CHAUTAQUA IS ON IN CANYON THIS WEEK WITH GOOD PROGRAMS

The White & Myers Chautauqua opened in Canyon Monday afternoon and have been drawing large crowds at both the afternoon and night performances.

Monday afternoon The Comedy Male Quartet entertained the crowd with a strong program. At the night performance the Quartet again gave a short program. Mr. Ray Ramsey of the Quartet made a hit with the audience in the community singing of "You Can't Get a Whimper out of Me." Henry Clark, lecturer, concluded the entertainment with his lecture on "Play Ball." Comparing the game of life to a ball game.

Tuesday afternoon the Gypsy Serenaders entertained with a good program in the afternoon and again at night. The feature of the night entertainment was the lecture of Clyde Wilson McCord, on "Modern Jekylls." Mr. McCord has been on the lecture platform for eight years and had a wonderful message.

Wednesday afternoon Frank A. Armitage, fun maker, entertained the large crowd with his wit and fun. He is one of the most noted humorists in the Chautauqua world today. At night "Friendly Enemies," with a New York cast, was played. "Friendly Enemies" is one of the good plays of the season and was well received.

This afternoon Howard Russell's Scottish Revue will give their program, and tonight, Cyrus S. Nusbaum, will lecture on "The Real Community."

For the last day of the Chautauqua, Friday, Quintano and his Band will give programs both in the afternoon and night.

The Randall County Club and C. F. Walker, County Agent, promoters of the Chautauqua this year, are well pleased with the success of the Chautauqua.

An Appeal to Farmers of Randall County

James A. Bush and others interested in the new cheese factory just starting at Amarillo, will be here next Monday with County Agent, C. F. Walker. They will make an attempt to interest the dairy farmers in a truck line from here to Amarillo to deliver milk, making trips every day.

Mr. Walker states that he is anxious for these men to meet the dairy farmers of Randall County and hopes to be able to put over this project.

A. & M. College Salaries Are Cut

Austin, Aug. 2.—With reduced impetus, but with a workable strength, the House majority today sliced salaries at the A. & M. College in the same way it treated the University of Texas last week when it restored the compensation of 1920 before the last and third raise was made.

The vote by which the reductions was affected at the A. & M. was 76 to 50 as against 84 to 37 trimming the University salaries.

Action came late in the afternoon after much speech-making and many pleas for the college and for the cause of higher education was well as demands in the name of the taxpayers that government expenses be reduced.

Representative Roundtree, in whose district is situated the college, made a vigorous appeal for the college and its appropriations. Chairman Satterwhite was to the fore, as were others, including Barry Miller of Dallas. Representative Bessley of Hopkins, who offered the amendment, and Representative Curtis of Fort Worth, chairman of the House caucus, or People's Club, contended for the salary cuts and were successful.

David Thomas Injured

Saturday afternoon while David Thomas was getting feed from the loft of his barn, he accidentally fell out of the loft striking on his back and fracturing two ribs and receiving other bruises. He has since been confined to his bed, but at last report was doing very nicely.

Taken to Hospital

Cecil Smith son of A. M. Smith, was taken to the Amarillo hospital Sunday suffering from blood-poison, from the effect of a knife wound he received in his leg a few days previous while playing. At last report he was getting along fine.

Baptist Church to Have Revival

The revival services of the Baptist church will begin the first Sunday in September and will continue for two weeks.

IS THIS ECONOMY

The "economy" members of the Legislature scored what some newspapers heralded as a victory at Austin last week when an amendment was added to the appropriation bill providing for drastic reductions in the salaries of members of the faculty of the University of Texas. President Vinson has expressed the opinion that the reductions provided for in the bill will result in virtual disbandment of the University faculty, and it is even reported that Dr. Vinson himself will resign his post as president of the University as a protest against the action of the House last week and because the low salaries allowed by the appropriation bill will make it impossible to secure faculty members of the caliber necessary to maintain a University of the first class.

Friends of the University say this is the worst blow dealt the University since Governor Ferguson vetoed the University appropriation and threatened to close the doors of the institution.

It is about time the people of Texas called a halt to the tactics of the Legislature in dealing with the University. When they run out of something to "investigate" they hit on some plan to kick the University around. It is deplorable that a great State like Texas should permit a system which makes this possible. Some plan ought to be devised that will give the University an independent income so that the greatest educational institution of the State would not have to appear as a mendicant before every biennial session of the Legislature accepting what crumbs the politicians see fit to throw aside.

Not only does the University stand in danger of being disbanded by the Legislature, but the State Department of Agriculture and the State Normal Schools are in a similar predicament.

Asher Will Appeal Five Year Sentence

The following is a press clipping sent out from Clarendon, and is about a former Randall County man, John Asher who resided near Happy:

"John Asher, former Amarillo policeman and member of the Texas Ranger force was given five years in the penitentiary for the killing of L. Welch near Claude, April 20. The case will be appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals, according to announcement of Asher's attorneys. A motion for a new trial was prepared Monday afternoon and in event the motion is denied, the notice of appeal will be given Wednesday, the attorneys say.

"The jury retired with the case about 11 o'clock Saturday night and brought in its verdict Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock. The trial of the case began Thursday morning.

"Welch, for whose killing Asher was charged, was killed when the automobile in which he and a party were driving through the town of Claude, was fired into from behind. Asher admitted firing into the car, but declared that he was acting in an official capacity as a Ranger in pursuing a car which he thought loaded with contraband liquor."

Tex Thornton, who was implicated with Asher has secured a change of venue, and his trial will be held in Canyon at the next term of District Court.

Fee Bill is Not Up To the Legislature

Wallace R. Clark returned Tuesday from Austin. The bill regarding payment of all fees collected by State institutions has not been reported out of the committee, and likely will not be.

Mr. Clark was called to Austin to show how the bill would affect the Music Department of the Normal.

Mr. Clark spoke in chapel this morning telling the condition of affairs in the Legislature as regards the situation of the appropriation bills for the State schools.

C. W. Warwick is Sick

If the Randall County News does not meet your expectations this week, just blame it on to the back office force, for the "Boss done went and got sick." He was taken very ill Saturday and has since been confined to his bed. He seems to be improving today, at least he was able to "hall us out" this morning, and we are hoping that he will be back on the job with his usual amount of pep next week.

Mrs. J. W. Reid and the boys left Wednesday for Dallas where they will visit with friends and relatives for a month.

NO TRADES DAY WILL BE HELD IN CANYON DURING MONTH OF AUGUST

Owing to the rush of harvest, no attempt will be made to have a Trades Day in Canyon next Monday. Get ready for the regular big Trades Day in Canyon in September.

Thompson Gasser is Believed a Big One

Gas production at from 6,000,000 to 12,000,000 cubic feet is the estimate of oil and gas authorities on the Terry Thompson well brought in Saturday, on the Thompson ranch in Moore County. L. C. Heldrick, Bert Shay and Mr. Morrissey of Wichita Falls, directors of the company arrived in Amarillo Tuesday at noon and proceeded at once to the new gasser.

Conferees to determine whether or not the well will be drilled deeper will be held by the officials of the company, and definite action will probably be taken as soon as they look over the properties.

The finding of the gas in the Thompson well is said to extend the Amarillo gas field at least eight miles. The well was spudded in last year by the Panhandle Oil & Refining Company, and the gas flow was struck at 2700 feet.

The proven gas field is now said to be 22 by 54 miles or 1188 square miles. Local oil and gas men are of the opinion that the directors of the Terry Thompson gasser will determine to go further with the drilling. That the well is producing from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 feet is the belief of many. That belief is based on the statement made by John Morrissey, superintendent of the well, that after filling his boiler with water, he has been unable to sink it in the hole.—Amarillo Tribune.

Claude Boy Hurt When Bronc Bolts

Claude, Texas, Aug. 3.—Ralph Bennett McClure, 6-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McClure, suffered a gash six inches long on the left side of his head at the barbecue here today. Mr. McClure was standing on the running board of an automobile holding the boy in his arms when one of the rodeo broncs bolted the arena and dashed among the cars. Ralph and his father were knocked down, but the father was unhurt. The boy was semi-conscious tonight, but physicians think his injuries are not serious. This was the only accident during the big celebration.

The McClure boy mentioned above is a nephew of S. B. McClure of this city.

Notice to Farmers

C. F. Walker has been advised that G. T. Flaherty, veterinary inspector, will be in Canyon, August 11 and 12 to vaccinate hogs. This work is free with the exception of the serum.

All parties having hogs for vaccination should notify C. F. Walker, at once the number they want vaccinated.

Cows Tested at Normal

The cows of the Agricultural Department of the Normal were tested last week for tuberculosis. They were found to be free, but owing to the unfinished condition of the dairy barn it was not considered an accredited herd.

W. J. Flesher of Canyon, was in Amarillo Tuesday afternoon between trains, being enroute home from a brief visit to Sherman, McKinney and Dallas. He states this country looks decidedly good to him by comparison with the country and cities visited since leaving here last week. Mr. Flesher attributes the depressed conditions of business in Central Texas, to the prevailing low prices and unsatisfactory and unpromising conditions of cotton. He has the impression that this looks like a new world to him as compared to the territory from which he is returning.—Amarillo Tribune.

W. E. Lair, former traveling representative for Moore-Poston company leaves today for Phoenix, Ariz., where he will be with The Richardson Dry Goods Co. of St. Joseph, Mo. Mr. Lair will be succeeded in this territory by A. P. Robinson, who has been with Moore-Poston company for several years in the shoe department.—Amarillo Tribune.

Rev. Ted P. Hollifield left Tuesday for New York City where he will spend his vacation. He will also visit his old home in Kentucky before he returns.

Caruso, Golden Voiced Tenor is Dead

Naples, Aug. 2.—Caruso died today. The great singer, whose ultimate recovery had been hoped for under the benign influences of his own Italy, passed away at 9 o'clock this morning at the Hotel Vesuvius in this city. He had been brought here hurriedly from Sorrento, on the Bay of Naples, where less than a week ago he avowed his returning strength, and expressed the conviction that he would sing again as in the old days.

He had been able to visit the famous sanctuary of Our Lady of Pompeii, giving thanks offering for his recovery.

He went also to the wonderful Island of Capri, where he attended a luncheon in his honor, but soon afterwards unfavorable symptoms in the form of higher fever maintained themselves, and his wife telegraphed to a Rome specialist to come to Sorrento; it was then discovered that a new internal abscess had developed.

Caruso's removal to Rome for an operation was advised, but he showed such weakness that it was impossible to transfer him further than Naples, where he arrived by sea Sunday evening. Four eminent physicians were called in consultation, and their examination showed the presence of a suppurative abscess, accompanied by severe peritonitis.

An operation to be performed at noon today was decided upon, but the patient's condition became suddenly worse at 4:30 in the morning. Prior to this, heart stimulation was restored to hourly.

In order that Caruso should not tire himself the attending physicians ordered him not to speak, so during his last night he uttered no word. Of the members of his family present at the death bed—the most pathetic was his old mother, who had always clung obstinately to her little home, despite her son's efforts to accustom her to the material comforts of life.

Baylor Students Oppose Wage Cut

Belton, Texas, Aug. 2.—The entire student body and faculty of Baylor College summer school went on record in resolutions adopted today as being opposed to the action taken by the Texas House of Representatives in voting to reduce the salaries of University of Texas instructors and otherwise materially reducing the appropriation for the state university and other state schools.

Losing Respect for Our Courts

The grand jury of Tarrant county, Texas, recently returned an indictment for robbery in which it was charged that the offence was committed during the month of "Mch." The attorney for the defendant proved by several dictionaries that "Mar." was the correct abbreviation for "March" and for that reason the language of the indictment was obscure. The Judge before whom the case was tried sustained the objection and quashed the indictment.

This is but one of the many incidents happening in the courts of Texas which have a tendency to make judges ridiculous and which result in a loss of respect for our courts and a disregard for the law. In this case, if the newspaper reports are correct, it was not the language of the indictment that was obscure—it was the minds of those whose duty it is to administer justice. Blinded by precedent and technicality and fear of reversal by the higher courts, the judges of Texas and many other states are costing the tax payers millions of dollars annually. Worse than that, they are undermining the usefulness of the courts of the land by creating a distrust in the minds of the people for that department of the Government which was erected for their protection. Justice is not only blind, but she is deaf and dumb. She has been removed from her pedestal and the little "god" technicality has been set up in her place.

The attorney for the defense, in the case cited; the judge on the bench and the prisoner at the bar all knew that "Mch" was used as an abbreviation for March in the indictment before the court. Was there any sane reason for quashing the indictment? If there was it did not appear in the report of the proceedings.

District judges are often influenced for fear of reversal. The higher courts and more particularly the Court of Criminal Appeals, in times past, has made a record on reversals on purely technical grounds. The district judge may know the law; the defendant at the bar may have had a fair trial before twelve intelligent jurymen. The judge may be satisfied that the defendant has been given every legal advantage and his rights fully protected, and then have the case returned to his court because of some trivial infraction of technical rules that in no way was material. Such may have been the reason for the action of the court in the Tarrant county case, but to suggest this is merely to pass the indictment on.

Crime would be less rampant; our court dockets less crowded; the cost of the judiciary cut in half and justice made more sure and certain could our judges be made to understand that the exercise of even average common sense in the conduct of their courts was necessary to maintenance of dignity and to retain the respect of the people.—Farm and Ranch.

The Press and Free Publicity

Running a newspaper is, after all, a business venture and not altogether a bonanza, at least. Nobody is more keenly alive to the possibility of not making any profit at it than are the country editors and publishers. Doubtless it was from this viewpoint that the Texas Press Association, made up of the greater part of the so-called country journalists, declared at McAllen against "free publicity." Any body who has sat at the desk of a country weekly, or even the smaller daily, and been the target of sacks and sacks of publicity items from every sort of institution on earth, apparently knows how authors and supporters of the regulation feel about it. The man at the desk is either the man who runs the cash drawer, or else he is very close to him in sympathy and in contact. And the impositions that are made upon him in fake publicity and thinly disguised advertising sent in as publicity are not calculated to make either the editor or the manager generous or gentle on the subject.

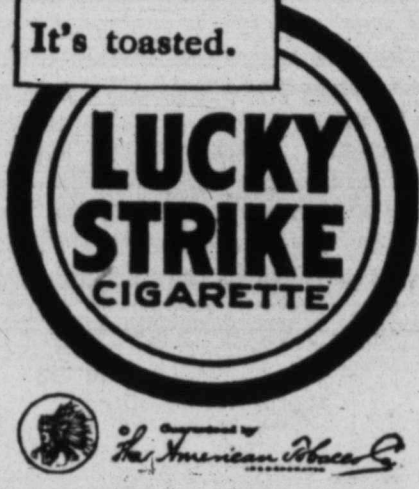

The McAllen resolution specifically names the publicity from the fairs, fat stock shows, and the various state supported educational institutions, and favors the creation of advertising appropriations to cover the mention of these institutions in the columns of the newspapers. If the newspapers of Texas decline to carry without remuneration a more or less glowing account of the wonders of an approaching exposition to be held in such and such a city, that is of course unfortunate for the exposition, but it is no more than the right of the newspaper to exercise control over their own columns. But it will seem to many that the extension of this principle to the case of the State supported educational institutions is not well considered.

Although the newspaper is a private business enterprise, so far as finances are concerned, it is a public institution so far as service is concerned, and it is bound, within the limits of its capacity, to forward and foster whatever is for the benefit of the patronage and section which it serves. The publication in any paper of news relative to state-supported institutions is not a favor to the institution; it is a service to the newspaper's own community. The state institution makes no profit on any student, but the community from which the student goes and to which he returns profits a great deal by his sojourning there. The publisher's duty to the public is co-extensive with his access to the public ear. For him to demand pay for the publication of legitimate news relative to a subject of so vital importance as public education is to bring into question the integrity of his news column, or else to bring into question his judgment as to proper news values.

Beyond all doubt the publicity out of many public institutions is of such low order of workmanship as to deserve no place whatever, either in the advertising columns of any paper. No one but the writer of such publicity, would seriously expect it to find a place in any well-edited paper. But this is not true of all state school news. It is unfortunate that some of the men whose duty it is to furnish such news can not get the news viewpoint and furnish to the papers of each section those items that have to do with the interest and students of that particular section. But even in this regard the "news service" of most of the Texas institutions is improving and, with a little prodding from the country press, would improve still more. But regardless of that feature of the case it may be doubted if the public would

Health Paragraphs
 By Dr. M. M. Carrick, State Health Officer.
 When I get to be ninety, I hope that I will have so many of my colleagues about me that I shall be accepted as a matter of course.
 If I can read well and have weak lungs; if I can write well and have kidney trouble; if I can figure well and have anemia—how much are the three R's worth to me?
 We know that malaria is carried by a special species of mosquito and we know that if we eliminate the mosquito the spread of the disease will automatically stop.
 Responsibility for accident and disease is no longer considered merely as a personal problem, it is a community problem as well. Just as we insist that every American shall have the benefits of public education, so should we insist upon the inherent right of every American to the possession of a body free from the handicap of preventable diseases.
 The public health is the foundation on which reposes the happiness of the people and the power of the country. The care of the public health is the first duty of the statesman.—Lord Beaconsfield.
 If there is no filth, there will be no flies.
 A large portion of the disease from which mankind suffers today are preventable. The time will come when such diseases and malaria and tuberculosis will belong to the ancient history of medicine. All work, no matter how trivial or valueless it may seem, if it has been done with honesty of purpose, has its place in the great victory over pain and pestilence. Were it possible to ask those who have fought in this cause and have died for it, "Was it worth while?" they, too, would say that they rejoiced that they had not lived in vain, but had been allowed a little share in the work of alleviating the suffering of humanity.
 The State Board of Health, Austin, Texas, welcomes inquiries or letters from citizens interested in the promotion of community health.

Famous Titan 10-20

At Lowest Price Ever Quoted

All former price advances are wiped out by the big reductions made on this three-plow tractor. We believe this is the best buy on the tractor market.

This is the lowest price ever quoted on the Titan, considering equipment now included (formerly sold extra). March 1, 1921, the price was $1,200. Now it is $900. As this price disregards manufacturing costs, we do not know how long it will be maintained. International 8-16 and 15-30 tractors are also lower than ever before. The 8-16 now sells for $900 complete. The new low price on the 15-30 is $1,750.

All prices f. o. b. Chicago. We can arrange suitable terms. These prices certainly justify the immediate purchase of a tractor. Get yours in time for the horse-killing work of hot weather plowing and the fall and winter belt work.

President Harding Is City Booster

President Harding is a member of the Chamber of Commerce of his home town—Marion, Ohio. Through his long political career he has retained his membership, and his interest in the welfare of his home city has never wavered.

Here is what he says about the Chamber of Commerce idea:

"I do not know that I ever asked myself why I joined the Chamber of Commerce, but I assume it was because I was in the newspaper business, committed to the policy of everlasting boosting of our home town, and we looked upon the Chamber of Commerce as the best organized agency for carrying on the boosting work. It all came very naturally to me because of the normal atmosphere of the newspaper office, which is ever concerned with the progress and development of the community which that newspaper seeks to serve.

"If I were to disassociate myself from the newspaper business I should assume I would be attracted to a Chamber of Commerce because business is the life blood of material existence, and no community is worth while unless it is very alert to business development.

"I know something of the inspiring work is done by the two secretariats of the chambers of commerce throughout the country. They are ever pushing forward with such zeal that they take a great community of business men with them.

"I like to think that the thing which boosts the community is certain to make progress for the nation, and I should like our great republic to head the list of the great commercial nations of the world."

Bored Americans

Are you bored? Just naturally bored with living and with life? A gentleman by the name of Prof. Albert Einstein thinks you are. At least that seems to sum up his impression of Americans, judging from an interview he is said to have given when he got to Berlin after his recent tour of this country. "This enthusiasm for me and my work struck me as being a genuinely and peculiarly American phenomenon," said the professor in speaking of his reception by the populace. "If I understand it aright," he went on, "it was due largely to the fact that the people over there are tremendously bored, far more so than is the case with us."

By this time the professor had warmed up his "impressions" to the fluting point and poured them out thus: "Of course New York, Boston, Chicago and other big cities have their theaters and concert halls—but otherwise what? There are cities with 1,000,000 population, but cities with terrible poverty—poverty of intellectual things." Now, isn't that terrible to think about—unless you find the weather has precluded thinking temporarily? It sounds as if the man had taken Edison's questionnaire diatribe in dead earnest. But perhaps you can stand a little more. Listen to what poor dumb things Prof. Einstein found you and your fellow Americans to be:

"Did it make a ridiculous impression upon me to observe their excitement over a theory of which they certainly understood nothing? In truth, I found it comic. But at the same time it was interesting to watch them at their play. I firmly believe that it was the very mysteriousness of the idea which they could not grasp which enchanted them."

Professor Einstein made another discovery about America which he announced to Berlin upon his return to Europe. He found out that "women dominate the entire life of America." Whether that is why America is bored or not, the relativity expert did not explain, but of the men he found that "they think of nothing but work—and to an extent I have never seen elsewhere." In fact the men are nothing but "the little play dogs of the women, who spend their money in a reckless manner and sell themselves in a mist of extravagance."

Having in the scientific fashion characteristic of his manner of investigation acquired the foregoing data concerning us and the people who live in the same country with us, the good professor will doubtless retire to reflect upon them and to evolve a theory of Americanity which will explain how anybody can possibly be bored while the baseball season is on in town and the swimming hole is available in the country.

Dollars Paid Make the Mare Go

Again and again illustrations have been made to show how the payment of one debt leads to the payment of many other debts, the money passing from hand to hand and wiping out a volume of debts several times the size of the one original payment, and how this money in circulation stimulated and vivified the community. For the very reason that this is true, it is useful to keep repeating the illustration.

Of course there are debts that are not paid when due, because the persons owing them are at that time without means to make settlement. But there are many cases in which no such excuse exists. It is a well-known fact that many well-to-do and rich persons do not pay their bills promptly. Feeling that they are "good at any time," they postpone or neglect to settle their accounts; they feel that their creditors ought to be glad to get their trade and to get their money when they "get good and ready" to pay it. Persons of moderate income usually settle their accounts promptly. They feel under compulsion to do so; that they must do so in order to have credit.

The failure of one well-to-do or rich person to pay his bills promptly, of course, makes little difference to the tradesman, professional man or other creditor, but the fact that many fail or neglect to pay constitutes an aggregate that often is embarrassing to such creditors. Sometimes they are forced to borrow heavily, or to curtail forces or otherwise economize because of the bulk of unpaid accounts—accounts that "are perfectly good" and that the owners "can pay at any time."

Such failure or neglect starts a vicious circle. It forces economies that are far-reaching. Persons lose jobs because of it, and still others lose jobs because these persons are out of employment; often a wave of unemployment results largely because of such failure and neglect. And the negligent persons do not escape the consequences. They suffer some injury because of the "hard times" that they have helped to produce.

Every person who owes a debt or other bill has it within his power to help his community and to help himself by paying this debt or account promptly. If he has the money with which to make such payment, it is worse than foolish—indeed, it is anti-social—for him to delay payment. To keep the money that he owes does him no good unless it be that he derives some pleasure from jingling coin in his pocket or from contemplating a fat bank balance; and if he derives such pleasure, it is one that he is not justly entitled to.

Are there unpaid bills on your desk that you have neglected to pay? If so, get busy. Write your checks in settlement and send them out on a virtuous circle, so that your creditors may pay others, and these others may pay yet others, so that positions may not be abolished, so that the wheels of industry may be kept moving, so that prosperity may abide in the land.

It is an aggregate of small things that makes the difference between prosperity and adversity.

Raise Hogs Advice Of Hereford Man

Just what the hog business could be developed into in this community, if handled by more people and in larger volume, is shown by figures given The Brand this week by G. W. Brumley, who, as a representative of the packing concerns has been buying and shipping hogs in car lots since 1917. Mr. Brumley has kept an accurate record of every hog he has purchased, his weight price paid, etc. His books show that since March, 15, 1917, when he entered the business here, he has purchased and shipped a grand total of seventeen thousand one hundred and seventeen hogs!

Mr. Brumley has handled ninety-nine cars since last January, or about 8000 head, which has distributed about $125,000 through this country. While some of these hogs have been shipped in here and fed for market, Mr. Brumley estimates that about three-fourths of the hogs he has handled have been native raised.

The largest percent of these hogs have been shipped to Los Angeles, Cal. packers. They want light hogs on the coast, limiting the weight to 225 pounds. The heavy hogs are shipped east. Mr. Brumley tries to make a shipment every Wednesday. He calls for delivery of the hogs the day before shipping. So far this year he has only missed two weeks.

Mr. Brumley is an enthusiast about hogs. He thinks this is the greatest natural hog country in the world and that every farmer should carry a number of them. Mr. Brumley is now arranging his farming business so that he may go into the raising of pigs on a larger scale in the future. With the uniformly good feed crops raised in the Panhandle and the healthful climate, free from so many hog ailments prevalent elsewhere, there seems to be no sound reason why the Panhandle of Texas should not become the largest breeding and shipping field for hogs in the United States—Hereford Brand.

Little Decline in Advertising Likely

Newspaper and magazine advertising in the United States is unlikely to suffer any very considerable permanent loss in volume, according to James I. Clarke, second vice president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York. In the July number of Commerce Monthly, the bank's magazine, he presents a comparison of total advertising lineages for the last ten years with bank clearings outside New York an accepted index of business activity. This comparison shows that both follow the same general trend, he points out, and that the unprecedented growth of advertising during the post-war boom period was primarily the result of business activity rather than of extraneous causes.

"There is a popular belief that the passing of the abnormal conditions of recent years may result in a marked and permanent reduction in advertising of every sort," Mr. Clarke declares. "In an era of sweeping and widespread changes in the course of business activity the relation between the volume of advertising and the volume of business thus become a matter of more than mere technical interest. Broadly viewed, the subject is important not only to publishers, advertisers and advertising men, but to the whole community."

"Any great decrease in the volume of advertising would have a profound effect on the number and distribution of both newspapers and periodicals and on the interchange of opinion which they so greatly stimulate. Many publications would necessarily be discontinued, while those which survived would reach fewer readers because the loss of necessary revenues would make necessary large increases in subscription rates."

Mr. Clarke recites statistics compiled by Printers Ink and the New York Evening Post on newspaper and magazine advertising, which he has plotted as a graph, together with the figures on bank clearings. He continues:

"Comparing the curves representing New York City newspaper advertising and total magazine advertising, it will be noted that the seasonal variations in both classes of advertising occur together and with extraordinary regularity. Not only do the fluctuations in newspaper and magazine advertising occur at the same period, but they are substantially similar in extent."

"Although the volume of newspaper and magazine advertising in the United States tends to follow in general the trend of business activity, this study of total advertising lineage emphasizes the remarkable stable character of the volume of advertising. The general upward trend in the volume of advertising continued without substantial interruption from the earliest date for which satisfactory data are available until the autumn of 1920."

"During 1919 and the early months of 1920 there was a considerable gain in both newspaper and magazine advertising, particular in the former. This increase followed a period during 1917-18, when a rapidly rising price level and the stimulation of war activity very considerably increased bank clearings throughout the country so that this index of general business during those two years tended to rise faster than the volume of either magazine or newspaper advertising."

"In the summer of 1914 the sudden catastrophe of the European war reacted swiftly on nearly every form of business activity, with the result that bank clearings throughout the latter half of the year were substantially below the average of the preceding year. The volume of advertising also decreased, magazine advertising to a somewhat greater degree than bank clearings and newspaper advertising in slightly less proportion."

"During the latter half of 1920 and the first few months of the current year business was again faced with a period of sudden and profound readjustment. Bank clearings outside of New York City, which reached a total of over $18,000,000,000 in October, 1920, fell to less than $13,000,000,000 in February 1921. The volume of magazine advertising declined in accordance with the usual seasonal fluctuations during the fall of 1920, but much more precipitately than in previous years. The volume of newspaper advertising followed the normal seasonal variations and decreased proportionately less than bank clearings."

"There appears to be no reason to believe that the notable increase in periodical advertising during 1919 and 1920 was influenced to any great extent by Federal taxes, or was the result of any factor other than the stimulus of business activity."

"The experience of the last ten years and especially that of the periods of depression in 1914-15 and 1920-21, seems to demonstrate that the place of advertising in the present economic system is thoroughly well established, and it seems improbable that there can be any very considerable permanent curtailment in volume."

Dark, dirty and poorly ventilated rooms are consumption factories. Shun them.

Contagion is mainly spread by contact of the infected person with a well person. Sometimes just plain derelict carelessness is responsible for the contact.

An enlightened community will not permit teacher and child to remain in and healthful environment and have the process labeled "Education."

Under no circumstances should the tuberculosis mother be permitted to nurse her child. This is necessary for the health of the mother as well as for the protection of the infant.

All children from homes in which there is or has been tuberculosis should be carefully and repeatedly examined by a competent physician for the early detection of the disease.

Vaccination is less annoying than a pock-marked face and less expensive than a third-class funeral.

If you tire easily and are "all played out" don't dope yourself with so-called "tonics" and stimulants. See your doctor and insist upon having a thorough examination. Weariness is usually the first sign of tuberculosis.

The prevailing popularity of motion pictures and their value in health education have prompted the State Health Officer to provide several high-class reels on health subjects. They are furnished to health officers, societies, and schools without charge on application. On account of the strong demand, however, it is advisable to make requests well in advance if the pictures are wanted for any particular date.

Motoring Without the Worries

Once we get wireless trains, we shall soon be in possession of wireless-propelled road vehicles. The latter will be a natural and early development of the former, and are just inevitable.

The possibility of running them has already been demonstrated by actual experiment. Don't forget that. It's a fact of prime importance.

And what an alluring prospect it opens up! No more worry about the price of petrol; no bother with tanks going dry miles away from a garage; no puzzling over recalcitrant car-pur-tors; no getting all messed up with oil when "filling up." All you need to do will be to climb into your car, "connect up" with the current flowing wirelessly over you, and buzz off as far as you wish to go.

Can you imagine any set of conditions better calculated to make motor-ing a pleasure? Of course, you will have to pay something for your power, though the charge for it will be far lower than the cost of petrol, as the supplies will be distributed from fixed stations after the same fashion that wireless telegraph waves are projected from Marconi installations now.

If you are inclined to be skeptical, I would remind you that Shakespeare's famous dictum that "There are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in your philosophy," and repeat, by way of conclusion, that the speculations in this article are built upon a foundation of ascertained fact. They are no visionary conceptions, but forecast things which will assuredly come—that are already on the way.

Large Farming Not Profitable

(Lockney Beacon)

Floyd County and the Plains country will eventually come to smaller farms and better farming. A man, who is a successful farmer and business man, remarked to the Beacon scribe a few days ago that this wheat raising business on a large scale will eventually break any man that engages in same. It was his opinion that this section was coming to smaller farms and better farming. We heartily agreed with the gentleman and make this statement the basis for an article along the lines of smaller farms, better farming and more diversification. It is our candid opinion that a farmer can make more money in this country by farming fewer acres than he can by farming larger acres. The man who is raising from 500 to 1,000 acres of wheat is bucking an uncertain game, in which there is as much gamble as that of oil speculation. In the first place large acres can't be as well prepared as fewer acres. Then there is the enormous expense of farm machinery and harvest machinery. There is a certain depreciation of value in this machinery. There is interest, etc. He bucks the seasons, and takes a long shot to say the least. If he is hiring all the work done he has less chance of making money or a living.

As a comparison of the large scale farmer with the smaller and better farmer, the man who is farming a quarter section or less, he is not carrying the investment in farm machinery. His land is better prepared. He diversifies his crops. He plants half to grain, raises a good feed crop, has a nice bunch of hogs, a few good graded or registered milk cows and a big flock of poultry. This smaller farmer will make more clear money in the long run than the man who is farming wheat exclusive of other crops and on a large scale. We have noticed the wear and tear on a man's physical make-up incident to this big farming proposition. He is keyed up to a high pitch, goes day and night, hitting on all four cylinders and is just working himself to death. The man with fewer acres takes it easy, raises from 50 to a hundred acres of wheat, has a good feed crop, raises a bunch of hogs, nice chance of chickens, has his milk stock, comes to town on Saturday, goes to church on Sunday, is happier and more contented, happy and prosperous more so than his neighbor who is working seven days in the week, never has time to go to church on Sunday, nor spend any time visiting or come to town.

The small farmer has the best of the situation. He is not expected to get rich in one year, but has his pegs set for a steady and sure accumulation. If his wheat fails or is cut short, he has his feed, his cotton, his hogs, his poultry and dairy products to fall back on. If the big wheat farmer fails he has lost all, worked himself to death and has nothing to show for it.

This country is coming to smaller farms and better farming. When that time comes we will have two dollars where we now have only one.

The French Government is making preparations to sell the greatest collection of stamps which was ever made, valued at $2,000,000. It comprised the collection of Baron Ferrary, who died in 1917, and by the terms of his will the collection was left to the Berlin Postal Museum. The collection was in Paris at the time and it was seized as alien property.

Routine and Ruts

Many people lament to themselves if not to their friends and families the fact that they are in a rut. They feel that as the years go by they wear their rut a little deeper and see less and less of what lies beyond its walls. Life seems to them to present a steadily narrowing vista. They contrast their condition unfavorably with that of the fortunately placed, who have leisure and wealth, who are not the slaves of routine, who can follow each day whatever pursuit they wish, and whose lives are enriched by variety of experience. But people should not confuse ruts with routine. It is not in the least inevitable that one who must pursue a daily routine should eventually fall into a rut. The people who most successfully preserve and develop their individuality are generally those who are most conscientious in performing routine tasks. The people who deteriorate are those usually who neglect routine tasks, or who do them poorly and carelessly, with distaste or abhorrence.

Routine tasks, to be sure, are of all kinds; but that is only another way of saying they are suited to all temperaments. There is routine that brings a person constantly into association with others, and there is routine that keeps him for the most part solitary. Whatever the routine may be, it has its special facilities for developing and enriching the lives of those who faithfully pursue it. The routine of the research worker is as different as possible from that of the traveling salesman; that which the research worker finds reasonably congenial would be to the traveling salesman intolerable. The converse is equally true. So long as routine is reasonably congenial, it should be a blessing and not a curse. If it is reasonably congenial, and the young man should not jump to a hasty conclusion that it is not, or he may find on being drafted into a routine of another sort that he had been better off than he had supposed.—It offers scope for enlargement of the mind and heart that is denied to those who are morosely grubbing along, making their ruts deeper and deeper. For in most cases when routine becomes a rut it is because the victim perversely insisted on transforming it into one.

Peace is now more than two and one-half years old, and there is very little of it for its age.—New York World.

What's The Use?

The man who gives his lifetime to putting science at the service of business and humanity finds himself eternally asked, "What's the use?" Some people rise in their seats and say: "I see that some scientist fattening at the government trough has measured a hundred-thousandth of an inch. What's the use?"

Even some solid-headed business men read of research departments and snort in disgust: "What's the use? The old rule of thumb is the common sense way."

There are only two test plants of locomotives in the country, one owned by the Pennsylvania, the other by the University of Illinois. Only a few railroads try out locomotives on road service by means of dynamometer car. What's the use?

One road that did found that by putting an exhaust tip three-eighths of an inch smaller on a Mikado type locomotive it increased the fire-box temperature 400 degrees and saved $57,000 a year in coal. On another line tests made it possible to so alter a locomotive as to reduce its fuel consumption 10 per cent and permit it to haul three more passenger cars on less coal and water.

That's what's the use.

American investors have bought more than $4,000,000,000 worth of foreign securities since May 1914.

Panhandle-Plains Country Prosperous

No section of Texas is as prosperous at the present as the Panhandle-Plains, visitors from other parts of the State declare. Citizens of this section who have recently traveled in other parts of the State, say there is more money and better prospects for good business in this section than in any of the places they have been.

The legitimacy of such a claim may be easily realized when one reflects that the Panhandle is producing this year the greatest grain crop in its history. It is estimated that the yield will be more than 20,000,000 bushels, and this means that at least that many dollars will be turned loose, for wheat is now $1.07, and grain men are expecting it to go higher.

Not only is the wheat crop a source of enormous wealth, but row crops are said to be looking better than ever before in the history of this country at this season of the year. Unusually frequent rains have failed to materially harm the wheat and have aided row crops and cattle ranges.

Harvest of wheat is more than two-thirds completed. Prices of grain are better and conditions seem to be full of promise.

Cattle sales are picking up and stock men expect business to be better by fall. The price of cattle is still so low as to make every sale a loss but with range conditions good and a better feeling among the live stock men the outlook is improving.

Air Station at Hereford?

Wonder what's up Uncle Sam's sleeve? Something mysterious is going on in the Aviation department.

Tuesday morning C. C. Rockwell received a real honest-to-goodness Government check for $221.62, in payment of a lumber bill contracted by a representative of the Aviation Department on June 24th. The check is signed by Dan W. Taylor, Chief of Party, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, Washburn, Texas, and is endorsed as being for the purchase of lumber for tower signals.

Mr. Rockwell says all he knows is that a government man selected the lumber and that it is to be delivered upon demand.

"Indians have a great deal of dramatic ability and express themselves with unusual ease in pageant acting," says Miss Deloria, a young Dakota Indian woman who has written and directed a pageant for her people called "The Fifty Years' Trail." The pageant was given recently before a convocation of the Episcopal Church in the West. Pantomimic pageants prove the best because the Indians know how to act better than they know how to use their voices. Miss Deloria, who has charge of the activities for Indian girls of the Y. W. C. A., is planning other pageants of Indian setting with prologues in both English and Indian.

At Greenland ranch, in Death Valley, California, the air temperature as recorded by a tested maximum thermometer exposed in a standard instrument shelter, rose to 100 degrees or higher on twenty-three days during June, and on every day during July, 1920, says a bulletin of the American Meteorological Society. The extreme maximum was 125 degrees, recorded on the last day of July. On July 10, 1915, the temperature there reached 134 degrees Fahrenheit, the highest officially recorded air temperature in the world.

Legislative Quackery

New York Journal of Commerce: There is now pending before Congress an almost unprecedented number of quick financial projects. Among them may be mentioned the scheme of introducing representatives of special interests into the membership of the Federal Reserve Board in order to insure large accommodation to such interests, the so-called farm finance bill, measures for the enlargement of loans to exporters, extension of the powers of the War Finance Corporation and subsidies of various kinds here and there distributed with a lavish hand.

There are unhealthy symptoms in Congress with respect to this whole situation which betoken trouble unless there is vigorous warning on the part of the executive or the country or both. Much can be learned from a comparison of past experience, and to one who peruses the history of the decade after the Civil War, there is a good deal to suggest the course of events which led to the so-called Inflation Bill. The determination to make artificial prosperity by the issue of executive currency and credit was then, as now, the dominant factor with certain congressional minds and afforded an almost constant menace to financial stability. Multitudinous schemes for Government assistance or for the subsidizing of industry followed upon the disastrous over-investment in railroads that led up to the panic of 1873. There is an analogy in the efforts now being made to secure a subsidy that will render possible the operation of our enormously expanded and inflated fleet.

Along with the various positive schemes of different sorts that are pending in Congress there is the usual number of plans to tear down and injure. An investigation of the Federal Reserve system has been ordered, and it is due, it is said, to the belief of friends of the system that without such an inquiry the aspersions and insinuations of utterly baseless nature that have been circulated will accomplish their aim—that of discrediting our financial organization, notwithstanding that it is chiefly responsible for the success that has been thus far had in holding things together and preventing any banking disaster. Charges and recriminations of the most diverse character, ranging from a statement that there has been wanton inflation to the opposing assertion that great contraction has taken place in the effort to "help Wall Street," have been widely circulated. These statements, counter statements, suggestions and insinuations have done infinite harm and aroused suspicion in minds which are not familiar with the truth about present conditions. It is time to have them thoroughly inquired into, and the regrettable part of the outlook is found in the apparent disposition in Congress to give aid and comfort to destructive and dangerous elements which if given their head would wreck the financial foundations of the country.

The continuance of the business depression, the low prices for agricultural products, and the fact that other prices remain high and in some cases are rising, taken in conjunction with unemployment and continued restriction of foreign trade, are bringing the Nation more and more directly face to face with the question what is to be its financial salvation for the future. Will it apply the natural methods of healing which are called for in the present state of things and trust to work and saving to restore soundness and prosperity, or will it plunge into quick schemes and hazardous enterprises in the effort to "get prosperous quick" or to put prices back to "renumerative" levels?

There is no answer as yet, although one of the most threatening dangers was averted when the bonus bill was shelved through the interposition of the President. One thing that is certain is that there will have to be a great awakening on the part of the business world, and that it will have to devote far more study and show far greater activity in the consideration of our financial prospects than it has in the past. Congress clearly can not be depended upon for real leadership; and this necessary element must be supplied from an outside source.

An interesting example of the development of water power is reported from Cashmere. There the Jhelum River has been made to generate electric power to prevent the overflowing of 200,000 acres of land, which was thus made available for agriculture. The fact that no coal was available, and that the site was 200 miles from the nearest railway station, made the use of the water power imperative in this case.
