When will Canyon People Learn the Importance of It.

Backache is only a simple thing at first.

But when you know 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles follow;

That diabetes, Bright's disease may be the fatal end.

You will gladly profit from the following experience.

'Tis the honest statement of a sufferer who was cured.

W. M. Cutbirth, of Quanah, Tex., says: "I can say that the wonderful benefit I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills four years ago has proven permanent. I gave a public statement in favor of this remedy in 1905 and at the present time I am glad to confirm everything I then said. I was greatly troubled by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions and I gradually grew worse until I had scarcely any control over them. I became alarmed about my condition and hearing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly spoken of, I procured a box and began their use. They proved of great benefit and made me feel better in every way."

WON HIS FREEDOM

It was in the days of slavery in the south. A planter had died and his negroes were to be sold under the hammer. A young malatto, his wife and baby were about to be put up separately.

"Step up, Ben," said the auctioneer. "Stop!" said a gentleman with a ruffled shirt front. "These three should go in one lot, sub."

"Reckon there's not money enough here in any one pocket to buy 'em all, colonel."

"Try it, sub."

The auctioneer ordered the young mother with her babe on to the stand and called for bids, but there was no offer except from the colonel, and that was below the limit.

"I'll tell you what you'd better do," said the colonel—"raffe 'em. I'll take chances to the amount of my bid."

"I'll take an equal amount to the colonel's," said a man with a large diamond in his shirt bosom. As the disposition of the crowd seemed to favor the plan, it was adopted.

"They're worth $1,800," said the auctioneer. "Suppose we make it eighteen shares at $100 a share."

"I take 'o' shares," said the colonel. "That lets me in for 'o'," said the diamond stud man.

After some delay the shares were all taken except one.

"One chance left. Who takes it?" called the auctioneer.

"Gentlemen," said the husband and father, "if the auctioneer will be so kind as to take my agreement for a $100 in work I'll solemnly promise to pay the amount." He looked at the upturned faces wistfully.

"Can't do that," said the auctioneer. "It's all cash here."

"I'll indorse his note for a hundred," said the colonel.

"Don't take paper," said the auctioneer.

"I'll lend him a hundred on the colonel's indorsement," said the man with the diamond stud.

A note was drawn, the colonel put his signature on the back, and all was ready for the raffle.

"How will you have it, gentlemen," asked the auctioneer, "dice or cards?"

"I would be much obliged," said the owner of a single chance for his and his family's freedom, "if yo' would make it dice, and I would prefer that my little boy throw fo' me."

"Shall it be dice, gentlemen?"

"Dice it is," said the shareholders one after another.

"I have a set here in my pocket," said the diamond stud man. He took out a box, shook it and rolled the dice on the platform. "Colonel, will you throw?"

The colonel gathered up the dice and threw thirty-seven. The next throw was twenty-five, the next thirty-nine. The last thrower but one was the diamond stud man, who threw forty-eight.

By common consent the last throw had been reserved for the slave. As he took the box his hand trembled visibly. The highest number that could possibly be thrown was fifty-four, and to make this the thrower must get three sixes three times in succession. As even this was only six more than the highest, he knew that he had but a ghost of a chance for his freedom.

He put the box in his baby's hand, a pickaninny of eleven months, but it was so clumsy that the child could not grasp it.

"Hold on," said the diamond stud man. "I'll just go into the saloon over thar and get a smaller set."

He went to the saloon and returned in a few minutes with a very small dicebox and three tiny dice.

"Yo', gal," he said to the mother, "take yo' boy's hand in yo's and throw ha'd. Dice don't roll lucky unless yo' make 'em roll."

The box was put in the baby's hand, and the mother threw them. They rolled out a six, a five and a six.

"Seventeen!" called the auctioneer. The next throw was two sixes and a three.

"Thirty-two!"

The anxiety on the father's face was painful to see. He knew that the throwing of two sixes twice was remarkable. To beat the best figure (forty-eight) he must throw two sixes again, and the third die must turn up at least a five.

"Roll 'em well," said the diamond stud man to the mother.

She did roll them well, and when they came to turn they showed up three sixes.

The negro fell over in a faint. His wife, who knew nothing about dice, looked at the auctioneer piteously.

"Lost?" she asked.

"Lost! No. Thirty-two and eighteen are fifty. Fifty wins. Gentlemen, this family belongs to itself. Make out the bill of sale."

Catholics Buy Old Court House.

Saturday evening W. D. Kelielhor closed the contract with the county for the old court house building and grounds to be converted into a Catholic church.

The Catholics will hold their services in the court house only at such times as it will not interfere with the proceedings of the court. When the new court house is finished the building will be used exclusively as a Catholic church.

There has been a movement on foot for sometime by the Catholics to buy or build a church building. The locating of this church will prove of much benefit to the town and country and there will be many good substantial German Catholics locate in this community that wouldn't have under other conditions. Mr. Kelielhor has worked hard to establish the church and at last his efforts have been crowned. — Hereford Recorder.

THE STAR GROCERY

A SKY OPEN BEDROOM.

The Roof a Novel and Clever Feature.

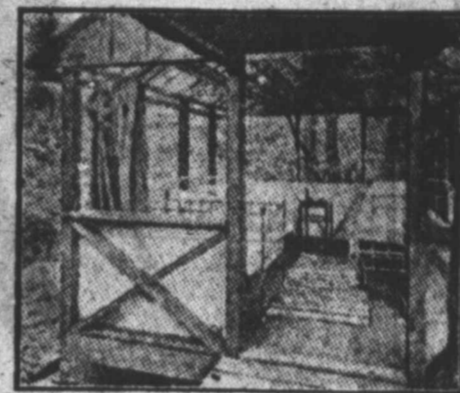

The illustration shows an open air bedroom described by David Fairchild in Good Housekeeping.

"It is built under some big red oaks about ten feet back of a one story cottage near Washington, and it is reached by a little covered passageway from the dressing room. There is literally nothing to it but a floor and a roof, and the roof is made of glass, so that lying comfortably in bed one can look straight up into the trees and through them to the stars.

In constructing our little house we built first four corners of brick—cement could be used—and laid floor joists across to form what carpenters call the plate. It is not necessary to make the corners more than two feet high above the ground, for if the land is well drained there is no danger of the bedrooms being damp.

On the joists is a floor ten feet square, and upon this is built the rough pine frame. The upright 4 by 4 inch corner posts and 2 by 4 inch studs are braced at the bottom by putting in short 2 by 4's crisscross to form a wainscoting three feet high.

The most novel feature of this sky open bedroom is, of course, the roof. There is a little cap of wood extending down about eighteen inches on either side of the ridge, and the roof itself, which is made of ordinary cheap greenhouse sash, starts underneath this and slides up and down on the rafters. In fair weather the roof can be opened, and when it rains one can lie and look up at the raindrops as they strike upon the glass panes, and anything more magnificent than a thunderstorm at night I cannot imagine, with the great oak branches bending and tossing above one's head. Sash cords and simple, inexpensive pulleys are all that are necessary to raise and lower these greenhouse sash, provided the rafters on which they run are well soaked and plenty of play is left between the sash frames and the strips of board which hold them in place.

The wainscoting is covered with unbleached cotton sheeting tacked on inside to a height of three feet from the floor, and this allows free circulation of air, but affords the semi-privacy required and will last for three or four years. The height of this wainscoting is a matter of choice, and if more privacy is desired it could be made higher.

The Making of Bead Chains.

All the designs for bead chains seen in the cut are easily made if the following directions are carried out. The first design is a simple chain, and this should be practiced before attempting floral devices. First string four blue beads; tie the end of the silk through the first bead to prevent them slipping off. Hold the work between the finger and thumb on the left hand, then string a blue bead and pass the needle through the third bead from right to left. Take up another bead and pass the needle through the first bead through which the silk is tied. It will be noticed that the beads do not follow in straight lines across, but one up and one down, so that each bead fits into a little gap in the previous row.

SIMPLE AND EFFECTIVE DESIGNS.

The work should now be turned over. String one white bead and pass the needle through the second bead from the edge. String a blue bead and pass the needle through the last bead at the left edge. The work must be turned at the end of each row so that the needle always passes from right to left. Now, for the fourth row string a blue bead and pass the needle through the second bead of the row, which is a blue, then string a white one and pass through the white in the previous row. For the fifth row string a white and pass needle through the white in the fourth row, then a blue and pass through the blue bead on the left edge, when it will be seen that four rows of blue beads are worked and the pattern begun again on the opposite side. Having mastered this design, the other patterns will be quite easy.

To Renovate Old Curtains.

If in getting your window draperies ready for fall you find them in a very worn condition they can be made to look like new in the following way: Cut the lower and side borders from a full length curtain, following the designs instead of a straight line, and lift up on the net a half yard or until they measure a window sill length. Pin or baste to position and sew around on the machine, afterward cutting away the torn net beneath. Launder in the usual way and you will be pleased with the result, no seams being visible.

THE VORTEX HOT BLAST

Burns all the gases in coal which in soft coal amounts to more than half the fuel and which are wasted up the chimney with the ordinary under-draft stove. The two top drafts discharge highly heated air into the combustion chamber with a rotary motion, which mixes it with the rising gases more thoroughly than is possible with a single draft and these gases are thus oxidized and burned. The stove has a larger positive radiating surface than any other stove of the same diameter. Its handsome appearance with door surfaces milled air tight are additional points in its favor and are not found in any other hot blast. Avoid so-called air-tight having side feed doors; they never make good.

A KNOCKER KNOCKED.

A very interesting session was held last Saturday morning in the offices of the First National bank when one of the town knockers was invited to give an account of himself. Business men had known for some time that this man had been doing underhanded work, misrepresenting the business men and community to strangers, sending out destructive letters to prospective settlers here, and endeavoring to either make real estate deals himself or fix it so the other men could not close a deal. A crowd of business men gathered and the culprit placed on the witness stand. At first he denied charges but when facts and proofs were presented he mildly admitted that he had sent out certain letters and talked with certain men, but certainly didn't mean any harm at all. A few more scimmages, denials and proofs, and the man sailed out of the room after telling the crowd what he thought of them. It is reported that other men have been engaged in exactly the same kind of business as this man and unless some of them change their ways they will likewise be called upon to answer for their conduct.

The business men of Canyon will no longer tolerate the knocker. The best thing any of them can do is to move to another town. Canyon was never in a more flourishing condition than she is today, and the citizens of the town are not going to stand by and see any man work in direct opposition to the many who are building her up and making her a better town every day.

SAVING SEED FOR NEXT YEAR.

In order to raise a good crop it is absolutely essential that the farmer should have good seed to plant. Many farmers make the mistake of waiting until the moment they need seed and then plant the first thing they can find. An experienced farmer told us not long ago that half the poor crops in this section of the country could be ascribed to the poor condition of the seed.

"Like begets like"—as is the seed so will be the crop.

It would be well for every Randall county farmer to follow the instruction of Mr. Neill, who spoke here last week, and to gather his seed from the field. Seed from a poor stalk will be poor every time. Seed from a stalk which has grown beside a poor stalk will be poor. How are you to tell the nature and surroundings of the stalk on which your seed has grown unless you gather the seed in the field? Gathering seed in this manner allows the farmer to select heads from stalks which have suitable surroundings; it gives him a chance to get the head which has grown highest up on the stalk; he can see to it that the stalk has not grown by a poor stalk and received its pollen, which will injure the good seed every time.

The farmer owes it to himself to take the time to look out after seed now. It will mean much money to him to spend a little time in his fields seeking out the good stalks and getting good strong seed.

A newspaper business is bound to be gauged by the business conditions of a town and the amount of enterprise of the merchants. These two factors make or unmake almost every newspaper in the land, and you can guess the business condition of a town or the amount of steam the business men have up by the appearance of a newspaper—in just about nine cases out of ten. In short, a newspaper is a good thermometer to show the commercial temperature of a town. —Tulia Standard.

If you are a kicker and see the shadows of failure in everything that is proposed to help the town for heaven's sake go into some secluded canyon and kick your own shadow on the clay bank, and give the men who are working to build up the town a chance. One long-faced, hollow-eyed, whining, earping, chronic kicker can do more to keep away business and capital from a town than all the drouths, short crops, chinch bugs, cyclones and blizzards combined. —Lubbock Avalanche.

A whole lot of people in the Panhandle would like to have hold of that ornery cuss who started the story from Austin regarding the shortage of water in this section of the country. Water has never been shipped into the Panhandle and there will never be need for it so long

The Panhandle Herald published a twelve page "Harvest Issue" last week. The paper was well illustrated with cuts of residences of the city and sketches of local men. The West Texas State Normal cut was also run and a good write-up of the college. J. Sid O'Keefe, the editor, gets out a newsy paper and is a booster for his town and the Panhandle in general.

It is reported that a certain large church in another state will have moving pictures at the night services in order to get the people to attend. Why not? Musical instruments were installed in the churches for that purpose and have proven a success. If great truths can be conveyed through moving pictures, why not use them.

So far seventy-eight congressmen who helped make the tariff are delegated to stay at home. More will receive a like invitation at the November election. This is the greatest slaughter of the "innocent" since the McKinley tariff.

The News is very grateful for the kind words said about the paper. If the newspaper is an index to the condition of the town, we realize we will have to "go some" to fully represent Canyon. But by the co-operation of every citizen, we believe the News can represent to the world the thriving condition of Canyon.

Several of our citizens who have made trips to other parts of the country say that the Panhandle is the best place yet. Crop conditions cannot be surpassed this year than right here in Randall county.

By the way, Canyon has a chicken ordinance. The ordinance says that your chickens shall not bother your neighbor, but some people seem to think there is a law prohibiting the building of chicken yards. Some mighty fine flower beds have been ruined through the negligence of a few people around town.

The News was the first in Canyon to receive one of the new postoffice orders. It came from Illinois last week. It was gratifying to go to the postoffice and draw the money without having to bother the postmaster by having him look all through the vouchers on hand and finally have to wait two or three days until advice for payment came. By the way, the News could use some more just like that one on some of the back subscriptions.

COLE'S HOT BLAST.

Let us call your attention to a few of the salient points in its construction and operation. The top feed door is smoke proof. No side doors, therefore no danger of fire falling out upon the floor while filling the stove with fuel. The heavy castings surrounding the fire are cased in with a straight, jointless steel jacket. No leakage of ashes or air or soot. The draft, being from the top burns the coal from the top, therefore consuming all gases arising from the coal, making a hotter fire with less expense for fuel.

Just a Little Conundrum

Why are burglars like our lumber?
Because they always go into the best of homes.

Not only do we sell the majority of lumber for the best homes all around here, but we get most of the bills for barns, granaries, and for all buildings where good, sound, dry material is required. People have learned that there is a lot of difference in the quality of lumber, and as we make quality our "long suit," particular buyers take no chances but buy what they need from us.

The Panhandle Invites Inspection.

She leads the great Southwest in the richness of her productions. That she has created a stir in the agricultural sections of the north and middle west, is evidenced by the gathering together of the banking interests of the older states, to combat the tide of immigration which is steadily coming this way. A visit to Canyon City and surrounding territory will convince you that the loudly proclaimed stories of drought are without foundation. Our hundreds of acres of Milo Maize and Kaffir Corn, just now entering the maturing stage, are a complete refutation of the drought stories. The market quotations of Indian corn compared with the quotations on Kaffir and Maize show that the last two named command the greater price.

There is no country that is better equipped naturally for the production of broom corn, than in the Panhandle. Professor Shaw, of the Wisconsin Agricultural College, makes the unqualified statement that any land which will successfully produce broom corn is worth two hundred dollars per acre.

As a stock raising and feeding country the Panhandle is not surpassed; the cool, pleasant summer, free from the tormenting fly, and the mild winters, full of sunshine, make it an ideal location for both the raising and finishing of all kinds of stock.

The production of all fruits peculiar to the temperate zone is bountiful and the quality is of the best. All kinds of vegetables are most successfully grown here, and melons attain prodigious size and are of the most delicious flavor.
