Commissioners to consider insurance, child welfare board

A short agenda faces the Floyd County commissioners when they meet in regular session Monday. The commissioners will begin the business session at 9:30 a.m. in the county courtroom.

The commissioners will once again take up the question of setting up a child welfare board for Floyd County. The court tabled action on such a board several months ago.

The first item on the agenda will be a meeting with a representative of the Blue Cross organization to discuss county insurance.

In final regular business, the commissioners will consider a fee increase of $3 for each civil case heard in the county court. The increase would bring the fee to $6 for each case heard. The money is used to supplement the law library fund.

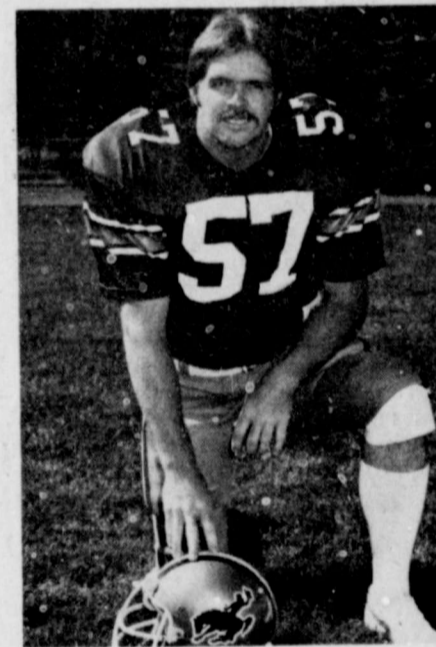

Stenholm approved for committee

The Democratic Policy and Steering Committee last week approved Congressman Charles Stenholm for membership on the small-business committee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Stenholm would fill a position vacated by Congressman Marty Russo of Illinois, who stepped down to become a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Stenholm's appointment to the committee must still be confirmed by the full Democratic Caucus, which is currently scheduled to meet December 12. Stenholm, who served as a member of the House Agriculture Committee and Post Office and Civil Service Committee since coming to Congress in January, said the small business committee was originally his second choice selection.

Floyd Philosopher sees

a hard choice between big city people and nuclear power plants

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on White River runs into two disturbing news articles this week, he claims.
Dear editor:

The number of hard choices a person has is frequently determined by the amount of information he has. I'd have been better off if I hadn't read a newspaper one day last week.

One article it reported that there's a mass movement of city people to the country. "People have been pouring from cities to rural areas at the rate of 300,000 a year — one of the greatest migrations since frontier days."

I immediately began figuring how to stop this. Tell city people life in the country is hard, in some areas television pictures come in blurred, there's no garbage pick-ups, no policemen, you're a long way from a doctor, your septic tank may overflow, it costs $25 just to have a plumber come out to tell you he has to go back to town for more tools.

Then I turned a page in the paper and found another article. It said the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is worried about nuclear power plants located near big cities and is thinking of putting future ones out in the country where there are fewer people to be hurt in case of an accident.

I slid to a stop. Which is worse, having city people over-run the countryside or keeping it rural and thinly populated and running the risk of having nuclear power plants thrown in our lap?

That's a hard choice. The anti-nuclear people contend a plant failure and the accompanying fall-out can damage generations to come. But the way city people are operating their crime-ridden cities, who's to say a fall-out of them into a rural area won't damage the countryside for generations to come?
I'm sorry I read that newspaper.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A $1.5 billion stamp of approval of poor management practices and non-competitive wage increases is currently being pushed through Congress.

Supported by the Administration and carefully marshalled by a powerful — and expensive — lobbying effort, the Chrysler "bailout" sets an unwise, open-ended precedent, and is, in my opinion, a classic government "boondoggle."

There is no doubt that the mammoth manufacturer is in trouble. And both management and labor have to take their share of the blame for those problems. Poor management practices will put the firm in the red to the tune of nearly $700 on every vehicle it sells this year. Yet, the company's cash registers have racked up sales of $65 billion since 1974, with a cumulative net loss of $665 million. That, to me, suggests that major surgery is necessary, such as dropping some product lines, closing inefficient plants or development of a new, more selective, competitive marketing strategy.

These are precisely the kinds of drastic steps that other failing firms are forced to undertake every day. Are we in essence saying that henceforth any company and its workforce big enough and capable of mounting a strong enough lobbying campaign can be exempted from competition and can avoid the pain and inconvenience of reorganization when costs get out of hand, products don't sell, or large losses mount up?

On the other side of the Chrysler see-saw, the United Auto Workers (UAW) did the firm the "big favor" of

by Mark White
Attorney General

The holiday gift-buying season inevitably is followed by the post-holiday gift-returning season. Most consumers expect to be able to return or exchange gifts with little or no trouble beyond, perhaps, the inconvenience. Unfortunately, there frequently is a difference between what needs to be returned and what can be returned; and, if necessary adjustments are to be made this difference should be understood before the gifts are purchased.

Most stores are not legally required to refund money, exchange merchandise or accept returned goods for store credit unless the item is defective or is not as represented. Even though not legally required to do so, most merchants are very agreeable about accepting returned merchandise since this is an important customer service which encourages repeat business.

To take best advantage of those stores whose policies allow merchandise to be returned, there are some things to consider before you begin your holiday shopping.

Sometimes stores will not accept merchandise back for a full cash refund but will issue or allow a credit or exchange for other merchandise. A store may rightfully do this so it is important for shoppers to check on a particular store's policy before buying gifts that may need to be returned or exchanged.

There are certain instances in which a store is legally required to make adjustments. For example, if a store advertised car coats with sheepskin linings but you discover the lining actually is acrylic pile, you have the right to return the coat for an adjustment. Or perhaps you ordered a size 12 dress but the store sent a size 14. Or you specified a green table lamp, but got a blue floor lamp. The store must correct its error or make some satisfactory adjustment in such cases.

It is important to remember that if a store has advertised goods for a special sale, there may be a "no return" policy on that particular merchandise. Other items, such as pierced earrings, swim suits, undergarments, and other intimate apparel, normally is sold on an "all sales final" basis for the customer's protection. Once again, shoppers should inquire about the store's policy of returning such merchandise.

Just as most stores try to cooperate in making adjustments when possible, most consumers are careful to ask for an adjustment only when it is needed. A few individuals, however, may attempt to return merchandise that is worn or used, that they damaged themselves, or that they purchased months earlier. In such cases merchants may rightfully refuse to make an adjustment.

If you think you may need to return merchandise after the holidays, remember to do the following:

—Save all tags, price labels and all sales or charge receipts. A store that might otherwise give a full refund may only offer a credit or exchange or refuse any adjustment without proof of purchase.

—When possible, save the original containers in which you received the goods, including all packing materials and papers such as warranties and instructions.

—Try to insure that the merchandise stays in its original condition and avoid making any changes in the merchandise until you are in a position to know whether it will need to be returned. This is particularly true of clothing that may need alterations before it can be used.

—Finally, plan ahead so you will have some free time immediately after the holidays to return any merchandise that may need to go back. If you wait too long after the holidays to return merchandise, the store with whom you dealt may be unwilling or unable to make necessary adjustments.

And remember, if, after the holidays, you experience difficulty in getting a store to make a necessary, legitimate adjustment, contact our Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division's office nearest you so we may have the opportunity to help you.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen: Crisis brings out the best in Americans

The worst of times brings out the best in Americans. And our best, I might add, is very good.

The Iranian crisis is not the worst experience this country has ever suffered through, but it has been a terrible ordeal and an outrage.

American diplomats held hostage by an outlaw regime, contravening every known precept of international law.

The Ayatollah Khomeini, broadcasting the malicious and criminal falsehood that the United States had participated in an attack on a sacred mosque in the Moslem holy city of Mecca, inciting students in the neighboring country of Pakistan, resulting in the deaths of two Americans and the burning of the American embassy in Islamabad.

Americans, their hands bound, their eyes blinded, paraded before a hostile, screaming crowd.

Iranian students controlling the U.S. embassy in Teheran hauling their garbage out in an American flag.

There have been in recent years loud and repeated claims that the American people are too pampered, too self-centered, spoiled rotten.

Some months ago a national magazine labelled the 1970's the "Me Decade."

The Iranian crisis, though, has shown that when put to the test the American people still have a great inner strength, that we are still capable of acts of selflessness in time of need.

If anyone thinks that the people of this country are spoiled and soft and unwilling to sacrifice, I would urge them to take note of two out of many revealing incidents that have occurred during this crisis.

In one case the Texas Wheat Producers Association sent a telegram to the President. They notified him of their "strong policies against using food as a diplomatic weapon...except in the case of national security."

The Texas wheat farmers then went on to tell the President that "inasmuch as Texas and U.S. wheat has continued to be sold to Iran as a balance of payment medium to offset oil imports, this is to let you know that Texas wheat producers in interest of a show of strength of national unity would support you in a decision to now stop wheat sales to Iran and in fact to urge you to do so if you should determine that it is in the interest of national security."

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A $1.5 billion stamp of approval of poor management practices and non-competitive wage increases is currently being pushed through Congress.

There is no doubt that the mammoth manufacturer is in trouble. And both management and labor have to take their share of the blame for those problems. Poor management practices put the firm in the red to the tune of nearly $700 million every year since 1974. Are we really saying that henceforth any company and its workforce big enough to mount a strong lobbying campaign can be exempted from competition and can avoid the pain and inconvenience of reorganization when costs get out of control, products don't sell, or large layoffs mount up?

On the other side of the Chrysler law, the United Auto Workers (UAW) did the firm the "big favor" of limiting their pay increases to the average annual increase of 3.5 percent for the last three years and, if inflation continues at the present 13 percent rate, the total increase would be only $13,500.

I know of very few people in the Congressional District that are looking at a 30 percent pay increase in wages in the next three years. It is what the UAW are saying they are sacrificing and this is why Congress should vote to give Chrysler the taxpayer's money to Chrysler.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the bailout is the reported number of 400,000 jobs. The numbers reflect merely a gross tally of existing payroll at Chrysler dealers and suppliers and not related firms.

These jobs would be threatened in the event of a complete liquidation, which is only a slight possibility to shift, not disappear. Even if Chrysler fails completely, the total number of U.S. vehicle sales is likely to decline measurably, but no net loss of jobs downstream in the factory gate — truck mechanics and so forth — would represent better than 20 percent of total.

In short, the advocates are making the possibility of temporary employment turnover with permanent losses. If the free enterprise system work, you must preserve the right as well as succeed. My vote on Chrysler bailout is "NO."

BY BETH PRATT

A slogan we used for a poster said, "What's New? ...a book is new until you've read it!" Looking only for new media in the library will result in passing over some excellent materials.

How The Littlest Cherub Was Late for Christmas by Minton Johnston is not a new story, but it is a charming small book that combines the rich imagination of the writer and the artist with a Christmas theme of great depth. It has humor and pathos as the Littlest Cherub discovers a great truth of human experience. This would be a good story to share at a Christmas party.

December is such a busy month that few find time to read. With all the thoughts of special meals for parties and family celebrations, a look at the small devotional book, The Big Picnic and other Meals in the New Testament, could be a welcome break. It is developed around six meals in the New Testament and their helpful message for twentieth century Christians. Lee Bristol shows how each of those meals, from the wedding reception at Cana to the breakfast Jesus cooked on the beach for his tired disciples, speaks to modern-day concerns.

In the closing chapter the author says... "to follow Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior calls for a lot more than just subscribing to certain principles, admiring Jesus' life, or even trying to imitate some of what he did. Without accepting the gift of Christ himself and accepting on his terms his power in our lives chances are we are going to stay stuck in the mud of our own inadequacies and make little progress. Ultimately, we may come to learn that he is indeed the bread of life, the bread we live by that feeds the spirit, and enables us to walk taller in the world."

Carrier & Ives! — a name that brings to mind Christmas cards with scenes of 19th century Americana. In an era that lacked pictorial journalistic coverage as we know it today, Carrier & Ives prints of American life provided exciting visual communication. Photography was just in its infancy and offered no competition.

In this book, Carrier & Ives: Chronicles of America, reproductions by great artists are represented. George Catlin, A.F. Tait, Louis Maurer, G.H. Durrie (Who did the famous "Home to Thanksgiving"), J.E. Butterworth, and the indefatigable F.F. (Fanny) Palmer — who painted everything from country scenes, the West, the Mississippi, New York City to the Civil War — are among those chosen. The result is a pictorial, colorful, chronological story of this country, virtually to the end of the 19th century. There are 220 color prints in this magnificent volume.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

Now is prime time for testing soil

There are three very timely reasons to take soil samples as soon as possible, have them analyzed to determine your fertilizer requirements as soon as possible, have them analyzed to determine your fertilizer requirements, and make definite plans for next year's fertility program.

First it is anticipated that we will see price increases in fertilizer after the first of the year. Second, this year's bumper crops are putting the railroad hopper cars in short supply; therefore your local dealer may have difficulty obtaining delivery on fertilizer; and third, the excellent crop yields in many areas this year - especially for dryland farmers - make this a good time to observe any weak cropping areas and identify their problems.

"This is especially true," for individuals who have harvested over ten thousand pounds of seed corn this year. Also, for every ton of corn silage harvested in the Hailed out areas, farmers have removed about 20 pounds of nitrogen per ton. It is extremely important for these individuals to be informed on the nitrogen needs for the next year's crop."

Hailed out cotton and soybean fields, however, should be holding some residual fertilizer, says Pennington. A soil test is the most economical tool for capitalizing on current conditions in developing a fertilizer program for next year.

The easiest way to get information on a proper soil test is by contacting your local county agent. He will provide information on how to take the sample, and give you the forms and cartons for mailing your soil samples to the laboratory. The cost for a routine soil sample is four dollars, or seven if the soil analysis is to include analysis for the micronutrients such as zinc, iron, manganese and copper.

Pennington also offered these precautionary soil testing tips. Early sampling of corn fields where cattle are to be grazed will prevent urine spot contamination of your sample. Where this occurs the nitrogen sample determined by the lab is not very useful.

For cotton crops that have areas of less height and development, now is the time to examine roots for knots, nematodes, and hardpans, crown footing and lack of tap roots.

Fall application of fertilizer is a good practice in clay soils, particularly for nitrogen and phosphorus, because clay allows very little leaching.

Avoid using rusty or galvanized sampling tools or containers. Don't use heat for drying your samples. Be sure to keep a record for yourself of the areas represented by each sample and be sure that the sample numbers on the sample boxes and the sample numbers are correct.

Place the soil testing fee and the information form in an envelope and attach it to the outside of the package containing the soil samples so they will reach the lab together. Address the letter and package to: Soil Testing Laboratory, Agricultural Extension Service, Route 3, Box 213AA, Lubbock, Texas 79401.

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Micronaire values on the 1979 High Plains cotton crop to date have been highly disappointing to producers and more than a little surprising to cotton technologists.

Farmers, seeing almost every boll open on every stalk in their fields at the beginning of the harvest, naturally expected at least reasonably good mike readings.

No less fooled were those who study micronaire and monitor the growing conditions that control it. They predicted that from 30 to 45 percent of the crop would mike in the premium range of 3.5 to 4.9 micrograms.

Instead, a much smaller 14 percent of the first 479, 189 bales classed by the High Plains' four classing offices through November 23 fell in that category. Only cotton classed at the Lamesa office, where a little over 28 percent has miked 3.5 to 4.9, even approached the early predictions.

In retrospect, researchers now theorize that the low mike is attributable to the cumulative effect of several factors not given the proper weight in former calculations.

To begin with, they say, the crop was late, setting most of its fruit in August. Weather-induced late plantings in parts of the area and seedling disease problems in other areas prevented all but a minimum of fruiting in July.

But when squares and blooms did appear, the thinking goes, conditions were almost ideal and plans set and retained an abnormally high number of forms that were dependent for fiber development on plants that were later unable to do the job adequately.

A sequence of three events, coupled with the crop's late start, are blamed for the preponderance of undersized bolls, many of them opening prematurely, that brought on the poor mike readings.

First, abundant moisture early in the season prevented plants from developing normal taproots. Then around mid-September there was a period when plants, already straining under an unusually heavy fruit load, suffered a mild "shock" from low temperatures. The final blow came when additional rainfall failed to appear and the crop went into moisture stress in the latter part of September and early October.

Dr. James Supak, Area Extension Cotton Agronomist, is also cautioning producers about the quality of planting seed that might be saved from this year's crop. "There is a strong possibility," he states, "that even seed showing good germination will not have the seedling vigor required to produce and hold a stand under early-season conditions that often occur on the Plains."

Cotton Today

FARM LABOR POSITION TO BE STUDIED: The National Cotton Council received a notice this week from the Labor Department stating the agency has decided to restudy its position concerning application of the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act to the operation of cotton gins. The notice stated that enforcement under the act will be suspended in the ginning industry pending the outcome of the study. During the course of the study, the Department will seek the industry's advice.

EXPORTS REMAIN HEAVY: New sales of 206,200 running bales of upland cotton during the week ended November 18 pushed the season's total to 6,470,300. The principal buyers were China, 53,500, and Hong Kong, 45,500. The week's exports totaled 103,500 bales and pushed the season's shipments to 1,565,400 compared with 1,372,500 a year ago.

FIFRA CLEARS HOUSE: The House has passed the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) extending the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to regulate pesticides. The bill also contains a provision for a one-house veto of EPA regulations. The Senate has already passed a separate bill without a veto provision. The Administration has indicated its opposition to the veto provision.

AND COTTON YESTERDAY: Cliff dwellers were growing cotton in New Mexico around 1300.

Landowners to get tax break

If you are exhausting your capital investment in groundwater in the Southern High Plains of Texas, you may be entitled to a tax deduction. You are eligible if you acquired land within the geographic area covered by the Ogallala aquifer in the Southern High Plains of Texas and New Mexico any time after 1947. Land with proven groundwater reserves and which had irrigation potential sold at a higher price after 1947 than comparable land without water. The difference in the actual sales price, of comparable dryland vs. irrigated land, is attributed to water when all other factors are determined equal.

The deduction is called a cost-in-water income tax depletion allowance and the information you will need to support your claim within the District's 15 county service area can be obtained from the Water District. For those of you that have previously filed claims, decline data to support your 1979 deduction will soon be available from the Water District. District staff will have ready the decline values needed to figure this year's deduction for individual landowners and or their accountant will need to provide the Water District with the following information: landowner's name, address, social security number; the taxpayer's agent's name and address; and a complete legal description of the land involved. The District will provide all necessary legal and general information needed to support your claims.

Last year the District supplied decline maps to Hale, Lynn, Crosby, and Cochran Counties landowners, however, for the 1979 tax year, these counties will be handled under the parcel claim system in the same manner as all the other counties in the District.

"The Water District expects to process between five and six thousand requests for decline values this tax season," says Manager A. Wayne Wyatt. "Though there are no exact figures available on how much money landowners in the Water District save each year by this allowance, we estimate that it is at least $3 to $5 million."

Farm Bureau News Summary

FARM STRUCTURE MEETINGS

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced a series of meetings for the purpose of discussing the structure of agriculture. The one scheduled for Texas is in Wichita Falls, Texas, December 6, 9-10 a.m., Activity Center, 10th and Indiana Streets. The meetings are scheduled, according to the Secretary of Agriculture, for the purpose of getting comments and suggestions on the economic and social issues affecting the structure of agriculture and rural life. The Department put together a book consisting of 305 pages, widely distributed to the public entitled "Structure Issues Of American Agriculture" containing information about the issues to be discussed.

The Department of Agriculture went through a similar exercise in 1951 under the title of "Family Farm Policy Review." The 1951 program utilized local meetings conducted by agriculture leaders for the purpose of discussing canned information distributed by the department.

The purpose of this note is to remind agriculture leaders again that government is making a strong bid to speak for agriculture by feeding information through producers than back to the department. The department then tells Congress what producers want in farm programs.

DISASTER PAYMENTS

Senator Robert Morgan of North Carolina placed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of November 20, 1979 information with regard to the individual farmers receiving disaster payments. During the period of 1974-1977, 96,570 producers received disaster payments, three out of the four years. In Texas, 20,240 producers received disaster payments three out of four years. U.S. producers receiving payments four out of four years were 20,087 and in Texas 5,593.

In 1977, the Texas Department of Corrections in Walker County received $105,002.17 in disaster payments. The purpose of this discussion is to reveal that Congress will continue its effort to limit the amount of money each individual will receive. When an economic problem is misplaced in the political arena for solution, the results will always be based on the equal shares idea of politics - one vote, one share.

COTTON SAMPLING

USDA has amended cotton price support program rules and regulations with regard to warehouse stored loans for upland cotton. The new rule reads as follows:

Each bale of upland cotton sampled by the warehouse upon initial receipt which has not been sampled by the ginner must not show more than one sample hole on each side of the bale. If more than one sample is desired, when the bale is received by the warehouseman, the sample shall be cut across the width of the bale, broken in half or split lengthwise, and otherwise drawn in accordance with the agriculture marketing service dimension and weight requirements. The requirement will not prohibit sampling of the cotton at a later date if authorized by the producer.

GRAIN WAREHOUSE STANDARDS

USDA is amending its grain warehouse requirements for those warehouses qualifying to handle Commodity Credit loan grain. The new rule establishes:

- (1) An increase in the minimum net worth requirement from $10,000 to $25,000;
- (2) $250,000 maximum net worth; and

Farm Bureau News Summary

FARM STRUCTURE MEETINGS

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced a series of meetings for the purpose of discussing the structure of agriculture. The one scheduled for 6:30 a.m., Activity Center, Texas and Indiana Streets, is scheduled, according to the Secretary of Agriculture, for the purpose of getting comments and suggestions on economic and social issues affecting the structure of agriculture and rural life. The Department put together a book consisting of 305 pages, widely distributed to the public entitled "Structure Issues Of American Agriculture" containing information about the structure of agriculture to be discussed.

The Department of Agriculture went through a similar exercise in 1951 under the title of "Family Farm Policy Study." The 1951 program utilized meetings conducted by agriculture producers for the purpose of discussing information distributed by the Department.

The purpose of this note is to remind agriculture leaders again that government is making a strong bid to speak for agriculture by feeding information to high producers than back to the government. The Department then tells us what producers want in farm structure.

DISASTER PAYMENTS

Senator Robert Morgan of North Carolina placed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of November 20, 1979 a resolution with regard to the disaster payments for the period of 1974-1977. During the period of 1974-1977, producers received disaster payments three out of the four years. In 20,240 producers received disaster payments three out of four years, producers receiving payments four years were 20,087 and in 1977, the Texas Department of Agriculture in Walker County received $2,171 in disaster payments.

The purpose of this discussion is to let Congress know that we will continue to limit the amount of money each acre will receive. When an acre problem is misplaced in the arena for solution, the results are based on the equal shares politics — one vote, one share.

COTTON SAMPLING

The USDA has amended cotton price program rules and regulations toward warehouse stored loans and cotton. The new rule reads as follows:

Warehouse upon initial receipt has not been sampled by the warehouse must show more than one sample on each side of the bale. If one sample is desired, when received by the warehouse, the sample shall be cut across the bale, broken in half or split in two, and otherwise drawn in accordance with the agriculture market service dimension and weight requirements. The requirement will not apply to the cotton at a later date authorized by the producer.

WAREHOUSE STANDARDS

The USDA is amending its grain warehouse requirements for those warehouses to handle Commodity in grain. The new rule establishes the minimum net requirement from $10,000 to $200,000 maximum net worth; and increase in the commodity to be used in calculating the requirement.

CROP PRODUCTION

Crop Reporting Service reported the nine states in the weekly reported a total of 3,057,000 bushels, 4 percent above last year. During the week ending December 3, 1979, 33,000, 25 percent above last year. This season, 19,389,000 bushels have been hatched, compared with 16,000,000 the corresponding year. Thus far this season, 44 percent of the total have been hatched, 44 percent above the same period last year.

WHEAT SITUATION

December 1979 WHEAT SITUATION estimates the total supply of wheat marketing year ending on December 30 at 3,040,500,000 bushels (25 million). This estimate is composed of a beginning inventory of 2,113,900,000 bushels plus production of 2,100,000 bushels.

FARM LOANS

December 6, Texas voters approved a bond issue for $3.7 million to promote stamp collection.

Washington Hotline: The November 12, 1979 edition of ENERGY INSIDER, published by the United States Department of Energy, Washington, D.C., reminds readers there is a building temperature program to encourage citizens to report to the authorities.
