NO. 29

Farmer Shaw to Young Men.

Young man, slow up. The pace you are setting is a killing one. You may think that you are making a stunning start in life but, it is a start that will distance you in the end. Don't go to fast my lad. "Slow and sure" has taken down more purses than any other racer that ever went around the track. You are smoking half a dozen cigars a day—slow up, that means a home in twenty years. You are buying all the clothes that come in town—slow up, that means a farm in twenty years. Besides all the glad rags in the world never yet made a man. You are taking an occasional drink with good intentions not to become a habitual boozier. Slow up—the road to hell is paved with good intentions. You are winning the smiles of some silly girl, spending all you can upon her. Slow up—a wife won in this way is worse than the seven year itch, because it lasts longer. You are gambling a little now and then, just taking a few chances for the fun of it. Slow up—suckers are small fish and never grow to be very large, but they are first class nibblers. You can blow yourself out of the running before the first quarter is reached by trying to keep up with the pacemakers. Contract bad habits, keep foolish company, listen to bad advice, spend all you can and run in debt, swell around and act a dude, and you'll be a failure just as sure as effect is the result of cause. You'll have a good time for ten years and a bad time for sixty. Be wise and clean and economical, that life may be large, fine and splendid to you. —Texas Farmer.

Fruit-Growing in Texas.

Claude News: The fruit crop in Armstrong County promises a more abundant yield than any previous season. Uncle Billy Christian left at the News office this week a sample of plums from Henry Day's orchard that surpass anything we have ever seen in that line. In one cluster alone there were twenty as perfect specimens as one would wish to see—and this was a fair sample of his orchard. Dr. Warner brought in from his ranch this week samples from his pear orchard which would do credit to California, the home of the pear. He says his crop is the finest he has ever had both in quality and quantity. A visit to Henry Knight's orchard Wednesday brought to view a number of trees loaded with peaches, besides apples, pears, nectarines, etc. The man who neglects an orchard on the Plains is missing the best of his life.

Texas is just now being discovered. If one had said a few years ago that such fruits could be grown in the Panhandle he would have been thought a romancer or a real estate boomer. But what would have been incredible then is now a demonstrated fact. —Dallas News.

The Vanity of Wealth.

We ain't as rich as some folks are, and we can't put on much style; Ma says pa's income don't go far when things cost such a pile. Our house is little and the street we live in ain't so grand, And ma cooks what we have to eat and buys things second-hand. But still I don't see why it is that she should be so sad; We've got three dogs, and that's two more than Frank Gill ever had. Ted Brewster's just as old as me, and his pa owns a mine And has a private car and gee, but where they live it's fine! Ma says that they're as rich as sin, their house is built of stone, And Ted has ninety dollars in the bank that's all his own. But still I don't see where they get so much the start of us; We've got three dogs, and Ted he ain't got none, poor little cuss: Sometimes, along to'rds night when pa comes home and plays with Jip And Tige and big old Nero, ma she kind of curls up her lip, And says she's glad he feels like play, and wishes that she'd die. And when I hear her talk that way it nearly makes me cry; The Brewsters they got rich in mines, the Gills in corn and hogs, But still they needn't feel so proud—we beat them all on dogs. S. E. Kiser, in Credit Lost.

Survey Complete

E. P. Whitson returned from Big Springs this week, where he went with J. R. Ransom and surveyors in establishing a route for the proposed "Panhandle Short Line Railway."

We are informed that Mr. Ransom is now in Denver arranging the details for actual grading from Hereford south. This survey has been made at a probable cost of $1500, which is a considerable sum of money to be spent, if there should be no intention of building the road. —Hereford Brand.

Threshing Malze, Kaffir Corn, Etc. in Bundle.

We have ordered attachments for the threshing of malze, Kaffir corn and Indian corn in the bundle and also for threshing alfalfa and expect to be ready by the first of November. We solicit the patronage of all former patrons and as many others as we can reach. 28-2ts W. E. Bates & Sons.

"King of the Cattle Ring"

We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. W. A. Eiler stating that he has purchased a new play entitled the "King of the Cattle Ring" a western Melodrama in five acts written by the popular playwright Hal Reid.

Doubtless many of our readers will remember Mr. Eiler's Rip Van Winkle Show which showed here a year ago and gave universal satisfaction. He has a large Company of well known artists who have been carefully selected for their respective roles.

The Company numbers thirty people, sixteen take part in the drama and fourteen Musicians in the band. Every one who wishes to attend a first class performance should wait for the "King of the Cattle Ring" which will appear here under canvass about Oct. 30th.

Last week The News reported E. H. Ackley as buying a house and lot from J. L. Prichard. It should have said that Mr. Axtell bought it.

THE LOCAL MERCHANT.

Some of our exchanges are harping on the "catalogue" buyer and his want of local pride, public spirit etc. in sending off for his goods to the detriment of his home merchant and neighborhood generally.

In some respects these newspapers are right and in many others they are woefully wrong. That it is an injury to the country generally all must admit, for what fix would much of the country be in without towns and how could towns exist without business men or merchants? We all know that the nearer to town a farm is the more it will sell for and that the farther away it is from town the less the price. And so of town property itself. The better the town the more the property is worth and hence all property owners, aside from merchants, are as vitally interested in the town, in fact more so frequently, than are some of the business men. The business man, if a renter and in this country many of them are, can move when the harvest is over, the property holder must stay and bear the loss, if any there be. Hence, applying this rule, which is certainly a correct one, the nearer a man lives to a town the greater his interests are in its growth and prosperity and there, all things being equal or nearly so, he should spend his money. Where merchants prosper and all other lines do well. More people are employed, more houses are built and all these things build up the town, better the churches, the schools, the preachers, the lawyers and all other professional as well as mechanical lines—progressive all along the line. And this is not all for lands, farms, all about the town increase in value in proportion as the town thrives and property within the town itself becomes a gilt-edge investment in place of a drag upon the market. Farm products find ready sale in the local markets and you have an ideal community.

But there is another side to this question—the buyers. The News has called attention to his case before, but most of our exchanges, from what they say in the matter, seem to think he has no side. One of them referring to this practice of "buying away from home" plaintively says;

This not only robs the local merchants of the trade to which they are entitled, but nine times out of ten the "catalogue" buyer gets an inferior article, and in addition pays freight."

So? Well, perhaps it is. But, whose fault is it? In answer to this question The News is of the opinion that "nine times out of ten" the fault is with the merchant. Many of these same merchants are so extremely silent about their goods, wares and merchandise, that a good many people have more than a half formed idea that the robbing prices, mentioned by our exchanges, comes the other way.

The catalogue houses proclaim their wares "upon the housetops." They advertise in newspapers, magazines, send catalogues following these with "specials" etc. etc. and keep persistently at it spending millions and millions of dollars talking up their goods and prices while the home merchant, in many instances, stays "mum" in so far as this class of publicity is concerned. And in this age of advertising, when such conditions prevail, people naturally draw the conclusion that the home merchant remains silent because, forsooth, he cannot compete with them or that his goods are of inferior quality. The argument offered by some local newspapers, that people should deal with the home merchant by reason of "patriotism and civic pride" is wasted—they will not.

To cause people to deal with home business men it is only necessary for these business men to court their trade as does the "catalogue house. They must advertise in the papers that circulate in their trade territory; they must tell of their goods and of their prices and endeavor in an honest straight forward way to convince the buyer that he, the buyer, can do fully as well with them as he can do in Chicago, New York or Dallas. And advertising once or twice is not sufficient, they must stay with it week after week and month after month as do these "catalogue" people. This course and this course only will turn the tide as experience in older sections of the State has abundantly proven.

There is nothing so potent as printer's ink when judiciously used and where this fact is appreciated and acted upon by business men of any town that is worth the name the "catalogue buyer" is as scarce as hen's teeth.

Bailey intimates that he was "deceived by Mr. Pierce when he aided that gentleman to enter the State again after all the courts had barred him out. The question is, what right had Mr. Bailey to believe Pierce anyway when all the State courts and the supreme Court of the United States held to the contrary of said Pierce's statements? And so the simple word of the Waters-Pierce oil magnate, Pierce, was taken by Senator Bailey as against the district court findings of Travis county, the court of civil appeals, the supreme court of Texas and the supreme court of the United States. What a faith was this, my countrymen!

CITY ELECTION NOV. THIRD

The county Judge has issued his order for the city election to be held on Saturday Nov. the third.

The order provides for the election of a mayor, five aldermen and a marshal and it is now up to our citizenship to see that no mistake is made in their selection.

In the person of the mayor, who to a large extent occupies a similar position in the town to what the county Judge does in county government, it is well to get a man of executive ability and at the same time conservative enough to keep within the bounds of the town's capacity to pay. If he have some knowledge of the road to travel over so much the better for the town's side of the ledger. He, by all means, should be a property holder within the town and in other respects a fixture as a citizen. We have several just such men.

For the aldermen The News is of the opinion that we should go the various parts of the town, Say, for instance take one at large, two from the east and two from the west end. As in the case of the mayor all should be property owners and permanent citizens.

The marshal ought to be a man who is competent to act as city secretary, assessor and collector—all in one. For a marshal alone Canyon City at the present time has as little use for one as a dog has for Sunday.

We have, in this matter taken the first necessary steps toward the making of a good town and The News is anxious to see every citizen who is interested in Canyon City's future take a hold in this election and help put the right crew on the storm deck.

In a former issue The News suggested some concert of action on the part of our citizens in order to get at a good ticket. If nothing else be done let everybody talk about it until public sentiment be crystallized in that direction. When this is done it rarely goes wrong.

The News man lives in the west end and to start things to moving he nominates Frank Smith as one of its aldermen.

Senator Bailey should be given a fair and impartial hearing before Democratic audiences in every court house in Texas. He cannot, of course, be there in person, but he has strong and able friends in every county seat and they should vindicate his course and try to show his fitness to succeed himself as United States Senator. And upon all such occasions Democrats who hold contrary views should be invited to speak up or shut up. A Bailey meeting after this order would not be amiss in Canyon City.

Geo. T. Sterling of Iowa was in town several days last week. He is an experienced and capable newspaper man and if plans, already formed, are carried out he will be the editor of The News after this month.

That was an uncalled for and unkind remark of Senator Bailey's when he said that if Congress was cleared of such men as himself and John Sharp Williams that there would be a chance for such men as his opponent, Crane, and Hearst to get in.

THOMAS BROTHERS

W. A. Donaldson of Tullia was in town yesterday. He says that it is all a hoax about his town refusing the cash bonus promised the railroad; that it would be paid provided the road got there by Jan. the 1st. He also stated that his information was, that track laying from Happy south would begin by next Monday anyway and that the work would be pushed all along the line to Plainview.

One of our readers chides The News for being "agin" Bailey. He says he "knows Bailey is alright." Julius Caesar said this of his wife, but also stated in connection therewith "that Caesars wife should be above suspicion" so he put her away and why may not Texans hold the same view relative to their former idol, Joseph Weldon Bailey?

A Sermon on Hate.

People have been known to spend the greater portion of their lives lying about their neighbors; and they seem to delight in it, says Bent Murdock. Jealousy is the apprehension of superiority; and wherever you find jealousy you find narrowness and hypocrisy. Many people go through the world hating others, because they are richer, smarter or more prosperous than they, and it must be a most miserable existence. We thank the Lord every day that we don't hate anybody, do not desire the possession of others, are not jealous of anybody, and have no desire to lie about our neighbors. We prefer to say nice things, kind things, commendable things of those with whom we associate; and if we can't say kind things we prefer to say nothing. We wish every man in this country was very smart, very rich and very happy. We wish they all had everything their hearts desire. All the land, all the cattle, all the money they want. We wish they all had fine homes, happy families and bully good neighbors. So we are not jealous of anybody. All we ask and all we ever asked is a peace of mind. To have peace of mind when we go to work of mornings, to have peace of mind when we go home of evenings. Plenty of work to do and the ability to do it is our ambition. And if the world—our little circumscribed world—is a little bit better when we have lived, we will be willing to skidoo hence, when the time comes, without regret.—Brown County (Kan.) World.

Only One Adverse Vote

We understand that in the recent election held in Canyon City to ascertain whether or not that town should be incorporated only one vote was cast against the measure. This being the state of affairs in our neighbor-city, we cannot help having a deep and abiding interest in their welfare for their unanimous action in this matter indicates they are not too stingy and close-fisted to enjoy a few of the privileges and benefits which always attend a clean and progressive town. We consider this one of the most important events in Canyon City's history and we now see in our imagination at no distant day a complete system of sidewalks, besides beautiful and well-kept streets in this proud little city.—Hereford Brand.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for Ten Years without a Failure

Mr W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by S. V. Wirt, Druggist.

Chas. McAfee and Dave Park have bought the J. T. Jowell home section, 18 miles southeast of town, at $12.50 per acre. This is one of the best improved sections in the county and cheap at the money.

On Their Way.

During a newspaper men's convention a number of journalists were one afternoon talking of the tricks of "the faithless types," when "Marse" Henry Watterson said:

"While I've heard of a great many funny typographical breaks, in my time, about the oddest and most humorous transposition of the types that ever came within my observation was that in a New York paper some years ago. That sheet used to print its shipping news on the same page with the obituaries. Imagine the glee with which its readers found the captions exchanged one morning whereby a long list of respectable names were set forth under the marine head, 'Passed Through Hell Gate Yesterday.'—Harpers Weekly.

A Quick and Safe Remedy for Bowel Complaints.

Twenty years ago Mr. Geo. W. Brock discovered that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was a quick and safe cure for bowel complaints. "During all of these years," he says, "I have used it and recommended it many times and the results have never yet disappointed me." Mr. Brock is publisher of the Aberdeen, Md., Enterprise. For sale by S. V. Wirt, druggist.

The daily papers are once more reporting "on good authority" the sale of the Texas Central railroad between Waco and Stamford, a distance of 225 miles, to the Santa Fe. It is stated that the Santa Fe assumed control on Oct. 1st, and that now the line is equipped with Santa Fe bills of lading, etc.

Notice.

During the meeting of the Texas State Fair at Dallas, commencing October 12th and closing October 28th, the Northern Texas Traction Company will operate cars between Fort Worth and Dallas every thirty minutes. We frequently hear women remark "I wish I were a man." What on earth would any woman want to be a man for? She has twice the power, and happiness, the ease. If a woman has ambition she does half the necessary work and her charms do the rest. She is championed by men, consequently she reaps the reward of her own work and their efforts as an offering of powers in their behalf. If she is indolent, luxury loving, she can get married and let the man take all the responsibilities, while she takes a comfortable rocker.—It is a pity that women don't appreciate the luck they were born to. The world was made for woman—and so was man.—Ex.
