Miss Hester West Describes Life on Board Ship on Trip to China

Miss Hester West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. West of this city, in letters to her parents here writes an interesting account of a portion of her trip to China aboard ship. Miss West is enroute to China where she will become a missionary, going there as a missionary from this district of the Methodist conference.

Following is brief excerpts from a letter from Miss West written August 19, when she was just off the Aleutian Islands in the Pacific: August 19, 1932.

Just off the Aleutian Islands. Dear family:

Today is the best day we have had yet. Everything is clean and fresh looking, the sun is shining, everyone is feeling fine, no complaint from anyone. It seemed the ideal time to start the letter home so here goes. After the letters were mailed at Victoria and we had taken on some new passengers we started out into the briny deep for sure. Did not get out of sight of land that afternoon. The sea was smooth and quiet. The next morning I awakened at an early hour the sea was like a rocky horse.

Several of us got up early this morning and had several games of deck tennis before we ate to work up an appetite. Certainly got results. I ate strawberries, grapes, waffles and maple syrup and a cup of tea. Chinese boys wait the tables and we have a regular picnic trying to make them understand what we want to eat. It is on the menu card but part of it is in French and the other part is dressed up in some fancy name so we just play a game and point to something and then wonder what we get.

Yesterday morning we had the first meeting of our oriental missionary discussion group. This morning it was especially interesting. Mr. Loebenstein, of the National Christian Council in China and also a member of the International Christian Council talked on the general background for missionary work in the Far East.

Most of our passenger list is second class seems to be made up of missionaries. There are six or seven Catholic priests going out for first time to China. Several young men going out as teachers in mission schools. An engineer or so, one or two business men, perhaps a tourist or so and our part of it is complete.

We have chicken broth served on deck at 11 o'clock and tea served in the dining room at 4:30.

We are to arrive at Yokohama Wednesday. The girls to Japan got a radio from Bishop Kern yesterday to disembark there instead of at Kobe on Thursday we will lose the ones who are going to Korea and then on Sunday we will land at 9 a. m. in Shanghai.

I would not like to tour the world on a ship just for fun. I think I'd rather walk. It has been so cold far that it has been hard to enjoy it. They say it will be quite hot in the Orient yet for about a month after we get there but this trip has required heavy clothes and a coat most of the time so far.

We saw the Aleutian Islands from a distance. They were covered with ice and snow which made them very beautiful. I don't know how near we were to them but I am sure not closer than 75 miles.

Sunday morning. We get a little newspaper every day at noon with the news of the world as gotten over the radio. We are able to keep up fairly well but I do miss the funnies. We are to have a song service tonight and a sermon. I am glad to know it.

Monday p. m.

Have just come down from the deck where we have been seeing several fishing ships quite close by. There are several pairs of field glasses in the second class group so we all had a look. Saw a number of spouts and some of the old timers said they were whales but I dunno, I dunno.

Don't know yet what we will do in Japan, but am pretty sure we will go to Tokyo to see the Emperor's palace and the other interesting sights. We will lose girls going to Japan there.

Last night Mr. Anderson, the superintendent of the British Mission to Lepers, told us something of that work. He and Mr. Kinkle, the superintendent of the Canadian part of it are going to the Orient to study the work being done there.

The moon has at last appeared upon the scene. It was getting about time. We are looking forward to the most enjoyable part of our trip now. The days are long and warm, the nights are beautiful and interesting. We are planning to get up at break of day in the morning to see what the land looks like in Japan. If we do get up early the next morning we will probably see Mt. Fuji in person. I hope we do.

Miss Francis Carpenter, of Farwell, New Mexico, spent the past week end visiting in the Jackson home in the McCoy community.

POULTRY FACTS

FOOD OF QUALITY FOR BREEDING HENS

Only Way to Get Best Eggs and Healthy Chicks.

"Poultry has suffered along with other farm crops, but due to the drop in feed prices in proportion to the prices being received for eggs, and because of the mild winter permitting production to stay at level, poultrymen have been much encouraged to go ahead with their work," says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at North Carolina state college. "However, some poultrymen have attempted to increase their margin of profit by decreasing the feeding or substituting certain feeds which do not give as good results. One of the main substitutions being practiced is to use vegetable protein feeds for animal protein feeds. Soy bean meal and peanut meal are good if used in limited quantities, but they should not entirely displace the animal protein, especially when production is heavy and the eggs are being used for hatching."

Any radical change from the usual methods of feeding at this time is likely to be reflected in the hatchability of the eggs or the livability of the chicks, Mr. Dearstyne says. The breeding hens should be fed so that they will produce only the highest quality of eggs.

Mr. Dearstyne insists that green feed, plenty of sunlight, an adequate mineral supply and milk in some form, should be fed the birds to get the best eggs for producing healthy chicks. If the breeding birds are to be through a long laying season and maintain body weight, they must be fed a balanced ration. It is particularly unwise to depend on grain feeds alone without mash.

Chickens a Life Saver, Says Ohio Poultryman

R. W. Sweltzer, poultryman, has told the Ohio Farmer how he managed to reduce feed costs in his flocks. "To make money we had to press down on feed costs," says Sweltzer. He believes the cost of grinding grains for poultry is a wasted expense. He feeds a free choice ration with corn, wheat, germinated oats, meat scraps and milk before the birds at all times. Greens are supplied by cabbage and apples and cod liver oil is fed in the grain.

Need Cod Liver Oil

Poultry kept around cities where smoke abounds do not get sufficient sunshine in winter time, and hence cod liver oil is necessary for them, Prof. E. L. Dakan of the Ohio State university says after testing out several flocks. Two years ago he fed all flocks without cod liver oil except one, and that one pen had the most eggs. Next year he fed cod liver oil to all flocks, except one, and that year this single pen without oil had the lowest production of all.—Ohio Farmer.

Feed for Hen for Year

It takes about 90 pounds of feed to care for a Plymouth Rock hen for a year, according to the Southern Agriculturist. When on range on a farm she should pick up approximately one-third of this, which means that one bushel of corn or wheat or its equivalent should take care of a hen for a year under such circumstances. A Leghorn hen consumes approximately 75 pounds of feed a year, and she can get along on a little less than 60 pounds of grain if on free range.

Hens Paid Well

Hens last year paid Elmer Hanson, Clary County, South Dakota, $2.32 an hour for time spent on them. Mr. Hanson kept a complete record which showed that he devoted 469 hours to caring for 334 high-producing hens. The flock returned $1,190.78 above feed costs. Mr. Hanson's record shows that even at low prices, eggs and poultry still are money makers. The record also revealed the most economical methods and the feeds that give best results.—Capper's Farmer.

Heavy Layers

Hens have to meet a high standard before they are used for breeding purposes at the United States live stock experiment station at Beltsville, Md. Poultry men of the Department of Agriculture choose breeding hens only from those which produce at least 225 eggs in the pullet years and whose eggs average at least two ounces in weight. They save only the chickens from hens whose eggs are at least 70 per cent hatchable. Pullets are not used in the regular breeding pens.

FARM POULTRY

YEARLING HEN NOT ALWAYS POOR "BET"

Many Can Qualify as Profitable Layers.

One way farmers and poultry men can save this year is to keep most of last year's pullets so that fewer chicks will have to be raised, says H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. "In some instances it is good economy to keep most of last year's pullets. For one thing, they have gone through their most expensive depreciation. Last fall good pullets sold for $1 to $1.25 apiece, but these same birds probably would not sell for more than 50 to 75 cents this spring. This heavy depreciation is all because they have reached the hen class, and in the minds of the buying public they do not represent the potential value of a pullet."

"However, many of these yearling hens, if well bred, are far from being through as profitable layers. It is true that they may not make as high an annual production record, but they can be quite as profitable as many pullets. One big advantage of the production from yearling birds is that there should be no discount for small eggs."

"With the present knowledge of feeding and of management methods, it is not hard to have yearling birds laying well early in the fall and winter."

Chicks' Growth Helped by "All-Mash" System

Where dried buttermilk or skim-milk is mixed in with the mash it enables the chickens to get their source of milk much more evenly than in any other way. This also is a wonderful source of vitamins for young chicks and helps to give the succulence which would not be obtained if only scratch grains were fed.

To sum up the advantages of an all-mash system: It keeps the chicks busier throughout the day; it supplies the chicks with many sources of protein; it enables a better distribution to the chicks of milk and the vitamins it contains and, furthermore, it insures a better distribution to the chicks of the minerals which are so essential for uniform growth.—Exchange.

Early Birds Best

From a net profit standpoint it would seem best to hatch chicks this year early rather than late in the season, states Paul G. Riley, commercial poultryman. In most years the price for broilers is better from the early hatched birds than the later hatched chicks. A difference of two or three cents in the original cost of the chick may be made up many times in the better price to be had from the finished birds. The pullets from early hatched chicks are the ones that produce eggs when eggs are high in price. Poultry profits for the good poultryman are always good in the last four months of the year because they have layers at work helping cash in on the good egg prices.—Prairie Farmer.

Diarrhea

This ailment is common to chicks that have been chilled, overheated, crowded or fed spoiled, sour or moldy feed. The external indications are a white or liquid discharge which adheres in a sticky or pasty mass to the vent and abdomen of the chick. This diarrhea is not a contagious or infectious disease and is checked by removing the cause and giving the chicks a dose of epsom salts. Two large teaspoonful of epsom salts put in one quart of drinking water will physic the chicks and aid in cleaning the intestines so the good feed supplemented with clean milk can put the chicks in good condition.—Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman.

Benefits of All-Mash

An all-mash poultry ration that has given good success at Iowa state college is composed of 650 pounds of ground yellow corn, 350 pounds of ground heavy oats, 100 pounds of ground wheat, 80 pounds of meat scrap or 60 per cent protein tankage, 20 pounds of dried milk and four pounds of fine salt. In addition to this ration the flock should have a good supply of calcium grit and gravel. The all-mash ration saves labor and special care in balancing.—Prairie Farmer.

Cleanliness Comes First

In general, the best insurance against diseases of chickens we know of is absolute cleanliness, not only in the brooder house, but in all equipment and every place with which the growing chicken comes in contact. Clean the brooder house every four or five days so that infection will not be spread through droppings. Sterilize drinking fountains frequently. Rotate ranges every three years at least and see that some cultivated crop is sown, is the advice of the American Agriculturist.

SAFE PLEASANT WAY TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you for 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. Take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug-store in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

Alfalfa Best Pig Pasture

In tests conducted at Ohio State university, alfalfa and clover pasture outranked all other kinds for pigs. Soybean, while proving to be exceptionally palatable to pigs, produces little new growth after being grazed, has relatively low carrying capacity and provides forage for only a comparatively short period of time. On good soils rape proved to be an excellent pasture crop. Rape, however, sometimes caused blistering or sun-scald. On thin soils a mixture of spring-seeded winter wheat and alfalfa or sweet clover made a serviceable pasture. Sweet clover alone was all right for the first year, but the second year's growth was too coarse and woody for the pigs to get much good from it.—Prairie Farmer.

Agricultural Hints

Deep and thorough preparations of the soil is required for sweet peas. Early planting is essential.

"Top-lamb prices for every producer" will be the aim of a Minnesota lamb grading campaign to be conducted during July and August.

Tests at the Ohio State university have shown that, on strong, productive soil, Evergreen and Country Gentleman varieties of corn planted in 34-inch rows give highest yields.

Asparagus acreage has increased threefold in the past ten years, spinach six times, lettuce ten times. Carrot acreage doubled and fresh pea acreage has increased ten times.

Ground limestone should be applied to the ground at least a month before acid phosphate is to be used. The two react to each other, and a loss is experienced by their simultaneous application.

Farmers can make a lot of good feed by planning a mixture of one bushel of cowpeas and 20 pounds of sorghum seed per acre on good moist land. The combination makes

POULTRY FIRST FOUR WEEKS VITAL TO CHICKS

Start of Life Everything in Flock's Success.

"Let me control a child's surrounding, teaching and care for the first seven years, and I won't worry about what will happen after that," a noted religious leader said.

The same could almost be said for raising chickens, provided you shorten the important period to a month. Of course, there are numerous diseases and parasites that can kill or stunt or destroy profit after one month of age, yet success with poultry is more often made or marred during the first month than during the rest of the whole raising process.

There are so many things that are tremendously important during that time that lose their importance later.

Teaching good habits, such as roosting where they belong, eating and drinking out of clean containers only, keeping busy with food and litter instead of picking and fighting each other, come easy during those first few weeks, but hard afterwards. Failure to get the brooder house cleaned and litter renewed every few days is vital those first few weeks, but it is not a serious omission after the chicks are a month old, if they are properly trained as to eating, roosting and playing.—J. W. in Wallace's Farmer.

All-Year Layer Counts on Poultryman's Books

The average hen eats 75 to 90 pounds of feed per year, according to data kept on large flocks. The size of the body counts some and a heavy layer will eat more than a poor layer, but the poor producers don't eat enough less to offset difference in the cost of "keep." The hen that lays no eggs at all through the winter requires nearly as much, just for body maintenance, as the one that lays just enough to pay her way. The latter may lay eggs enough during the spring and summer to make her profitable to keep, while the one that lays no eggs during cold weather is not worth boarding for half the year in order to get eggs in the spring.

The only hens really worth keeping are those that are able to lay all the year except during the molting period. Continual culling to eliminate poor winter layers has a very positive effect on the yearly balance.—Nebraska Farmer.

Causes of Paralysis

Paralysis is occasionally seen in chickens that are heavily fed and grow rapidly. It is also seen where there is overcrowding and poor ventilation. Let them have plenty of sour milk and green feed and add one teaspoonful of fluid extract of nux vomica to each pint of drinking water.

There is a form of paralysis that attacks mostly young birds, for which there is no treatment of any value and is usually fatal. In cases of this kind, it is advisable to get a new flock and put them in new buildings on clean land. Changing the old flock to new ground or buildings does not stamp out the disease.—Michigan Farmer.

Incubator Pointers

Level the incubator with a spirit level and place bits of wood under any leg that seems short. This not only helps to keep an even heat in the egg chambers but prevents the vibration that occurs when the floor is uneven and one of the incubator legs does not rest firmly.

A cellar is the best location for the incubator, as it is free from vibrations and the air will be rather moist. When the machines are operated in an upstairs room the entire family must be careful to avoid running, heavy walking, banging doors or carelessly leaving them open and chilling the air around the machine.

Dried Milk With Grain

Dried milk fed with grain rations has about an equal value for chicks as whole liquid milk and is fed with less loss and less danger of attracting flies. A flaky product rather than a too finely ground dried milk powder is preferable. Meat scrap and dried skim milk in combination with the standard Wisconsin chick ration is satisfactory, but raw bone may then be omitted. But when the liquid milk is used the raw bone ought to be included.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Self-Dressed Poultry

A number of Iowa farmers are taking advantage of the present market price conditions by selling dressed poultry to local consumers as a means of increasing their income, according to the Iowa State college. In one town, it was reported that heavy poultry was bringing 6 to 9 cents a pound, live weight, while retail dealers were receiving 20 to 27 cents a pound for birds dressed, but not drawn. This information is from the pages of the Nebraska Farmer.

Whirlwind-Bulldog Grid Game Re-scheduled for Friday Nights

Following consultations with Plainview High School officials, Coach R. P. Terrell announced Tuesday that the Floydada High School-Plainview High School grid game had been re-scheduled. The game, which had been previously announced for Saturday night of this week, has been re-scheduled to be played Friday night. Plainview High School officials consulted with Coach Terrell and the athletic committee Monday night.

It was the understanding that the game had been rearranged for Friday night to accommodate business firms and customers in both Plainview and Floydada Saturday night. A number of merchants and business men, under the new schedule, will be given an opportunity to see the game without being absent from their business, which would previously have been the case.

Have Fighting Chance

"We have a fighting chance to hold the Plainview Bulldogs Friday night, although the Plainview coaches have been putting their teams through stiff workouts and have much better and heavier material this year than last," Coach Terrell said Tuesday.

Unusual interest in the Plainview Floydada football games has been shown in recent years and grid fans are assured of a real tussle when the Bulldogs and Whirlwinds meet, and this year's game Friday night will probably be no exception.

"We are going to Plainview fighting and are going to give them all we have and we have a chance if the boys do not become overconfident," the Whirlwind mentor concluded.

Alfalfa Best Pig Pasture

In tests conducted at Ohio State university, alfalfa and clover pasture outranked all other kinds for pigs. Soybean, while proving to be exceptionally palatable to pigs, produces little new growth after being grazed, has relatively low carrying capacity and provides forage for only a comparatively short period of time. On good soils rape proved to be an excellent pasture crop. Rape, however, sometimes caused blistering or sun-scald. On thin soils a mixture of spring-seeded winter wheat and alfalfa or sweet clover made a serviceable pasture. Sweet clover alone was all right for the first year, but the second year's growth was too coarse and woody for the pigs to get much good from it.—Prairie Farmer.
