

COUNTY OFFICERS TAKE OATH FOR COMING TERM

Few Changes Are Made in the Randall County Official Family by the Election.

There is only one party ticket in Randall county, and the results of the election last Tuesday had nothing to do with the selection of county and district officers, more than to confirm the selection of the democratic primary in July.

The following are the new county officers, which will take their place this week:

- County Judge—C. R. Flesher.
- County Treasurer—S. H. Haysler.
- County Commissioner, precinct number three—J. J. Bauer.
- Animal and Hide Inspector—J. A. Tate.
- The following county officers were re-elected last Tuesday:
- Sheriff and Tax Collector—W. A. Jennings.
- County and District Clerk—T. V. Reeves.
- County Assessor—J. C. Black.
- County Attorney—Rector Lester.
- Commissioner, precinct number one—W. C. Baird.
- Commissioner, precinct number two—E. W. Neece.
- Commissioner, precinct number four—M. S. Park.

Judge H. T. Shelnett was re-elected justice of the peace, precinct number one.

J. W. Turner was re-elected justice of the peace in precinct number two.

Jim Currie and J. C. Lewis were elected justice of the peace in precincts number three and four, respectively.

The following were elected constable from their respective precincts:

- No. 1—W. C. Black.
- No. 2—Frank Weismuller.
- No. 3—H. E. Wesley.
- No. 4—M. C. Blunk.

Marvin Jones was elected congressman from this, the 13th congressional district.

E. T. Miller is the new district attorney.

Capt. T. J. Tilson was re-elected state representative.

To the Citizens and Voters of Randall County.

I am taking this method of thanking you for your support and hearty co-operation during the four years I have been acting as County Judge of the County. You have stood by me and lent me every assistance possible in order that I might do that which was right and proper to do. I also wish to thank the Commissioners Court for their fair and courteous treatment during the whole time of my incumbency in office.

Again I wish to thank each and every lawyer who has had business in the County Court for their assistance to me in arriving at honest and just decisions of law in matters of cases.

I am not going to comment upon what has been done for the good of the county at this time. You, the people are the jury, and the decision is with you, and not with me. With no ill will for any citizen of Randall County and with a clear conscience that I have done my duty as I saw it, and again thanking you for your hearty support, I am thankfully yours
C. E. COSS.

NORMAL DEFEATS LUBBOCK TEAM SATURDAY 18-0 SCORE

A team of eight Lubbock high school boys and three other players came up Saturday and were defeated by the Normal by a score of 18 to 0. The Normal got her scoring machine into operation early in the game and secured her points. The first half was in favor of the Normal but during the second half Normal had a hard fight to keep the visitors away from their goal line.

The Normal made the first touchdown in 4 minutes and 8 seconds, Glass carrying the ball over, after good gains by Glass and Stone.

At the close of the first quarter Glass got away with an intercepted forward pass and ran 50 yards, but was called back through a foul.

Near the opening of the second quarter Stone carried the ball over for the second touchdown.

After five minutes of play in the second half another touchdown was made by the Normal, making the score 18 to 0.

After this, the ball was largely in the Normal's territory, and twice did she hold the visitors within her ten yard line and thus continue the reputation she has established this season.

The Normal will play Wayland at Plainview Saturday.

Ott Pleases Large Crowd.

The second number of the Normal Lyceum course was given Monday night by Edward Amherst Ott.

Despite the bad weather, there was a large attendance to hear the lecture. Mr. Ott is above the average as a platform lecturer. His subject was of great interest and importance and was a message to all who heard him. Those present were highly pleased to have Mr. Ott a visitor in the city, but were disappointed in view of the fact that all of the people of Canyon are not taking advantage of the lyceum course.

Mark Foster Breaks Arm.

Little Mark Foster broke his arm Tuesday afternoon while playing football with a bunch of companions. He fell on a rock, and one of the boys landed on top of him. Mark has certainly had a bunch of hard luck during the past year. He was in the hospital for a number of weeks for an operation early in the summer.

McADOO WILL VISIT AMARILLO TUESDAY REGARDING BANK

Federal Farm Loan Bank Will Be Established in northern Part of State of Texas.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo will visit Amarillo next Tuesday in company with the commissioners who have in charge the location of the new Federal Farm Loan Bank.

Amarillo had not contemplated making application for the bank, but in looking over the field the government officials saw that this section was most favorable, and asked for a hearing in Amarillo. Ft. Worth's making a supreme effort to get the new bank and if it is located in Ft. Worth, Amarillo is almost certain to get a branch house.

All of the people of the Panhandle are interested in the new bank, and farmers, stockmen, business and professional men are urged to go to Amarillo next Tuesday to be at the hearing and to join in the celebration of the election of Woodrow Wilson, which the people of Amarillo are planning for the day.

COST OF PUTTING SQUARE IN PROPER CONDITION $6290.00

Filling in With White Dirt and Rolling Would Amount to 35c Per Square Yard.

Since it has become evident to the people of Canyon that something must be done to put the streets on the public square of Canyon in good condition, W. D. Howren has figured the matter out, estimating the cost of putting in the proper amount of white dirt and rolling the streets rather than trying to pave at this time. He believes that the work can be properly done, all of the filling made, cost of engineering, proper draining, rolling, etc., would be about 35 cents per square yard. Paving would cost from $1.00 to $1.50 per square yard. All of the work that he now suggests would be necessary before paving was attempted.

The public square of Canyon is in a very bad condition and needs attention. The little dirt that the scavenger is able to haul outside of his other duties, is not sufficient to put the public square in good condition. Holes are left, in which water collects with every rain and soon there is a worse hole than before the dirt was hauled.

Mr. Howren has presented his figures to the City Council, the Commissioners' Court and to the Business Men's Association.

Olympic Theatre Opens.

The Olympic Theatre opened Saturday night under the new management. The house has been thoroughly remodeled, everything about the theatre is new and up-to-date. The front of the building is attractive and with its large number of lights has caused much favorable comment.

The interior of the building is entirely changed. The old stage has been entirely removed and new seats put in. The decorations are new.

Manager Ford says that only the best service will be used in the house and the pictures shown this week have been entirely satisfactory to the patrons.

Dr. E. E. Robinson was returned as presiding elder of this district.

SNOW AND COLD WEATHER STARTS OFF THIS WEEK

The first snow of the season fell Sunday night. After a very cold northern Saturday, sleet began to fall Sunday and by Monday morning it had turned into a fine snow. The fall of snow did not amount to anything, but was enough to say that we had snow on November 13.

The weather has moderated much since then, and now the Panhandle is enjoying is usually fine weather.

WHOOPED 'ER UP FRIDAY FOR WILSON AND MARSHALL

Canyon People Celebrate Victory in the Re-Election of President Friday Night.

A great crowd gathered Friday night to celebrate the victory of the democratic party in the re-election of Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States. There was much good humor around these celebrating, and besides the smaller noise, more than a dozen heavy charges of dynamite was touched off.

There was certainly great suspense from Tuesday night until the election was declared in favor of Wilson on Friday. Those who gathered on Tuesday night to watch the returns were were convinced by midnight that Hughes had won by a landslide. By two o'clock, when the western returns began to come in, Wilson gained in favor, and the crowd was hopeful. Wednesday and Thursday was a time of suspense in the city. On Thursday night the word came that Wilson was safely elected, but the demonstrators decided to wait until there was no doubt. Friday even the most hopeful republican newspapers gave up the fight and then the crowd got busy.

The firing of anvils was to have been one of the features of the evening, but since there are only Bull Moose and Republican anvils in the city, the Democrats could not get them to work, and so dynamite was resorted to.

Useful Christmas Giving.

A few years ago a movement was started in New York against the giving of useless presents at Christmas time. Later Miss Margaret Wilson suggested that groups of friends who have been in the habit of exchanging presents contribute the value of these gifts to a common fund and give the sum to some worthy cause.

We believe that Miss Wilson's idea is more in accord with the Spirit of Christ and invite the ladies of these various groups to join with us in this movement.

We will issue blank cards to anyone wishing to join us and to her friends who usually exchange presents at this time. These groups will be known as auxiliary groups, and may send their contribution to the Central Group or decide among themselves what disposition may be made of it.

We realize the pleasure one has in giving these tokens of love to her friends, but giving to the needy is a more unselfish expression of one's love of humanity and also her love for Christ whose birthday she is celebrating.

In order that there may be some way to know the results of this effort the following ladies have consented to act as a central committee and the names of auxiliary groups should be sent to them.

- MRS. L. T. LESTER, Chairman Com. Baptist Church
- MRS. C. R. BURROW, Chairman Com. Presbyterian Church
- MRS. C. E. COSS, Chairman Com. Christian Church
- MRS. R. B. COUSINS, Chairman Com. Methodist Church.

Webber has $750 Fire

H. J. Weber lost 75 tons of cane Thursday night by fire which destroyed a long stack of feed, which he had just hauled in from the field. Mr. Weber is at a loss to know how the fire started. A car passing at midnight awoke the family, but the flames had such a start, that they could not be checked.

Mr. Weber says that the feed was worth $10 per ton, and that it was his choicest this year.

Ozark Trail Meeting.

With the names of delegates to the Ozarks Trails convention to be held at Oklahoma City, November 21-22, coming in at the rate of more than 200, daily, and good roads enthusiasm growing in every section of the southwest, this convention promises to be the biggest event of like character yet held in any state. The committee in charge of the arrangements confidently expect an attendance of fully 5000 delegates and are preparing for the entertainment of more than that number.

While the program is yet incomplete some of the highest authorities on the subject of road construction have assured the committee that they may be depended upon to participate in the activities of the convention. Thomas Ryan, director of the Colorado penitentiary, who has built more than 1400 miles of hard surfaced roads in his state with convict labor, will appear on the program. He will show how he did this work with the aid of moving pictures. He puts his audience in an automobile and figuratively, and takes the inover his road with its fine smooth surface and wonderful scenery. It is said to be one of the best pictures of its kind in existence.

The convention will be attended by hundreds of men of prominence and means who have heretofore taken but casual interest in the good roads question. These men are devoting time, energy and money in making better roads in Oklahoma and south west, Oklahoma alone because of their interest, having more than 1500 miles building at this time according to modern methods by popular donation, bonds in few instances having been voted or asked.

Please Don't Publish.

Every newspaper is familiar with the request, "Please do not publish anything about it." Sometimes it is made in the form of a demand and accompanied by threats of dire results if acquiescence is not followed.

There are a few things, the Louisville Herald says, the public ought to keep in mind in the matter of a newspaper's relation to the printing of news.

In the first place a newspaper owes an obligation to its whole circle of readers to print a fair, comprehensive report of the day's happenings. It cannot overlook this responsibility merely to please individuals. That policy involves an injustice to the many and favoritism to the few. Who shall be favored?

Much of the news that is printed unfortunately occasions annoyance and often heartache to somebody. That is an unavoidable incident of the newspaper business. Is there justification for shielding from such consequences the man or woman who has influence, socially or in business, while the many who lack it must be treated without consideration?

Persons who wish to escape publicity should be careful not to make news, or should count the cost of advertisement to the world as part of the price they must pay for what they have determined upon doing.

There are certain easily defined zones of publicity. The individual who steps into any of these may count upon getting his name in the newspapers. One is the courts, civil and criminal. The man who goes to law invites advertisement. Yet many men—and sometimes women—appeal to a newspaper to suppress reports of legal proceedings in order that they may be saved the annoyance. The time to consider immunity is before resort to law.

Departure from the conventionalities of life is another means of entering the publicity zone. Conduct that is off the beaten trail attracts news. Those who defy social observances or tread upon established institutions must not expect to escape print, and should not ask to be saved from such notoriety.

Further, much injustice may be done by the suppression of news. The tongue of gossip, uninformed of the real fact, can do a hundred times more injury to the innocent than publication of the truth will do to those actually involved. Often a newspaper is shielding the reputation of a score from the scandal of suspicion when it is telling the truth about one who has incurred the liability to censure.

A newspaper, with a sense of responsibility, will exercise a certain discrimination. There may be times and circumstances that justify suppression. Some happenings may in the reporting of them serve no proper end. Of two things the responsible newspaper will be jealously careful—the good name of a woman and the reputation of a financial institution.

Both are of that delicacy to be easily hurt. The good name of a woman is treasure beyond price, and a cloud cast upon the reputation of a bank or trust company may cause loss to thousands who are depending upon its solvency.

But, this lesson the public should learn—the way to avoid publicity is to avoid departure from the beaten track; and let this be added to it—if you have diverged into the danger zone the way to obtain considerate treatment is to assume that you are a subject for news and to take the public through the newspaper into your confidence frankly and fully.

Such confidence is rarely abused and assuredly never by any newspaper that makes profession of decency, or his regard for ethics.

Shall We Kill Him.

(Our Dumb Animals)

Once more the sparrow, our ever present, dusty hard-working little passer domesticus, is before the court on trial for his life. Now, the complainant is the American League of American Sportsmen, which is planning to enlist the activities of all colleges, schools, Boy Scouts, police and fire departments, and all other forces if they are able to command in one determined attack upon him. Nothing less than his extermination among us is the end sought.

Before we respond to the heroic call of our friends the sportsmen and set out with gun and trap, and fire and water and poison against that tiny criminal, there are one or two things that are worth considering. Will an enlightened educated public opinion sustain a movement that sets young boys killing birds by every possible means that may be devised, even when the birds are sparrows? Must not the character of the child inevitably suffer from the practice of killing? Must it not, this crusade of destruction, blunt his finer sensibilities, lessen his regard for life in all its humbler forms and foster in him the spirit of indifference toward suffering? There is but one answer to these questions. Experience has demonstrated that argument here is excluded. From parents and teachers and editors everywhere there should arise a prompt and positive protest against enrolling the children of the land in any such campaign as has for its object the killing of birds, no matter what the birds are. The bird life of this country is too vitally related to its very existence to run any risk of training the youth in the process of exterminating even an injurious species should anyone exist. In addition it should be said there are sparrows, other than the English sparrow, which resemble him sufficiently to make probable the killing of many a bird against which no charge has ever been brought. Now, if the sparrow is all his enemies say he is, and if he must be destroyed, then let us entrust his destruction to men designated to the task and not to children.

There is still something more to be said. We know the Department of Agriculture has advocated the trapping, poisoning and shooting of the English sparrow. But even that distinguished body does not know everything, has much still to learn. It has had to charge its views many times upon many questions. What are we to do with such facts as these:

Recent investigation carried on by the Biological survey lead to the statement made by that authority, that during the years 1911 and 1912 it was estimated that one brood of young sparrows destroyed at least 2000 alfalfa weevil in a day.

Prof. R. J. DeLoach of the Georgia Agricultural Experiment Station says he witnessed the spectacle of about 1000 sparrows attacking a field of German millet which had been invaded by several million of the army worm caterpillars. In approximately forty-eight hours the field had been cleaner of the worms.

James Buckland, of London, in a paper published in the Smithsonian report of 1913, says: "Some years ago the agriculturists of Hungary, moved to the insane step by ignorance and prejudice, succeeded in getting the sparrow (passer domesticus) doomed to destruction. Within five years the country was overrun with insects and these same men were crying for the bird to be given back to them lest they should perish. The sparrow was brought back and, driving out the hordes of devastating insects proved the salvation of the country."

Scott & Bowen, Bloomfield, N. J.

Massachusetts State Ornithologist, wrote us some time ago, in reply to our question about the sparrow, as follows:

"If we were rid of the sparrows and had our native birds back, no doubt we could attract them into our cities and they would protect the trees, but if we should destroy the sparrows, I suppose the other insects would increase, particularly the geometrid caterpillars which the sparrow was imported to destroy."

"Personally, I should deprecate very much any widespread effort to destroy the English Sparrow, for I think that the bird is now fastened upon us and extermination is impossible. Any popular attempt to destroy the sparrows will result in the destruction of other birds more useful than the sparrow. I should not object, however, to the sparrows being destroyed by trustworthy, reliable citizens in any case where it might seem necessary for the public welfare to have this done."

There is no doubt in our judgment from personal observation and conversation with careful observers; that the English Sparrow in America is changing his habits and becoming more and more an insectivorous bird. We have watched him destroying the brown-tail and gipsy mouths, climbing about fruit trees, searching for insects. This very summer with a flock of over fifty sparrows living about our place, every one of a number of bird houses on the premises had been occupied by bluebirds and house wrens, and in the trees more robins and vireos, and in the garden more chipping sparrows have nested than during the past six years. For twenty years we have observed the sparrow with more than usual care. We have never seen him attack a bird of another species. That he is often a nuisance, building his nest over windows and shutters, even his best friend would not deny. In this, however he is not a worse sinner than the pigeon.

The United States department of agriculture has a large force which devotes its entire time to developing new by-products and methods of saving material now wasted.

The population of the United States has increased by 24,000,000 people in the last 15 years, and the number of beef animals has decreased 6,000,000 and sheep 10,000,000 while hogs have increased 11,000,000.

"College drinking songs are on the decline. The University of Pennsylvania has taken action prohibiting the further use of songs that are fit only for drinking bouts. Wine and song have long gone together. The former often seems a harmless indulgence in the presence of the merry spirit of the latter."

Because his seven-year old daughter, after working all day in the field, sobbed herself to sleep at night, a Pennsylvania farmer kicked her to death, and then carried the body to a stone pile under an apple tree and then claimed that she had fallen and killed herself. Her brother, aged nine, saw the crime committed, told his mother and the farmer was arrested.

Special Demonstration and Sale Great Majestic Ranges

"The Range With a Reputation"

For One Week Only Commencing November 20.

This $8.00 set of Granite and Copper Ware FREE

As a special inducement during our demonstration week only, we will give with every Majestic sold, one handsome set of Kitchen ware as illustrated. Every piece is the finest of its kind and the entire set cannot be purchased for less than $8.00. The price of the Majestic remains the same as always and the quality of the stove is the same. This kitchen ware is an out and out present. See it at the store.

Everybody Welcome

Even though you do not want to buy a new range right now, it will be worth your while to attend this demonstration and know all about the Majestic Range. You are placed under no obligation to buy.

During this week we will have a special demonstrator from the Majestic Factory to explain how the Majestic is made and why it is absolutely the best range; why it lasts longer and cuts down repair expenses; why it bakes bread evenly, top, sides and bottom without turning; why it uses little fuel and saves waste. He will explain its labor saving construction and why it heats an abundance of water good and hot—a mighty convenient and useful thing to have a big supply of hot water on hand isn't it. To buy a range by mail is almost certain to end in disappointment and loss of money. It may be "exactly as represented" yet not what you thought it was nor what you wanted.

Here you can see every part of Majestic—you can know what you are getting before you buy. Decide now that you will discontinue using that old, worn-out range. You will save money in fuel, repairs, and cooking. Buy a Majestic—the range with 25 years' reputation. The demonstrator will answer any question relating to stoves.

Boys and girls, old and young, you can have a world of fun with the Majestic Aeroplane. It is easily made to fly from 10 to 50 feet in the air. You will all want one. Don't fail to get yours. Washing With the Windmill.

I would like to tell how we have saved work in doing our washing by using the windmill to do the machine work.

We had a washing machine from which was removed the balance wheel then built 2 x 4 lever 66 inches long. At a point 22 inches from the top was fastened a piece of well pipe, each end of which was fastened to tower posts, and also from this point a cross bar was fastened which is connected to the pump rod by means of a bolt. At the top of the lever a wire was attached and runs across the opposite side of the tower and attached to a large spring, which came off an old plow. This lever was connected to a washing machine with a horizontal pitman, which can be any length desired to reach from mill to the machine. This pitman is bolted to the lever and can be raised up, and is hooked to a wire when we wish to shut off the machine at the end of the pitman, which attaches to handle of the machine. Two straps of iron 2 inches long were bolted and notches fitted to fit on to the bolt which was put through the handle of the machine.

It takes very little wind to work the machine.

We have built a wash mouse on one side of windmill, in which we can heat the water, and, as we have to use well water, much work is saved in carrying water to and from the house. A drain pipe takes the water from the machine saving carrying out the water.—National Alfalfa Journal.

Got License and the Judge, but Mexican Was Minus a Bride.

L. P. Loomis, justice of the peace, married a Mexican couple last Friday—almost. All that stood in the way of the ceremony was the absence of the bride. The Mexican hombre had a license for which he paid a good round dollar, and he thought the judge could do the rest. The girl was willing but her dotting parents were not, and they would not let the girl leave the box car. They said the Mexican was no buena. All the unhappy hombre wanted the judge to do was to go down to said box car, take charge of the girl under the majesty of the law, place her by his good right side and pronounce them happy ever after. We demurred and told the man we would perform the ceremony for cinco pesos but we could not furnish the bride at that price. The crowd on the street was in entire sympathy with the Mexican going to bridegroom and considered going down to Mexican quarters and getting that bride for him. He sure wanted that little senorita for his own, but now has a license for sale at second-hand price.—Slaton Slatonite.

A Deadly Winter.

It has been a deadly season, which can't be denied; and there was no rhyme or reason in the way men died. I would hear a comrade coughing; "See the doc," I'd say, and he'd leave me mildly scoffing, to cash in next day. I would say to some one sneezing, "Dope, ere it gets worse!" He would laugh, and then go breezing graveyard in the hearse. Nobly did the men of science exercise their skill, using up-to-date appliance, potion, drug and pill; daily, nightly they were waging war against the foe; but the demon GIP went raging laying people low. All in vain their dark brown bitters; all in vain their pills, sneezing to the last; poor critters climbed the sunset hills. Epidemics are so senseless as in Europe's war; foolish, cruel and defenseless, say, what are they for? What's the use of people dying, croaking in platoons, while the doctors, nobly trying, cannot cure for prunes.—Walt Mason.

Colonel Roosevelt appears to think at this time that, had we warned Germany in time, Belgium would not have been invaded. Still, Great Britain warned Germany did it not?—Chicago Daily News.

The New York Times is authority for the statement that Hughes is alone the cause of his losing the vote of California. He campaigned in the state, and upon arriving in San Francisco, he stayed at the same hotel as Governor Hiram Johnson, but did not do Johnson the courtesy of calling upon him.

After much twisting around in the election returns, it is turning out that the New York Herald was about right in its forecast of the election. The Herald has issued forecasts in twelve presidential elections, which have been within a few electors votes of true, and they have always picked the winning candidate.

J. L. Pope has resigned his position with the Amarillo News to become promoter of the Ozark Trail. B. N. Timmons takes his place as editor of the News. Pope is a booster and so is Timmons. The News will flourish under the new editorial management.

Miss Ida M. Farrell announced last week that she had sold her paper, the Gazier Review. We trust that she does not contemplate leaving the Panhandle. The Panhandle Press Association would be a dead one without the management of Miss Farrell.

It is certainly a cheerful thought that a president of these United States can be elected without the aid, and with the opposition, of Wall Street and Chicago.

The women of the east who could not vote, had a great deal of influence over the women of the west who could vote. Practically all of the suffrage states went for Wilson.

The O'Learys and the rest of the similar bunch did exactly as Wilson voted for, and the real Americans voted for Wilson.

Truly the West is in the saddle. No longer does it bow to the will of Wall Street.

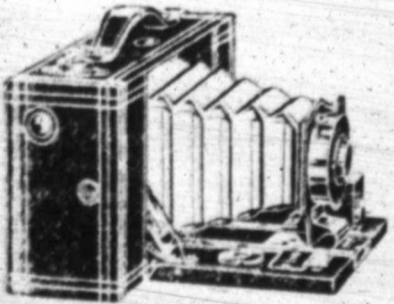

The work of the hypenated was so disgusting to the real Americans that the latter all went for Wilson.

After all the much despised "watchful waiting" policy (from a republican standpoint) is what the American people admire.

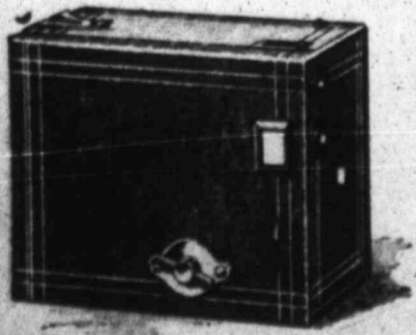

The solid west and the solid south have a right to be proud of themselves.

City Pharmacy The Rexall Store

The Chicago Tribune is greatly peeved at California for going to Wilson, but does not say anything about the rest of the states west of the Mississippi and those east of the Mississippi. Any way it works out, California just smiles and gets several thousand dollars worth of free advertising.

It was not so much the democratic party, as it was Woodrow Wilson who won the battle of votes.

Congressman Marvin Jones is for a new postoffice building at Plainview. Jones is certainly learning the ways of his new job.

If Hughes had been elected there are several thousand democratic postmasters who would have looked at gloomy as he now does.

America Invincible.

Lockney Bacon: All this talk about the gold of the world being cornered by Europe seems nonsense to us. Just how those bankrupts of Europe can corner anything after they have fought until they can't fight any more is more than we can see. It seems that beggars can not be choise in the kind of money we use.

Correct. To predict a bankrupt decrepit Europe returning to old way in half an hour after the war closes, and in two weeks flooding the world with "cheap goods," is all nonsense. Europe will be a hundred years in getting back to where she was in 1913. All sorts of manufactured articles have been depleted in every belligerent country, and it will take the Europeans a long time to rebuild their home stocks of peace-time necessities. In Germany and Austria, for instance the people are in rags, their store shelves are bare, their farm machinery half worn out, their live stock all but gone, their food supply precarious, their feet in wooden shoes or no shoes at all. The same conditions prevail to an almost equal degree in Russia and France. Before any of the fighting nations can turn a wheel in the world manufacture it must change its manufacturing plants from the present war basis back to the peace basis and do that they must import new machinery by the hundreds of millions of dollars worth. England alone of all the European countries will be in condition from present appearances to seriously compete with American within two years after the war. And in England the taxes will be so high that English prices will have to correspond which means that we can undersell England wherever we meet her. It is just as a German paper stated a few days ago—America has become the heir to Europe. Every nation on earth must pay tribute to us in one form or another.—State Press in the Dallas News.

The Manufacturer's Record of Baltimore, the leading commercial journal of the United States, recently sent an inquiry to the head man of each bank in the States of Alabama, West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and S. Carolina, all of which have gone state-wide prohibition asking, "Can you say whether prohibition has been helpful to savings bank accounts and general moral and economic conditions or not?" Of the replies 82 per cent are in the affirmative (and many of them very emphatic) 9 per cent replied that they could see no benefit from prohibition while 9 per cent are non-committal. Whiskey selling and drinking has no part in successful business these days. Texas and Louisiana are now the only Southern States where liquor can be legally sold (and only in a few spots in Texas), and in next year's election it is an almost foregone conclusion the Lone Star State will completely banish the saloon for the saloon is doomed everywhere! "So mote it be."—Plainview News.

Observes the Lubbock Avalanche: "Everything is done in a hurry on the Plains. The people out in this country are very much alive and do things." Correct. The spirit of "Do things" is building an empire in the Plains country just as the same spirit develops and builds in every section of the state where eternal hustle the price of progress and prosperity, prevails.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

A man paints his house and beautifies his yard. Along comes the taxing board and raises the valuation on the property. There is no question that the place is worth more after the owner has spent his money and time on it, yet it does seem strange that the taxing system should penalize the fellow who would improve his property while showing all leniency to the owner of the vacant lot held for speculation.—Plainview News.

PANHANDLE KAFIR SHORT ON STATE SHOWING.

The kafir yield of Northwest Texas has fell down in 1916, and consequently the Texas, showing on this crop was below that of 1915, according to figures just announced by the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington.

According to the records of Secretary Houston there were 26,400,000 bushels of kafir raised in Texas this year as compared with 40,000,000 bushels last year. In the United States for the year there were raised 61,000,000 bushels as against 114,460,000 bushels in 1915.

A summary of the preliminary estimates of crop production for the State of Texas and for the United States, as compiled by the Bureau of Crop Estimates and transmitted thru the Weather Bureau, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is as follows:

Corn—State: Estimate this year, 140,000,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate), 175,075,000 bushels. United States: Estimate this year, 2,640,000,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate), 3,054,535,000 bushels.

Wheat—State: October estimate, 10,923,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate), 22,862,000 bushels. United States: October estimate 607,557,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate) 1,011,505,000 bushels.

Oats—State: October estimate 31,008,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate) 44,375,000 bushels. United States: October estimate, 329,182,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate) 1,540,362,000 bushels.

Sweet Potatoes—State: Estimate this year 5,780,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate) 5,880,000 bushels. United States: Estimate this year 67,700,000 bushels; production last year (final estimate) 74,295,000 bushels.

Hay—State: September estimate, 486,000 tons; production last year (final estimate) 705,000 tons. United States: September estimate 36,155,000 tons; production last year (final estimate) 85,255,000 tons.

Kafirs—State: Estimate this year 26,400,000 bushels; last year 40,000,000 bushels. United States: Estimate this year 61,000,000 bushels last year 114,460,000 bushels.

The first price given below is the average on November 1, this year and the second, the average on November 1 last year.

State: Wheat 164 and 165 cts per bushel. Corn, 88 and 86. Oats 52 and 40. Potatoes 178 and 107. Hay $9.70 and $7.50 ton. Cotton, 10.7 and 11.7 cents per pound. Eggs 27 and 21 cents per dozen.

United States: Wheat—188.0 and 93.1 cents per bushel. Corn, 85.0 and 61.9 cents. Oats 49.0 and 34.9 cents. Potatoes, 136.0 and 60.8 cents. Hay, $10.68 and $10.53 per ton. Cotton, 18.0 and 11.6 cents per pound. Eggs 32.0 and 26.3 cents per dozen.

When word comes that the price of wheat has declined on account of the activity of German submarines, we say hooray for the submarines. But when the further announcement comes that cotton is off several points on account of the submarines, we say every submarine in the world ought to be drowned. 'Twas ever thus. It makes a big difference whether our ox is gored to the gizzard or given a feed of hay. We are buyers of wheat and sellers of cotton in this neck of the woods.—Honey Grove Signal.

An engineer running out of Slaton on the Santa Fe said to the editor of the Slatonite one day this week: "You can't imagine the horror of an engineer's feelings when he sees an automobile speeding to cross the railroad track ahead of his train. There are thousands of things that might cause an automobile to stall on the crossing and an engineer would be powerless to stop his train to prevent accident. It makes us cringe every time we see an automobile trying to beat a train to a crossing." Foolomania and speedomania and an automobile form a reckless triumvirate.—Slaton Slatonite.

Gov. Ferguson in an address before the Waco Lawyer's Luncheon Club, declared the law's delay was a crime upon civilization. The Governor said the main trouble with the present judicial system of Texas, as he found it, was not that good laws were lacking, but that dispatch and efficiency were wanting in their application. He referred to the "law's delay as crime against civilization." Governor Ferguson said he intended to urge the next legislature to abolish all practice acts now on the statute books permitting the Supreme Court of the State to establish and regulate the practice in all courts.—Lockney Beacon.

Who Needs it Worse?

Who needs a thorough course of Farm Bookkeeping and Business Training worse than the farmer? No one. That is just why the Tyler Commercial College gives, in connection with its course of Bookkeeping and Business Training, without extra charge, a series of lectures on systematic Farming and a set of books specially adapted to farm accounting. The farmer who at the close of each day's work makes a complete record of everything done that day, its cost, etc., is learning to study the details of the business, to watch and observe the little things, and he is compiling valuable information for reference, and at the end of the year, he knows just what each crop as cost him; where his gain and losses come from, and by close study and application, he will the next year lessen the losses and increase the gain. The farm needs the trained mind as badly as the store or the railroad office. The farmer needs to be able to write a good hand, to spell correctly, to figure rapidly and accurately, to know how to write deeds, or to know when they are properly written, to write mortgages, notes, contracts, etc. We would advise our young men who are farming or who expect to farm to give this matter careful consideration. We also give a thorough course in the Classing and Marking of Cotton, a subject of vital importance to our young men. The Tyler Commercial College has had many a young man to take the business course with the sole aim of going back to the farm and making the best farmer in the community, and a leader in all progressive movements.

Write for catalogue, to the only commercial school in this country that is devoting any attention whatever to this subject, mentioning you are interested in Farm Accounting or Cotton Classing. The Tyler Commercial College, of Tyler Texas.

Ships to the number of 2097 have passed through the Panama canal in the last two years, and the tolls have amounted to $7,000,000. It is probably useless to conjecture now what the business of the canal would have been were it not for the European war, but there can be no objection to the entertainment of some very hopeful views regarding its probably annual business with the return of peace.

Unless there are laws against the exportation of foodstuffs or freight rates are many times higher than he estimated he can easily make 35 to 50 cents a bushel profit on imported potatoes.

Carl Williams and Joe Marx, newspaper agents, Jackson, Mississippi, were fined $50 each in police court for selling copies of a Chicago newspaper containing a liquor advertisement. Where Open-Minded People and Tight-Minded People Differ

By EVERETT DEAN MARTIN

There are just two kinds of people in the world, open-minded people and tight-minded people. Open-minded people are naturally born generous. They are tolerant. They are not easily scandalized. They do their own thinking, and they let others do the same. They are not afraid of names or party labels, and when it comes to a final test, they think more of a living human being than they do of an abstract idea. Their ideas are not like little hard wads of truth, but are streams of life, free and flowing. Somehow, open-minded people have a way of feeling that life is bigger and more reliable than our little human notions, and so they are not worried for fear the world is going to the dogs every time the spiritual atmosphere changes.

But tight-minded people do not feel quite at home in this universe. They go through life all cramped up and shivering, so to speak. They are afraid of everything strange. New ideas shock them. Naked truths embarrass them. They are such strangers to the great realities of life that they never recognize them walking around in new millinery. Tight-minded people are a little suspicious of progress; they always take their intellectual silverware to bed with them. They are afraid to trust reality in the dark. They also want to keep everything in this universe tied up in neat little bundles and stored away in bandboxes. They are very "old-maidish" in their methods of mental housekeeping, never having given birth to any new ideas whose play upsets the perfect orderliness of their minds. Tight-minded people are like cookie cutters. They throw away all of life that does not come within their own little circle, and yet they call the frightful wastefulness "conservatism." Tight-mindedness is a kind of spiritual convulsion. It is a disease.

WASHINGTON PLAYERS ALL SWEAR BY WALTER JOHNSON

Star Hurler's Disposition Is as Valuable an Asset to Him as His Wonderful Pitching Arm.

With few exceptions star ball players bring about a condition on a team which proves detrimental to its success. Walter Johnson, however, is a player who differs from most stars in this respect. Were it left to a vote of the players he would be unanimously chosen as the most popular man on the team, and it's all because of the ideal disposition of the young man who holds the distinction of being the greatest pitcher in the game today.

Johnson's success has never affected his head. He is wearing the same sized hat today that he wore the evening he reported from Weiser, Ind. He does not consider himself above obeying orders and never objects to anything he is told to do. But, best of all, Walter is loyal to his team and his teammates. He roots hard for the other pitchers, and has never been known to complain when errors have lost him a ball game.

Johnson's disposition is as valuable to him as that wonderful pitching arm, and there is never a time when every man on the team with him is not trying to do everything possible to help him win.

Taking Nitric Acid From Air.

All the explosives used in this world war are formed from such apparently harmless bodies as cotton, glycerin and tar products, by treating them with nitric acid, the strength of which has to be maintained by admixture with sulphuric acid. Until quite late in the nitric acid essential for the production of the explosives now in use could be made only by distilling such nitrates as those of potassium and sodium, with sulphuric acid, and if we had still been dependent on this source all the powers engaged in the present war would have been stalemated by want of explosives, so enormous has been the amount of acid used. During the last few years, however, methods have been discovered for making nitric acid from the air, and at the present time, wherever cheap water power can be obtained for the generating of electricity, the acid is being produced in sufficient quantities to make up the necessary amount.

POULTRY POINTERS

Too many beginners make the mistake of trying to raise four or five breeds or varieties of poultry. This is a serious mistake as very few experienced poultry men, let alone a beginner, can make a success of more than one breed. "One breed bred right" is better than two bred wrong.

Buying eggs is a mighty cheap way of getting new blood. In many cases we can procure eggs from birds that simply couldn't be bought at all. In many cases, a single bird raised from a setting of eggs, is worth many times the cost of the entire setting.

Hens that are set during hot weather should be given a reasonably cool and comfortable place. If they are set where it is hot during the day or night they are likely to overheat the eggs and sometimes become so uncomfortable that they leave the nest.

Fowls and chicks that are kept in yards must have a good supply of tender, fresh green food every morning. Fresh cut young clover, fed while the dew is on, is good for this purpose.

Separate the growing cockerels from the pullets, and give the former an extra allowance of food, especially if you are growing them for market.

Great size of an abdominal pouch in a goose indicates great age, a fact that is useful in purchasing breeding stock.

Never try to keep a hen with chicks after she wants to wren them for if you do, she is likely to injure them and perhaps kill some.

A few guineas on every farm will ent a lot of bad bugs and grow into sealgame for some epicure's table. They bring good prices.

There is no better way to rid the enemy than by allowing filth to abound. A lousy hen eventually becomes a diseased one.

No green food is better enjoyed than fresh lawn clippings, which are a treat to both old and young stock.

Dog Hero of the Trenches.

"We had a French soldier brought in frightfully wounded," says Dr. Mary Crawford, a Cornell graduate, who served in a French hospital. In the Cornell Women's Review. "One leg had to be amputated, and, besides that, he had a half-dozen other wounds. His dog came with him, a hunting dog of some kind. This dog had saved his master's life. They were in the trenches together when a shell burst in such a way as to collapse the whole trench. Every man in it was killed or buried in the collapse, and this dog dug until he got his master's face free so that he could breathe, and then he sat by him until some reinforcements came and dug them all out. Every one was dead but this man. Isn't that a beautiful little story? We have both dog and man with us. The dog has a little house all to himself in the court and he has blankets and food and lot of petting, and every day he is allowed to be with his master for a little while."

An Original Club.

There exists in one of our great western cities a unique secret club—called by the members Get-Out and Get-On club. It was organized 11 years ago by 10 ambitious men who looked upon themselves as not yet having won success. Membership for 12 years has been limited to 50. The rules are what makes this club different. No member may call himself a success until the club votes him one and when the club votes any member a success he is expelled and his place is filled by another. But before a success is expelled a dinner is given in his honor and to welcome the next member. At this dinner the success must read a paper explaining to his fellows how and why he won. These papers are preserved.—American Mugazine.

The following is an extract from a two column editorial in the Fort Record upon the election: He made striking gains in the New England states.

He captured organized labor in the middle west. He won the Scandinavian votes of the Northwest.

He enlisted the support of the big wheat farmers of Kansas and Nebraska. He converted the Mormons of Utah Idaho and Wyoming to the faith of the Democratic fathers.

He fascinated the faith of the feminine voters of the Rocky Mountain states. He corralled the Atez sovereigns of New Mexico.

He subdued the elephant and hypnotized the bull moose of California and transformed the political power of this republic to the states lying south of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi river.

Since the close of the Civil War the Democrats have elected three presidents. They elected Samuel J. Tilden. He was counted out. They elected Grover Cleveland. He refused to be counted out. Defeated for re-election by Benjamin Harrison, he came again and gave this country a magnificent administration. Then the silver craze seized upon the people and the Democrats of the south and west repudiated the leadership of the greatest statesman of their party for fifty years.

THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR Backache, Rheumatism and Dropsy.

KIDNEY, BLADDER and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased, these natural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There follow depression, aches, and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rheumatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstinate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints, it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatica. Write Dr. Pierce at once. Send 10c. for large trial pkg. "Anurie." During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system from meat eaten, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good time to take "Anurie," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for kidney trouble and backache. 50c. at druggists.

ARE WITHOUT WATER

Curious Colony of Zoological Total Abstainers.

Island That Has No Water on It, Not Even a Swamp—Unless Dew Can Slake Thirst Must Do Without Drink.

Recent investigations on the little-known and rarely visited Henderson or Elizabeth island have led to the discovery of a complete and curious little colony of zoological total abstainers. The island, which is uninhabited, is situated about 120 miles northeast of Pitcairn island—itsself sufficiently out of the way, but famous as the home of the descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty.

There is no water on it, not even a swamp, and it is only six miles long, yet it harbors quite a menagerie—a kind of rat, a lizard, described as very abundant, and no fewer than four kinds of birds, all peculiar to the island. These are a fruit pigeon, a lorikeet or honey-eating parakeet, a little rail or crane and a reed warbler. The strange thing about the inmates of this curious little natural aviary of coral rock, surrounded by waves instead of wires, is that two of its inmates are birds, one especially associated with water—the rail and the warbler.

Yet it is evident that these, like the rest, must do without drinking, unless the dew can slake their thirst, or they have acquired toleration for sea water as a beverage. A similar case is that of the peculiar and very handsome wild goose of the Sandwich islands, which frequents the barren lava flows, where there is no permanent water supply, but thistle and berries. Here we get an even more aquatic type of bird marooned on dry land, but the Sandwich island goose takes to water readily enough when kept in Europe. "As to the existence of animals without drinking, it is well known that many have the power of sustaining themselves in this way, and the phenomenon occurs irrespective of their diet being vegetable or animal, at any rate in some cases," says the Standard in commenting upon Henderson island life. "Rabbits as is well known can live without water if given plenty of salad, and so can parrots if supplied with soap; yet both will drink on occasions. So will hawks and owls, but these birds can subsist for long periods without drinking in captivity; in fact, under the old management at the zoo the owls never had any water given them. Neither did the curious hornbills, which are by nature chiefly fruit eaters, receive any. They have the opportunity of drinking now, but do it so awkwardly trying to peck up the water with their great bills that the habit hardly seems natural.

It has been recorded that a great bustard lived for months in captivity without drinking, although the species does drink occasionally; and it may be suggested that the bustards are a family of birds accustomed to frequent dry places and hence have acquired a power of abstinence.

"But, setting aside the fact that the great bustard is often found near water, this explanation would not serve in the case of parrots and hornbills, which are as a rule forest birds; moreover, the family of birds most especially associated with desert conditions—the sand grouse—does not show any tendency to dispense with drinking. Indeed they are very dependent on water, flying to their drinking place twice daily, and watering their chicks by soaking their own underplumage in the fluid, which is afterward sucked off by the young.

"The camel itself, proverbial for its adaptation to the desert and endurance of thirst, is equally in need of drinking, although on account of the water storage arrangements in its stomach it can do without a fresh supply for days. Yet its endurance of thirst can be maintained only about twice as long as that of the horse kept under similar conditions; and as an abstainer it cannot compare with the giraffe, the eland and some of the other antelopes, which can subsist without drinking for months at a time and probably indefinitely.

"Ability to exist without drinking is evidently a physiological peculiarity of certain species of families of animals, and it is obvious from what has been said above that this power is capriciously disturbed and has no necessary connection with the creature's environment, though under the pressure of circumstances it may become invaluable."

Folk We Touch In Passing

WHOSE WIFE?

The Man and The Woman were in a public place. They looked into each other's eyes and were conscious of a distinct sense of recognition, although they knew perfectly well that never before had they touched in passing. The Man felt impelled to take her at once into his arms and hold her there for all time. Thus they stood apart looking into each other's eyes.

Then the crowd surged and they were lost to each other.

For many months thereafter The Man sought The Woman everywhere, and when at last he found her she was watching two children at play, and the smile in her eyes was the sort of smile that has its well-spring only in a mother's adoring heart. The Man watched her unseen and understood. A week later found him in a distant city, where, after a few years he died.

The Woman never knew what became of The Man. She never saw him again after the day they had looked into each other's eyes and passed on. Sometimes she thought of him, but more often she did not, for her days were filled with duties to The Husband, and the children she brought him. Year by year she lived at his side, mindful of his creature comforts; sympathetic in the hours of his perplexities; proud of his achievements; interested in the home into the secret chambers of her soul and feel at home there. And sometimes, in retrospective moments, The Woman wondered whose wife she would be in the Great Beyond, whereupon she turned to the Nazarene's assurance of the Sadducees that "In the Anastasis they are as the Angels of God in Heaven. They neither marry nor are given in marriage," and in her heart she was glad, for somehow neither of her matrimonial ventures had created within her any keen desire for their eternal perpetuation, although the world called her a fortunate woman in the matter of her mates.

One day The Woman fell ill. The doctor assured the Second Husband that she would not live, and The Woman, hearing, was thrilled with a sudden sense of happiness.

She looked on the kind, troubled face of the Second Husband and knew as she looked that she was fond of him. She had also been fond of the First Husband. They were both good men and true and no woman could have companioned them in their respective homes without acquiring a sincere affection for either, but just the same The Woman was rather glad, in a feeble sort of way, that marriage was all done with. She lay in her bed very ill and very tired, and had a clear vision of the Sadducees asking the Master whose wife the woman who had seven husbands would be in the Anastasis, and she was in-she made him; devoted to the children God had given her, and in all she was not unhappy, although never once in her companionship with The Husband did she lift the veil which hung between him and her soul that he might see into the source of her being.

The Husband had been gone to the Land Behind the Veil for more than two years before the woman thought of marrying again. He had been good to her, and he had left her comfortably situated in the matter of this world's goods, but she was unutterably lonely. Their children had become old enough to be consumed by their individual interests and The Woman was desolate.

The Second Husband was also a good man, much on the type of the first, and The Woman found herself very fond of him when, for the sake of companionship, she had become his wife.

In the interim of her widowhood she had not, however, forgotten The Man. The thought of him always brought her a peculiar sense of peace, but somehow she ceased to hope that he would in any way cross the path of her life again. So she took up the threads which the First Husband's death had broken, and wove them into her new life with the Second Husband, but as it had been before, she gave nothing of her soul in the weaving. The bond between them was pleasant enough, but it was of the earth, earthly.

It often set The Woman to thinking, especially when the twilight hours brought their lengthening shadows, and a certain sense of craving for one who could walk straight wardly smiling rather contentedly over the reply the Savior had made when she heard the doctor at her bedside say to the Second Husband that the sands of her life were running low.

Suddenly she became conscious of a presence in her room other than her doctor and her family, and when she lifted her eyes it was to look, as in a far gone yesteryear, into the eyes of The Man, and now, as then, she felt her being suffused with radiance.

The Man stood apart. He held out his arms to her. The Woman, rising in her spiritual body, went unswervingly to his side, and the doctor turned to the Second Husband and told him that she had died, and The Woman hearing, remembered the words of the Master spoken so many centuries ago to the Sadducees, and fear followed the happiness which had lighted her eyes.

"He had reference to marriage in its earthly sense," The Man answered her thought. "No purely physical tie is perpetual. Only the spiritual is eternal. Death disrupts every union that is not of the spirit as well as of the body. You have always been my mate. You always will be."

"And the two men I have companioned for a time?" questioned The Woman, anxious for their happiness.

"Somewhere in the wonderful Universe of Spirit there is the altar ego—the complementary soul—for every one," the man made answer, taking The Woman's hand in his own.

And together they turned their faces toward Eternity.

What would be the result if we all followed the advice we give to others?

Devisor at Death Formulates Plans to Make His Boys Safe.

A wealthy man who died recently in Denver devised a highly sensible method of leaving his money to his three sons. Each of them is to receive five hundred dollars at the father's death, and at the end of each year thereafter for a term of years to receive a sum equal to what he has earned and saved during the year. Those boys will have an incentive to be economical and learn the important lesson of thrift. It is often said: "It is not what you can earn that makes you rich but it what you save." Seventeen states took part in the election and 176 electoral votes were cast. Jefferson and King were inaugurated president and vice president in Washington, March 4, 1805.

Radical Action Is Needed in America

New Conception of Duty on Part of the People is Necessary

By JAMES E. CLARK

If the United States is to be permanently, or even temporarily saved as a nation, there must be a new conception of duty, and a clear realization of our position as a people, and then a deep-set resolution to make radical changes in our mode of living. The realization must come to an overwhelming majority of Americans; sacrifices must be made by all classes of both sexes. The womanhood of America can do quite as much in bringing about the necessary revolution as can men.

Just as Israel Putnam left the team attached to the plow in the furrow to listen to the defense of his country, so must this generation turn from its present pursuits or the republic will fail.

The signs of the coming change are plain for whoever will read them. Nations are like men. There is scarcely a community in the United States today that does not possess individuals whose lives give open proof of the saying that "It is only three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves"—a homely way of saying that the wealth a man acquires by his industry and which he passes on to his sons and grandsons from similar application, finally reduces the latter to the shirt sleeve level on which the foundation of the fortune was laid. But the third generation is handicapped by loss of energy and by luxurious tastes developed in the day of affluence.

Wealth brings relief from strife, then luxury and indolent ease, which dims the vision and lowers the mental and physical man.

Nations Like Individuals. In the history of the nations there are similar cycles of time. First, there is the formative period when the wealth is few in number and work is well-nigh universal. Then after other stages, comes the era of great wealth, of many pleasures, of a numerous leisure class, with brain power weakened and the desire for ease fashioning simple excuses to avoid effort involving personal sacrifice. As a nation, the people of the United States are well within the latter stage.

The proof of this statement is to be found on every hand—in the existence of a great leisure class; in the ease with which the average man and woman may gain a luxurious livelihood with small effort, but most of all, in the tremendously important and significant fact that we have millions of persons who are actually nonproducers. Some of our greatest industries are devoted principally or wholly to the pleasures of the masses, and the circumstance that these industries give employment and high wages to many hands does not alter the truth of the statement that we are following with swift haste the pursuit of mere pleasure—a fool's paradise! Already we are weak, soft, and flabby and almost hopelessly wedded to pleasure just as were other great nations when they fell a prey to less refined, but more vigorous people who coveted the wealth of the highly civilized. The yellow peril is more than a catch phrase—it is a horrible reality.

Tyre and Carthage, great in their day, even as we are in our own, passed away and a period of great wealth preceded the decline. Jerusalem was destroyed and its people scattered. Greece was conquered and absorbed by Rome, and the Roman empire, once the conqueror, was dismembered and its glories finally extinguished. Assyria, Nineveh, Babylon, the Persia of Darius and Xerxes fell into decay and Egyptian civilization was undermined and fell on the heels of wealth and ease. There is still another list of fallen nations in Asia and in India, and coming nearer home there is Spain stripped of her old power and wealth.

Indications of Lethargy. The proof of the fact that the United States is entering into the lethargy, which from the beginning of the world has attended wealth and ease, is found in many familiar conditions of national life. There is, for instance, the lackadaisical interest taken by the average man in national defense, and reflected in a waste of two years after the weaknesses of our defenses became known. What nation save one that was losing its virility would tolerate such a condition at a time when the whole world is aflame as we now find in our own navy? We have no less than 70 ships still on paper or on the ways; we have no less than 70 more ships of all classes and kinds at anchor, tied up or out of commission, because we have no crews to man them. The navy is short from 25,000 to 30,000 men and we are going to build more ships. But at the same time there is no dearth of men for our great fleet of luxurious pleasure yachts plying the coast waters and the inland seas; no dearth of men to run the great fleet of pleasure cars; no dearth of men to man the countless pleasure palaces.

The army experts declare we need 1,000,000 troops to safeguard us against war—500,000 ready to take the field at once and 500,000 more as a second line. They have showed us that one nation can land 827,000 troops on the Atlantic and another can land 238,000 on the Pacific, but congress provides for a regular army of only 206,000 men, the increase to be made in five annual installments, and with little change in the pay or the attractiveness of the service, notwithstanding that labor was never so scarce, wages never so high. An increase of 20,000 men authorized some months ago for the army has not yet been secured because, though there are 1,000 recruiting officers looking for them, only about 9,000 have been found in three months.

National Guard Plan Fails. It is proposed to meet the requirements of national defense by distributing annually in the way of salaries and wages, between $50,000,000 and $80,000,000 to the National Guard of the states, and to bring the Guardsmen under the partial control of the federal officers. There are many fundamental obstacles to the success of this plan. By its adoption we are relying on the militia for military strength and this same reliance has always failed us, has caused a waste of treasure and of lives and has given the United States many years of needless war. Even as this measure was being agreed upon in Washington the futility of depending on militia was demonstrated, when the Guard of three southwestern states was called out. The men were few in number, inefficient, and responded unwillingly. There is nothing in this law just enacted that will prevent a recurrence of other disasters in our history like those which have always followed dependence upon militia. It takes a full year to make a dependable soldier whereas the Guardsmen have but two weeks of field training, and 48 weekly drills during the year. In any event, the federalizing of the National Guard cannot be enforced if the men do not wish to serve under federal jurisdiction. They get no pay and the matter stops there.

The day has gone by when we can reasonably expect to maintain the great army and the great navy that we need on the old standards of pay. The very wealth and the very people that the army and navy are needed to protect, beckon the possible recruit away from the service.

Always Danger of War. Another evidence of the relaxation of national perception due to our great commercial success, is the doubt that there is any need for national defenses. We have said to the old world nations, you must not acquire any territory in the new world and we have split the gates of the United States against peoples of the Orient. Each of these conditions is alone sufficient to embroil us in war at any time. If we should yield up both of these objections war would come swifter. Japan is determined to be recognized as an equal with the whole world, besides that she must find room for an annual surplus population of 1,000,000 persons. She wants our Pacific coast. As a preliminary to getting it she has planted over 40,000 of her men in the Hawaiian Islands and has established 20,000 men on the Pacific coast. The latter are not like Irish, Swedish, Italian, or other European immigrants who come as individuals to be welded into the life of the nation. The Japanese on the coast are government men. Their allegiance is to Tokyo, their profits go to Japan and their pay is fixed by their government!

If Japan chose to land an army on the Pacific coast now, we could not prevent it. She is ready; we are not ready. The man with the rifle on whom we have in the past placed dependence cannot save us now. He will be killed off by long range guns and machine guns long before he can get within striking distance. The Mikado has trained armies, a great navy, and the money. The persistently reported story of Japan's inability to finance a war is false.

Danger in State of Mind. These are some of the dangers we find on awakening from the long sleep which prosperity has enabled us to indulge in, but our great danger lies in our own state of mind, our own devotion to ease and money getting, our reluctance to lay aside the pursuit of profit long enough to reclaim ourselves and repair the neglect of years of our national defense. The failure of congress to cure this chronic ailment was to be expected. Congress is a representative body. It is a national mirror. In its action you see the national sentiments reflected; consequently, congress gave about what the people wanted for national defense. As a body it did not dare to give more. It legislated looking toward instead of overseas.

The remedy for this condition is a home remedy. It is first of all the realization that this nation cannot go on in the old way. One of two things must happen very soon. Either we must cease to cuddle in the lap of luxury, divert enough of our men and our money to real, actual, dependable armies—counting not at all on the parade soldiers—or we must soon be plunged into a war in which we shall at least be shorn of wealth and of men, a war from which we may emerge a fallen people. We can no longer delegate to somebody else the duty of being a soldier at nothing per day, and then look down at him for doing it.

National defense is the state of mind. When every man realizes that national defense involves his home, his life, the honor of his mother, his wife, his daughter, no matter whether he lives in New York city, or in Haskell, Kan., then this nation will again have set its foot on firm ground. Now we are soft-pumpered, softish, and soft and have traveled far on the road to decay. Universal training for service is one of the first steps for our reclamation.

Doris Chesser Dead.

Doris Chesser, aged five years, died Thursday and was buried Friday afternoon the services being conducted from the parental George Chesser home by Rev. W. H. Younger. Doris received a cut in her foot about a week before her death. Soon it began to pain her and after several days of suffering the knee and leg began to swell. It was thought blood poisoning was the ultimate cause of her death.

The decorations were large yellow and white chrysanthemums. Short Items of News.

One acre planted to bananas is said to produce the same food value as 40 acres of potatoes or 133 acres of wheat.

The good cotton prices have caused a great business boom in the interior of the state of Arkansas. Country merchants say that demand for merchandise is so great they cannot fill orders. There is more money in the Little Rock banks than ever before.

Prohibition went into effect in Virginia on November 1, when the Mapp Act became operative. This measure prohibits the sale of ardent spirits, except by certain bonded establishments, and restricts the shipment of liquor into the state. Some 650 liquor dealers will close their doors. You probably do not think of Hawaii in connection with automobiles, says the New York Times, yet there are no less than 2500 automobiles now registered in Honolulu alone, and that traffic policemen are stationed at intersections of business thoroughfares quite a la Manhattan.

One of the most arduous motor trips ever undertaken was successfully accomplished recently in Morocco. The trip, from Tangier on the Atlantic coast to the inland city of Fez was made by the Tangier automobile distributor in a touring car. The distance covered totaled over 500 miles and the time spent enroute occupied from July 28 till August 2. The trip is particularly interesting in that it marks the first entry of an automobile into the sacred and ancient capital of the Moors.

Prof. Claude E. Phillips, dean of the state normal school, Warrsburg Missouri, has started a crusade against the one-room rural school. He says such schools are inefficient and wasteful. As a remedy he proposes the consolidation of districts so that large buildings may be erected and a sufficient number of teachers employed to take care of the increased attendance and give the pupils the advantages of special instructors in the various branches. This plan is in force in some of the larger counties and has met with success, Prof. Phillips says. It has not been customary to hold civic celebrations in the town jail, but, with the advance of prohibition, it looks as if this might become the usual thing. A town in Manitoba has just held such a celebration. The people were invited to enter the jail, empty of prisoners for the first time in 30 years, and to listen to speeches on the significance of this fact. It is to be taken for granted that the audience knew without being told, that the empty jail was a direct result of the passing of the Manitoba temperance act; still they doubtless enjoyed hearing this point embellished in the addresses of their leading citizens.

And here is another piece of news that will make the girls say "horror." There is a shortage of hairpins. This war has just about put the art of hairdressing "on the fritz." Hairpins have finally come in for their full share of attention. Now that there may be a scarcity of them they are becoming cherished possessions. All coiffure builders have announced that hereafter when woman want the hair dressers they must bring along their own pins or there will be no elaborate arrangements of their crowning glory. And the explanation for this worse than terrifying possibility was that the countries which have always supplied the pins for milady's coiffeure are keeping all their metal at home for ammunition.
