PLENTY OF CARS

BUT NOT LOADING

Conservative Business Men Urge Selling of Wheat—Word From Panhandle-Plains Chamber.

With the fall in the price of wheat during the past two weeks from $2.65 to $2.00, the selling of wheat has practically stopped. The farmers generally are hoping for a higher price, while the conservative business men who have watched the trend of affairs during the past year believe that wheat will go even lower and are urging the wheat growers to sell now while they can ship.

It has been pointed out that half of last year's big wheat crop is at the eastern ports. Foreign trade has practically stopped on wheat. Canada has a much bigger crop this year than last, while the United States will produce at least three million bushels more than last year. The bankers generally are urging that the crop be sold now, as the price will not likely be any higher, and may be much lower in a few months.

The Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce urges that the cars coming into this territory be used. The following letter was received by the News:

The problem of securing cars for the movement of the Panhandle grain crops is so well understood as to not need any discussion herein. The object of this letter is to call your attention to the increasing supply of grain cars for the Panhandle, and the manifest disinclination to use these cars, as a result of the sharp decline in the grain markets during the last few days.

We shall not undertake to forecast the future course of the grain markets, but one fact we will emphasize and that is, that if the cars as furnished are not loaded and billed with dispatch there is danger of the supply being suspended, as well as a certainty that the difficulty in having started this way another stream of grain cars will have been increased several fold.

As will be recalled the examiners sent to Amarillo from the Car Service Division of the Interstate Commerce Commission, recommended and urged that during a ninety-day period there be furnished the Panhandle grain cars to move from forty to fifty percent of the production in the way of wheat and oats, and if all the cars that come into the Panhandle are quickly handled there will still remain anywhere from fifty to sixty percent of the crop, for which cars must be secured during the later months.

This is a situation that should command the serious consideration of every grain dealer, banker, farmer, and community in the Panhandle.

Complaints are now coming to us from various railway points in the Panhandle that grain cars are on hand, with no loading taking place, and in other instances cars having been loaded with grain and held for several days without billing.

We confess that we have not the wisdom as a basis for dependable advice on the marketing question, but we do know the tremendous and insistent efforts we have made to secure these cars, and know further the greatly enlarged task involved in securing a return movement of cars to the Panhandle, in the event there should be a stoppage of the inflow of cars or a movement out of the Panhandle of all or any part of empty grain cars now on hand.

We are forcibly reminded in the first instance of the cost of the transportation companies attendant upon the assembling of cars in the Panhandle from various sections of the United States, and considering that many other states are needing the cars just as sorely as the Panhandle, and will use them freely when furnished, it is easy enough to imagine that the Panhandle will drop to a low ebb in the favor and treatment accorded from the Interstate Commerce Commission, if the grain cars are not used as supplied with utmost dispatch.

It is hoped that this warning will receive the earnest attention commensurate with the seriousness of the difficult situation presented.

Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carver visited this week at the parental J. C. Carver home. They were returning from an extended trip in the west.

COMMENCEMENT SERMON AT NORMAL NEXT SUNDAY A. M.

The Commencement Sermon of the West Texas State Normal College will be preached next Sunday morning at the Normal Auditorium by Dr. H. W. Virgin of the Amarillo Baptist church. The program will begin at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Virgin is one of the ablest preachers in the Panhandle, and will have a message to all who attend.

The Commencement exercises will be held Saturday morning, August 14, which will close the summer's work, and the tenth year of the school.

The examinations for teachers will be held commencing next Monday morning. More than two hundred will take the examinations.

Cousins Hall Soon Completed

The work on Cousins Hall is rapidly being completed and the contractor hopes to close his work by the 20th of this month.

President J. A. Hill states that contracts have been let for the furnishing of the Hall, all of the furniture to be placed in the building by September first. He will announce an "open house" day after the building is completed, at which time the citizens of this section will be invited to come and examine the Hall.

Mr. Hill stated that Hon. John Marshall, member of the Board of Regents and one of the men who located the school in Canyon, stated while in Canyon last week it was his ambition to see another section added to the dormitory by an appropriation from the legislature at the next session. Mr. Marshall is a trustee for the Kidd Key College and is a strong believer in the dormitory for the Normal schools.

Miss Watkins Added to Faculty

Miss Georgia Watkins who is teaching in the summer Normal, has accepted a position for the coming year in the Domestic Science Department of the school.

Miss Watkins is a graduate of the C. I. A. at Denton and for the past five years has been in charge of the Domestic Science department of the Paris high school in which she has been very successful.

Her work in the Normal during the summer as dietitian of Cousins Hall has been highly satisfactory and commendable in every respect.

The Democratic County Convention met at the court house on Saturday, July 31, 1920. Worth O. Jennings was elected chairman and A. M. Smith, secretary.

Delegates to the different conventions were elected as follows: To the State convention, which meets September 7, C. R. Burrows and W. J. Flesher.

Meyers Place Sold Again

The farm recently owned by Peter Meyers was sold again this week by W. G. McMillon of Mills, Texas, who bought it last week, to M. B. McCarrt of Johnson, Tenn. Mr. Meyers sold the place last spring to J. A. Hazelwood, who made the sale of last week to Mr. McMillon.

Mr. McCarrt's son will move from Tennessee to take charge of the farm.

School Valuations Raised

The Board of Equalization for the Canyon City Independent School District made a raise in nearly 800 renditions of property in the district, and notices were mailed out to that effect Friday. The board will meet next Wednesday at which time they will hear any complaint regarding the raise in taxes.

Building New House

S. B. Archer of Dumas is building a new house on the lots just east of the L. G. Allen home in the Normal addition. The house will be a bungalow of five rooms.

Come to Canyon to live.

COUNCIL TAKES UP

BOND ISSUE PROBLEM

Write Comptroller Tuesday on Situation—Electric Fire Alarm Installed for Service.

The City Council held a meeting Tuesday morning for the purpose of checking the tax rolls. It was found that the rolls contained more than a million and one-half valuation of city property and the mayor wrote the state comptroller regarding the necessary steps to now take in the interest of paving the streets of Canyon.

The council was instructed last fall by the comptroller that no bonds could be issued for paving until the valuation of one and one-half millions was reached in Canyon. All of the members of the council feel now that the questions of the bond issue have been met and that now the comptroller will approve the necessary steps.

At the meeting Tuesday arrangements were made with A. J. Arnold to connect up and maintain the electric fire alarm which was purchased by the fire boys last fall.

Bad Electrical Storm

One of the worst electrical storms for years hit Canyon about eleven o'clock last night. Two houses were struck by lightning. A. J. Arnold states that practically every transformer on his electric light lines were put out of commission during the storm.

BAND FUND GETS ABOUT $20.00 MORE SATURDAY

The fund which is being raised by the sale of ice cream cones on Saturday nights to build the band stand and buy the uniforms for the band, was increased $20 Saturday night. The sales will continue every Saturday night until all of the expenses of the enterprise are paid out in full. Had not the rain come up Saturday night just when it did, the sale would have amounted to a great deal more than this amount.

The band stand and lights will cost about $100. More than half of this amount has already been raised in the sale of cakes and ice cream cones, and with a few more good nights, the entire amount will be raised.

The sale will continue until sufficient funds are raised to pay for the uniforms for the band.

The band concerts are very highly appreciated by the people of Canyon. A very large crowd gathered Saturday night, and will be larger each night as the rush of work of the harvest is lightening up.

GOOD RAINS FALL THIS WEEK OVER THE COUNTY

Randall County got two good rains this week—Sunday and Monday nights. The fall of moisture amounts to nearly an inch for the two rains in the Canyon community, while in both the northern and southern parts of the county the rains amounted to considerable more.

The row crops in most parts of the county are looking exceptionally fine. In the vicinity of Canyon there has not been so much rain this year as away from the town, but there is sufficient now all over this county to make the row crop develop very rapidly and to put the ground in excellent condition for wheat planting.

AMARILLO TRADE EXCURSION IN CANYON NEXT WEDNESDAY

The special train of the Amarillo trade excursionists will be in Canyon next Wednesday, August 11, stopping in Canyon from 5:25 until 6:25 when they will return to their homes after a three days' trip.

The people of Canyon have always given these trade excursions a hearty welcome, and will do so again next Wednesday.

Will Have Bailey Meeting

The friends of Joe Bailey will have a meeting at the court house Friday night for the purpose of organizing Randall County for the coming primary. There will be a number of speakers to address the gathering.

Building New Home

Rev. J. T. Burnett completed a new house on Canyon street Saturday and sold it Tuesday to Mrs. Mitchell of Tulsa. He contracted yesterday for another new house to be built east of the Atkins home. This house will be a six room bungalow.

MONDAY IS REGULAR MONTHLY TRADES DAY

$50.00 IN CASH WILL BE GIVEN AWAY BY BUSINESS HOUSES—NO TRADES DAY IN SEPTEMBER.

The August Trades Day will be held in Canyon next Monday, August 9. The business houses will give away $50.00 in cash on that day, the drawing to take place at 4:30 on the public square.

The prize money will be divided into seven premiums again this month, the first prize to be $15.00 cash, second $10.00 cash, and five prizes of $5.00 each. This arrangement was very satisfactory at the last Trades Day.

Indications are that the Auction Sale will be very fine next Monday at the Trades Day. All farmers who have some kind of stock are urged to bring it into the Trades Day Sale.

No Trades Day in September

There will be no Trades Day in Canyon during the month of September. The Randall County Fair will be held in the city on September 8, 9, and 10th. These dates are in the same week as Trades Day would come, so the Fair days will be used for bargain days in Canyon instead of the regular second Monday Trades Day. C. F. Walker, who is general manager of the County Fair, will have interesting announcements to make regarding the Fair within a few days.

Trades Day Tickets Discontinued

For the present at least, the regular Trades Day tickets will be discontinued after next Monday. It is likely that the use of tickets will be continued after the County Fair dates.

Every holder of Trades Day tickets should be at the drawing next Monday in order to share in the money to be given away.

Don't overlook the Trades Day next Monday. It will be worth your while coming many miles.

BOY ATTACKED BY STEER SUFFERS BROKEN BONE

P. K. Bryan, Jr., and little brother were riding horse back Monday north of town when they were attacked by a steer, the animal knocking them from the horse and fracturing the clavicle of J. K. Jr.

The steer fell off the train Sunday evening north of town. J. A. Tate was notified and went out after the animal. He had long horns and was a vicious animal. After the steer was started down the highway to Canyon a car came along and he ran away from Mr. Tate. The boys, and the steer met at the foot of the big hill, but Mr. Tate was not in sight when the accident occurred. The driver of the car was picking up the boy when Mr. Tate arrived, and brought him home. He is recovering nicely.

Mr. Tate then brought the steer toward town. At the Oldham place the animal turned on Mr. Tate, and Buck says he was the meanest animal he has had to deal with for a long while. He finally landed him in the stock yards.

Mr. Tate says that a few years ago ten steers fell off a train while passing through the county.

Sutton Says Row Crop Fine

Chas. Sutton was in the city Friday from his home in the Ceta community and reports that the row crop in that section is much better than it is around Canyon. Mr. Sutton reports that thrashing was going on fine all over that section, and that the yield will go from 10 to 15 bushels with excellent quality.

Buy New Tractors

Roffey & McGabey, Harry Richards and J. A. Cheatham have bought new Case tractors.

BLOUGH TAKES OFFICE ON SEPTEMBER FIRST

Recently Selected Postmaster Receives Commission—Eakman Will Soon Retire.

A. W. Blough has received his commission as postmaster of Canyon, but will not take over the office until September first through arrangements made this week.

The term of Cyrus Eakman expires on August 21st. The postoffice inspector who was here last week advised Mr. Blough and Mr. Eakman, that in order to save much confusion in the records, that Mr. Eakman continue in office until September first, at which time Mr. Blough will take over the duties of the office. This was agreeable to Mr. Blough as he wished a little vacation before assuming the duties of the office.

Mr. Blough will resign his position as mail carrier on route one Saturday and Homer Ball will take the position beginning next Monday.

Good Rain Last Night

Nearly two inches of rain fell in Canyon last night. The rain started to fall at 8:30 and continued until midnight.

There was a heavy rain with considerable hail north of the city last night. Newt Reeves reports that at his place north of town the hail was very heavy, but fortunately the stones were small and not a great amount of damage was done.

Two Houses Hit By Lightning

The John Rowan house on West Houston street was hit by lightning about 11 o'clock last night. Two Normal girls were rooming up stairs and the paper in their room was set on fire, but was soon extinguished. Quite a hole was made in the roof.

The home of Mrs. Ross near the R. A. Bellah home was struck by lightning about the same time. The corner of the house was knocked off and the building set on fire, but was easily extinguished. This makes the second time in three years that this house has been struck.

The Beacon is never short on advertising, although there are some who do not believe in this modern way of doing business. We consider that when we handle a man's or firm's advertising we are doing him a distinct favor. It is a great deal more to him than the few dollars we get out of it. If a man is progressive and up to the minute he will advertise, if he is not he will sooner or later make a complete failure or get tired and go out of business. This is an age of advertisers, locally and nationally. The Beacon has enjoyed a phenomenal run in selling space the past year. National advertising has more than doubled, and trebled, and the same progressive wave has affected all classes. It pays to use advertising space, and the man who can get along without it, or thinks he can, is handicapped from the start. —Lockney Beacon.

Like the business firms of Lockney, most of the business houses of Canyon realize that they are getting big returns on every dollar they invest in legitimate advertising. Every once in a while an advertising grafter comes along and sticks a bunch of our business men on a purely bunk game that no decent newspaper man would dare attempt to pull off in his own town, and then some of the business men feel that advertising does not pay. In fact no one has ever tried to prove that that kind of advertising paid—not even the grafter who pulls the stunt. The business man who says that newspaper advertising doesn't pay has never given it a real test. Whenever any one discovers a better way than newspaper advertising he can make a fortune by selling the scheme to the big houses who are spending a hundred dollars where the merchants of little towns are spending a cent. If the readers of the Dallas News, or any other big city paper, should pick up a single edition and not find the ads of certain prominent leading business houses in that edition they would know the house was in a serious condition. So intensive have they made their advertising that the reader expects this advertising as much as they expect to find the editorial page, or any other page of the paper. The up to date business man has found that advertising is as essential as buying goods or keeping clerks to wait upon the customers.

Wheat prices are going down. There is no decline in flour. Cattle and hogs are at a very low level on the market. Meats of all kinds are very expensive. Hides are at the lowest price in the history of the country. Shoes are out of sight. Everything that the farmer has to sell is bringing less than it costs him to produce it. On the other hand manufactured goods are steadily increasing in price. The farmer is having to pay more to the laborer on his land than he himself is making out of the crop. This thing is certain to change and that right soon. When the farmer decides that he will raise just what is necessary for him to live upon; when there is a real shortage of foods and food supplies, then the farmer is not going to get the small end of the deal as he is today.

The voters should keep in mind the fact that the school amendment is to be voted upon in the November election. American civilization of tomorrow depends upon the efficiency of the free schools of today. It will be of no avail to the generation of today should it amass fame and fortune and raise the generation of tomorrow in ignorance. Texas ought to have the best schools in the union. She cannot run these schools without more money. Vote for the school amendment which removes the tax limit of 50 cents.

Don't overlook the chance to make money by coming to Canyon next Monday for Trades Day. $50.00 in cash will be given away on that day.

The News has been under the present management for ten years beginning with this edition.

Towns over South Texas are at war with the rats. Why not? Even though they may not bring a plague, why should the rat exist? A former groceryman in Canyon stated the other day that rats cost him at least $75 per month the last few months he was in business. Why should any town tolerate such nuisance. Killing our rats will not only save food, but save many lives.

On account of high costs of producing newspapers, 300 dailies and 1,200 weeklies have suspended during the past three months. The increased freight rates just added and the increased postal rates the first of July will add to the misery of the publisher. Yet some—only a very, very few people—wonder why newspapers increase their advertising rates.

Freight rates are going to take a big jump the first of September under the award of increase by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This increase was foreseen when the increase of salaries to the railroad workers was granted a few days ago. These increases will make another increase in the altogether too high cost of living.

Randall county is going to have a good fair in September. Get ready for it now. Save up those good samples of field and garden products.

The Noise Nuisance

A noise throws the air into vibration, Imogene B. Oakley, Philadelphia, Pa., writes in Civic Comment, issued by the American Civic Association. The greater the noise, the more violent the vibrations. These air vibrations reach the ear and deal actual physical blows upon the nerve of hearing. Whether we give conscious attention or not, whether we sleep or wake these atmospheric blows beat upon the ear, and since the ear is the shortest avenue to the brain, continued noise is a continued assault through the nerve of hearing upon the nerve centers in the brain.

It is not surprising then that the medical profession is telling us that noise is a destroyer of nerve tissue. The late Dr. Clarence Blake of Boston, one of the great aurists of the world has warned us that, if the noise of our cities be not reduced, we shall be come a deaf race and a race of neurasthenics.

As the eye requires intervals of darkness to keep it in health, so the ear requires intervals of silence, and it does not get them. Day and night the trolley cars rush through our streets, their gongs clanging, their flattened wheels pounding the rails. Motor trucks thunder by; vendors shriek; newsboys scream; the insistent honk of the automobile—all stun the ear. The discordant strains of the street piano assert themselves above the clamor. The barking of dogs and yowling of cats help to make the nights hideous, and shrill-voiced roosters, imprisoned in tiny back yards, make sleep impossible after 4 a. m.

And all these noises are so unnecessary. Dogs and cats can be kept indoors, or, better yet, banished from crowded communities. The only place for roosters is on farms. Bells and whistles are needless in these days of cheap and universal clocks. There is no excuse for street pianos. St. Louis forbids them altogether and her artists, students and musicians rise up and call her blessed.

Rochester, N. Y., has taught us that the automobile horn can be controlled and the yelling vendor stilled. Boston and New York relegate motor trucks to business streets. Baltimore's noise-policemen found a way to soften the clamor of the necessary trolley.

Since all these useless noises can be subdued or silenced, why endure them? Why have deafness and neurasthenia forced upon us?

Most of the noise is sheer economic waste. The flat wheel under a trolley car is jarring the machinery of destruction; noisy crossrails mean harm to the property. Efficient machinery is usually quiet in operation; it is the crude and wasteful motor truck that sounds like a young cyclone! Noise is bluster and brag in industry. The fifty-ton trip hammer does its work without racket; it is the worn-out flivver that breaks the ear-drums.

It is doubtful whether Senator Harding will be as surprised on being officially notified of his nomination as many of us were.—Kansas City Star.

The Right to Terrorize

Samuel Gompers may rest well assured that his belated attempt to reply to Governor Allen's really unanswerable question has had patient and even sympathetic consideration. He has, in effect, as his followers must see, declined to recognize the supreme right of the public in a strike which imperils the supply of the necessities of life.

Mr. Gompers puts the matter in all its dangers absurdity when he says: "The public has no rights which are superior to the toiler's right to live and to his right to defend himself against oppression."

Mr. Gompers begs the whole question. In no one of the strikes that have imperiled public safety has that action been necessary in order to secure either a living for the worker or freedom from oppression. In every case the wage or conditions upon which the strike was called threatened in no way the ability of the worker to live, even at present costs, and the only oppression that could be shown was certainly not endured by the striker.

A striker against conditions involving starvation and oppression is almost unthinkable. The public pressure brought to bear upon the employers would be so powerful and instantaneous that the workers' case would be won without a strike. A lockout in such event would so inevitably be followed by steps for operation by the public authority that no corporation manager would dare to take the risk. His directors would throw him out, or in an extreme case the stockholders themselves would remove directors capable of supporting such insanity.

It is almost needless to say that Mr. Gompers must know that the right to live and the right to resist oppression are beside the point, because they are in no danger. The right to exact, irrespective of the worker's product, everything that terrorism can enforce is the sum of Mr. Gompers' demands. When those demands are granted constitutional and representative government will have been abrogated in favor of a trades union oligarchy as arbitrary, and eventually as destructive, as that of Lennine in Russia.

Estimates of a minimum wage for the worker of $2,500 a year advanced at Montreal are childish. No such sum is necessary to support the conventional family of five, as the aggregate income of the United States shows. A distribution to the workers on that basis would leave nothing for maintenance, renewals, interest or the most modest profits. No individual in the long run can exact from the community a standard of living in excess of his worth to the community. Certainly no body of workers or all the workers combined can enforce such demands. In any country, however rich, they could conceivably secure a present division which would destroy the sources of supply, but would bring about the universal penury and want which exist in Russia today.

On his own showing this is the proposed living scale of Mr. Gompers. He will learn before he is much older to cut it in half, and he would learn to do so much quicker if the railroads or other means of production were turned over to him with a free hand as to the division of profits. Mr. Gompers has no case. Once he thought the strike was the last resort. Now he thinks it is the first. His reply is not a defense, it is a challenge.

Where Time Clocks Are Taboo

Edward Hungerford in Harper's Magazine: We live in a time of a wonderful systematization of manufacturing process. Efficiency is our fetish and the time clock our god. Yet in all of its long life the Baldwin locomotive plant has never yet seen the time when it found such a mechanical clock necessary to its own ideas of efficiency in manufacturing operation—not in a single one of its many shops, which today employ some 25,000 men, and which in war-time days employed more than 43,000. There is one other such plant placing its ban upon the things for which the time clock stands, and that is the wonderfully progressive Endicott-Johnson Company, which manufactures shoes just outside of Binghamton, N. Y., a concern to which we shall have necessity to refer again and again before we are done with these articles. It is the big thing for which the time clock stands to which the Baldwin people stoutly object. That thing—the implication that their men work only under the eye and tally of a mechanical and unerring watchman—is entirely foreign to the spirit of their plant. Baldwin believes in work for work's sake. And so every executive in the factory, from S. M. Vauclain, who in his day, like A. J. Cassatt and Samuel Rea and W. W. Atterbury and some other pretty big railroaders was an apprentice at the Altoona West Point, comes to work with his men and does not leave until it is time for them to leave. Honor is the time clock of this particular cog in successful American industry. Mr. Vauclain was in Europe at the time when I visited the plant. Mr. J. P. Sykes, its vice president in charge of manufacturing, showed it to me. I had noticed the absence of time clocks at the factory doors and had commented upon that.

"We all carry watches," was the simple reply of Mr. Sykes.

"And you come to work yourself—at what hour?" I pressed.

"At 7 each morning," said he, "and stay until 6 in the evening."

Eleven hours each day. The old fashioned virtue of long hours and hard work. The old-fashioned way of an executive not content to sit at a large, oblong, mahogany desk and push buttons for minions to come to him, but of an executive who gets off his coat and out into his factory to work with, as well as for, his men. "I work with them," said Mr. Charles Schwab once when asked how he got on so well with his men.

Eleven hours a day. And contentment. And no time clocks. I began to see Baldwin success. A slant, too,

DESPITE HIGHER SALARIES, SHORTAGE OF PEDAGOGUES

Austin, Aug. 2.—Despite the increase in salaries to be paid Texas school teachers next session, which is made possible by the $14.50 per capita apportionment, Miss Annie Webb Blanton, State superintendent, predicts a shortage of teachers in the state.

"Last session the actual teacher shortage in Texas was about 2,000. That meant that more than 50,000 children had no instructor at all last session," said Miss Blanton. "About 400,000 children were taught by teachers whose preparation was not beyond that of the eighth grade. In some schools, teachers with no certificates at all were accepted, in open violation of the law. In many of our city schools all of the grades were over-crowded, some reporting as many as ninety children to the teacher. In a number of schools, teachers taught two shifts of children per day."

Miss Blanton pointed out that the United States Bureau of Education reports a probable teacher shortage for next session of about 100,000 elementary teachers and 20,000 High School teachers.

"This estimate is based on the number of teachers that will be needed, on the probable number that will be retained from last session, and on the number ascertained to be training themselves for the teaching profession in the various high schools and colleges of the United States," Miss Blanton said.

In many States near Texas, according to Miss Blanton, salaries are from 20 to 50 per cent higher than in Texas.

"We shall be able to retain a fairly large proportion of our teachers whose loyalty to their State is such that they prefer to work in Texas at a lower salary, than to go elsewhere," continued Miss Blanton. "We may count upon losing those who do not feel that intense loyalty to Texas, and those whose family burdens and necessities are such that they must work where they can obtain the highest remuneration."

The $4,000,000 appropriation made by the Legislature to increase teachers' salaries "is a temporary stop-gap, made to tide over the present session until the amendment can pass and become effective." This amendment, which is to be voted on at the next general election in November, proposes to remove the limitation on the amount of taxes that may be levied by school districts.

"If the amendment fails, the schools will have no recourse. Another year will probably not find a convenient surplus in the State treasury," declared Miss Blanton.

An Un-American Political Program

Charles Aubrey Eaton in Leslie's There is in the American Federation of Labor's political program absolutely no hint that any issues are up for settlement except those issues which affect one class—the class works for wages. There is no recognition of the solidarity of our national life. It is a class program, pure and simple. It is worse than that. It is a deliberate attempt to lift an organization above the class it represents and to clothe it with a power greater than the power of the Government itself. It would place the United States under the control of the American Federation of Labor. It would deprive the American working man of his American citizenship and place him under the absolute control of a class dictatorship.

This announced program is a grievous blunder. It is wrong in origin, principle, aim and method. It will injure the Nation and it will still further deprive labor of the support of public opinion. When the labor union was the chief instrument by which the working man was battling for a chance to live, public opinion decided in its favor in many a hard-fought struggle. But today the labor union does not represent an oppressed class. The laborer is better paid for less work than are millions of his fellow-citizens, among whom may be named preachers, teachers, journalists, artists, policemen, firemen, bank clerks, book-keepers, small shop keepers and farmers. The ordinary bricklayer is laying fewer bricks today for $10 than he used to lay for $6. In certain branches of the textile industry since 1914 wages have increased more than 140 per cent; hours have fallen from fifty-six to forty-four per week, while efficiency in output has dropped from 92 to 62 per cent. And these are typical of practically all lines of labor.

It is not true "that labor has been scorned by Congress." Nor is it true that the anti-sedition laws are aimed at labor unless labor is prepared to admit, what no one believes, that it is identical with Socialism, Communism and red revolution.

The fact is that labor, as such, has received governmental recognition and aid beyond any other class or interest in the Nation during the last five years. Every candidate on both sides to refuse to submit to the un-American inquisition proposed by Mr. Gompers and his political committee. Any candidate who does not so refuse is unfit for public office. For no man is fit to make national laws at the present time who cannot think in terms of the Nation and who does not see that class interests and class ambitions must give way before the general needs of the Nation.

Civilization in Danger

Bernard Suttie, in Leslie's: World conditions are such that every thoughtful man who loves his own country and humanity is taking anxious thought for the morrow. The most appalling tragedy of the last terrible five years is not the millions of dead nor the devastated lands of Europe, nor the billions wasted, but is the fact that mankind has learned nothing from the bitter years of grief and travail.

The peoples of the world have entrusted government to self-seeking politicians and these small men are confronted with a condition so serious that they have not the ability to cope with it.

It is not wild raving to say that civilization is balancing on a knife edge, but sober fact. And all this has come about because man refuses to take God and Christian ethics into the equation.

All previous civilizations have perished because they were built entirely on materialism and the people of those bygone days were not blameworthy because they had not our light and knowledge.

Our civilization is in danger because, notwithstanding our 1900 years of the Christian faith, despite the fact that every fairly intelligent man knows that in the practical application of Christian ethics is the only solvent for the ills of humanity, well as of these same legs by reason we have blundered along in our brutal individualism, and insisted on maintaining the same basis as all the dead civilizations which have preceded ours.

Is not it the fullness of time for all of us—diplomats and soldiers and statesmen and politicians and priests and laymen—all of us to grasp the big idea that only by adherence to the code of ethics which God has given us can we hope to build an enduring structure of good government?

We have seen the failure of every other method. Will we elect to perish rather than accept a world of decency, justice and love? It is merely a statement of imperishable truth to say that where people and rulers lack vision and refuse to accept a code which embraces the principles laid down by Jesus Christ there is no hope of a future for the Nation.

Paris and Zoning

Edward H. Bennett in Civic Comment: It is not well known that Paris put street planning and industrial zoning laws into operation in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Such, however, is the case, and the present orderly and beautiful growth of Paris is in no mean measure dependent upon the observation of these laws and of the height regulations.

Quoting from a statement by Earl Adams, Inspector of Classified Establishments at the Prefecture of Police: "Art. 7 of the law of March 17, 1791, of Paris provides: 'Any person will be at liberty to ply any trade, art or profession as he shall see fit—with the condition that he conform himself to the regulations of the police, existing or to be established.'"

"The law of Oct. 15, 1810, related to factories or workshops unsuitable, unhealthy or dangerous, and provides for three classifications:

"First class, those which should be removed far from residences.

"Second class, factories or workshops which need not necessarily be far removed from habitation, but which must show to a certainty that their operation will not inconvenience or cause damage to owners of residences. "Third class, those factories which may remain without inconvenience near residences, but which must be under police supervision.

"The law provides for three administrative bodies for public hearings and for damages in certain cases.

"The city ordinance of Paris of January 1815, publishes scientifically prepared lists of uses allowed in the various classes. Laws regulating the street system of Paris date far back. An edict of December, 1907 was conceived for the purpose of facilitating the circulation of traffic, which even at that time had become too intense.

This edict instructed an official body to suppress all stairways and other projections on the public streets and to take such steps as would lead in every way to their finer development.

"It proved to be difficult for the officials to arrive at any worthwhile results with the citizens, as the edict left many possibilities for arbitration. To remedy this a special order was passed Feb. 17, 1665, which ordered plans prepared for all roads cared for by the state. Orders of the 10th of April, 1783, ordered the drawing of a general plan for Paris. This measure was finally made to cover all cities in France by the law of Sept. 16, 1807.

"In all the Hausmann operations from 1850 to 1870 the question of the character of development fronting on the streets was carefully considered and the profiles of cross-sections of the streets themselves were studied and heights and setbacks were determined according to widths of the streets."

Control of Plant Lice

At this season of the year tiny insects destroy many cucumber, watermelon, cantaloupe, okra, squash, pumpkin and other plants. The pest is variously known as "plant louse," "aphis," "gnat," and "honey dew."

A great loss is sustained each year as a result of the ravages of this insect. The pest can be controlled and the loss prevented. The plan to be adopted is as follows: Where the damage is expected the plants should be inspected very carefully; the presence of ants or flies on a plant is a good indication that plant lice are present. If flies or ants are found or the young tender leaves appear curled, examine the plant very carefully, and if lice are present mark the plant. After the field has been inspected cover all infested plants with straw and burn them. This will kill the plant as well as the insects, but if every infested plant is burned the insects cannot spread to other plants. Never attempt to remove plants infested with plant lice; as in the removal the lice are dropped off and other plants are infested. If this plan is begun early enough, and kept up persistently it will not be necessary to destroy many plants.

In gardens where there are only a few plants; or in fields where the lice have become general over limited areas, the plants should be sprayed with a solution of "Black Leaf 40," in the proportion of one part by volume "Black Leaf 40," to 800 parts pure water. This is a contact insecticide and only kills the insect the solution comes in contact with, hence extreme care should be exercised to direct the spray to all parts of the plant, especially to the underside of the leaves where most of the insects are collected. This cannot be well accomplished with the ordinary spray nozzle. An angle nozzle should be used, one that will permit the operator to place the nozzle on the ground and spray upward.

How The Cost Accumulates

The Snyder Signal, quoting the El Paso Herald, tells of a carlot of eggs bought in Plainview and sold in El Paso. The Signal says: "It traced the eggs from the Panhandle Produce Company in Plainview, who bought the eggs at 20c a dozen from the producers, sold them to Armour & Co. for 25c a dozen, who shipped them to El Paso at a cost of 1 1-2c a dozen freight charges, and sold them to the retailers in that city at a fraction above 42c, the retailers selling them to the consumers at 50c a dozen, two and a half times the original cost. In a carload of 400 cases this would give the growers $2,400 for the 12,000 doz. eggs; the local produce house got $3,000, a profit of $600; Armour got $5,064, less freight of $264, a profit of $2,800, and the retailer got $6,000 a profit of $936—the consumer paying $6,000 for what the producer sold for $2,400."

Tractors Should Remove Lugs

There must be something done to keep tractors with lugs on the wheels from tearing up the highways. We noticed a tractor on the road the other day and it was tearing up two furrows in the hard surface of the road as it stalked majestically along. A tractor can in one-half day's time destroy a hard surfaced road that cost the county thousands of dollars worth of bonds to build. Any citizen who sees a tractor tearing up a high-

Hammering the Farmer

(Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Ia.) In the daily papers last week appeared great half-page advertisements headed, "The Government Acts to Lower Living Costs," and signed by the Chief of Surplus Property Division, Office of Quartermaster General, Washington D. C.

The advertisements state that the Secretary of War has ordered immediate release and sale to the American public of the entire surplus stock of canned meats at extremely low prices and by so doing expects to "deliver a powerful blow at the high cost of living." The quality of the meats is guaranteed. The distribution will be nation-wide, and every retailer, from the smallest to the largest, whether he carries groceries or not, will be asked to perform the duty of selling these meats. The prices are not named in the advertisements, but will be made known as quickly as possible. The advertisement concludes with the statement that this is the biggest sale of canned meats ever undertaken.

We are beginning to wonder whether the administration now in power has deliberately determined that the interests of the United States will be served by wrecking the agricultural industry. We do not wish to seem uncharitable, but from the time the United States entered the war down to the present time, the administration has repeatedly attacked the live stock industry by forcing prices below the actual cost of production.

When we entered the war, the cry came out of Washington that we must produce more live stock. Mr. Hoover said that hogs were just as important as guns and ammunition. Men were sent through the country, pleading with the farmers to increase production, and the farmers were assured that they could depend upon getting a fair profit. The farmers responded to these appeals. They greatly increased hog production; when the time came for the government to make good its promises, instead of making them good it repudiated them. This is an old story to our readers. They know it by heart. It is not necessary for us to recount the various devices adopted by the Food Administration to keep down meat prices—the meatless days; the propaganda put out, calculated to depress prices; the direct drives conducted by Attorney General Palmer from time to time against prices of all farm products. It is a sickening story of official ignorance and incompetence.

And now comes this last drive. The cattle feeders of the corn belt have been losing from $25 to $75 per head on their fat cattle. The hog producers have been losing from $2 to $5 per hundredweight on their hogs. At the present time hog prices are more than $5 per hundredweight below the average of the past forty years, based on the cost of production.

If there ever was a time when an intelligent government should make every effort to bring up the price of hogs and cattle to a profitable basis, now is that time. The low prices of the past year have been discouraging production. Farmers and stockmen have been compelled to go out of the livestock business because they simply can not stand the heavy losses they are sustaining. In the face of this threatening condition, the government of the United States blares forth in great display advertisements its purpose to throw the government surplus on the markets at "extremely low prices" and thus "deliver a powerful blow at the high cost of living." To do this matter justice, we should like to take a day and search the dictionary for words of denunciation and ridicule.

What will be the result of this policy if it is continued? Wallace's Farmer will undertake to forecast it. Meat production will be still further discouraged. Still more men who have been feeding cattle and hogs will stop feeding. Fewer cattle and hogs will be raised, and we will have a meat shortage which will send prices to unreasonable heights. The reduction in the amount of live stock grown will result in a surplus of grain, and this surplus of grain will result in unreasonably low prices, and will bring about a period of wide spread agricultural distress which will in turn result in business depression throughout the nation.

We do not know how much surplus meat the government has on hand, and, therefore, can not measure the legitimate effect of dumping it on the market. But whether the amount be much or little, the greatest harm comes thru the manner in which the government goes about it. These large advertisements printed in the daily papers throughout the nation by inference assume that the high cost of living is mainly due to a supposedly high cost of meat; and this in itself will tend to greatly reduce meat consumption, even if there were no surplus to be dumped. The fact of the matter is that live stock prices are lower now, compared to prices in 1914, than prices of any of the other principal commodities. Hogs this month are about 63 per cent higher than they were in July 1914, and steers are but 56 per cent higher than they were in July, 1914. But pig-iron is 335 per cent higher than in July, 1914; building material, 132 per cent higher; cotton cloth, 327 per cent higher; crude petroleum, 249 per cent higher, and wages in New York factories 119 per cent higher. And if we take the average of the various commodities other than agricultural we find it to be 261 per cent higher than in July, 1914.

How wickedly unjust it is, therefore, for the government of the United States to do anything, either directly or indirectly, to still further reduce prices of hogs and cattle, when these prices are already so low that they have brought ruin to many live stock farmers.

The astonishing thing about it all is the utter inability of people in authority to see that our very existence as a nation depends upon getting our agriculture onto a sound basis, and restoring as quickly as possible that system of diversified farming which conserves the fertility of our soil. This should be the very first concern of our people.

Dark Horses

What constitutes a dark horse, as the term is used in politics? What relation, if any, must a man have held to a contest out of which he had emerged as the nominee to make such a designation appropriate?

These questions are put out at this time for the double reason that a dark horse is suggested as a possible result both at Chicago and San Francisco, and because in some current observations about past conventions Rutherford B. Hayes, Benjamin Harrison and Theodore Roosevelt are thus described.

Mr. Hayes was not among the giants at Cincinnati in 1876, but as eminent a man as General Sherman had a year before suggested him for the republican nomination for President. He had been a member of Congress, and was now Governor of Ohio. His record was excellent, and widely known.

In 1888 General Harrison had a national reputation from his leadership in Indiana, which was then a pivotal State and every Presidential year a real battleground. Next to Mr. Blaine, who did not desire the nomination that year, General Harrison was easily the best bet at the Republican convention.

Theodore Roosevelt was not a dark horse in 1900, when nominated for vice president, and certainly not in 1904, when nominated for President. In fact he was never a dark horse at any time after entering public life.

Franklin Pierce is probably the darkest horse in our political history. So little known was he to the general public and his own party, that when nominated for President, the inquiry went up from all sections but his own, "Who is Franklin Pierce?" He soon answered it at the polls by defeating General Scott, one of the most famous Americans of the day. —Washington Star.

Don't Lose Four Poise

Don't get excited over the apparent stampede on the part of merchants to unload their stocks by cutting prices. Just as we advised readers not to figure upon the advancing price-tree quite reaching heaven, so we would utter a word of warning not to become panicky now and act on the assumption that prices will tumble headlong. The truth is that a moderate recession in prices was both desirable and inevitable—desirable because the strain of credit was reaching the breaking-point; inevitable because the public were beginning to rebel against being gouged. Don't forget that goods can not be produced at low prices so long as wages remain on their present level, and there certainly is little likelihood of wages declining materially at any time during the current year. Nothing has developed thus far to become panicky over. Not many of our 110,000,000 people will continue to wear overalls as a protest against high prices nor will many be content for long to wear old clothes. Consumption may be in-dead, should be appreciably cut down and more money saved by the people at large. But the 110,000,000 will continue to have to be fed and clothed and shod and transported and sheltered and amused. Moreover, it still remains true that the United States is the world's greatest national department store and that we carry vast stocks which other countries must buy from us and find some means to pay for. Act cautiously but not panicky.—Forbes Magazine.

Law Enough—Enforce It

Sun and New York Herald: The anarchist (Gitlow) who was sentenced recently to ten years imprisonment was prosecuted and convicted under a State statute which has been on the books nearly twenty years.

He was not brought to the bar of justice under a law enacted to meet an emergency created by war.

He was accused, indicted, tried, found guilty and sentenced in accordance with an act of the Legislature adopted in time of peace and retained as expressive of the continuing will of the people of New York after full and exhaustive discussion of its merits.

These facts are worth bearing in mind because there is much talk now about hesteria in the suppression of enemies of society who advocate the overthrow by violence of our political institutions.

The determination of the Americans that are representative democracy shall be protected from anarchists, whatever title they may choose to wear, is of long and steady growth.

Rich-Sell Their Jewels

London—It seems to be the fashion just now for women with plenty of money and heavily stocked with jewel cases to sell any rich and rare stones that they may possess, not because they need the money, but simply because they like the excitement of getting a big figure for articles that they probably seldom wear and certainly do not actually miss.

It is reported that one woman who is now Mrs. Jack Gillatt and was previously the widow of the eccentric Marquis of Anglessey, recently went through her jewel chests and collected quantities of old-fashioned, quaintly set gems which she sent off to be sold by auction.

The result was a very satisfactory sum of money that ran well into five figures with which she purchased a beautiful little estate, where she is indulging in her pet fad of chicken farming.

Fordson Tractor For a Better Harvest

Products of the soil cultivated in 1919 by American farmers are worth more than fourteen billion dollars.

This vast sum has been increased by the use of the Fordson Tractor.

For economical plowing and harvesting, the Fordson Tractor has demonstrated to thousands of farmers throughout the country that it makes for a better harvest.

American farmers are not the only ones who appreciate the Fordson. News comes from many foreign countries of the success of the Fordson Tractor.

See the Fordson at work—it will readily demonstrate why you should have one.

You have only to ask the Fordson owners what you think of the machine, and how it served them during the rush season just closing.

P.-F. C. of C. An Assured Success

The meeting of the board of directors and representatives of the Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce that took place in the office of the headquarters last week, beyond the question of a doubt, established in the minds of the Panhandle people the usefulness of the organization and their desire that it be perpetuated.

That this organization is being instrumental in bettering the conditions of commercial life is attested by the following petition upon which Floydada raised its quota pending the meeting of the commissioners court in August.

"The undersigned subscribers hereby pay the amounts set opposite our respective names for the support of the Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce, it being understood that a strict accounting for the moneys spent by said organization will be made in open meeting or meetings at a designated time. We realize that the above organization has been the instrument through which the people of Floyd County were able last year to get coal cars and that at least 80 percent of the cars obtained the last 12 months for grain shipments has come through the work of this organization."

This petition was accompanied by a draft for $600.

Judge Paul of Carson County, "I pledge Carson County and hand you my personal check, pending the action of the court, for $500."

Judge Dinwiddie of Tullia, Swisher County, "I pledge my county and will personally pay the amount in case the court fails to take the matter up. I will also go with representatives to other counties to put this matter over for the organization is worth the money."

A. L. Brown of Lockney, "Draw on the First National Bank of Lockney for $600 and anything else you want."

I. N. Edwards of Booker, "Accept my personal check for $100 and my pledge to bring Lipscomb County into the organization either through the avenue of the Commissioners or by private subscription."

E. W. Harrison of Hereford, "I pledge my county and if they don't pay it, I will." Mr. Parker of Hereford, banker, was a happy and appreciated talker.

Telegrams were received from six other counties pledging support to this organization. Its future financially is assured and that its usefulness to the territory is felt and appreciated, is a matter of delight and satisfaction to the officers of the Chamber.

Judge Paul introduced a resolution which was adopted, "that the bankers and grain men of each county assume the responsibility of this proposition in each individual county and put it over."

What Ails American Literature?

H. L. Mencken in July Yale Review: What ails the literature of the Republic is what ails the general culture of the Republic—the lack of a body of sophisticated and civilized public opinion, independent of plutocratic control and superior to the infantile philosophies of the mob—a body of opinion showing the eager curiosity, the educated skepticism, and the hospitality to ideas of a true aristocracy. This lack is felt by the American author, imagining himself to have anything new to say, every day of his life. He can hope for no support, in ordinary cases, from the mob; it is too suspicious of all ideas. He can hope for no support from the spokesmen of the plutocracy; they are too diligently devoted to maintaining the intellectual status quo. He turns, then, to the intelligentsia—and what he finds is correctness! In his two prime functions, to represent the life about him accurately and to criticize honestly, he sees this correctness arrayed against him. His representation is indecorous, untalented, too harsh to be borne. His criticism is in contumacy to the lovely ideals upon which the whole structure rests. So he is either attacked vigorously as an anti-patriot whose babblings ought to be put down by law, or enshrouded in a silence which commonly disposes of him even more effectively.

Soon or late, of course, a man of genuine force and originality is bound to prevail against this sort of stupidity. He will unearth an adherent here and another there; in the long run they may become numerous enough to force some recognition of him, even from the exponents of correctness. The case of Whitman is classical. There was never any doubt about his essential originality, his claim to serious consideration. Emerson saw it at once, and held out a hand to him. But almost immediately he fell under the displeasure of the contemporary intelligentsia because of his crimes against conventionality, and soon the war upon him was waged with such vigor that even Emerson was scared off. Such post-humous recognition is of no help to artists, and it is of no help to literature. A man who devotes his life to creating works of the imagination, a man who gives over all his strength and energy to struggling with problems that are essentially delicate and baffling and pregnant with doubt—such a man does not ask for recognition as a mere reward for his industry; he asks for it as a necessary to help to his industry; he needs it as he needs decent subsistence and peace of mind. Intellectually, we remain an undistinguished colony, cautious, eager for praise, and never willing to be led. That a willingness got us back Poe from France, Whitman from France and Germany, Mark Twain from England. But it is a long process. And while it is dragging its weary lengths along, how many creative artists are turned from their tasks in sheer hopelessness, and how many books are struck dead before they get to paper? I often wonder. What would happen? American Dostoevsky if he arose among us tomorrow? Or an Isben? Or a Joseph Conrad? Or a Zola? Or an Anatole France?

Sources of New Words

Brander Matthews in Harper's Magazine: New words are derived from all sorts of sources. To bluff, for example, which began life as a necessary technical term in poker, spread into general use over the United States, crossed the Western Ocean and established itself in Great Britain and has now crossed the English Channel and forced itself into French and Italian and German. Perhaps to pass the buck, having a similar origin, will in time attain a similar world-wide acceptance. To spoof, criticism originated in sporting circles of London, bids fair to be adopted in New York, although its attractiveness is slight as its utility. Equally unnecessary is forelady, which is intended to be a more elegant appellation for a forewoman and which seems to presage a companion foregentleman—or would it be foreagent? In another new word which we owe also to the busy marts of trade we can note again the ability of our language to supply itself easily with a term noted for immediate use. We have long been familiar with salesman and saleswoman—even, alas with saleslady, and the latest members of the family to whom we have been introduced is salesperson, a name intended to apply to an employ of either sex.

These verbal novelties we have made; out of our stock, so to speak, and at the same time we have kept on taking over terms from other tongues in accord with our ancient custom, as a result of which the words of foreign origin in our everyday speech (so a historian of our language has asserted) "far outnumber those of old English origin." And upon these alien vocables we have worked our will in our own fashion. We have taken two latin words, per centum, cut the second to get percent and then melted them together with an English termination to give us percentage. We have taken risque and made it risky, and we are in the process of taking brusque and making it brusky. This is as it should be, since a foreign word which keeps its foreign pronunciation or its foreign spelling is always a menace to the purity of English. The alien words we admit to citizenship in our language ought always to renounce their foreign allegiance. A term from another tongue is more easily made to feel at home in our vocabulary when its spelling does not call attention to its original outlandishness. So it was that cafeteria and automat, as names for special kinds of restaurants, slipped into general use without exciting general notice.

Owners of Liberty bonds have repeatedly been urged by Government officials not to trade their securities for speculative stocks particularly oil stocks. It is pointed out that the chances of an investor "making a killing" are very few and far between. But just how slim the opportunity to garner riches from a modest outlay actually is may only be fully realized by a perusal of some statistics recently given out by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department. According to these figures, during the months of March and April of this year, 387 oil companies with a total capitalization of $616,424,700 were organized. The total gross income from the average annual production of oil in this country is $700,000,000. The net income is much smaller, so much smaller in fact that it is estimated that for these newly organized companies to pay a dividend as large as 5 per cent on their capitalization of $616,424,700 they would have to own the total of the Nation's oil output. What they actually own, of course, is but a negligible part of the 350,000,000 barrels produced yearly. Consequently, to return to their stockholders as much as 5 per cent per annum, they must develop new sources of oil amounting to about 350,000,000 barrels annually. In other words, they must double the yearly output of the country. When it is realized that the commercial exploitation of oil in the United States has been going on for seventy years, and that it has been possible only by the most strenuous drilling to bring the production up to its present total, it will be realized just how much chance these new companies have to double the Nation's production over-night, and, consequently, just how much chance the small oil investor has to "hit it lucky."—Dallas News.

Is Your Skin Ablaze With Fiery Itchings?

Don't Continue to Suffer Because of Wrong Treatment.

Impurities in the blood cause millions of tiny disease germs to set up their attack on the surface of the skin, and in the form of pimples, boils, scaly eruptions and itchy, burning irritations, begin their disgusting and destructive work. These disease germs can be reached only through the blood, and local applications have no effect whatever. That is why salves, ointments, lotions, washes and other remedies applied to the skin can do no more than give mere temporary relief. If you want genuine relief from the tortures of skin diseases, lose no time in discarding all local remedies, and begin taking S.S.S. WHY IS AN ADVERTISEMENT?

When the baby laughs, when the sun shines, when the flowers bloom, when dinner sends out its inviting aroma; when anyone of ten thousand things happen which attract your attention and gain your interest, you are being advertised to.

And that is the "why" and the whole purpose of any advertisement; to gain your attention, secure your interest, arouse your desire; to tell you something you don't know, to remind you of something you have forgotten, to convince you of something concerning which you have been hesitating, to help you get the best at the least cost.

Why is an advertisement? You can wrap the whole question up in a few words: To make you happier. Think it over, and see if you don't find that to be the true answer.

Making Big Profits
The extent to which the people have been bled by war and extortion is almost unbelievable. A recent statistical report relates that 79,642 American corporations, many of whose stockholders are now dodging their income taxes thru stock dividends, averaged gross profits of more than 500 million dollars apiece in a single year. It is illuminating also to learn that in just one year during the war the gross income of American corporations rose from 35 1-3 billions to 84 1-2 billions. In a single year the war gave us 10,173 new corporations, and they are few in number, indeed, who have not piled up enormous net profits and great wealth on the capital invested.

The proof of profiteering is the margin of profit. We know that margin has never been wider, nor greed more insatiable.

Do you suppose that the people who pinch, skimp, and are being forced to do without many things they need, in order that we may continue to double the pre-war number of our millionaires every twelvemonth, thrill patriotic fervor whenever they read an unctuous lesson on thrift and 100 per cent Americanism from one of those 1000 per cent American tax-dodging grandstanders, or that it merely arouses their American dander and promotes wrath and profanity?

The same day a Texas cotton raiser wrote me he had to go to the public works in order to pay the grocery bill for which he went in debt while raising his 1919 crop. I read in a New York newspaper that the net profits of the Amoskeag spinning mills for 1919 were seven times greater than those cleared in 1917, and that 1918 profits were thirteen times greater than those it earned in the four years between 1912 and 1916.

All this, over and above deductions for taxes, high cost of labor and materials, and all the other things which we are commonly and repeatedly informed are responsible for the exorbitant prices this and other corporations are allowed to charge the American people for the actual necessities of life.—Senator Arthur Capper.

On Collective Bargaining
People who think but casually on the subject do not distinguish between collective bargaining, and selling of farm products through an organization. Yet two distinct irreconcilable principles are involved, as matters now stand.

Farmers who desire to sell their products collectively say to the consumers: "We will sell you milk, butter, potatoes, fruits, eggs, poultry, vegetables or other products at an agreed price per quart, pound, dozen, bushel or other unit. We will carry the investment, assume the expense, and do the work necessary to maintain a steady supply for your needs from day to day. You pay for only what you get. You do not have to accept spoiled or inferior goods, or short weights or measures. It is to your interest to bargain with us collectively, because if we know you are going to take our stuff at prices that will justify us in producing it you will never go hungry, and the average prices you pay will be lower than under the old feast-or-famine plan."

The labor union too often says to the employer, in substance: "We will sell you the services of our members at so much per hour or day each. We do not guarantee any specific output. The work may be done well, fairly or poorly, but you must pay just the same. We demand the same pay for our incompetent, disloyal members as for the competent and loyal. Furthermore, we limit the amount of work a member may do. We reserve the right to strike if conditions do not suit us, regardless of whether you can help such conditions or not, or in the event that we cannot agree among ourselves or with other unions, or for any other reason. We demand the right to control our members absolutely, and your business to a certain extent, we refuse to assume any responsibility whatsoever. It is to your interest to bargain with us collectively, for if you don't we will see that you do not operate your business."

If the unions should adopt the principle of the farmers generally, the latter would accept the invitations of organized labor to confer and cooperate. Industrial peace would be quickly established on a permanent basis. The organization of labor is right, and is desirable from many angles, but wrong cannot be perpetuated under its mantle. History does not record a single instance wherein injusture or a wrong principle has been successfully maintained by any agency or method. Only right can live.—The Agricultural Review.
