When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a larative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. MEN ARE SAFER THAN WOMEN AS DRIVERS

Facts Established During Year's Tests.

Washington.-The perennial family argument as to whether man or woman drivers get into more automobile accidents can at last be backed up with some facts and figures that indicate sex differences.

Records of man and woman taxicab drivers in a Pennsylvania city have been watched for an entire year by Dr. Morris Viteles and Helen M. Gardner of the University of Pennsylvania.

The results, reported in the Personnel Journal, show that the woman taxi drivers were responsible for three times as many accidents as men, though, judging by claims following accidents, the women were more successful in keeping out of serious

These men and women operated the same kind of car and all equipment was regularly overhauled. Both drove in stormy weather and in the same traffic conditions.

Women Were Less Experienced.

The men, however, were more experienced, on the whole, than the women, for some of the women were not experienced drivers when hired, but were given a thorough course of training and immediately placed on portant psychological factor, but the taxicab company records could not be kept in such detail as to show whether the new driver offsets inexience with excessive caution or whether this caution oversteps the mark and leads to an excessive number of cases of collisions.

About 2,000 men drivers were on the employment rolls at a time and about forty women. The men drove 28,431,719 miles in the year and had 7,311 accidents. The women drove 348,979 miles and had 268 accidents. In terms of revenue the women had three and one-half times as many accidents per thousand dollars as the

Women Dodge Accident Claims,

A special study of accident costs in one representative month abowed that there were 191 claims in the accidents of man drivers and four claims in cases involving woman drivers. The claims indicate that women got into less serious mixups than the men, for the total cost of claims against men was $14,605, as compared with $75 against woman drivers.

The psychologists conclude that the figures from the study "favor the point of view that the present generation of woman drivers is more susceptible to accidents than the present generation of man drivers."

They also state: "The extent to which this is the result of relative inexperience in driving or of a sexdetermined difference in susceptibility to accidents in traffic cannot be finally determined from an examination of the present data. The fact, This brick-red-carmine color has been however, that a sampling of women named "cacto-rubin," and is produced suffer more accidents when driving

Man at Time's Crossroad; Future Must Be INDIAN MAP ONLY Antlike or Godlike

By ALFRED J. LOTKA, Life Insurance Statistician.

ANKIND has come to a fork in the road, one way leading to a civilization of antlike beings and the other to a society of more wise and equal men. Down one fork the human race will become patterned after the model of the anthill or the beehive, with a large number of "workers" of stunted mental growth supporting and supported by a small aristocracy of best minds set aside for the creative function-creative, that is, in the spiritual sphere.

This thought may be displeasing, but it would not be the first time that evolution had worked out along the path of degeneration, and evoution will have its way whether we like it or not.

This is the other fork in the road:

Mass production, rightly conducted, should yield us a surplus of leisure. What is needed is a better investment of our collective leisure. The proper employment of our collective leisure, which will extend itself as time goes on, will be the implement of our salvation, and we must rely upon wisdom to point the way. The harassing fact is that while knowledge has enormously accumulated in recent years we are still on the bottom rung of the ladder of wisdom, which has to do with the ends of life and not with the means to any ends.

In the technique of elaborating schemes and human conduct we stand today essentially where science stood in the Middle ages: We are stuck in the morass of authority worship.

Home Has Final Responsibility for Upbringing of the Rising Generation

By F. D. BOYNTON, Superintendent of Schools, Ithaca, N. Y.

If there is anything wrong with the rising generation, the parents, more than anybody else or anything else, are responsible. The home can't put religious and moral training into the hands of the church and shirk from the duty itself. The home has the final responsibility. The school and church are merely supplementary institutions.

If there is any juvenile delinquency I don't expect any abatement until the fathers associate more with their sons and until the mothers care more for that delightful companionship of carrying a young girl nto womanhood than carrying home a hooby prize from a whist party. Youth wants sympathy and intelligent understanding more than anything else.

To belittle the rising generation has become an unthinking fad with certain classes today. If you don't believe the rising generation is a cleaner one, or straighter thinking one, look up the files of the newspa pers of this city of 50 years ago and see what happened then.

Our women have never been so attractive or so well-behaved as they are today. They don't spend as much for toilet accessories as men do for

Advancement of Science Important Factor in sity after more than twenty years Betterment of Mankind

By DR. S. PARKS CADMAN, New York.

One hundred and twenty years ago Charles Darwin was born in my native county town. While he lived he dominated the world of learning, and when he died in 1882 they placed his dust in Westminster abbey by the side of that of Sir Isaac Newton. The one man established order in the place of chaos, by his hypothesis or gravitation; the other by his discovery of the law of natural selection established a firm basis for the future study of nature. Both these achievements were of the first rank. far surpassing those of armed conquests, and when the men who represented them and others like them are among us, we do well to pay them

Personally, I look to the advancement of science for the general benefit of mankind, far more than I do to political legislation, and I also strongly deprecate the useless and needless warfare between faith and knowledge. I am glad to say it is now showing signs of a truce, and when scientists will stop trying to be theologians, and theologians who continually dissect a bug will stop trying to be scientists, we may attain a permanent peace.

Delving Into History Important in Its Results on Every-Day Problems

By DR. J. H. ROBINSON, President American Historical Association.

Historical research is coming to be something useful to apply to every day life and to the doings of politicians. Therein is the purpose of the $1,000,000 which the association plans to raise for historical research. The real significance of history is a new way of seeing how things really are by following the process by which they have come about. Our churches, schools, senates, courts, diplomats and the workings of lage. our business system must be explained by a knowledge of their coming

As time goes on the fund would not be applied exclusively, perhaps not even chiefly, to historical research in the narrower sense of accumulating new information.

A fuller knowledge of the past doings of politicians would tend to make our oversight of them more exacting.

Employer's Concern With Health and Consequent Efficiency of Employee

By DR. J. R. GARNER, Railroad Surgeon,

Domestic affairs and personal health of employees affect efficiency. The domestic life of a man has a far-reaching influence on his efficiency and the influences are without number and apply with varying degree of force to different individuals.

The idea among young employees seems to be that their employer has no right to criticize their actions after they have spent a certain amount of time in office or shop. One can hardly imagine a more erroneous idea than this, for during the time the employee is free from duty he must secure sufficient exercise and an adequate amount of rest to render himself fit for a proper performance of his duties on the fol-

Gold-Lined Tomb Built for Argentine Family

Buenos Aires .- Simple and unpretentious in its exterior appearance, one family vault in the Chacarita cemetery holds a vast store of wealth. It is completely lined with gold and cost approximately 1,000,000 pesos ($420,000). It also contains a small statue of a woman, a work of Bitolfi, said to have cost 70,000 pesos. Frescos of inestimable value adorn the upper part of the golden walls. The vault was constructed 19 years ago by Angel Roverano. Designs which were being worked out in the floor in small gold blocks were never completed, because the will of Roverano provided that the tomb must be closed on the death of his only surviving relative, a brother, who died several years ago.

"Such as this. Stanley and I are a good deal alike in one respect. We're both of us sick of business. He's going to retire, and so am I."

"You're going to leave the office?" "That's right. Why should I go on working at a job I hate now that I'm going to have a steady income?

Waterman considered. "All right." ne said. "Probably it's just as well. The less I see of you in the future the safer it will be for both of us. Now listen to this, I saw Miss Colby this morning. It should have become fairly obvious by now that Jim Stanley's conception of Rollin Waterman as simple, direct. ingenuous sportsmas, had many points not consonant with the truth. tectives whom he called in had been unable to trace her.

The Waterman-Colby wedding was what is called a Society event. That is to say, it took place in St. Bartholomew's church under the auspices of the bishop of the diocese and the rector of the parish, harmonized by the boy choir, beautified by the ritual of the church, and witnessed by an assembly of persons whose names were prominent in the social and business life of the city.

It was witnessed also by Nina Morgan. She insisted on having a card of admittance, and though her presence was not noted by any other of the hundreds who were in the church she was to the bridegroom the most conspicuous person there. Despite all his polse, as he stood at the altar with Doris at his side, he felt like a man who rather expects to be shot in the back at any moment. But though Nina's presence was noted by no one inside the church, with the distinguished exception of the bridegroom, it was distinctly observed by one of the numerous individuals who crowded the sidewalk outside the door to watch the wedding party as it came from the church.

Frank Wilson was not invited to less, as far as he could go without a the least, interested when he saw watch-chain and tossed it across the Nina come out. He had noted with samed them. However, there it was table. Nina wrote briefly upon the surprise the withdrawal of that young Wilson made up his mind that it was woman from the office, but its exact significance he could not fathom. This event had occurred before the publication of the Waterman-Colby en gagement. That announcement had interested Wilson even more keenly n view of the continued absence of Miss Morgan, so that he made bold one day, shortly after, to speak to

Waterman about it. "Oh, yes." said Waterman, "she's gone for good." "May I ask if you dismissed her?"

nguired Wilson. "Oh, no," responded Waterman, got another job somewhere, I beleve. Glad she's gone. Been getting little careless lately." Now Wilson reflected to himself, as ne stood on the edge of the crowd that gathered about the striped awning that led from the portals of St. Bartholomew's to the curbing, and noted the exit of Nina amid the throng of wedding guests-knowing that the entrance to the church had been strictly by card-he reflected that the weddings of Wall Street business men are not commonly at-

> The wedding journey was brief, be in, ilmited to six weeks at Paim Beach on account, sald the society paragraphs, of the extensive business interests of the bridegroom. These business interests were practically in the hands of Wilson during these six wee'cs; that is to say they were man aged precisely as Stanley would have mana d them had he been there. Upon Waterman's return he tried to replace Wilson as promptly as possible, but the men whom he tried out as Wilson's successors turned out to be somewhat unsatisfactory, ever by Waterman's not altogether elevated standards. Consequently Wilson held

At heart a gambler, it was not long before he had pretty thoroughly identified the interests f the business with his own personal commitments in the Street. a thing which had been impossible as ong as Stanley had remained at the helm. It is true that in those days Waterman had managed to involve ilmself in various speculative enter orises which turned out badly, but he; remained his own. The position of the firm was in no way affected by them. Now was different.

Wilson hac ventured to file various espectful protests from time to time is he noted the course which events were taking. His objections had been waved aside-pleasantly at first, but finally in a way which silenced him.

"Wilson, said Waterman, on the occasion of his last protest, "I have kept you in the office to assist me. not advise me. If you're content with this arrangement, I shall be glad to have you stay until I can replace you. If not, you had better go at

Wilson accepted the rebuff and stayed. He thought vaguely that possibly his continued presence might in some way be useful to the absent Stanley. But there came a time when he felt that merely from the standpoint of self-protection he must get out. That moment came when he realized that Waterman's business foolbardiness had become something worse. He discovered that securities belonging to customers, and left in care of the firm for safekeeping, had been hypothecated by Waterman as collateral for certain speculative ventures of his own. This did not shock him, for by this time he thoroughly understood Waterman's characterthe wedding, but he went, none the but it surprised him. For the risks of this sort of thing were so great, so card of admission, and he was, to say pregnant with disaster, that he had not thought the man would have as-Wilson made up his mind that it was

"And why, may I ask?" inquired his aployer.

"I prefer not to go into that." "But my dear man, you know well that it will be most inconvenient for me if you quit like this. McKane has scarcely been here long enough to eart the ropes. In a month or six weeks you can go without inconvenlending me in the least, but now it will be a nuisance."

Insanity Not Often Caused by Overstudy

"It is a fallacy to believe that over ! study causes insanity. Overstudy like any mental overwork causes a state of exhaustion and brain fag. Too much study, which prevents the en joyable realities of play and recreation, will not cause a mental break down in a person who is not liable to insanity," states Dr. Alexander S Hershfield, Illinois state allenist. "It is admitted that among those students who devote too much time to learning and to making high grades there are many who are normal men tally. Mental disease and overstudy are common enough to be found to gether occasionally. A well-balanced boy or girl finds sports, friendships and sex of sufficient importance to act as an antidote to overstudy and

"In what particular, may I ask If you will be good enough to tell me?"
"Yes sir, I will. There have been in our possession for some time . large number of shares of the Canadian Pacific Raliway company belonging to Mr. John W Weeks, one of our customers. These shares have been used to finance the purchase by this firm of a targe block of the common stock of the Eastern Oil company "

"Well, what of it?" "Nothing, if you do not see what I mean.

"I do not. You must be more explicit."

"I think you know perfectly well that no such operation has ever be fore been carried on in this office, at least not in my time. I think you know perfectly well that it is a thing that Mr. Stanley would never have countenan ed. *

"Are you done?"

"Yes, sir." "Then let me say this. This is no onger Mr. Stanley's business. I am responsible for the operation to which you object. I am accountable to Mr. Weeks for the stock of which you have spoken, and I shall meet my responsibility "

"Very good, sir," retorted Wilson, "Then I take it, it will suit your convenience if I leave on Saturday night?"

"Leave at once, if you like," "Very good, sir. I shall write you letter of which I shall keep a copy stating in detail my reasons for retiring."

"As you please."

So Wilson retired to the suite of of fices he had already engaged in a neighboring skyscraper for the conduct of the affairs of Stanley.

Now, when Waterman told Wilson he would hold himself responsible for the securities left in his care he meant exactly what he said. He had no feeling of dishonesty about it. He was using Mr. Weeks' property for his own purposes, it is true, but he would find a way to make good when the time came to do it. He found himself for the moment in one of his tight corners, and he was merely borrowing the C. P. stock to help him out of that corner. He had been in many tight corners before now-perhaps not as tight as this one-but he had always found a way out, and he would find a way out now. Mr. Weeks would not lose anything, and in the meantime would have assisted him. inv luntarily to be sure, to escape from this new dilemma.

As a husband Waterman was at first not unsuccessful. He devoted himself to pleasing his wife with an assidulty which, considering his innate selfishness, was extraordinary. But there came a time, some six months after his marriage, when his financial perplexities became so great that he had no longer attempted to conceal them from his wife. In fact, with some premeditation, he allowed her to guess

"What's the matter, Rollin?" sha said to him one night when they had returned to their Park avenue apartment after a dinner party. "You seem awfully down."

"Oh, nothing much," he answered. "I know better. Anything wrong in business?"

"Well, the fact is, I've got into deal which looked awfully good and does yet. But it's broadened out at much that I find I haven't quite the capital to swing it. If I had it would be all and more than I had hoped, but I can't get it. I shall have to sacridee everything that I've put into it."

"How much do you need?"

"Well, forty thousand dollars would see me through."

"Let me do it." "No, really, I don't want to drag you into my business affairs."

"But I insist. Besides, it's only temporary loan. It isn't as if I were saving good-by to the money. This will see you through, you say, and turn a losing venture into a profitable one. That's simple." "Well," be said feebly, and her check came to him next day.

What Waterman didn't tell Doris was the fact that the forty thousand dollars was needed to replace the Canadian Pacific stock which belonged to Mr. Weeks who had suddenly, and with entire tack of consideration, de manded the possession of his property. This he received, thanks to Doris check. Waterman met his responstbility to Weeks, as he had assured Wilson that he would. But his difficulties with reference to the Eastern Oil deal remained as great as before.

This was a fair example of the sort of thing that now became frequent in the Waterman bousehold. Waterman was too clever ever to ask his wife for money, but the time came when the technique which he employed in the Weeks matter grew a little threadbare.

It will have been observed that Doris was no fool. She admired her She had an affection for husband. him. If he did not thrill her as she had hoped and expected, she was not unreasonable. She felt, it is true, a vague disappointment, but she brough: her common sense to bear. She said to herself that ber romantic ideals had perhaps been based too much upon her youthful fancy, that perhaps there was really no such thing outside the world of fairy tales and dreams. At all events she could make a comparative success of her marriage. even if it turned out to be not exactly thrilling, and this she set herself to do. (TO DE CONTINUED.)

Belle Boyd Goes, Home

tery near Kilbourn, Wis. Over her grave stood a simple stone upon which was this inscription: "Belle Boyd, Confederate spy. Born in Virginia, Died in Wisconsin, Erected by a comrade." But now plans are under way to rebury her in the soil of her native state, in the South which she served so well. Belle Boyd's life span was a stormy balf-century. The story of her girlhood she tells in a book, "Belle Boyd in Camp and Prison," which she wrote while she was virtually an exile in England after the Civil war. She Days:

There is perhaps no tract of country in the world more lovely than the Valley of the Shenandoah. There no prettier or more peaceful village than Martinsburg, where I was born in 1844. According to the custom of my country, I was sent at twelve years of age to Mount Washington college, of which Mr. Staley, of whom I cherish a most grateful recollection, was the principal. At six-

The congress halls were nightly dignified by the presence of our ablest orators and statesmen. The salons of the and statesmen. The salons of the wealthy and the talented were filled to overflowing, the theaters were crowdmany years to come the daughters of the North and the South commingled in sisterly love and friendship.

Then she tells how Virginia replied to Lincoln's call for volunteers by a similar call for volunteers for Virginia. Both her mother's father and ber own father immediately enlisted in the Confederate army, her father tolning the Second Virginia regiment. Says Belle: "It was armed and equipped with a subscription raised by myself and other ladies of the valley. The corps was commanded by Colonel Nadenbush and belonged to that section of the Southern army, known as the 'Stonewall Brigade.' " Martinsburg being on the border the between the North and the South u soon felt the ravages of war and Belle's first service for the South was as a nurse in a hospital for Confederate soldiers in her home town When the Northern forces entered that town Belle came into immediate prominence by defying a Union captain who declared before leaving that she was an "independent rebel lady."

Belle Saves Her Home

Her attitude toward the invaders of Martinsburg resulted in the Federal troops determining to raise the Stars and Stripes over the Boyd home. Belle's mother declared that every member of her family would die be fore they would permit that, whereupon a soldier, who is said to have been intoxicated, struck her to the floor. He was promptly shot down by the daughter. In retaliation the soldiers threatened to burn the house but Belle hastened to the Union commander and by his orders the home was saved.

Soon afterwards Belle took advantage of the opportunity presented by her position within the Federal lines to begin ber activities as a spy. Her first attempt, however, was a fallure. One day, after having exercised her charms to wheedle military information from a Union officer, she en-

She was tried by court martial, found guilty. but after an imprisonment of several months was given her freedom through an exchange of prisoners. As a matter of fact, the record of her various arrests is none too clear. And for some mysterious reason she was repeatedly released although she was known to be a dangerous spy. Some of her exploits verge upon the legendary so that it is impossible to set down any complete record of her life as a spy with any assurance that it is accurate in every detail. About the only thing that is certain is that her spirit was never broken by any of her experiences and that she did more first-class defying of her captors than any other spy on record. Perhaps the highest tribute that was ever paid to her was the order of Secretary Stanton when she was arrested in Martinsburg to which she had returned in 1863. "Don't let her get near enough to anyone to talk," he directed, "she'll charm the heart out of his body."

Eventually she was imprisoned in Carroll prison in Washington, again placed on trial and sentenced to hard labor in Fitchburg prison. Later this sentence was commuted and she was released and sent South with orders never again to be found within the Federal lines. Some time later she took passage on a blockade runner captured by a Union vessel and Belle

There is some dispute as to the inter life of Harding and his wife. According to one account, Belle rejoined him in this country after President happiness together was short-lived and she divorced him. Another account says nothing about a divorce but states that he joined her in England after he was released and that he died there in 1869.

Takes to the Stage

At any rate the next that is beard of Belle Boyd is her entrance upon a theatrical career and her becoming the leading lady at the Academy of Music in New Orleans. Soon after-wards she married Col. John Swainston Hammond, but they soon drifted apart and were divorced. She married a third time, her last husband being Nathaniel R. High, son of a Toledo clergyman. High accompanied her upon her tours about the country as an actress and a lecturer and was with her when she came to Kilbourn, Wis., in 1900 to fill a theatrical engagement.

She fell ill there and died on June 11. She was buried in the Spring Grove cemetery there and for some time her grave was unmarked. Finally two members of the Woman's Relief corps in Kilbourn purchased a board on which was placed the following inscription: "One Flag, One Country. Marie Isabel High, Belle Boyd, Confederate Spy. Born May 9. 1843. Died June 11, 1900," Later a stone was purchased by W. A. Everman of Greenville, Miss., and that is the stone which now stands at the head of her grave. Each year at Memorial day members of the G. A. R. and the Woman's Relief corps decorate the grave as reverently as they do those of their own soldier dead. But if present plans are carried out that labor of love will no longer be necessary. For Belle Boyd is going home-back to her beloved Valley of the Shenandoah. And in the future her own people of the South will care for her grave and over it one day in each year will droop the Stars and bound for England. This ship was Bars, which she served so well so many years ago.

MAN THRIVES WITH

Surgical Marvel Performed in England.

London.-A man can live and thrive without a stomach, provided that not too many of the pancreatic glands are cut away. This has been proved by an operation of removing the stomach and stitching the upper part of the small intestine to the gullet, performed in the Batley hospital in Leeds and now reported in the British Medical

The man on whom the operation was carried out was in such a condition that the removal of the stomach gave him his only chance of life. The doctors decided to give him that chance, and cut away the stomach bit by bit until it was completely removed.

As some of the pancreatic glands could be saved, the patient was not without digestive juices and soon could take nourishment. After 24 hours he took some water, and the quantities were gradually increased. Then milk and tea were added and at the end of 10 days he could have as much food as he asked for. Solid food was taken at the end of a fortnight.

After a month the man was out of bed and eating ordinary food, though in small quantities and often. An Xray examination after five months showed that the operation was entirely successful, and at present the patient appears to be in good health and able to do a reasonable amount of work. He enjoys his food. The operation is regarded as a surgical marvel.

Gold Seekers Will Take Canoes in Air

New York.—Canoes as airplane equipment will be used for the first time next summer when the Dominion Explorers, Ltd., begin their projected four-year aerial gold exploration of the Canadian Northwest.

Capt. Charles Sutton, chief pilot, who came here to purchase three more cabin monoplanes for the explorers' caravan, told how preparatory work with four pontoon-fitted planes last summer demonstrated the advantage of taking canoes along for ready transportation on the lakes and streams, Captain Sutton plans to test canoecarrying under practical conditions here within two weeks. Another flying innovation is a special pontoon with which Sutton is having his planes equipped. With double bottoms built into them, the pontoous are provided with a longitudinal water-tight compartment as a double protection against puncture. Should one of the surfaces become damaged against a submerged rock in landing on the uncharted lakes and streams, the pontoon would fill only half full of water and be en-abled to take off again without emergency repair.

Greenwich Village Goes a-Calling in Pajamas

New York .- Making calls in pajamas is now a convenient commonplace in Greenville Village. Young couples get ready for bed and then put on their overcoats and sally forth to other attics and studio apartments for a midnight chat.

It's wholesome, healthful and as respectable as can be. Pajamas cover more of the anatomy than do evening gowns, and they conceal the figure rather than reveal it. They give wives that cozy, domestic look.

Pajama parties, formerly undertaken as a lark, are not infrequent now, nor are they considered fantastic, exotic or any of those things. They make a pleasant, comfortable way of dress. Light, colorful and fancy are pajamas, and the doctors approve them.

Rheumatism, headaches. liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness. sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take s tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your dlet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. BEARS' ADVENTURES

One day Billy and Brownle Bea went off on a hunting and seeking

They had a great deal of luck an came back to their cave with all sorts of good things to eat.

But the things they had found that they liked best, and which they had found only a short distance away, were what they had found in an old farmyard—the other side of the edge of the woods.

They had found a garbage pail! This they had dragged off for a distance, and they had found tins which had once held jam and old jare to be licked out, and many other dellcacies which bears do not often get. They scattered the old tins after they had left them quite, quite clean, and they didn't bother to pick anything up.

Then they heard the farmer. "I do believe that those bears wh live off in the caves in the woods have been here.

"They know just how to get at tins with their claws-and they love jam and sweet things."

Then he heard a rustle through the woods. "I believe they are there now

"I'll get a shot at them if I can." So he went for his gun. After all, the bears had only taken his garbage tins and garbage wasn't this town can a man find a game that's such a tremendous thing to steal, but the farmer was feeling angry and cross.

Off went his gun, but Buly and Brownle rushed back to their cave for all they were worth.
"How selfish of him," they growled, when we were cleaning up his place

But before they reached the cave they had picked up some more goodies.

"We have narrow escapes, don't we?" they said to each other as they went into their cave.

But now they had eaten all they wanted and they went way into their cave for another long nap-until th spring was really around, really around! They went fast, fast asleep and their dreams were of jam and garbage pails but not of men or guns, so you may know they had very happy, pleasant dreams. The farmer took care to keep bis garbage pall from the bears during the next few weeks.

But it was quite useless for him to have bothered, for the bears weren't going near him for awhile. They were too pleased with their lovely dreams, and they were no longer hungry. They would be hungry a little later on in the spring.

Jumbled Stories

Most boys and girls know the amusing game of "Consequences." Another capital diversion, played on similar lines, is jumbled stories. Each player is served with a sheet of notepaper and a pencil, and on the signal for starting being given each proceeds to write three lines of an original story. The first two lines are then folded over, but the third is left exposed to

The papers are then passed on to the neighbor on the left, and he or she, after reading the exposed line continues with three lines of story. And so on, until the paper is filled, and then the whole set is collected, and one of the players, who is a good reader, reads the contents.- The result is most amusing, and the most extraordinary mixtures are made.

Proud of Baby's Cry Joan was the proud possessor of aew baby sister, whose favorite means of expression was crying loud and long. Some little friends of Joan came to see her. As usual, baby's voice was floating through all the air. "Is that your baby crying?" asked the little friends. "Yes," said Joan very proudly. "If you want to hear her real plainly, go and stand on the kitchen porch."

Can You Guess This?

First of all I am a town in England, the best known of alf in that county. Alter my first letter and I can be many things-first something you use at the table; secondly, some thing you eat at the table; thirdly something you do; also something in a bottle. What am I?"

ARO is a delicious food - but A more—it is a real energy food.

There are 120 calories per ounce in Karo - almost twice the energygiving value of eggs and lean beef, weight for weight.

No effort to digest Kero is required as in many other staple foods.

Which means, Karo supplies energy quickly.

And this is important to those who work and play hard. Especially good is Karo for growing children, as your doctor can tell you.

Serve plenty of Karo-keep the folks healthy, happy and satisfied.
