

NORMAL WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY INSTEAD OF ON TUESDAY AS ANNOUNCED

Indications are Good for the Largest Attendance in History of the Normal School.

In order to have twenty days of school work before the first series of examinations, it has been found necessary to open the Normal next Monday instead of on Tuesday as advertised in the bulletin.

Mr. Cousins states that the demand for boarding places has been very great and that indications are that more rooms must be had to care for the young people.

Prof. M. B. Johnson of Plainview has been added to the faculty for the summer's work.

Miss Woodson of Bonham, who has been supervisor of art at Santa Fe, N. M. the past year, will have charge of the art department this summer.

Mr. Cousins states that he will recommend to the regents for head of the art department to take the place of Mrs. Hillary, Miss Georgia O'Keefe of Columbia, S. C.

H. W. Stilwell, of the English department, has received a flattering offer to go to Tyler as principal of the high school.

The board of regents will hold the annual meeting between the 10th and 15th of June, according to present plans.

A car load of manual training equipment arrived Tuesday and the heavy machines are being installed this week.

The new equipment for the art department arrived last week.

All of the light fixtures are now here and will soon be installed.

The west shack was sold to G. G. Foster and Ed Harnel. They will move it soon.

Prof. J. A. Hill and family arrived this week from California, where Mr. Hill has been studying during the past year.

Miss Wiggins to Conservatory.

Miss Fair Wiggins has closed a most successful year's work in the city and left Tuesday morning for Chicago where she will continue her study of music during the summer.

REPUBLICANS WILL PUT FULL TICKET IN FIELD THIS YEAR

Thirty-Five Republicans in Meeting Reorganize Party and Elect New Officers.

The republicans party of Randall county will put a full county ticket in the field this year, and expressing the sentiment of Saturday's meeting, they expect to do some big work toward the election of the ticket.

One noticeable fact in connection with the convention of Saturday was the absence of the recognized leaders of party in the county during the past number of years.

J. R. Harter called the meeting together and acted as general spokesman during the meeting.

T. B. Slaughter was elected chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Slaughter was of the opinion that the county needed the organization for the benefit of the county at large.

Mr. Slaughter and Mr. Harter both spoke very emphatically in favor of putting a full ticket in the field.

A motion by J. R. Harter, seconded by Grant Bellis that the party put a full ticket in the field this year carried unanimously amid great enthusiasm.

A motion by Harter that this convention elect a county executive committee, one from each precinct, carried.

A call was made for representatives from the different voting precincts.

The following precinct chairmen were elected:

- No. 1 - J. R. Harter
No. 2 - Charles Zoeller, Happy
No. 3 - Frank Crawford
No. 4 - George Frank

On motion the chair was authorized to appoint chairmen for the remaining precincts.

The party will hold another meeting on June 10 at 3 o'clock sharp when a full ticket will be put in the field.

A motion thanking the Randall County News for the publicity it had given the meeting and Judge H. T. Shelnut for the use of his office was passed.

HIGH SCHOOL CLOSSES FRIDAY NIGHT AT METHODIST CHURCH

Interesting Program With Address to Graduating Class by Hon. Marvin Jones.

A splendid commencement program was rendered Friday night at the Methodist Church.

After the three members of the graduating class delivered their essays, Hon. Marvin Jones of Amarillo gave an excellent class address.

Next, there must be courage in everything you do and never give up. By self-confidence, believe there is success waiting for you and strive towards that end.

Another quality must be energy. Nothing is gained without hard work and perspiration.

There are opportunities that every one should take advantage of, and not be like the boy who was wishing for nourishment of some kind when he saw an apple float by just out of his reach.

Others came by but out of reach which did him no good. When he looked up the stream to see where they were coming from, it was too late.

OF INTEREST TO COUNTY CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE

Under the Terrill election law all candidates for county or precinct offices must file with the county chairman of their party on or before June 17 their application for a place on the primary ballot.

June 19 the county executive committee will meet to determine the order of names on the ballot, to name subcommittee to make up the primary ballot and to transact other business.

July 10 the subcommittee of the county executive committee meets to make up the ballot.

W. A. Hunt Dead.

W. A. Hunt died Friday night at the sanitarium in Amarillo after an illness of some time.

He is the oldest brother of Oscar Hunt of this city.

The funeral services were held in Amarillo Sunday morning and the body was interred in the Amarillo cemetery.

Mrs. Guy Baker left this morning for Conway, Arkansas where she will visit relatives.

INDIAN SKULLS FOUND WEST OF CITY OTHERS PROBABLE

Grave Destroyed Before Normal Authorities Had Change to Get Skeleton Intact.

Prof. R. L. Marquis of the Normal was out west of town two weeks ago and got two Indian skulls and a number of bones from the skeleton of the bodies.

From the ruins of the grave Mr. Marquis was able to get in good condition the two skulls, a number of bones from various parts of the body and many beads which were made from marine snail shells carefully cut across the ends.

Mr. Marquis suggests that if more graves are found that he be notified at once, before the graves are destroyed or disturbed.

This makes the third grave that has been torn up before Mr. Marquis was called. He states that while it is very doubtful of a fortune being concealed in the grave, that in case of anything valuable being found, it will go to the discoverer.

JUDGE B. FRANK BUIE FOR COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS

Prominent Canyon Lawyer a Candidate - Has Large Endorsement From Canyon People.

Tuesday morning the announcement was made that Judge Hendricks would not seek re-election for the office of Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo.

Tuesday night a meeting was held at the court house and Judge Buie's candidacy was endorsed by the voters of the county.

Judge Buie needs no introduction to the people of this county. He has lived here for a number of years, and has a clean record in the courts of the state, in all of which he has practiced, but primarily he has devoted his time and talent to the civil law.

He first practiced law in that state. He served in the legislature of Kentucky and has a good record in that body.

The people of Canyon and Randall county are greatly interested in his candidacy. All are asked to assist Mr. Buie in every way possible.

Committees will be appointed at once to work for Judge Buie. Every man who will assist is asked to call and tell the Judge what he will do.

PHONOGRAPH PERFECTION!
ABSOLUTELY NATURAL TONE!

—NO NEEDLE TO CHANGE—

THE PATHEPHONE has all the good features of all other phonographs and talking machines, and in addition has the following exclusive Pathe Advantages, which make it unquestionably SUPERIOR:

- Its perfect playing of all disc records.
- Its absolutely natural reproduction of voice or instrument.
- Its faithful duplication of every detail of technique and composition.
- Its rich, full, glorious volume of tone.
- Its easily operated tone-control, suit ing every owner's desire.
- The largest record repertory, re- recorded in every musical center in the world

The PATHEPHONE Uses a round, smooth, genuine Sapphire Ball instead of the customary point or needle. This Pathe Sapphire glides over the record-grooves in an up-and-down motion, catching all the delicate overtones and tone-colors ordinarily lost in mechanical sound-reproduction.

The PATHEPHONE has an all- wood sound-chamber.

—no metal part horns.

—and this Pathe feature cooperates in eliminating all metallic sounds and harshness. It amplifies the sounds in the truest, most natural manner, and combined with the Pathe Sapphire Ball results in producing a full, rich, glorious volume of tone, exactly duplicating the original rendition by the artists themselves. The Pathe Sapphire Ball never wears out itself, and does not wear out the Pathe Discs!

THE GIRL AND THE SCREEN

When The Mother entered the combination, delicatessen shop and ice cream parlor a group of girls seated at a table were so much absorbed in their discussion that they had even forgotten the refreshments before them. Nor did they see The Mother as she stood waiting for one of the busy clerks to come her way.

"Why, we've just got to find a way to keep her out. I tell you we can't have her in the sorority. She would spoil all the fun. Every last one of you know how rude and unfair she is capable of being," and little Miss Bright Eyes, who had the floor propped, mixed in a name with her spirited protest which sent the hot blood to The Mother's temples and made her leave the shop without making the purchase for which she had entered it.

For you see the subject of all the talk was The Girl—the listener's own young daughter.

And what was worse The Mother knew in her heart of hearts that the criticism she had heard was true.

Throughout the afternoon of the crisp November day The Mother sat alone in her sewing room. The work she had begun lay untouched in her lap, nor did she stir in answer to either door or telephone bell. Her gaze was riveted on the expanse of lawn which circled her pretty home, and as she watched the little dead leaves blown away into hollows and corners and trenches for their long winter's sleep her thoughts ran back today it was quite obvious that she had not wholly succeeded.

The Mother sat in her sewing room, the work she had begun immediately after lunch lying untouched for hours in her lap. She heard The Girl open the front door, lay her books on the library table, and come slowly down the hall. When she opened the door of the sunny little sewing room The Mother had picked up the work in her lap and was plying her needle industriously.

To The Girl she gave a smile and went on with her work, ignoring the troubled look in the young eyes as they watched her from the doorway.

There was obviously something wrong, but The Mother, for the first time in her life, made it difficult for The Girl to tell her.

"Oh, mother, I have got in so wrong!" finally from The Girl, who, in the sudden memory of the embarrassing time she had been having, did not notice The Mother's unusual silence.

"I called that little Mrs. Lee a perfect dodd today, and she overheard I was talking to Marjorie Mason about the party for which Mary Lee has sent out invitations and I had no idea her mother was within a mile around, when I suddenly turned and saw her standing back of me when I had just said that it was a pity for Mary to have such a dodd for a mother."

"You'll make it alright with her, won't you mother?" ended The Girl in keen distress.

The Mother regarded her with grave, calm eyes—this pretty young daughter who had never learned to over all the sixteen years of The Girl's life, and, as though it had happened yesterday, the scene of the child's first quarrel came with grave importance to her memory.

The Girl had been to blame. She had been intolerably rude to little Neighbor, beastly unfair, and when her small guest had stood out against her The Girl had burst into a storm of tears which so touched The Mother's sympathy that it quite ran away with her judgment.

From that day on The Mother had been nothing better than a screen behind which The Girl might find protection.

From this far-away picture of the first quarrel of The Girl The Mother's thoughts came back to the group of serious young faces in the ice cream parlor where her schoolmates were discussing ways and means of keeping The Girl out of their sorority, assigning as their reason that she was "rude and unfair."

The words rang through The Mother's mind with the persistency of some lilting tune from a musical comedy. They seemed to dance away with the scurrying leaves out on the broad lawn, and then come back to sear their way like a burning brand into The Mother's brain. She remembered innumerable instances when, in her dealings with her companions, The Girl had shown no sense of justice, and as many others in which her domineering egotism and intolerable selfishness had appalled The Mother's heart, but each time the adoring parent had believed that only she saw the hideous faults of The Girl, and so she had gone on from year to year screening them from the public eye, or at least thinking that she did, for guard her tongue because she had never had to suffer the consequences of its sting. And the Girl, amazed at the slowness of The Mother's consent to "make it alright with Mrs. Lee," reiterated her question.

It was almost dusk when The Girl left the sewing room to wash her tear-stained face. The Mother watched her dejected steps take their way down the street toward the home of Mary Lee, and her heart ached for her.

Even now The Mother's impulse was to rush out of the house, overtake The Girl and save her the painful apology to her neighbor. She had been a screen for so long that the thing had become habitual, and it was only the realization that The Girl's womanhood would be permanently dwarfed if she did not begin at once to do a little fighting on her own account that held The Mother beside the window watching for the returning steps.

The Girl's feet almost ran along the street as they brought her home, her head was held high; red spots burned her cheeks, and when she threw open the door of the room in which The Mother waited there was a glorious light of conquest in her eyes which argued happily for her growth.

Vicar for Six Gets $4,500.

The living of St. Alphege, London Wall, England, which recently became vacant, is a sinecure. There is no congregation, the average number of worshippers on Sunday being about six. The stipend of the incumbent is $4,500 a year, and it has been suggested that the church should be amalgamated with another and the salary of the vicar put to better use within the church.

The pit oven so often used by the primitive woman was a near approach to the modern fireless cooker, which is considered a remarkable invention. In the crude pit or oven of the early housewife, hot stones were placed to furnish the necessary heat, and these were kept from contact with the air as much as possible by packing earth around them and the food placed next them, durg the cooking process. Other methods of cooking, such as boiling, roasting and broiling, were followed along exactly the same lines as ours today, though they were then unrecognized.

A new quicksilver strike is reported from the Brewster county field and a new field in Texas is said to have been opened by this strike. The ore assays 25 to 35 per cent pure quicksilver and was discovered near the north-east line of Brewster county in a new locality for this ore. In the past quick silver has been taken out in the southern part of Brewster county, but this is the first report of any being found in the northern part of the mineralized district.

MUFFLED KNOCKS

When a man is going to marry a girl she knows it six months before he makes up his mind about it.

When a man's memory goes back on him it is about the dollar he owes you, and never about the dollar you owe him.

Every man likes to have you run in on him when he is busy and waste about an hour of his time telling him how to run his business.

Considering the fact that you can always start a new religion, it is funny that a lot of men are contented to work for a living.

If a woman loves a man, a little thing like a glass eye or a wooden leg doesn't make any difference. But a man can't see a woman who is built that way.

It is funny that a man who is so careful not to spoil his features that he uses a safety razor when he shaves will think nothing of fooling around with a married woman.

Can you remember the first time you attended a party where each boy had to take a girl home? Remember how you studied your speech all evening to get it right and then when the time came you stammered: "May I have the pleasure of escorting you home?" Remember how you walked on the air and felt too happy to talk? And remember how the other boys at school made you blush when they would yell: "Bill's got a girl!" They were the happy days.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hill on the Railroads.

Amarillo, Texas, May 15, 1916. "We have a feverish prosperity that may vanish overnight," says James J. Hill in a recent interview. Mr. Hill is a world figure in finance and railroading. He is recognized as the greatest colonizer of virgin country in the United States. Few men have the broad grasp of world commerce and industry.

"The great bulk of the business now taxing the capacities of our railroads arises from the war necessities of Europe. The money our people are getting in payment for their products is being provided on the forced credit of the nations of Europe. They are raising these hundreds of millions by piling up to enormous burden that must be borne by future generations.

"With the war over, we will no longer see the railroads blocked with merchandise bound for the seaboard or our harbors choked with freight waiting for ships to carry it to Europe. How severe the reckoning the world must pay can only be conjectured, but we know it must be paid.

"With such a situation confronting us this can hardly be regarded as a happy moment for railroad employes, and especially those highly paid employes in the train service to ask for higher wages.

"American railroads to-day pay the highest wages in the world out of the lowest rates in the world, after having set down to capital account the lowest capitalization per mile of all the great countries of the world. No other occupation and no other employer of labor in the country can match this record. The payrolls now absorb 45 per cent of the gross earnings of the railroads.

"But contiguously increased pay and decreasing working hours for the employe means increased cost of transportation, and all the people must in the end pay the bill in higher rates, a point which they often overlook.

"The greatest factor making high prices is the wage rate. Everybody knows that the labor cost is the principal item in all form of industry. High wages and high prices work in a circle. Every rise of one is reflected in a rise in the other. But somebody has to pay these wages. In the end labor suffers when the business no longer pays a profit and the payrolls cease entirely by the closing up of an industry no longer profitable.

"But the railroads must go on. Capital once invested in the business can not be taken out. The railroads need hundreds of millions of new capital every year. How is this capital to be obtained unless investors are convinced of the ability of the carriers to earn a fair return?"

Completing Toll Lines.

The new copper toll lines running through the city by the Southwestern

Tel. & Tel. Company are just about completed. A large gang of men have been at work in and around the city for the past two weeks. They are now well south of the city and will meet a gang coming from the south between Canyon and Ralph.

There are now four copper lines between here and Amarillo. Between Canyon and Hereford an extra copper circuit has been put in, making two connecting us with Hereford. Two new copper circuits are between here and Plainview, being added to the old iron circuit.

With the completion of these copper lines Canyon will have the best long distance service of any town on the Plains.

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

SUBSCRIPTION, $1.50 PER YEAR

The run-off primary levy has been enjoined in the 48th District Court. Under the ruling of the state executive committee the county and precinct candidates were compelled to pay the expenses of the second senatorial race. This meant that every county and precinct candidate in the state would have to pay practically double the regular primary fees. In addition to this in counties where a second county primary was held, it meant that the county and precinct candidates would have to pay practically double the amount for their place on the ticket as would ordinarily be charged. The law places the second primary for county offices on August 12 and the second primary for U. S. senator on August 26. The state committee stated that each county candidate ought to be willing to pay a little extra so that the people could get their choice of senator. We haven't seen a candidate in Randall county who interested to the extent of $10 or $15 in the election of a United States senator when every other man in the county is not taxed. If we are to have these second primaries, the law ought to be changed before next election so that the government pays for the second election. It is alright for the candidates to pay for the first election or primary, but it is on account of the popular demands that the second primaries are held, and therefore the people should pay the bill.

The possibility of peace looks brighter than at any other period of the war. Yet it is a rather one-sided affair. Germany has signified that peace proposals would be acceptable. President Wilson looks hopefully to an early ending of the war. All of the neutrals of Europe are hopeful of peace. Will the allies accept the proposals? Do they hope to break down the German wall and regain the land they have lost? Will England be able to hold in check the numerous humored revolts in her provinces and continue the war? These are the factors which enter into the peace plans. If the allies can see early defeat of Germany, there will be no peace. If she has enough, peace will be forthcoming.

Wilson says that England must stop tampering with U. S. mails. Its time something was said to our big sister across the seas, and in a decisive tone.

Tom Love declares that the election for national chairman was stolen from him. Which is not in keeping with the spirit of love.

On account of the continued dry spell of weather the lakes are drying up, some having abundance of fish in them. Mr. J. A. Currie sent out invitations last Friday for every one to come to his lake and enjoy a big fish fry. A great number of people came estimated by some to be 250 and had a most enjoyable feast of fresh fish. Every one was allowed to take home all they could gather, many coming the next day and gathering lots of nice fresh fish, leaving many to die in the hot sun.

WHO'S GUILTY?

The half naked brute man stalked forth from his cave in search of a mate. He clubbed her into submission. When she proved untrue the remedy was easy, for she was the weaker. He killed her. Civilized man stalks his mate by cajolery and many promises. When she proves untrue, he slays her, but he does not cleave her with a stone hatchet as did the brute man.

Civilization has devised more subtle methods. He makes of her an out-cast; he tears her own flesh and blood from her arms; he turns a deaf ear to the agonized cry of motherhood robbed of its young. It matters not that he himself has sinned. The woman is the weaker and she must pay. But must she alone pay?

This question is stirring the civilized world. See the "WHO'S GUILTY" series on Mondays at LYRIC THEATRE.

Taylor on Vacation.

H. E. Taylor left Tuesday for Stratford to line up his school work, where he will teach in the fall. He will return Friday and go home for his vacation near Pride, Texas.

Since Mr. Taylor came here in the fall as principal of the high school, he has taken an active part in work here. He was one of the efficient corps of teachers that worked so faithfully with Mr. King during the past year. He became an enthusiastic church worker and taught a class of girls in Sunday school. He became a member of the young people League and was soon elected president, and he filled the place nobly indeed. He made a success in everything he attempted while here. The good wishes of the people go with him for a pleasant vacation and a successful year's work next fall at Stratford.

SCIFTY NOTES

The Merry Maids and Matrons were entertained on Thursday at the home of Mrs. T. C. Thompson. The house was beautifully decorated and every one seemed in a jolly mood. The afternoon was spent at progressive forty-two. Conversations were held at all the tables and everything went fine. Late in the afternoon a delicious luncheon of chicken salad, sandwiches, olives, punch and strawberry cream and cake was served. De parting late in the afternoon all declared Mrs. Thompson to be a fine hostess. Mesdames S. B. Lofton, Grayson Bell and Miss Lillie Leonard were the invited guests present.

Miss Ruth Knight delightfully entertained her Sunday School class Monday afternoon in the beautiful grove south of town. The time was spent in games and conversations until eleven o'clock when a dinner was spread in true picnic style, to which all did full justice. During the afternoon every one roamed the grove and many games were played. At sundown all wended their way homeward feeling they had spent a most pleasant day. Mr. and Mrs. John Knight chaperoned the crowd during the day.

Mr. H. E. Taylor entertained the members of the Senior Class at the home of Ross Craig Saturday evening on the lawn. Guests began to arrive about eight-thirty and were shown to the dining room where punch was served to the thirsty. Many games were played on the lawn after which we were called to the dining room again. Misses Renna Craig and Zerah McReynolds kept music going in the front room while the guests played games and engaged in conversations that every one participated in. At a late hour ice cream and cake were served in abundance. Departing at a late hour, every one declared they had spent an enjoyable evening. Those present were Misses Anna Jones, Lucile Higginbotham, Ruth Hood, Zerah McReynolds, Kathleen Stewart, Renna Craig, Ida Fay Smith, Lottie Lee Lofton and Emily Brooks, and Messrs. Ray McReynolds, Paul Foster, Charlie Lofton, Ernest Archaibeau, Ross Craig and Mr. Taylor.

It was a great pleasure to attend the entertainment given by Mrs. Pearl Moriarity's large class of students on the night of May 24 to an appreciative audience at Kress.

Commencement at Kress.

Misses Columbia and Loretta Wiggins went down on the morning train and they assisted in the entertainment. The military drill given by the boys and girls was one of the best numbers, also the Hag salute by the entire class. Recitations from The Book and from Shakespeare (apologies to Bacon) and from other authors that showed the ability of the students. Twin girls, borrowed for the occasion, hardly more than babies, and when on the stage one wandered off but when called back they sang three simple songs without accompaniment. In the air castles that I build in my day dreams to be built in brick, there will be twin babies and they will look into my face and say "Papa buy us some candy." A few minutes after midnight the exercises came to a close and many felt that the children in the care of Mrs. Moriarity for a year in the class room was a great uplift.

Britain Opens Lyric Theatre

Mr. Britain, who has just taken over the Happy Hour Theatre, has changed the name of same to the Lyric Theatre. He announces the installation of a new 1916 Model Motiograph projector, also a new piano. There is quite a bit of improvements being made and the house when opened will be modern in every respect. Mr. Pursley will have charge of the music department. He comes from Dallas, improvises and dramatizes his music to fit the picture plays.

He has been orchestra leader in some of the largest theatres in Texas and no doubt his music will be appreciated by all music lovers of Canyon. Mr. Britain also announces "Triangle Fine Art Plays" four days of each week.

Miss Ruth Dennison of Philadelphia is the only girl studying agriculture at the Pennsylvania State College. When she graduates she will manage a farm.

Movement of State Troops.

Amarillo, Texas, May 29, 1916. The movement of the Texas National Guard when the order came from Washington, shows the efficiency of the Texas Railroads. According to press dispatches not a single complaint have been had from General Funston down. Adjutant General Hutchings also issued a statement of appreciation.

These troops were moved here, there, and everywhere without interruption of regular railroad service. Of course only a small body of troops had to be moved. Should an entire army corps have had to be moved on as short notice, it would have become painfully apparent how illy prepared the United States is in the way of transportation.

The service given by the carriers in mobilizing the Texas troops at Fort Sam Houston, indicates that the Texas roads are well managed. At the same time it is well to remember that the railroads have received little encouragement or protection to enable them to be efficient means for moving troops and munitions of war quickly in case of necessity.

The annual report of the Texas Railroad Commission for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, shows a net corporate loss of nearly $6,000,000.00 for the year on Texas roads. The income is to-day regulated by Federal and state commissions and the tendency is to reduce the income and to increase operating cost of railroads by special rulings and legislation.

It is also becoming apparent that this Federal and state regulation is one-sided. There is nothing done to regulate wages paid by the roads. Demand for increase in wages like the present demand by the train service employes, has to be fought out without regard to what effort an increase may eventually have on the public in the way of higher rates.

Bankers Meet in Dallas.

W. D. Morrel attended the Bankers Convention in Dallas last week. It was a called meeting of the state association for the purpose of opposing the putting in force of the part of the Federal Reserve Bank law referring to the handling of outside checks.

Under the law, which has never been put into operation by the directors of the Federal Reserve, all outside checks of every bank must be sent to the Federal Reserve bank, which bank gets two cents for handling these checks. The directors have signified that they intend to put into effect this part of the law next month. Some of the big banks of Texas say that it will cost them as high as $200 per day if the law is put into effect. The banks of Canyon would have to pay around $50 per month for this thing. The banking associations all over the United States are holding meetings and pointing delegates to go to St. Louis in June where steps will be taken to ask congress to appeal this part of the law.

Yourself.

Your greatest enemy is yourself. The only person who can drag you down into drunkenness, thievery or uncleanness is yourself. It is the fashion to talk much maudlin self-pity and to blame environment, fate and your fellow creatures for the evils that happen to you. No real calamity ever crushed you that did not enter the door you unlocked yourself.

All hell could not make you despair, except yourself join in. Every stone in the edifice of your character was laid by your own hands.

Fate, malicious people and other factors can threaten hurt and wound you; nothing and no body can put you down but yourself.

You are your greatest enemy if you are a coward, but if you are brave, you are your greatest friend.

The unquenchable light is the human soul—the one unconquerable force.

Only when you love yourself rationally are you qualified to love others helpfully.

Only when you revere yourself and fear yourself are you capable of reverence and fear toward God.

The world is but a mirror of yourself.

Keep clean and you see clean men and women everywhere. Be cheerful and all mankind smiles. Be unafraid of events and men, and the stars in their courses will light for you.

Whether you be a convict in prison or a bedridden invalid or a betrayed wife or a victim of conspiracy of men or the accidents of fate, if you will fall back upon yourself, believe in yourself, and are loyal to yourself, and are loyal to yourself, you will succeed.

Let all the world despise you—it makes no matter as long as you do not despise yourself. Whatever the past may have been, begin now to stand for yourself, your best self, the high great self that you know you are, away in the deep recesses of your heart.

Stand! Yield not an inch! Be faithful to yourself! And from this moment things shall take a turn.—Dr. Frank Crane.

Fine Record for Steers.

Some Tulsa cattlemen sold two car-loads of steers this week for $147.50 each, weighing about 1400 pounds. This is recorded from Kansas City to be one of the best records of that market. It is another remarkable showing for plains raised feed crops, on which these steers were fed.

Taken at Random.

The man, the community, or the nation that sits down satisfied with things as they the ceases to exist. Others take up the work and the vision of life and move forward to new levels of thought and achievement. What once was progressive and up-then it vanishes from the earth. There can be no satisfaction with self. The law laid down in the Garden of Eden has never been repealed. Unidentified Illinois farmers wanted better horses. They paid $2,500 for a breeding sire and employed a caretaker at $70 per month and house rent. The man was experienced and high-class. An Illinois school board employed a girl to teach school. She was young and inexperienced. Salary, $90, pupils, twenty-five. Care of one brute, $70. Care of twenty-five human beings, $30. Same men hired both girl and man. The joke was not on the teacher or the horse.—A. P. Sandles.

Live stock will place a new farm over the old farm. My personal experience has taught me that the farmer who milks cows, has a good herd of hogs to drink the skim milk, plenty of poultry and a good garden will succeed in the Western country. He can grow plenty of feed and turn it into money from day to day through live stock. This method has brought prosperity to every section with which I am familiar.—Dr. L. F. Dieffendorf.

There is an old notion, more or less, prevalent among farmers and fruit growers, that lye applied to the trunks of trees during the dormant season will destroy the insect pests that may be living over winter upon the bark in the eggs, larva or pupa stages. Investigations at many experiment stations throughout the country have all indicated that lye is practically useless for the destruction of insects in any stage of development. It is better to make the application of some particular insecticide that is known to be present. The application of lye seldom does enough good to pay it on.—C. P. Gillette.

Between the hen and the consumer there is an estimated waste in eggs of $200,000,000 annually in this country with the value of the annual egg crop placed at $500,000,000. Not more than six out of ten eggs reach the consumer. Of the $200,000,000 waste one-fourth of this is due to needless breakage of eggs in transit from the nest to the retailer. The remainder of the loss represents unnecessary adding, spoiling and deterioration of good eggs due to poor handling.—William Mann.

SUDDEN DEATH

Caused by Disease of the Kidneys.

The close connection which exists between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. As soon as the kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are attacked. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uric acid poisoning occurs and the person dies and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs.

It is a good insurance against such a risk to send 10 cents for a large trial package of "Anuric"—the latest discovery of Dr. Pierce. Also send a sample of your water. This will be examined without charge by expert chemists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. This "Anuric" of Dr. Pierce's is 37 times more active than lithia, for it dissolves uric acid in the system, as hot water does sugar. It relieves backache, lumbago, rheumatism, quickly. 50c. at druggists.

BEAUTIFUL IN ALL SEASONS

Marvelous This Land of Ours, to Those Endowed With the Proper Sense of Appreciation.

A marvelous sweet thing, when all was said—this land! Changing its sheen and texture, the feel of its air, its very scent, from day to day. This land with its billion offspring of flowers and flying folk; its majestic and untiring march of seasons.

Spring and its wistful ecstasy of saplings, and its yearning, wild, wind-loosened heart; gleam and song, blossom and cloud, and the swift white rain; each upturned leaf so little and so glad to flutter; each wood and field so full of peeping things. Summer! Ah! summer, when on the solemn old trees the long days shone—and lingered, and the glory of the meadows and the murmur of life and the scent of flowers bewilded tranquillity, till surcharge of warmth and beauty brooded into dark passion, and broke. And autumn, in mellow haze down on the fields and woods; smears of gold already on the beeches, smears of crimson on the rowans, the apple trees still burdened, and a flax-blue sky wellnigh emerging with the misty air; the cattle browsing in the lingering golden stillness; not a breath to fan the blue smoke of the weed-fires—and in the fields no one moving—who would disturb such mellow peace? And winter! The long spaces, the long dark; and yet—and yet, what delicate loveliness of twig tracery; what blur of rose and brown and purple caught in the bare boughs and in the early-sunset sky! What sharp dark flights of birds in the gray-white firmament!

Who cared what season held in its arms this land that had bred them all.—From "The Pretensions" by John Galsworthy in Scribner's Magazine.

DRUGS HAVE AN ATTRACTION

Remarkable How Many People Will Take Almost Any Remedy That is Offered to Them.

A very interesting phase of human psychology in its relation to the taking of drugs is illustrated by a series of poisoning cases in the middle West. A number of persons received "free samples" of a remedy through the mails and quite a few of the recipients proceeded to take doses of it, some of them with fatal results.

There are a great many persons who will take any remedy that is offered or recommended to them. Free samples of drugs of which the recipients know next to nothing are swallowed in large quantities every day in this country. It seems impossible, but it is true.

When a colored maid of all work presents herself to a doctor with a large bottle of medicine to ask him whether he thinks there is anything the matter with her for which that medicine might be good it seems a joke. Such things have been known to happen more than once, and there are a large number of persons supposed to be far above the colored maid in mentality, and still more in common sense who present the same attitude of mind toward free sampler of medicine that may come into their hands. Could anything be more foolish?

Where He Belonged.

One of the wealthy members of a fashionable church in Boston approached her pastor with the complaint that she was greatly disturbed by one of her neighbors.

"It's positively unbearable," said she said. "That man in the pew in front of us destroys all my devotional and pious feelings when he attempts to sing. Couldn't you ask him to change his pew?"

The good pastor was sorely perplexed. After a few moments' reflection he said:

"Well, I naturally would feel a little delicacy on that score, more especially as I would have to give a reason. But I will tell you what I might do." Here the pastor's face became illuminated with a happy thought. "I might ask him to join the choir."—Harper's Magazine.

His "Personal Devil."

We have been told about a prominent business man of Cleveland who "got religion," as the phrase hath it. Billy Sunday hadn't been there, and no sawdust trail of heaven had been laid out. But this fellow was convinced of sin, nevertheless.

After that, though he didn't become a saint, he remembered his conversion. Whenever he fell from grace, which was often, he said: "That wasn't I—it was the devil." And he got so used to laying his sins on Satan that he got to be a pest. So one day a neighbor asked him:

"How does it come that, whenever you do anything wrong you blame it on the Devil?"

"Well, gee whiz!" answered the saved soul. "Ain't that what he's for?"

Two Definitions.

Indeterminate sentence is that in which a prisoner convicted of a crime is sentenced to imprisonment not for a particular term of years, but for whatever time may be determined by his conduct, etc. The ruling of the recall is that by which an official may be displaced from office if at a special election held at the demand of a prescribed number of the community voters he does not receive the greater number of votes cast. The judicial recall includes judges among officials who may be thus displaced.

Preparedness.

I am opposed to war and strife; I wish to live the peaceful life beneath my tree and vine; to 'tend serenely to my biz—that always was and ever is the dearest wish of mine. For what do people gain by blows, by camping on the trail of foes, by seeking biffs and swats? They only harvest gobs of gloom or occupy an early tomb beneath the forget-me note. Let's all insist on balmy peace!—Let slaughtering and warfare cease! That is my constant cry; I don't believe in rearing sons to carry snickersnees or guns, to lose their legs or die.

And yet if some one pulls my nose, or 'trumps unduly on my toes, I try to maul his dome; I try my best to show him how Old Masters punch the human brow, in Munich and in Rome. My lovely theories are esthewed, and I indulge in conduct rude, offended and enraged; the Dove of Peace looks pretty punk, good will to men is empty bunk, while I am thus engaged.

There is no sense in gory fight; it never demonstrates the right, it ne'er corrects a wrong; 'twere better far in peace to dwell, and cultivate the vale and dell, and fill the air with song. I'd rather be a farmer mild than gather in the tumult wild a warrior's renown; for Balmy Peace I always am; the lion and the gentle lamb together should lie down.

(The basest of degraded men came round last night and stole my hen from out my unlocked coop; no doubt today he's gnawing wings, and chewing gizzards, legs, and things, or swilling chicken soup. So I have borrowed Johnson's gun, and loaded it with half a ton of shinglenails and shot; and if the wretch comes here once more, and monkeys with my henhouse door, I'll show him what is what.)—WALT MASON.

What The War Is Doing For The Farmer

The European war is not an unmixt evil; nor yet is it an unmitig'd blessing for this country. We shall not attempt to go into the ethical side of the question at all, nor shall we discuss "war profits," munition plants or other similar phases of the situation. We shall look at the war purely from the standpoint of prices for raw products, either produced here in this country or imported from foreign countries. And of course when we consider raw products we must carry the subject further on into the matter of the prices we get and the prices we must pay for finished products. We shall confine our consideration, too, to those products which have their origin on the farm either in the raw state or finished and manufactured into edible or wearable articles.

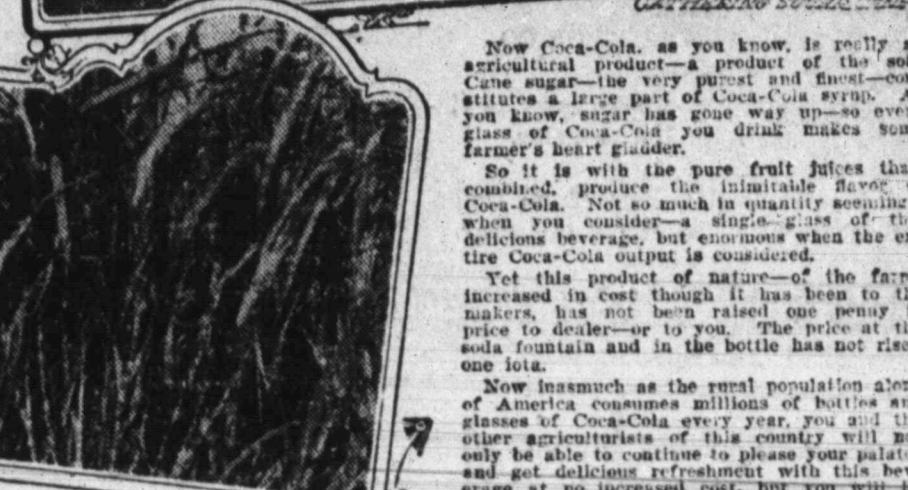

Let us take wheat, for example. We all know that the war has put the price of wheat way up. Very well—this means that the whole country; city, town and rural population as well as paying more for their flour—therefore the wheat raiser should theoretically be getting rich on a product which it costs him no more to raise than formerly and for which he gets more money.

But wait a minute—there are other things to consider in this matter of growing rich out of the war. Cotton and wool and meats and farm machinery and sugar have gone up too. This means that while the wheat raiser is getting more for his product, he is also paying some other agriculturist more for his product. This cuts down somewhat on the profits the war is bringing to the farmer. Then it would seem that the best way to keep ahead of the game is for the farmer to pay the farmer who raises his necessities the increased prices that the war has brought about and when buying necessities of life to pick and choose from amongst them those that have not gone up in price in spite of the war.

For example, here is a peculiar situation in regard to a beverage which is so universally liked that it has become almost a staple. The name of that beverage is Coca-Cola.

Now Coca-Cola, as you know, is really an agricultural product—a product of the soil. Cane sugar—the very purest and finest—constitutes a large part of Coca-Cola syrup. As you know, sugar has gone way up—so every glass of Coca-Cola you drink makes some farmer's heart glad.

So it is with the pure fruit juices that, combined, produce the inimitable flavor of Coca-Cola. Not so much in quantity as formerly when you consider a single glass of this delicious beverage, but enormous when the entire Coca-Cola output is considered.

Yet this product of nature—of the farm—increased in cost though it has been to the makers, has not been raised one penny in price to dealer—or to you. The price at the soda fountain and in the bottle has not risen one iota.

Now inasmuch as the rural population alone of America consumes millions of bottles and glasses of Coca-Cola every year, you and the other agriculturists of this country will not only be able to continue to please your palates and get delicious refreshment with this beverage at no increased cost, but you will be sending back to the farm bigger profits and more money at no greater expense to yourself.

Streets and Skirts.

Clarksville Times: Lillian Russell says that streets should be so clean age that they would not soil a woman's skirt. But how can they get to a woman's skirt these days unless she states down?

State Press, Dallas News—There are lots of ways, man, for the streets to get to a woman's skirt. They can blow up to it, or she can bog superstructure by jarring the under-down to them. Eighteen inches isn't pinning. State Press, always a close observer, saw that very thing happen again. Of course some skirts are more than eighteen inches from the street level; but we are not talking about, the extremists, only the average. Also it is quite possible for the wearer of a modern skirt to fall on the street. A hasty and oblivious dog, for instance, might in the pursuit of a cat unthinkingly project himself between the upright supports upon which the skirts is draped, and, in the vigor of the movement, upset the can blow up to it, or she can bog superstructure by jarring the under-down to them. Eighteen inches isn't pinning. State Press, always a close observer, saw that very thing happen again. Of course some skirts are heretofore been ashamed to tell it. Not that his shame was predicated upon any responsibility of his own. It was not S. P.'s dog, nor was the injured party a particular friend of his. He was simply embarrassed by reason of his having been witness to the much more fervid embarrassment of the other person. "Dogs should not be allowed to run around that way," said State Press to the recumbent sufferer. "He didn't run around—he ran between," replied the victim, blushing so richly she seemed dressed in red.

PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality

REMEMBER, you can only get out of a product precisely what the manufacturer puts into it.

There is no substitute for basic quality. No matter whether it be a typewriter, farm tractor or automobile, service must be BUILT IN the product—not merely veneered on the surface.

There, you have the very essence of the Paige idea.

There you have the compelling motive behind every car which has ever left this factory.

There you have the REASON for the astounding value which you will find in the Paige, seven-passenger, Fairfield Model "Six-46".

Let us repeat with all possible emphasis—"Paige builds not for price, but for Quality."

National Defense and International Peace

Preparedness and Peace and the Engineer

THE United States desires peace, based on justice and maintained with honor. But to insure this kind of peace Americans must know that nations are now defended not alone by fighting men, but by fighting industries.
The Engineers of this country, trained as only American Engineers are trained, hold that truth to be as fundamental as the law of gravity. With the authority of the United States Government more than 30,000 Engineers and Chemists, members of five eminent American scientific bodies, are making for the first time in the history of the Government a minute, sweeping survey of the industrial resources of America. They will go to the factories and mines of the land and with their sole method, efficiency, and their sole motive, patriotism, form a vast, flexible organization, such as the world has never known.
Their work will be the basis for creating in this country a true life of defense in time of war—the ability to produce swiftly, abundantly and with sustained power all the thousand and one elements of modern warfare. Without such production there can be no efficient army and navy.
Military Preparedness wins the battle. But Industrial Preparedness wins the WAR! Industrial Preparedness involves no huge expenses. Only the KNOWLEDGE of what American Industry can do. To KNOW the extent of each plant, the equipment of each machine, the ability of each man. THAT is the essence of industrial preparedness. That is the task to which thirty thousand Engineers are pledged.
The Engineers' work will lay for all time the basis of the "military trust" by making it possible to have munitions made in thousands of plants.
The vital work of the Engineers will supply the military authorities in Washington with information never before collected, and it is carried forward without a dollar's cost to the Government. And this advancement is not paid for. The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have prepared the copy and the publishers have patriotically responded and printed it without pay for the sake of National Defense and International Peace.
All American are asked to circulate this magazine in their America that learn how to make an impregnable wall of defense against a day of trial.

MEN OF NOTE DIE ON BATTLEFIELD

Heroic Deeds of Picturesque Force Serving in French Foreign Legion.

SON OF GORKY IS KILLED

Poets and Novelists Give Their Lives for Their Adopted Country—Squadron of American Flying Men Being Formed.

London—Innumerable stories have been written about the doings of the French foreign legion, and the heroic deeds of the picturesque force have employed the pens of many eminent writers in fiction. In an article in the Daily Express H. J. Greenwall pays tribute to these famous soldiers of fortune.

"All sorts of famous men have fallen on the field of honor while fighting with the legion," he says. "Bluet Valmer from the Argentine; the Luxembourg writer, Sosthene Kurth; a son of Maxim Gorky; Camillo Ramirez from Venezuela; a Colombian poet, Fernandez de Bengoecha; another from Ecuador, Rodolfo Semlario; the novelist Sanchez Carrero, all fell for France on the battlefields of Artois and Champagne.

"The poet Ismail Urdometa was killed in the Dardanelles while rushing a Turkish trench at the point of the bayonet, and the son of the Russian ambassador at Paris, M. Isvolsky, was severely wounded while fighting beside Lieut. Alexis Comene, the great-grandson of the emperor of Trebizond. Bob Scanlon, the negro boxer, is with the legion, and Francois Faber, from Luxembourg, the public idol who carried off many prizes as a professional cyclist, fell in action. So also did Alex Carter, the famous steeplechase jockey.

Refused German Money.

"Winnie O'Connor, one of the best jockeys that ever crossed the Atlantic, joined after writing a letter to Walter de Mumm returning all the money he had earned while riding under his colors. O'Connor wrote: 'I hate Boche money; your gold burns my fingers. I want to get rid of it.'

"Fifteen young students from the Beaux Arts in Paris joined the legion in a body. Not only all classes but all races are blended together in the wonderful First Marching Regiment. When Italy went to war the Italians were transferred to their own army, but previously they fought brilliantly, and two grandsons of Garibaldi lost their lives in France.

"The nucleus of the Second Regiment was formed on the evening of July 31, 1914, in a Parisian cafe. Some young Italians issued an appeal, and as a result about three thousand English, Belgians, Italians and Slavs attended the meeting to consider how they could best aid the country of their adoption.
"In the early hours of the first day of August I was passing along the Boulevard Haussmann and saw thousands of foreigners waiting in a line that extended for the greater part of a mile.

"The British residents in Paris tried to form a regiment of their own, and as a result of the first meeting, held at the Imperial club, about 500 men offered themselves for enrollment. The authorities, however, were unable to accept the offer of a separate regiment, and the same reply was given to the corps of American volunteers, so it was decided that the British and American volunteers should be drafted into the foreign legion.

35,400 in the Legion.

"About four hundred of them began drill at once in the exhibition grounds of the Magic City. Every new recruit of the legion had to pass an extremely severe medical examination, which was held beneath the shadow of Napoleon's tomb, and about 20 per cent were rejected. I believe the actual number accepted was 35,400.
"After the first few months all the British members were transferred to English regiments, but not before they had been in several engagements and suffered losses.

"Most of the American members petitioned to join the Flying corps, and France has so many American flying men now that a squadron of Americans is being formed. Dutchmen, Swedes, Danes and Americans, who could legitimately have remained lookers on, have cheerfully laid down their lives on the battlefields of France.

"The pay of the men of the legion is the same as that of the other soldiers of France—five sous per day and an allowance of tobacco and wine—so there is no question of the mercenary spirit having incited men who have thrown up good positions to fight for France."

Kills Bird With Golf Ball.

Pinehurst, N. C.—The Pinehurst Country club will have stuffed and placed in the clubhouse the robin killed by Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow with a golf-ball drive. Mrs. Barlow, who won the woman's North and South links championship, topped a tee drive in her final match and it went into a clump of robins feeding a few yards away. The ball killed one of the birds.

THEIR "AT HOME" IN JAIL

Michigan Bride and Bridegroom Accused of Not Telling Truth About Ages.

Hart, Mich.—Albert White a-wooling went. Went all the way from Colfax township, Oceana county, to Battle Creek. Now he's back and with him the bride he won, and they are spending their "at home" period in the Oceana county jail.

Their offense against the peace and dignity of the state, as formally alleged, is that they didn't tell the truth about their ages when they got their license to wed.

The banana peel in the path of love was an angry mother. Albert slipped up and dragged down his bride when Mrs. Mary Decker, who objected to Mamie getting married, heard that the girl swore she was eighteen, when she was seventeen, as her mother reckons it. White, who gave his age as twenty, is said to be nineteen.

The families lived on adjoining farms in Colfax. Decker and his family moved to Battle Creek last August.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The salary of the president of the United States was the cause of discussion in the first congress, in view of the fact that the Constitution declared that the president should receive compensation for his services. Washington had notified his fellow citizens that he desired no salary. The limits suggested in congress ranged from $15,000 to $70,000. The salary was finally placed at $25,000 and this remained the compensation until President Grant's second term (March 3, 1873), when it was increased to $50,000. Chapter 2915 of the laws of the second session of the fifty-ninth congress, approved March 4, 1907, appropriated "for traveling expenses of the president of the United States, to be expended at his discretion and accounted for by his certificate solely, $25,000." In the second session of the sixtieth congress the matter of increasing the president's salary was again considered, and it was decided that the president's salary be fixed at $75,000 a year.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Two presidential elections have taken place during war time. Madison was re-elected during the war of 1812, and President Lincoln during the Civil war in 1864. Polk and McKinley were presidents during wars which began and terminated during their terms. Washington, Taylor and Grant were made presidents because of their war records in the field.

HIGH SCHOOL CLOSES FRIDAY AT METHODIST CHURCH

There were no more. There are opportunities that pass away every day that will never come again. There should be sufficient preparation that one can take advantage of the opportunity when they come.

Mr. E. F. King gave a short talk after which he delivered the Certificates and Diplomas. Scholarships were awarded to the girl having the highest general average, and to the boy having the highest general average, who were respectively Margaret Irene Berry and Charles Sterling Lofton. Ruth Hood was awarded a Texas Christian University scholarship for having second highest general average.

The past year was a very successful one, Mr. E. F. King, the efficient Superintendent, and his good corps of teachers bending all their efforts towards the good of the school. At the beginning of the term the school had fourteen and one-half credits. The State Inspector visited the schools during the latter part of the school and the work was satisfactory in every respect. Two credits in Spanish were added making a total of sixteen and one-half credits, which is a good record for a school of this size.

There were twenty-five pupils given certificates for admission to High School, which is indeed a fine record. Certificates were awarded to several pupils who had neither been tardy nor absent during the year. Diplomas were issued to twelve pupils in the graduating class, which excels the record for several years.

The following were the members of the Graduating Class:

- Margaret Irene Berry
- Charles Sterling Lofton
- Ruth Hood
- Ida Fay Smith
- Ross Avnant Craig
- Lottie Lee Lofton
- Paul Everette Foster
- Viola May Ballard

C. D. LESTER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF FIRST NATIONAL

At a meeting of the directors of the First National Bank last week L. T. Lester resigned as president in favor of his son, C. D. Lester, who has been vice president for the past year.

L. T. Lester has been president of the First National Bank since its organization sixteen years ago. He is one of the most widely known bankers in West Texas. His resignation does not mean his retirement from the bank, but will give him more time to look after his numerous other business enterprises.

C. D. Lester is well known in this section of the state as a young banker with great ability. His promotion to the presidency of the First National will be pleasing news to his many friends in Canyon.

HARD ROLE TO PLAY

By JANE OSBORN.

To be the youngest male professor in a girl's college would be trying enough, but, added to that distinction, to possess a pair of boyish blue eyes and a snubbish sort of freckled nose that just naturally made girls of the college age treat you like a younger brother was a role that few men would like to play. But Tom Newbury had his reasons. It was not only because the post of professor of mathematics at Mendham was the first available means of earning his living that presented itself two years ago, when he left his alma mater. The real reason, although no one knew it but Tom, was that Sally Phelps was about to enter Mendham, and, although Tom hadn't mentioned the fact to her, he rather liked the idea of being near her.

It was a springlike day in February when Sally had been in college a year and a half that Tom Newbury at last decided that he could wait no longer to make his declaration. Second semester had begun, and he had decided never to begin another. In fact, he had accepted a position as mining engineer and had decided to persuade Sally to leave school with him in May.

He had decided to make his long-deferred declaration down the lane that leads from the campus toward the woods at Mendham. The dormitory reception room is so frightfully uncompromising, so unsympathetic toward such an adventure. Even on a cold day, the lane toward the woods was a warmer spot.

But planning was one thing and getting Sally to stroll down the lane was quite another.

"Really I'm dreadfully sorry," she told him, looking out of brown eyes that were as frank and honest as his own, yes, too, that looked at Tom almost on a level, for Sally was every inch as tall as the youngest professor.

"You see, tonight's the night of the sophomore banquet—down in the boat-house across the lake. We have had fires laid in the fireplaces and the caterer is going to manage somehow. You see, we had to have it some place that the freshmen would not suspect. Don't breathe a word of it."

There was no use asking Sally to see him after the banquet, or to give him time before, for Sally was class president and there would be no room in her busy evening for thoughts of aught besides class matters. And before Tom could speak of a possible stroll down the lane the following evening she was off on the pretext of having to spend the afternoon working over the speech she had to make that night.

It was in no very cheerful frame of mind that the youngest professor strolled down through the campus before going to his boarding house for dinner that evening. What if Sally wouldn't accept him after all? Had he been wasting those two years when he might have been working at a man's job in the man's world instead of cloistered away in a woman's college?

He walked slowly down to the exact spot in the lane that he had chosen in his earlier plans for asking Sally. He leaned over the footbridge that spanned the little stream and took in long breaths of the crisp, bracing February air, in which there was ever so slight a hint of approaching spring. The setting sun sent long shafts of red-golden light through the mass of tangled brush that bordered the little stream below.

Then in the recently-melted waters of that very stream he saw Sally's reflection, even before he realized that she was standing at his side.

He turned and would have spoken when Sally clapped her hand abruptly over his mouth.

"Quick!" she whispered. "Hide me! They'll see us. Here, down under the bridge in the brambles. They will never think of looking there."

And before Tom had a chance to ask for an explanation he and Sally had secreted themselves under the bridge on the woody growth of branches and vines that grow at the side of the stream.

"It's a little soggy here," Sally whispered at length, seizing Tom's hand to keep from slipping on the thawing ground. "But I think I am safe. They won't think of looking here, will they?"

"Who won't?" asked Tom, clutching the brambles in an effort to keep his footing.

"The freshmen. You see, we tried to keep it a secret about that banquet, but it leaked out and now they are trying to kidnap me. The idea you know is always to get the class presidents on banquet nights. Well, I started out and I thought I'd get around to the boathouse all right if I went this way. I put on Peggy Adams' coat. You know what a giant she is. I'm tripping on the coat now. But they must have found out that I got her things because just when I got this far I heard them calling. I heard one of them say:

"She's making for the little lane. Bind her hand and foot and tie the bag over her head." You know, they aren't very careful what they do to class presidents on banquet nights. I'm perfectly safe here, of course, only I've got to get to the banquet."

It may have been highly inopportune, but with Tom there was no time like the one planned for the deed. Why tempt Providence by not proposing to Sally on the spot?

Sally answered his appeal not quite as sedately as Tom had expected. In fact she actually laughed. "If that isn't like a man. You have kept me guessing for months. I was just crazy to know whether you really and truly liked me a little, but you wouldn't give me an ipking, and now when either of us may slip down in the mud any minute, down here under the bridge and the brambles, with me all smothered up in Peggy Adams' coat, you ask me. But you know I care. Ask me again tomorrow night. I've really got to get to that banquet now. Tom, if you really love me show it now. You give me your coat and hat and I'll fool them. It's getting dark. They'll never know. You're an angel. You must wait here a little while so they won't think it is funny that there are two of us if they are still watching. You know it would mortify me to death if those snippy freshmen really got me."

In a second, Tom, shorn of his coat and hat, was watching from his retreat the departing figure of Sally, who was taking long strides and strutting off in apparent imitation of his gait.

He waited patiently for five minutes. The darkness was settling and a cold wind was springing up. He looked down at the bundled coat and hat that belonged to Sally's Amazonian roommate.

"It may be a queer fit," he said, "but I'm not going to catch pneumonia for anyone." And with that he pulled on Peggy Adams' spacious coat and pulled her sport hat down over his head, and then, forgetful of his strange disguise, he strolled through the woods in the direction that Sally had gone.

Suddenly he heard footsteps behind him and then a torrent of high pitched voices. Then the youngest professor suddenly felt himself borne down upon by unseen hands from the rear and in another minute he was struggling against what seemed to be a bag that was drawn over his head and was being tied securely about his waist, and bound in gag-wise, at his mouth. Then the youngest professor felt himself being pushed by some dozen firm young hands and arms into what apparently was a bag of enormous proportions.

"Now lift her into the wheelbarrow, gently, 'cause we don't want to hurt her." That was as much as Tom could stand. It did not take much of an effort to wriggle his way out of the gag tied about his mouth, and with a few more struggles his hands were free. The outer bag seemed to be more securely tied. He could at least use his voice and his fists. He pitched his voice as low as possible and assumed an air of deep importance.

"Young ladies, this is going too far."

There was a chorus of mingled screams pitched in as many keys as there were freshmen and in a moment more the youngest professor stood forth in the semi-darkness facing his embarrassed captors. He doffed his borrowed cap and bowed low.

"I suppose I am a surprise to you. You know, I suppose that hazing such as you were attempting is strictly penalized by the faculty."

"But we didn't know it was you. We thought it was Sally. How did you get into Molly's coat and hat?" a dozen voices asked.

"If I were to tell you young ladies, with a brave attempt at dignity, that this was all part of a faculty plot to discover and bring to justice the ringleaders in this hazing conspiracy, I suppose you would have to admit that we had been a little shrewder than you." He watched with pleasure the looks of dismay and consternation that came over the faces of the freshmen. Then he smiled with all the candor of the self-importance of the professor that he had been trying to be, as he said:

"But that is not the case. I was not scouting for the faculty when I was caught, though I'm sure they'd like to get a report of the encounter. Now here's a fair bargain. I won't report you if you won't report me. Perhaps some day you will know why I was strolling around in a sophomore coat and hat. For the time being the joke is on all of us."

And the youngest professor continued his way to his boarding house coatless and hatless in spite of the chill winds of February.

What is Ugliness?

This question of ugliness is our greatest difficulty in discussing post-impersonism. We may as well face it immediately. If beauty were only defined we could get along better. Certain qualities, such as honesty, coordination, balance, workmanship which unerringly hits the mark aimed at, may be recognized as essential to great art. But beyond these, beauty is so much a matter of opinion as merely to follow a fashion. Through the past century, painter after painter has seemed to both public and critic the very embodiment of ugliness. Turner, Millet, Manet, Monet—all took their turn. And thirty years ago Cezanne first met the same charge. If the pictures of Cezanne, or any other innovator, have enough of spiritual or sensuous content to hold man's interest, we may be sure we shall end by calling them beautiful in one or another of the many senses that criticism is forced to give the term. Those who understand Cezanne find in him a depth of insight, both technical and spiritual, which they inevitably call beauty.—H. M. Luquiens in the January Yale Review.

Superabundant Fame.

"When a man does anything well he ought to get credit for it," remarked the generous-minded man.

"Not always," replied Bronco Bob. "Me an' Plute Pete got the reputation of bein' such good poker players that it completely spoiled business."

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months."

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.
