. However, late reporting or a heavy load may delay this Chapter contact. If you do not hear promptly, telephone or visit your chapter representative. You can ease your own worries sooner by making the approach yourself.

3. The Chapter will notify the hospital that it is arranging with you for a full or partial payment of expenses for medical care. Adults are as eligible for help as children. Discuss with your Chapter how much of the full bill the chapter will pay. March of Dimes funds are used to help the medical indigent—but this is not the same as "indigent;" it includes families of moderate income who cannot meet the high costs of modern care of this expensive disease. The help is a gift—not a loan. While families that can pay are expected to do so, no family is expected to impoverish itself to meet medical expenses for polio.

Striking Picture Emphasizes Lay Witness

NASHVILLE, TENN. — Warner Sallman's striking picture, "Feed My Sheep," presents the challenge of evangelism to laymen. It will have world-wide distribution on the cover of the all-laymen issue of The Upper Room, devotional guide published here. Writers of the daily meditations are laymen and laywomen of many occupations including: housewives, farmers, editors, merchants, manufacturers, labor leaders, lawyers, engineers, doctors.

The churches of the United States and Canada are participating in a United Evangelistic Advance. The all-laymen issue of The Upper Room emphasizes the place of laymen and laywomen in this movement. Thirteen editions of this devotional guide are printed in its world-wide circulation, with more than two million copies distributed in the United States.

Even if you can assume full costs for initial hospitalization, it is a good idea to see your Chapter. If you should be a patient who is severely affected—and this cannot be determined in the first few days—you may need help later on. Bills incurred in the weeks before your Chapter assumes financial responsibility cannot be paid months afterward, but the Chapter will step in at whatever time you really need help. Have a frank, friendly talk with your Chapter representative at the beginning.

4. Chapters pay for hospitalization, professional services including nursing and physical therapy, transportation to and from hospitals, convalescent centers and clinics, treatment after hospitalization and appliances such as wheelchairs, braces, etc., as needed. There are no hard and fast rules. Each case is decided upon individual medical and financial needs. Assistance is given regardless of race, age, creed or color. More than 110,000 polio patients were directly assisted in full or part up to the end of 1948.

5. In addition your chapter can put you in touch with proper sources for nursing and physical therapy at home, can refer you to rehabilitation and vocational training agencies, will provide literature designed to foster better understanding of infantile paralysis—so you will know what to expect and how to help your polio patient back to a useful life.

All of these services are made possible by the March of Dimes drive each January.

Hints On Freezing Vegetables Given

College Station.—Home freezers are fast becoming a part of the food preservation equipment in rural as well as city homes. This method of food preservation is enabling the homemaker to do a better job of providing the family with fresh vegetables the year-round. A good supply of vegetables is needed for balancing the diet and according to Louise Mason, extension foods and nutrition specialist of Texas A. & M. College, home freezing or using a freezer-locker box to store surplus vegetables for later use is one sure way to have them when they are needed.

Miss Mason says there are several factors that will have a bearing on the quality of the frozen vegetables and these should be kept in mind when vegetables are being prepared for freezing. Speed is important and there should be no delays from the time the vegetables are gathered until processed and stored.

She points out that vegetables begin to lose food value and flavor as soon as they are gathered. During the summer months, she says it is best to gather the vegetables early in the morning, but be sure they have reached their peak in flavor and texture, for freezing does not improve their quality.

It is necessary to scald vegetables in boiling water, before freezing, to prevent loss of quality and to preserve the vitamin content. Freezing alone does not stop the enzyme action in vegetables if they are not scalded, this action will cause undesirable odors to develop along with the loss of flavor and color.

Each vegetable, she says, requires a different scalding time and she suggests that you see your local county home demonstration agent and get a copy of B-175, Frozen Foods. This bulletin is new and instructions are given in detail on how each vegetable should be handled from the time it leaves the garden until it is ready for storage.

She says when vegetables are properly scalded, packaged, processed and stored at about 0 degrees F., they will retain their quality for one year. The vegetables that cannot be successfully frozen are tomatoes and salad greens, such as lettuce, parsley, endive, cabbage, celery and onions.

MORE GASOLINE FROM LESS CRUDE

Oil refining processes have been advanced by petroleum engineers to the point where today's 20-gallon tankful of automobile gasoline can be obtained from one 42-gallon barrel of crude oil. That same tankful 30 years ago would have required two barrels of crude, while in 1910 refiners had to process four and one-half barrels of oil to squeeze out 20 gallons of gasoline. On top of that, today's gasoline is an infinitely better fuel.

Methodist Notes

Vacation Church School will begin Monday, June 26, extending through July 2. It will meet at 3:30 each afternoon. If you know of any boys or girls who should be in this group please urge them to attend.

We are anxious to get more out to church school, our attendance has been off the last two Sundays. Surely we can give God two hours Sunday morning and two on Sunday night when He gives us so much every day of our life.

Sometimes we get too busy to serve God. But what if He should get too busy to serve us? If Jesus comes back to earth on Sunday night He will certainly find a lot of Church people away from His House.

The young people of our church enjoyed a chicken fry and ice cream supper in the basement of the church last Thursday night. Thirty-three young people and several adults attended this social. We sincerely thank those who came and helped cook and serve the meal.

A number of our young people, along with the pastor, attended a Young People's Meeting at Crosbyton recently.

Jay Kemp and Marvin Wells attended Junior Camp at Ceta Canyon recently. Sam Daniel was a teacher and sponsor from our church.

Let us all work together in the building of God's Kingdom.

Thoughts for the week: You have but one life to invest, let us invest it wisely. Let us renew our vows to Christ and the Church, and answer the call for service. You may depend upon the Lord; may the Lord depend upon you?

Newton Daniel, Pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Woods had as their guests Sunday and Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Webb and family from Clinton, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Goad returned Friday from a weeks visit in Ft. Worth, Oklahoma City and other points in Oklahoma.

Farmer's Question Corner

PREPARED BY American Foundation For Animal Health

Anaplasmosis—Cattle Killer

QUESTION: What is this strange-sounding disease "anaplasmosis", and how serious is it?

ANSWER: A blood disease of cattle which is spreading slowly throughout the country. Veterinarians say it's the third most costly cattle disease in America.

QUESTION: How does it affect cattle?

ANSWER: The heart beats faster, the skin may get yellowish, milk production falls off; the animal gets listless and loses weight rapidly. A laboratory blood test often shows the dot-like parasite in red blood cells.

QUESTION: What causes anaplasmosis?

ANSWER: A tiny parasite which is sometimes carried by flies, mosquitoes and ticks. Anaplasmosis may also be spread by unsterilized vaccination needles and dehorning instruments. When the infection is well established it destroys red blood cells.

QUESTION: Do cattle die from it?

ANSWER: Yes. From one-fifth to one-third of the infected animals die. The ones that don't die remain carriers of the disease parasites.

QUESTION: What should the owner do with cattle that recover?

ANSWER: Usually, because recovered animals are carriers, it's best to fatten them, and send them to market, but that depends upon local disease conditions. The meat and milk from these animals is safe for human consumption.

QUESTION: Is it a summertime disease?

ANSWER: Usually, although it may appear during the winter in regions with mild climates. Also, it is mostly a disease of mature animals; young calves seldom get it.

QUESTION: Is there a vaccine available?

ANSWER: No, but research veterinarians are attempting to develop one. Also, they are using several drugs for treating the disease, but they have not yet found one that is entirely satisfactory. Many infected animals can be saved, however, if treatment is started soon enough.

But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him.—Luke 10:33.

Children, for the most part, reflect the home from which they come. If the parents are lax in their observance of local laws, the children are going to grow up with the same habits. If the father is lax in his morals and discusses his shortcomings in the hearing of his sons, the boys are going to be that kind of men. If the church and other worthy things are ridiculed or spoken slightly of in the presence of the children they are going to grow up with that same attitude.

There are exceptions, of course, where the children rise above the social and the moral and the religious level of the home life—but they are exceptions.

The high courts of the land has ruled that members of a congressional committee have a right to ask of any man this question: "Are you now or have you ever been a Communist?" The witness is obliged to answer. If he refuses he may be both fined and imprisoned. The basis for the courts decision is that the welfare of the general public and the nation is above the reluctance of an individual to disclose personal facts about himself which are pertinent to the investigation being conducted by Congress. The court did not rule that it was a crime to be a Communist, but it is an offense to block in any way a reasonable investigation by Congress.

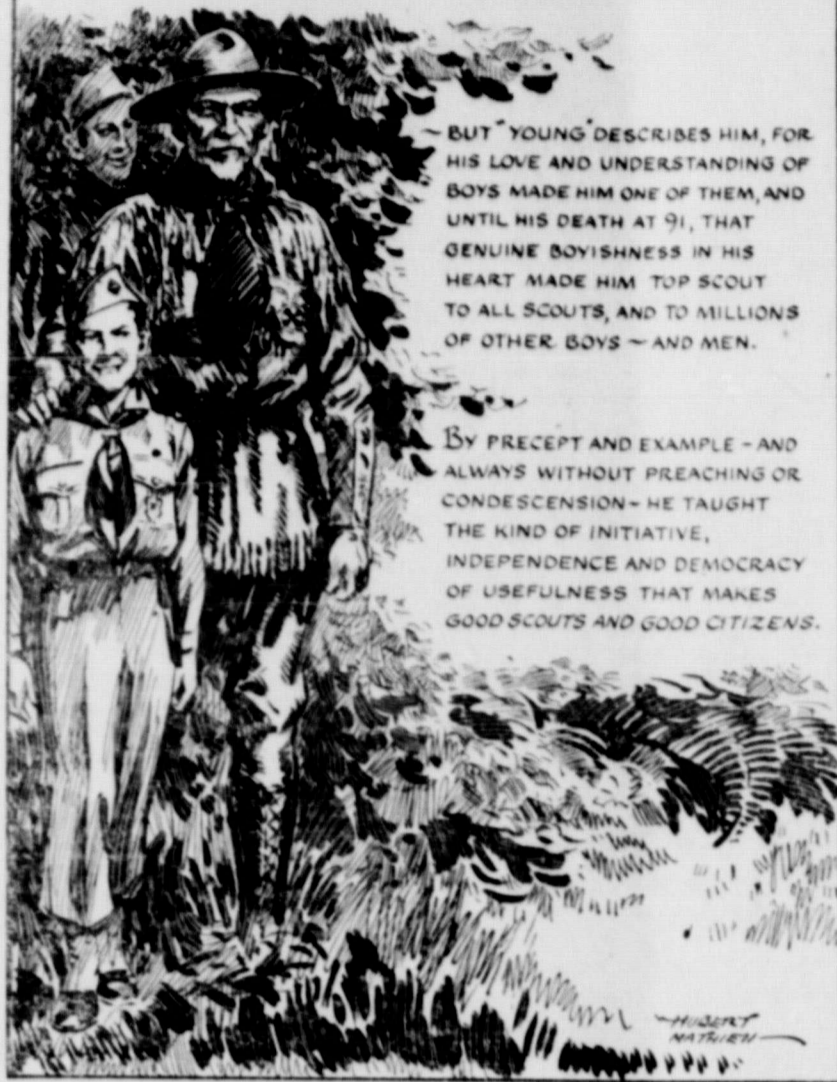

Someone has suggested that the goat be adopted as the emblem of the taxpayer. For many reasons the goat would be an admirable selection. No one ever heard of a word of praise or commendation for the goat, and no one ever heard of a word of praise, appreciation or commendation for the taxpayer. Notwithstanding the fact that it is the taxpayer who builds all the roads, pays the teachers, builds all the bridges, provides all the money to run the country, state and national government, provides all the money that the Welfare office doles out, and pays for all the things that contribute to the so called "fuller life" of today. The goat is often pictured as disconsolately eating a tin can that he has picked up in the alley. Here again the goat resembles the taxpayer. He eats the only thing that is left after everyone else gets what he wants—the things no one else wants.

The consensus of opinion among the experts is that a third World War with Russia would mean our economic destruction and the end of the American way of life as we know it. The reason: A third World War, in view of our present financial condition would call for financial demands that it would bankrupt us to meet. Once having crossed the line and actually engaged in war we would have to see it through to the end, even though it took our last bit of resource and multiplied our cash obligations to the government many times. We can do a lot of soft pedaling before we deliberately subject ourselves to this possibility.

THIS IS FREE ENTERPRISE
The term "free enterprise" has become so common it has lost significance. And yet it is an accurate term that cannot be avoided in describing the activities of private citizens in contrast to public or governmental undertakings. The best way to define free enterprise and what it means to the country in terms of progress and living standards is by illustration. For example practically everyone at some time has seen or used a pressure-type gasoline lantern. The chances are that it was a Coleman lantern. A half century ago Coleman lamps brought light to cities and homes throughout the nation. The story of the man and the company behind those lamps is a story of free enterprise that anyone can understand. It is a story of an individual who succeeded against odds.

W. C. Coleman, who celebrates his eightieth birthday this year while his company celebrates its fiftieth anniversary, began with an idea and no money. Because he had a good product and tireless energy his enterprise grew and prospered. As the electric light developed Coleman expanded into oil-burning home heaters. Today in this field sales average 400,000 units annually. The Coleman plants employ 2,500 people. Mr. Coleman at 80 runs the business with the help of his two sons. Within recent years he has visited every American city of over 25,000 population and 90 per cent of those over 10,000 calling on dealers who handle his products. His activities have done their bit in making the American standard of living and American goods famous.

His lamps, like the oil they burn, exhibit free enterprise in a way that cannot be defined in a dictionary. It means liberty, opportunity, and progress. — Hockley County Herald.

WHEAT CONTROL OFF

While it is still unofficial, indications are that farmers will be allowed back to full production, at least for the 1950-51 planting and harvest. The move is being advocated even by Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, one of the more pronounced of the farming-by-plan administration men. Causes of the reversal are, of course, blamed on the vagaries of nature—too dry in the winter wheat belt, too cold and wet in a large part of the spring wheat region at planting time.

With the short crop in prospect for this year, the "ever normal granary" folks in Washington think that domestic demand and commitments abroad, under the International Wheat Agreement, might run the nation short, especially if the fates should deal us another short crop in '51.

And that is not outside the realm of possibilities, as many older farmers will recall. Even with all controls off it is not likely that the nation will see as large acreages planted this year as in some of the war years and early postwar years.

The reason for this is that many farmers, viewing the rook-overs surpluses and price supports as aired in Congress in the late winter and early spring, had decided that acreage limitations were here to stay. Accordingly, many had changed their individual farming programs, changing to other crops, especially feed for handling more livestock.

Since this change-over has been expensive and entails a long-time period to make the change pay-off, they will likely leave the acres out of wheat production and go ahead with their revised programs. And it will cause all of them to wonder a

FLOOD "DRILLS" OIL WELL IN CELLAR

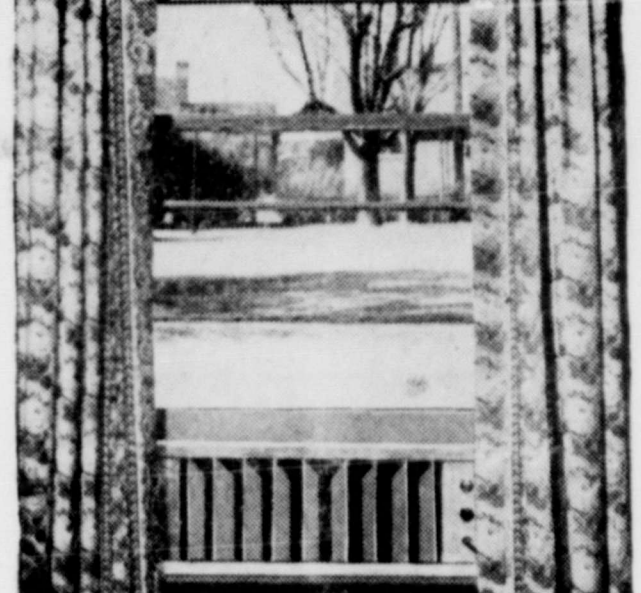

Scientists generally need complicated instruments to find petroleum deposits, but in Indiana recently a Wabash River flood pushed crude oil up through the basement of a home. Experts theorize that the house stands on an oil reef, a porous rock formation which holds petroleum and that pressure of the flood waters forced the oil out of the ground.

Trucks supplied by Ford Motor Company are carrying replicas of the famous Liberty bell into every state of the United States to spearhead the U. S. Treasury department's Savings Bond Independence Drive. The bells were given to the Treasury by six United States copper companies. When they arrived in New York they were mounted on Ford trucks and sent to every state in the Union. MILEAGE MARATHON

An oil company research expert recently squeezed about 150 miles per gallon out of regular-grade gasoline. He rearranged the gear ratio of his car, buffed the tires smooth for better road action, disconnected the fan, reworked the engine and then, in a "mileage marathon," coasted whenever possible. He drove about 16 miles per hour.

The word "petroleum" is derived from the Latin words "petra" meaning "a rock" and "oleum" meaning "oil."

CUT CORROSION COSTS

Formaldehyde is now used in America's oil fields to counteract hydrogen sulfide corrosion. The manufacturer says the new technique results in a saving of $29 on equipment replacement for every $1 invested in the chemical.

They also are found along the coast of Louisiana and of Mexico.

Mottled ducks look so much like mallards that they frequently are mistaken for the former, according to the Director of Wildlife Restoration. He said the mottled species are darker and that they are white beneath their wings. Males do not have green heads or curled tail feathers like mallard males. Thus it is difficult to distinguish mottled males and females.

The Director said the mottled ducks provide as much as 20 per cent of the birds bagged during the early season in southeast Texas. In some unusually abundant years they have accounted for 40 per cent of the hunters' early bags.

'NEEDLE-EYE' WELLS FOR OIL

Some "wildcaters" are experimenting with coring holes one and one-half inches in diameter. Adaption of mining methods, the technique may reduce the cost of corings for rock samples. It also is considered possible that such "needlepoint" holes may be completed as producing wells. For ten years the oil industry has been drilling "narrow" wells, but these usually are large enough to take four-inch pipe.

Banding Of Ducks Begins In Texas

Austin. — Two determined young wildlife biologists invaded the southeast Texas rice marshes this week on a prolonged duck banding project. They are Gus Engeling and Don Duncan. Headquarters are at Rosenberg, southwest of Houston.

The mottled duck, the principal native Texas waterfowl species, is the primary objective. Game management staffers of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission seek more data about this bird which provides considerable sport for Texas hunters.

Armed only with leg bands for the birds and generous quantities of mosquito repellant for themselves, the men hope to band several hundred ducks between now and late August. Last summer, 240 mottled ducks were banded. Hunters returned 29 of the bands to Austin game department headquarters.

By tagging both young and old birds, the biologists have determined that this game species, so popular with hunters of its size and tastiness, concentrate mainly in a 100 mile wide strip along the Texas coast.

Huntin' AND Fishin'

By Harve Pennington
One of the most important factors in determining where to fish is the temperature of the water. This is true both in lakes and streams. Fish are cold blooded animals. This means that the temperature of the water takes on the temperature as the surrounding water. The function of a fish is to speed up or slow down as temperature changes. Some of our popular game fish are so sensitive to water temperature that it is useless to fish for them in waters that are within the narrow temperature range that they require. Lake trout, for example, will not stay in water out of the 40 to 45 degree range. Brook trout, as most of us know, require much colder water than do brown trout.

Forty years ago the few fishermen who realized that water temperature played an important part in locating their fish were ridiculed by most of their fellow sportsmen. Those fishermen who did try to find fish by water temperature had to rely for the most part on a sense of feel, sticking their hands in the water to see if it felt right. The story is told of one Indian guide who trailed his bare toes in the lake to locate the cool waters coming into the lake from springs. Today thousands of fishermen have stream thermometers in their tackle boxes, thanks mostly to the writings of Frank R. Steel, holder of both fishing and tournament world records. His many articles have received widespread notice and his books on "Fly Fishing" and "Bait Casting with a Thermometer" are excellent and go into great detail on the subject.

It is well to remember that as the water gets warmer most of the fish go deeper and only come into shallow water to feed after the sun goes down and these waters cool. This is especially true of the black basses.

By far the greater majority of our fishing holes in streams and lakes alike, have many barren stretches where only a stray fish may be taken as he moves from one feeding ground to another. Therein lies our problem of the fisherman, he must locate the water where the fish will be feeding or resting in cover. In fishing waters that are familiar to you, you know where your chances of success are best and do not waste much time in fishing waters that you know to be unproductive. But what about those occasional trips that you make to strange waters or waters that you have fished only a few times? If you start out to cover all the waters of a lake or stream you will waste much time working over the dead areas and there is a good chance that you may not even take a fish in your allotted fishing time. To get the maximum amount of fishing in where there is a chance of your catching something to take back home to show the "little woman" or the unlucky fellows who had to stay home, the suggestions I gave you last week where to locate your fish will help, and don't forget to fish under bridges, fish the inlets, fish over rock ledges, over sand bars and along the rocky shores. Overhanging trees offer shade and cooler water, so do pier and swimming rafts. Fallen trees in the water make excellent cover. Fish spend a part of the day feeding and where you find their food you will find them.

For big mouth bass I have generally thought that if I can't seem to get them near the edges of the pods, reeds, rushes, or weeds, you can induce savage smashes by using weedless spoons with pork rine, or pork chunks right on or among the thickest of water growths. You'll be surprised at the way the big boys burst like bombs right up

Ringworms Infect Half Of People

Austin.—It is a 50-50 bet that you have some sort of ringworm infection. Check to see. Chances are it will be in your scalp hair, on your groin, or on your feet—either on the soles or between the toes. If you don't find it, you're lucky, because while it isn't serious its itching and persistence is very annoying.

A fungus—the same one that causes food to mold—causes ringworm. It's one of the world's most common ailments, with authorities estimating that half of the world's population is affected. It is more common this time of year than any other. Animals get it too. As a matter of fact, cats, dogs, rabbits, mice, and fowls are frequently the source of infection in man. A child plays with an infected dog, the dog's hair brushes the child, and the child stands an excellent chance of ringworm infection.

The scales which are formed can cause new infections on the body, so an infected person has to be careful to keep it from spreading. Advanced cases exude a clear, runny fluid—it "weeps", as doctors say, and the fluid can cause breaking out on whatever part of the body it touches. Children are especially vulnerable to scalp ringworm. Epidemics are usually started in schools or institutions.

Swimming pools, locker rooms and gyms are potent sources of infection. Everyone has heard of through a carpet of thick moss or weeds.

A big catfish known as Old Joe has finally been caught, according to John R. Wood, state game warden, at Lake Brownwood, Texas. Wood told Upshur Vincent of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that O. B. Westbrook and Tom Whitaker of Brownwood finally landed Old Joe who had been breaking lines and leaders for years. The sad part of it is that the fish was a total loss for food because he had so many hooks in him. The boys did all right though, they sold him to a junk yard for scrap iron.

"athlete's foot." It is nothing more than a type of ringworm. So is the so-called "barber's itch."

Preventive measures call for avoiding persons and animals known to be infected. Swimming pools, gyms, locker rooms, and the like can do their part toward ringworm control by boiling towels, swimming suits and their other public facilities for 30 minutes. Foot baths are also worthwhile.

The best thing to do is to keep clean at all time. But if you happen to get ringworm, or if you have it now, it will be better for all concerned if you report to your family doctor immediately. He'll recommend medication designed to shorten the course and lessen the severity of the infection.

Heart Patient Aids Other Victims

When Kenneth Cloud was stricken with a severe heart attack in 1944, and confined to his apartment at 1200 Lake Shore Drive in Chicago, he was best known as a well-to-do publisher of trade magazines.

During his long confinement in bed, Cloud got restless, and to pass time he learned to knit. During the last year of the war he knit 192 long scarfs, and through Bundles for Bluejackets sent them all over the world.

Today, the same man who took up knitting to soothe his nerves not only continues to be a successful publisher, and an expert with knitting needles, but is the inventor of the Jenny Wren Yarn Winder.

Recently a news correspondent asked Cloud about the yarn winder machine. "Oh that," said Cloud, "that's just a little mechanical device retailing for $2.98. It winds a one-ounce skein of yarn into a perfect ball in less than five minutes." He arranged to have the young lady pictured above, demonstrate the Winder.

"I have organized the Cloud Foundation, with headquarters at 11 West Madison St., Chicago, to manufacture the Winder and make it available to all persons who knit. Profits from sales go through me, doctor to the aid of cardiacs in hospitals who are not as fortunately situated as I was when a heart attack hit me." was the modest statement of Mr. Cloud as he brought the interview to a close.
