H. H. DAVIS DIES
FROM SELF-INFLICTED GUNSHOT WOUND

H. H. Davis, collector for the John Deere Plow Company, of Plainview, was found fatally injured with a bullet wound in his head Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the Plainview highway just a short way from Floydada. Death was caused by a self-inflicted gun-shot wound, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury.

He was found by E. W. Henderson and J. F. Gordon, who were driving to Floydada. His car was facing towards Plainview and he was lying about ten feet in front of the vehicle, on his back with his head in the bar ditch. A .38 caliber Ivory Johnson gun was found lying under his right foot, with two empty shells, two empty chambers, and one loaded shell in it.

The bullet entered about an inch above his right ear, and never came out. Powder burns were on his hat and hair. An Elgin watch and a bill fold containing ten dollars were found on his person.

He was rushed to the Smith Sanitarium by Dr. V. Andrews, County Health Doctor, Sheriff E. S. Rauderson and Deputy Sheriff Morgan Wright. He died at 3:10 o'clock, about an hour after being brought to the sanitarium, never regaining consciousness.

Mr. Davis has been working out of the Plainview John Deere Plow Company office about ninety days. He is formerly of Winson, Missouri. He is survived by his wife and two sons, of Plainview.

The body was shipped to Plainview late Wednesday afternoon. Funeral arrangements have not been made, pending word from relatives.

INTEREST RATE
LOWERED ON FARM
LOANS IN COUNTY

C. M. Meredith received instructions this week that further reduction in interest rates on new loans made on or after June 24 by the Federal Land Bank of Houston through National Farm Loan Associations was available. A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank of Houston gave out the information. This new interest cut completes a series of reductions which have lowered the interest cost of farm mortgage loans a full one per cent in the last three months.

April 1 the bank lowered the rate on new loans from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent; and April 10 reduced the rate from 4 1-2 to 4 1-4 per cent. The latest reduction of 1-4 of 1 per cent completes the one per cent cut in three months. Thus loans will be available at the lowest interest rates ever offered farmers by the Federal Land Banks or by any large lending agency.

"This is not an emergency rate," Mr. Williams said. "On June 24, the bank will begin to make loans which will bear four per cent interest during their entire life, with the exception of an emergency rate of 3 1-3 per cent for interest payable in the one-year period beginning July 1, 1935. This new, low four per cent rate is a direct reflection of the lower rate of interest borne by Federal farm loan bonds sold by the Federal Land Banks. It is in keeping with the policy of the Farm Credit Administration to adjust the interest rates on new loans as the rates on their new bond issues vary."

"The interest rate on Land Bank Commissioner loans will not be affected by the cut and will remain at five per cent," Mr. Williams said in handing out the information.

TUESDAY-WEDNESDAY

Miss An McMechem, district relief representative of the Red Cross, was in this city Tuesday and Wednesday working with the local chapter.

While here she made a very close survey of the hail and wind damage section of the county. After making the survey she decided that relief to the people did not come under the Red Cross, but that the Federal Government should furnish some means of making loans to farmers to re-seed their land.

For the small tenant farmers who will be unable to help themselves or unable to receive federal aid, the National Red Cross allowed the local chapter six hundred dollars to be distributed in small amounts, to buy garden and feed seeds.

SECOND WEEK OF COUNTY COURT IN SESSION HERE

The case, West Texas Cotton Oil Company of Lockney vs. The State of Texas, has been set in County Court this week for July 8. Both plaintiff and defendant appealed the case for another trial.

The jury that was summoned for the second week of County Court, will be used for the fourth week, beginning July 8th. No cases were tried this week, which is the second week of court.

FLOYDADA RECEIVES
FIRST LOAD OF 1935
WHEAT THIS WEEK

Marking the beginning of another harvest of wheat in Floyd County, the first load of 1935 crop was sold Saturday afternoon. W. C. Hubbard who farms eight miles north-west of Floydada, sold the wheat to the Farmers Grain Company.

The first load tested 56 and the yield per acre where this wheat was cut, although it was damaged fifty per cent by hail, Mr. Hubbard said, was eighteen bushels. A total of 85 cents per bushel was paid for the wheat, including a fourteen cent premium paid by the grain company as the market was 71 cents on Saturday.

The date of the marketing of the first load of new wheat was later this year than in several. Last year the first load marketed by C. N. Batty on June 2 and in 1933 the first load was brought in by John Bell, of Carr's Chapel, on June 5. Last year the first load was sold at 84 cents, a premium of six cents being paid and in 1933 the first load was sold at 63 cents, including a five cent premium. The first load last year was bought by Boothe Mill & Elevator.

According to reports as to maturity of wheat all over the county the harvest this year is much later than in the past. Harvest is expected to be in full sway by the middle of next week, if favorable weather conditions are had.

Yield is expected to be much lighter all over the county than it was last year, due to the fact that a large per cent of the best wheat was damaged by hail this year.

LUSITANIA SINKING IS STILL MYSTERY

Evidence Buried With Great Liner in Sea.

London—Twenty years ago, on a sunny spring afternoon, a German submarine torpedo sent the crack British liner Lusitania to her doom in 240 feet of water ten miles off the Old Head of Kinsale, Ireland.

Two decades after one of the blackest pages in the history of the World War was written, the sinking of the Lusitania remains one of the greatest mysteries of all time. It may remain a mystery forever.

Evidence that some historians say, might have kept the United States out of the World War lies now buried deep in the ocean.

1,189 Drowned.

The Lusitania left New York on her last voyage on May 1, 1915. At 2:30 p. m. on May 7, while the vessel was proceeding through calm waters, she was struck amidships by a torpedo. The lethal weapon hit between the third and fourth funnels. In 18 minutes she was lying at the bottom of the ocean and 1,189 passengers had been drowned. Among these were 124 Americans. Among them also were 103 children less than three years of age.

To this laconic account, survivors could add but little. There were some who told of a terrific explosion. There were some who thought two torpedoes hit the boat.

The Lusitania's passengers were at luncheon, resting in their cabins, or sunning themselves on the deck when the fatal blow came. Hundreds had never a chance for their lives. There were famous names in the list of dead—Charles Frohman, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Elbert Hubbard, Justus Miles Forman.

Captain is Dead.

The Lusitania's master, Capt. W. T. Turner, who might have told more than any other man about the tragedy, died late in 1933, broken in mind and in health, with nothing to add to the story he told during the investigation which followed the sinking. He insisted the Lusitania was not armed.

But that she carried munitions there is no longer any doubt. The Germans charge she carried 5,470 cases of ammunition and that the remainder of her cargo was chiefly contraband, consisting of cartridges worth $200,000 and copper and brass to the value of $735,000. The Cunard line admitted she carried 4,200 cases of cartridges for small arms and 1,250 empty steel shrapnel cases.

The twentieth anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania finds many questions unanswered. It also finds plans still being made to send diving expeditions to the spot where she sank in an effort not only to locate the $6,000,000 in gold bullion which she carried but also perhaps to settle once and for all a never-ending controversy.

For 20 years after, horror and mystery remain the legacy of the Lusitania.

Dethrones Champion of All Needle Threaders

Ottawa, Ont.—J. Serrell, Ottawa tailor, who threaded 250 strands of cotton thread through the eye of a needle, has been dethroned as "world's champion needle threader" by an armless "wonder" in Britain.

Serrell has received a letter from the new champion, E. G. Alason, forty-seven-year-old news agent of West Hartlepool, England, telling him how he broke Serrell's record. Alason has no arms or legs, but that didn't stop him. Sticking a needle in a piece of wool, Alason threaded 270 strands through its eye, using only his tongue in the difficult task.

Serrell admitted he couldn't do better and vacated the throne, which he won in an international competition last year with a United States housewife, whose name has been long forgotten.

School Every Day in Year Seen by Educator

San Diego.—School for 24 hours per day, seven days a week and 52 weeks each year, was predicted here recently by Hubert S. Upjohn, superintendent of schools of Long Beach, in addressing southern California educators on "what school changes are necessary to meet the changing social order?"

He predicted that the school year will be divided into three seasons—three months in farm school where children learn to grow things; three months city school where they learn of city life and industrial production and the other six months in book learning.

"Such a plan will be better for children," he said, "because it shields them from contact with irritable parents, and gives parents more time for bridge and other pursuits of their fancy."

World's Smallest Carvings

Lights of New York
By L. L. STEVENSON

It was one of those rare evenings at home. May, Dick, Bill and I were playing contract. The house was quiet since the hour was near midnight. The street was quiet also except for occasional bursts of traffic or the clatter of that trolley that runs up and down Central Park West all day and all night. Suddenly there were screams, screams of a woman caught in a nightmare horror, screams that sent chills through the blood. So we rushed to the windows. Across the street a woman was writhing on the sidewalk, and as she writhed, a red pool grew larger. Up the street a man was running. He wasn't going fast because his movements were impeded by an overcoat. But no one was pursuing him.

Park apartments grew light. Faces appeared at windows, first floor windows, and so on higher and higher. Deserted One Hundred Fourth street suddenly became populated. Men and women came out with coats thrown over sleeping garments—or fully clothed. They gathered about the woman on the sidewalk. Men picked her up and carried her into a hallway. A man in pajamas went up to the police box, opened it and sent in a call. Apparently no one gave a thought to that man running up the street. It was just as well—the time assistance reached the woman he had disappeared.

What had happened was soon learned. The woman had come home alone after spending the evening at a neighbor's. She had only a few doors to go and many times had turned from Central Park West into One Hundred Fourth street with nothing happening. But hidden in the shadows of a boarded-up entrance to the subway, lurked a man. In his hand, he held an iron-covered stick. When the woman was opposite him, he struck—struck with such force that the weapon broke. But instead of dropping silently to the pavement and giving him a chance to grab her purse, the woman screamed as she fell.

By and by an ambulance arrived. A brisk interne leaped from the rear. There were no fractures—only a scalp wound. So with a hallway as an operating room, he went to work. The case history disclosed the fact that the woman is fifty years old. Alone in the world, she had been unemployed for months. In the purse for which a highwayman might have taken her life, there wasn't a cent!

Thus an incident in the City of the Seven Million—an incident that didn't even draw a line or two in the newspapers. But I wonder what was in the mind of that man as he ran up the street? And what had been in his mind when he had wielded that bludgeon on the one who evidently was the first passer-by?

Boys playing baseball on grass and shrubbery—healthful recreation or quiet and eye-resting vistas? Seems as if that question is always coming up in crowded New York. It is under debate again in connection with Central park. The park department wants to take away the baseball diamonds and turn the space into park. Proponents of the diamonds are fighting the move. They hold that the park is for all the people and that kids playing baseball aren't getting into trouble.

The other side is taken largely by those who live near the park. Sand lot baseball is not quiet. Noise admittedly is disturbing. The park dwellers declare that as they pay high prices for the privilege of living near the park, they should have the quiet. The baseball players and their friends won out last year.

Burns Mantie recalls that in all the years the late Richard Berry Harrison played the part of "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," he objected to only one bit of business. Instructions in the original script directed that when he accepted a ten-cent cigar from Gabriel he was to smoke it. Harrison objected to smoking and said so. It wasn't dignified for "de Lawd" and it wasn't pleasant for him. His objection stood.

New Life Formula

May Be Aid to Man Los Angeles.—The world of science was stirred by the feat of Dr. Ralph Willard, youthful research chemist, in bringing back to life a pig after it had been dead three days. Doctor Willard announced his experiment will prove revolutionary in disease treatment. In bringing the animal back to life Doctor Willard applied heat until the body temperature was normal. Then a blood transfusion brought the first faint heart action and adrenaline-epinephrine injections quickened it.

Violent Trees
One of nature's oddest growths is the electricity tree of Central India. Its leaves are so full of electricity that if you touch one you receive an electric shock. They will influence a magnetic needle 70 feet away. The electrical strength is strongest at midday and weakest at midnight. In wet weather its power disappears. Birds and insects keep away. The "Soyal," or "Cotton tree" of Nepal, will eat other trees. Its seeds are dropped by birds in the forks of its victims, where they germinate and drop a sort of root which starts a cotton tree branch. This spreads and drops other roots until a large stem of the victim tree is seized. Then the cannibal spreads round the main trunk. After its meal, a fine cotton tree appears on the scene of the repast.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Hardest Artificial Substance
Boron carbide, material made by combining the rare metal boron and ordinary carbon in the electric furnace, is the hardest known synthetic substance and readily cuts practically anything but diamond. Power Plant Engineering reported that boron carbide is unaffected by the strongest acids and alkalis, is able to withstand compression of 50 tons to the square inch, expands only two-thirds as much as steel under the influence of temperature, is little affected by heat up to 1,000 degrees Centigrade (at which diamonds burn up completely), and is lighter than aluminum.—Literary Digest.

Build Fences of Fire
All towns and villages near the great tropical jungles of Africa start forest fires at a certain time each year—when the wind is right—to keep the surrounding plant world and its animals, reptiles and insects, from encroaching upon them. These fires, although well under control, sometimes develop into vast sheets of flame more than two miles in width.—Collier's Weekly.

Held Down!
Winds of almost hurricane proportions sometimes sweep the Hebrides islands, west of Scotland. The inhabitants, most of whom are fishermen, protect the thatched roofs of their cottages from the ravages of the gales by throwing old fishing nets over them, and weighting the nets with stones at the eaves.—Washington Post.

Naming the Game "Crap"
The game "crap" was introduced in this country under its European name of hazard. The Frenchman who brought it to New Orleans was often called "Crapaud," a nickname applied to the French. The game was known as "Crapaud's game," then "Crap's game and finally Craps.

Courageous Race of Men Carved Rich Empire From Plains of Southwest

Stamford, Texas.—A courageous race of men—the cowboys and cattlemen who carved a rich empire from the trackless plains of the southwest, will be honored at the sixth annual Texas cowboy reunion to be held here July 2, 3 and 4. Sturdy cowhands who saw service on the range or trail no less than 35 years ago will be special guests of the reunion.

The oldtimers have their own organization with some 1,000 members and hold their "round-up" and celebration of officers during the reunion each year. Members of the association who are in good standing are issued attractive metal badges which entitle them to free admission to the rodeo and grandstand, a chuck wagon dinner at noon each day, admission to the square dance every night and other courtesies.

Assembly of these grizzled veterans of the range to renew early friendships, talk over old times, swap yarns and maybe enter the oldtimers' calf-roping contest is one of the distinctive features of the Cowboy Reunion. Mute evidence of the ever-thinning ranks of these bold knights of the rope and saddle was noticed last year when a memorial service was held for 15 members who had died in the preceding twelve months.

The oldtime cowboys have their own headquarters building on the reunion grounds, a unique stone structure which they call the "bank-house." When the building was constructed about a year ago, scores of cattle brands of the Southwest, representing ranches of the past as well as those now in operation, were carved in the stones which form the curved wall around a spacious terrace. The building overlooks the reunion grounds and is near a pretty little lake, now brimming full of water from recent rains.

Precaution Should Be Taken to Prevent Spread of Typhoid Fever

Austin, Texas.—Recent floods may be responsible for an epidemic of typhoid fever, declares Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer. Flood conditions have prevailed over most of the state and unless the utmost precautions are observed to prevent this disease the monetary loss from illness may equal the property loss.

Typhoid fever is often a "filth-borne" disease. It can only grow into epidemic proportions under conditions which are insanitary. A typhoid epidemic means that water, milk, or food have been contaminated with germs from the body discharges of a patient or carrier. Contamination of milk or food by flies is favored by a lack of sanitation.

The prevention of typhoid fever is peculiarly a matter of community responsibility. In cities large and small most urgent control measures are those providing for (1) proper disposal of human excreta through sewage disposal plants and toilets of sanitary type; (2) safe public and well water supplies; (3) extermination of flies; (4) healthy food handlers; (5) supervision of disease carriers and (6) public supplies of high quality with the added safeguard of careful pasteurization.

Inoculations with vaccine increase individual resistance to typhoid fever. Such treatments are advised for exposed persons and those who, through travel or change of residence are subject to varied water, food, and milk supplies. For the rank and file of our population, reduction of deaths and sickness from preventable disease like typhoid fever is largely dependent upon carrying out the six above mentioned measures.

GOVERNMENT BANK UNSUITED TO U.S.

Would Serve Politics Rather Than Business Needs, Says R. S. Hecht, Citing Previous Experiences.

QUOTES PRESIDENT JACKSON

Extent and Diversity of This Country Presents Different Situation From Europe and Makes Regional Banking Necessary.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A refutation of arguments in favor of a government-owned central bank system for the United States is presented in a statement by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, on the basis of exhaustive studies of European central banks. He also points out the disastrous consequences of previous central bank experiments in America.

"Our present regional Federal Reserve System under private ownership is infinitely better for this country than would be a government-owned and controlled central bank," Mr. Hecht says.

What Andrew Jackson Said
"The continued existence of the Second Bank finally became a bitter political issue and President Jackson succeeded in abolishing it," Mr. Hecht says.

When the Wilson Administration considered banking reform it carefully kept away from vesting central banking powers in a single institution and instead introduced the regional idea by creating twelve reserve banks located in different economic and geographical sections of the country.

The mythical Blacksmith
An example of the persistence of legends is that of the Cave of Wayland the Smith in Berkshire, England.

Subservient to Popular Demands
"Moreover, history has proven that any banking system entirely owned and dominated by the government usually demonstrates much greater ability in aiding expansion of credit than in putting on the brakes at the right time to prevent undue inflation by restraining and contracting credit.

Central banks show that of all the central banks at present existing there are only four whose stock is owned by the government."

Paper Making Progresses From Art to an Industry

The early process of paper making consisted of beating or grinding cellulosic material in water until the fibers were completely separated and then straining the fibers out of the water by means of a flat screen.

The development of newspapers, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, has been attributed to many things, such as the human thirst for knowledge and the spread of literacy.

Whole Ship Crews Wiped Out by Bubonic Plague

Rats like the warm holds and abundant food of ships so well they are constantly trying to stow away when a ship is docked, says a writer in the Washington Post.

A rat is an unwelcome visitor anywhere, and especially on ships, for he makes his nest in precious silks and other valuable cargo and carries one of man's most deadly diseases—bubonic plague.
