

The Hico News Review

VOLUME 1

HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1934.

Here In HICO

LAST week we discussed the curse of careless advertising, didn't we?

At any rate there is another matter which we would like to get out of our system, so we shall proceed to unload.

This newspaper business has its advantages. The ordinary person would have to spend a couple of weeks airing his troubles to a tenth as many people as we can torture in twenty minutes. You have no idea what a relief it is to think over all the things you want to say, put them down in black and white, and then forget them. In fact we are in a far better humor as a rule even before the paper has been printed and the readers have had time to look over our stuff.

The only chance you take in doing that is that some pugilistic peruser might get a wrong idea in his head and come in to clean your name. In which case some tall talking or fast foot work is in order. However we don't anticipate any such results from what we shall say herein, for we learned a long time ago that we couldn't reform the world. We give the other fellow a right to his opinions, and admit at the start that what we say is merely what we think. If there weren't a difference of opinion, why would several men announce for the same political office?

WHAT bothers us more than anything else right now is the fact that there are so many good people around Hico who are not regular subscribers to the News Review.

Now wait a minute, Mr. Advertiser. We didn't say there were lots of people who weren't reading the paper. We actually believe that practically every one who amounts to anything at all gets hold of the home paper in some manner. Whether they beg, borrow or steal it we are at a loss to decide. But upon checking up frequently on statements made by non-subscribers we are fully convinced that more people are reading the home paper than ever before.

And we do not have our list padded with a number of names of people who haven't paid for the paper, or who got there on some off-color scheme. Each and every name on the list was put there upon some open and above-board method, and they darn sure pay off before we send the paper. When their subscription expires, their paper stops—boring acts of Providence or plain oversight.

Not that we don't trust our dear friends, or that we believe they will beat us out of any money in the long run. But in the first place, Uncle Sam tells us to get the money for names on our mailing list, and in the second place we would rather do that anyhow.

ONLY a dollar (a dollar and a half for papers mailed to points outside this trade territory) is the necessary cash outlay for one to get his own copy of this great moral and religious publication every week for a whole year.

What use would a subscriber be to an advertiser, or to anyone else including himself, if he didn't have a penny dollar a year to spend? That's the theory of it. But in practice we find that there are some peculiarly turned people who will go to five dollar's worth of trouble in causing their neighbors ten dollars' worth of bother by borrowing the latter's paper.

Really one of our main considerations in griping about it is that we want to protect our customers. They pay off in coin of the realm for the privilege of reading the paper at their leisure. They don't take it for the entertainment and enlightenment of their neighbors, and it is not right that they be imposed on in any such manner.

FAR worse, however, to our notion is that freak of nature who doesn't try to lay hands on a copy of same unless someone tells him that there was something in a certain issue about him.

That's simply awful—or awfully simple. We can say most anything we want to about this class of people, for if they don't read the paper they won't know we are talking about them; in fact they won't know much of anything.

Seriously, now, it does hurt our pride when we see some local people go to the postoffice and drag a copy of some out-of-town paper from their box when they don't subscribe to their home paper. Why, ye Gods, they would have to go through an act of Congress to get their names in these publications even once, let alone every time they do anything that is news.

We want all our people who are able to pay the price to subscribe to a good daily paper if they need one. But why should they be more interested in reading about Ben-

Emergency Cattle Buying Program Will Start Up Soon

Emergency Cattle Sale and Agreement forms have not been received yet at the County Agent's office, and the signing of these forms will probably be delayed until next week. The listing of cattle will be classified as cattle under one year, cattle between one and two years, and cattle over two years. The schedule of payment, as submitted by County Agent C. E. Nelson, follows:

1. Benefit Payments and Purchase Payments Combined: Cattle 2 years old and over, $12 to $20.
2. Cattle between 1 and 2 years, $8 to $13.
3. Cattle under 1 year, $4 to $8.

The producer agrees (1) To sell and convey the cattle described to the Secretary of Agriculture by delivering such cattle to an agent of the Secretary authorized to accept delivery thereof and by disposing of any such cattle in such manner as may be directed by an authorized agent of the Secretary.

(2) To cooperate with further general programs pertaining to the adjustment or reduction of production and for the support and balance of the market for cattle and/or dairy products which may be offered by the Secretary, pursuant to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended. To execute the agreements necessary to participate in such programs and necessary to share in the payments that may be paid by the Secretary for performance thereof, and the producer agrees that the total or any part thereof of the benefit payment for the cattle described may be applied to and deducted from any payments he may become entitled to under any such agreements.

It is understood that the Secretary may require signers of Emergency Cattle Agreements to agree to special terms and conditions and to furnish special or additional information and evidence as a part of any such general program.

Funeral Services for Mr. Murray. Funeral services were held at Carlton last Friday afternoon for Charlie Murray, who passed away at the family home southeast of Hico on last Thursday afternoon. He had only been ill a few days.

The Murray family has resided in this section for numbers of years. They were living on the old Carman farm at the time of his death. Mr. Murray had numerous friends around Hico and all were mourned to hear of his death.

He is survived by his wife and several children.

ator Johnson Grass of Idaho then they are in learning that an old friend had died, a neighbor had married, or someone across the road boasted of twins?

Really now, whether they subscribe or not, we try to print the news about all the people around here and their folks. But in return we believe we should be considered when they go to buy their reading.

We've just opened up a fresh book of subscription receipts. Who'll be first? Don't crowd too much—take your time—but step right up when your turn comes.

Keeney Brothers To Bring Rodeo to 52nd Hico Reunion

The announcement that a first-class rodeo will be featured at the 52nd Annual Hico Reunion, August 9th, 10th and 11th, is being greeted with enthusiastic approval by all those who plan to attend, according to reunion managers S. J. Cheek and A. A. Brown.

The above-named gentlemen were in Stephenville Tuesday afternoon where they met with Keeney Brothers, rodeo artists with a wide reputation, and were assured that the latter would be on hand for the Reunion, and would put on a show that would compare favorably with similar events in much larger towns.

Wild horse riding, wild cow milking, Brahma calf roping and wild cow riding are some of the features of the rodeo. Generous cash prizes will be offered in each and every event, and all entrants are assured of something worthwhile for their time and trouble in taking part.

There will be two full performances of the rodeo each day, it is stated, and provision will be made for the ample accommodation of the huge crowds expected for each performance.

A full investigation was made of the offerings in this line, and the decision to secure the Keeney Brothers show was arrived at only after thorough inquiry. The Reunion managers feel that they are fortunate in being able to secure entertainment of this type.

Other details are being ironed out so that the prospects are that Hico will have the biggest and best Reunion of her history this year. The big circular will be off the press next week, containing detailed program of events. Those who desire advertising space on this circular, which also runs as a double-page advertisement in the paper, should get in touch with Mr. Cheek or Mr. Brown immediately, or leave their order for same at the News Review office within the next two or three days.

GREAT GOODNESS

Yes, it was great and it was good, therefore it was great goodness. Friday night after services at the church, a great crowd of folk gathered on the lawn of our home, and if you had seen what they brought you would have said that the depression is over. The front porch was literally covered up with "Great Goodness."

Everything imaginable that is good to eat, and we'll declare to you, I've never seen anything like it. It looked as if some wholesale grocery company had moved in.

Then, to the fine spirit manifest by these blessed friends, and the unusual bigness of their offerings, made it unquestionably the greatest experience of the kind it has ever been my privilege to witness.

Such loving, christian friends are worth dying for. God's blessings on everyone of you.—Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Thomas and Children.

REVIVAL MEETING

The Church of Christ will begin a meeting at Mt. Zion School house August 3rd, where the gospel will be preached as it is written, nothing subtracted, nothing added. We have chosen men who will preach it, teach it, encourage it and defend it.

Stanley Giesecke from Miller and O. O. O. Newton from Pottsville will do the preaching. The Public is invited to attend. Evening services only, at 8:15.

Part of Pasture Burned.

A pasture on the 640 place belonging to D. F. McCarty on the Stephenville road caught on fire Tuesday afternoon and after frantic efforts the blaze was extinguished without damaging the entire pasture.

A number of the highway employees are camped on the place, and they used their large water tanks, and with the aid of neighbors only a strip across the place was burned.

Mr. McCarty expresses his appreciation to those who aided, and feels fortunate that no more damage was done.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Joseph P. Lynch, bishop of the Dallas diocese, said Sunday night that 16,609 signed pledges had been returned in three Texas cities in the Legion of Decency campaign of the Catholic Church against the trend toward indecency in modern motion pictures. The first call date for the pledges has been set for August 1, Bishop Lynch said. Tyler reported 10,000 pledges, Sherman added 2,609 and Wichita Falls, more than 4,000. Dallas pledges have not been checked. "In the present makeup of society, people need good wholesome recreation," Bishop Lynch said "and the movies furnish one source that can be both recreational and educational. The pictures can also be a source that furnish healthful, spiritual and intellectual recreation."

Believe it or not, but it snowed in Texas Saturday! And this is not one of those "cold days in July" stories, either. It's a one man story. But that man, an army aviator at Fort Crockett, Galveston, has his official weather chart to back up his story. Anyone can see it at the Love Field offices of the weather bureau. The flier, making a before-dawn flight over Galveston, ran into snow between 11,500 feet and 11,800 feet above the city. Official weather bureau comment: "Very unusual at this time of the year."

Raymond Hamilton, "Blackie" Thompson and Joe Palmer, three of the most desperate outlaws in the Southwest, escaped from the death house of the Texas state penitentiary at Huntsville late Sunday thanks to the aid of Charles Frazier, notorious life-terminator from Louisiana, bank robber, who has led numerous breaks, probably will die as a result of wounds received in his effort to accompany to freedom the men whom he had delivered. "Whitey" Walker, another life-terminator, who had served time in the Oklahoma state penitentiary, was killed by the shots of guards who tried to halt the escaping desperadoes. Roy Johnson, a third bank robber, serving a life sentence, was shot down from a ladder leading to the outside but was expected to recover.

Howard Hamilton, 27, was killed late Monday when struck by an automobile while working on Highway No. 19 near Stephenville. Hamilton arose from his work on the road and was struck on the head by a car driven by a young woman. He died enroute to a hospital.

To June 30 Texas cotton and wheat farmers have been paid in rental and benefit payments a total of $54,933, 679, according to information released by the agricultural adjustment administration. Rental and benefit payments to producers co-operating in production-adjustment programs totaled $228,633,676.41 up to June 30, according to a report made by Comptroller John B. Payne to Administrator Chester C. Davis. Of this cumulative amount, cotton producers in eighteen States had been paid $139,525,359.58; wheat growers in thirty-seven States had been paid $68,965,433.17; tobacco growers in 23 states had received $12,861,632.35; and corn-hog producers in 15 States had been paid $7,281,251.31.

Four lives were lost and hundreds of acres of rice farms and ranches were inundated Monday in a flood that followed a cloudburst over Allende, Mexico, thirty-five miles south of Eagle Pass. At least four persons were drowned and many others were missing. The bodies of two women and two children were taken from the swirling waters. Near was felt for the residents of Morelos, a village near Allende. Communications were disrupted when the storm began early in the day.

The State high school vocational agriculture boys, Future Farmers of America convention, was officially opened at a general assembly meeting at the college auditorium, Sam Houston State Teachers' College, at Huntsville at 9:30 a. m. Monday. Five hundred delegates from fifty Texas points were welcomed by Mayor R. W. Miller and Dr. R. C. Steinberg, president of the chamber of commerce. General announcements were made and a State executive meeting was called. Community singing was led by W. E. Driskell of Stockdale.

Revival Starts At Methodist Church On Sunday Morning

Rev. W. P. Cunningham, pastor of the Hico Methodist Church, announces the opening of a revival meeting at his church next Sunday morning, July 29.

In a post card message out to several of the members, under the head of "Help Hico to Recover," Rev. Cunningham has the following to say in regard to the meeting:

"Next Sunday at 11 and 8 Brother Jesse H. Baldrige will open a week of special meetings to build upon the fine services already held in Hico. Brother Jesse is one of us, knows our needs and the way out. Under the leadership of the Spirit may we not expect great things from God—and pray and work for them?"

"The meetings will be held at the Methodist Church week days at 10 and 8. Every singer is urged to participate in the meetings. A special feature will be the Junior Choir, meeting at 7:30 each evening. "You are most especially invited."

Seek Vocational Farm Shop For the Hico High School

Hico School is seeking a vocational farm shop, which will be beneficial in training the young farm boys. It was announced by the vocational agriculture teacher, J. E. Lockhart, this week.

The farm shop program will include the teaching of rope making, blacksmithing, woodwork, concrete making, soldering, etc., which will be useful to the farm boys in meeting the present day farm needs.

Mr. Collins, district director of rural rehabilitation, gave considerable encouragement to the committee on getting this project approved.

MUNNERLY GARAGE MOVED HERE FROM HAMILTON

(Hamilton County News) Mr. and Mrs. Tom A. Munnerly will move to Hico in the next few days. Mr. Munnerly has leased the Blair Garage in that city in partnership with his brother, Herman Munnerly. T. A. has operated the Hi-way Garage opposite the Surprise store for a number of years. Herman has been in Stephenville, engaged in the same business. Hamilton will miss these fine people and regrets the loss of their business. Friends wish them success in their new location.

Over 7,000 Cans of Vegetables Put Up By Local Cannery

L. C. Flanagan, supervisor of the local canning plant which was opened in Hico some four weeks ago under the FERA program, reported this week that over 7,000 cans of vegetables had been handled up to Tuesday night.

Those who have turkeys or chickens to can are requested to bring them in right away, as a little later the canning of beef and other meats will start and there will be no time for handling poultry.

It is also requested that those who have other vegetables let the ones in charge of the cannery know soon so it may be arranged to take care of all perishable foods.

The workers have been arranged in three teams, each team working three days and off six working days, which is a better routine than the plan formerly followed.

An average of 26 people are working each day for five days each week. About $60.00 daily is the average amount paid out for wages to local help.

TRAIL'S END
by AGNES LOUISE PROVOST

Fourth Installment
SYNOPSIS—Three weeks after a cream colored roadster had been found wrecked in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl calling herself Anne Cushing appears at the desert town Marston. She has bought, sight unseen, a ranch located thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her nearest neighbor and his man, Boone Petry procure a reliable woman for her and in Barry's car, loaded down with supplies, they start across the desert. In Marston her reticence has aroused suspicion.

For over an hour she rode slowly. Then she reined in and dismounted. Comet watched her with liquid, unblinking eyes as she climbed out to a boulder of red sandstone. It made a natural seat. For a long time she sat there. The sun's rays were slanting from west. Little by little the warmth and light were fading from her face again. She jumped up abruptly. She suddenly realized how low that sun was. "Comet!" she called. "Come, boy, we're going home."

No answering whinny came to her call. There was no sign of the pinto. Anne stood very still for a moment, telling herself that she wasn't scared. It was her own fault; she ought to have tied him to the ground," as Petry called it. She gave an anxious glance at those slanting rays and turned quickly on her way.

A swaying of bushes on a lower slope caught her eye, and then in an open space there was a flash of glossy piebald flanks. She called with all the strength of healthy young lungs. The pinto caught the sound, looked back and hesitated. She was within a hundred feet of him when he frisked capriciously, broke into an easy canter and stopped at a safer distance.

She could have wept with vexation. More slowly this time, Anne followed him with coaxing voice and stretched hand. This was a nice game, and Comet was feeling coltish and gay. He let her come quite near and then wheeled and cantered off again. When she came to the next open space there was no sign of the pinto. She stopped and called again. There was no sound. The graceless Comet had gone light-heartedly about his own business, and she must get back to the trail and make her long way home.

The trail! The thought startled her. She made a turn, blankly strange, and came suddenly on a wall of rock. It rose sheer, two hundred feet or more, directly in her path. She turned and looked back uncertainly, wondering where the first wrong turning had been. Back of her was the blank wall of cliff, and ahead and on both sides stretched an endless reiteration of trees and undergrowth and rocks in bewildering confusion. There was no trail. She was lost. Barry lounged comfortably in a big chair and wondered why Petry was so late. He had been out in the blazing Junipero all day, but he knew that Petry had conveyed Martha Larrabee in to Marston to spend the day, and the efficient Martha would not have allowed any such late returning to her own duties. Probably the old rascal had invited himself to supper at Trail's End.

Barry was thinking of a shabby little ranch house in a small vicinity, where a girl was gallantly tackling a man's job. It was a queer occupation for a girl like Anne Cushing to choose. Usually girls as pretty and dainty as Anne wanted anything that kept them manicured and permanently waved. For a moment the fading sunset lights played a curious trick on him. He saw a shadowy figure in the chair opposite him, with luminous eyes and a curved mouth that smiled at him. He was always thinking of Anne. And he had known her only a few short weeks.

Steps came from the rear, heavy and hurried and Petry's head appeared. "Ain't Miss Anne here?" "No." Surprise turned quickly to apprehension. "Whats the matter?" "I dunno exactly. Petry looked increasingly uneasy. "You see, I brought Martha home, but Miss Anne, she'd gone out somewhere for a ride. That was two hours ago. Of course they ain't any reason why she should go off for a ride and come home late, but it kinda bothered me."

Barry's chair went back with a rasp. "I'll be with you," he said briefly, and was close on Petry's heels as he went back to the corral. It was the same corral where Comet had formerly been kept, and from which he had whickered a shrill welcome whenever Barry approached. The sound came at that instant, as clear as a bugle call.

"That's not Captain!" They exchanged a quick glance. There were only a dozen horses in the corral. Captain was there, close to a riderless horse. Without a word the two men examined him. Comet had come by a rough way. Saddle and stirrups, glossy hide and dainty hoofs, they missed nothing in their quick search for evidence. "The saddle is all right," said Barry presently. His throat felt harsh and dry. "It couldn't have slipped. Of course—she might have been thrown."

of dirt like that in fifty miles. Better go that way." Barry was already in the corral. He was saddling Captain, his fingers working with swift precision. "Ling!" Ling came pattering at the peremptory call. "Light up every room in the house. The lady at Trail's End is lost."

That was all that he would admit. The illuminated house might be a futile gesture but if she had strayed anywhere near the Perch she might see that blaze of friendly light and take comfort. "Take a gun," he said to Petry. "Then we can signal to each other. The one who finds her will fire two shots and the other will answer. Single shots will be location signals."

A scurry of hoofs and he was off. They branched into different trails, peering, shouting, calling her name. Only echoes answered. All that Barry could be sure of was that Anne must have been taking the same route that they had followed on their first ride, since that was the only trail which would be likely to take her through Pulpit Pass. If she were unconscious, or worse, he might easily pass her by, but it was impossible to wait calmly for the light. Just one thing was becoming increasingly clear to him, and that was that the most precious thing in the world to him was Anne Cushing, and that the thought of harm coming to her was unbearable.

He raised his voice in a call. "Anne! Anne!" (The echoes flung it back at him mockingly. "Anne! Anne! Anne!") Hope had slipped from Anne with the vanishing sun. How many miles she had walked and climbed and stumbled since she had faced that blank wall of rock she had no means of knowing. And then night had come. Her clothing was torn by thorny branches, and she fairly reeled with fatigue.

"Martha will know that something is wrong," she reminded herself firmly. "Perhaps Comet will go home. Of course he will." She caught her breath sharply as the realization pressed home. There was no telephone at Trail's End. No car, Martha could do nothing, unless she could catch and saddle one of the old horses and find her way to Eagle's Perch. A chill wind set the tree tops whispering. Anne shivered and began looking around for a sheltered spot in which to spend the night. On her left, half-way up the slope, there was a dark blotch which looked like a clump of close-growing evergreens. She made her way toward them cautiously.

down, curled into a snug ball. Anything for rest. Little by little, sheer weariness overcame her. The rustling sounds of the night lost their menace, and grew fainter and fainter. Anne slept.

It was not a peaceful sleep. Now and then she stirred restlessly, tossed, sighed, and lay still again. A voice drifted down on the wind, calling "Anne! Anne!" but she did not hear it. From somewhere in the distance came a faint crack of sound, and from somewhere nearer by a single shot rang clear.

The sharp sound brought her to her feet, stumbling with leap and fatigue. Another sound was beating lightly and steadily against her ears. The click of a horse's hoofs on rock. Going away from her!

"Anne! Anne!" "I'm coming! Barry!" She began to run, slipping and sliding down the slope, smooth with fallen pine needles, forgetful of the impetus of her own rush and the sheer-dropping ledge at the foot. That was when Barry saw her. There were, after all, to be more poignant moments in Barry Duane's life, but none that could so shrink time into its racing seconds.

Through the scattered pines he had caught sight of a small running figure, racing in headlong haste down a slippery incline. Going too fast, if she were going to pull up well inside the ledge. God, if she should go over! His heart seemed to stand still as Captain's long legs pounded over the intervening space. He put Captain to the hazy edge, thrusting in between. Barry heard her say "Oh!" in a horrified voice, and caught her with one arm as he swung down.

"Anne, darling!" "Oh, Barry!" She clung to him, burying her face tightly against his shoulder. "I knew you would come soon!" "Of course I'd come. There, it's all over."

"But I—I forgot the ledge, and then I couldn't stop. Only I'd been asleep, and I woke up and heard you going on—" "I know. But you're safe now, precious. Everything's all right. Everything—" He had both arms around her now. For a moment she lay there, close and still. Then with a little quiver she raised her head, and her hands slid away from their drowning clutche of him.

"ought to be scolded instead of comforted." She straightened up and laughed shakily. "If you hadn't come racing back in time, Barry—" "If I hadn't, life wouldn't mean much to me now." She looked up at him with wide dark eyes, heavy with fatigue, and her head moved in a faint negation. He felt her slipping away from him, and he did not know just why.

It was no time for lover's importunities. Barry said "Steady."

GIRL, WELL KNOWN IN HICO WINS IN ESSAY CONTEST

Following is an article from Abilene announcing that Miss Mildred Burnett of Munday who visited her cousin, Miss Dorothy Hackett here at various times, had won second prize in an essay contest.

The article follows: Abilene, July 18.—Miss Mildred Burnett of Munday was announced this week as the winner of second prize in an essay contest held late this spring at Hardin-Simmons University. Miss Burnett wrote the second best essay on the subject, "What Hardin-Simmons Means to Me." She will receive a cash prize.

The contest was open to all students of the university and a large number competed. It was sponsored by Solon R. Featherston of Wichita Falls, alumni president.

In closing her winning essay, Miss Burnett wrote: "What has Hardin-Simmons meant to me? It has meant the acquisition of friends, the broadening of my experience in cultural, intellectual, and moral senses. Loftier ideals and worthier purposes have inculcated my soul. I have felt the desire to rise, to attempt to better the world in some way. I have endeavored to respond to the call to further intellect and to strive to uphold noble standards. My observations of the activities of the campus have inspired a consciousness of loyalty, sacred sentiment, and reverent tenderness for Hardin-Simmons University."

boy." to Captain and reached for something.

"I'd better signal Petry that the lost is found."

Two shots cracked and echoed. The answer came from far on the right. One shot and a pause, and then a staccato outburst of rejoicing. Harry laughed.

"Boone is happy. Now we're going back to Trail's End, and I am going to carry you. Here, put this on first."

"This" was his own coat.

"I won't!"

"Orders!"

He bent down and swept her up in front of him, swinging her across so that she lay like a child in his arms. She looked up to protest, but already they had started. Once he looked down and smiled, and after that she did not look up again. Barry loved her, and she couldn't—she couldn't. She lay passively against him for miles after miles, with her cheek pressing his shoulder and a dull ache in her heart.

The next morning was an awakening to strange aches and unusually bruises. Martha ordered her to stay in bed.

At noon the autocat permitted her to get up. Shortly after lunch Barry appeared, riding Captain and leading an unabashed Comet.

"Do you think you can forgive the little devil enough to give him another chance?"

"Of course. It was my fault that he started off in the first place. He's an imp, but I do love him."

That might have given him an opening, for light love-making at least, but Barry let it pass. His manner gave no suggestion that he remembered his checked arder of the night before. Anne wandered over toward Comet to avoid that new look in his eyes.

The pinto was standing dutifully where he had been left, merely giving an impatient stamp now and then to remind them that motion was his business and he was all ready to go.

"Look at him! He doesn't know how to be ashamed. Rascal, you just watch when we start out, and again!" I won't get out of the saddle for a second without dropping those reins over your nose.

Barry watched her as she stroked the ingratiating muzzle.

"Then the morale is all right?"

"Oh, yes, for riding." She looked at him with a very small smile.

"I still think that mountain hiking is a much over-rated sport, but that won't last."

"Then how about my coming down for you in a few days, as soon as you're feeling yourself again, for an all-day trip and lunch at the Perch?"

"All day? What about work?"

"What you need now is play. Besides, if you don't come I shan't have any excuse to play around myself." He smiled.

Why shouldn't she? One didn't stop seeing a man because of a little fragmentary love-making.

"I'd really love to, Thursday."

"Thursday? I'll come down for you right after breakfast. Now I shall have to get back. I'll put Comet in the corral first."

"Harry!"

"Yes?" He stopped and looked back, his eyes warning.

"I haven't even attempted to thank you. You understand, don't you?"

He gathered her hands into both of his and held them close together.

"I don't want to be thanked. Just seeing you back here ought to be thanks enough for anybody. Goodbye."

He gave her fingers a quick squeeze and let them go. Then he was off with Comet to the corral.

They did not skirt the desert this time, but turned directly into the hills, until Anne had lost all sense of direction.

Late in the morning they were standing at the mouth of the pass, with tumbled ridges, and beyond the ridges another blank stretch of desert sand and sparse vegetation. It lay in a rough triangle, bounded on two sides by hills.

"It looks like a little Junipero," Anne exclaimed. "A wicked little Junipero."

"That's the Pinos Valley, but it's larger than it looks. If you were down there, you might find an occasional surveyor's stake, or even the remains of a shack or two."

That's all there is of the town of Duane. Ever heard of it?"

"No, I haven't."

"I'll tell you after we get up to the Perch. There's nothing more to see down there it's just as dead as it looks."

His voice sounded hard. That was unusual for Barry. They turned their horses and went back through the pass again.

Presently Anne caught a sapphire gleam.

"Oh, beautiful! Is that Eagle Lake?"

"I knew you'd like it."

It lay like a jewel at their feet. At the head of it, topping the pine-carpeted slope, was a two-story house of peeled logs, built on broad, generous lines.

"Welcome to Eagle's Perch," Barry swung off quickly and held up both hands for her. "Make yourself at home while I put up the horses. Oh, Ling!" This was a bland yellow face appeared, hovering back of an open door. "See that Miss Cushing gets anything she wants. Miss Anne Cushing, this is Ling Poo, the best all-around cook west of the Atlantic. We'll eat on the veranda. Ling."

"All, boss." Ling grinned brief at the compliment and "How do" politely. Anne felt a bright and speculative eye taking her measure.

"I shan't need anything. Ling Poo."

"All, Missy." The bright eyes were benevolent. Ling ducked his head and padded softly away, and Anne was free to explore.

She looked around the big living room with a faint sense of surprise. It was spacious and restful, furnished with a man's idea of comfort, but the things in it had never been bought in Marston, nor even in the more up and coming county seat. There were books and magazines scattered around. Some of the books looked technical and dry, others were more promising.

"Like it?" That was Barry's voice behind her.

"How could I help liking it? It's perfect."

"That's a large order," he laughed. "My uncle was a collector of Indian rugs and things in a small way, and he picked up the Spanish stuff, too."

They went out, wandering over scented pine-needles, down to the lake and up the slope again, answering the mellow music of a Chinese gong. Barry chuckled.

"You've made an impression on Ling. Usually he just sticks his head out of the door and yells 'Aleddy!'"

CHEVROLET With the announcement of price reductions several weeks ago, Chevrolet stepped into the most favorable price position it has enjoyed in a long time! Reductions amounting to as much as $50—the most substantial price cuts announced in the low-price field this year—dropped Chevrolet's base price to a new low figure of $465. Just compare this price—compare any Chevrolet price—with those of other cars. Then compare what you get for what you pay! There'll be no question in your mind which car to buy. Chevrolet offers patented Knee-Action—and others do not! The same thing applies to Fisher body, cable-controlled brakes, shock-proof steering, and valve-in-head six-cylinder engine. There's a pair of infamous twins in and out of New York who are famous in police circles. They're pickpockets—"dips" as they're known in the racket—and the police have a pretty had time trying to get the goods on either of them because the twin of the arrested brother can invariably send information to the one held for trial to establish exact time and proof of his whereabouts at the time of execution of any dainty little job. It's almost the perfect alibi!

In the fashionable "Fifties" of upper Park Avenue there are many pretentious mansions with blinds drawn for the summer. But imagine our surprise at a little sign that vitally announces to burglars that "the coast is clear." Poster inside a glass door right on the street, it reads: Forwarding address, Deal, New Jersey.

Fashionable and unfashionable dogs are having a bit of tough sledding in New York in these summer dog days 'cause Police Commissioner O'Ryan decided that the ordinance requiring both leashes and muzzies must be enforced. And the reason: there were 18,307 people bitten by dogs in New York last year compared to only 4,000 in 1918. "The truth is," says General O'Ryan, "that the dog has little or no place in the average family living in a flat or apartment in New York City. He is an annoyance and a potential danger to others."

Dear old, cawdy old Coney Island! The millions are swimming once again. And the famous wax works showing the most gruesome murders in wax still get the dimes of the morbid and the curious. And they've added one more criminal to their gallery—Dillinger!

After years of strict enforcement, tired and disgusted cops are probably rejoicing as much as the male patrons of Coney Island in the lifting of the ban on topless swimming trunks. They're swimming in trunks—and that's all, these days!

Famous New York meeting places for men and women of a variety of social stations: The Information booth at Grand Central Station; the Information Booth at Pennsylvania Station; the lobby of the Astor Hotel in Times Square; and "Under the Clock" in the lobby of the Biltmore Hotel near the Grand Central.

You drop your nickel in the slot and walk through the turnstile. That's the way you get to your subway train. But a subway guard yelled vehemently the other day when he saw two Chinese together in one division of the turnstiles entering the station. The guard said they'd have to put in two nickels. And when the Chinese protested they had, the guard tried the turnstile—and sure enough, true to their reputations, they proved to be "Honest John Chinamen."

Assuming the role of what I laughingly call the public speaker, I had to take the Hudson Tube for Newark the other day. The train to take, I was informed was marked "Local—Journal Square." I asked if there was an express and was told no! I chuckled to myself and thought of other signs like that: "No watchman at this crossing from midnight to 8 a. m." You just hope there's one there from 8 a. m. to midnight—but the sign doesn't say so! I think it is propaganda!

There's a story of Leopold Godowsky that tells of him learning a Liszt piano concerto aboard a ship many years ago by reading and memorizing it because there was no piano aboard. A rather remarkable performance, to be sure. But Toscanini, idol of the New York Philharmonic Symphony is so short-sighted that he has to memorize every part of every instrument of every program he conducts—and does it with such amazing precision that in first rehearsal of a new work when a horn played the correct note according to his own score, Toscanini caught it even though it sounded correct to every other member of the orchestra. There was an error in the score for the horn. Toscanini's score was right

THE BOOK

... the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures ... by BRUCE BARTON

THE FIRST MIRACLE The tenth in our list of the disciples is Thomas, a moody fellow who insisted on thinking things out for himself. "Doubting Thomas" he has been called because after the resurrection, when some of the disciples claimed to have seen Jesus, Thomas answered stoutly: "Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe."

Bruce Barton

It is unfair to remember only his doubt and to forget that when disciples were all trying to disburse Jesus from His last dangerous journey to Jerusalem it was this same Thomas who exclaimed, "Let us also go, that we may die with Him."

There was as number eleven another Simon whose surname, "the zealot," does not mean that he personally was of an over-zealous disposition, but that he had been a participant in one of the sporadic revolutions against Roman authority.

And finally there was Judas, the only one of the twelve who was not a Galilean but who, as a member of the royal tribe of Judah, felt himself superior to the crowd of fishermen, publicans and common folk. Better educated than the rest, a man of business ability, he was treasurer.

When Jesus said, "Take no thought for the morrow, saying, what shall we eat or what shall we drink," it may have sounded all right to the other eleven, but you can imagine the look of mingled cynicism and worry on the face of Judas who had to pay the bills. Equipped by talent and training to be of larger service than any of the others, he was the only traitor.

These, then, were the "twelve" who were destined to change human history.

The public life of Jesus appears to have covered just three years: a year of organization and small beginnings; a year of dramatic deeds and great successes; a year of diminishing popularity and disappointments.

He stared quietly in the little

He was invited with His mother. At a critical moment in the celebration Mary caught a look of distress in the eyes of the hostess and with quick feminine instinct divined the situation. The wine had given out. There occurred then the first miracle of Jesus, the transforming of water into wine. Very few sermons are preached about this miracle, and it is usually glossed over as being not quite in keeping with the character of His life and work. But, it was significant.

To ALL VOTERS Of Commissioners Precinct No. 3:

My opponent on the eve of the election has picked an item out of a Hamilton paper, to confuse the voters. If there has been anything wrong about the conduct of the affairs of my precinct, he has had months of time to show it up, without waiting until the last days of the contest.

This paper refers to the items of road work done before March and he asks if the CWA men got a square deal. But why refer to road work alone. Why not included the amounts paid on the Bosque river project, the school grounds at Hico, Fairy and Carlton, cement walks in Hico, and sidewalks at Carlton, work on mosquito control, cemetery work at Hico, Carlton, Fairy and Honey Creek, and various work done at Carlton, on the streets, independent of my road work, which was not included in the money allotted to me but a separate allotment to Carlton which if added to the money spent by me would likely exceed the other precincts, all of which work was done altogether with men in my precinct. Nor does he mention the large expense of the Hico Airport, most of which, but not all, was done by men in my precinct.

I have worked faithfully for the road interests of my district and the interests of Hamilton County, and nobody has ever said that I did not get my share of the County road funds. I would have preferred, so far as my own interests are concerned, that more of the money should have gone to my road work, for I could have made a better showing, but so far as the mens interests are concerned, who are doing the work, it is just as much to them, to work on school grounds, side walks, or airports, as to work on my roads, in fact they get 40 cents for other work and only 35 cents on road work.

I trust that the voters will investigate all the facts and vote accordingly. I thank my friends, who have given me their confidence and support, and I hope that I will again have the honor of serving you.

JUDGE CROSS Has Final Word:

I wish to thank the people of the 52nd judicial district for the many courtesies, expressions of confidence and words of encouragement I have received from them during the one year that it has been my privilege to serve you as district judge. I feel that I succeeded one of the best men and fairest judges the district ever had and you have been a help to me in trying to keep the office upon the same high plane that it was when it was held by our late lamented friend, Judge Eldson.

With a feeling of pride, but without any desire to appear boastful, may I report to you the results of my services as a trial judge? During the one year that I have served you as district judge I have had nine appealed cases affirmed and none reversed by the higher courts. During my four years of service as county judge, out of all cases appealed I had only one reversal. Thus making five years service as a trial judge with but one reversal. I mention this for what it is worth to you in determining whether I am qualified to fill the office.

It is urged that it is the law of custom to elect the district judge from among the lawyers who have served as district attorney. Let us examine past records and see: The following judges of this district were never district attorneys: Conner, Straughn, Bell, Oxford and Lindsey. The following district attorneys were never elected district judge: Daniels, George, Riddle, A. R. Eldson, J. C. Shipman, J. H. McMillan, and G. E. Johnson. It is true that Arnold, McClellan and Eldson were district attorneys and later elected as judge, but in my judgment they were elected because they were able civil and criminal lawyers rather than simply because they once held the district attorneyship. Certainly each of them could point to one case in which they acted as a defense attorney, and could say that they had at least tried one civil contested case in the district court. In no event is there a precedent in this district where a judge has been kicked out with only one year of service in order to promote the district attorney.

Again, I am criticised because the lawyers of the district indorsed me for the appointment. Their indorsement came voluntary. It was not the only indorsement, for about one hundred of my neighbors and friends, doctors, bankers, farmers, laborers and business men joined in that indorsement. I appreciate it all. I have not had a single lawyer to improperly approach me about any matter since I have been district judge. I believe them all to be gentlemen and above such suspicion and I appreciate their confidence and friendship as well as I do that of any profession or avocation. I play no favorites among the lawyers, but try to follow the law and give them a fair deal.

I entered this race January 1st, with a feeling of good will and friendship to all and with hatred and malice toward none. I have chosen not to deal in personalities or in slanderous whisperings. I believe that Kiplings advice "when being lied about, don't deal in lies," is good advice. My fight has been in the open—in the clear white light of the unclouded day. I today close the campaign in the same spirit in which I entered it.

I shall gratefully remember your support.

R. B. CROSS, District Judge, 52nd District

NEW HOUSE DRESS
Pattern 8251—Most young matrons crave a workaday costume which is easy to put on, no bother to keep fresh, and doesn't look like a house dress. So here is a design, easy to make, practical and becoming. There are few seams to be stitched up in the making and very little trouble in laundering. The material could be striped seersucker (which is very smart), trimmed with sleeve and ruffle cut on the bias of the self material. The dress would be equally attractive in a printed dimity in pink with a black net ruffle.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, July 23.—Of course, there is no such thing as an "acting President" of the United States when the President is absent from the country, but Washington gossips are fond of picking this, that or the other official for the job whenever Mr. Roosevelt goes away on a trip. This time it is Donald K. Richberg who is regarded as the "white-haired boy" of the Administration, entrusted with seeing that none of the cattle get out of the feed lot until the boss gets back.

Undoubtedly Mr. Richberg has gained greatly in the estimation of the President, of the public and of politicians in the past year. His appointment as temporary chairman of the National Emergency Council, while Frank C. Walker takes a vacation, puts up to him the difficult job of trying to iron out all the personal jealousies and administrative traffic tangles in Governmental affairs. There are plenty of both.

Pen Picture of Richberg Mr. Richberg came to Washington with a record as a "labor lawyer." He was supposed to be solidly committed to putting the American Federation of Labor in charge of all business. That idea, widely circulated, created a strong prejudice against him in the minds of business men, at the start. But in his handling of a thousand or so collisions between business groups and labor groups in the working out of the NRA codes, he has won the reputation of being keen, intelligent, fair and moderate.

Indeed, Richberg has been so fair that the labor leaders begin to think that he isn't their friend any more, while business men look on him with much greater favor. The fact seems to be that Mr. Richberg is not and never has been a blind partisan of any particular labor group or organization, but does believe that the best interests of the public require that labor should receive a larger share of the proceeds of industry.

Mr. Richberg is sometimes spoken of as one of the Brain Trust; but he is certainly not one of the half-baked radicals usually meant when that term is used. About the only one of the original Brain Trust who still functions importantly in an official capacity is Rexford G. Tugwell. Undersecretary of Agriculture, and the idea is seeping through officialdom that Mr. Tugwell's achievements thus far have consisted more in getting himself into the headlines than in accomplishing anything of consequence. It looks quite certain—if anything can be regarded as certain in these days—that most of Mr. Tugwell's radical program has been ditched.

Moley Still Active On the other hand, the one of the original Brain Trusters who came in for the most abuse in the beginning of the Roosevelt Administration is still among the most influential of the President's advisers, although he has been out of public office for more than a year. He is Professor Raymond Moley, with whom the President is said to have consulted on every important economic question that has arisen, and who is said to have had the last word in shaping most of Mr. Roosevelt's decisions. The President is not alone in believing Professor Moley to be a man of great erudition and talent, though all do not share the Presidential belief in the soundness of his economic views.

Nevertheless, Moley is one of the three men who, as the picture clears up and self-appointed minor prophets are eliminated one by one, stand out as the "three mucketeers" of the Administration. The other two are the ever-faithful Col. Louis McHenry Howe and Bernard M. Baruch.

On purely political questions it has been understood that the President relied more upon Col. Howe than upon the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Postmaster General Farley. An incident that came to light the other day shows how strong the Farley influence is. Secretary

Ickes wanted to appoint Professor John W. Finch, Dean of the School of Mining of the University of Idaho, to the post of Director of the Bureau of Mines. He talked with the President, who gave his o. k. Secretary Ickes notified Professor Finch, who resigned his university job and came to Washington to take over the post. The Presidential commission appointing him had been drawn up and laid on the President's desk. But when Mr. Ickes sent for it, the White House staff discovered that it had not been signed, but had noted upon it: "Held up temporarily because of political objections by P. M. G." Mr. Farley had discovered that Professor Finch voted for Hoover in 1928!

Kennedy and Moffett Some surprise has been expressed over the appointment of Joseph P. Kennedy, long a Wall Street speculator, to head the commission which is to regulate security exchanges. But those who know Mr. Kennedy say that he is absolutely honest and entirely devoted to President Roosevelt, a life-long intimate friend, and add that it is better to have a man who knows what it's all about than another Brain Trustee in that job.

There was more surprise over the naming of James P. Moffett of Standard Oil to head the board created under the new Housing Act. But young Mr. Moffett is another of the President's intimates, regarded as a man of sound judgment and great executive talent. His appointment is taken as another indication of the growth of conservative influence in Administration affairs.

INSURANCE for jobless
The first experiment with compulsory unemployment insurance in the United States went into effect on the first of July this year, in Wisconsin.

The English system, which is a combination of all three, looks to me the soundest. Every wage earner, to be entitled to unemployment insurance, must consent to the deduction of a small percentage of his wages when he is working.

PENSIONS
I think there is little doubt that we will soon have a national system of old-age pensions. That scheme is working out pretty well in the states that have put it into effect.

ELECTIONS
Nobody who will stop to think it over will deny that we have carried the theory of democracy too far in making administrative offices elective.

Counties
County government, generally speaking, is the least efficient and most corrupt phase of public service in the United States.

There is too much overlapping of city and county governments. Few cities are as fortunate as St. Louis, which is in no county.

THOUSANDS of visitors to the Ford Building at A Century of Progress have been awed by the sight of the largest photo mural ever made, which encircles part of the rotunda of the building.

The scenes depicted consist of 17 settings, presenting a coherent story of the huge Ford plant. The photographs, enlarged from 8 by 10 negatives, are mounted upon canvas applied to warp-proof pressed wood panels, fitted upon a steel frame.

work during the hours between midnight and morning, when street traffic is at its lowest. During this time vibration is reduced to a minimum, and the electric current used in the great lamps of the enlarging machine is at its steadiest.

FRATERNITIES
Away back in 1750 a group of students at William and Mary College in Virginia organized themselves into the "Flat Hat Club" which was the parent of all American college fraternities.

There is something about each of these Greek letter fraternities which constitutes a life-long tie between its members. Most of America's famous men have been members of some fraternity.

Every man elected to office in America has to give as much attention, if not more, to how he is going to get re-elected as he does to his job.

In the few months since the legislation that killed the $50,000 a day slot machine racket in New York, the city-owned Eighth Avenue subway line has collected $15,000 worth of slot machine slugs instead of nickels.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Those gardeners who invested a dollar in tile for subirrigation last spring are now reaping dividends in vegetables, writes the King county farm demonstration agent from the heart of the drought territory.

Seven wardrobe demonstrators in Harrison county built new clothes closets in June and six others improved their closets by papering, putting in shelves, rods, shoe bags, or racks.

The 1330 feet of concrete tile for subirrigation in Palmer county laid in seven gardens in three communities during 1933 have had added to them 7000 more feet laid in 22 gardens located in eight communities.

Perennial plants in family gardens come earlier and stand droughts better according to the experience in Hays county this year. Asparagus in particular was an asset to gardeners there.

CARD OF THANKS
We thank the many, many old-time friends in dear old Hico for their gracious kindness, hospitality and sympathy in the recent bereavement that has come to us.

To the Voters of Precinct 3, Hamilton Co.:

I take this method of thanking my friends for the words of encouragement and support you have given me thus far in my campaign. I have tried to see each and every one, and if there are any I have missed I take this method of soliciting your vote, and I promise if elected to give you efficient and economical service.

Below are some facts and figures I present for your consideration (Taken from The Hamilton County News, March 2, 1934):

HOW C. W. A. MONEY WAS SPENT ON LATERAL ROADS IN HAMILTON CO.

Table with 3 columns: Precinct No., Amount, and Teams. Rows include Precinct No. 3 ($1,747.95, 488.80), Precinct No. 4 (3,881.50, 438.20), Precinct No. 2 (3,066.55, 643.40), and Precinct No. 1 (3,013.50, 426.60).

From the above figures did our C. W. A. men get a square deal? Why was not our precinct entitled to as much as other precincts?

Congressman Blanton's Stephens County Friends Present Official Records

The time has come for Blanton's friends in Stephens county to give the public the following indisputable facts authentically taken from the official records in Breckenridge.

Tonight Blanton concluded 69 speeches since he reached Texas all based upon his record in Congress with pledges fulfilled, and in none did he even mention an opponent. Both Carl Hamlin and Oscar Chastain have been following in behind him every where he has been, scattering cards showing votes Blanton hasn't carried, but failing to mention their own losses in campaigns.

Hamlin's circulars fail to show that following his attack on Blanton, Frank Mondell was repudiated by Wyoming, where for 26 years he had been the only Congressman, and carried only one county in the entire State, and was kicked out of office, and has long since been forgotten.

Breckenridge Repudiated Carl Hamlin in the Last Two Regular Primaries

Judge Carl Hamlin left his home in Missouri to come to Texas. He has lived in Breckenridge ever since he became District Judge. He received his appointment originally and in due time came before the people of his county as a candidate for election.

Table with 4 columns: Precinct, Hamlin, O'Connor, and Breckenridge. Rows include S. E. Breckenridge (44, 86, 155, 116), N. E. Breckenridge (84, 97, 143, 184), W. W. Breckenridge (75, 185, 240, 197), S. W. Breckenridge (67, 170, 200, 178), and Total (270, 538, 738, 675).

Note that with four candidates running, O'Connor got more votes than Hamlin, and that in Breckenridge where he lives there were only 675 votes for Hamlin, and 1546 votes against him.

There was a run-off in the second primary in August, 1928. Hamlin was then drawing a salary of $5,000 from the State and in addition was drawing $150 per month from the government, based upon presumed disability.

States. Being better able to campaign financially, he won in the run-off.

Breckenridge, Hamlin's Home, Again Repudiated Him in Last Democratic Primary of July 1932.

The following is the official vote in the four boxes in Breckenridge in the democratic primary in July, 1932:

Table with 4 columns: Candidate, Welch, O'Connor, and Hamlin. Rows include S. E. Breckenridge (114, 78, 216), N. E. Breckenridge (131, 137, 211), N. W. Breckenridge (169, 208, 398), S. W. Breckenridge (148, 140, 251), and Total (582, 563, 1075).

Note that again three boxes out of four in Breckenridge failed to give Hamlin a majority vote and that Breckenridge again repudiated him by casting 1145 against him, and only 1075 votes for him.

Hamlin's $150 Per Month for Presumed Disability

Claiming physical disability based upon military service, Hamlin for many months received compensation from the Veterans Bureau at the rate of $150 per month, while at the same time he was receiving $5,000 per year from the State of Texas as District Judge.

Before Carl Hamlin left Missouri and moved to Breckenridge, Blanton was Judge of the District Court of Stephens County, and not only held the Court in Breckenridge, but also held the Courts in the counties of Eastland, Callahan, Shackelford and Taylor, and kept all the dockets clean.

Notwithstanding Carl Hamlin holds Court in only one County, when Blanton used to keep the dockets clean in five counties, Carl Hamlin now has undisposed of on his docket 328 criminal cases, of which 165 were filed before January 1, 1931, and 217 civil cases, of which one was filed in 1920, and 15 were filed before November 18, 1922, and 104 were filed before January 1, 1931, and also has still undisposed of 244 other cases on his docket.

The foregoing indisputable facts furnished from the official records of Stephens County are published and paid for by the friends of Congressman Blanton.

This being the last issue of the paper in which we may bring our candidacy to the public, I desire to express my deep appreciation to my many friends and those whom I have met for the many kind things done and said in my behalf. I shall never forget them. Should I have failed to see anyone, I want to assure you that I shall greatly appreciate your vote and influence.

Your vote and influence will be ever appreciated. Respectfully, TOM L. ROBINSON, Candidate for District Judge (Political Adv.)

FUNERAL SERVICES MONDAY AT FAIRY FOR PIONEER

Funeral services were conducted at the Fairy Baptist Tabernacle Monday, July 23, for Mrs. William Brunson, who died at the home of her son, C. A. Brunson, the previous day. Services were conducted by Rev. Rucker, with interment in Fairy Cemetery.

Mrs. Brunson, who had she lived until the 1st of September would have been 86 years, was a pioneer settler of the Fairy section. During her 44 years residence there she had made many friends, who were saddened by her passing, and who sympathize with the family in their loss.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Hallie Jamison, three sons, R. L. Brunson of Eunice, New Mexico, C. A. Brunson and C. W. Brunson of Fairy, a daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Smith of Hico, and a niece, Mrs. Harve Smith of Turnersville.

ANNIVERSARY OF OVERFLOW CAUSES RECOLLECTIONS

On Tuesday of this week old-timers were reminded that it was the anniversary of the greatest overflow of the Bosque River on record, which occurred July 25, 1902.

L. A. Powledge, an authority on such subjects, states that the big flood washed away Weser's Granary, the laundry and several houses, among which was that belonging to Dick Collier.

Quite a difference in the precipitation on that date and that which occurred some thirty-two years later. Which would you rather have a mild drouth or a flood?

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to offer our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our neighbors and friends who were so kind and thoughtful during our dear mother's last illness and after she had passed away for the many words of consolation. We especially thank Mrs. Lizzie Loyd for her faithfulness, Dr. Russell, Bro. Rucker, and the undertaker. May God's richest blessing rest and abide with each one.—Mrs. Hallie Jamison and Family, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Brunson, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brunson and Family, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brunson and Family, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harve Smith and Family. 9-1p

CAN'T KEEP 4-HERS DOWN

Four-H boys and girls find many and unusual ways of using their training. Some Michigan boys did. They wanted to take the short course in agriculture at the State College, but lacked the necessary funds to do it in the accustomed manner of boarding or living at a students club. Getting their heads together in the manner they evolved a plan which might be called modern batching.

Four boys engaged in the scheme and their agreement, worked out carefully as any club project would be, provided that they work in pairs, and alternate in the up-keep and operation of the apartment. Two did the cooking and kitchen work one week while the other two kept up the house.

The venture reduced the expenses per boy for the 16 weeks course to less than $40, or the almost unbelievable sum of less than $2 a week. No better fare and happier living conditions cost other students several times the amount. While it is not recommended that students who do not have to employ such a plan do so, since the duties of the venture are not altogether in favor of the best application to college work and social life, it is one way out where the other is not possible.

The boys brought much of their food from home, buying only perishable things. The home supplies consisted of potatoes and like vegetables, canned foods and certain meats. One or more of the boys would return to their homes every few weeks and bring the materials on his trip back. Staggering their home visits they were able to keep the proper supplies in stock at the apartment. Following the trial for 16 weeks the boys decided they would extend their course to the two-year period. The savings of their plan of living made it possible.
