Great Demand for Spring Wheat.

There is a great demand for spring wheat among the farmers of Randall county. It is almost impossible to get. A large acreage of oats, barley and spring wheat is being sown all over the county.

The very fine condition of the ground at this time makes all of the farmers feel that Randall county will have another bumper grain crop this year. The acreage would be much larger if the row crop was off the fields and the farmers could get help putting in their spring crops.

Roland Bush With The News.

Roland Bush arrived yesterday from Forney, Texas, to accept a position with the Randall County News. Mr. Bush is taking the position held for the past seven years by Herb R. Miller. Mr. Miller has been one of the most efficient workmen it has ever been our pleasure to have in the office, and we regret very much to have him leave, but he decided to go out to California and grow up with the country.

Mr. Bush's family will not move to Canyon until after the close of school.

High School Teacher Election.

J. M. Anderson was forced to resign his position at the high school on account of his health. Mr. Anderson recently took the position held by Miss Rose Frye. Miss Druella Shropshire of Clarendon has been elected by the board to fill the position. She comes very highly recommended.

STOCK JUDGING FREE TO BOYS

Course Offered by State Leader—One Boy From County Will Get Free Trip to Fifteen States.

The biggest thing yet offered to the boys of Randall county came this week in the offer of a free course in stock judging, which has been arranged by County Agent C. F. Walker, through H. Williamson, state leader of the boys and girls club work. All boys and girls of Randall county between 10 and 18 years of age are eligible to the course. Mr. Walker is asking that all boys and girls who want to take the judging course, to register with him at once.

Of those who take the course, three will be chosen to go to College Station in the fall with Mr. Walker. This is one of the greatest treats offered to the boys and girls who are interested in stock judging and seeing what other boys and girls are doing from all parts of Texas.

Furthermore, arrangements have been made for one of the three who goes to College Station and who makes the best record there to take a free trip through about fifteen states where he will have a chance to see the best live stock and crops in those states, and will be royally entertained throughout the trip. The boy selected will represent Randall County and will carry advertising matter from Randall county telling what the people of this county are doing. Several big firms of Texas are putting up several thousand dollars for this trip which will be made in the early fall, and there is not a boy in Randall county who does not want to make the trip.

As a further incentive to boys taking the free course in stock judging, is the fact that the boy who wins in the stock judging at College Station this fall gets to go to the International Stock Show at Chicago in December to represent the state of Texas. Randall County boys last year came very nearly winning this great honor and with the aid of this stock judging course offered through the summer, some boy from Randall county ought to be the Texas representative in Chicago this winter.

FINE BRED PIG BOUGHT BY ROFFEY AND KNIGHT

John Knight and H. C. Roffey have bought a pig from the Pine Crest Farm in Mississippi, sired by the famous herd boar, Scissors, which will be used for breeding purposes by these breeders.

Scissors is the greatest Duroc in America. His owners have refused $50,000 for him.

Randall county breeders are fortunate in getting such fine stock brought into the county.

City Property Sold.

G. G. Murry has bought the Chas. Gregg place north of the square.

NOTICE TO CITY TAX PAYERS

In order that the city may maintain its present standard, to say nothing of the improvements anticipated this spring, it will be necessary for us to render our real estate at a higher value than we have in the past. The law says we can not put our rate above 65c but we must put our real and personal property in at such a value as will keep the mill grinding, therefore, when the city assessor calls on you you will oblige yourself if you will put in your property at such a value as will save the equalizers from calling you before them; if it's valued too high it will promptly be lowered to equalize with your neighbor and we here especially call attention to people who have personal property to render. The assessor has been instructed to have every man swear to his own rendition if he can be found and all notes and accounts are to be rendered according to law. At least one-fourth of our values have been getting away through this channel. This year our equalizers will go through the County records and compare rendition and records and as far as possible see to it that every note, in or out of the county which should be, has been rendered, etc.

The following is the law that we will undertake to follow:

Article No. 7510, Revised Civil Statute of Texas.

All property, real and personal, except such as is required to be listed and assessed otherwise, shall be listed and assessed in the county where it is situated; and all personal property subject to taxation and temporarily removed from the State or county, shall be listed and assessed in the county of the residence of the owner thereof, or in the county where the principal office of such owner is situated.

Supreme Court holds in the 13 S. W. Report, Page 30. Intangible personal property such as credits are taxed at the place of the residence of the owner.

For special instructions as how to render notes see the Assessor. J. D. GAMBLE, Mayor.

REV. HOLIFIELD TO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Clovie Pastor Accepts Call from Local Church—Takes Up Work Here By First of March.

Rev. Ted P. Holifield of Clovie has accepted a call from the Canyon Presbyterian Church, and will move here about the first of the month to begin his work. He will preach his first sermon as pastor on Sunday, March 7. Rev. and Mrs. Holifield were in the city the first of the week getting acquainted. He is an energetic young man who has done a notable work in the Clovie church and the local congregation feel that they are especially fortunate in getting him as pastor.

The following statement is made in the Clovie Journal of last week:

On last Sunday morning Rev. Ted P. Holifield resigned the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church at this place to take effect about the first week in March. Mr. Holifield received a call to the pastorate of the Canyon, Texas, Presbyterian Church and has accepted the work there.

Mr. Holifield accepted the pastorate of the Clovie Presbyterian Church nearly three years ago and has made as many friends in and out of his church as any pastor that was ever in Clovie, and his good work will be felt here for many years to come. He is not only a sincere, energetic pastor but also an enterprising progressive citizen. The best wishes of every man, woman and child will go with Ted Holifield and his family to Canyon and the Presbyterian Church there is to be congratulated on securing such an able man in charge of its work. Mr. Holifield will continue to fill the pulpit at the church here for the next two Sundays.—Clovie Journal.

MEMORIAL DIPLOMAS MAILED; NO SERVICES TO BE HELD

Post Commander Henry C. Gamble yesterday received a telegram from the El Paso office that the Memorial Diplomas for Randall county men had been mailed directly to the next in kin owing to the large amount of work in the office it was impossible to get them out for the day set for the memorial exercises, Washington's Birthday. Mr. Gamble has had the Diplomas for the navy and will now mail these to the next in kin, and no services will be held in Randall county.

These Memorial Diplomas were issued by the French government to the next in kin of the men of the American army and navy who were killed in action or who died while in the American service. The distribution was left to the local posts of the American Legion, but owing to the congestion at El Paso in forwarding the Diplomas all over the state no services were held on Washington's birthday in Texas.

Flu Situation Improves.

No new cases of flu have been announced during the past few days and physicians believe that that epidemic is passed. Zsuzsa Graf, Leading Lady, Well Known Among Theatre Goers

Mr. Devereux is producing classic drama in a competent, refined and dignified manner, thereby encouraging and developing higher standards of education and enlightenment and awakening a broader interest in the stage as an institution of thought as well as recreation.

To this end he has, during the past seven years, produced the following plays. Everyman, Morality play; As You Like It, Twelfth Night; Comedy of Errors, Taming of the Shrew, Much Ado About Nothing, and Romeo and Juliet by William Shakespeare; School for Scandal and The Critic by Richard Brinsley Sheridan; She Stoops to Conquer by Oliver Goldsmith; The Learned Ladies and The Doctor by Compulsion by Moliere; The Great Galeoto by Echegaray; Romancers by Rostand; Love and Geography by Bjornson; The Bishop's Candlesticks by Victor Hugo; The Boor and The Proposal by Tchekoff; Indian Summer by Meilhac and Halvey; The Stronger by Strindberg; The League of Youth and Ghosts by Ibsen; Arms and the Man by Bernard Shaw; The Tents of the Arabs by Lord Dunsany.

While all of the above plays are not available at all times, there are always four or five that are in active production. Each year new plays are added to the repertoire.

MR. DEVEREUX

"Efficient as a director, Mr. Devereux combines with this rare gift a marvelous personality and a remarkable sense of characterization. Naturalness and directness mark his acting with an outstanding greatness—his performances have the repose, ease and individuality of a great artist. He pours thru the channel of his dramatic faculty such resources of intelligence, strength and personal magnetism as mark him a genius of the first order, while they make him an irresistible force in art."

MISS GRAF

The still a young woman, Miss Graf has played many parts, and her irresistible personality permeates each of the great roles she interprets, stamping her one of the most interesting and conspicuous figures upon the American stage. She possesses extreme youth, classic beauty, great charm and rare intelligence.

THE COMPANY

Varies in size according to the requirements of the plays being presented. Many of the members of the company have been with Mr. Devereux for a period covering several years. This results in the marvelously unified and well balanced performances that have characterized the work of this organization since its inception. The following artists who have, from time to time, been associated with the organization are a criterion of the standard of excellence which Mr. Devereux maintains: Leslie Austen, Daisy Belmore, Hallet Bosworth, Henry Buckler, Ralph Bradley, Dennis Cleugh, J. Sayre Crawley, Reynolds Evans, Grace Fisher, Edmund Forde, Charles Flemming, V. L. Granville, George Hare, James Hogan, Robert Hamilton, Frank Howson, Horace James, Bennett Kilpack, Viola Knott, Frederick Kaufman, P. J. Kelly, Millicent McLaughlin, Butler Mandeville, William Podmore, Ernest Rowan, Edith Randolph, Douglas Ross, Murray Stevens, Erskine Strayford, Agnes Elliot Scott, John Wray and Charles Webster.

THE PRODUCTIONS

In producing drama, Mr. Devereux believes in an unobtrusive background that is suggestive, and while he studies the psychological effect of light and color in his productions he achieves the simple and avoids the distracting detail of realism.

THE COSTUMES

Are designed and executed with great care by our own staff in the Devereux studio, 203 and 205 West 40th street, New York.

Panhandle Teachers' Association To Meet.

The Panhandle Teachers' Association will convene at the West Texas State Normal College on March 21st. President L. M. Fertsch, Superintendent of Schools at Hereford, is at work on the program, which will be announced soon. This will be a great gathering of people inspired by the same lofty ideals, and every teacher of the Plains country should make arrangements to be present. The public is awaking to the fact that teachers must be paid a higher salary; the teachers must meet the public half way by showing their willingness to promote educational interests.

LITTLE WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

Junior High School.
All back rooms once more filled and full work resumed are the conditions at the Junior High.

Reports from the teachers are favorable as a progress measured by the state course at study with prospects for a large percentage of promotions.

Parents are reminded of "Open Day" April 2. All our friends are invited to visit our school.

April 3 is County Interscholastic League. The rural schools will doubtless be with us.

Contests in public speaking from the 5th grade are being held in chapel. The girls reading "The Rainy Day".

Thirty-one pupils from High School entered the contest in the Essay on Military Enlistment. The results are not yet determined.

Basket ball season closed with our boys last week when they were defeated by Amarillo. The girls will continue in the game. We still stand a few points ahead of Amarillo. The trip to Amarillo was very pleasant, courteous treatment from the Amarillo folks and notice was made of the excellent behavior of our own boys and girls.

Baseball season is now on. A nice time is anticipated in this sport. The Young Citizens Club is doing good work in debating, speaking, etc. Miss Wiggins has returned to her classes.

Miss Stewart is also with us again. The board has secured a very competent teacher to finish out Miss Frye's term. She will be with us in two weeks. In the meantime some of the young teachers from the Normal are assisting us at considerable sacrifice on their part however. We appreciate very much their help.

Lots of Foolish People.
The Prince of Wales visited the United States and upon his return to Great Britain, is being deluged with letters from American girls, and at least one proposal daily. Each week his mail pouch contains 45,000 letters.

We are surprised to learn that there are that many fool people in the United States. Why under the sun would a normal girl want to write to a foreign prince, who hasn't got time to think about them, and who could not marry them if he wanted to?—Pampa News.

One Big Union.
Once upon a time there was a Trade Union which grew so big and powerful it was able to absorb all the other Trade Unions. Ultimately it became known as The Union, and everybody had to join it. A National Program was drawn up, and a Great Conference was arranged. It was unanimously decided that in the event of the National Program being refused a General Strike should take place.

There was nobody left outside The Union either to concede or refuse the demands of the National Program, so that General Strike began. Everybody in the country stopped work, and everybody drew Strike Pay. But there was nothing to buy with the Strike Pay, for Nobody was making anything, so Nobody could sell anything.

So Everybody died in a desperate attempt to live at the expense of Everybody else.

And The Union came to an end.—Exchange.

"G. Washington's Throwing Arm."
The Father of His Country not only was a soldier and a statesman. He was an athlete and a sportsman and when he entered contests either in sports or in national affairs he believed in being in condition to win. He was a broad jumper of wide repute and he had a whip which any big league outfielder might envy.

It is well authenticated that George once covered over 23 feet in the running broad jump and he did not have to climb into the track regalia and the spiked shoes to do it either. He simply doffed the blue coat and the flowered waistcoat, loosened his stock and hit the take-off. After which he collected the prizes.

It also is recorded that he once won a wager from some of his sporting friends by throwing a silver dollar across the Potomac River at a point where the distance between banks is about the same as that required to relay one of Babe Ruth's clouts from the right field fence to the plate.

The chance George took on that occasion did not belie his well known habits of carefulness and thrift. He knew he could throw the dollar across the river, but you can lay a safe bet that he didn't use dollars to practice with, and it is highly probable that he had a black boy on the other bank to pick up the coin after he had collected his bets.

What the First President thought on the subject of thrift, economy, carefulness and frugality are clearly shown by the following maxims from his pen:

"I am no more disposed to squander than to stint."

"Economy makes happy homes and sound nations. Instill it deep."

"It is not the lowest-priced goods that are always the cheapest."

"I cannot enjoy too strongly upon you a due observance of economy and frugality."

A Railroad To Silverton.
Several well-known citizens of Plainview believe that a railroad from Plainview to Silverton and possibly down the caprock to Quitaque is feasible, and could be built for $100,000, and that it could be financed by citizens of Plainview and Silverton. Silverton is about thirty-five miles from Plainview.

Such a railroad would open up a large territory, and a very rich and fertile one, and would become a great asset to Plainview. The Silverton country raises big crops of wheat, maize, kafir, cotton, cattle, horses, etc., every year, in fact, for many years there have been no crop failures in that section. Silverton is a good town, and so is Quitaque.—Plainview News.

AN ADEQUATE SUPPLY OF TRAINED TEACHERS

At the meeting of the National Education Association last July, President D. B. Waide of the State Normal School at Kalamazoo, Michigan, presented the following succinct statement of the problem of supplying trained teachers. Every citizen of our State should read carefully this fundamental discussion of this, the most important problem which confronts our commonwealth.

"The proper training of teachers in sufficient numbers to supply all the public schools with thoroly prepared instructors is the most important service that may be rendered in a democratic commonwealth. Much progress has been made in the public-school system in the United States since the opening of the twentieth century, but there is still an appalling degree of neglect. More than 300,000 teachers between the Atlantic and the Pacific are entirely untrained so far as any professional equipment is concerned. More than 50,000 teachers have had but eight grades of academic work in public schools, and such of this training has been in the schools of inferior type.

1. "The solution of the teacher-training problem lies first in the adoption of adequate standards. Minimum preparation for all teachers in the grades and in the rural schools should involve not less than two years of special training after graduation from a standard four-year high school. For a considerable percentage to such teachers the standard of training should involve not less than four years of special preparation beyond high-school graduation. Public-school leaders and a considerable percentage of teachers should have five, six, or seven years of academic professional training beyond high-school graduation. Public-school service will never be generally recognized as a profession of unquestioned dignity and position until we require of teachers preparation equivalent to that now required in the professions of law and medicine.

2. "Teacher-training institutions must be made equal to the task of sound, thoroly training of the student body. Such institutions, especially state normal schools and colleges, must be adequately supplied and equipt. Buildings should be models of convenience and sanitary standards. They should be modern and so designed as really to function. Libraries and laboratories adequate for the training of the school teachers and school leaders of a great democracy must be provided. The teaching body in such institutions must be carefully selected and thoroly trained. Only men and women of attractive personal quality should be eligible to service in these schools. Instructors in state normal schools should be paid as much as university instructors. Conditions of work and study should be in all respects reasonable. There should be no overload either of teaching hours or of class numbers. All state-supported normal schools should have training schools properly equipt and sufficiently supplied with children and teachers to provide observation and practice teaching for all students. These teacher-training institutions must have the life and vigor of youth. They must be so supported as to insure real self-respect. The course of study must be modern and thoroly adapted to the professional aim of such institutions. We must have training schools adequate in number, equipment, and instructional force to prepare teachers for every vacancy.

3. "The teaching profession must be made attractive to the ablest young men and women of this generation. Public schools must afford opportunity to render service untrammelled by needless annoyances and obstacles. Every teacher should have a fair chance for service and for satisfaction. Modern school buildings of suitable arrangement, adequate equipment and supplies, reasonable teaching hours, and classes with working numbers must all be assured. Teaching service and teachers should command the respect and challenge the admiration of every community where public schools exist. Public recognition justly earned is a social sanction absolutely essential in the school system of a genuine democracy.

4. "Teachers everywhere must be paid adequately. There must be a decent thrift salary as a minimum. There must be a rapid increase, above this minimum to salaries that shall be commensurate with experience, scholarship, training, professional skill, and personal worth. In every community there should be special salary rewards for exceptional teachers. These rewards should be large. Such rewards should be sufficient in number to prove an attraction to the rank and file of our public-school teachers. Under ordinary conditions there should be no salary of less than a thousand dollars. The salaries of grade teachers in many places should start at a minimum of $1200 and rapidly increase to not less than $2000. Above this the exceptional teacher who teaches a red-letter lesson every day should be rewarded just as the exceptional lawyer, physician, or business manager is rewarded. We need many hundreds of superintendencies and administrative positions in teacher-training colleges that shall pay from $10,000 to $25,000 a year.

5. "When proper standards are established, adequate teacher-training schools provided, opportunity for social service and satisfaction assured, and just salaries paid the supply of trained teachers will rapidly increase. This increase may be hastened by due publicity and propaganda. Superintendents of schools, high-school principals, and teachers under these conditions should call to the profession many of the ablest high-school graduates. Normal schools everywhere should resort to all legitimate means of publicity. Scholarships should be offered. Increased state aid and generous federal aid must be provided if the problem of a good teacher for every school is to be solved in a reasonable length of time. The Towner Bill, which provides among other things an annual appropriation of $15,000,000 for teacher-training institutions, should receive the support of every teacher and every friend of the public schools. Eventually our people will insist on a good teacher for every child. If eventually, why not now?"

Kanred Wheat A Success.

Kanred wheat, a product of the great plains, having been invented at the Kansas agricultural college, yields from three to five bushels more to the acre than the Turkey or the Kharkof. The new variety has been named Kanred, a derivation of the words Kansas Red. It is a hard red winter wheat scarcely distinguishable in appearance from Turkey and Kharkof, but superior to them in hardiness, earliness of maturity, resistance to rust, and yield. Kanred has been grown in 250 experimental tests and in ordinary fields by 1,500 farmers. With very few exceptions, the results have been satisfactory. Seed of Kanred was first distributed in 1914. Such good results have been obtained that a total of 4000 acres was seeded to this variety in the fall of 1917, more than 50,000 acres in the fall of 1918, and a still greater area the past fall. The evidence regarding Kanred appears to warrant the substitution of this new variety for Turkey Red and Kharkof throughout the hard wheat sections.

The editor of the Randall County News is going to increase the subscription price from $1.50 to $2.00 a year. Canyon is a good town. It has a good paper. Its editor saw what France was like during the late war and came back to his old job to do his bit toward 'carrying on' at home in the shop, and the paper tells the rest. Furthermore, the people of Randall county should think themselves fortunate to get the paper at two dollars. With the high cost of production and the scarcity of news print, the small town paper is lucky if it can keep "from under the wheels of the express office", to quote from a well known novel. At the close of 1919 there were between 600 and 700 less small papers than there were in the previous year. Broke? Compelled to suspend publication or else consolidated with some other paper. Trade journals are not slow in saying that hard lines are ahead of the little country weekly and that the subscription price will have to be boosted still higher if the papers survive.—Higgins News.

Each year the local editor gives from $500 to $1,000 in free lines to the community in which he is located. No other agency will or can do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his own town than any ten other men, and in fairness he ought to be supported, not because you admire him or like his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make.—David R. Francis.

Reinstatement of War Insurance.

Under a new and very liberal ruling of far-reaching importance to millions of former service men, issued by Director R. G. Chelmeley-Jones of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury of the Carter Glass, Canceled, and regardless of how long the former service man may have been discharged, may be reinstated any time before July 1, 1926.

The only conditions are:

(1) The monthly premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated must accompany the application.

(2) The applicant must be in as good health as at the date of discharge, or at the expiration of the grace period, whichever is the later date, and so state in the application.

The new ruling is the most important liberalization of War Risk Insurance since the passage of the Sweet bill, and is designed for the special benefit of service men who failed to reinstate their insurance prior to the new law, and who have been discharged more than 18 months.

Ex-service men may still reinstate their lapsed term insurance at any time within 18 months following the month of discharge by complying with the same conditions. Within three months following the month of discharge reinstatement may be made by simple remitting two months' premiums without a formal application or state as to health.

Reinstatement may also be made after 18 months following discharge as follows: If the insurance has not been lapsed longer than three months, by complying with the conditions outlined in (1) and (2) above. From the fourth to the eleventh month, inclusive, after lapse, by complying with the same conditions, and in addition submitting a formal report of examination made by a reputable physician substantiating the statement of health to the satisfaction of the Director of the Bureau.

In announcing the new ruling, Director Chelmeley-Jones desires to emphasize the fact that War Risk (term) Insurance or U. S. Government (converted) Life Insurance may now be made payable to any of the following new and enlarged group of beneficiaries:

Parent, grandparent, step-parent, wife (or husband), child, step-child, adopted child, grandchild, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, brother through adoption, sister through adoption, stepbrother, stepsister, parent through adoption, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, brother-in-law, sister-in-law; persons who have stood in the relation of a parent to the insured for a period of one year or more prior to his enlistment or induction, or the child or children of such persons; parent, grandparent, step-parent, or parent through adoption of the insured's wife (or husband).

War Risk (term) Insurance may be converted into United States Government Life Insurance, now or at any time within five years after the formal termination of the war by proclamation of the President.

United States Government (converted) Life Insurance, including Ordinary Life, Twenty Payment Life, Thirty Payment Life, Twenty Year Endowment, Thirty Year Endowment, and Endowment at Age 62, may now be paid in a lump sum at death, if such method of payment is designated by the insured.

Con or Coalition?

That dreary old show, Presidential Party Politics, is now in rehearsal, preparatory to going on the road. It looks like a rival of the Black Crook or Haverly's Minstrels. There isn't a new idea, a new dance or a new gag in the piece.

"Brother Bones, what is a Republican? Why is a Democrat?" asks the end man.

"I give it up. What is a Republican? Why is a Democrat?" returns Brother Bones.

"Because one is born every minute." That is still the right answer.

There are great issues before the people today, but none on which the old parties should be allowed to divide along partisan lines. Yet for months a struggle has been going on for political advantage in which the advantage of the country has been almost lost sight of.

The only utterances of presidential size, of national and international understanding that we have read are those of a man who has not sought the Presidency, who has been nominally a Republican and who has actually been rendering a great non-partisan service to America under a Democratic administration; who has worked first, last and all the time for country, not for party. And nothing more clearly shows the quality of our political leaders than the fact that when Hoover was mentioned for the Presidency their first question was not whether he was the best qualified man for the place, but whether he was a Republican or a Democrat, whether he had a party brand burned in his hide and a bull ring of party regularity in his nose.

The old parties have been weighed in the balances and have been found wanting in almost everything that America has needed since the day of the Armistice—common sense, business sense, statesmanship, willingness to repeal fool and destructive legislation and to pass sound constructive laws.

To-day the old parties stand for nothing except appetite for office, and the real issue between them is simply which one is going to get the most power and the offices and salaries that go with it.

Why not use a little common sense, have done with con and try coalition in its place? Why not force both the old parties to indorse the same man for President—a nonpartisan business man who will form a coalition government from the best men in both parties and that still larger element of straight-thinking, clear-headed Americans who have no stomach for old show that is being put on and who want to see something new and clean on the national stage for a change? The business man is tired of the tired business man's show of party politics.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Man Who Knows His Trade.

It is a pleasant thing to find the man who knows his trade; he ornaments the human kind, his fame will never fade. I take my car to divers shops to have the works repaired, what time the carburetor pops, and busted wires are bared. And one will toil around all day, and make the blamed thing worse; and if he duly gets his pay he cares no tinker's curse. Another breaks a costly piece as with a sledge he beats; one smears a lot of rancid grease upon the velvet seats. And then I find the able gent who knows just what to do; he finds the rinkum that is bent, the one that's broke in two. He diagnoses my old boat as some great surgeon might, and he restores my errant goat and fills me with delight. In ten brief minutes he has found just why the motor struck; he deftly makes the wheels go round, and taxes me one buck. His shirt is damp with motor oils, he is in grime arrayed, but has my blessing as he toils—the man who knows his trade.—Walt Mason.

If your Ford car is out of tune, there is undoubtedly a very good reason for it. And the best way to find that reason, and have it remedied, is to jump in and drive to our authorized Service station, where one of our mechanics who is thoroughly acquainted with the Ford mechanism and who knows the Ford way to adjust or repair your car, can tune it up in a garage that is properly equipped to give real Ford service. Then, too, we never use imitation parts—only the Genuine Ford-made, strong and durable. They wear from thirty to seventy-five per cent longer than the counterfeit parts that are softer and more cheaply made. In fact it is dangerous to human life to use imitation parts, and it is not fair to your Ford car or your pocket book.

We are a part of the gigantic Ford Service organization whose purpose it is to serve the owners of all Ford cars and trucks; we have more than a passing interest in your car. Prompt service is given on all work—from a minor adjustment to a motor overhaul. Mayor J. D. Gamble has a statement in this issue of the News in which he charges that Canyon has some tax dodgers who are going to get theirs when the board of equalization meets this year. The mayor and the city council are going to do everything in their power to see that every man pays taxes according to the property he owns. The little property owner has always paid his part; the city officials are going after the big tax payer. The law provides that in case unrendered notes or other personal property is found, the city may collect back taxes for two years upon this amount of property.

The question has been raised as to whether Joe Bailey is eligible to hold the office of Governor should he be elected. Certainly no one can claim that while living for the past ten years or more in Washington he has maintained his residence in Texas. In his opening speech, Bailey discussed only national questions which had been settled, or will be settled according to the wishes of a majority of the people of the United States. Texas has a few problems of its own which needs attention. They are too great and insignificant for a small mind like Joe's to bother about.

At least Joe Bailey is a keen politician. He waited until after poll tax paying time to announce for Governor. Had his announcement come out before the first of February there would have been three times as many women paying poll tax in order to swat him at the polls.

Every business man in Randall county who has any faith in the future of the county should be at the dinner next Monday night at the Palace Hotel, and get a membership in the Randall County Commercial League. It pays to be a booster.

FRENCHMAN DESCRIBES JAZZ MAD CONDITIONS

Miss Elizabeth Smith of Dallas has received through her nephew H. T. Lindsey, who was in the Argonne fighting, a letter written to him by M. Mory, a Frenchman who was an interpreter for the Americans in Tours. Writing most entertainingly, and in excellent English, Mr. Mory says:

"Sorry, and awfully so, that you left France without our shoking hands, but I know you were so glad to meet dear old Uncle Sam again! Hope your biz will bring you a lot of cash and that some day you will take passage on some good tub strain that will bring you over there but on pleasure bent that time. * * * Poor old 'Judge', (a nickname for the friend to whom the Frenchman is writing); when I think that you have not tasted a drop of vin blanc since July 1, my eyes shed tears! That dry law is an awful thing, and is enough to keep me away from the United States in spite of many good points. * * * What do you make merry over, I wonder!

"Well, we are not so happy over here as we thought and hoped we would be once we had licked the Huns. Conditions are bad. There is a great scarcity of commodities—flour, coal, etc. * * * I shiver when I think of the most unpleasant hours I am going to spend up my seven flights of stairs, without any means of keeping warm except a skipping rope, to skip or hank myself with. * * *

There is a general wave of laziness over the whole country; workmen won't work; clerks won't clerk; drivers won't drive; coalmen won't coal; teachers won't teach; Judges won't Judge; farmers won't farm; everybody is jazz-band mad and wants to enjoy life. We are going backward at a rapid rate. Everybody is dissatisfied with 'that peace.' We did not want 'that war'; we did not want 'that peace.' We feel very unsafe and if we dance, we feel that it is upon a volcano. Our debt is tremendous. * * * We had the hardest job of all and now have to pay for it heavily. * * * I hardly know how this will all end! There is something wrong with the machin-

THE "SEA-GOING" RAILROAD.

KEY WEST is nearer the eastern terminus of the Panama canal, by almost 300 miles, than any other of our gulf ports. It is separated from the main land by the Florida keys—a more or less disconnected string of islands, composed largely of coral and limestone.

To reap the benefit of its strategic position, however, direct and quick transportation with the main land was necessary. A railroad was the answer. Its construction was considered impracticable and impossible. But there are men who will undertake anything. The late Henry M. Flagler furnished the funds and the work was begun in 1905. Men from many climes, material of many kinds and new methods of construction were called into service. The winds, waves, a torrid sun, many known and unknown factors had to be grappled with and solved. Even nature had to be overcome. The construction must be storm-proof.

From Homestead, where the extension begins, to Key West, it is 128 miles. Jumping from island to island are 11 miles of concrete arch viaducts and six miles of steel bridges—one of which contains 243 spans. The construction of the line on the islands proper was comparatively simple. Joining the island by rail was the ticklish job.

Thanks to the genius, grit and untiring efforts of the engineers, one may now enjoy the heretofore unthinkable and unique experience of riding from Key West to Miami in about five hours on a train running, for the most part, over water instead of on land.

ery. We might also have better leaders.

"I won't think too much of the future. Let it be! I can not help it! My own opinion of that matter is that I must be very selfish and try to be happy, if I can. 'Tis a good thing I am not hard to please. My motto is: 'Do as you please, but don't bother me!' * * * But many things will bother me; particularly the tax collector will (a bad man that; and a most despicable line of business). * * * Isn't it funny to think we will never meet again; we were just like specks of sand in a whirlwind, and chance is against us. * * *

"There is a great tobacco scarcity over here. And once a week I must stand in line with hundreds of other empty-piped men, and wait for 30 centimes or more in order to get a forty-gramme dynamite bundle! And there is no help to be got from more happy countries, as the duty on the weed is tremendous and quite prohibitive. * * * There are pipes in plenty, though, but nothing to put in their wooden hearts. * * * L! L! L! (This is a swear.)

"Came back to Paris to start on a new civilian job. Working a lot, but can't see where the dickens that is leading me to. My boss dabbles in stock exchange, and I know nothing about that class of job. Am afraid I will never get rich. Never mind, there are good things, other than hard cash, in this life. Bicycles, for instance. When it does not rain I ride seventy or eighty miles (or more) and enjoy every inch. But, it is on the Sunday roads that one realizes the terrible havoc this war has done in the ranks of French manhood. Before the war all the youth of Paris was on the roads on Sundays, lunch was hard to get, inns were crowded. But now! Would you believe me when I say that I rode forty miles last Sunday, out of eighty altogether, without meeting one cyclist except one postman on duty? Tell your people that, which, perhaps they do not realize fully. We have no blood left in our veins. This war brought our population down to 35,000,000, as, besides the men killed at the front, many hearts—mothers, hearts—were broken, and so on, whole families disappeared, sorrow-stricken. Poor, poor France!

"Well, not much news since the first part of this letter. As a country we are going down and down; lack of blood and lack of help. There we have been fighting like mad and really saved humanity, and peace is not signed yet. And we pay and pay! I do not understand many things, for instance, why America does not ratify the treaty. Such as it is, I know, it is really a poor ending to a terrible war, but let us have it, such as it is. We want peace, d—n it! And all this finger-wagging has given Germany time to pick up and now we have, perhaps, to resume war alone, or almost this time. I have met so many Americans who despise France or rather the French—principally those who never went to the front, and who had to deal with the French who were rejected by the doctors as unfit for death. No offense meant—but I am very afraid U. S. boys are very superficial in their judgments and do not go to the bottom of things. We feel so lonely now in this world, and we feel so much that we will have to do the best of a hard job when we have not strength to do it—3,000,000 men out of 7,000,000 between 19 and 47, are out of commission, either crippled or sick. Understand that. Nearly no feed, flour scarce, no coal and a cold glare all around us in the eyes of those who helped us out in wartime.

"I wonder whether the papers mentioned that our light-heavy Carpenter beat the heavyweight champ of Great Britain inside of seventy-four seconds. I hope they did, if it were but to show the whole world that we are not all rotten. The Britisher was good as you make 'em, but our man was like a wild cat, and a brainy boy. He was hit once, and he hit seven times altogether then good-bye, Mr. Joe Beckett.

Our School Failure and the Catalogue House.

McLean public school, so far as the 1919-1920 term is concerned, is done for. Different people have advanced a number of reasons, some of them undoubtedly true enough. The main reason, something that has been handicapping the school for several years past, is lack of sufficient funds to maintain it. There is no way to raise money for the school except by taxation, and there is not enough property in the district to yield the necessary amount.

If for the past five years the money mail order houses have been getting from patrons of McLean public school had been spent at home, there would now be more stores in town, perhaps some industries we don't have, and the population would be considerably more. Land values would have increased so much owners of large bodies of ranch lands near town would have been forced to sell in small tracts to farmers, for the soil would yield too little return for its value when used for grazing purposes. This would have helped to build the town still more, increasing the amount of taxable property, enabling the independent school district to raise all the money it needs. As it is, the people have patronized the catalog houses and stunted the growth of home institutions, one of the chief of which is the school.—McLean News.

Keeping Farm Labor.

Some industrial organizations of America solved their biggest problem when they solved the housing problem. The United States solved its ship-building problem when it housed the men whom it employed to build ships. And so agriculture will solve the farm help problem when it recognizes the right of the hired man to live in a comfortable, convenient home in which his family and himself can take just pride because of its attractive appearance and the manner in which its surroundings are maintained.

The farm hand is entitled to a decent place in which to live. He cannot be expected to live in town and develop an interest in farm life. He will not be contented if he is forced to leave his family in some remote town while he goes to the farm to work. He will not be a permanent farm hand unless he is a married man and has an opportunity to make a home and surround himself with the things which every man who works on a farm desires. Farmers may as well look facts in the face and recognize that it is good business to hire the family man and provide him with a home. They must recognize the fundamental truth that farm labor will never be stabilized until there is the element of permanency added to it which can come only with the adoption of a sensible housing plan.

Production will be increased, not by exploiting more new land, not by big prices, not by foreign trade alone, but by making labor contented and satisfied. Higher wages cannot do this, but contented homes and an interest in all that pertains to farm life will do it when every other plan fails.

The lure of the farm is natural to people who have been born and raised on the farm. If modern improvements could be added to the farm; if modern buildings could be erected, as they are in the city, then thousands of men who went to the city would return to the land because it offers the opportunities which no city has ever been able to give.

The housing problem is an agricultural problem and must be solved before farm life can compete with city life for the man who must do farm work.—The Dairyman.

Crowell Man Buys West Texas Ranch

J. W. Bell returned last week from Southwest Texas where he had been to see his son, R. C. Bell, and family and while he was there he bought a ranch of four sections. It is located in Jeff Davis county in the vicinity of Valentine and his son is there and will be in charge of the ranch.—Crowell News.

After March 8th, $2.00 Per Year

After March 8, the subscription rate of the Randall County News will be $2.00 per year. This is a very small price, compared with the great increases we have had to pay to produce the News.

Four years ago news print was selling at $2.60 per hundred. It is almost impossible to get it now at $11.00 per hundred. Added to this, transportation charges are nearly double. Labor and other kinds of material entering into the production of a newspaper have more than doubled in the past four years.

During the past year more than 800 newspapers have gone to the newspaper graveyard because they failed to raise their rates to meet the increased rates of production. The people of Randall County do not wish to see the Randall County News headed in that direction.

Subscribers may pay for their paper now at the rate of $150 per year, and as long as they please. Some of our subscribers have been paying from two to five years in advance. They may do so if they choose.

Every citizen of Randall county should have the Randall County News in his home. He cannot keep up with the affairs of the county unless he does. You may take as many newspapers as you please, and you will not see Randall county mentioned half a dozen times a year unless you take the home paper. Keep up with the affairs of Randall County as all good citizens should, by getting on our subscription list at once.

Growing

Most persons want to grow. They would like to advance in their work, earn more, have greater influence, do bigger things. Yet, strange to say, the world is full of people who do not "grow up." They have lost the secret of their youthful days. They come to a halt in self-development.

A person is never old until he quits growing; and he need not quit growing until the end of his years. The most conspicuous fact about great men—men who do big things, and keep on doing them—is that they never cease growing. They are personally young.

If a man sets his heart on growing he has but three things to do

First, he must be a Learner all his life. I do not mean from books only. Many have attained the knack of learning from things by observation. Few have acquired all there is in the art of learning from other people. Yet everyone you meet has something important to teach you, tell you, or show you, if you know how to ask intelligent questions, and if you are genuinely interested in learning. Some will give you information, some will teach you wisdom, some will show you the right manner of delivering a smile or handshake.

Then, he must be a Thinker—and must think hard. He may not be able to "add a cubit to his stature by taking thought," but he can surely add to his personality, his influence and success. Many people never put a load on their brains, and their brains, like an unattached locomotive, always run "light." Unless a man resolves in his mind what he learns and observes, he never gets any use from it. He must make deductions.

Finally, he must be a doer. Some people are long on thinking but short on doing. They are the dreamers. But Experience is, after all, the greatest of all teachers. When you have the courage to tackle the difficult things which tests your utmost ability, then you are down to the business of growing in all its fine points. The bumps you will get, the discouragements you will encounter, and even the mistakes you will make is being zealous in your doing, will be among the best parts of your education.

When I meet a man who shows me he has lost interest in his business, I feel sorry for him. I know that he has ceased to grow. For there is no better place to practice than in one's daily work. It is a field of unending

CANYON, TEXAS

Letter From Nebraska.
 Able, Nebr., 2-19-20.
 Editor Randall Co. News,
 Canyon, Texas.

Dear Editor: I herewith inclose you check to cover subscription to the "News" for another year. As I own land near Canyon I am always glad to hear from there every week. I certainly regret, very much, to hear of the many deaths in your city of that dreadful disease, the "Flu." We had it quite bad up here last year, and many died. We have it again here this year, but it is not such a violent form and only a very few deaths. You can see that nearly the whole country is being stricken as well as your good town of Canyon. I certainly know how to sympathize with those who have been called to mourn the loss of dear ones and especially those who have lost the young women and young men who are about through school and just ready to make good in this life. It seems that the great God knows all things and does things for the best yet we may not understand them. The writer had the great misfortune, a year ago Feb. 1st, to have his older son killed by a W. P. fast train, at Schuyler, Nebr. My son was only 19 years and 3 months of age, but was teaching his second year in our county. The untimely loss of these bright young women and young men, is not only a loss to us who are near and dear to them but it is a loss to the community and country, as well. It seems that these bright young folks are not given an opportunity to show their real worth. God's will must be done, and it only behooves us all to be ready when the grim reaper comes.

With best wishes for the News and the people of Randall county, I am
 Very truly yours,
 J. W. TOWNLEY.

Fall Lambs In The Panhandle.

With the experience of past years to prove that sheep do well and are a paying proposition in this country, and with another bumper feed crop practically assured, the following article on feeding fall lambs for the market and thereby harvesting the grain crop on the hoof is extremely timely. The author of the article is A. G. Bell, of Hereford, who has had years of practical experience with sheep in the Panhandle.

Lamb and sheep feeding in the Panhandle is possessed of possibilities little known by the great majority of our farmer stockmen.

With us this great industry has heretofore been almost untouched except in a few instances where the experiences of a few feeders have proven the great success of such an undertaking.

Lamb feeding has become in recent years one of the most attractive resources on many a well regulated farm.

In almost every community where an abundance of feed is raised lamb feeding is becoming more and more popular. The Texas Panhandle is admirably situated and climatic conditions are ideal for the successful development of this great industry, the essentials of which are, the securing of the most desirable lambs to feed, the proper feed and the scientific balancing of these feeds into a proper ration and the proper care in handling the lambs from feed lot to market.

The day is fast approaching when we will be in the heart of sheep production, making it an easy market to secure desirable feeders from nearby rangers, being a very great advantage over the locality where feeders are shipped in often from great distances necessitating a heavy shrinkage in flesh as well as adding materially to the cost in the way of freight bills.

Few realize that the very best feeding lambs to be had are at our very door in New Mexico.

Experiments have proven that our native grain sorghums with the addition of a small portion of cotton seed meal will furnish admirable ration for sheep feeding, making profitable gains and imparting healthful conditions throughout the feeding period.

Lamb feeding is a simple, easily accomplished industry and should be encouraged by every community organization.

For the sake of brevity I have omitted the details of operation, feed preparation equipment, etc. Will add, however, that the feeding period usually extends over about one hundred days always during the winter months when other work is not so pressing.

With a big surplus of feed there is no surer way to a profitable market than through the feed lot with a bunch of sheep or lambs. The outlook for the next several years is very bright for feeding operations and every farmer should avail himself of the most profitable route to market.—Hereford Brand.

Keep 'Em On The Farm.

A certain popular song-writer struck a keynote vital to the country's life sometime ago when the query was sounded: "How you going to keep 'em down on the farm?" The problems involved in that phrase have assumed mountainous proportions.

The dearth of farm help and the migration of the young people of the rural communities to the cities is responsible in no small measure for the high cost of all foods and the scarcity of many heretofore abundant products of the farm.

War-time wages in the industrial centers have naturally attracted the farm hand, but behind it all lies the lure of the city, with its amusements, bright lights and greater educational opportunities. The younger generation will not remain secluded, and alone on the farm in the face of this call of the bigger world.

The motor car has accomplished more than any singular agent in making farm life more enjoyable and farm folks more contented; it has extended their range of acquaintance and greatly broadened their social life. More farmers are buying cars than city dwellers; some have gone the limit in the effort to keep the family together.

J. J. Thorp, a farmer near Oneida, Illinois, has three sons. Mr. Thorp owned one Velle six which was kept busy constantly. The needs of the boys conflicted—there were complications—so Mr. Thorp bought two more Velle cars and now all the boys are happy, and production on the Thorp farm is at a maximum. There is not the slightest indication of it being otherwise for a long time to come. Incidentally, three Velle cars in one family is a foremost endorsement of Velle performance and Service.

Fulfilling His Task.

"You must take care of Frances for a while, Ralph. I have some extra work to do." This was a task he nearly always dreaded; but since the order came from mamma, it must be done.

"Come on then; we are going outside to play", he replied, half expecting to be refused.

But mamma did not care; so the dreaded task turned to one of pleasure. Frances was always well cared for when this pleasure was granted them. They were playing beside the door when mamma came out with some food for the dog. She noticed that they were both busy; so she set the pan down and hurried into the house. Frances now looked up and started toward the dog.

"Shep, you eating your dinner this late? I guess you mad too, cause you had to wait so long", she said sadly.

The dog gave a low growl and sprang toward her. There was a horrified yell followed by the baby's scream. Then a great commotion followed. After a few moments the doctor had the stitches taken and was binding up the ear of the baby's protector.

"It was a lucky thing I did jump between them", he was saying, "If Shep had bitten Frances, it would have hurt her."

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick isn't sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.

Building The Hen House
(The Dairy Farmer)

The location of a poultry house largely determines its usefulness. It should face either the south, east or southeast in order to get the greatest benefit from the sun and to prevent prevailing winter winds and storms from blowing directly into the open front. A study of the local climatic conditions should be made before a nail is driven. In some locations it is a disadvantage to face a house toward the south, and where such is the case, the farmer may overcome the mistake by turning the house toward the rising sun. It should be erected (1) on well-drained ground to insure dryness and healthfulness; (2) on productive soil to insure good pasturage and healthful growth of shade, (3) on land located so as to have good air-drainage, and (4) should be protected against exposure by being placed in the lee of a hill, trees or of a building.

In building a poultry house each part can be considered separately, in the following order: Size, shape, foundation, height, walls, roof, windows and ventilation, floors, fixtures.

The size should depend on the number of kinds of birds in the flock; estimating the capacity on the square feet in floor space per hen. The exact amount of space to allow per hen is questionable. The amount of available range and length of the season of close confinement should largely determine this question. From two and one-half to four square feet per hen is usually allowed. Providing a little over one square foot of floor space per pound live weight makes a good working rule in housing. It is commonly believed that lighter fowls do not require but half the space of heavier breeds, but this is questionable. It should be remembered that they are more active and impatient under restraint. Fowls kept in small flocks require more floor space per hen than those kept in large flocks, due to the fact that in small flocks each hen has less freedom of action, less space for exercise.

The space of the house influences the cost of building. The square house economizes lumber and labor of construction. Long, narrow houses containing the same number of square feet of floor space are more expensive. A permanent poultry house should have a foundation, and if properly built should be varnished, water and cold-air proof. A ditch wide enough to hold a board mold, the interior measurements of which are the same as desired in the foundation can be dug and the frame filled with a concrete mixture made up of one part cement to six parts gravel. A well concrete wall four to six inches wide, six-inches above ground and extending to a depth of from 12 to 18 inches below is all that is required. Such a base should not be affected by freezing, if the land is naturally or artificially well drained. The cost of building will vary from 16c to 30c a square foot. A post card addressed to the secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., requesting a copy of Farmers' Bulletin No. 461 on the Use of Cement on the Farm will be a penny well spent.

The height of the front of the house depends on the type of house being built and its depth. The shed-roof type poultry house is becoming a favorite in the erection of extra deep houses, lighting the back part of the house and avoiding the weakness of long spans. The shed-roof has won favor with many because it permits the use of high windows, and throws all rain water to the rear and because the high front allows an easy escape for hot air in summer. Two-ply roofing paper makes a good roof covering and if painted every year or so will be found very serviceable.

The front of a poultry house should be of open-front construction. With such—if the roof, sides and bottom are tight—plenty of fresh air will enter the house slowly and uniformly, providing ideal ventilation. There need be little fear of such a plan allowing drafts to blow through directly on the fowls. Did you ever try to blow air into a bottle? A small amount of glass in the front is useful in cold weather when the muslin-covered frame, covering the opening, is lowered in very blustery weather, during storms or on cold nights.

The amount of open front and glass in a house depends on whether the house is in the latitude of St. Paul, Minn., Waterloo, Iowa, Nashville, Tenn., or Jacksonville, Fla. South of the Mason-Dixon line very little if any glass is needed in a poultry house. Where it is not too severe in winter the farmer may have three-fifths of the house open in the front and one-fifth glass. The lower front should be boarded up at least two feet to keep in the litter and keep out the snow and splashing rains. This also prevents cold winds from blowing directly on the inhabitants.

Farmers in states adjoining the northern Great Lakes and Canada can use the King System of ventilation to advantage where it has been found that the muslin curtains are poor protection against northwest gales. It has been our experience, in handling farm poultry houses, that best results come from having the intake and outlet pipes six inches square. Wooden or tin pipes may be used. The intake pipe is fastened to the outside of the building and open at the bottom. The outside air goes up the pipe and enters the house at the top. The outlet pipe is also on the outside and has an opening of the inside one foot from the floor.

The impure air of the house enters the pipe at the inside opening, goes up the pipe and out at the top, which is covered with a small gable roof to keep out snow and rain. Regulating slides can be so arranged as to control the passage of air, thus giving a current of fresh air without drafts. If the house is 19 or 20 feet long, one set of pipes one on the west and one on the east end will be all that is required, but for a long house, place a set every 10 feet on the north and south sides. This ventilation arrangement has been found excellent where properly installed and will carry off the large quantities of ammonia liberated from the droppings, which is harmful for fowls to breathe, and maintain the proper interior temperature.

The floor of a practical farm poultry house should be reasonable in cost, durable and easily cleaned. A properly constructed cement floor more nearly fills the bill than either a board or earth floor. It is advisable to put an inch of sand on a cement floor before covering with litter. Dirt floors require constant changing to insure sanitation. The amount of droppings entering into this kind of flooring in a single month where fowls are confined is amazing, and, unless frequently changed, results in their living over and eating food from a most insanitary litter.

A summary of the essentials in good housing outlined above are dryness, ventilation, draft proofness, sunlight, cleanliness and space. A poor house can be remodeled into a good one with a little lumber and the right man handling the tools. Dull days on the farm can be profitably spent in such work and in constructing the many home-made appliances that save time and money, as part of the poultry house furnishings. A home-manufactured equipment may be made and will serve all practical purposes. Among the important things to keep in mind are simplicity of construction, cleanliness and portability.

The interior of a poultry house should be as free from cracks and crevices as possible so as to eliminate hiding places for red mites, those murderous bloodsuckers that swarm out to prey upon fowls at night. To reach their hidden retreat, spraying is very effective. To make a spraying emulsion, shave one-half pound of soap into a gallon of soft water, heat to the boiling point, add a quart of any of the reliable disinfectants, stir in two gallons of kerosene and, for use, dilute with ten times as much water. Clean the house thoroughly of all accumulations of filth and rubbish before spraying. In old poultry houses, overrun with these pests, it is best to use a whitewash brush in applying the solution, carefully covering the walls, ceiling, floor, roosts, nests, all corners and cracks. Use twice the first day and follow this treatment with a third bath on the fifth day. A little extra effort in making the roost poles will assist in keeping down the swarms of vicious and destructive poultry pests. Use 2x4 scantling for roosts. Smooth with a plane and slightly round the upper edges. Make a groove one-half inch deep and one-eighth inch wide in the upper surface of the roost, running this slot to within three inches of the ends. Keep this groove filled with the above emulsion, full strength. Wrap the ends in cloth and keep these coverings soaked with kerosene. A small squirt can of oil may be kept within handy reach for use in daily saturating the end cloths.

Body lice differ from mites. They are born and spend their life cycle on the fowl and can be found in the fluff, under the wings and on other parts of the fowl, crawling about, causing itching and irritation day and night. They have no nostrils and breathe through spiracles on the sides of their bodies. Dust quickly suffocates them. Louse powder or fresh Persian insect powder, dusted through the plumage down to the skin, covering the entire body of the fowl in the operation, will be found mighty effective. Night is the best time to use these powers.

Roosts should be of sufficient length to allow the following amount of space per head; light weight fowls, seven inches; medium weight fowls, nine inches; heavy weight fowls, ten inches. It is a good plan to nail V-shaped blocks on the perches to prevent crowding. The roosts can be placed from six to eight inches above the platform, better known as the dropping board. It can best be built of either matched or square-edged boards. Its purpose is to catch the nightly voiding of the fowls, and, in effect, it increases the available floor space for the fowls. When single roosts are used the dropping board should be about two feet wide and may be widened from 12 to 14 inches for each additional roost. A smooth surface is easily cleaned. Sand, sifted wood ashes and other fine litter may be used to absorb moisture from the droppings by covering the top of the dropping board.

A wooden shelf eight inches above the top of the litter should be provided to support the water pail and mash hopper above the floor, thus saving floor space and avoiding the scratching of litter into the food and water. A fibre pail or wooden bucket can be converted into a water holder by sawing out an opening in the side four inches wide and five inches deep, to admit the head of the fowl. A heavy cover prevents fouling the drinking water. Orange boxes or egg crates can be turned into satisfactory nests and fastened to the walls with hooks and eyes. They are cheap, light in weight, easily cleaned and serve their purpose. A simple V-shaped trough, made of smooth boards six inches in width is useful in serving wet mash or table scraps. A simple dry mash feeder or hopper can easily be made from store box with a depth of 12 to 18 inches. A small frame, made a trifle smaller than the inside dimensions of the box and covered with ordinary two-inch mesh poultry fencing or wooden slats laid on top the dry mash prevents the fowl from scratching it out and does not in any way interfere with their feeding. If preferred a piece of stiff heavy wire fencing, the kind used to enclose stock, may be used. A simple pocket of two-inch wide netting nailed against the wall will serve as a feeding rack to hold vegetables, grasses, sprouted oats and other green food.

Boys Flock to Cities.

France according to her Minister of Agriculture is today unable to support more than one-half of her 40,000,000 inhabitants, owing to the abandonment of the farms by the younger generation who are flocking to the cities.

With almost 50,000,000 acres of fertile land now idle as a result of this exodus, the grain crop has dwindled from 120,000,000 pounds of wheat and other cereals in 1913 to about one-half during the past year.

THE LINK

The purple tints of evening had softened the dazzling whiteness of a world of snow; the church spires in the distance rose dark against the horizon; a few lights gleamed coldly thru the frosty air.

Thru the untracked snow a woman made her way. She had walked a half mile from the village. Four years ago she had left the little cottage that she was now approaching. She had worn a rough coarse suit and heavy shoes as she passed out of the little cottage gate. Tonight she wore a costume of the most exquisite texture and of a perfect cut. Her shoes were now of soft, fine kid. Then she was a country girl; now she was a celebrated prima dona.

She was at last returning to the home of her three short years of happy married life. She stumbled blindly on. In a few minutes she was at the gate of her little gray cottage home. She hastened to the door. A sniver shook her slender frame as she turned the knob. She was alone and was about to enter a house that had been closed for four years. After a moment's hesitation she entered. The darkness closed around her. Dizzily she felt for a match; she knew where the lamp was; she lighted it. A feeble ray issued from the dusty little chimney and lighted up the perfectly molded features of the woman. For a moment she stood rigid and unseeing. Then she saw. Before her was a mantel on which hung one tiny stocking; pathetically lonely and empty it seemed. The woman shuddered as she looked at it. She started forward with her arms out-stretched. With a cry of agony she sank to the floor.

It all came back to her with painful vividness—the Christmas Eve four years ago, the happy preparation for baby's Christmas; the hanging of the holly wreaths and bells; her eager waiting for husband and baby to come home from town; and the stocking, the stocking, the tiny stocking that had been burned into her memory. She was hanging it when they came, the big, awkward, tender farmer neighbors; she heard again their hushed whispers and the clumsy shuffling of their feet on the little porch, and the few words in which they told her of a collision in which her husband and baby had been killed. The rest was a daze; she remembered that she had gone back to the stocking and fixed it securely on the nail. For the next few days she had moved as in a dream. She knew that she must go away; she had a horror and repulsion for the little stocking; for four years it had been constantly before her; she could see that lonely little stocking, and somehow she feared it. Yet ever since she had been away, there had been something calling her back; it seemed to say that there was comfort in the little room.

Every night as she swayed great audiences with the supple inflections of her silver voice, the little blue stocking hung before her. Her career as a singer meant little to her. She knew that she had a beautiful voice; but her heart was broken. Perhaps that helped her to sing. A few times as she sang, a strange sense of comfort stole over her and she loved the baby stocking, but at all other times it made her shudder. She felt the same calling of the little gray cottage to come home and be comforted; but terror always overcame longing, and the woman staid in the city.

This Christmas night, however, she had come back trusting in that will-o-the-wisp, hope, that promised respite for her pain. She had come, but her loneliness seemed even more complete than ever.

She raised herself from the little rug and sank into a low rocker. She had come for comfort, but her despair had become intense. She lifted her eyes to the wall opposite her. Quickly she rose, for there was the thing that had called her—a picture—one that she had never realized was there. It had hung on the wall during the three years that she had lived in the cottage, and she had never noticed it. But the night of her great sorrow it had comforted her, and she, unconscious of its existence, had longed for it and felt its power.

It was a mountain towering high above the clouds. She did not stop to analyze the cause, but she was happy. She took down her baby's stocking and pressed it tenderly to her heart. The light went out. The soft moon-beams struggled thru the holy wreath in the dusty window and shone on the woman standing glorified and radiant before the picture. She had realized the link between her own life and the infinite beyond.

WORK.

In the Chicago railroad yards some I. W. W. wrote upon the side of a box car the inscription: "No beer, no work!"

When the car reached Milwaukee a brakeman wrote under the first inscription, the following: "No work, no pay!"

En route to Madison another workman added this: "No pay, no eat!"

In the Madison yards a maintenance man wrote the final chapter: "No eat, no live!"

Politicians may screech, preachers may preach, economists may write, sociologists may slum and their combined output will add nothing to the dicta:

"No beer, no work!"

"No work, no pay!"

"No pay, no eat!"

"No eat, no live!"

Than work there is no other panacea. Work is man's natural state. Every normal, healthy man works, whether he has to or not. The world lives on production. Hence work must lend itself to production. The man who has an idea of a time when men shall live without work is on a par with the man who proposes to give everybody something without taking anything from anybody.

A photograph of the side of that old box car with its philosophic inscriptions would become a national treasure if hung conspicuously within the commons of every American city. —The Wisconsin State Journal.

The man who would bring back the three-dollar shoe of yesterday would have it all over our favorite sons as a Presidential candidate. — Columbus Dispatch.

HOUSEWORK IS A BURDEN

Woman's lot is a weary one at best. But with backache and other distressing kidney ills life indeed becomes a burden. Doan's Kidney Pills have made life brighter for many Canyon women. Read what Mrs. Claunch, Canyon, says:

"A short while ago my back and kidneys began to cause me a lot of misery.

There was just a dull, ache through the small of my back and it was also so sore and lame I could hardly bend over to do my work. When I did manage to stoop over, such a sharp, stinging pain would catch me, making it hard for me to straighten up. I was all worn out and could scarcely get around at times. I became dizzy and had headaches and my kidneys didn't act right at all. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills so highly advertised that I bought some and three boxes cured me entirely."

BASKET BALL TEAM WINS TWO GAMES

Normal Team Won Game From Tulia Here Last Wednesday Night.

The normal basket ball team easily won over the Tulia team in the Normal gymnasium on Wednesday night at eight o'clock. The many clever plays on each side were witnessed by a large crowd of students and Canyon "rooters". The game began at eight o'clock and the spectators were awarded by a clean, hard-fought game. Canyon scored the first goal in less than 20 seconds after the whistle blew.

Hill and Battenfield at forwards were the star goal throwers for Canyon. Hill threw six field goals; Battenfield threw six field goals and two free goals. Golden and Simms at guards did excellent work and kept the ball in the Normal's field most of the time. Perry at center played a good game. Wells and Jenkins and Roy Golden were used as substitutes for the Normal during the second half. The final score was 40-19 in the Normal's favor.

Wellington Outlaws Tamed.

The Wellington "Outlaws" were tamed Saturday in the Normal "Gym" by a score of 25 to 16. They came to Canyon confident of a victory, but they returned singing a different tune. Wellington was represented by only five players. One of these was disqualified by fouls during the second half. But since they had no other players, the Normal team agreed not to enforce the rules on this point.

Several fouls were made on both sides. Canyon made 3 and Wellington 8; Canyon made 5 technical fouls and Wellington 7.

Perry, the Normal's center, did some very clever goal throwing. Gary Simms at guard played basket ball that would do credit to any college team. So complete was his guarding that only one goal was made by his opposing forward. Hill came forward by dropping the ball thru the basket five times. Altho "Big" Key had just recovered from the "flu", he played in his old time style and at the close of the first half increased Canyon's score by throwing two goals at one instance in 20 seconds. Floyd Golden, Canyon's other sterling guard, "delivered the goods" at guarding.

Mr. Condrey did not need to urge the large crowd of rooters to cheer the players to victory, for all sponded in their old athletic way. Real college spirit was demonstrated in the yells, which were led by Mr. Condrey.

Canyon's line-up: Key and Hill, forwards; Perry, center; Simms and Golden, guards; Battenfield and Roy Golden, subs.; Mr. Willy, referee; Mr. Shirley, time keeper and score recorder.

Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes—the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation—have added dollars to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars.

The freight on it has increased only 5½ cents.

Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mill and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents more.

The $10 pair of shoes that used to sell for $5 goes from the New England factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 5½ cents—only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent a pound freight from Chicago to New York.

American freight rates are the lowest in the world.

Why Not?

If the Government is to buy the railroads, why not the packing business? And if the packing business, why not the steel business? And then the auto business, the newspapers, and farms? It would only take two or three hundred billions to make a clean sweep and we could all go on a vacation while the Government officials did the work. They are trying the scheme out in Russia now and to a limited extent in North Dakota. Why not adopt as a national slogan "nobody works but Uncle Sam?"—Wabaşn (Minn.) Standard.

Come to Canyon to live.
