

FARMERS AFTER BETTER PRICES

Will Either Pool Wheat or Lease Mill to be Operated on Small Margin—Meeting Again Saturday.

The farmers meeting Saturday at the court house was well attended and the talks were highly instructive and inspirational. That the farmers are going to work together for a better price for their grain is an assured fact. The sense of the meeting was that the farmers should own and operate the elevator. No attempt will be made to erect this building to handle the present wheat crop, but it is planned to begin working on a building in time to handle next year's crop.

For the present crop one of two plans will be adopted: A committee of W. D. Morrel, H. C. Roffey and A. B. Haynes was appointed to see about leasing the Eagle mill for the present crop. This committee will report at a meeting to be held on Saturday of this week. Second, R. A. Campbell was appointed to get a line on the wheat crop and interest the farmers in listing their wheat with him in order that he may get in touch with all big grain buyers, selling all of the grain when a certain price is quoted. If the first plan of leasing the mill is found to be unadvisable, Mr. Campbell will make special efforts to list all of the wheat in the Canyon territory. If the first plan is accepted and the mill leased, some good man will be placed in charge to buy the wheat on small enough margin to cover the expense of handling and allow for his salary.

At three o'clock next Saturday afternoon will be another meeting of the farmers, and the officials trust that all will be present to discuss the plans as so far evolved.

Rogers Says Wheat Fine.

Happy, Texas, July 6, 1915.
Mr. C. W. Warwick,
Canyon, Texas.
My Dear Sir,

I have been over the country. The wheat is nearly all cut and is better than we thought it would be. The row crop is fine. I have 400 acres of 20-bushel wheat on my farm five miles east of Happy. The wheat buyers here are talking 80 cent wheat so I have decided to build granaries on my farms and hold the wheat for better prices, which I think are sure to come soon. The threshing will start here next week.

This is my last week in the store. Mr. White will take my place. We have gotten on nicely in closing out the business of the Happy Hdw. Co. and I don't think anyone will be very badly hurt when the business is finally closed out.

I have traded my Pratt auto to Mr. Beasley for 30 acres of wheat, so you see no one should be without a car—just plant 30 acres of wheat and ride out of your troubles.

Yours truly,
J. E. Rogers.

Dr. Robinson Coming.

Dr. E. E. Robinson will preach Sunday morning and evening at the Methodist church. Sunday night his sermon will be directed to the young people. There will be special music at both services.

Willingham Trial Monday.

G. W. Willingham was arrested and placed under a $1000 bond Thursday for the beating up of Walter Johnson as reported in the News last week. Mr. Willingham states that the public was misinformed regarding the facts in the case. He states that he was not near Mr. Johnson's wheat field; that he was the only man to touch Mr. Johnson; that he used only his fists in beating him up and that Mr. Johnson was the aggressor. The trial has been set for next Monday in the county court.

Big House from Hereford.

The 25 room house which G. W. Willingham recently bought in Hereford arrived in the city Thursday and is being placed by the house movers. Mr. Willingham states that he will remove some of the partitions, making about 19 large rooms, will paper and paint the house and remodel it into a first class rooming house.

Big Lettuce Head.

Mrs. E. W. Neece brought to the News office Saturday some mighty fine lettuce which she had raised at her home west of the city. One head weighed a pound and ten ounces, which is one of the biggest ever brought to the News office. The quality was fine.

BIG PICNIC HELD MONDAY AT CLUB

Students, Faculty and Canyon Citizens Enjoy Great Day on the Pale Duro Canyon Monday.

There were more than six hundred people gathered Monday at the Canyon Club grounds to enjoy the Fourth of July picnic. No particular program was planned for the day. All left the city about nine o'clock and for several hours, the people wandered along the creek and enjoyed the pleasantness of the club grounds.

At noon a large picnic dinner was served. The principal part of the meal was furnished by the faculty and the business men of Canyon. Supplementary lunches were taken by practically all the people.

It was the first time many of the students had caught a glimpse of the canyons, and while the scenery at this point is not of such magnitude as can be seen at other places, all were highly pleased to spend the day in witnessing this marvel of nature.

CANYON WINS OVER NEWTON 11-6 SCORE

Locals Put up Fine Exhibition—Disorganized Team, But Easily Out-Classed Visitors.

The Canyon team defeated the Newton, Kansas, Santa Fe team Tuesday on the local grounds by a score of 11 to 6. The locals had two new men in the line up, but were not handicapped in the least by the disorganization. Campbell and Hicks were out of town. Ben Monning of Amarillo played a good game at second, while Vince Reeves, one of the old timers, starred at first, getting three hits four times up. Word played in the field, a new position for him. The game was called in the middle of the seventh inning in order that the visitors might catch the train home.

Prichard was prime in the box. Eight hits were garnered from him while he struck out 9 and hit two with ball. The locals got 11 hits, two of which were home runs. In the 5th Black hit a home run when the bases were full. One of the local players touched him between 3rd and home, thus putting him out and what would have been another score was not counted. Hud Prichard came to bat after him and landed on another home run.

Canyon has won every game this season, playing five in all. The following were the scores made:

Goodnight	13 to 0
Tulia	18 to 2
Amarillo	15 to 1
Amarillo	16 to 9
Newton	11 to 6
Total	76 to 18

During the five games, the locals have made 146 hits, while their opponents garnered but 36.

The Canyon team is looking for games with would-be champions.

The Leader store will change its name, having dissolved the corporation under which it has been running since its organization. The firm name in the future will be Redfeard & Co.

INSPECTION MADE FOR FIRE RATE

Possibility of Either Higher or Lower Rate—Just as People Want It—Cleaning up Necessary.

Do you want your insurance rate raised 5 cents? Certainly not.

Well, will you help lower the rate 5 cents? Of course.

The fire rate of Canyon hangs in the balances and will go just the way people want it to go.

A change of 5 cents either way will make hundreds of dollars difference to the people of Canyon.

T. C. Thompson is fire marshal of Canyon. He has been instructed by the state department to make an inspection of the city, especially of the business section. If he finds that combustible materials are allowed to accumulate against the sides of the business houses the rate will be raised 5 cents.

If he finds that the business men do not pile old boxes against the buildings, keep the grass cut close to the buildings, do not allow rubbish to accumulate under buildings that are not set on foundations, the city will get a 5 cent reduction in the fire rate.

This is certainly worth looking after. Mr. Thompson must make an inspection this week. Let every person in town, especially the business section, clean up today.

Capacity of Pipes.

C. M. Ackerman, manager of the city water works, offers the following table to show how much water different size mains will run in an hour. By consulting the table you may see how easy it is to waste water:

size of pipe	gallons
One-eighth	112
One-fourth	441
Three-eighth	988
One-half	1765
Five-eighths	2700
Three-fourths	4000
One inch	7070
One and one-fourth	11210
One and one-half	15990
One and three-fourths	21700

NORMAL FACULTY ELECTION HELD

Miss Brown Added to Faculty—Several Changes in the Training School—Heating Plans Approved.

Pres. R. B. Cousins returned Saturday from the meeting of the board of regents at Austin. The annual business session was held, which consisted of reports from the four Normal presidents and the election of the faculty for each school.

Mr. Cousins states that Mary Morgan Brown was elected for the head of the Expression and Public Speaking department. She was recently selected for this position as stated in the News.

Cleveland Baker was added to the training school faculty. He was principal of the high school during the past year.

Miss Hibbits and Miss Harrison of the training school were given a leave of absence for the coming year and will attend school at Peabody. Miss Billingsby of Amarillo and Miss Warden of Bay City will take their positions for the year.

Miss Pickerill has resigned and the position will be filled by Miss Pauline Wright.

The board approved the plans of the heating plant and will meet again July 19th at which time bids will be opened and the contract let to build this plant and to complete the plumbing and lighting of the new building.

Team Backs into Creek.

J. A. Harbison came very near losing his fine team of large sorrel horses at the club grounds Monday during the picnic. One of his drivers had taken out a load of people. Another Harbison team was taking a load of provisions and went around by the Myers' home. Mr. Harbison sent for the big team to come and help pull the provision wagon across the creek. Instead of unbitching, the driver started with the wagon. A large number of young people at once jumped on the wagon to ride along the creek, the road at this point being narrow and dangerous as the banks of the creek are steep. On pulling up a rise the driver cautioned the people to get off the wagon, but few obeyed. The team stuck, and starting to back, the wagon and team went over the bank, all of the people managing to jump to safety. Men at once jumped in after the team and succeeded in cutting them loose from the harness. The water was deep and it was a miracle that the team of some of the men were not drowned.

Three-Eighths Inch Rain.

Late Saturday night a rain of three-eighths of an inch fell in Canyon community. The showers of the past few weeks have not materially delayed the progress of the harvest and have greatly benefitted the row crops. The harvest has progressed fine. Most of the farmers are nearly through cutting and threshing is expected to begin within a very short time. The wheat generally will turn out better than was anticipated before the harvest begun. A grain buyer was in this vicinity last week and stated that the quality was better here than he had seen in many other places he had visited.

Some Sound Caused Me to Wheel About.

She looked up again, dashing her hand across her eyes.

"I must be far more French than Indian to become so weak," she explained, ashamed of the emotion. "It is the memory of him lying yonder, monsieur, with no word—no last word—for me. So it was he came to America, but they would not let him rest in either Quebec or Montreal. They drove him forth into the woods, into the camps of Indians. He told me once about those days; of how he traversed the black waters of the Ottawa and met hardships on the great lakes, his companions voyageurs and couriers des bois, his only means of support the furs he could send back to Montreal. But he might not venture there himself, but was doomed forever to a life beyond civilization. His associations would have brutalized him, made him a fit denizen of those wilds, turned him also into a savage, but for one thing—he was a fervent Catholic. It was this which kept him ever gentle, sweet and strong. He possessed the passion to save souls; he became an evangel to the Indians among whom he lived. He was at Mackinac and Green Bay; he told the Potawatomies of Christ, but they cast him out; he traveled to the villages of the Illinois, but the Jesuits were already there, and gave him no welcome. At last he found a home with the Wyandots. At first the task was not easy, for they were a savage people. They had tortured Jesuit priests to the stake, and flogged the Recollets who came also. But my father won their confidence; he went forth with them to battle; he went with them against their enemies, and so they finally listened to what he said. He became Wa-pa-tee-tah, the white chief, and taught them of Christ Jesus. They became Christians because they were proud of him. He accomplished what the priests could not do, and kept the tribe at peace with the whites. The English came, and hated him, for he would not enter into their schemes, nor permit his people to. Only once did he lead them to war, against your General Clark at Vincennes.

"Exiled and lonely, abandoning all hope of ever returning to France, or even civilization, my father finally, to increase his influence with the tribe, took for a wife a woman of the Wyandots. Although I was born of that union, yet I never saw my mother, who died when I was but a babe. I am told she was of fair complexion, but jet black hair and eyes, the daughter of a French trader and Indian mother, able to read and write. My father loved her, and taught her much that he had learned in early life. When she died he seemed to change, to lose interest in the past, to cease to dream longer of Europe. He became more fully a Wyandot. I was brought up in the camps of the tribe, living in their wigwams, sharing in their prosperity and adversity. I played with Indian children, and was cared for by Indian women. I must have been ten years old, monsieur, before I first realized that I was mainly of white blood, of another race. Yet when this knowledge came it brought with it sudden ambition."

Her eyes were upon the fire now, and her voice had lost its harshness. "I remember when I went to my father—it was in a camp on the shores of the great lake—and made him tell me more of his own life and the life of my mother. What he said opened before me a fairland. I began to dream and hope. He taught me the French tongue, and all the scraps of learning his memory retained. He sent to Quebec for books, and we studied them together. When I was sixteen he sent me to Montreal, to the convent of the Ursulines, and I was there three years. Then—the Indian blood conquered, and I came back. The woods called me, and my father; besides, she made the sign of the cross, 'God called me to the work I had to do.'"

"An Indian missionary?"
"To my own people. No! I was of no order—what was that?"
She arose to her feet listening.

CHAPTER IX.

The Return of Brady.
There was utter silence, except for the heavy breathing of the soldier still sound asleep on the bench. I could distinguish no noise without.
"It was like a cry, faint from a distance," she said, at last, "but I hear nothing now. Did you catch it, monsieur?"

"I heard only your voice."
"Then I may have been deceived, although I have the ears of an Indian." Some sound caused me to wheel about, and I faced Brady, who had just stepped within and closed the door. His gray eyes surveyed us in one swift glance, settling inquiringly on the girl, who had arisen to her feet. Schultz awakened, sat up on the bench, blinking sleepily.
"Brady?"
"Of course; and who have you here, Monsieur Hayward? A woman surely, by dress Indian, and by face white."
"This is Mamsdotelle D'Auvray," I replied, not liking his manner of speech. "The daughter of the man we found here dead."
"She was not in the house when I left: Oh, I remember! The same perchance who was at Fort Harmar, the one you told me about, and who threatened to follow us with Simon Girty. Truly, she must have kept her word, for that black renegade is here."
"Here! Girty? You saw him?"
"Ay! In the Indian camp out yonder. Nor was that all I saw. There is something savage on foot, or I am no woodsman. I thought those devils might have other quarry, and come back here to lie quiet in hiding, but I am not so sure now that we are not the ones sought. This girl belongs with them."
She stepped past me, and stood erect facing him, the dark eyes frankly meeting the gray.
"Yet I am not one of them," she said slowly in her careful English. "I am Wyandot; those you saw are Miamis and Ojibwas, thieves and murderers. My people are Christian, and are not at war."
"You were with them; with Girty," he insisted, but in somewhat kinder tone. "You came here direct from their camp."
"Yes, Monsieur Brady, but unknown to them, even to Girty himself. They know me—the Miamis—and I have no fear even of their young men when painted for war." She spoke simply, clearly, as if she would conceal nothing. "This was my father's cabin. No one knew of it but me—not even Simon Girty. It was reported at Fort Harmar that he was dead; I did not know, yet it was that vague report which made me so eager to get back to my own people; made me reckless enough to risk the trail in company with the white renegade. I do not fear, but I despise him. Yesterday we came upon that raiding party, and must needs join them as they journeyed our way."
"What settlements had they attacked?"
"Those of the Moravians; they had scalps and booty."
"And their chief?"
"Black Horse, an outlaw of the Ojibwas; Girty knew him."
"You left them when?"
"I hardly know, monsieur," glancing toward me, "perhaps two hours ago; I had forgotten time. They kept no guard, for there had been no pursuit, nor any sign of danger. It was easy to slip away unseen. None among them knew of this place, not even Girty, and I came alone. There was nothing for me to fear; I knew the way, and I had faith I should find my father."
"This is the truth? The whole truth?"
"Oui, monsieur," and bowed her head.
"Then you know nothing of any new arrivals at the camp? There were some expected?"
"I am sure not," her aroused interest apparent in her voice. "Did others join them? Who were they, monsieur?"
Brady looked at her searchingly, leaning on his gun, the lines of his face stern. I could not forbear stepping forward beside her.

"By this medal pinned to his breast," I answered, holding it forth, "a French decoration."

She grasped it, bending her head so as to see better, and, for a moment, her slender form shook with an emotion she could not restrain. Involuntarily I rested a hand upon her shoulder, but the touch aroused her, and she stepped back, standing erect.

"The medal was his; he always wore it. But was that all? Was nothing else found?"

"There was a red army jacket flung across a box; but while we were eating later in the other room, someone stole in through the back door, and carried that away."

She raised her hands to her head, with a gesture of despair.

"I believe part of what you have told me," she confessed, her voice trembling. "It—it is in my heart to believe all, but—I cannot. You are not telling me the truth—not all the truth. You knew of this house; you came here deliberately, and—brought your men with you."

"I deny that, mademoiselle. We stumbled upon the place by accident."

"Oh, you drive me crazy with your denials!" she exclaimed passionately. "I will not listen longer. You are Joseph Hayward; you admit that yourself. No! do not talk to me, or attempt to stop me! I am going to my father."

I stood aside and let her pass, yet followed as she entered the door. The interior was black, except for a slight glow as from a dying fire showing dimly through the inner door. The dead dog lay in the middle of the floor and she stopped, staring at the grim shadow.

"I will bring the light," I said gently. "If you can permit me to pass."

As the yellow flame illumined the small room, her gaze deserted me, to rest once more upon the motionless figure lying near the wall, which Brady had mercifully covered with a blanket. She stood still, her hands clasped, her face like marble. Still holding the candle in one hand, I bent down, and drew back gently the edge of the blanket, exposing the dead man's face and white beard. In spite of his violent death the features were composed in no way distorted; he appeared like one lying there asleep. For a moment the girl never stirred, her attitude strained, her wide-open, tearless eyes on the peaceful upturned countenance. It seemed to me she had even ceased to breathe. Then she sank slowly upon her knees beside the body, her head close to the cold cheek.

"Father! Father!" she sobbed, as if in sudden realization of the truth. "It is you!"

Her hat had fallen to the floor, and her wealth of dark hair unloosed completely hid her face. She had forgotten my presence; everything but her grief. I drew back silently, stuck the sputtering candle on a box, where it burned bravely, and left the room. As I glanced back from the doorway, odd shadows flickered along the walls, and she still knelt there, a vague, indistinct figure. In the other room I found a chair, and sat down, staring dumbly into the smoldering fire.

CHAPTER VIII.

Mademoiselle's Story.

In the intense silence, the gloom of that room lit only by those smoldering embers, with Schultz sleeping undisturbed against the wall, my thought could not be divorced from the lonely girl sobbing above her head. Was she of dual nature, womanly and savage by turn, as the instincts of two races dominated her action? Yet this could never account for her distrust of me, her continued insistence upon having previously known me. Ay! and she meant it! There was no attempt at deceit, no acting in all this; her full faith in the charge was written upon her face, found echo upon her lips. She believed me to be another man, a pretended British officer, a traitor to her people, a scoundrelly spy. Yet she applied to him my name. That was the strangest part of it all.

Even as I started toward the open door the girl herself appeared, outlined against the candle flame. She had bound up the loosened strands of hair, and her dark eyes, dry and tearless, looked straight at me. I doubt if she saw Schultz at all as she came forward, stopping only as her hand finally touched the table. As I watched her, my earlier determination died within me; I could only wait in silence for her to speak.

"Joseph Hayward," she said slowly, the words rasping a little with her effort at self-control. "You confess to that name, do you not?"

"Yes, mademoiselle," I answered, my lips dry, my eyes riveted on her face.

"Yet you still claim not to be the same Joseph Hayward whom I have known?"

"I am an ensign in the army of the United States, and have never worn a red coat."

She smiled, but the smile was not altogether pleasant. Then she said slowly, "Very well; have it so then. I do not in the least believe you, but am going to speak exactly as if I did. I am a girl, alone, and must turn to you for help. It makes no difference now if I am of Indian blood and ancestry, I am here alone with you. I have got to trust you, rely upon your word, ask your aid. You claim to know nothing of me, or mine. That there may be no possible mistake I will tell you—tell you about him," she pointed backward, with her hand, her voice breaking, "and—about myself. You shall know all, and then you will dare pretend ignorance no longer. Listen, monsieur. The man lying dead yonder—murdered—was my father."

She leaned forward, resting her hands on the table, for support, the veins in her throat throbbing.

"I wish you would at least confess a knowledge of my tongue," she almost pleaded. "It is not in English I think, monsieur, and it is difficult for me to speak in that language."

"It would be a pleasure to confess anything that would aid you," I replied politely. "But I possess small understanding of French."

Her eyes darkened indignantly, and she made a forceful gesture indicative of her true thought of me.

"You continue to act your part well," she said scornfully, "even when there is no longer a necessity. Bah! I despise this play acting! It is unworthy a soldier. So you would have me tell over what you already know; you would make me stand here and suffer—"

"Mademoiselle," I interrupted swiftly. "I ask nothing. All I seek is the opportunity of service. There is no truth I am going to deny. To prove it I will say this—you have remained in my memory since the first hour we met. I desire your trust, your friendship; whatever you may tell me will be held sacred, inviolate. I will serve you though you speak no word, give no explanation. I beg the privilege."

I thought she would never speak, standing there before me in the dim light, swaying slightly, her bosom rising and falling with quick breathing. A great sympathy welled up in my heart, and all unconsciously, I extended my hands. She must have seen them, but she made no response, but the glitter of unshed tears was in her eyes.

"What is the use of our talking like this?" she said impetuously. "It is as though we exchanged compliments in Montreal. Instead we are in the wilderness, with danger all about us. You are what you are, monsieur, and I am a woman of the Wyandots. Let all else pass; I care nothing whether your thoughts of me be good or evil. I am what I am; what birth and conditions have made me. All I appeal to in you is whatever of manhood you may still retain. I tell you my story, because you swear you know it not; then listen, and you shall. No, do not move, but hear me; I would not do this without reason."

She glanced aside at Schultz, and then into the red embers of the fire, her eyes coming slowly back to rest on my face.

"I am Rene D'Auvray, and my father lies dead there in the next room. He was all I had in the world, yet I knew little enough of him. He spoke seldom of his past life even to me. Still, I have much reason to believe that in his younger days he was intimate at the French court. I know he was a soldier, an officer of the king's guard, decorated for bravery. He never told me why he was exiled to this land, buried in the far wilderness, made a companion of savages. I never asked, although my heart ached to do so, for he was not a man to be questioned lightly, and I early learned that the very thought brought him pain. But I know this, for I saw a letter once, a yellow, creased letter, which I think he purposely mislaid hoping I would see. He wanted me to know, yet had not the heart to tell me. It was from a French comrade in arms, and there was a crest on the paper; and a great name signed. I wept as I read, for the writer loved the man to whom he told the story, and the words came warm from his heart. Whatever else you may know of us, Monsieur Joseph Hayward, you have never known this. It was because of a lady my father loved, a relative of the king. For her sake he fought the Prince de Miller, and killed him in the royal garden. It was a fair fight, but the king saw it not so, for it disarranged his plans, and my father had to flee France to save his own life. Then was he proscribed, a price set upon his head."

She paused, and sank into a chair, bowing her face upon the table. I stood silent, unable to speak, the sound of her voice still in my ears as proscribed, a price set upon his head."

The Mustard Seed Is a Tiny Nut

The meat or kernel of this tiny nut is what has the real, rich mustard flavor—the shell is almost as flavorless as the hull of a walnut.

Then when the whole mustard seeds are ground up into mustard you get bulk to be sure, but the strength is weakened by a part of it being shell or the tasteless part of the seed. It is pure mustard, but it is not the best flavored mustard, nor the most economical to use.

White Swan Mustard is made by discarding the shells and grinding up into mustard only the kernels of the mustard seed—these little kernels look like rolled oats when ready for grinding. Mustard made so is all strength and flavor. You can very readily satisfy yourself as to whether or not a mustard is ground from kernels only or from whole seed. The former, poured dry into a glass tube shows a powder of a solid, pure canary yellow. The other kind will look speckly—the mass is full of little dark particles; these are the shells, the almost tasteless part of the mustard seed.

The purchase of White Swan Mustard is an assurance not only of getting pure mustard, but of getting mustard ground from the shell-less kernels of imported mustard seed—full strength and fine flavor.

Your grocer sells White Swan Mustard—ask for it.

The Three Blind Men and the Elephant

They were taken to "see" the elephant. The first one touched the trunk and said that the elephant was like a snake. The second one grasped a leg and said, "How like a tree!" The third passed his hand along the side of the huge beast and said, "Just like a wall." As is frequently the case, they didn't combine their knowledge.

Take three engineers and their lubricating problems. One has achieved perfect valve lubrication. Another has reduced wear and trouble on his guides. The third knows how to make gears last longer.

The combined knowledge of the three would increase the value of each one to himself, and to his employer. How can they exchange experiences?

By getting in touch with an organization which has worked out thousands of these lubricating problems. Such an organization is back of Texaco Lubricants. Unlimited experience in all parts of the country, plus the means for giving you the benefit of that experience, enables us to solve your particular lubricating problems.

On this basis we have built up an extensive, growing business in all classes of lubricants. The engineers who have benefited by our service cover the country, and embrace every industry—yours included.

A. & M. COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY DIVORCEMENT.

Pertinent Reasons Why Resolution 34 Should be Adopted at the Election on July 24th.

(By Col. R. T. Milner.) Each Democratic State Convention since 1910, both Republican Conventions in 1914, the Farmers' Congress, the Farmers' Union, the Cattlemen's Convention and the Bankers' Convention have adopted resolutions favoring an amendment separating the A. & M. College from the University.

The A. & M. College, the State University, the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, and all the other schools in Texas, are the property of the people.

All classes of our citizens are in favor of education. The adoption of resolution No. 34 will be the longest step yet taken toward the establishment of a wise program of higher education.

As long as the A. & M. College is a branch of the University, it will be considered a secondary school, its great work will be handicapped and its growth and expansion will be minimized.

Let the voters of Texas go to the polls on the 24th of July and vote for House joint resolution No. 34, which provides for the complete divorce of the A. & M. College from the State University.

Joint resolution No. 34 is to be voted on the 24th of July. It has been demanded for years by the different political conventions and by all industrial organizations.

Joint resolution No. 34 is nonpartisan and nonpolitical. It is an educational question and has the endorsement of all political parties.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 34. Elsewhere the Review is publishing House joint resolution No. 34, which is an amendment to the constitution to be voted on July 24 with five other amendments.

The Review believes the people are largely in favor of same. The prosperity if not the life of A. & M. depends upon the success of this resolution.—Athens Review.

The success of the Sackett resolution, the constitutional amendment divorcing the A. & M. College and the State University, to be voted upon on July 24, depends largely upon the people of Brazos County.

House joint resolution No. 34, separating the A. & M. College from the University, does not provide for bonds in any shape, but it is merely a measure which will establish for all time a come the independence of the college and fix its permanent home at College Station, its present site.

A CONFESSION

Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight.

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

O. Keiser of said Randall county is Plaintiff, and W. G. Mathieu, Arthur Ainsworth and J. P. Lomax, all alleged by plaintiff to be non-residents of Texas, are Defendants, and said petition alleging cause of action in TWO COUNTS which are in substance as follows, to-wit:

FIRST COUNT

That on or about January 1st 1914, plaintiff was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described tract of land in Randall county, Texas, claiming the same in fee simple, to-wit:

The west half of section No. 67, Block K-14, Certificate No. 279, T. T. R. R. Co., grantee, and containing 320 acres, more or less; that on the day and year aforesaid the defendants unlawfully entered upon said premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom, and unlawfully withheld from him the possession thereof to his damage Four thousand dollars; that the reasonable annual rental value of said land and premises is $100.00. That defendants are asserting some claim to said land under deeds or instruments in writing to be found of record in Vol. 16 on page 575; in Vol. 22 on page 81 and in Vol 23, page 360, Deed records of said Randall county, which said deeds are alleged to be a cloud on plaintiff's title. Under this count plaintiff prays judgment for the title and possession of said land, free and clear of all rights and claims of said defendants, or either of them, for cancellation of said deeds and removal of cloud; that writ of restitution issue, for his damages and for rents, for costs and general and special relief.

SECOND COUNT

Plaintiff alleges that about the 11th day of July, A.D. 1909, that he, by his deed in writing of that date, to be found of record in Vol. 16, page 575, Deed records of said Randall county, conveyed to defendant, W. G. Mathieu, the west one half of Survey No. 67 Block K-14, Certificate No. 279, T. T. R. R. Co., land, containing 320 acres more or less, situated in Randall county Texas, and that as part consideration therefor said W. G. Mathieu executed and delivered to plaintiff his two certain Vendor Lien notes, each for the principal sum of Two thousand dollars, payable to order of plaintiff and due one of said notes "on or before June 8th 1911, and the other note "on or before five years" after its date of making, December 8th 1908, both notes bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum from December 8th 1908, said interest payable annually; said notes also provide for seven per cent interest on all past due interest and for ten per cent additional as attorney's fees if placed in hands of an attorney for collection or collected by suit.

That about April 14, 1911; said W. G. Mathieu, by his deed which is of record in Vol. 22, page 81, deed records of said Randall county, conveyed said land to defendant Arthur Ainsworth, he, said Arthur Ainsworth assuming the payment of said two notes, as part consideration.

Plaintiff avers in his petition that by the execution and delivery to him of said two notes and said deeds, each and all of them expressing and acknowledging his lien upon said land for the payment of said notes, that defendant W. G. Mathieu and those holding under him, said defendants Ainsworth and Lomax, became bound to plaintiff and promised to pay him the amount of said notes that he, plaintiff is the owner of said notes; that said notes are past due and unpaid, except for certain interest payments shown on the reverse side of each note; that he retained an express lien on said land to secure the payment of said notes; that defendants, each and all of them, tho often requested, have failed and refused to pay said notes to plaintiff's damage the principal, interest, interest on interest and his attorney fees which at date of filing his petition amounted to about Four thousand dollars.

Plaintiff alleges that he has placed said notes in the hands of an attorney and has instructed him to bring this suit and has contracted to pay him therefore $100.00. Plaintiff prays for judgment for amount of said notes, interest, interest on interest and for his attorney fees; for the establishment of his Vendor's Lien on said land as against each and all said defendants; for the foreclosure of his lien on said land; for an order of sale and writ of possession, and for special and general relief, in law and in equity.

Our Perfumes Are Very Dainty

Perfumery is such a personal matter—that is, a matter of such personal taste—that it's hard to speak to you here about the kinds we carry. You must really come to our store and test them or see them for yourself. We can only say that they were bought by us with due regard for the average of personal selection.

A. & M. COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY DIVORCEMENT ELECTION JULY 24. BURGESS ARGUES FOR 34.

The following unanswerable reasons for the separation of the A. & M. College and the State University are from Hon. Richard F. Burgess, member of the Legislature from El Paso County. Mr. Burgess is a graduate of the University and is one of the strongest and most influential members of the University alumni: Hon. R. T. Milner.

Manager Executive Committee for the Promotion of Higher Education.

Bryan, Texas.

Dear Mr. Milner:

In my opinion, House Joint Resolution No. 34, commonly known as the Sackett Resolution, should be adopted at the election to be held on the fourth Saturday, which is the 24th day of July, for the reason that the people of Texas, both as evidenced by declarations in Democratic platform, by resolutions of representative bodies of farmers, and by successive votes in the State Legislature, have definitely expressed their desire that the University of the State and the Agricultural and Mechanical College should be separated from each other and each given a distinct and independent status.

The Sackett Resolution presents this issue to the people of Texas in the simplest form. No question of bond issue is involved in it, and no proposal of a permanent tax levy. The division of the permanent endowment fund, as embraced in the resolution, was arrived at by mutual agreement and compromise, and is probably as just as can be reasonably expected.

The especial advantage to the Agricultural and Mechanical College will be that the College will be removed from the equivocal and uncertain position in which it now stands in perplexing uncertainty as to whether or not it is only a branch college of the State University, subject to the constitutional inhibition against appropriations for permanent buildings.

The equally important advantages to the University from the adoption of the Sackett Resolution will be the removal from the Constitution of the unwise and unnatural provision forbidding appropriation for permanent buildings. It is difficult to conceive how the University (which has long since outgrown its clothes) can ever be suitably housed until this provision has been voted from the Constitution, as would be done by the adoption of the Sackett Resolution.

I earnestly believe that only two intelligent courses are open to the people of this State concerning the University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College: Either they must be consolidated in government and organization, or they must be completely separated and allowed to work out their separate destinies.

If former expressions of the will of the people are still indicative of the desire of the people of this State, then the two schools must be separated.

That is the sole real issue to be voted on in July. It is not complicated, nor encumbered by any proposals of permanent bond issues, permanent tax levies, or other incidentals or side issues.

If the Sackett Resolution is adopted, a clear and definite policy will have been established by the people, and it will only remain for the Legislature and the governing authorities of the University and College to carry out the will of the people.

(Signed)
RICHARD F. BURGESS,
Of El Paso.

PROF. DOUGHTY FAVORS SEPARATION.

Prof. W. F. Doughty, State Superintendent of Public Education, is unalterably in favor of the separation of the A. & M. College from the University. In a letter to the Manager of the Committee for the Promotion of Higher Education in Texas, he says: "In my opinion, both schools will make greater progress under separate boards, and, no doubt, separation would end the envious feeling that seems to exist on the part of some zealous friends of both institutions."

What Interlocking Tile Is

It is a general wall-building material, suitable for use in every character of structure, from the cottage and small store to the mansion and skyscraper.

In it are combined the "cooler in summer, warmer in winter," and lightness of weight features of the hollow wall, with the strength of brick and concrete; in addition, it interlocks in the wall, making the strongest and most rigid wall that can be built. Every unit is a header.

Interlocking Tile is not to be confused with ordinary square tile, which is only designed and intended for partition, and other interior non-load-bearing walls.

WHAT INTERLOCKING TILE DOES FOR ITS USERS

It builds at amazingly low cost (little more than that of good frame) walls that are non-conductive, light in weight, damp proof, comfortable the year around, and more efficient in every way. It increases the buying value of the building dollar.
