SHOOTING SCRAP NEAR AMARILLO

R. B. MUTTER PUTS 14 BIRD SHOT INTO HURL MENEAR

Gives Bond of $1000 to Await Action of the Grand Jury—Menear is Not Bably Injured.

A shooting scrap occurred a week ago Sunday night in the northeast part of the country which just came to light last Thursday, as both parties were trying to keep it quiet. R. B. Mutter shot Hurl Menear twice with number 7 bird shot, about fourteen shot landed in his head, neck and arm. Sheriff Jennings went after Mutter as soon as he heard of the affair and Mutter is now under $1000 bond to await the action of the grand jury.

Sheriff Jennings visited Menear who was confined to his bed, but was unable to get any information on the subject.

Mutter's story of the affair is something like this: He and Menear had been quarrelling for several months. He says that Menear was drinking Sunday and at 11 o'clock that night came to his home to start something. He ordered Menear off the place and Menear pulled a pistol and fired although Mr. Mutter is almost certain that he did not fire at Mutter. Mutter stepped to the house for his shotgun and fired two shots at Menear. Seven or eight shot took effect in his face, three in hair, one in neck and three or four in left arm.

Menear was taken to a physician Monday but it was decided that the operation of removing the shot would be very painful and that they would do no harm by remaining in his body. He is not seriously hurt and will soon recover all the effects.

Mr. Mutter is a well respected man in that portion of the country and many friends signed his bond. He came from Virginia six years ago.

WILL HAVE EXHIBIT AT PANHANDLE FAIR

FARMERS URGED TO BRING SAMPLES TO KEISER'S OFFICE.

Exhibit Will Be Taken to Amarillo Saturday—Fair Promoters are Here Saturday.

Tom Turner and Dr. Cunningham of Amarillo were in the city Saturday to urge Randall county to send an exhibit to the Panhandle State Fair which begins in Amarillo next Monday. It was decided to send an exhibit and every person in the county who have good samples are urged to bring them to C. O. Keiser's office by Saturday morning so that they can be arranged and taken to Amarillo that afternoon.

Both Dr. Cunningham and Mr. Turner spoke enthusiastically regarding the fair. Dr. Cunningham says that he has lived here 23 years and that this is by far the driest year of them all. He urges that the fair will be the proper place of cooperative meeting of the people of the Plains country and that all will derive benefits from such meeting. Mr. Turner says that in spite of the drought the fair will be much better this fall than the first few fairs held in Dallas. The attractions are going to be of especial interest.

W. J. Flesher was chosen chairman of the meeting and C. W. Warwick secretary. Mr. Flesher appointed the following committee to procure the exhibit and send to the fair: C. O. Keiser, chairman, S. B. Lofton, R. B. Cousins, J. C. Black, C. W. Warwick.

Mr. Keiser asks that all the people of the country cooperate with the committee and tell them where good samples can be found and to bring all the samples possible to his office by Saturday morning.

J. E. Rogers was appointed to especially look after the fruit and vegetable division.

RAIN SOAKS THE GROUND FINE

TWO AND ONE-EIGHTH INCHES FALL IN THREE DAYS.

Best Season in the Ground for Several Years—All of Slow Rain is Absorbed.

The Plains country is in the best condition of any fall for years. For three days, beginning Thursday morning, a slow rain fell, every particle of which was absorbed by the thirsty ground.

One inch fell Friday night and the other at intervals throughout the three days. The weather for the past week has been uniformly cool, but no frost has yet appeared. Indications are for warmer weather and time yet to develop the late crops.

Jno. A. Wallace reports that during last September the rains amounted to as much as this year but they came hard and dashing and did the ground little good. The rains so far this fall have all been slow and steady and practically every particle has been absorbed. A few of the lakes are getting a little water in them.

The late crops are reviving wonderfully and if frost stays off for a few more weeks there will be considerable feed crop yet made.

Wheat sowing is going on rapidly in all parts of the country. The wheat that was sown before the rains is coming up and will make some mighty good pasture during the winter.

The farmers are taking heart and are firmly of the opinion that 1914 will be a normal year and the usual big crop will be the result.

Mrs. W. M. Gamble and son, C. W., of Benton, Tenn., are visiting the sons and brothers, J. D., O. N. and Henry.

PRIZE MONEY NOT BE GIVEN

RANDALL-POTTER KAFFIR CLUB CONTINUED ANOTHER YEAR

Unfavorable Conditions Over Two Counties so that Only Few Stick to Contest.

The following letter from H. M. Bainer to the members of the Randall-Potter Boys and Girls Kaffir club is self-explanatory. The prize money for this year will be withheld until next year on account of the poor crops this year causing so many to drop out.

At a meeting held yesterday in the office of Mr. J. L. Summers, Trustee, in Amarillo, Texas, it was determined that moneys provided for Club prizes this year will not be awarded, but held for award to contestants next year.

At this meeting it was discovered that less than ten per cent of the original contestants are now in the contest, the remaining ninety per cent having dropped out on account of unfavorable weather conditions, having nothing to offer. It was further shown that the remaining ten per cent have little if anything upon which to claim a prize. This being true, it was decided to continue the work in Potter and Randall counties, holding the moneys over under similar rules and regulations as those governing the work this year.

I desire to commend you for the worthy efforts you have put forth during the season just closed, for I realize that you as well as your elders have failed not on account of your lack of energies and application of dependable methods, but rather by reason of unsatisfactory weather conditions. I invite you to re-enter the contest for the next year, and express the hope for you that success may crown your efforts. I would suggest that where found possible, you use the same acre for the next crop, as was planted this season. The work on the land this year will go far towards making your crop next year.

I would suggest that you list or break your ground this fall or winter. If you have lost your Club Book containing rules, regulations and instructions, I will send you another, on request.

Please write me as soon as possible, if you are going to re-enter the contest for the year 1914.

Yours very truly,
H. M. BAINER,
Director of Club.

Ceta Items.

Well we are having sunshine again after a weeks cloudy weather, from two too three inches of rain fell last week and all soaked in the ground making it fine for wheat sowing, the wheat that is up is looking fine.

Earl Wesley has rented the Dobbs place now occupied by Mr. Darnell, who will move soon.

Chas. Sutton and H. Miller took a load of hogs to Tulia last week.

Tennis Tournament Postponed.

On account of the rains the tennis tournament was postponed indefinitely. Meanwhile the Canyon teams will be kept at work, getting into better trim for the tournament.

Theitisso.

Jake H. Harrison.

Theitisso, a crass combine
That has a magic leaning,
Men use without a second thought
Of all its tragic moaning,
Or what pronouncing it may bring
Of ill, to some poor sinner,
Who in the heated race of life
Essays to be a winner.

It may be founded on the truth,
Its justice be conceded,
But be it true, or be it false,
Its words are mostly heeded;
For men are prone to give it faith
Without dissenting mutter,
And catch from Slander's poison lips
Each word that she may utter.

They roll upon a willing tongue,
As morsels rich and mellow,
Theitisso that puts a mark
Upon some erring fellow;
And common justice seldom takes
The fair and honest trouble
To puncture, as it often should,
Theitissoic bubble.

Theitisso may well be true
And sinful yet to mention,
For men to have a kindly heart
Must have a good intention;
And Charity can never call
The scandal monger brother,
For while the world remains a world
One cannot love the other.

Theitisso is scandal mad
As well as scandal greedy,
In circulating scandal, too,
It is both deft and speedy;
And he who listens to its tale
And lets it sway his reason,
Must harbor discord, feud and hate
Both in and out of season.

Its cabalistic strength is great
If once it has an inning,
But you can conquer it with ease
If firm in the beginning;
Therefore when it begins to prate
Prevent its growing stronger,
By plainly telling it that you
Are not a scandal monger.

Red Mangle Beets.

H. C. Dolcator brought to the News office Monday a long Red Mangle beet which is sure a whopper. It is 30 inches long and weighs 22 1/4 pounds. It was raised without irrigation and cultivated but once. The amount of moisture it received was very small. These beets are used for cattle feed and are said to be almost as good as silage. This beet together with other with other samples Mr.
Dolcator has will be sent to the Panhandle State Fair.

Mr. Dolcator says that 1913 has taught great lessons to the farmers. In the first place, those who have tried to farm the whole county have learned that intensive cultivation must take the place of this extensive system. Second, it will bring many irrigation wells to the county, especially where the farmer has extremely shallow water as has Mr. Dolcator. He is making preparations to put in a plant at once.

Tulja Herald—From the ex-

there seems to be a new and growing industry in the raising of skunks for the pelts in many sections of Texas. This new spirit of industry has struck here and our townsman, W. L.
Laroe, is preparing to engage in it. He has a small farm near where he has fenced off five acres where he proposes to raise skunks. He is advertising for certain kinds of these animals, and is offering what appears to be a good price for them. He wants all he can get, and should he realize his expectations, this five acres of skunk farm will be the best result getter of any land we know of. He reasons that if he can secure four or five hundred breeding skunks the pelts from the increase will bring in from 5 to 6 thousand dollars annually. He tells us that he will try to breed the increase to solid black as that color brings the highest price. The Herald will watch this new industry with a degree of interest and see what it will amount to.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. ONCE CALLED AN ARMORY

Severe, Rectangular Building at Sixth and B Streets, Occupied by Fisheries Bureau.

That severe, rectangular building with the old-fashioned roof standing at the corner of Sixth and B streets southwest, which a relatively small number of persons still call the armory, but which is generally called the fish commission building and which for a long time has been occupied by the bureau of fisheries, actually was an armory. Looking at it closely, a man will probably note that the lines follow rather faithfully those of orthodox military architecture despite a number of changes that have been made in the building. It is a grim-looking structure of brick, red now, but it has been other colors. It is three windows wide on the east front, and there is a good width of wall outside the first and third windows. On the ground floor is a wide door. On the north side the building is seven windows wide, and on the ground floor are three wide double doors. Inside are many things of interest connected with the fisheries industry of the world in general and of the United States in particular, and the aquarium is one of the show places of the capital. But the old armory in Army square comes right fully by its title.

Back in 1888 the fact that the fish commission building was generally called by old residents "the armory," suggested to General Ordway, then in command of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, that it might be profitable to examine into the history of the building. He found that it was erected under a provision of the sundry civil appropriation act of 1855 "For the care and preservation of the ordnance, arms and accoutrements of the United States required for the use of the volunteers and militia of the District of Columbia, the building to be used by the volunteers and militia of the District of Columbia under such regulations as may be prescribed by the president." "For several years it was occupied by the District of Columbia National Guard battalion. There is a record that at the first inauguration of President Lincoln the United States engineer battalion from Willets Point was quartered there.

IT WAS REAL MAN'S FACE

Picture Two Visitors to the National Museum Saw, but Could Not Place.

At the National museum there is the picture of a man.

The face is that of an American in that it is a composite of the types that go to the making of an American. The body is covered with a nondescript blue garment, but it can no more rob the face of its world nationality than Greenough's toga can change George Washington into a senator of old Rome.

Two men were standing before the picture, and this is what they were saying between them:

"Looks like a man I came across once—when I was building that bridge in Canada. I woke up one night with a crazy notion that my figures were wrong, and it put me in such a cold sweat that I jumped out of bed and took the train for Montreal for expert help. Well, sir, I was in such a panic that a man in the next seat saw something was wrong and somehow got it out of me. And it didn't take him ten minutes to show me I was right. Jove! I'll never forget that man as long as I live—looks enough like him to be his own portrait."

"Yes, it's an intellectual face, but too modern for traditional conceptions. It lacks the spiritual sweetness of—"

"That's what I like about it. It's a man's face."

The two went away and a woman behind got close enough to the painting to read its gilt title:

"Christ before Pilate."

OLD CORNER STONE FOUND

Marked Southern Boundary of District of Columbia—Ceremonies Held 1719.

A "Report on the Finding of the Southern Cornerstone of the District of Columbia" was read by Fred E. Woodward before the Columbia Historical society at the Washington club the other night, in which the speaker described how through his efforts this landmark, which is located at Jones Point lighthouse below Alexandria, Va., was uncovered to the light of day for the first time since 1861.

Mr. Woodward read an account from an old Boston newspaper of the ceremonies attending the erection of this southern cornerstone of the District, which took place April 15, 1791, when David Carroll and David Stewart were commissioners. In 1855, continued the speaker, the government erected a lighthouse at Jones Point, and in 1861 a retaining seawall was built, hiding the stone from view.

A few years ago the wooden steps leading to the lighthouse were washed away, bringing to light the corner stone, which had been hidden under the front gateway under the front steps. In June, 1912, Lieut. Col. Langley, of the United States engineer corps, broke an opening into the retaining wall, where the corner stone was imbedded and constructed a concrete niche around the landmark, thus protecting it from damage. Mr. Woodward recommended that the United States government purchase the land upon which the corner stone is located and that a bronze tablet or an inscription mark the historic spot.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST ABOUT IT.

There is a New Remedy that Takes the Place of Calomel. Recommended and Guaranteed by the Druggists.

The City Pharmacy drug store never sold a remedy that gave more complete satisfaction than Dodson's Liver Tone—a mild vegetable remedy for constipation, sour stomach and lazy liver.

There is hardly an issue of the magazines and newspapers in which the reader does not find articles telling how to raise and protect the girl. But never a word about the boy. In other words, it may be inferred that the boy is expected to run loose on the streets where he hears the vilest and most vicious language and learns all the devilment there is going on, while his sister is kept at home under parental supervision and carefully shielded from all the rebuffs of life and her ears out of range of the vile language which certainly would corrupt. That boy may or may not go straight to the devil, just as he chooses, and if he goes nine chances out of ten he will take some innocent girl with him. Is it any wonder that girls go wrong? Will people ever learn that boys can go wrong just the same as girls? And will they learn that the question of keeping girls straight can be solved only by keeping the boys straight and by teaching them the way of right living rather than setting them free to grow up as they choose? There will be no more articles on "the girl that went wrong" after the fundamental principals of right and honest living is instilled into the boys life.

It looks like Governor Colquitt would find running good when he starts for the senate—in fact he will just keep on running without ever reaching the goal. His performance of the past few weeks has lost him thousands of friends.

Small Advertisers Have Good Chances

By HOLLAND.

SOME merchants who are doing business in a small way argue that it will not pay them to advertise because they cannot afford to buy the space that large advertisers use. They forget that very often the large advertiser began buying space in a small way and the aid the advertising did him enabled him to increase his business and his advertising appropriation at the same time.

It would be just as reasonable to argue that it would not pay to start a small store because the merchant could not afford the big building that the big merchant occupies. Everything is relative. The small business needs only a small store and only a small advertisement. But a business can be made profitable in limited quarters, and successful advertising can be done without using pages or half pages.

The editor of this paper knows a good deal about advertising. His information and advice are yours for the asking. He is interested in making your advertising pay, and the fact that the advertisement is small does not count. Better consult him and see if you can't hit on a plan that will be mutually profitable.

At last a real genuine man, a whole man in every respect, is in the race for governor—Will H. Mayes. He is not a man swelled up with prejudices, egotistical and pompous ideals of his own inestimable qualifications as the other candidates now in the field, but is a common every day plain man with common every day horse sense and brains enough to put that every day horse sense into active and actual service for the state. He is a prohibitionist but he doesn't let the prohibition question overshadow every other question as does W. P. Lane and W. A. Hanger, the former a fanatical pro and the latter an insane anti. Chester H. Terrill, the other man in the race, is a strong anti but has been an excellent public official and will stand next to Mayes in number of votes. At any rate Mayes will be elected and Randall county should give him a solid vote. He is a man that can be trusted and has every qualification for a progressive and efficient governor. Let's line Randall county up for Mayes.

Conditions in Randall county may not be just as you would like to see them, but it is a safe bet that we are no worse off than a large per cent of the counties of Texas and for that matter of counties of any state in the whole southwest. The drouth has been severe all over the United States this year. Practically no section has escaped. Don't get discouraged if you think the Plains country is strictly up against it. There are many places much worse off. And moreover, there will be a bumper crop next year and you will forget about the misfortunes of this year.

The Normal, the Normal training school and the Canyon public schools are all in session, but there are still a number of boys and girls running the streets of Canyon who ought to be in one of these schools. The parents of these boys and girls cannot afford to let them run astray this way. The state and community cannot afford it. All the boys and girls must be educated if the next generation is to be the liberty loving and law abiding citizens as we may rightfully expect.

That Sulzer investigation don't smell very good—for Sulzer.

All together now for Mayes, he's the man.

THE SPIRIT THAT BUILDS.

Already accorded place among the best weekly newspapers of the Panhandle, the State of Texas, and the Southwest, The Randall County News scored a new and enviable record this week by issuing a Panhandle State Fair edition of sixteen pages. This issue was filled with interesting matter relative to the approaching Fair and live local news, embellished with handsome illustrations, and opulent with advertisements.

The edition was something more than a journalistic achievement. It evidenced anew the liberal and constructive spirit which characterizes the press of the Texas Panhandle, strongly manifesting the co-operative impulse which will build a teeming empire here in the new and awakening west.

In this work of building, the editors of the Panhandle have a shaping part. They wield, and will continue to wield, a potential influence for larger development.

The spirit manifested by Editor Warwick of the Randall County News is the spirit that makes great achievement possible. Upon such as he and the other liberal editors of this section depend in great measure fulfillment of the high destiny of this land of waiting resources.

The News heartily congratulates Editor Warwick upon an edition which reflects credit upon its makers and upon the press of Texas.—Amarillo Daily News.

It is a safe bet that the editors who are eternally preaching to the farmers about waste on the farm, especially the waste of letting machinery stand in the open, do not cover their typewriters at night, wash up their job presses at night or more than half oil their machinery.

Yes, we believe that the drouth is broken. In fact, the thing is completely smashed until there is little or nothing left of it. The ground is thoroughly soaked to a great depth so that the farmers can now get ready for a bumper crop next year.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Direct Benefits of Advertising.

(By W. Holt Harris, Chairman Mercantile Committee, Commercial Secretaries Association.)

There are three elements that receive the direct benefits of newspaper advertising, viz: the advertiser, the paper and the reader.

The advertiser, by the proper distribution of printers ink, places his business before the purchasing public. The advertisement, if properly written and displayed, secures attention, arouses interest and promotes desire. The desire develops into demand and is eventually converted into sales. The sale is the merchants ultimate proclivity.

The newspaper is the only element entering into the transaction that performs a direct service, and it is likewise the only component directly compensated for the service rendered.

The reader, like the advertiser receives his remuneration in the final transaction, which is conducted over the counter.

REMINGTON UMC

ARROW SHOT SHELLS

SPEED—SPEED—and again, SPEED

YOUR object in shooting is to get your bird with the center of your lead. Of course! Then shoot these Steel Lined Speed Shells.

They are the fastest shells in the market. Their speed is demonstrated beyond question by the one sure test in all ballistic matters—the Electric Chronograph. Then, too, there is the experience of thousands of seasoned gunners who have been shooting the Remington-UMC Steel Lined Shells ever since they came out.

The steel lining is the thing. It grips the powder—holds it in compression—puts all the drive of the explosion behind the shot.

Your load travels quicker—you shorten up your lead. You cut down the guess work on lead and angles—you get more birds.

Culpurnia

A Story of Ancient Rome

Shortly before the breaking down of the Roman empire there was a class of small farmers who were being eaten up by large landholders. This class, called Curiales, had formerly been one of the governing elements of Rome and was considered very honorable. But becoming impoverished they were constantly selling out to or coming under the protection of those persons who held thousands of acres where they held but a few.

There was in one of the Roman provinces a family, the Fabii, who had accumulated a very large landed estate. Lying at the foot of a hill on which was the castle of Lucius Fabius, lived one of the Curiales, Sidonius, whose affairs were getting into very bad shape. Sidonius was an old man and had but one child, a daughter, Culpurnia. One day her father called her into the atrium or living room of their dwelling and said to her:

"My daughter, we must sell our farm. Like so many of our class, I have found it impossible to keep my head financially above water. In a few days I, being a tax collector, must return to the government the taxes levied upon my district and am required to fill from my own purse any deficiency that the people cannot pay. Go to the castle and tell Fabius that I am ready to accept the sum he has offered me for my property. This will enable me to make up the deficiency."

"But, father, what shall become of us?"

"I see nothing for us but to gradually sink into slavery, as has been done by so many of our class."

Culpurnia could only obey her father's order. Passing over the ground between her father's farm and the hill on which stood the castle, she was starting up the incline when she met a young man coming down. He saluted her and asked her where she was going. She told him that she was going to the castle to see Fabius to tell him that her father must make up a deficiency in the taxes he was unable to collect and would sell his farm for the purpose.

"I have just come from the castle," said the young man, "and Fabius is not there. Return to your home and go again tomorrow, when you will see him."

So Culpurnia turned back, and the youth walked beside her. He told her that Fabius was a very grasping man and would make very hard terms with her father, to which she replied that the terms would make no difference, for her father would be obliged to sell her into slavery and was himself old and broken in health, so that he had at most but a few years to live.

When they reached a point where the roads parted the young man took leave of the girl, expressing his sorrow at her misfortunes. Culpurnia went home and told her father why she had returned without going to the castle.

The next morning the young man whom Culpurnia had met came to the farmhouse.

"How much," he asked, "is the deficiency in the taxes your father must return to the government?"

"Twenty thousand sesterces," replied the girl.

The young man turned a wallet upside down over the table and dropped a heap of coins.

"Count from this enough to discharge the debt and if there is anything over keep it till I return."

And so the sale of the farm and Culpurnia into slavery was avoided at the time. The young man who had furnished the money to pay the taxes came occasionally to the house and told Culpurnia that when they needed more money to let him know and on no account to go to Fabius, who would take their farm and send them out into slavery.

There was no courtship among the Romans, marriage being arranged by parents. Betrothed persons did not even usually see each other till they came together to be married. One day an uncle of Culpurnia came to the farm and, after an interview with her father, it was announced to Culpurnia that a marriage had been arranged for her. This lifted a burden from her shoulders, but cast her into gloom, because she had come to love the young man who had loaned the money for the taxes. All she was told of him she was to marry was that he had some means, belonged to her own class and was not much older than herself. His name was Marcellus.

When the day for the betrothal came round a chariot stopped at the farm, and the groom came into the house attended by a large retinue. As he entered the room where his bride awaited him dressed in wedding costume she started a deep blush came upon her cheek, and her eyes lighted with pleasure. In Marcellus she recognized the young man who had loaned the money.

After the betrothal ceremony came the preparations for the wedding, and after the two were made man and wife Marcellus took his spouse to his own home. Culpurnia was surprised at their taking the road to the Fabian castle, and when they began to ascend the hill she asked where they went.

"To the home recently occupied by my father, who till his death was Lucius Fabius. I am Marcellus Fabius, his son and heir. From the moment I first saw you I resolved that instead of your being sold into slavery you should be my wife."
