Following an illness of several days with flu and pneumonia, Mrs. Jim Haley died at her home in Dryden last Saturday afternoon about four o'clock.

Gertrude Musgrave Haley was born in Eagle Pass, Texas, on August 18, 1891. She was of a pioneer Texas family and most of her life was spent in this section of the country. On April 18, 1908, she was united in marriage to James L. They will make their home on the Prosser-Brown ranch. The many friends of the popular couple join in wishing them all happiness and prosperity.

NOTICE!

Mohair Growers Attention:

George T. Willingmyre, Washington, D. C., of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, who is in charge of wool and mohair standards and R. E. Taylor, chairman of the mohair standards committee of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas, are calling a meeting of mohair growers at Kerrville, Texas, January 16, 1929, to take up the establishment of standard grades for mohair by the United States Department of Agriculture.

This meeting will be of great interest to mohair growers and the Times hopes that as many ranchmen as can possibly do so will go from Terrell county to attend the meeting.

BASKETBALL GAMES

With the arrival of the Fort Davis basketball team for two game inter-school tournament, the Sanderson High School boys will officially open the season on their own court.

Several weeks of steady practice on an outside court under the watchful eye of coach Thad Murley have toughened the home boys until they await with bated breath the visiting delegation.

The games will be played on the outdoor court on the high school grounds at nine o'clock Saturday morning and at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. The games will be free.

Lewis H. Lemons left last Saturday for San Antonio where he will remain for sometime for medical treatment. His place at the bank is being filled by Mr. John D. Dixon of El Paso.

Jess Roberts bought from E. Schwabe 250 nannies and some billies. They are the Earwood goats, which are supposed to be the best stock in the state.

Present Petition to Legislature

Attorney Al E. Creigh Jr., County Judge G. J. Henshaw, and W. J. Banner have been in Austin this week, where they met with the members of the Legislature. They presented a petition to the Legislature protesting the proposed movement to take a part of Terrell, Pecos, and Crockett counties and put it in a new county with Iraan as the county seat.

Several of our citizens met with citizens from Crockett and with Pecos county citizens in a meeting at Ft. Stockton last week. At this meeting a strong protest was made and the disadvantages to the counties and to the landowners in the area affected were brought out. Almost all the landowners in the part of Terrell county affected not only protested the creation but state they are strictly opposed to it.

An interested populace are anxiously awaiting news from Austin as to the outcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kerr are the proud parents of a daughter born to them in El Paso on Thursday, January 10.

"How Is Your Sense of Hearing?" will be the sermon topic at 7:30 p. m. Lots of folks have trouble with their hearing. But folks with keen as well as dull ears ought to enjoy this sermon.

What Accounts Are Profitable

Contrary to general opinion, banks do not make 6 per cent profit on each deposit made in a checking account. A general average of profit is 4 per cent and from all deposits 15 per cent must be deducted as a cash reserve.

In banking circles, it is generally accepted as truth that accounts whose balance falls below $200 are an expense to the bank.

In view of this, our service fee of 50c per month for accounts whose balance falls below $50.00 is just and reasonable.

Sanderson State Bank
Sanderson, Texas

Mrs. T. D. McKinney and daughter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Grigsby.

County Judge G. J. Henshaw left Monday night for Austin where he will remain for several days on business.

25 Tablets DIXIE FEVER AND PAIN TABLETS

The whole world, including the oft-abused younger generation, is growing better. The young people of today are much wiser and more serious than they ever were before.

Overcrowded Lives One of the Greatest Menaces to the American Home

By REV. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK (Baptist), New York.

ONE of our most important modern problems comes from the fact that we have an outer world of multiplying complications trying to crowd into a day that will not grow longer, and into a capacity to pay attention that will not expand.

As a result we live cluttered lives, frequently with lovely and excellent things pushed out and things about which we do not care entering. This is the secret of failure in thousands of American homes, many going to pieces because love and romance are crowded out.

The schedule, that tyrant of modern life that tells us what we must be doing every half hour for weeks ahead, wrecks our homes, the husband and wife having different schedules, and both forgetting to save the situation by scheduling time with each other.

Materialistic atheism and beastliness are two kinds of religion, but most irreligious persons are neither atheistic nor beastly, and merely have allowed their time and thought to be pre-engaged.

Nation's Business Standing By to Assist in Stabilization of Agriculture

By WILLIAM BUTTERWORTH, President U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The throes of depression in which some branch of farming finds itself are merely growing pains caused by the increasing efficiency and magnitude of modern production. It is as much the concern of business as to agriculture itself, that agriculture be prosperous.

Business, recognizing and subscribing to the principles of interdependence of agriculture and other industry, has not been content to stop there. It has translated that recognition into action.

The tendency to write a "blanket prescription" for all agricultural groups is the only issue I would take with so-called "farm relief," for the problems which affect the cranberry growers of New Jersey would have little or no bearing on the problems of farmers growing wheat for export.

Something has happened to agriculture and to our manufacturers. It is the working of a new industrial revolution. The truth is that many of the sore spots in American industry today are growing pains incident to an almost unbelievable increase in the efficiency of production.

Trial Engagements Among Remedies for the Present High Divorce Rate

By DR. BENJAMIN R. ANDREWS, Columbia University.

Trial engagements, instead of trial marriages, democracy in dealing with the financial affairs of the family, a more exact appraisal of the services rendered by the housewife and a scientific study of the causes of family disruption are among remedies for the high divorce rate.

The American urban family is passing through a period of readjustment and the remarkable fact is that in so great a majority of cases it survives intact rather than it frequently is broken up in the divorce court.

The months immediately preceding marriage are a crucial time, when the couple should examine carefully the cost of living and their assured income, at the same time laying out a financial program. If they find that they can come to a perfect agreement on this they can look ahead with more certainty to a successful arrangement of family affairs.

If he says enthusiastically, "Good for you," she can be sure she's got a prize. If he says "Woman's place is in the home" or "Think what people will think about me," she has uncovered a weakness in his character.

Organized Labor Making Substantial Progress Toward Five-Day Working Week

By WILLIAM GREEN, President A. F. of L.

Substantial progress has been made towards achieving labor's goal of the five-day week and it is a necessary accompaniment of the increasing use of machines and mechanical power.

Five hundred and fourteen local unions report that their members are now working a five-day 40-hour week. A total of 165,029 members of organized labor have won this new advance in shorter working hours.

These gains, made almost entirely since the federation announced its five-day week policy at the Detroit convention two years ago, prove the establishment of the five-day week is both practicable and possible.

Modern Youth Compares Favorably With Any Generation That Has Preceded It

By BISHOP WILLIAM O. SHEPARD (Methodist Episcopal).

The whole world, including the oft-abused younger generation, is growing better. The young people of today are much wiser and more serious than they ever were before.

I have three sons, and it is no secret to me that they are better men than I was when I was their age. In fact, it is a good world and getting better every day.

Young Lady's Elbows No Longer A Hat Rack

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milk's Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember.

"Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milk's Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milk's Emulsion in the house and take it regularly.

"I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 5 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round.

"I mentioned your Emulsion to two doctors. They both admitted it was good, and no one knows better than I that it is not only good, but wonderful.

"You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milk's Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me.

Weed Fatal to Mosquitoes

Man has a valuable ally in his warfare against the mosquito in a humble aquatic plant that grows in many parts of the United States, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. According to Cornell University scientists, it not only prevents mosquito "wigglers" from growing to maturity but actually kills them.

"I Had a Bad Attack!"

Says Mr. Gunther: (Now He's Fit at 64)

"I AM 64 years of age and always physically fit. I never have a cold or suffer pain of any kind and I owe it all to PER-UNA." [Many thousands write grateful letters like this one.]

"I had a bad attack of la-grippe which left me in a run-down condition—lost considerable weight—had just about given up hope when a friend advised PER-UNA." [Such good advice has helped many to new health and vigor.]

STOCK TICKER GIVES NATION QUOTATIONS

Marvel of Accuracy Broadcasts Market News.

New York.—The turmoil which the visitor to the floor of the New York stock exchange sees on a busy day is not apparent in the operating rooms of the Western Union from where more than 5,000 stock exchange tickers in 230 cities, in 37 states and territories in this country and Canada are furnished with stock exchange quotations.

To one who has stood over a stock ticker and watched it unrelenting quotations hour after hour without the slightest falter or hesitation the question, "How does it do it?" presents itself. One is forced to marvel at the manner in which stock quotations appear in a steady procession as well as the almost uncanny accuracy of the quotations recorded.

The continuous performance of the stock ticker is due in great part to the employment of the old adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." The ticker service is so regulated, so carefully guarded that a break in the mechanical operation of a ticker is rare.

Stock quotations go to the operating rooms of the Western Union over the exchange's own tickers, which also supply the offices of exchange members in downtown New York city, direct from the floor of the "big board."

As the stock exchange ticker records the quotations at the telegraph company's office, the tape passes before a gong seated at a keyboard which resembles a typewriter keyboard. This operator merely types out the quotations as they are read from the exchange ticker tape.

To insure accuracy of all quotations, a ticker alongside of the sending operator records what has been sent and another employee compares this with what has been received over the stock exchange ticker.

"And Julia won't be alone, either," said I brilliantly. "She has her uncle—"

"She wouldn't be alone long, anyhow," observed Nancy, demurely.

A faint flush mounted to Peter's serene brow, but he offered no rebuke. So we all smiled with highly spontaneous cheerfulness, and he observed modestly:

"Well, I'm not likely to start anything I can't finish!" Nancy snorted.

But here came a fortunate interruption. Outside, a motor rolled up to the curb, and in walked Mr. Darrow, wearing a portentous expression; something important was impending, to bring him to the shop at this hour. Being one of the employees he spoke to, I said, careful, however, not to be too forward or unconventional:

"Good morning."

He admitted my existence, but not Peter's nor Nancy's.

"Good morning, Mr. Darrow," said Nancy, sweetly. "Isn't it lovely out so early?"

"Delightful, indeed," murmured Mr. Darrow, with slightly uncertain overcordiality.

"You don't know me," said Nancy. "I am Miss Burton. Miss Wilkes is kindly giving me special training to become Miss Fuller's private secretary. This is my brother."

"Ah-h-h!" observed Darrow. "Back are you, Burton?"

"Yes, sir, assured Peter. Then, emboldened by our having survived Nancy's coup, he added: "I got a full set of the broadsides. Mr. Darrow; at a bargain."

"Ah!" observed Mr. Darrow. "You might come and tell me about it."

"He's a perfect dear, but he needs a lot of help!" sighed Nancy, viewing the retreating forms of the two gentlemen.

"Mr. Darrow needs help?"

"All men do, but I was referring to Peter. He's going to marry Julia."

"Is he?"

"Well, can't you see that? Is it always necessary to say everything right out? Aren't you glad?"

"If it proves to be true, I shall be very glad."

"Especially because you helped make it happen. Of course I did most of it; but you certainly helped."

"Do tell me how you did most of it, Nancy?" I begged.

"Well," began Nancy, with intense satisfaction. "The first thing we were at Normandy terrace, the most terrible noise woke me up. It was Peter singing in his sleep; he does that sometimes, when he's very tired. I knew that trip to Richmond and the fuss about Malvina and his worry about me had just worn him out, and I certainly felt the pangs of remorse. But if he had gone on, Ernesto would have put us on the street; so I went to the keyhole and moaned like a banshee until he turned over very loud and was quiet. But that was not being a love song, and a slushy one at that! Peter—fancy! Then first thing next morning, he nearly swooned when he saw the paper, and tried to explain it by just mentioning casually that 'the young lady who fainted in the shop yesterday lives downstairs!'"

"You thought there was more to it than that?"

"Rather, when I heard that that young lady wanted Virginia books, that her grandfather collected them, that he was attacked in the law-book alcove; especially when I remembered that my old friend Brandon Tower had been after a book in Peter's suitcase which was an old Virginia law book. I couldn't relate all these facts, I admit, until dear Daisy Abbott helped me. She caught me in the hall one day, and chattered lovingly, and asked me quite incidentally how Peter had met Miss Grosvenor before!"

"She had detective aspirations. I'll tell you about them, some time."

"She had matrimonial aspirations, too. I fixed them. I'll tell you how, some time."

"I told Julia about my elopement, so she would never be surprised at hearing of it indirectly, or think it was at all important, or that I cared a bit for him, ever. And she said I was a good sister, and rewarded me."

But here even Nancy had to stop a minute. Mr. Case arrived as vanguard of the staff, greeting us affably and passing on to his office with all the pleasant courtesy which had never departed him during that past trying week, except once when old associations had been too poignantly aroused.

"Gees, gotta?" murmured Nancy. "Some would say dull, but I say good."

"Correct," I affirmed. "How did Julia reward you?"

"She lent me this to bring here today," answered Nancy.

From her pocket she drew a small copper plaque, which she laid on my desk just as Captain Ashland, who had the moment before stepped out of a taxi, appeared in the doorway. One look, and with a shriek I bounded toward him, brandishing the plaque.

"The original!" I cried. "Colfax's own copperplate!"

He seized it, stared at it speechless.

"I say!" he ejaculated finally. "Yes, here's the circled serpent quite in form . . . and the ship . . . and the pillars . . . and the instruments. Where did you get this?"

"I got it!" announced Nancy, loud and clear; "I got it out of the little sewing-table in Julia Grosvenor's . . . I mean Julia Harrington's . . . house."

I glanced nervously at the captain, sorry for the allusion, in his presence, to the Grosvenor mystery; but to my amazement, he looked more interested than ever. I stammered:

"Out of the sewing-table? But it was a dummy; it didn't open—"

"That's what everybody thought," returned Nancy, ignoring the captain temporarily, for it was no time to explain to him about sewing-tables; "but Julia's mother must have discovered otherwise. And I suspected that table all along, myself; it was so curious and striking. Julia thinks her mother probably hid the copperplate there to safeguard her copy of the bookplate—that is, so that her copy would never be shown up by some engraved one being struck from the copperplate; she must have realized that, with everybody thinking the table was a dummy, the copperplate would almost certainly never be disturbed, especially if she hid the key, too. I tried the sewing table yesterday after I'd tried Julia's boxes, and given her the chance she wanted to talk to you and Peter. And there was this copperplate, all carefully packed into the little drawer, so it would never rattle, with this paper!"

Dramatically she produced an old, stained, yellow sheet. Bending over her head, she, the captain and I deciphered the following legend:

"To Dr. Charles Grosvenor
from Hugh Colfax,
this bookplate, in profound gratitude in his peaceful home, may he recall the great days of the Macedonian and the Esmeralda."

This was pure Greek to me, but the captain started back in amazed recollection.

"The Esmeralda?" he cried. "Why, that ship's one of the most famous prizes in England's naval history! She was captured off Callao by the British fleet that went to the aid of the revolutionists of Chile in 1820. We've got it at last, I believe! Colfax's son must have been there!"

"He was?" I cried. "Never mind how I know; that can wait. But afterward he fell a victim to yellow fever, and his life was saved by Doctor Grosvenor, then an American naval surgeon. Though just how he happened to be on the spot I don't know—"

"I do!" broke in Nancy, determinedly. "Julia told me. That ship on the bookplate is the Macedonian, the doctor's ship, which was on a voyage and lying off Callao at the time of the action between the Esmeralda and the British fleet."

"But," I objected—I had been examining the copperplate closely again—"the Macedonian was a very famous American ship. Nancy, and Captain Ashland says this is a British-built frigate—Oh, my gosh!"

"Just too late I perceived that my wonderful memory had not been quite wonderful enough. The sincerity of

"The bookplate!" sighed Nancy, picking up the copper plaque regretfully.

"I haven't," said the captain.

"How so?" she asked.

"Because I've really just begun on account of it. It had great influence, you see, in forming my decision to stay here."

"Here?"

"Yes, I'm staying indefinitely. My uncle always urged me to come, but my first morning here I wasn't very keen on it, I must admit. I felt put off a bit; safer in the war, what? But then you—and Miss Fuller, of course—drew my attention to—the bookplate, and so I've decided to stay and help in the business on this side. I telephoned my uncle my decision last night and I must be off now to see him, for he said he'd be here early to welcome me. I believe I'll have time to learn the business and do some other things I want to, now that Almy says he's through with me."

"Mr. Almy is through with you?" I ejaculated. "Why, what do you mean Captain Ashland? You weren't helping solve the Grosvenor mystery, all this time? And I never knew it!"

"Helping?" repeated the captain, dazedly. "I say, were you in it, too? I had no idea!"

"Oh, I didn't do much," I demurred feebly.

"Nor I! Just made a nuisance of myself soothing my uncle, and begging for tea, and insisting on an original for that copy of the bookplate, and what not."

"See here," said I, severely; "how long has Mr. Almy known, anyhow, that that book was an object of interest to the Grosvenor connection?"

The captain chuckled delightedly.

"Good joke on all of us, what? Why, you know, his interest in the case started when he heard Professor Harrington was among those present; of course, he knew about him personally, but he also remembered that the police had been called in when Harrington's library was robbed, some years back. So he reads that case over, to refresh his mind; and then, when he walks into my uncle's office, last Monday noon, there's one of the very books that was stolen, lying on the desk! And then, with all the Grosvenor clan rushing hither and yon for Virginians, the rest was easy."

"Oh, was it?" said I.

"Of course it was, when he had so much help from experts!"

"Mr. Almy," observed Nancy, irrelevantly, "told me one day to take care of my fine brother. So I did."

"We were puppets in his hands!" I murmured.

"Positive puppets," beamed the captain. "Going up, are you, Miss Burton? Do tell me how you took care of your brother?"

So young England and young America departed, each with a prize; or perhaps America had two, for Nancy bore off the Colfax copperplate.

"Miss Fuller, you seen the paper this mawnin'?" A dark hand held out Daily Snapshots. "Bookshop Mystery," ran the largest caption; "Clew's Denouement," above an enlarged reproduction of the spring-lance.

"Is that there a clew, Miss Fuller?" inquired Ulysses, indicating the instrument.

"Yes, Ulysses." With sudden determination I resolved to ask him one question; he seemed communicative, for him. "Have you ever seen Miss Harrington, too? I mean, as well as her grandfather?"

"No," didn't know her 'I all," denied Ulysses. "We-all knew Professor Harrington, of course."

"You mean, down in Virginia."

Fortune favored the bold. Ulysses proffered a single confidence:

"Yas'm; my old father, he lived with the Harringtons. They had elegant big white house all full of red-satin furniture. I loves grand furniture."

Then he was gone with his Snapshots, leaving me with my thoughts and catalogue proof, which lasted me until late that afternoon, when, true to form, Mr. Roberts interrupted on the telephone.

"Are you busy?"

"No," I answered, also true to form.

Then I was kindly to come to Mr. Darrow's office. Not once before in nine years had I been summoned to the presence. I wondered why Mr. Darrow should take the trouble to fire me personally, but marched into his cherrywood headquarters and faced him and Mr. Roberts with all the composure I could muster.

"Ah! Miss Fuller," said Mr. Darrow, as if he wasn't quite sure. "Sit down, now, in reference to that bookplate—You know what I mean?"

"I think so," I murmured.

"Miss Fuller showed considerable intelligence in that connection," interrupted Mr. Roberts.

"All Almy's efforts seem to have been crowned with success," said Mr. Darrow, hastily. "I have been glad to exert my poor influence to obtain for him the vacation he has long desired to spend with his worthy aged parents on their picturesque Maine island. I would not see one who has exerted himself in behalf of the cause of justice and my house remain unwarded."

"Then don't forget Ulysses!" said I. And, swearing both my astonished hearers to secrecy, I outlined Ulysses' epic of devotion, for such his whole course of conduct during the previous week had to be accounted. Without analyzing too closely the ethical aspects of his delay in identifying Mr. Grosvenor, it could be seen that it had won a certain advantage for Julia, by giving Ulysses time to sound Mr. Case and win his friendship for Mary Grosvenor's daughter. For he knew that Julia was also the daughter of Miles Harrington, without doubt. If the Harringtons had been his father's family, it, thirty—old years before,

CUPID'S ACTIVITY CRAMPED BY COLD

Fewer Single Girls Found in Warmer Cities.

Madison, Wis.—Cold weather cramps the activity of Cupid. More girls between fifteen and twenty-four years of age living in warm climates get married than girls of the same class in colder temperature cities, a survey submitted in the school of commerce at the University of Wisconsin reveals.

A correlation between temperatures and wedding bells is found. The warmer the climate the better chance a girl has to get married. In twelve southern cities of 100,000 or more population, having annual mean temperatures ranging from 59 to 69 degrees, 27 per cent of the native white women are single, the study finds.

In twelve northern cities of the same class, on the other hand, 33 per cent of the women are single, the annual mean temperature in these cities ranging from 45 to 48 degrees. Smaller cities with populations between 25,000 and 100,000, however, do not show such a high correlation between temperatures and marriages.

In fifteen warm cities of this class, with annual temperatures running from 60 to 70 degrees, the percentage of single women is 23. In fifteen colder cities of this class, with annual mean temperature from 38 to 48 degrees, 39 per cent of the women are single.

The statistics for the survey are based on the 1920 census report. For the temperatures the United States weather bureau, the World almanac, and Climatology of the United States were used.

The percentages necessarily had to be corrected when the percentage of men exceeded the percentage of women or vice versa, the survey states.

Of the 144 cities included in the survey, Superior, Wis., had the lowest annual mean temperature, 38 degrees. In that city 37.5 per cent of the native white females are single. The highest mean annual temperature was that of Tampa, Fla., 72 degrees. In that city, 20.4 per cent of the native white women are single. This shows a difference of 16.9 per cent between the coldest and warmest city.

Public as Judge of Art Displays Expert Taste

Washington.—The public is about as good a judge of paintings as artists and professional art critics, directors of the noted Corcoran Art gallery of Washington have found out.

The Corcoran gallery, at its biennial exhibitions of contemporary American oil paintings, conducted a public referendum among the visitors to the exhibition on their choice as the best painting. A painting by Carl Melchers of New York, called "A Native of Virginia," was selected. It shows an old country woman leaning on a grubbing hoe.

Melchers, in previous exhibitions, has won second, third and fourth respectively, in choices made by a jury of leading artists and critics of the country.

C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the gallery, said the picture unquestionably was one of the most noted in the exhibition. A $200 prize went to the artist.

Melchers was born in Detroit in 1890 and has gained considerable renown, both in the United States and in foreign countries. He has been awarded decorations by Bavaria, France and Germany for his paintings.

Entomologists' Value Revealed by Institute

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The absent-minded professor who scampers after elusive butterflies and bugs with a net contributes much to the benefit of humanity.

Carnegie Institute of Technology here has more than 1,500,000 specimens of bugs, beetles, etc., and officials point out that study of myriad insects, gathered from near and far, reveals which is beneficial to mankind, and discloses how to rid infested places of harmful insects.

Pittsburgh is the home of four outstanding figures in the entomological world. Dr. W. J. Holland, director emeritus of Carnegie museum, has a personal collection of specimens gathered from the four corners of the earth. Dr. Hugo Kahl, a native of Sweden, presides over the museum's collection. Associated with him are two others—H. G. Klages and B. Krautwurm, both well-known entomologists.

Ancient Gothic Ruins Reveal Old Metropolis

Bactehisaral, Crimea.—A stretching ruins of a great city of unknown origin have been discovered in the valley of Esklermen in the very heart of the Crimean peninsula.

The ruins are said to extend more than two miles, and consist of high fortress walls, hundreds of homes hewed out of rocks and six great cave temples, embellished with ancient frescoes. Russian archeologists said the ruins were once the capital of the Goth's kingdom, known in history as the city of Feodora, founded during the reign of Justinian the Great.

PETER GNOME

Peter GNOME had called the moon an orange moon—which it did look like, and he had made Mr. Moon quite angry.

"Dear me, Mr. Moon, I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. I was paying you quite a compliment.

"I thought you were so interesting looking. And I didn't think I was talking behind your back, for I wouldn't talk behind any creature's back.

"There is nothing that I hate more than that, so never do it.

Poor Peter GNOME was really terribly upset. He had had no idea the Moon would act that way.

All the gnomes stood around and tried to comfort him and Mr. Moon looked as though he were going to cry.

He looked really as though he would shed orange tears, for he was an orange looking moon.

Oh dear, he had been made so unhappy and now maybe the gnomes wouldn't want him at their parties.

Why had he become angry with Peter? He was so sorry.

"Peter," he said, "I am so sorry that I hurt your feelings and became angry.

"I don't know what was the matter with me. You know there are just some times that we seem to feel touchy and get hurt easily.

"You see I felt you thought I was just like an orange.

"And that made me angry. The moon looking like an orange! And then I thought maybe other people would think so too and would take me down from the sky and squeeze me for orange juice.

"That made me very worried.

"And then I began to have more sense and realize you could not have meant that.

"There have been so many times people have been out of oranges—I've peeped in windows and have seen and heard them—and they never got me or wanted me for that.

"And I knew there was nothing to worry about, but I just had got upset."

"Dear me," laughed Peter GNOME, who now felt better, and felt everything would be straightened out between the moon and himself, "I merely meant you wore an orange robe and so looked something of the color of an orange.

Oklahoma Girl Strong as Boy

"Louise Allee was fretful, nervous and all run-down from whooping cough," says Mrs. F. J. Kolar, 1739 West 22nd St., Oklahoma City, Okla.

"The little I could force her to eat wouldn't ever digest. She became underweight, sallow and weak.

"Then I decided to try California Fig Syrup, and the results surprised me. Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating so she got to be a pest at the table, always asking us to pass things. Her weight increased, her color improved and she began to romp and play again like other children.

Now she's the picture of health, and strong as a boy."

Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and bowels of the souring waste that is keeping her half sick, bilious, sallow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

Large, Generous Sample of Old Time Remedy Sent Free to Every Reader of This Article

More than forty years ago, in a small way, good old Pastor Koenig began the manufacture of Pastor Koenig's Nerve, a remedy recommended for the relief of nervousness, epilepsy, sleeplessness and kindred ailments. The remedy was made after the formula of old German doctors. The sales were small at first, but soon increased, and another factory was added to meet the increasing demand. Today there are Koenig factories in the old world and Pastor Koenig's Nerve is not only sold throughout the United States but in every land and clime.

The manufacturers want every reader of this free offer to try the old remedy at their expense. They will send a large, generous sample to every one who mentions this article.

Try it and be convinced. It will only cost you a postal to write for the large, generous sample seeking market. Address: Koenig Medicine Co., 104 North Wells Street, Chicago, Illinois. Kindly mention your local paper.

Lecturer Rather "Had" Hard-Boiled Citizen

A lecturer on art spoke before a group of men in an industrial city, urging upon them the duty of trying to put more beauty into their surroundings. At the close of the talk, a leading citizen came up to have a few words with the lecturer.

"I enjoyed your remarks," he said, "though I didn't agree with you. The fact is that we have no time here for beauty. The prosperity of this town is due to hard-boiled, practical men."

"Yet," retorted the lecturer, smiling, "you yourself are seeking beauty, according to your lights. You may not have found it, but I know you are aiming at what you think makes for greater attractiveness."

"No, you're wrong," insisted the hard-boiled man. "I'm not interested in beauty."

"Then," said the lecturer, "if you don't mind my being so personal, will you please tell me why you have dyed your whiskers?"

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the drug-gist can assure you is made with CASCARETS. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascariate the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repent on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drugstore has them.

City Holds Tercentenary

In celebration of its 300 years of existence as a royal burgh, the ancient city of Dornoch, Scotland, recently held a descriptive pageant and other festivities. A reproduction of the blessing of the fishermen's nets by an abbey of the Sixth century, a re-enacting of the Battle of Embo in the Eleventh century, and a repulse of the pillaging Danes by William, earl of Sutherland, were among the many tableaux. In the last of these the role of the Danish leader was played by the duchess of Sutherland. Other notables who took part included Lady Londonderry, Lady Edinam, Lord Chaplin, and Miss Elizabeth Leveson-Gower, who is the daughter of the present heir to the dukedom of Sutherland.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would become overheated and the pistons refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather, a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

Hose connections may also need replacement after long service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a thorough, competent job at a fair price.
