NORMAL OPENS 207 ATTENDANCE

WEEK TO ENTER.

Attendance 65 per cent Ahead this Date Last Year.—New Instructor Elected.

The second year of the West Texas State Normal college was opened last Tuesday morning and up to last night the attendance had reached 207. This number is 65 per cent larger than at the close of the first week last year.

In an interview yesterday President R. B. Cousins said: "We are highly pleased with the opening of the college this year and with the prospects for a good year's work. The opening attendance is not so large as had been expected, but there are so many of the students attending institutes in order to hold their certificates, and then this is the busy time in the cotton sections. We are confident that large numbers will come in every week for the next month and that by Christmas we will have not less than 300 in attendance."

All of the faculty have arrived in the city and have their work in hand for a good year. Prof. J. G. Miller was the last to arrive, having driven his auto from Santa Fe and had bad luck on the way.

A new member was added to the faculty this week by the election of Miss Luella Sale to the department of education.

Miss Sale is a graduate of the Ulinois State Normal and of the Colorado Training School for Teachers.

SANTA FE STARTS A BIG CAMPAIGN

THE PANHANDLE.

Large amount of money will be expanden in advertising this section of the country.

The following communication from J. Brinker, General Freight and Passenger Agent, will be of great interest to the citizens of Canyon and the Panhandle. It shows the interest the Santa Fe has in our country and what the company is going to do this year in presenting the possibilities of the country to those seeking a new home in the Great Panhandle of Texas.

Amarillo, Tex., Aug. 31, 1911 Mr. C. W. Warwick, Mgr,. Edi., The Randall Co., News Canyon, Texas.

Dear sir:

You will feel interested, I am sure, in the information that the Santa Fe System has made a special appropration for advertising the Panhandle, quiet in excess of the usual amount set apart for advertising purposes in this section and which will be expended in advertising the resources of the Panhandie principally in farm journals, including some papers in foreign languages, with perhaps a few magazines. The campaign to be started early in September and to continue for four months, this in addition to the space in "The Earth" alloted to this section and which is recognized as one of the best advertising mediums for farm lands, the distribution of land folders and stereopican lectures, descriptive of the

The effect of this advertising will no doubt be to invite immigration and attract investors at a time when the crop prospects and appearance of the country genarally is most inviting.

AN ESCAPED LUNATIC

By MARTHA V. PEASLEY Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

My brother Henry wrote me that he was going to bring his friend out to our country place for the week end. "He's a jim dandy, Edith," wrote Henry, "and I'm bringing him out purposely to introduce him to you."

About a mile from our place was the state insane asylum. Its proximity was a great disadvantage in that I was in constant dread lest some maniac should escape, come to our house and murder us all. An escaped lunatic had ened her out of her senses.

About 5 o'clock one afternoon when I was just ready to go downstairs andout on to the piazza there came a ring at the telephone. I answered the call myself... It was from the asylum and was an inquiry as to whether we had seen or heard of one of the inmates who had left the grounds and gone in our direction. He had passed out with a suit case in his hand, telling the gate-Attorney keeper that he had been discharged and was going home. He was one of the most dangerous patients in the in-

I replied that we had seen nothing of him and sincerely hoped we would not. Then I went out on the piazza and tried to think of something else. But I was unable to fix my thoughts Judge on anything save a madman coming Attorney down on us. Every man who passed Clerk on the road a short distance from where I sat looked to me like a raving maniac. Finally I saw a man coming carrying a suit case. My heart went right up into-my throat. I muttered a stlent prayer that he might pass the gate. He did not. He stopped and looked up at our house. "He's the escaped patient," I moaned. "He's deliberating whether he'll come here or go on farther. Heavens, he's coming in!"

There was no man in the house, and simply must meet him. I sat perfectly still while he came up the walk, my heart wildly beating. I had read stories of persons turning away insane persons by coolness and strategy, but I didn't find any coolness in myself, and, as for strategy, I was incapable of carrying on even an ordinary conversation with the man. By the time he reached the piazza I saw a wild eyed creature with fiery red hair and atmospheric disturbances similar to heat waves emanating from his fluger ends. Indeed, had I looked at him through dancing water or an imperfect window pane he couldn't have Tax Assessor, appeared more terrible. He said some Houston street. Mrs. Black. W. D. Scott, Ex-Officio Supt. Schools thing to me, but I had no idea what Surveyor it was, except that it was a question. "Go on," I said-"oh, go on! They're J. V. Young, Hide-Animal Inspector after you! I just had a telephone from them asking if we had seen you. As you value your freedom, go!" He stood looking at me. Was he going to spring upon me or would he with that cunning often to be found in persons of his kind attempt to outwit me so that he could effect an entrance into the house and murder us all without our being able to call for

"You can't come in!" I continued excitedly. "Oh, go on! Don't stop a moment. You'll be captured. Please

The man turned and, without a word, retraced his steps. I maintained my position until I had seen him out of the gate, then I staggered into the house, sank on a lounge, and that's the last I knew till I saw the maid sprinkling my face with water. Ashamed of my weakness, I soon arose and by keeping smelling salts continually at my nostrils managed to get upstairs to my room. In the course of an hour the maid knocked at my door and said my brother had come. was surprised at this, for he had written that he would be with us on Saturday afternoon, and it was now Friday. I was so ashamed of my terror at the approach of the lunatic-Henry had no respect for my timidity-that resolved not to say anything about With the smelling salts in my hand. I went down into the living

Oh, my goodness gracious! Am mad, or are my eyes askew? There. beside Henry, stands the maniac! "What the dickens did you mean Edith, by treating Mr. Trask as you did awhile ago? I missed the train. and he came on without me, only to be turned away by you. Were you

"N-n-o, b-but I thought he was." Henry was very angry, but his friend soothingly said that I doubtless had an explanation. I gave it. A sickly smile gradually overspread the features of both the men, and, as for me, I ran np to my room and locked the door, and they didn't get me out of it till the next morning. When I came down to breakfast Henry and Mr. Trask were waiting for me. Henry, who was still said by way of introduction, just as if we hadn't met before:

"Edith, this is Mr. Trask, whom I wrote you I would bring up with me this week. I assure you he is in his right mind and has no intention of murdering you."

"Yes, I have," said the other. "I'm going to pluck her heart out of her." Now, wasn't that nice of him?

Indeed, he turned the whole matter into a joke, getting Henry into good humor and making me feel less un-

Towns And Their Papers.

A newspaper can never very creditably represent a town whose business men do not advertise. He may howl himself hoarse bragging about the vim, enegry and enterprise of his town, but if his declarations are not backed up by a liberal amount of advertising by the business men of the town, the world will be slow to take state ments as true. It takes more than the unsupported testimonial of the local newspaper man to prove to the world that his town is the best on the market, and the best place on earth to buy goods. His evidence needs Herald.

State Press, who sees a small mountain of newspapers each week, is downright sorry for the courageous souls who edit some of them-a few of them. These papers appear weekly with well written editorials and snappy paragraphs boosting their respective towns and each telling what a stirring, thriving, promiing little city it is published in. A glance at the advertising pages, or where the advertising mortified at my reception of his friend. ought to be, shows that the space is given over to plate matter or miscellaneous reprint, and that most of the merchants are dead or asleep. Now, this much is certain and does not admit of controversy: Every good town maintains a good newspaper, and the appearance of the newspaper indicates its condition. If the paper looks half starved (granting, of course, that it is the represenative paper of the com-dition except to squeeze usurious John Rusk. interest out of needy borrowers. This is an advertising age, the age of printers' ink; and merchants who haven't found that out are not ordinarily keen enough to pick up bargains for their customers.—State Press in Dallas News.

AMUSEMENT FEATURES.

Thaviu and His Russian Band Among Them.

By long experience, the management of the State Fair of Texas, keenly appreciates that equally as important as the exhibition and display of every modern educational feature, is that of amusement and entertainment for its visitors as well. With this in view the directors of the Fair association have this year appropriated alone for the department the sum of $20,000, and contracts are already closed for attractions

EDWIN J. KIEST, President State Fair of Texas.

In this monster coliseum, constructed in 1910, at a cost of $108,000, will be seen Professor A. F. Thaviu, the famous Russian Band Master, and his international band and Grand Opera company, as well as a troupe of fifteen $ 550.55 European ballet dancers, twelve lady specialty artists in Russian, Spanish, Hungarian and Characteristic dances and songs. There will also be four vocal soloists of international reputation, and one of the latest European Novelty casting acts.

Professor Thaviu's engagement last. season was such a success that con-tract was given him this year to fur-nish the entire program for the Coliseum and all to be under his direction. There will be performances morning, afternoon and evening by the entire band and company, consisting of 75

As a finale to each evening performance there will be given one of the standard operas in condensed form by the entire company with the entire band in the orchestra. In the repertoire are such operas as Aida, Pagliacci. Giocanda, Madame Butterfly, Il Trovatore, Rigolette, Lucia, etc., assur-This will be a musical carnival never before heard in the south and of a size never attempted by any other Fair Association in the country.

President E. J. Kiest has always said there was nothing too good for visitors to the State Fair at Dallas and in this, his fourth year of service as president, he is endeavoring to eclipse any of his former great achievements. $ 64.58 The performances morning and af-ternoon are absolutely free and only a nominal charge of twenty-five cents is made in the evening. MAMMOTH COASTER.

In addition to the many new and varied educational features that will be seen at the great State Fair of Texas, Dallas, October 14th to 29th, President E. J. Kiest is equally alive to the amusement features as well, and had just announced that contract has been closed for the construction of a mammoth racing coaster by an Eastern syndicate at a cost of $30,000. Material and engineers are now in tran-sit and the coaster will be ready for all amusement lovers on the opening day, Saturday, October 14th. The mammoth racing coaster is the very latest amusement riding device before the public today, and to ride on same is the next thing to flying. The syndicate operating these coasters decided to place only two of them in this country and selected Dallas as the only place in the United States, and Toronto, Canada, as the location of the other. This is another endorsement of the State Fair of Texas, being the greatest and largest institution of its kind in of Texas is justly proud.

DAILY FLIGHTS.

As one of the special attractions of ber 14-29, President E. J. Kiest, anhounces that contract has just been losed with the McCurdy-Willard Aeroplane company of New York, for daily flights by J. A. D. McCurdy, whose recent flight from Key West to Havana is still fresh in the minds of every one and whose reputation is world wide; Charles F. Willard, whose numerous flights have thrilled thousands in all parts of the country, or "Jimmie" Ward, who, while one of the youngest aviators in the business, startled the thousands who saw him in Dallas during the spring, flirting with the clouds, soaring to an altitude that made him almost invisible and then decending in long spiral glides, and performing every daring feat known to aviation. Flights will be made daily from the infield of the race track in front of the grand stand between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m.

and in between the races. The hangar will be situated so as to be easily accessible to all visitors and where the machines can be seen at close range. Lectures will also be given, on aeroplanes and every detail of aviation, which will be instructive and highly interesting.

The Midway attractions will be in the capable hands of Herbert A. Kline, with his great aggregation of new and novel shows, furnishing all kinds of attractions and amusements for the young and old. Every show will be of the highest moral character and under no circumstances will any freak or immoral show be allowed on the grounds. Among the permanent amusement features are, the Mammoth Racing Coaster, entirely new, novel, highly exciting and being erected at a cost of $30,000, the Scenic Railway, the Chute the Chutes, Figure Eight, Carousel, Double Whirl, Ministure Railway, The Tickles, Old Mill and Prolic, besides many ether

STILL LEADER

Texas continues to lead the procession of her sister states in the matter of acreage, tillage, variety of crops and production. The Panhandle leads all Texas and with the steady increase of new and sturdy citizens, the opening up of virgin lands to plow and successful cultivation, will show a magnificent gain with each succeeding year.

Panhandle alfalfa is now being fed out in the less fortunate districts of other states which have suffered from drouth and heat. During the coming fall and winter Panhandle Kafir corn and Milo maize will acquire new markets in different sections of the country. Their excellence as a balanced. ration for all kinds of stock will be demonstrated in heretofore new territory, the markets thus acquired will be permanent and will broaden as their superiority as an all-round feed is recognized. Many of our Randall county farmers are now planting Milo maize on the same ground from which they have just taken a crop of oats or wheat and will realize a second substantial dividend from their land. Our forage crops will help to supply the deficienty in the hay crop of other states and need only this opportunity for a trial in order to be given high rank in that class of feed.

The torrid wave which recently recently held sway over the Middle West and East, taking heavy toll in the lives of babies and adults, was tempered by our altitude and cooling showers into the most favorable growing weather for crops. Contrary to the general opinion of those not familiar with our climate, that our geographical location is condusive of extreme summer heat, the Government records for eighteen years show our average temperature for the months of June, July and August was 74.2 degrees and each year a larger number of people come to the Panhandle to enjoy the delightful summer.

Our climate is particularly favorable for diversified farming and stock raising, our soil is rich and productive, our rainfall ample in normal seasons, an inexhaustible supply of pure water is obtainable at a reasonable depth.

I have a number of choice farms in Randall and adjoining counties, improved and unimproved, and at the figure at which they can be bought now are certain to prove a most profitable investment.

SEVERAL NEW FEATURES

Livestock Pavilion One of the Perman ent Improvements-Large Exhibitors

The Great State Fair of Texas coninues to grow and expand, due to the entiring energy of President E. J. Kiest and the veteran Secretary, Captain Sydney Smith.

Among the permanent improvements for 1911 is the Livestock Pavilion which is being constructed of esteen concrete and brick at an aggregate cost of $50,000. This building is 165x 100, with an arena 136x65. It is thoroughly modern in every respect and will contain 52 box stalls 8x12, with individual feed rooms and thoroughly

President Kiest is justly proud of his ability to fulfill his promise and supply this long felt want of the agricultural interest of Texas in the livestock exhibit department of the great State

This building is second to none as to appointments and is in thorough oing with all other departments and by ildings heretofore erected on the giands. It will be thrown open to visitors and exhibitors on the opening lay, October 14th, and all awards and judging of livestock will be done in the spacious arena.

or several years different large exhibitors, realizing and appreciating the great importance of thoroughly exhibiting their different lines, and looking to the comfort of their visitors, have constructed their own individual build-ings of concrete and this year it is the B. F. Avery & Sons' Plow Co., and the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Co., who are doing this. Each of these concerns are constructing handsome concrete and fireproof buildings, each 75x80 feet in dimensions, with rest rooms and every convenience for their friends and visi-tors and at a cost of $5000 each. Upon will have been expended by exhibitors alone for individual buildings on the ounds, over $30,000

All exhibitors at the State Fair of Texas have the same spirit of Presi-dent E. J. Kiest, Secretary Sydney Smith and the Board of Directors, viz: at there is nothing too good for their trons and friends.

another feature building being contructed by the Fair management this ear is that for the United States Na-al exhibit. The large steel Elks' arch which is 60x60, and was formerly lo-tated on the corner of Main and Akard streets, Dallas, has been removed to Fair Park and located on the large triangle just east of the Exposition building. This arch will be enclosed and devoted entirely to the use of Un-Sam's Naval exhibit. This exhibit ast year was miniature compared to he one that will be made this year, there will be six models of the various ypes of battleships ranging from the onster dreadnaught to the swift torbedo boat, a complete exhibit of all styles of guns, and electrical appliances, including a complete wireless outfit, by which communication will be made with different other stations over the country.

It will be a revelation to all the land lubbers of Texas and should be seen by all visitors.

PREMIUMS AND PURSES. That the State Fair of Texas will be rger and greater than ever before is a foregone conclusion judging by the anuncements made by President E. J. Kiest, and the veteran secretary, Captain Sydney Smith, and as shown in the handsome 210 page catalog and the many detail booklets which are being mailed to every one and in which are many new and interesting features.

From the 1911 Fair and Exposition the sum of $205,305 will be expended in premiums, permanent improvements and operation, as follows: Premiums, $27,305; race purses, $28,000; permanent improvements, $50,000; general repairs, $5,000; operation, $75,000; attractions, $20,000; making a total of $205,305.00. In addition to the above are the additional valuable premiums offered by various concerns over Texas for the Boys' and Girls' Hog Club of Texas, and for whom the Fair management has prepared special pens for the accommodation of their exhibits. While the Boys' and Girls' Hog Club movement was only started this year, it has aroused a great deal of enthuslasm over the entire state and keen competition is expected in all of the various classes provided for in the cat-

The Boys' Corn Clubs continue to add increased membership and at the last report there were 20,000 members in Texas. Tuesday, October 24th, has been designated by the Fair manage-ment, as Boys' Corn Clubs and Boys' and Girls' Hog Club day at the Fair and preparations are being made for a attendance of both Clubs. A speprogram is being prepared for their entertainment and nothing will be left undone for their pleasure. Secretaries of both clubs with handsome buttons and pennants for all of the members and of which every boy and girl in Texas is proud.
