TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Giuseppe Garibaldi.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

A filibuster for the good of his country.

Garibaldi was always a filibuster, but he filibustered not in quest of loot or personal power, but for the good of his own country. That Italy is today a strong, united nation rather than a group of petty principalities or dependencies of other powers is due in very large measure to the inborn filibustering propensity of Giuseppe Garibaldi. Here was a man with a mission, and he could not be kept down. For half a century his soul was centered upon the unification and liberation of Italy, and for the greater part of that period he was fighting for his cause.

California grows a flower named the garibaldi because it is red. The followers of Garibaldi wore red as their distinctive color of garb. The Garibaldian red shirt, famous in history, stood for united Italy. It was the red badge of liberty through unification.

Garibaldi, who was a sailor's son and given to roving, became identified early in life with Mazzini and other zealots in the Young Italy movement. But the methods of Garibaldi were not those of Mazzini, who was unable to compromise by accepting unification of the Italian states under a monarch, so insistent was he for a republican government. Garibaldi also was a republican, but he was willing to accept a benevolent monarchy as a means to an end—the protection and development of the Italian people.

Condemned to death for his part in the earlier uprisings, Garibaldi escaped to France and thence to South America, where he presently found opportunity to continue his career as a warrior in opposition to tyranny. He fought for the new republic of Uruguay against the usurpation of the Argentine dictator. Then he made his way to the United States, an exile from home, earning his living as a maker of candles and declining the honor of a demonstration such as the Americans gave Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot.

Back to Italy went Garibaldi when the time was ripe, raising band after band of followers, conquering the Neapolitan provinces in the cause of unification and finally, absolute master of Naples, relinquishing voluntarily to King Victor Emmanuel his own sovereignty for the good of Italy. There, indeed, was a patriot with no price tag attached to his red shirt.

THE MALAYS.

Their Lives Seem to Be Governed by Their Superstitions.

Malays will resort to any and every conceivable pretext to avoid paying money on Friday. They believe that if they pay their debts on this day they will be overtaken by poverty and want. Tuesday and Saturday they consider generally unlucky days, and if they shave or cut their nails on either of these days thereafter they will always be in trouble and will perhaps die soon. The Malay never sleeps in the afternoon because of the fear that to waste the hours of daylight tends to shorten life. If a Malay finds his clothes to have been bitten by a rat he is sure that it signifies bad luck, and if he can possibly afford it the clothes are given away in the name of charity. There is a species of bird called in the Malay country rowk rowk, which lives in the fields and does not build a nest. It is believed that whoever obtains a rowk rowk's nest will become invisible by placing it on his head. Of course the Malays believe there is such a nest hidden away somewhere.

The Malays always abstain from taking food during an eclipse of the sun or the moon and are exceedingly careful about their baths, so as to prevent the attack of contagious diseases. The crow is a bird of especially ill omen to the Malay, and if it is heard cawing near a habitation it means death to some one of the inmates. In some other parts of the world if an owl alights on or near a house and hoots it is said to mean "death or desolation"—the house may be burned or sold for debt or other misfortune. If a black cat crosses the road in front of a Malay he will at once turn back and pursue his journey by another way. The crossing of the black cat signifies danger involving the loss of life. In some other countries a rabbit crossing the road has the same significance. The disagreeable habit of biting the finger nails is almost unknown among the Malays. They believe that if indulged in the habit will surely lead to poverty.

It is considered by the Malay to be a very lucky thing to see a pig or a Chinese funeral before the sunrise. Whatever he attempts on this day will be sure to prosper. Dreaming of jumping a brooklet assures the dreamer that he will die in a short time. Then the faithful Malay dreamer gives alms to the poor and behaves gently and kindly to all about him in an endeavor to pacify the gods and persuade them to lengthen his life. To see a monkey in the morning is an evil omen, and it signifies that the day will be a bad one for trade. All of these omens have palliations, and the wise Malay usually takes each one as a warning of danger or misfortune that may be in part if not wholly avoided.

Yawning.

There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish; hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—e. g., when waking in the morning. Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor as well as muscle quiescence is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon; hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the case of sighing, the deep breath which accompanies the act of yawning compensates for the shallow breathing which is so apt to excite it.—"Therapeutic Aspects of Talking," by Dr. H. Campbell.

COURTROOM COMEDY.

A Little Passage Between the Lawyer and the Landlady.

The woman was in the box, and she was a very nice mannered, respectable woman, who kept a cheap boarding house, and it was the desire of one of her guests to be dishonest that had brought her to the court to make him pay his board bill.

"How old did you say you were, madam?" inquired the lawyer, with no reason on earth, for an elderly landlady is no more anxious to lose a board bill than a young one.

"I did not say, sir," she responded, flushing to the roots of her hair.

"Will you be kind enough to say, madam?"

"It's none of your business!"

"Objection sustained," smiled the judge.

"Um," said the lawyer, rubbing his chin. "How much did you say the amount was the defendant owed you?"

"Three pounds."

"And for how long was that?"

"Three weeks."

"That's £1 a week, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Three weeks at £1 a week is £3, I believe you said?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness was patient, but her temper was not improved under the strain.

"Isn't that an extravagant price to pay for board in your locality, madam?" inquired the lawyer severely.

"He didn't pay it, sir," answered the worm, beginning to turn.

The lawyer gave a little start of surprise, then became indignant at the very thought of a witness talking like that.

"Don't be facetious, madam," he said, assuming a tone of warning.

"This is a serious matter. I have asked if your prices were not exorbitant, and you have seen fit to answer lightly, madam. Now, madam, I ask you in all earnestness if you mean to tell this court that your prices are moderate and that if I should come to your house to board you would charge me £1 a week? Answer directly, madam," and the barrister squared his shoulders and assumed an imperial manner.

The witness was not at all abashed.

"No, sir," she said simply, "I would."

"I thought not, I thought not," interrupted the lawyer, bending over and rubbing his hands.

"No, sir," continued the witness, "I should not charge you at all. I should make you pay in advance."—London Tit-Bits.

of Lyons" and draw their own conclusions:

Claude (offering snuff box)—M. Beauseant, will you honor me?

Beauseant—No, your highness. I have no small vices.

Claude—Why, if it were a vice you'd be sure to have it, M. Beauseant.

Persistence.

Persistence is characteristic of all men who have accomplished anything great. They may lack in some particular, may have many weaknesses and eccentricities, but the quality of persistence is never absent in a successful man. No matter what opposition he meets or what discouragements overtake him, he is always persistent. Drudgery cannot disgust him. Labor cannot weary him. He will persist, no matter what comes or goes. It is a part of his nature. He could almost as easily stop breathing. It is not so much brilliancy of intellect or fertility of resource as persistence of effort, constancy of purpose, that gives success.

Red Haired Charmers.

"There are no red haired old maids."

The speaker, a red haired actress, went on:

"The red haired have an excess of iron in their blood. This causes them to overflow with vitality, animal spirits, gayety, wit, charm—but I must not boast, must I?"

She smiled, and smoothing her ruddy locks with a slim white hand, she added:

"At any rate it is a palpable fact that the red haired girl never gets left. As a rule she is married at twenty. A red haired old maid is a rarity."—New York Press.

Mistletoe.

On account of its connection with heathen rite and legend the mistletoe was early banished from the churches. Clergymen have in former times been known to forbid its use among the Christmas decorations, regarding it as too tainted with superstitions to fitly ornament the house of God, and from use as an architectural decoration it has been rigorously excluded. Perhaps the only known instance of its use is in Bristol cathedral, where sprays of mistletoe, with leaves and berries, fill the spandrels of one of the remarkable tombs.—London Mail.

Settled.

Knicker—There are no rich men in heaven.

Botker—No. If the camel did get through the eye of the needle it would be called a nature fake.—Judge.

An Indifferentist.

"He is the most indifferent man," said Bangs, "I ever knew. How often I have heard him say, 'I don't care if I do!'" —Philadelphia Press.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

James Watt.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

The steam engine was a plaything when he began to tinker with it.

It was George Stephenson who, observing the lifting of a teakettle's lid by the hissing and bubbling within, conceived and created the first crude steam engine, but it was James Watt who divined the immense possibilities of steam as a motive force and adapted the engine to practical uses. So many and so important were the improvements added by Watt that he shares honors with the inventor of the original engine. Watt perfected the steam engine, adapting it to general industrial service. He took an embryotic contrivance and developed it practically to a finished creation.

This Scotchman was an instrument maker by trade. Employed in that capacity for the University of Glasgow, he took advantage of his association with the professors to increase his scientific knowledge. In the laboratory was a little steam engine vast in possibilities, but little more than a plaything when Watt began to tinker with it. His first great improvement in the engine was the invention of the independent steam condenser, which conserved much of the power that was lost in the original machine. Watt also invented the centrifugal governor, the water gauge, the mercury steam gauge and many other features, leaving the steam engine in its essential construction very much as it stands today.

Watt worked at his task with unflagging zeal. He made the improvement of the steam motor his life's work. From 1759 to 1774 he was almost constantly engaged in perfecting the mechanism of the engine. It is said that republicans are ungrateful. This cannot be said of the kingdom of Great Britain in the case of James Watt, for the government extended the Watt patents beyond the prescribed term of years in recognition of the long period of time which the tireless inventor devoted to his work of improvement and adaptation.

Sauce For the Gander.

A sailor was one day telling a gentleman of the many relations he had lost at sea.

"Well," said the gentleman, "aren't you afraid to go to sea?"

"No, sir," answered the salt. "Did you ever lose any relation at sea?"

"No, my man," answered the gentleman. "All my relations died in bed."

"Then," said the salt, "aren't you afraid to go to bed?"

SOUND DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

Last week in The News editor's old home county of Burnet, in the courthouse thereof, a Democratic convention passed the following resolutions:

Whereas, the time-bound principles of the Democratic party are unalterably opposed to all organizations of capital whose purposes and results are "in restraint of trade" and the destruction of healthy competition,

And whereas, it is equally wrong and ruinous to good government for public officials to sell their legal or personal services to such combinations of wealth;

And, whereas, it has been shown and admitted by himself that Senator Joseph W. Bailey has been guilty of this great wrong;

Therefore, be it resolved, that what is known as "Baileyism" is opposed to the teachings and practice of true Democracy, and prejudicial to good government; hence we are opposed to Senator Bailey's selection as a delegate to the next National Convention.

Resolved, further, that we will support no man for State Senator or Floater Representative to the Lower House of the Legislature who will not pledge himself to oppose and vote against any Democrat who sells his services to public trusts and corporations.

Resolved, further, that we cordially endorse the administration of Gov. Campbell, and the official record of Attorney General Davidson as wise, fearless, able and Democratic, and pledge our influence and support in the coming primary election.

Whatever others may think The News is firmly of the opinion that these resolutions express "sound Democratic doctrine."

SOMETHING ABOUT FISH.

The inexhaustible water supply of the Plains; the ease with which it can be brought to the surface and the holding capacity of the top soil strata make it an ideal place for fish lakes and ponds. The only question then is the best kind of fish for these ponds and in considering this the following from the Louisville Home and Farm may be of interest:

He was a famous farmer of the South and lived to be an old man. He ranks with the people whose good sayings and deeds live after them, for, though now dead, many of his thoughts remain. He tells about the kinds of fish best for growing in the ponds on farms of the South.

"I was," says he, "an early cultivator of the carp. The carp is about equal in quality to the Buffalo perch. But, then, I cannot catch the carp when I want it with gig, hook or seine."

"The best pond fish for pure water is the new-light, goggle-eyed perch, or red sun fish. In muddy ponds the catfish is the only fish worth breeding."

"There is in some of the States the blue channel cat with spots, the bull head, then the two varieties of mud cats, both broad and flat-headed; the one with blueish water-spots is good, but the flat-headed yellow cat is the best fresh water fish in America for use all the year round, being always fat."

"The bull head is the coarsest fish we have. The channel cat loves running water; when over eight pounds it grows coarse. The other flat-headed cats are as tender as a spring chicken up to forty pounds, I know, and am told that the largest size are as juicy as the smallest."

Home and Farm often has inquiries on this class of fish, the best fish for ponds. This information will surely be directly helpful and suggestive to such people.

The Hereford Brand, issue of last week, under the head of "Misinformation" chides The News for including Hereford in the list of smallpox towns, saying, "there has not been a case of smallpox in Hereford in two or three years." We do get wrong sometimes. Bro. Elliott, and when so are always willing to acknowledge the corn, but in this instance The News got the information straight—thru a Hereford citizen. And further, Hereford physicians admit that smallpox is there, and so if the Brand will look about it will undoubtedly find, or ought to find, provided Hereford be not intentionally suppressing the information, that yellow flags are in evidence in Hereford as well as in Canyon City. Own up!

In many Texas towns, on proclamation issued by the Mayor, a clean-up is being provided for. The general plan adopted is for each individual citizen to pile his trash, old cans, etc., and the town to furnish drays to haul the stuff away. March 24th is the date set in most places. Why not something of the kind in Canyon City?

East Texas counties desiring to be supplied with Panhandle grain next season should get in their orders early as arrangements are under way now looking to a northern market next year. Colorado is after us good and strong; so strong that the railroad is to make special inducements in that direction.—Clarendon Banner-Stockman.

Whitewright has a chicken law. You may have chickens in Whitewright if you want to but you must keep them on your own premises. A good law.

Parties inquiring for a driving horse last week will please call at this office.

Commercial Club Proceedings.

At the regular monthly meeting Thursday evening of last week there was a good turnout of members and a lively time generally. President R. A. Terrill presided.

On the question of taking steps looking to the annexation of that portion of Armstrong county lying south of Red River the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, first, that it is the sense of this Commercial club that that portion of Armstrong county lying south of the Palo Duro canyon should be joined and added to Randall county in event that it be detached from Armstrong county, and that the people of said strip so cut off, are cordially invited to become citizens of Randall.

2. That in event such strip be attached to Randall county said Randall county should guarantee payment of its proportion of Armstrong county's indebtedness, if any there be.

3. That said strip becoming a part of Randall county this club will do its utmost to prevail upon our commissioners' court to open and work a public road of the first class, as near direct as possible from Canyon City to and thru said strip.

4. That a committee of members of this club be appointed to investigate this matter and to consult with the citizens of said strip concerning the same, reporting the results to the president as soon as possible. The members forming this committee are, A. C. Rollins, A. N. Henson and Geo. A. Brandon.

On complaint of real estate men that some parties in Canyon City were interfering with their prospective purchasers, the following resolutions were adopted as the sense of this club to wit:

Whereas, The real estate firms of Canyon City have, by their industry, energy and the expenditure of large sums of money, brought many prospectors to Randall county, quite a number of whom have located among us and are helping to develop our country, and many others of whom have invested money in our lands, thus bringing prosperity to our community and adding largely to our taxable values;

Be it therefore resolved by the Canyon City Commercial Club, That in view of the great expense of time, labor and money on the part of said real estate men, and the consequent benefits to our town and county, we do not envy them the profits of their enterprise whatever such profits may be, but that we extend our thanks, sympathy and active cooperation to all legitimate and honorable efforts to bring settlers or investors to our county.

And be it further resolved, That we deprecate and look with disfavor on any attempt by individuals to interfere with the work of our real estate firms or companies, or to reap any unearned benefits from their efforts, or to usurp or appropriate their patronage.

After some discussion touching sanitary conditions and remedies the club adjourned to meet at 3 p. m. Wednesday, March 18.

Eiler's Big Show.

W. A. Eiler presents "Ralph R. Richardson in a new sensational Five-act western play, written expressly for him by the well known author, Hal Reid, entitled "King of the Cattle Ring." It is a charming story of love and adventure. The scenes are laid in the mining regions of the golden west, the play is rich in pathos and fairly bubbling over with fun, mirth and merriment. The members of the supporting company have been selected from the very best material which the dramatic market affords, and during the action of the play a number of pleasing specialties will be introduced. The scenery and all accessories are appropriate and abundant, and nothing has been neglected which may have a tendency to insure the success of the play. "The King of the Cattle Ring" will be presented at Canyon City on night of March 26th under a big tent.

Canyon City & Northeastern.

At a recent meeting of the directors of this railway company, chartered last year for the purpose of building a railroad from Canyon City to a connection with the Rock Island at a point northeast of Washburn, it was determined to enter the field of active operations as soon as financial conditions will warrant.

The officials and stockholders of this company are Canyon City people of large means—able to build the road themselves, if they see fit to do so. They are not asking outside help nor are they making any big talk about what's going to happen, just "sawing wood," as the saying goes. It's the Canyon City way, you know. Our people want a thing, and as with our Light and Ice plant, capitalized at $25,000, they meet, subscribed the cash at one sitting and the next day ordered the machinery. And so with Canyon City's Northeastern railway, there will be no gushing and spouting on the Ransom or "Short Line" order; no premature explosions—it will go when it says go and never halt till finished, and when The News records this start you can swear to it. It's the Canyon City way.

Don't miss our big street parade at noon. The King of the Cattle Ring carries one of the best concert bands on the road.

Canyon Lumber Co.

We have been here longer than any other lumber company on the Plains.

To the People of Canyon City:

As many of you know, I recently sent out to some two hundred of the citizens of our town, letters asking them certain questions which would tend to bring an expression from these people, of the needs of our town and county. I am much gratified to state that I received a large number of replies to these letters and that suggestions of much value have been rendered.

A large per cent of the people answering these letters much desired that this county be thickly settled and that this Commercial Club would greatly advance the interests of the town by assisting in every way possible the development along those lines. Every person of any common sense will readily see that the commercial prosperity of our town will depend upon rapid development of the agricultural interests; that heretofore our prosperity has depended upon the increased valuation of our lands but that we have now come to the time when we must make these lands a source of revenue beyond their increase in valuation.

In all my experience with land men I have never been located at a place where the responsible dealers have been so agreeable in their transactions, one with another, and I know, and every citizen of this county knows, that practically the whole of our farmers have been brought to this county by these real estate men who have taken their money, time and energies to get these farmers to settle here: That our Commercial Club and our general citizenship have had very little to do in the increase of our lands and the bringing of these farmers here, but that the credit for these developments must be given to the wide-awake, hustling real estate men.

I am sorry to state that it has been called to my attention that we have a few pusillanimous, unreliable men in this town who stand around in their offices on the street curbstones, on excursion days, ready and willing to steal from these legitimate real estate men, the benefit of the time, money and labor which these men have spent to bring to our city, people who desire to invest in our lands and become citizens. I do not think that there is adequate words in Webster's Unabridged to express the contempt that ought to be expressed about this class of thieves (for they are none else).

These warts of humanity, who pay no occupation taxes, spend none of their own money, time or energies to bring these men to this country, but rely upon those people whom they can steal from others, are a disgrace to our town, a menace to legitimate business, and make no money for themselves, but do cause a great loss to the honest business men and a still greater loss to the community in driving out legitimate settlers.

I think that every loyal citizen of this town ought to bring forth every energy that he may be able in driving out these highwaymen in order that we may develop the agricultural interests of our county most rapidly. I realize that this letter may seem a little harsh, but I also realize that it is not nearly so strong as the condition demands.

Yours very truly,
R. A. TERRILL,
President Commercial Club.

Local Weather Record.

From Friday until Wednesday evening the days were warm, almost like summer and the nights as well. Wednesday night the wind changed to the northeast and the sky clouded up some. Yesterday was a little colder with the wind still from the same direction, the northeast. A snow would be welcome.

Grass is plainly visible all over the prairies, fruit trees are in bloom and the wheat is growing to beat the band.

Old settlers are afraid, and not without reason, that for the Plains country fruit trees and the grain crops are coming out too rapidly for their own good. At present, however, all is well; good and very good, and it is not the part of wisdom, if we value a reasonable peace of mind, to cross a bridge before coming to it.

HOFFMAN PARAGRAPHS.

Will Cage has lately purchased a buggy. He says it has a meaning--what is it girls?

Wm. Frazier, merchant of Umbarger, visited A. B. Cage Saturday night.

Mr. Perry and family of Ky. have located in our community. New people are continually coming in. Glad to welcome all who come.

Mrs. Bob Campbell of Canyon and daughter, Mrs. Stratton, visited Mrs. B. T. Johnson Monday.

A gloom was cast over our neighborhood Sunday by the sudden death of C. H. Hitchcock. He had been in feeble health for sometime and suffered much. He was buried at Amarillo, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. R. F. Jenkins. A number of relatives and friends accompanied his remains there and our entire community express sympathy for those who bear the heaviest burden of his loss.

WEDNESDAY

President Terrill in the chair. Attendance not so good as on last week.

The President announced the following members as forming the three standing committees of the club, to wit:

Internal Improvements—Dr. S. L. Ingham, L. G. Conner, L. T. Lester, J. C. Hunt and Geo. L. Abbott.

General Welfare—I. L. Hunt, B. F. Buie, B. C. Taylor, J. N. Haney and C. R. Burrow.

structed to find out the cost of a folder containing a brief write-up of the town, its present standing and its further needs, also of an illustrated pamphlet on a more extended scale, and to report at the next regular meeting.

A large number of prospectors were booked for Canyon City on this weeks excursion.

W. L. Garner went down to Plainview Wednesday evening to see his son, Flake.

Rev. M. E. Hawkins was at Plainview the first of the week and says there is lots of sod turned all along the line—more than the acreage of old land.

Eggs are more plentiful on the Plains than ever before; the local markets are all glutted and the price is the lowest on record for Panhandle—8½ cents per dozen.

Miss Iva Buie returned Saturday from the Polytechnic College at Fort Worth, where she has completed a commercial course in typewriting and shorthand.

The city quarantine officer reports the smallpox cases as growing fewer in number and says that there is now absolutely no danger to outside parties visiting the town.

On the fifth page will be found—big enough to see good—the announcement of the "Canyon Mercantile" millinery opening. Next Wednesday is the day set and the display will be worth your while to see.

License to Wed.

Wednesday marriage license was issued to George Abb Stratton and Miss Susie Ellis.

Book Club Party.

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated by the Canyon City Book Club with a party at the hospitable home of one of its most enthusiastic members, Mrs. C. R. Burrow. The News reporter counting heads made out ninety-two present, all included. Colonial styles had been followed by some of the ladies in dressing for the occasion, but the gentlemen, excepting R. A. Terrill whose otherwise distinguished appearance was added to greatly by a good size hatchet attached to the lapel of his coat, were in ordinary dress. Referring again to Mr. Terrill, some said he wore the hatchet in memory of and to perpetuate that famous apple tree episode in the life of our great first President, while others stated, and the weight of testimony was on that side, that he was an avowed apostle of Carrie Nation and to "look out for the punch bowl."

It was rather a large assemblage for a private residence, but all present had been provided for and under the supervision of Mrs. Burrow, an excellent hostess, the club members entertained their guests royally. The program included songs by club members; music by the Canyon City Orchestra; games, ancient and modern, and refreshments consisting of punch and Marguerite wafers. The night was lovely; warm, but not uncomfortably so; the sky was clear and the benign countenance of a full moon made enjoyment all the more enjoyable. It was a good humored gathering and one bent on making the most of the fleeting hours and only dispersed when the words, "lights going out" made it necessary to seek out hats, shawls, wraps etc, before the electric lights which illuminated all the apartments, gave way to the silvery streaks of moonlight which might only enter at the doors. An attempt was made by T. H. Rowan to phone the power house to continue the lights, but this failing the guests reluctantly departed for their several homes after a somewhat hasty distribution of the souvenirs—an artificial leaf of Erin's famous badge, the glorious Shamrock.

Canyon City Band Reorganized.

The News is more than pleased to record the reorganizing of the Canyon City brass band. The members so far enlisted are Geo. Hutchings, O. C. Davis, W. E. Lair, Roy Cullum, R. A. Terrill, Thad Lair, Dewey Foster, Sam Marshall, Lem Scoggins, Joe Black, Harry Lair, Robert Rowan, Grady Pipkin, Will Bucey, Roy Moreland, Grady Oldham, Puss Lair, Roy Shotwell, Ernest Reid and Earl Munger.

N. C. Bishop of Denver, a graduate of the American Conservatory of Music, will have charge of the band and has moved here with his family.

The personnel of the band, for aptness along the line of instrumental music, is good and we may reasonably expect great things of the Canyon City Band.

C. H. Hitchcock Dead.

Sunday morning C. H. Hitchcock, residing in the Hoffman neighborhood west of town, was found dead in his bed.

Sunday evening Justice of the Peace John A. Wallace, Judge Henson, County Attorney Rollins and Dr. Stewart went out and held an inquest. A natural death was indicated.

Mr. Hitchcock had been to Amarillo the preceding day on a land trade—selling some lots in Amarillo—and had been thrown from the horse he was riding, but remounting had ridden the animal home, arriving there, one of the neighbors stated, not much worse in appearance from the accident.

He was frail in a physical sense, however, and it is thought by some that the shock of this fall was the cause of death. He lived on the ranch alone, the family, a wife and daughters, having moved into Canyon City for the benefit of school. The funeral was at Amarillo Monday.

Two New Brick Buildings.

A trade was consummated last week by which the First National Bank and L. C. Lair purchased the two vacant corner lots fronting east on the public square and bounded on the north by West Houston street. These lots were the property of John Hutson and the consideration was $6,500, the bank taking the corner at $3,500 and Lair the other at $3,000.

Upon these lots the purchasers propose erecting two brick houses with a frontage of 60 feet, running back 120 feet and two stories high, the bank to occupy the corner. If present intentions is carried out these buildings, modern in every particular and worthy of first place in any city of the State, will go up with our new courthouse, or at least before another winter comes upon us. Canyon City is moving some, you see, and along permanent and substantial lines.

"Clod Hopper."

Over this name somebody addresses The News taking issue with it concerning what it has heretofore said touching the "catalog houses." Clod Hopper says "there might be two sides to this question." There is. But, The News cannot give his side of it, because he fails to sign his name to the article. It is a rule strictly adhered to by all well regulated newspapers that all articles intended for publication must be signed by the proper name of the writer. It is not always necessary that such name, the proper one, appear in connection with the published article, but it must be given to the office. And so if "Clod Hopper" will kindly give this office his name the article, just as he writes it, will be published next week.

The News will say more next week along the lines here indicated whether "Clod Hopper" comes up to the lick log or not.

Mrs. George Redman and little daughter, of Victor, Colo., came in Wednesday on a visit to Mrs. Redman's aunt, Mrs. L. S. Carter.

I. C. Jenkins has put a woven wire picket fence around his residence property and doing the work himself has made a fairly good job out of it.

PICTURE OF A "DRIFTER."

A Character Well-Known All Over the South.

The following description of the "drifter" is from the San Angelo Standard, and is so true to the "nature of the brute" that one can see the old, ramshackle wagon, the mis-matched ponies, the lean dog, the dirty assortment of motley and ill-clad children and the sad, heart-sick, worn-out woman whose fidelity outbalances her distracted judgment. The drifter is peculiar to no clime or nation, and the only constant thing about him is his ever independability, hungry and dirty appearance:

The drifter believes the world owes him a living, and he is ever on the move to collect the debt. His stock in trade, usually consists of a wagon, bearing the marks of antiquity and hard usage; a pair of ponies, which from appearance might have done service during the early days of the Republic; a numerous family, two or three sycamore fishing poles and a tribe of lean and shadowy dogs.

In the early springtime the drifter may be found along our public highways, looking for some one who wants a good man to crop on the shares, but he never finds the right man. Meantime he lives; just how, the Lord only knows, but he exists all the same. At planting time he is found in a rude camp on the banks of a creek, where the children fish while he assists a neighboring farmer for a few days, in return for which he receives a daily stipend of clabber, and an order on the country merchant for several pounds of Battle Axe, some cartridges, six bottles of Garrett's snuff and a sack of meal. Later he is seen in another section of the country at cotton-chopping time, camped where fishing is good, and while his ponies graze in the stockman's pasture, he, wife and his progeny may be seen chopping cotton for the farmer who is behind with his work and has plenty of buttermilk and clabber.

In "watermillion" time the drifter revels amid scenes of terrestrial glory. But he keeps up his diet of clabber and buttermilk, donated by sympathetic housewives.

When the cotton season opens he and his tribe may be found at brief intervals in the cotton patch—here today, next week in another country—always drifting—same old wagon, same old ponies, same old dogs, same family, with perhaps an increase and same old grub—clabber and buttermilk.

Pecan-gathering season finds him along our Western rivers, threshing and gathering pecans on the shares, and when winter's cold blasts sweep down, the drifter either hies himself to our towns and cities to become a burden on the public, or else drifts back to his wife's people in Collin and other North and East Texas counties, where they always want to make a crop, but seldom make it.

Will Abide by Tax Laws.

County officials of several Plains counties, in session at Hereford last Friday, decided to abide by the full rendition law.

The convention, if such it may be called, was not large in numbers nor extensive in the territory represented, but it was enthusiastic and organized itself into "The Panhandle Association of County Judges, County Commissioners and County Assessors." For President Judge Henson was elected and Judge Russell of Deaf Smith county was chosen as secretary.

As to what was done there, the resolutions tell the tale. They are as follows:

Whereas, the 30th Legislature passed an Act, commonly known as the "Full Rendition Law," requiring all property in the State to be assessed at its full market value; there be it

Resolved by the County Judges, County Commissioners and County Tax Assessors in meeting assembled at Hereford, Texas, on March 13th, 1908, that we hereby express our willingness to abide by the law, both in spirit and letter; and to assess and equalize all property in our respective counties at its reasonable market value; trusting to, and demanding of, the State administration that we be protected in so doing in that they require all counties in the State to do likewise and to fully comply with said law; and the said administration be depended on to so reduce the State rate in proportion to such valuations; believing, as we do, that the Panhandle and Plains counties have always borne their just, and oftentimes more than their proportion of State taxes; the Panhandle having supplied land for the building of the State Capitol; the building of most of the State's rail roads and supplying the State school fund.

Be it further resolved by the said County Judges and Commissioners, that we will not increase the burdens of the tax payers, in requiring the payment of more taxes under such valuations, in that said boards of equalization will decrease the County Tax rate in proportion to any increase in valuations, in so far as same lies within our powers to so do.

Resolved further, that the secretary be requested to supply a copy of these resolutions to the State authorities and to the press of the Panhandle.

Respectfully submitted,

- A. N. HENSON, County Judge Randall Co.
- M. F. BARBER, County Judge Castro Co.
- JNO. B. RENFRO, County Judge Briscoe Co.
- W. L. TOWNSEN, County Judge Parmer Co.
